It was further agreed that should the question of Laos come up at the Jakarta meeting, the same position vis-a-vis Cambodia should apply.

The Liberal Party president, Senator Gerardo M. Roxas, was invited to designate a minority representative in the Jakarta delegation. The Senator however said he would hold judgment on that invitation until after consultation with party leaders.

Senate Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, former Secretary of Foreign Affairs Narciso Ramos, Senators Lorenzo M. Tañada, Gerardo M. Roxas, Helena Z. Benitez and Wenceslao R. Lagumbay; Representatives Nicanor Yñiguez, Carmelo Barbero and Aguedo Agbayani;

Joaquin P. Roces of the The Manila Times Publishing Co., Sebastian Ugarte of the Philippines Herald, Hans Menzi of the Bulletin, Manolo Elizalde of the Evening News, Andres Velasco-Go of the Daily Star Rodolfo Reyes of the Manila Chronicle, D. H. Soriano of the Republic and Raul Locsin of Business Day.

Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal of the Rotary international, Leticia de Guzman of the Civic Assembly of the Women of the Philippines, Doroteo Martinez of the Manila Lions, Firmo Liwanag of the Philippine. Jaycees and Oscar Arellano of Operations Brotherhood.

The President spent the afternoon working on official papers, in the course of which he signed the designation papers of Juan S. Agcaoili as deputy commissioner of the Budget Commission.

Agcaoili takes over the post of Fernando Dizon, who retired last February.

His nomination was submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

May 13—

PRESIDENT Marcos received a number of delegations, notably a group of farmers from Central Luzon, the officers of the Jose P. Laurel Foundation, and this day being Congressmen's Day in Malacañang, several congressmen.

The President also received a group of visitors from the United Arab Republic, including M. Kanem, president of the El Nasr Export-Import Company of Cairo, who suggested that a wider export trade relationship be explored between the Philippines and the UAR Others in the group were M. Sheta, M. Rashdi and Imam Abdul Rhenan. The group was accompanied to Malacafiang by UAR Ambassador Abdel Abdel-hamid Fadel, Representative Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del gur, BOI Chairman Antonio Ayala and UP Professor Gerardo Sicat.

Also calling on the President was a group of Spanish visitors. In the group were Coronel Seijas of the Institute Nacional Industria de España, who was accompanied by the Spanish embassy's charge d'affaires, Jose Maria Otero de Leon; Antonio Llord, Tabacalera general manager; Enrique Sta. Maria, commercial attache; Vicente Quesada, Defense Undersecretary Manuel Salientes and Col. Salvador Villa.

Otherwise, the President spent most of his working hours at his desk, studying reports and acting on papers. Among others, he signed the papers granting to the Jose P. Laurel Foundation a parcel of land on which the Foundation building will be built. Present at the signing were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senator Salvador Laurel, Dr. Sotero Laurel, former Senator Pedro Subido and Sixto Y. Orosa, Sr., officials of the Foundation.

The President reiterated his plan to promote cooperative farming as a new approach to the land reform program.

The President told some 110 officers of the Federation of Land Reform Farmers of Central and Southern Luzon, led by Mac Fabian, that he was determined to extend land reform such that the entire country will be covered before his term expires in 1973.

Later, the President created a presidential advisory committee on civil aviation, naming as its ex-officio members CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr., Brig. Gen. Jesus Singson, PAF chief; and the heads of existing pilot associations.

The President at the same time certified to Congress H. B. 2159, entitled the National Aviation Omnibus Bill, which, among others aims at improving the overall domestic civil aviation facilities, and seeks the creation of an aeronautical special fund.

EXCEPT for a meeting at about mid-afternoon with a delegation of local airline pilots, President Marcos has a comparatively quiet day devoted mostly to his paper work, including the signing of new appointments, issuance of directives, and the study of official reports.

In the meeting with airline pilots, the President threshed out the problems brought up by the delegation and asked for the group's recommendations on the improvement of domestic civil aviation facilities, as well as the qualifications of a CAA administrator and of CAA personnel.

With Capt. Felix Gaston, president of the Pilots Association of the Philippines, as spokesman, the group included Clem Mijares, Rex Reyes, Manuel Collantes, Mike Campos, Eddie Limjap, Manuel Alvares, Roberto Javalera, Roberto Arnaiz and Jesus Nievera.

After this meeting, the President returned to his desk work, breaking off only at shortly before 7 p.m. to attend as guest of honor at the awards ceremonies of the 4-H Club, sponsored by the national advisory council of the club and by the Agricultural Productivity Commission at the Manila Hotel.

In his speech, the President lauded the members of the 4-H clubs, saying that the awards given to achievers were not only to honor individual achievement but the "ideal of excellence."

He urged the youth to “find its power and its place in society” by using its energies for “production and community work.”

Noting the activism of today’s youth, he said that the “democracy in the streets” movement serves a good purpose and gained a measure of positive results, although he disapproved of the violence to person and property.

The newly self-realized power of the youth, he said, could also be used through another kind of activism, which has less fanfare, no politics, but is as effective in achieving “desirable ends.”

This activism he described as the “4-H way,” adding that “the young man or woman who chooses this path has every opportunity to work for reforms and help bring about needed changes in our society.”

Earlier, the President certified to Congress House Bill No. 876 which seeks to amend Republic Act No. 4864 otherwise known as the Police Act of 1966, with a view to hastening the professionalization of the nation’s police agencies.

The proposed amendments seek to improve coordination and supervision of local police forces by the Police Commission, to make them more responsive and effective in the performance of their duties.

The amendments also seek to strengthen the powers of the local chiefs of police, so they may be more effective in exercising discipline; and to transfer to the Police Commission the powers to conduct police examinations and to approve the appointments of police personnel. These powers are currently being exercised by the Civil Service Commission.

The President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments the nominations of 13 municipal judges and seven clerks of courts of first instance. (See page 4967 for list of nominees.)

President's Week in Review: May 15-21, 1970

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT Marcos motored to the Manila International Airport where he conferred with Civil Aeronautics Administration officials on the improvement and expansion of civil air transportation facilities.

The President also made a visit to Camp Crame where he checked on the progress of the carnapping campaign at the Philippine Constabulary headquarters in Quezon City.

Earlier in the morning, the President held conferences with a number of key officials, at Malacañang.

Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel Syquio, chairman of the study committee on the improvement of mass transportation in the Greater Manila area, called to submit his report and recommendations. With him was Public Service Commissioner Enrique Medina, one of the members of the committee.

A delegation from the Elks Cerebral Palsy Project, Inc. called to thank the President for having proclaimed the period from May 1 to June 30 this year for the project's national educational and fund campaign.

The group included DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, the project's campaign chairman for 1970; John L. Manning, Sr., chairman of the board of directors; Dr Deogracias Tablan, medical director of the main clinic; Mrs. Priscila Dayao, a Tarlac school teacher, and her daughter Ditas, 13 who had been afflicted with cerebral palsy since birth.

Among others who conferred with the President at noon were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and Representative Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur.

In the afternoon, the President went to Camp Crame where Col. Jaime Catral, chief of Trafcon, showed him recovered carnapped vehicles which have not been claimed by their owners and informed him that 42 out of 48 stolen vehicles had been recovered since the anti-carnapping drive was launched last April-27.

Then the President proceeded to the MIA where CAA officials briefed him on the progress of projects designed to improve civil aviation facilities.

In a move to ensure harmony and consistency in the objectives of the annual budget and long-range development plans, the President created the Presidential Development Budget Committee, establishing the level of annual government expenditures.

In a related order, the President created another committee to study the computerization of budgetary and financial reports.

In his executive order creating the Presidential Development Budget Committee, the President underscored the need for involving more fully in basic budgetary decision-making all development planning agencies and other principal fiscal agencies of the government.

The committee will be headed by the Budget Commissioner, with the chairman of the National Economic Council, Director-General of the Presidential Economic Staff, Secretary of Finance and Governor of the Central Bank as members.

The President also certified to Congress the bill creating a Philippine News Agency.

The bill seeks an accurate and effective voice of Filipino viewpoints in the international scene while serving as an effective and continuous medium to promote the country's export and tourism trades.

Authored by Rep. Artemio Al. Loyola of Davao del Sur the bill proposes to declare as the policy of the state the provision of "an indigenous means of obtaining information on events occurring in foreign countries upon which an informed public opinion on foreign affairs may be formalized, and of disseminating accurate information concerning the country abroad that will project its rightful image in the international community."

In the pursuit of these objectives, the bill's author said that the basic tenets of a free press shall be fully guaranteed and maintained.

President Marcos had a series of speaking engagements which kept him out of Malacañang most of the day.

He was afforded full military honors, including a 21-gun salute and a parade and review on his arrival at the airbase at past 9 a.m.

After trooping the line, the President delivered his address, presented the Presidential King Award to Cadet Diogenes J. Galindo for the highest overall rating in academic and flying training, and distributed the diplomas and wings to the graduates.

Speaking at the graduation exercises, the President called for a national renaissance of "social conscience" and "good manners" in the fulfillment of what he described as the true Filipino character, and in the making of a strong and proud Filipino nation.

The President also paid tribute to the "long and noble tradition" of the Philippine Air Force of serving the distressed by the daily mercy flights carried out in the name of the sick and the injured, the rural and community work of airmen, and the exemplary conduct shown by the airmen during the recent civil disturbances.

"All these," the President said, "demonstrate the strength of social conscience in the air force," a virtue which "forms a high integral part in the development of officers and gentlemen."

From Lipa City, the President, motored direct to the PNB building on the Escolta to address another gathering, the 15th National Rice and Corn Convention.

In his speech, he appealed to the agricultural sector to convert its products in export commodities, for increased dollar earnings.

The President also urged the conventionists to remove rice and corn, and the agricultural industry as a whole, from politics and to organize producer cooperatives.

The President said that the reason for the failure of government programs in the past was that too often solutions to problems are nothing but political solutions which are never intended to last more than a few years.

He assured the rice and corn producers that the solutions he is undertaking are lasting and permanent, and that he would continue his policy of supporting the rice and corn production program, which he initiated himself.

Proceeding direct to his study, the President conferred with CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr., who informed him that the government's two-year program for the modernization of navigational aids for civil aviation is being implemented on schedule.

With the aid of charts, Ablan reported on the progress of the program which the President ordered started in 1969 following technical studies made by experts of the U.S. Federal Aviation Agency and the U.S. Civil Aeronautics Board.

Following his meeting with Ablan, the President again left the Palace at about 2:25 p.m. for Quezon City, this time to inaugurate multimillion dollar rice processing plant of the Mindanao Progress Corporation (MPC), the first in Southeast Asia.

The vertical integral rice processing plant will not only process export rice but also will extract rice oil from rice bran.

Roberto Tullo, MPC president, said that it would have been impossible to set up the plant without help from the government.

Before delivering his address, the President, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Tullo, unveiled the marker inaugurating the processing plant.

The President had a brief rest at Malacañang late in the afternoon, and then tackled official papers in his private study till evening, in the course of which he:

1. Issued a memorandum circular creating a committee which will review and restudy all pending petitions from public agencies or private organizations for the grant or segregation of government lands. Numerous petitions had been received by the President for the grant of lands of the public or private domain of the government for certain public purposes, or for their disposition and alienation through sale or lease.
2. Signed the rules and regulations of the Price Control Council setting the maximum percentage limit for the prices of essential commodities and thereby launching into full operation the newly-created all-important Council.

The Council, which is empowered by law, under Republic Act No. 6124, to fix the maximum selling price of essential commodities, rules that essential commodities mentioned in R.A. 6124 are allowed the following maximum price limit:

- (a) Production costs plus a mark-up of 10 percent to the manufacturer or producer, five percent to the wholesaler and 10 percent to the retailer if the articles or commodities are locally manufactured, or
- (b) Landed cost plus a mark-up of five percent to the importer or indenter, five percent to the wholesaler and 10 percent to the retailer, if the articles or commodities are imported.

In Baguio City, President Marcos held a series of conferences with local officials who briefed him on pressing problems in their respective jurisdictions.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, the President arrived in Baguio City shortly before 1 p.m. from Poro Point, San Fernando, La Union where he landed aboard the RPS 777 after an overnight voyage from Manila,

At Poro Point, the President was met by a delegation of La Union officials headed by Governor Juvenal Guerrero, Representatives Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega, and San Fernando Mayor Lorenzo Dacanay.

After hearing Mass aboard the ship, the President and the First Lady disembarked and motored up to Baguio via the Naguilian road.

At the Baguio City boundary they were met by another delegation of officials headed by Mayor Luis Lardizabal of Baguio City.

Focusing on paper work later on, the President issued an executive order reviving the total ban on the slaughter of carabaos and buffaloes as a means of discouraging carabao rustling, helping conserve work animals and boosting food production.

The new order revokes Executive Order No. 100 dated November 2, 1967 authorizing the slaughter of carabaos and buffaloes under certain conditions.

The President also issued another executive order creating the Commission on Population to “formulate program recommendations on population as it relates to economic and social development.”

The new order, which revoked Executive Order No. 171 issued on February 19, 1969 creating the original Commission on Population, revised the membership of the commission and vested it with additional duties and functions.

The President, in his order, reasserted the generally accepted principle that “the population problem must be recognized as a principal element in long-range national planning if governments are to achieve their economic goals and fulfill the aspirations of their people.

PRESIDENT Marcos ordered that an operational cash budget be instituted, to supplement the present budgeting system based on obligation. The move was aimed at ensuring the availability of cash resources for priority development projects and at the same time at establishing a better rationale for recommending the level, type and timing of public borrowing.

Earlier, the President created the Presidential Development Budget Committee, which committee he also ordered to study the computerization of budgetary and financial reports.

All these are directed at ensuring harmony and consistency in the objectives of the annual budget and the long-range development plans, and at establishing the level of annual government expenditures.

In this regard, the President underscored the need for involving more fully all development planning agencies and other principal fiscal agencies of the government in basic budgetary decision-making.

In order to ensure success in instituting the operational cash budget, the President promulgated the following rules and regulations:

1. The Treasurer of the Philippines shall prepare a monthly estimate of cash inflow into the Treasury indicating probable sources and funds to which they accrue and shall submit such estimates at least 20 days before the beginning of each quarter to the Budget Commission;
2. In submitting the financial work plan and request for allotment to the Budget Commission, every agency shall indicate therein the cash requirements of the agency during the corresponding quarter, broken down into weekly schedule of required cash disbursements;

3. The Budget Commission shall carefully review the monthly and weekly cash disbursement requirements of the agencies to properly relate such total cash disbursement requirements with the estimated total cash inflow in the Treasury. In the same manner and in the same document that the Budget Commission releases the advice of allotment to any agency for the purpose of establishing the obligational authority of the agency, the Budget Commission shall release to the same agency its authorized cash disbursement ceiling for the corresponding quarter, broken down into weekly basis, furnishing the resident representative of the Auditor General a copy of the advice of allotment which it has release to any agency to the Treasury. Cash disbursements of agencies shall be limited as to amount and shall be timed as prescribed in the cash disbursement ceiling authorized by the Budget Commission;

4. The representative of the Auditor General shall not countersign any treasury warrant, check of expense voucher if the disbursement contemplated therein will exceed the cash disbursement ceiling authorized and outside the time schedule for such disbursement ;

5. The Budget Commissioner shall submit to the Presidential Development Budget Committee the Cash Budget to enable the Committee to make adjustments therein if necessary and to recommend borrowings to cover projected cash deficiencies if such eventualities are expected to occur.

PRESIDENT Marcos devoted a quiet day working on official papers. He also received a number of local and national officials who came to consult him on state problems and discussed official matters with close aides.

The President created a 17-man Citizen's Committee on Order and Justice, to act as the action arm of the Peace and Order Coordinating Council in the Greater Manila Area.

Creation of the committee was recommended by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. who underlined the need to maintain a civilian or private group in the peace and order campaign.

The President also issued a new order revising Administrative Order No. 182 of October 31, 1969, which created the Presidential Coordinating Committee for Social Justice and Agrarian Reforms.

May 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS held a press conference to clarify various points pertaining to the deportation of Yuyitung brothers, the Jakarta conference on Cambodia, and the national security and intelligence fund.

Meeting the press at around 12:30 p.m., the President first made extemporaneous remarks, then answered questions from the floor. Sitting with him were Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, and Immigration Commissioner Edmundo Reyes.

The rest of the President's working day was devoted to state papers, mostly reports from various government offices, and official documents which needed action or his perusal.

After a brief rest in the afternoon, the President returned to his study to work well into evening.

The President directed Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz to proceed to Cebu on the first available air transportation, in the wake of reported outbreak of typhoid epidemic in Tabuelan town.

The President ordered the departments of health and of social welfare to send special teams and work closely in the areas in Cebu province reported to have an outbreak of the epidemic.

PRESIDENT Marcos reasserted the supremacy of civilian over the military authority, pointing out that his administration has emphasized to the country's soldiers that "they are servants of the people, and therefore subservient to the people's will as represented by civilian authority."

This is in keeping, he said, with the principle of popular government where the people make the broad decisions, thus the constituted government and its leaders "must always act in partnership with the people."

In a speech as guest of honor at the joint commencement exercises of the National Defense College of the Philippines and the Command and General Staff College of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, held at Camp Aguinaldo, the President asserted that the military, "being a part of government must therefore adhere unfailingly to this policy, and in every way possible extend and deepen this partnership." (See pp. 5192-29 to 5192-34 for full text of the President's speech.)

Back at Malacañang, the President resumed his paperwork, but once again interrupted himself to receive several groups of students who came to present a number of petitions. He granted most of the petitions on the spot, including the certification of certain bills, many of which he had earlier certified already.

The rest of the day more or less followed his schedule, with consultations with aides and visiting officials, and receiving callers.

Accompanied to Malacañang by U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroad and Rear Admiral Draper Kauffman, commander of the U.S. naval forces in the Philippines, Admiral McCain was on a brief stop-over in Manila enroute back to his headquarters in Honolulu after visits to Tokyo and Taipei.

Among other actions, the President reappointed officials of the government whose nominations were by-passed by the Commission on Appointments, except members of certain government boards whose qualifications the President would like to review.

Under the law, officials whose nominations were not confirmed by the Commission on Appointments cease to hold office upon the adjournment of Congress.

The President made the reappointments to avoid possible disruption in the service.

In another speech the President affirmed the youth's right to demand change, but urged that change should be pursued in the "libertarian tradition of Rizal and the reformers of his time."

Speaking through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. who read his speech, at the opening of the National Youth Congress sponsored by the YMCA of the Philippines, the President asked the gathering to "strengthen the case for reason and restraint in the revolution for reforms."

Contrasting the militants' adherence to the Maoist dictum that "power grows out of the barrel of gun," to Rizal's advice to the young that "our hope lies in the education of our people, in their liberation from illiteracy, hunger and injustice," the President said that Rizal is more relevant to our times.

Saying that the YMCA of the Philippines is identified with the peaceful approach to change, he expressed confidence that one of the valuable contributions of the youth congress to the student movement is "to strengthen the case for reason and restraint in the revolution for reforms."

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS highlighted his working day with a meeting with the Foreign Policy Council to hear the report of the Philippine delegation to the Jakarta talks on Cambodia, headed by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo.

The Council agreed with the observation of the Philippine delegation that the Jakarta meeting had been useful in gathering the views of 11 foreign ministers representing 350 million people, concerning a situation of immediate concern to the region.

The Council confirmed the support expressed earlier by the Philippine delegation in Jakarta to the efforts of the Secretary-General of the United Nations to organize a bigger conference on Indochina.

The Council confirmed its earlier decision of May 12, that the government is against the sending of military aid to Cambodia.

The Council favored the sending of humanitarian aid within the framework of a people to people aid program, through the facilities of the Red Cross.

In this regard, the council recalled the well-known humanitarian work of "Operations Pakikisama," which was instrumental in collecting private donations of clothing, food and medicines in the Philippines for distribution among the displaced population of South Vietnam. It was proposed that humanitarian aid to Cambodia be undertaken along a similar line, under the immediate auspices of civic entities.

Present at the meeting were Vice President. Fernando Lopez, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Justice Felix Makasiar, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Speaker Pro-tempore Jose Aldeguer, Senator Gerardo M. Roxas, Senator Lorenzo M. Tañada; House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, Representative Nicanor Yñiguez, Representative Justiniano S. Montano, former Secretaries of foreign Affairs Narciso Ramos and Salvador P. Lopez, Hans Menzi of the Bulletin, Joaquin Roces of the Times Publications, Leon O. Ty of the Examiner and Melchor Aquino of the Evening News.

The rest of the President's day was divided between desk work, receiving visitors, and ceremonies wherein he conferred honors on two military men who have rendered valuable services to the country.

The President also inducted six new officials, namely, Juan D. Manuel, as undersecretary of education; Mrs. Liceria Soriano, director of Public Schools Clodoaldo Leocadio, assistant director of Public Schools; Federico Ablan, Jr., administrator, Civil Aeronautics Administration; Mario R. Reyes administrator, National Cottage Industries Development Authority; and Pompeyo Gregorio, executive secretary, State Scholarships Council.

He conferred the Legion of Honor on South Korean General Mun Hyong Tae, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the armed forces of Korea, at a ceremony held at Malacañang in the morning; and in the evening conferred the same award on Admiral Draper Kauffman, commander of U.S. Naval Forces in the Philippines.

Among his callers today was a group of newsmen composing the Department of National Defense press corps, who petitioned him to retain Brigadier General Eduardo Garcia as PC chief. In the group were Alex Allan of

PRESIDENT MARCOS emphasized the importance of individual responsibility in attaining the objectives of social justice, which he pointed out is a program of action long ago initiated by the government.

Apart from the collective or organized response of various entities to the problems of social justice, he said, the individual has also a real and continuing commitment to social justice.

In a speech delivered at the opening of the 17th national convention of the manufacturers and producers of the Philippine Chamber of Industries, held at the Manila Hotel in the evening, the President took note of the “many searching questions now being raised about the society we live in, its nature and direction.”

Social concern, he said, is not new to the nation, having been the concern of the Philippine Revolution and given new impetus by President Manuel L. Quezon, whose regime was marked by social unrest arising from agrarian problems.

By the end of World War II, he continued, “it became necessary to take serious steps towards formulating and implementing a land reform program.” (See pages 5392 to 5405 for full text of the President’s speech.)

The President, as is his wont on weekends, devoted his working day mostly to studying and acting on state papers.

Among others, he directed the ad hoc committee working with the Financial Policy Council to study how aid to rice and corn farmers, as proposed by the committee, may be funded from new sources of revenue. The President also created a special committee to make the homecoming of Aurora M. Pijuan, the new Miss International, memorable, in appreciation of her triumph in the prestigious global beauty tilt, which had built-in dividends for Philippine tourism, and the nation in general.

In the evening, the President motored to the Manila Hotel where he was guest of honor at the Philippine Chamber of Industries convention.

May 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS confined himself to paper work the whole day. He signed the designations of 34 national officials, to insure the continuity of government operations, following the adjournment of the first regular session of the Seventh Congress.

At 11 a.m., the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, heard Mass at the Malacañang chapel.

The President did not receive callers, and worked only on state papers until evening.

May 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS rounded out his morning’s activities with an appearance as guest of honor and speaker at the opening of the plenary session of the 4th Asia-Pacific Regional Marketing Conference, held at the Hotel Inter-Continental.

In his speech, the President underlined the need for Asian unity if progress and continuing growth are to be achieved and maintained.

He asked Asian nations to unify and “heal the physical and moral schisms and establish harmony.”

The need for cooperation in Asia, he said, is crucial for it is the only way to full development.

Earlier in the morning, the President worked at his desk on state papers. Back to Malacañang at about 11:30 a.m., the President received a number of callers, among whom were Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr. of PANAMIN, Mrs. Adelina Rodriguez, Representatives Jose de Venecia and Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, and Pablo Ocampo of Manila, and the Philippine delegation to the Second Asian Judo Championship Tournament, scheduled in Taiwan from May 28 to May 31.

The group was composed of Florencio C. Catanghal, head of delegation; Major Dominador M. Estanislao, coach; Jess L. Ledesma, representative to the Judo Union of Asia Congress, also to be held in Taiwan: Rogelio Andres, lightweight; Geronimo Dyogi, light middleweight; Narzal Garcia, middleweight; Fernando Garcia, light heavyweight; and Oscar Bautista, open weight.

In the afternoon, and through the rest of his working day, the President was closeted in his study, acting on official papers.

Among others, the President filled the top posts of the National Electrification Administration, created under Republic Act No. 6038, making the agency operational.

Designated chairman of the NEA Board of Administrators was Geronimo Velasco, the president, of Dole Philippines; and named members were Brigadier General Ceferino Carreon (retired), former Public Works Secretary Antonio Raquiza, and Felix Limcaoco.

The fifth member of the board, as specified in the law, should be the administrator of the Electrification Administration, created under Republic Act No. 2717, which is automatically dissolved with the organization of the NEA, and absorbed into the new agency.

President Marcos consulted his Financial Policy Council on the financing requirements of priority projects during a meeting held at about 10:30 a.m. at Malacañang.

Present during the meeting were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, Acting Secretary of Finance Pedro Almanzor, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Chairman Antonio Ayala of the Board of Investments, Deputy Governor Amado Briñas of the Central Bank, President Eusebio Villatuya of the Philippine National Bank, Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the Development Bank of the Philippines, and Administrator Gilberto Teodoro of the Social Security System.

Earlier, the President worked on official papers, then set them aside for the important conference.

At 11:15 a.m., he once more disengaged from his usual routine to address the graduates of the first seminar held in Malacañang for middle-management employees of the Office of the President.

In his remarks, the President called on the country’s civil servants to work towards “a strong, dedicated, incorruptible and competent” civil service that moves on its own momentum, independent of partisan considerations and unaffected by the periodic constitutional changes in leadership.

Because of the new energy that has been unleashed in the bureaucracy for government workers to upgrade themselves by constant training programs, seminars and self-study, the President expressed hope that the government will soon be run by a competent civil service that does not have to rely on the initiatives from the upper echelons of leadership in order for it to move.

Among those who attended the seminar graduation rites were the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, and Assistant Executive Secretaries Ponciano Mathay, Gilberto Duavit, Flores Bayot and Roberto Reyes.

In the afternoon, the President worked mostly at his desk. He saw only close aides and officials who came for consultations. He continued to work uninterrupted through early evening.

Among others, the President:

1. Ordered the total ban on the importation of luxury vehicles by all government offices and entities, as a means of conserving foreign exchange.
2. Ordered the immediate mobilization of the government's various relief agencies to come to the assistance of the victims whose houses were reportedly burned down in Friday's incident in Bantay, Ilocos Sur.

The President also declared that all possible efforts are being undertaken by the military and the constabulary to bring to justice the parties responsible for the reported sacking of the two barrios in Bantay, and that the whole severity of the law shall be applied to all those who took part in that incident.

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted most of the morning up to nearly noon to state papers. Then he interrupted himself to begin receiving congressmen, Wednesday being Congressmen's Day at Malacañang.

Among the solons who called were Representatives Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac, Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental, Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur, Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, Felipe Azcuna of Zamboanga del Norte, Godofredo Tan of Quezon, Felipe Abvigo of Samar, Rodolfo Albano of Isabela, Jose Neri of Camiguin, Romulo Lumauig of Ifugao, Eduardo Gullas of Cebu, D. O. Plaza of Agusan, Pablo Malasarte of Bohol, Joaquin Ortega of La Union, Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, Joaquin Chipeco of Laguna, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, and Artemio Loyola of Davao del Sur, who was accompanied; by Governor Ramon de los Cientos and several town mayors.

The President discussed with the Davao group, among other things, the needs of the burgeoning sugar industry in the province.

In-between receiving congressmen, the President inducted Dr. Lorenzo Ga. Cesar, the newly appointed Assistant Director of Public Schools.

In the afternoon, the President resumed working on state papers.

Earlier, the President summoned the top provincial government and party officials of Ilocos Sur to Malacañang to discuss "urgent business," in the wake of the Bantay incident.

High ranking officials of the Philippine Constabulary were also summoned to the conference.

The President also took a direct hand in the recent fatal shooting of Domingo Miranda, owner of a nightclub in Reina Mercedes, Isabela by directing the Department of Justice to give the case urgent priority.

The President issued the directive in reply to an appeal from the brother of the deceased, Mayor Raymundo C. Miranda of Santiago, Isabela, who informed the President that he had tried in vain to get information on the incident.

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted almost all of his working day to state papers, and to problems brought to his attention.

Except for a single break in the afternoon from office work, occasioned by his appearance at the ceremonies celebrating the 32nd anniversary of the Presidential Guards Battalion, he remained at his desk.

About 4 p.m., the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, crossed the Pasig River to Malacañang Park, where the PGB honored the First Couple as the special guests at the guardmen's anniversary rites.

The President trooped the line, then joined the other guests as the PGB a composite honor guard passed in review.

In his speech, the President exhorted the guards to improve the quality of their performance and of the unit itself, while continuing to serve flag, country and people.

Returning to Malacañang about 5 p.m., he resumed his desk work, continuing through evening.

Earlier, the President designated Assistant Director Pedro G. Refuerzo as acting director of Animal Industry, vice Dr. Anacleto Coronel who retired from the service last month.

Dr. Refuerzo's designation follows the President's policy of strengthening the career service, by entrusting key government posts to deserving officials who have risen from the ranks.

President's Week in Review: May 29 - June 4, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCOS delved into the Bantay incident in a conference with Ilocos Sur officials, PC and AFP brass, and others concerned with the problem in that province, during which he issued directives on follow-up action. He sternly ordered the arrest and prosecution of the parties responsible for the terroristic acts in the barrio.

Present at the meeting, which started around 10 a.m. were Governor Carmeling P. Crisologo, Representative Floro S. Crisologo, Mayor Maria Asuncion Porte, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Justice Felix V. Makasiar, NBI Director Jolly Bugarin, Chief Prosecutor Emilio Gancayco, General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brigadier General Eduardo Garcia, PC chief; Brigadier General Felizardo Tanabe, 1st PC Zone commander, and Colonel Florentino Dumpit, Ilocos Sur provincial commander; and 24 barrio captains of Bantay.

During the day, the President also received a number of callers, including a large delegation representing the Hospital Association of the Philippines, who called after closing its 21st annual convention.

The President assured the group that he will implement immediately the medicare program once funds are available. The group was headed by Dr. Eliodoro Congco, HAP President.

Notable among the other callers were Senator Rene Espina and Representative Emerito S. Calderon.

In the afternoon, the President devoted his time to official papers and other state business. He worked at his desk through evening.

PRESIDENT MARCOS mostly attended to state papers, with no visitors scheduled to call at Malacañang, and with only one break, his appearance as special guest at the rites commemorating Memorial Day or American soldiers who died in the World War II battle here.

In his speech, the President said that the defense of freedom continues to be a challenge to freemen everywhere, and to Americans and Filipinos—but today rather than make war, both peoples must fight to establish a just and peaceful society in the world.

The President worked at his desk all morning, relaxed briefly after lunch, then, at around 4 p.m., went off to Fort Bonifacio for the Memorial Day services.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Designated Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto Reyes chairman of the national government division, in the educational and fund campaign of the Community Chest.
2. Pulled out PARGO agents from RICOB, when that agency complained about unnecessary investigations of the agents, which were described as merely harassment.
3. Released ₱14.3 million as financing for vital economic development projects which include the Pantabangan Dam, the Cotabato Irrigation System, the improvement of the Port of Manila and several other ports in the country.

Returning to Malacañang, he worked at his desk the rest of the afternoon continuing till evening.

May 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to personally bring the victims of the Bantay incident to Manila so that they could give Malacañang a firsthand account of the burning and looting of Barrios Ora East and Ora Center in Bantay, Ilocos Sur last week.

The President directed the defense secretary to make available as many aircraft as are available to transport the victims to Manila.

At the same time, the President ordered the release of ₱20,000 through the Department of Social Welfare to help the Victims rebuild their houses.

The President also directed Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano to go with Secretary Enrile so that he would be able to see for himself how relief is being dispensed to the displaced residents of the two barrios.

He likewise asked Gen. Manuel T. Yan the AFP Chief of Staff, to see how military engineers could be of assistance in rebuilding the houses that had been burned down in the two barrios, as well as to report on the progress of civic action work being under taken by units of the civic action team sent by the AFP from Laoag to Bantay.

Earlier, the President created a Presidential Advisory Committee on Civil Aviation charged with updating civil aviation policies and upgrading and modernizing air services and facilities “to make air travel one of the safest and most speedy and efficient means of transportation.”

The committee will be composed of the chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, the director of Civil Aviation, the commanding general of the Philippine Air Force, and the heads of all pilots’ associations.

June 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a Malaysian dignitary of the country’s royal house, the Yan Di-Pertuan Besar Tengku Ja-Afar of Negari

Sambilan and his wife, Madame Tengku Ampuan Najiba, both of whom will stay for a brief visit in the country. The royal couple are enroute home to Kuala Lumpur from a visit to Expo ’70 in Osaka.

The President also received a number of provincial governors, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and a group of sugar industry leaders, along with SQA Administrator Jose A. Unson.

The President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, were on hand to receive the Malaysian royal couple, and during the brief visit exchanged views on a broad range of topics. The President advised the couple on some interesting places to visit in the Philippines during their sightseeing trip here.

In his meeting with Secretary Romulo, the President was briefed by the foreign secretary on the highlights of the UN conference on human survival, from which Romulo recently returned.

The sugar leaders who saw the President were, besides Unson, SQA Directors Carlos Ledesma and Manolo Elizalde. They informed the President of the additional quota from the United States adducing to the Philippines, from the deficits of other sugar producers, including U. S. sugarmen, which will bring to the country some $16 million in foreign exchange earnings.

The provincial governors who called on the President to discuss local problems and requirements were Tito Primicias Jr. of Pangasinan, Teresa Dupaya of Cagayan, Irene Balite of Northern Samar and Jose B. Legaspi of Aklan.

An additional presidential chore was the induction of Judge Fernando Santiago, who has been appointed judge of the court of first instance, with jurisdiction over Quezon province and Lucena City.

In-between all these activities, the President worked on state papers, and continued to do so till evening.

In connection with the Bantay incident, the President ordered Secretary of Justice Felix Y. Makasiar to institute formal charges of arson against Vincent Crisologo, son of Representative Floro S. Crisologo and Governor Carmeling P. Crisologo of Ilocos Sur.

The President also ordered the Justice Secretary to file appropriate charges against Luis “Chavit” Singson, also of Ilocos Sur, in connection with the killing of the Ilocos Sur provincial jail warden, Quirino de la Cruz, inside a bowling alley near the archbishop’s palace, in Vigan, in the afternoon of May 21, one day before the burning of 44 houses in Barrios Ora East and Ora Center in Bantay.

At the same time, the President ordered the filing of charges of illegal Possession of firearms against, a sergeant found to be in illegal possession of a garand, and such other persons found to be in possession of firearms without authority.

The President issued the above orders after receiving the report of Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile who had earlier made a flying trip to Ilocos Sur to provide airlift service to the victims of the Bantay incident. The victims had expressed the desire to be given transport facilities so that they could see the President and give a personal account of the Bantay incident.

PRESIDENT MARCOS stayed close to Malacañang all morning and afternoon in anticipation of the call of the Bantay victims or their representatives, so that he may be able to hear firsthand their side of the Bantay incident, and act on all feasible petitions speedily.

While waiting, he cancelled his schedule of visitors so that he may be free to attend to the Bantay folk, and worked on state papers.

Among others, he ordered the audit of all public utility firms throughout the country, studied reports, and conferred with close aides.

Named by the President to represent industry, as specified in the law, were Victor Lim and Rogelio Manalo, and to represent labor, Juan C. Tan and Cipriano Cid.

The President also designated Perpetuo L. B. Alonzo as acting director of the Office of Manpower Planning and Development; and Antonio M. Nuesa as acting director of the Office of Out-of-School Youth Development.

Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople is the ex-officio chairman of the Council, and Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz is ex-officio vice-chairman, Secretary Ople is also the acting director-general of the Council secretariat.

June 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presided at two important conference in Malacañang, one on the appropriations bill, and the other on other urgent bills which are still pending in Congress.

Both conferences were held in the morning, thus cancelling any scheduled calls on the President.

At the first conference, the President discussed with Budget Commissioner Faustino SyChangco, Senator Dominador Aytona and Representative Jose Alberto, chairmen of their respective appropriations committees in Congress, the problems and differences in the budget bill.

In the second conference, the President discussed the essentiality of passing the bills he certified to Congress, which cover a wide range of national requirements, including development, financing, peace and order, social needs.

Present at this conference were Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senate Majority Floorleader Arturo Tolentino, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, Senators Helena Z. Benitez and Dominador Aytona, and Representatives Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte and Pablo Roman of Bataan.

After these conferences, the only other important event of the day was the President's meeting with a delegation from Ilocos Sur which spoke up for the provincial administration. The group presented the side of the Crisologo faction in the Bantay incident. About 1,000 provincial officials and citizens made up the delegation.

The President also called into the meeting national officials concerned, including Secretary of Justice Felix V. Makasiar, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Chief State Prosecutor Emilio Gancayco, General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; and Brigadier General Eduardo Garcia, PC chief.

The Ilocos Sur leaders at the meeting were Representatives Floro S. Crisologo and Lucas Cauton, and the mayors and barrio captains of the province.

June 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS finally met with the families in the Bantay (Ilocos Sur) incident in the morning at Malacañang's Maharlika Hall. During the meeting he heard the victims tell their stories and afterward mapped out the rehabilitation of the barrio.

Before the meeting, the President attended to state business as usual, and in-between received callers, notably the representatives of the Philippine Lumber Producers Association whom he asked to use part of their vast profits in helping the government conserve the forests.

The President suggested, and the lumbermen agreed, that the latter group band themselves together and set aside a common fund for the formation of a vigilante group, which will actively assist government in going after violators of forest laws. The President said he is willing to deputize such group, if necessary.

At the same time, the President asked the group to help government put stop to corruption in the forestry service by reporting to the government all cases of extortion, bribery, and other irregularities involving lumbermen and forestry men.

The officials and directors of the PLPA called on the President to pledge support to the forest resources conservation program and the "lotion and development of local wood industries.

Among those in the group were Antonio de las Alas, honorary president; Renato Arevalo, president; P. M. Picornell and J. J. Becker, vice presidents; Pacifico de Ocampo, secretary-treasurer; and Nicolas Capistrano, Jr., Carlos P. Fernandez, Florencio Tamesis, Aurelio Lagman, Guillermo Ponce, Deogracias San Pedro, Walter McAloney, Mamerto Sanvictores, C. F. Roxas, III, Francisco J. Nicolas, Jorge Tirador, Dan F. Estes and Conrado Alcantara, directors.

One of the President's first visitors was Stan Swinton, director of world services of the Associated Press. Swinton was accompanied by John Nance, chief of the AP Manila bureau.

There were no other callers for the rest of the day, giving the President ample time to devote to his paper work. At about 4 p.m., he left Malacañang to attend the inauguration of the Don Bosco Boys Center at Barrio Magsaysay in Tondo, as guest of honor and principal speaker.

In his speech, the President asked for greater citizenship participation in social amelioration programs, particularly from among those who can contribute significantly to the advancement of the program.

Back in Malacañang, he resumed working on state papers in his study.

President's Week in Review: June 5-11, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCOS, speaking on Independence Day, declared that this nation “will not bargain this freedom for wealth, comfort or ease.”

The President reminded the nation that the freedom Filipinos enjoy today was achieved “through the sweat and blood of our fathers. . .and we cannot lose this freedom now.”

The President's speech was delivered at the Cultural Center of the Philippines, where seven citizens, who have distinguished themselves in various fields were given the Republic Cultural Heritage Awards.

“In the fields of art and culture and in political life,” the President said, “we have made great strides.” These achievements, he said, are made more meaningful because they were attained in an atmosphere of freedom “which is truly our precious heritage.” (See pages 6023-A to 6023-D for full text of the President’s speech.)

Earlier in the morning, the President led in the nationwide recitation of the pledge to the Flag and the Republic which was one of the highlights of today's celebration of Independence Day.

The recitation of the pledge followed the simultaneous hoisting of the Philippine flag throughout the country at 7 a.m., with the President officiating at the Luneta rites, and Vice President Fernando Lopez at ceremonies held at the Aguinaldo Shrine in Kawit, Cavite.

Notwithstanding a heavy drizzle, a big crowd which included Senate President Gil J. Puyat, members of the Cabinet, representatives of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, war veterans, boy and girl scouts, and representatives of the Cultural Minorities attended the Luneta rites.

The President, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, arrived at the Rizal Park shortly before 7 a.m. He was accorded military honors, including a 21-gun salute by a composite battalion of the AFP.

He then hoisted the Philippine flag as the National Anthem was played:

The flag ceremony was followed by the recitation of the pledge, “Ipinagmamalaki Ko Ang Aking Pagiging Malaya” (I Am Proud To Be Free). The text of the pledge follows:

IPINAGMAMALAKI PAGIGING MALAYA	KO	ANG	AKING

(Isang Panunumpa)

Ipinagmamalaki ko ang aking pagiging malaya,
Ang kalayaan ay naging mabuti at maamo
Sa lahat ng aking pangangailangan.
Ipinagmamalaki ko ang aking minana
Isinilang sa pawis at dugo ng aking mga ninuno
At nagkaloob ng kaliwanagan at kaluwalhatian sa aking lahi.
Ipinagmamalaki ko any bandilang nangangalaya
sa aking mga pangarap
At tinatalibaang may dangal ang lahat na taglay ko.
Ako'y nananalig na:

Sa bawa't karapatang naisin ko,
 may katungkulang dapat kony gampanan;
 Sa, bawa't pag-asang pasibulin ko,
 may gawaing dapat tuparin.
 Upang ang bansang ito'y
 Manatiling nakapagmamalaki at matatag,
 Sa pundasyon ng kalayaan, katarungan, pagkakapatiran at pagunlud,
 At any mga kalahi ko'y
 Lumaging nakapangyayari sa lupang ito, at Nagkakaisa kailan man,
 Sumusumpa akong maninindigan sa Republika
 Na taglay ang katatagan at kabutihang-loob,
 Na sa ilalim ng liwanag ng Bathala,
 Mapaglingkuran ko ang layuning panlahat
 At lunggatiin ng laliat,
 Kahit man maipagpakasakit ang kaalwanan,
 Kapalaran o ang buhay man.

I AM PROUD TO BE FREE (A-Pledge)

/ am proud to be free,
 Freedom has been good and kind
 To my every need.
 I am proud of my heritage
 Born of the sweat and blood of my fathers
 And giving light and glory to my race.
 I am proud of the flag that nurtures my aspirations
 And, guards with honor everything that I possess.
 I believe that:
 For every right I cherish, I have a duty to meet,
 For every hope I nourish, I have a task to keep.
 So that this nation may endure, proud and strong, on
 The rock of freedom, justice, brotherhood and progress
 And my people abide, sovereign in this land, and Forever united,
 I pledge to stand by the Republic with courage
 And goodwill,
 That under God's light, I may serve the common goal
 And the common effort, even at the cost of ease,
 Fortune or life itself.

In consonance with the policy of fiscal restraint, the traditional civic-military parade was omitted.

After the Luneta rites, the President and the First Lady, motored back to Malacañang for the Thanksgiving Mass. Auxiliary Bishop of Manila Amado Paulino officiated at the Mass. He was assisted by Fr. Juan Bautista, PGB chaplain.

After the Mass, the President and the First Lady received Independence Day well-wishers, among whom were members of the diplomatic corps led by the Papal Nuncio, ranking officials of the executive, legislative and judiciary branches of the government, civic, religious and veterans organizations.

In offering a toast with the members of the diplomatic corps, the President expressed faith that ultimately men would discover that they are brothers and that they shall live in peace.

After the reception, the President attended the award ceremonies of the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines in which he was guest of honor and speaker.

In the evening, the President, together with the First Lady, motored to the Cultural Center of the Philippines on Roxas Boulevard where he was principal guest of honor at the presentation of the Republic Cultural Heritage Awards to seven citizens, all prominent in the fields of science, arts and letters.

Meanwhile, the President continued receiving messages from heads of state all over the world felicitating the Filipino people on the 72nd anniversary of Philippine Independence.

Among those who have wired their messages wishing the Philippines continued prosperity and progress were Sabah Alsalem Alsabah Amir of Kuwait, Chairman Ne Win of the Revolutionary Council of the Union of Burma, Emperor Hirohito of Japan, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi Shahanshah of Iran, President Cevdet Sunay of the Republic of Turkey;

President Zalman Shazar of Israel, Queen Elizabeth of England, Crown Prince Regent Harald of Norway, King Savang Vatthana of Laos, Major General Yakubu Gowon, head of the military government of the Federal Republic of Nigeria; President Urho Kekkonen of the Republic of Finland, King Constantine of Greece, King Bhumibol of Thailand;

Archbishop Makarios, president of the Republic of Cyprus; President Fidel Sanchez Hernandez of El Salvador, President Joaquin Balaguer of the Dominican Republic, President J. M. Velasco Ibarra of Ecuador, President Americo Thomas of Portugal, President Rafael Caldera of Venezuela, King Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and King Mohammad Zaher of Afghanistan.

Felicitations were also received from Capt. Emilio E. Massera the commander of the Argentine frigate La Libertad, which made a goodwill visit in the country recently; and from Consul General Fortunato Gerardo in Denmark.

June 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Philippine National Bank to facilitate the opening of all required letters of credit for the importation of materials needed to complete as early as possible the Asian Development Bank-United Nations Center building complex.

The President also approved a suggestion of Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. that the Presidential Coordinating Committee for the ADB propose to all contractors of the building complex that they submit to an arbitrator who is mutually acceptable in order to resolve expeditiously all issues that may arise during the construction.

The President made these moves to prevent the delay in the construction of the ADB-UNC Building Complex, which is now 18 months late.

The President worked mostly at his desk throughout the day, with only two callers, both delegations of citizens, to break his concentration on state papers.

Those who called were:

1. About 600 citizens from the medical profession and other professions, to petition for the appointment of Dr. Pacifico Marcos, the President's brother, as chairman of the Medicare Commission. Among those who led the group were Dr. Reginaldo Pascual, PGH director; and Tomas G. Mapa.
2. A delegation of labor leaders, accompanied by Undersecretary of Labor Raoul Inocentes, who requested presidential certification of a bill authorizing a public housing program for workers and other low-income groups, which the Workers Bank would administer.

Those in the group were Romeo Roy and Vicente Arniego (NLUC), Laureano Sayas, Pedro Usaro and Roberto Paras of FOITAF, Domingo Sta. Ana (PLUM), Ricardo Manalad, Gerry Quadra (PMP), Fort Biangco, Bert Espinelli, Edgar Lubiano, Doming Obillo and Nick Gustilo of the PALEA.

In a speech in Pilipino, read for him by Undersecretary of Industry Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., at the opening of the San Antonio Commercial Center in Valenzuela, Bulacan this afternoon, the President pledged to continue upholding the priority rights of Filipinos in the development of the country's trade and commerce.

The President, however, assured foreign investors that they are welcome to assist in such development.

The President stressed that Filipino control of the country's economy remains a basic policy of his administration.

"Filipinos should be given all the opportunities in the development of the national economy," he said.

Foreigners, the President said, may participate in this economic development effort under certain conditions. Their assistance is welcome, he stressed, when freely and reasonably given.

PRESIDENT MARCOS laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Fort Bonifacio to mark the 25th anniversary of the Battle of Bessang Pass.

Arriving at 8 a.m. with Commodore Santiago Nuval (retired), who fetched him at Malacañang, the President was accorded military honors by the Philippine Army composite battalion, including a 21-gun salute.

After the floral offering the President proceeded to the PA Officers' Club where he had breakfast with the officers of the USAFIP-NL and their guests.

Then, the President proceeded to the Maharlika Hall to attend the convention and election of officers of the USAFIP-NL, during which he was reelected national commander. A luncheon with his comrades during the Battle of Bessang Pass followed the convention.

Other officers elected at the USAFIP-NL were: Commodore Santiago Nuval, 1st vice commander; Gov. Juvenal Guerrero, 2nd vice commander; Robert Arnold, 3rd vice commander; Ambrosio Peña, national adjutant; Jose Lizardo, finance officer; Dominador Prudencio, national auditor; Paulino Rivera, national chaplain; COMELEC Commissioner Lino Patajo, judge advocate; Dominador Lapuz, national inspector, and General Segundo Velasco, Fernando Reyes, Tancred Guray, Antonio Sanz, Generoso Salazar, Zosimo Paredes, Honrado Tensico, Juan Valeros, Carlos Lardizabal, Alejandro Dario and Eficio Acosta, directors.

At the same occasion, the President signed the appointment of Generoso Salazar as member of the Board of Directors of the Philippine Veterans Bank.

After his reunion with his comrades, the President had a brief rest and later on worked on official papers until early evening.

Shortly before 7 p.m., the President, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, left Malacañang for the Manila Hotel where he was guest of honor and speaker at the opening of the Project Tulungan Training Seminar and the induction of the council members of the National Social Action Council.

In his remarks, the President called Project Tulungan “a project of love,” involving private citizens who have volunteered their services under the National Social Action Council, headed by Bishop Mariano Gaviola.

The President said the awakening of private citizens, civic organizations and churches of all sects to the social and economic problems of the country is a heartening sign. The spirit must be strengthened, he said, so that apathy and indifference, which have widened the gap between the rich and the poor, may be banished from the country.

The President said that the spirit of volunteerism, as exemplified in Project Tulungan, is a trait Filipinos can be proud of because it is in our nature to be of help to the less fortunate. The idea of Bayanihan or of giving without expecting any reward is basically a Filipino trait, the President said.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked into his schedule, which concentrated on paper work, a number of conferences, notably with barrio officials and ranking executive officials, as well as at least a couple of legislators.

Early in the morning, the President attended to official papers, among them a request from the Price Control Council for authority to draw from other government offices assistance in the form of personnel, among others; and the request for approval of the appointment of Director Jaime C. Dacanay as manager of the PHILSUGIN, in a concurrent capacity. Both requests were approved by the President.

During the day, the President conferred with:

1. Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and Polcom Chairman Crispino de Castro on the peace and order situation;
2. A delegation representing the National Federation of Associations of Barrio Councils, who discussed with the President various problems in their localities: and a group of barrio councilmen from Quezon City.
3. Cebu Reps. Ramon Durano and Emerito Calderon, who consulted with the President on matters affecting their constituencies.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Directed the Armed Forces to finish as soon as possible the construction of various resettlement projects in Carmona, Cavite by making the effort part of the AFP civic action program.
2. Proclaimed Tuesday, June 16, as air safety day in the Philippines.

It was in line with the celebration of International Air Safety Day by the International Civic Aviation Organization (ICAO) Council, of which the Philippines is a member.

The rest of his working day was devoted by the President to state papers brought to him for study or action.

In a speech read for him by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, at the ceremonies launching the Government Employees Fund Investments Corporation, held at the SSS building in Quezon City, the President called for the rise of a new middle class, where the people are involved in the mainstream of economic development.

The President said that the GEFIC is the lever needed to “involve a wide segment of our people in economic development on a more direct and personal basis.”

The thrift and savings drive launched by the government last year, the President said, was not so much aimed at educating the people in these virtues but more importantly at enlisting them in economic development as investors.

Capital or the lack of it, he said, is a key factor retarding economic growth. “We need money to harness our vast natural resources” and put up industries to process raw materials, he’ pointed out.

PRESIDENT MARCOS tended mostly to his homework, with no outside visitors on his official schedule. He only saw close aides and other government officials on consultation relating to various problems and concerns elevated to his desk.

Among others, the President studied official reports and acted on a number of state matters, including the appointment of the third member of the provincial board of Marinduque, which was recently reclassified as a third class province, thus entailing the appointment of a new board member (Mauro J. Corral), to make three; and the creation of the National Council for Small and Medium Industries, which will give special assistance to these industries in the way of upgrading management and operations and solving financial difficulties.

The President stayed close to his office desk through the morning, afternoon and early evening.

June 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the enactment of the Industrial Peace Act of 1953, otherwise known as the Magna Carta of Labor, marked “the end of an oppressive” era of compulsory arbitration and the beginning of a new age of freedom in labor-management relations.”

The President made this observation in a speech before the nation’s labor leaders at a luncheon held at the Manila Hotel this noon commemorating the 17th anniversary of the Magna Carta of Labor.

“We celebrate today the freedom of Philippine Labor,” the President said. “It is this freedom, above all, that makes the Industrial Peace Act of 1953 a vital document, no less than a magna carta of organized labor.”

The President stated that in a democratic society, “we find it abhorrent to impose peace by fiat.” He said that peace obtained by compulsion “is bound to be fragile” and that the kind of industrial peace that endures is that which is established by mutual agreement and mutual consent.

“It is for this reason that the Magna Carta of Labor gives labor and management the widest possible latitude of freedom in settling their own differences without government intervention,” he said.

He began the day as usual with a long session with official papers in his study, among which was the enrolled new minimum wage bill, which he signed. Later he reenacted the signing of the bill at the luncheon given by labor leaders at the Manila Hotel to mark the passage of the Magna Carta of Labor.

The minimum wage bill which increases the daily wage from ₱6 to ₱8 for industrial workers, and ₱3.50 to ₱4.75 for agricultural workers, was one of the two bills certified by the President to Congress during the current special session, the other being the General Appropriations Bill.

The new law which takes effect upon approval, fixes the minimum basic daily wage for each type of workers as follows:

- 1) ₱8 in all enterprises other than agricultural, including” the national government and all government-owned and/or controlled corporations.
- 2) ₱6 in retail or service enterprises employing regularly not more than five employees.
- 3) ₱4.75 in all farming enterprises.
- 5) ₱5 or the minimum wage being paid at the time of approval of the Act, whichever is higher, in city, provincial and municipal governments.

Exempted from these rates are farm tenants, workers doing household services, persons working in their respective houses in “needlework or in any cottage industry registered under the provisions of Republic Act No. 3470.

The law also provides for the creation of a five-man Wage Commission under the Department of Labor, and appropriates ₱500,000 for the initial expenses of the Commission.

His visitors, today included:

- 1) The delegates to the Asian Development Center conference, held recently in Manila. The ADC is a creation of the Asian Parliamentary Union and has China, Japan, Korea, Laos, Thailand, Vietnam, and the Philippines as members.

Those who called on the President were ADC Chairman Niehwen Ya and Wuta Yu, Charles Z. Woo and Tuyang Chun of China; Uichi Noda and Hideo Nakajima of Japan; Kimchang Keum of Korea; Pheng Sananikone and Sisouphanh Dhounpradit of Laos; Panit Sampawakoo and Tavich Klinpratoom of Thailand; Tran-Ngoc Canh and Nguyen Hoang of Vietnam; and Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan and ADC Secretary General Emmanuel Yap, representing Sen. Dominador Aytona mid Rep. Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao del Norte.

- 2) Capt. Odom Bannawel of Panupdupan, Kiangnan-Ifugao, supply officer of the President’s guerilla unit during the war. Capt. Bannawel had come to Manila to attend the USAFIP-NL convention. The President expressed appreciation for the captain’s call and reminisced with him on their experiences in the resistance.

- 3) Mrs. Ester Sinsuat who was accompanied by Mayor Michael Sinsuat. The visitors took up with the President local problems, particularly those relating to peace and order.

- 4) Carmen Basa, retired librarian of the Dinalupihan Elementary School in Bataan, who presented the President with three scrap books of clippings on the President’s public life (1962 to 1967).

- 5) Reps Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental. Joaquin Ortega of La Union, Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Snr; Amado D. Cope of Albay and Gov. Juvenal Guerrero of La Union, all of whom discussed problems of their constituencies.

The President asked for a re-examination of curricula in existing state vocational schools, emphasizing the priority given to the establishment, maintenance and upgrading of vocational schools.

In a memorandum to Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, the President also ordered that a survey be immediately conducted to determine where more vocational schools can be set up as soon as possible, with national and local needs and capabilities as the primary criteria.

The reexamination of curricula in state vocational schools is aimed at effecting a more vigorous implementation of the government's program of accelerating employment, developing out-of-school youths, and relating vocational education to national development.

In his speech read for him by Education Undersecretary Juan Manuel at the opening of the mid-year seminar commemorating the 109th birth anniversary of Dr. Jose Rizal, held at the Girl Scouts of the Philippines building on Padre Faura street, the President reiterated his given pledge that "the right of any citizen of this Republic to criticize or disagree shall never be suppressed or stifled." The President said that "every citizen shall enjoy every opportunity to express his views."

He declared that the "government will accommodate every political action except the attempt to overthrow the government."

The President stated, "I shall not hesitate to defend and lend support to any individual whose right to freedom of speech has been curtailed by a government official."

The right to disagree is "one of the bulwarks of our society," he asserted, adding that "that right cannot be diminished without impairing the strength of our system."

He stressed, however, that "we shall draw the line between right and license, between the exercise of freedom and abuse of liberties."

There is a line that "divides reform and subversion, and that line is called the national interest," he pointed out.

June 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a brisk workday with conferences and callers adding to his usual schedule, which however leaned heavily toward desk work.

One of his more important sessions was with the Food and Agriculture Council, during which he was briefed on the progress of the food production program, and new initiatives to widen the program were discussed.

The President also spent some time with the delegation representing the Muslim Association of the Philippines, which sought presidential assurances for broader and more rapid development of Mindanao and Sulu. The President stressed that there is a program of development for that region, based on priorities, and that it will indeed be implemented and accelerated.

The delegation included newly elected national officers of the association, namely, Rep. Salipada Pendatun, president; former Gov. Benjamin Abubakar, executive vice president; former Commissioner Abraham Rasul, vice president for Sulu and Palawan; Linipasan Idjirani, PRO; Mohammad Edris, director for Basilan City; Abdugani Andohol, director for Zamboanga del Sur and Pagadian City; Asbi Edding, director for Zamboanga del Norte and Mrs. Saphia Mustapha Al-Rashid, director for Women's Groups.

Other callers included foreign visitors, businessmen, and officials who consulted with the President on specific problems. In-between, the President steadily worked on state papers.

On the eve of the 109th birth anniversary of Dr. Jose Rizal, the President issued the following message:

"We celebrate the birth anniversary of a man long gone from us, but whose thoughts and ideals are more than ever before relevant to our times.

“Dr. Jose Rizal tirelessly preached unity and the idea of national community. He called for individual commitment to the great causes of his day—reform for the person and for the body politic—but he rejected extremism in winning social and political goals, and consequent events proved him right as the gradual and progressive evolution of our country ripened to nationhood and the liberal democracy which informs our life.

“We can best honor his memory, we can best celebrate his coming among us, by taking him to heart; by listening to his admonitions about commitment and sacrifice, so that we may not only deserve our freedom, but enlarge it, deepen its meaning, and use it to make an enduring, prosperous and respected nation.”

The President, also signed a proclamation declaring Friday, June 19, as a special public holiday in the province of Laguna and San Pablo City.

In the course of the day, the President received more messages from heads of state felicitating the Philippines and the Filipino people on the 72nd anniversary of Philippine Independence.

Among the new messages received were those of the government and people of Chile, sent through Ambassador Luis Melo Lecaros; President Charles Helou of Lebanon, and Salem Robya AH, chairman of the Presidential Council of the Peoples Republic of Southern Yemen.

Chairman Salem Robya Ali, in his message, said:

“It gives me great pleasure to express to your Excellency on behalf of the people and government of the Peoples Republic of Southern Yemen our sincerest felicitations on the Independence Day of the Philippines, wishing your Excellency happiness and good health and the friendly people of the Philippines every success in their life.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was up early for a special purpose—to see the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, off for Osaka, where she will represent the President at Expo 70's observance of Philippine Day.

By 7:15 a.m., the President and the First Lady were on the way to the MIA, arriving about 30 minutes later. The large and warm spirited crowd made the departure a festive occasion.

The PAL jet which took Mrs. Marcos and her party iv Tokyo left at 8:15 a.m., and the President shortly returned to Malacañang after a brief press interview and conversation with officials and dignitaries who also saw the First Lady off.

Back at Malacañang, the President waded immediately into the paper work at hand. In-between he received visitors, and sat down for conferences with officials.

He conferred with Central Bank Gov. Gregorio Licaros and Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata. Licaros reported to the President on the results of his mission abroad.

Next the President met with Secretary Virata, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and Rep. Jose Alberto on the budget bill.

Later in the day, he received Denmark's Minister of Trade Knud Thomsen, who paid his respects. The President then received SQA Administrator Jose A. Unson who submitted a report on the 50,000 ton deficit reallocation of U.S. sugar, which would increase the country's dollar earnings from sugar exports.

Among other visitors the President received during the day was Sen. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay who consulted him on official matters.

Earlier, the President signed Senate Bill No. 208 (H. B. 853) prohibiting the increase of rentals of residential buildings and lots for a period of one year, beginning March 1970.

Under the law, no lessor of a building unit or land on which a residential dwelling is located shall:

- 1) Increase the monthly rental agreed upon prior to the approval of this Act, when it does not exceed f-300 beginning March 1970;
- 2) Demand any deposit in advance for any purpose in excess of 2 months rental for a period of one year from the date of the effectivity of this Act.

The President also designated Assistant Executive Secretary Ponciano G. A. Mathay as acting executive secretary "upon the departure, and for the duration of the absence" of Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., who left for the United States to attend the 25th anniversary observance on June 26 of the signing of the United Nations Charter.

While in the United States, Secretary Melchor will also confer with electrification experts, in connection with the administration's electrification program.

June 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred at length with members of Congress and other ranking officials on the urgent bills that must be passed when the recessed special session is resumed next week.

In the morning, however, he was unable to meet two engagements—a golf tournament with newsmen and a speech before the Veterans Federation because of developing sore throat. On advice of doctors he stayed indoors until he felt rested enough.

At 12:30 he met with Congress leaders to discuss, among others the national budget and other bills to be included in the special session. The conference lasted through lunch and long afterward.

Present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso; Senators Dominador Aytona and Lorenzo Teves, chairman and member, respectively, of the Senate committee on finance; Reps. Jose Alberto and Nicanor Yñiguez, chairman and member, respectively, of the House appropriations committee; Reps. Pablo Ocampo of Manila and Pablo Roman of Bataan.

Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Commissioner of the Budget Faustino Sy-Changco also attended the meeting.

In the afternoon, the President had a clear schedule and thus was able to concentrate on his desk work.

Earlier, the President ordered a study and review of present policies embodied in land laws as well as administrative rules and regulations in the same area, with an eye to relating them to the need for land of peasants and farmers, small settlers, and the agro-industrial sector.

The President's order also created a committee to study, evolve, and recommend policies which would swiftly and equitably settle land disputes and assign priorities in the granting of titles to public lands.

The primary aim of the order was to "relieve the 'small man' of the complexities of existing laws, rules and regulations relative to land disputes and the award of land titles."

In the speech read for him by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata at the opening of the 10th annual convention of Philippine lumbermen, held at the Hotel Inter-Continental, the President squarely set before lumbermen the responsibility of policing their own rank in order to apprehend despoilers of forestlands, saying that many loggers are culpable for the denudation of the nation's forests.

In default of such responsibility, he said, he would be forced to close valuable logging concessions to lumber firms, particularly those in watershed areas.

The President vigorously urged greater collective effort in conserving forestlands and other natural resources, including wildlife, emphasizing that the diminution to a critical degree of any of these elements will make life for the nation virtually untenable.

He particularly said that "the time is now" to escalate conservation efforts, and that it is "our duty not only to country and to our children but to life itself."

Among the lumber industry groups participating in the convention are: off Philippine Chamber of Wood Industries (PCWI), the Philippine Lumber Producers' Association (PLPA), the Plywood Manufacturer's Association of the Philippines (PMAF), the Permanent Forests Association of the Philippines (PERMAFOR), and the Society of Filipino Foresters (SFF).

June 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to immediately investigate reports appearing in a morning newspaper to the effect that some PC men are engaged in racket involving the surrender of fake Huks in order to collect monetary rewards.

The President directed Enrile to look into the veracity of the report with a view to prosecuting guilty parties in a court martial.

Earlier in the morning, the President issued the following message in connection with the celebration of Philippine Day at Expo '70, in Osaka, Japan:

“We have all reason to be proud and jubilant on this special day for our country at the world exposition in Japan.

“The celebration of Philippine Day at this international fair recounts to us all the lofty and self-won position which our country now holds in the family of nations.

“The recent years have been specially kind to us, and we have emerged from anonymity to become a people more familiar to the other peoples of the world. Today, we maintain good and strong ties with other nations, not alone in the field of diplomacy, but in trade, in education, and in culture.

“This occasion offers us the opportunity to strengthen these ties, to elevate our exchange with other lands, and to enhance our place among the nations.

“I ask you all to join me in wishing our delegation to the exposition every success in the celebration of this day.”

Among other actions, the President proclaimed Wednesday, June 24, this year as a special public holiday in the City of Manila marking the 399th anniversary of the city.

In a message of condolence on the death of former President Sukarno of Indonesia, the President said:

“President Sukarno was a leader who will be long remembered as the founder of the Indonesian Republic. It was he who welded Indonesia together in its most difficult years. Recent events have not diminished that role. We mourn the depth of one of Asia’s great leaders.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the presidency throughout his administration shall be used to weld together the entire people of the Philippines, including the cultural minorities, into one nation and one Republic.

Speaking at the 13th anniversary celebration of the Commission on National Integration, held at the Philamlife auditorium, the President pledged “it shall be my purpose to see to it that there should be no cultural minorities and that in lieu thereof everybody should be called Filipino, for that is the” very purpose of the Commission on National Integration.”

The President also said that every Filipino, rich or poor, must work for the cultural minorities out of “love and affection and not for reward or recognition.”

At midmorning, he watched the proceedings at the opening of the Philippine Pavilion in Osaka’s Expo ’70, made possible by satellite telecast; then was interviewed by a CBN staffer; then came the long distance call from the First Lady.

Towards noon, the President received the officers of the gasoline dealers association, whom he inducted into office during the call. Among those in the group were Col. Emiliano Ozaeta, president; Eufemio Domingo, vice president; Antonio Talao, secretary; Adelaida Sta. Teresa, treasurer; and Hilario Lopez, auditor. They were accompanied by Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda.

Ambassador Yacob Aaron of Israel called to bid goodbye to the President. The Israeli envoy will be away for six weeks on home leave.

Other callers included:

1) Bella Bañez, daughter of the radio commentator slain in Isabel a, who was accompanied by Atty. Antonio Villanueva.

2) Miss Deirdre Bruton (1970 Queen of the Pacific) and Miss Sarah Dowlen (Miss Pearl of the Orient), the latter accompanied by her parents and PTTA Executive Director Salvador Peña.

Miss Bruton is the first New Zealander to win the title held by the Philippines' Miss Baby Santiago in 1968. She is travelling through the Pacific Area countries as part her prize.

Miss Dowlen was chosen in a contest held in San Francisco, California. She will be in the Philippines for 35 days. Her mother is a Filipina from Davao City.

3) Rev. Richard Dunne who headed some 40 New York tourists. Fr. Dunne has a brother in the Ateneo now assigned in San Pablo City.

Fr. Dunne had written the President about the trip and asked permission for the group to call on him. The President swiftly obliged and sent word he would receive them.

The President was informed that church-inspired service to foreign students is the hospitality program in New York, among whose beneficiaries were Filipinos. With the group was Miss Irene Brawl, who was chosen Miss St. Ephrem (St. Ephrem's Parish in New York).

In a speech read for him by Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., at the opening of the seminar on economic development and rural communication sponsored by the RBC, held at the Philippine National Bank building on the Escolta, the President asked other citizens, professionals and activists to follow in the path of the Rural Broadcasters Council and other entities committed to the "liberation of the barrio" from poverty, stagnancy and ignorance.

The President said that- despite the great strides already made in improving the lot of the barrio folks, there remains much to be done.

"It is axiomatic that a country's progress depends on the energy and dedication of its own people," the President said, and in that context "because the mass of our people live in the barrio, we must therefore concentrate on harnessing the strength and the talents of the majority of our people to the attainment of progress."

June 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had several conferences with ranking officials, taped an interview for television, and received a number of callers.

The rest of his working day was devoted to state papers.

Shortly after working in his study early in the morning, the President taped a program of the “Business Today” television show, with Business Editors Jess Bustamante of the Herald, Ray Naval of the Chronicle, and Arthur Sales of the Bulletin.

Among- those he conferred with were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and Col. James Barbers, deputy chief of the Manila Police; Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina, who reported on the current collections of the customs bureau; Rep. Fermin Cavara of Iloilo, who discussed problems of his constituency; and Mrs. Adelina Rodriguez, wife of Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal.

The President whittled down his schedule of callers to give him more time for paper work. He remained in his study through the afternoon and evening-.

In taking action on urgent matters of state, the President, among others:

- 1) Created a study and coordinating committee to expedite and systematize construction of the Manila Bay Project. Public Works and Communications Secretary Manuel B. Syquiao was named chairman of the committee with Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and NEC Chairman Placido L. Mapa, Jr. as members.
- 2) Directed PANAMIN Secretary Manda Elizalde to take measures to prevent the outbreak of violence in the T’boli settlement in Surala, South Cotabato.
- 3) Asked the fire victims of Barrios Ora East and Ora Center, Bantay, Ilocos Sur, to consider the offer of Senator Mamintal Tamano to relocate them in the Wao settlement in Lanao del Sur.
- 4) Directed the National Bureau of Investigation to enter the investigation of the killing of Eddie Dasmariñas and Benilda Macalde, alleged members of the Kabataang Makabayan.

June 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stated the “Asian Dream” as the aspiration towards “peace and stability,” and underscored good management as “the key to the achievement” of these objectives.

“This would require of every executive in every organization, private or public, including the Chief Executive of every nation, new managerial perspectives and resources,” he said.

Appealing as keynote speaker at the ceremonies opening the Philippine Management Congress, held at the Asian Institute” of Management building, on Paseo de Roxas, Makati, Rizal, the President said that the congress “could be most profitably spent” in searching for solutions to the unfolding problems of the ’70s.

“We should have no misconceptions about the enormity of economic problems” in this decade, he said, which if unresolved “could generate through a series of chain reactions increasing social and even political problems.”

The decade of the 70s, he stressed, “will be a crucial one” for the Asian Pacific countries, and may well mark the take-off to real economic growth and social and political stability for the region.

To succeed in this undertaking, he said, experienced and capable leaders of men are needed, with all executive positions manned by “men with a sincere love for people and the ability to make correct and timely management decisions.” (See pages 6207-A to 6207-D for full text of the President’s speech.)

Early in the day, Ambassador Henry Byroade, U. S. envoy to the Philippines, called at Malacañang to discuss with the President matters affecting the two countries. They met in private.

Senator Arturo M. Tolentino later in the morning called to request certification of the bill he will file in the Senate authorizing the secretary of education to assess and act on any proposal from private schools to increase tuition fees. The bill is the Senate version of the measure filed by Rep. Aguedo Agbayani in the House of Representatives.

Towards noon, the President sat down with Paul Tabori. Hungarian-British writer, who is enroute back from the U.S. London. The interview lasted half an hour.

In the afternoon, the President motored to Makati, Rizal where he was keynote speaker at the opening ceremonies of the Philippine Management Congress.

Returning to Malacañang immediately after the speech, the President spent the rest of the day working at his desk.

The President directed the National Library to design an economical but effective system for the organization and maintenance of barrio libraries and reading centers.

The Chief Executive took this step after receiving the report that so far only 40 barrio libraries have been organized under the supervision of the National Library.

June 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS attended mostly to his desk' work, with very few visitors on his schedule.

The few who saw him included:

- 1) Col. Ruben A. Jose, commanding officer of the former Philcag, now deployed in Central Luzon for civic action and community development missions, who reported on the progress of its work, stressing that the unit is eagerly sought by barrio communities and warmly welcome everywhere it has sent work teams.
- 2) Charge d'affaires Antonio Pinto Machado of the Portuguese embassy here, who presented the President with color maps circa 16th century, when he called to say goodbye after a brief assignment as interim head of his embassy when Ambassador Julio Salcedas went on a four-month leave. The maps were similar to those used by Portuguese sailors, including Ferdinand Magellan, when they blazed ocean trails.
- 3) Brig. Gen. Romeo Espino, acting AFP vice chief of staff, who briefed the President on the proposed sale of military reservations in the Greater Manila area, as a way of generating funds to support the land reform program and other projects.
- 4) New officers of the U.P. Vanguard, a fraternity composed of alumni of the U.F. ROTC course, whom the President inducted.

Those sworn in were Juanito T. Ventura, national commander; Col. Santiago Garcia (ret.), 1st vice commander; Jesus Fuentes, 3rd vice commander; Teodoro B. Javier, adjutant general; Ernesto Lolarga, national treasurer; Lt. Col. Benjamin Divinagracia, auditor; Teodoro Kalaw, Fred "Montilla" Francisco, Col. Apolinar Fajardo (ret.) and Lt. Col. Rodolfo Villarica, governors, Lt. Col. Ridao, JAG; Maj. Reynaldo San Gabriel, PRO; and Donato Pangilinan of the fund-raising committee.

President's Week in Review: June 26 - July 2, 1970

President Marcos again focused on his desk work, among others preparing the message calling for a second special session of Congress to consider urgent bills, and issuing a circular enjoining all local government officials to stay at their posts in the face of problems to be solved, notably those involving the peace and order drive.

Receiving only a few visitors, the President was able to concentrate on state papers brought to his attention. Among the few callers who saw him were:

1. Former Lanao del Sur Gov. Madki Alonto who discussed with the President the reports on alleged disintegration of civil authority in that province. The ex-governor was accompanied by Marawi City Engineer Boway Ramos, Provincial Engineer Baliawin Mamainte, NAWASA District Engineer Mamintal Adiong and Omar Mitmeg.
2. Chairman Faustino Tobia of Cebu Portland Cement Co., who consulted with the President on matters pertaining to the firm.
3. Rep. Rodolfo B. Albano, Jr. and Gov. Samuel F. Reyes, both of Isabela, who discussed official concerns in their constituency with the President.

The President remained in his study poring over state papers through the afternoon, and well into evening.

President Marcos received no visitors to concentrate on official papers.

The only break came when he left Malacañang for the Manila International Airport to welcome the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and their three children, Imee, Irene and Bong-bong, who returned from Japan.

The President arrived unannounced at the Manila International Airport at 3:15 p.m. and was met by welcomers led by Vice President Fernando Lopez, other high officials, members of the diplomatic corps, and plain citizens.

As soon as he entered the VIP kiosk, he was surrounded by a group of press, radio and television representatives who started firing questions at him and kept at it for about 12 minutes.

As soon as the PAL jetliner, PI-C827, bearing the First Lady and her party, taxied to the MIA apron, the President climbed the ramp and entered the plane to greet his family.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, mother of the President, also entered up the plane to greet the First Lady and her grandchildren.

The President and the First Lady shortly emerged from the plane, accompanied by their children, and followed by the other members of the First Lady's party, including BTTI Commissioner Gregorio Araneta, Jaime Zobel president of the Cultural Center of the Philippines, and Architect Leandro Locsin.

A delegation from Marinduque, led by retired Col. Arturo Sevilla, wore "moriones" masks and sang a welcome song, while thousands of others consisting of government workers, veterans, students and the general public waved welcoming placards at the First Lady.

The First Lady, escorted by President Marcos, proceeded to the VIP kiosk for a brief press conference, after which they boarded a car for Malacañang.

Enroute to Malacañang, the First Couple stopped at the entrance to the Nayong Pilipino to shake hands with another delegation, then motored on, arriving there at about 4:30 p.m.

The President ordered the immediate arrest and deportation of a Chinese national “whose presence in the country is considered a menace to the peace and safety of the community.”

Ordered arrested and deported by the first available transportation to China or Taiwan was Gregorio Lam Kuan, now residing at 1544 Lope de Vega, Sta. Cruz, Manila. The Chinese was convicted as a passer of counterfeit 20-centavo paper bills, at the time when the paper bills were still legal tender.

The President also named Ernesto J. Battad as member of the Board of Examiners for Master Plumbers, vice Dominador Apalisok whose term had expired.

Battad was a topnotcher in the board examinations for master plumber and a Colombo Plan Fellow.

June 28—

President Marcos went over state papers in his private study.

At about 1:20 p.m., the President met with some town and barrio officials of Tarlac and Pampanga, who consulted him on problems of their constituencies, and reported on activities of dissidents in their localities.

The municipal officials present at the conference were La Paz Mayor Venustiano G. Martinez, Concepcion Mayor Rafael Suarez, Magalang Mayor Daniel Lacson, San Simon Mayor Lamberto Punzalan; and Barrio Captains Adriano Bato, Juan Alfaro, Loreto Manuel, Oscar Torres, Cerilo Juanatas, Jose Montoya, Felipe Angala, Eduardo Reyes, Pablo Cunanan and Eficinto Cuthon.

Also present were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief; and Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, IPC zone commander.

President Marcos stressed the importance of the legislative measures which he had certified to the second special session of Congress, as he received the joint Senate-House committee who formally informed him of the opening of the session.

The President called Congress to a second special session for not more than 80 days starting 10 a.m. today, earlier certifying 30 vital legislative measures for congressional action.

During the call of the joint Senate-House committee, the President expressed the hope that the bills on export incentives, housing, and withholding and quarterly payment of the corporate income tax be given priority. He appealed for positive action on all other vital bills by Congress.

The joint committee which called on the President at 10:45 a.m. was composed of Senators Lorenzo Teves, Mamintal Tamano and Genaro Magsaysay, representing the Senate; and Reps. Felix Fuentesbella of Camarines Sur, Moises Escueta of Quezon and Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur.

The Filipinescas dancers called to pay their respects after completing a world-girdling tour during which the dance company garnered laurels, led by Mrs. Leonor Orosa Goquingco, the founder and choreographer of the dance group. Also with the dancers was Dr. Sixto Orosa, former head of the Philippine Historical Commission, father of Mrs. Goquingco, and a vigorous supporter of Filipinescas.

The President congratulated the dancers for their distinguished performances, and noted that the group's appearance at the Osaka Fair's celebration of Philippine Day was "wonderful."

The President sent the following cablegram to the executive committee of the 37th International PEN Congress held in Seoul, Korea, in connection with its adoption of a resolution on the conservation of the ancient temples of Angkor Wat in Cambodia:

The Philippine government extends its wholehearted support to the resolution adopted by the executive committee of the 37th International PEN Congress calling on all participating countries to exert efforts consistent with their national policies on Cambodia to safeguard and preserve the temples of Angkor Wat from destruction in view of the current conflict in Siem Reap.

The Philippine government is prepared to join any concerted effort to voice concern for every activity which may lead to the destruction of cultural treasures.

It is our view that priceless cultural treasures belong to all mankind.

The President also congratulated the Philippine delegation headed by Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad for sponsoring the resolution, which was unanimously approved.

June 30—

President Marcos devoted himself to the study of official reports, other official papers and otherwise worked quietly in his study. His schedule precluded any callers.

Among others, he acted on several problems brought to his attention while ordering deeper study of other concerns of the government.

At least two directives were made known by his office, namely:

1. An order creating an inter-agency committee to resolve jurisdictional conflicts which have stymied the speedy settlement of land disputes in some barrios of Tanay, Rizal.
2. An order to the Presidential Assistant on Housing and Resettlement Agency to expedite the relocation of squatters on Constitution Hill and the Government Center in Quezon City.

The new directives were aimed at unraveling the matted regulations governing land acquisition by settlers and combatting landgrabbing.

The President was set to reclassify all lands occupied by settlers and to release and transfer to the Land Authority the administration of land settlements, now held by the Bureau of Forestry.

Other steps the President has taken include:

1. Directing the Land Authority and the Solicitor General's Office to oppose petitions for land registration of private lands under the claim of Spanish titles since the areas are still part of the forest zone; and
2. Directing the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to investigate all cases of corruption against forestry bureau personnel with those found guilty to be prosecuted immediately.

July 1—

President Marcos announced the centralization of all civic action activities and all matters involving the welfare of the civilian population, including the utilization of engineering battalions for road construction and the development of a citizen army.

The President said he will appoint presently an undersecretary of defense for home defense affairs to take charge of this enlarged program. The new defense undersecretary will also exercise supervision over the organization of home defense forces which will continue to be formed on a voluntary basis.

The President stressed that the overall civilian- supervision over the BSDUs is necessary so that these units will not commit the same errors or abuses attributed to the defunct civilian guards, and other such organizations whose excesses brought discredit to them.

In pursuing this new policy, the President assured the release of more funds for the socio-economic development program in Central Luzon.

The President made the announcement at the conclusion of a flying-visit to several barrios in Pampanga and Tarlac to inspect the civic-action projects of the armed forces and to assess the problems of the people in Central Luzon at close range.

Flying out of Manila early in the morning, the President first touched down at San Simon, Pampanga, to inaugurate a bridge in Barrio San Miguel and to confer with provincial and municipal and barrio officials of the province then he hopped to Candaba where he visited the fresh water fish project. From there he went to Barrio Parua, Concepcion, Tarlac to look over the 175-meter steel bridge being built by PACAG units.

He was back in Manila at around 1:30 p.m. Accompanying him on the trip were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, AFP chief of staff General Manuel T. Yan and other military officials.

In the evening, the President received courtesy calls from US Secretary State William Rogers; British Parliament Member Anthony Royle, who is also UK undersecretary for external and commonwealth affairs' and Australian Minister of External Affairs William McMahon; all of whom arrived in Manila to attend the Council of Ministers meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Earlier, the President asked Governor Linang Mandangan of Lanao del Sur to exercise closer supervision over the municipal mayors of his province.

The President issued the instructions after receiving the initial report of Undersecretary of Justice Ramon Fernandez, who went on an official inspection tour of the south to determine the extent of administration problems of local governments there.

The rest of the President's working day was devoted to state papers.

July 2—

President Marcos called for a transformation of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization from "a council of war for defense to a council of peace for progress."

Asserting that there is a new strength in the Southeast Asian region, emanating from the people themselves, and a consensus of a growing-community interest, the President stressed that SEATO must now play a new role “in the light of the new forces at work in this region.”

In the keynote speech at the opening in the morning of the 15th Council of Ministers meeting of SEATO, held at the Inter-Continental Hotel in Makati, Rizal, the President said that the organization must “recognize the growing spirit of nationalism and independence in the region, and make certain adjustments in its mission in order to take changed circumstances into account.”

SEATO must move in the direction “of making itself relevant to the rising needs of Southeast Asia,” the President stated, “otherwise it loses its reason for being.”

He pointed out that the ultimate purpose of SEATO is “not war but peace, not strife but brotherhood.”(See pages 6365 to 6370 for full text of the President’s speech.)

At breakfast, the President played host to Sir Keith J. Holyoake and Lady Holyoake, along with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos. Sir Keith is Prime Minister of New Zealand.

At midmorning, the President motored to Inter-Continental Hotel, along with the First Lady, to address the opening session of the SEATO ministerial conference.

Returning to Malacañang, the President worked as usual on state papers.

In the afternoon, he resumed his paper work, then broke off to sit down with Spencer Davies, AP correspondent in Washington, D.C., for an interview. Davies planed in for the SEATO meeting.

Later in the afternoon, the President conferred briefly with Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and CB Gov. Gregorio Licaros.

At about 5 p.m., the President left his desk to attend a Mass with the First Lady and their children, which was offered in connection with Mrs. Marcos’ birthday. The Mass was held at the ceremonial hall before an improvised altar. Msgr. Carmine Rocco, papal nuncio, officiated.

A rare feature at the Mass was the singing of the famed Vienna Boys Choir, who happened to be here enroute to Osaka’s Expo ’70.

Also at the Mass was the President’s mother, Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, and top officials of the government,

While at work on official papers, the President approved a proposal to create an inter-departmental task force for petroleum exploration, and to survey other minerals and geothermal resources.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. recommended the creation of a task force which would pool available government and private resources for petroleum and minerals exploration.

Through this joint force, Melchor explained, the cost of exploration and prospecting will be reduced, notably risk capital for actual drilling and exploitation.

President's Week in Review: July 3-9, 1970

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 3—

Starting his day with an early morning session with state papers in his study, President Marcos steadily worked uninterrupted until about noon when he set aside his work to receive Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman, who came on a courtesy call.

After the brief call, the President resumed his work until 12 noon when he had Dr. Savkar of the IMF as luncheon guest. Also present at the lunch were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Rep. Joaquin Roces who represented Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr.; Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, and Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros.

Briefly relaxing after the meeting, the President returned to his desk work about 3 p.m., then at 4 p.m. interrupted himself to swear in the new undersecretary of defense for home defense affairs, Jose M. Crisol.

Also inducted in separate ceremonies were Dr. Mauyag Tamano as president of the Mindanao State University, and Angel Limjoco, Jr. as governor of the Board of Investments, and Judge Moises Dalisay as district judge.

The President followed this stint with a conference on the problems of Lanao del Sur, attended by officials of that province.

At 5 p.m., the President was again deep in conference, this time with the Fiscal Policy Council. The meeting was called to take up the points raised by Dr. Savkar in the earlier meeting at lunch, and other fiscal problems as well.

In another area of concern, the President ordered the preparation of a realistic and workable national program on crime prevention and treatment.

The President's directive was embodied in Administrative Order No. 225 which also created a Committee on Crime Prevention and Treatment as an arm of the Peace and Order Coordinating Council (POCC).

The President emphasized to the Committee the need for community awareness by the hazards of criminality and for getting the citizens involved in the prevention and treatment of crime.

In the evening the President played host along with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, at a reception for the delegates to the ministerial meeting of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

July 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started his day with breakfast with the distinguished Malacañang house guests for the past two days, New Zealand Prime Minister Keith Holyoake and Mrs. Holyoake. The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, shared the role of host with the President.

Twenty four years ago today, we emerged as a modern republic from the rubble of war to grow into one of the most stable governments of Asia and in the world.

July 4, 1946 marks the culmination of our long years of relentless struggle to preserve our freedom and independence as a people.

It should not be lost on us that on that day, too, we forged a strong and enduring partnership with the American people in the pursuit of equality and harmony among nations.

Later in the morning, the President officiated at the ceremony conferring on US Army Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun the Philippine Legion of Honor, rank of commander, for his services to the Philippines as chief of the Military Planning Office of SEATO.

The First Lady and Mrs. Maroun along with other prominent guests from Philippine officialdom and the US embassy here attended the ceremony.

The rest of the day was devoted by the President to paper work in his study and conferences with officials on various problems of the country.

While working on state papers, the President:

1. Created an executive committee to act as the advisory body of the FAO Seminar on Measures to Accelerate Benefits from Water Use at the Farm Level, set for October this year in Quezon City.
2. Amended Executive Order No. 233, issued last May 15, creating the "Commission on Population," by making the director of the National Media Production Center (NMPC) a member of the commission.
3. Constituted a three-man committee to look into the feasibility of the government acquiring interests in an oil firm in the country.

PRESIDENT MARCOS asked the Monetary Board to authorize, according to law, the opening of dollar accounts by individual depositors in private banks, as an added measure to conserve foreign exchange and keep dollar earnings of Filipinos and other entities in the Philippines within the country.

The President told the Monetary Board that these dollar accounts should be given the same treatment as private deposits made in local currency.

This means, the President explained, that such deposits cannot be touched by the government, but can only be spent by the depositors themselves. To encourage such deposits, the President made clear that as far as the government is concerned, no questions will be asked as to the source of such deposits.

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day with his usual state papers to study and act on, but toward noon, he left Malacañang for Camp Crame where he inspected newly-armored vehicles of the Philippine Constabulary.

The rest of his day was filled with conferences, mostly private, with various officials, and callers. In-between, he concentrated on the pile of papers on his desk.

Leaving Malacañang shortly after 11 a.m., the President motored to Camp Crame, in Quezon City, where he looked over the small fleet of PC armored cars. After the inspection, he asked the AFP to design and implement plans for armoring more military jeeps which are usually used by patrol teams in Central Luzon. He said armored cars are needed to reduce the risk of patrols who have to contend with the modern weapons of dissidents.

Returning to Malacañang at 12 noon, the President shortly received Australian Ambassador Francis Hamilton Stuart and Norwegian Ambassador Axel Ivar Lucien Moltke-Hansen, both of whom have completed their tours of duty here as their countries' envoys and are due for reassignment. The ambassadors paid a farewell call on the President.

Among those the President conferred with in private were GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr., former GSIS General Manager Benjamin del Rosario and Rep. Pablo Roman of Bataan.

Others who called on official business included House Majority Floor-leader Marcelino Veloso, Pangasinan Gov. Tito Primicias, Rep. Jose Puyat and Gov. Recaredo Castillo of Surigao del Sur, and Gov. Salvacion Yñiguez of Southern Leyte.

The President later designated Luis V. Balili as acting chairman of the Board of Examiners for Mechanical Engineering, to fill the post vacated by Tobias P. Marcelo whose term of office had expired; Jose G. Caburian, as acting member of the Mechanical Engineering board, to succeed Clodeveo Soriano whose term had expired; and Mrs. Ligaya D. Perez as acting member of the Board of Examiners in Optometry, to fill the vacancy caused by the termination of the term of Tomas Abesamis. The President also ordered a thorough inquiry into the root causes of disputes over land areas in Mindanao, with a view to finding the means for permanently solving the problem.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had ample time to devote to state papers with only a limited number of callers on his schedule and with no major conferences with officials.

Among the early callers were William Harding, the incoming United Nations Development Program resident representative here, who paid his respects. He was accompanied by the UNDP deputy resident representative, Gamil Hamby.

Next to see the President were two Filipina beauties from Guam—Florita Ramos who was chosen "Queen of the Marianas;" and Joanne Tai-tano whom the Filipino community in Guam selected as "Miss Sampaguita." They were accompanied by Salvador Peña, executive director of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Association, and a group of Guam Filipinos.

Later in the morning, the President received a mission from the International Secretariat of Entertainment Trade Unions (ISETU), headed by Director General Allan Forest. The group paid a courtesy call on the President following arrival here to organize a regional union affiliated with the ISETU.

Among the group who saw the President were J. D. Thomson, secretary general of the Professional Musicians Union of Australia; Harry Bluck, federal vice president of the same organization; and Colin MacDonald, assistant manager of the Australian Broadcasting Commission.

The group was accompanied by Exequiel Pacis, president of the Philippine Musicians Guild; Alfredo Robles, chairman of the Council of Band Leaders, PMG; and V. J. Buhain.

The President also certified 13 more urgent legislative measures for considerations during the second special session of Congress.

Raoul Beloso, who heads the Small Settlers Commission, also saw the President to discuss matters pertaining to the work of the commission.

In the afternoon and through evening, the President almost exclusively worked on official papers and other state matters requiring his attention and action.

President Marcos said that the crash program to establish at least one cooperative in every municipality could spell either failure or success for the economic development of the country.

In extemporaneous remarks before some 150 employees of the Presidential Arm on Community Development (PACD) and the Cooperative Administration Office (CAO), who came to Malacañang from Los Baños where they are taking a course in cooperatives, the President said that cooperatives “are possibly the only salvation of many retarded areas of the economy.”

The President spent a normal day of desk work, receiving callers and holding conferences with officials and other parties.

In the morning, one of the first groups to see the President was that composed of officers of the Agricultural Cooperative League of the Philippines, who came accompanied by Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco. The group discussed the cooperatives in the agricultural areas of the country.

Later in the day, the President had occasion to pursue this subject further when the PACD and CAO trainees called on the Chief Executive. The group was accompanied by Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda and CAO Director Virgilio Pagulayan.

Other callers during the day included a delegation of employees of the Rizal Park, who petitioned for a permanent fund to underwrite the payroll and operation expenses of the Park; and Mr. and Mrs. Noble Randolph Woodward of San Diego, California, who paid a courtesy call.

Dean Cesar Concio also saw the President on official business.

The rest of the President’s workday was spent in studying official reports and scanning other state papers.

He signed Executive Order No. 243, which created a National Committee for Mineral Explorations and Survey Operations.

The creation of the new body firmed up further the President’s approval last July 2 of the proposal to create an inter-departmental task force for oil exploration, as well as for a survey of other minerals and geothermal resources.

Twenty four years ago today, we emerged as a modern republic from the rubble of war to grow into one of the most stable governments of Asia and in the world.

July 4, 1946 marks the culmination of our long years of relentless struggle to preserve our freedom and independence as a people.

It should not be lost on us that on that day, too, we forged a strong and enduring partnership with the American people in the pursuit of equality and harmony among nations.

Later in the morning, the President officiated at the ceremony conferring on US Army Maj. Gen. Autrey J. Maroun the Philippine Legion of Honor, rank of commander, for his services to the Philippines as chief of the Military Planning Office of SEATO.

The First Lady and Mrs. Maroun along with other prominent guests from Philippine officialdom and the US embassy here attended the ceremony.

The rest of the day was devoted by the President to paper work in his study and conferences with officials on various problems of the country.

While working on state papers, the President:

1. Created an executive committee to act as the advisory body of the FAO Seminar on Measures to Accelerate Benefits from Water Use at the Farm Level, set for October this year in Quezon City.
2. Amended Executive Order No. 238, issued last May 15, creating the "Commission on Population," by making the director of the National Media Production Center (NMPC) a member of the commission.
3. Constituted a three-man committee to look into the feasibility of the government acquiring interests in an oil firm in the country.

PRESIDENT MARCOS discussed the current bank strikes with Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople in the one conference he had the whole day; had a brief session with a European television reporter; and for a change of pace showed up as co-host at the luncheon given by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, honoring senators and representatives and their ladies.

The rest of his regular day was spent on state papers, among which was the list of appointments he finalized and submitted to the Commission or. Appointments, mostly filling vacancies in the judiciary.

The conference with Secretary Ople was also attended by Labor Relations Director Amado Inciong, Bankers Association President Chester Babst, and Philippine Bank of Commerce President Ramon Cojuangco.

Ople said that the drawn-out strikes in two Manila banks could be sooner settled if management and labor of the said establishments would only sit down and discuss their differences. The President asked him to expedite this conciliation talks.

A little after high noon, the President joined the First Lady and her-guests, composed of senators and representatives and their wives. Also at the luncheon were former President Carlos P. Garcia and Mrs. Garcia.

Early in the afternoon, the President received Dieter Seelman of Monitor Film-UND Fernsehproduktion, based in Humburg, Germany, who asked for an interview to be telecast on the program "Turning Point" The President acceded and submitted to a 30-minute taped session.

The rest of the day was devoted by the President to urgent state business, in the course of which he vested the Commission on National Integration with the sole authority to administer the 1,012 hectares of land reserved for the Higaonon tribes of Agusan, Bukidnon and Misamis Oriental.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

After working on state papers early in the morning, President Marcos received John Hohenberg, a Columbia University professor. The professor interviewed the President.

At mid-morning the President presided at the ceremony awarding outgoing Norwegian Ambassador Axel Ivar Lucien Moltke-Hansen the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Lakan, for services strengthening the ties between Norway and the Philippines.

Towards noon, Datu Ma Falen arrived with his entourage, accompanied by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile. The Datu, who had earlier surrendered to government authorities, expressly asked to see the President.

During the meeting, the President summoned to a conference on Monday those concerned with the Surallah dispute to thresh out their differences and return conditions in the area to normal.

The President also moved to redress the grievances of the Manobo tribe headed by Datu Ma Falen, assure their security and provide them with a place all their own to live in. He also ordered the officials concerned to bring to justice all those who have violated the laws as an offshoot of the quarrel in the area.

Just before noon, the President inducted Dr. Gerardo Sikat as acting-chairman of the National Economic Council, vice Placido Mapa, Jr., who is director general of the Presidential Economic Staff. Sikat has impressive credentials as an economic scholar and expert.

Shortly after 12 noon, the President sat down to a working luncheon with his financial advisers, including Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, PES Director General Placido Mapa, Jr., CB Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros and Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.

The President prescribed the procedure in prospecting for and exploiting minerals found in government reservations, other than mining reservations, in an executive order he issued earlier in the morning.

In prescribing the procedure, the President observed that:

1. The economic development programs require the progressive and orderly exploitation of mineral resources wherever these may be found.
2. Surveys conducted by the Bureau of Mines and other government and private entities have revealed the existence of promising mineral deposits in various forest, military and national park reservations.
3. It is possible to exploit the mineral wealth in these reservations without deflecting the purpose for which said reservations were originally created.

The President resumed his desk work in the afternoon and remained at his desk till early evening when he motored to the Cultural Center where he formally opened the exhibit sponsored by the Philippine Institute of Architects.

PRESIDENT MARCOS adhered strictly to his usual norm of weekend concentration on state papers and other official business requiring study and early action.

Conferring only with officials on urgent matters, the President spent a bigger part of his time alone working at his desk. He did not receive any visitors.

Among others, he issued directives pertaining to the resettlement and rehabilitation of the victims of arson in two barrios of Bantay, Ilocos Sur.

The President also received and scanned reports, notably that of the PES which informed him of the publication of handbook for businessmen interested in investing in Philippine economic development.

The Investment Handbook provides facts and figures on Philippine economic, political and social conditions, the direction of government infrastructure expansion, the investment incentives available, as well as the possibilities of government financial assistance.

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued focusing on paper work, and disposed of other urgent official papers as well as studied reports from various agencies of the government.

He did not receive callers, but made himself available to government officials who consulted him on matters affecting their departments.

One of the reports scanned by the President dealt on land and other disputes in South Cotabato.

He was scheduled to meet with officials of the province on these problems. Also summoned to attend the conference were PANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr., Secretary of Justice Felix V. Makasiar, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, and Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief.

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with all parties involved in the continuing land and other problems in Surallah, South Cotabato, to thresh out their differences and map out the measures that could be taken to insure peace and order and harmony in the region.

Those who attended the main conference were Secretary Makasiar, Secretary Enrile, Secretary Elizalde, Rep. James Chiongbian, General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief; South Cotabato Gov. Sergio Morales and provincial commander Lt. Col Cirilo Bueno; Surallah Mayor Jose Sison and Police Chief Melecio Tapispisan, and Datu Manudal Godwino.

Except for a brief interview with newsman Carl Mydans, after the meeting, the President had nothing else on his agenda except paper work, to which he devoted the rest of his work day.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that while the primary mission of today's armies still the defense of their countries, they "must also be productive elements in the enhancement of peaceful pursuits and the betterment of life."

In his speech, the President disclosed that the Philippines, has “successfully experimented with the soldier as a builder.” “Our aim,” he said, “is to make the soldier as much a part of our society as the civilian is, shouldering not a rifle alone but the same burdens that the plain citizen bears—the burdens of nation-building.”

Continuing, the President said of the military: “They must be knowledgeable about so many scholarly disciplines, including politics, economics and technology, not to mention psychology and human relations. Soldiers must be fighters as well as technicians.”

To be able to fulfill their primary defense mission, he stated the armed forces “must constantly hone their skills, constantly seek to elevate the standards of professionalism, constantly upgrade their readiness for field duty.”

“Only those who can wear the badge of excellence may be called true soldiers,” the President concluded.

The President arrived at Clark Air Base at about 9:40 a.m., with his son, Ferdinand (Bongbong) Jr., coming along as an interested observer.

The President was originally scheduled to fly to the base but was forced to go by car because of inclement weather.

The President proceeded direct to the base airfield where U.S. embassy and military officials headed by Ambassador Henry Byroade and Lt. Gen. McNickle, the Air Base commander, awaited him.

After acknowledging the ruffles and flourishes offered by an honor guard, the President was escorted to Kelly Theatre where the ceremonies were held.

At the four-day gunnery competition, the Philippine Air Force contingent won four out of six trophies, including the coveted President Marcos trophy for over-all group championship.

After a late lunch, the President had a brief rest.

At about 3:30 p.m., the President started working in his private study, in the course of which he directed the National Water and Air Pollution Control Commission (NWAPCC) to submit immediately a pollution control program, as well as guidelines for its implementation.

He broke off at 5:30 p.m. to receive representatives of the striking jeepney drivers, who were accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople and their legal counsel, Lupino Lazaro.

The President succeeded in prevailing on the drivers to call off their strike, and assured them, that he would actively seek a reduction in the price of gasoline, the main issue of the strike.

He also ordered a study of the proposal of the jeepney drivers for the establishment of cooperative gasoline stations, to be owned and run by jeepney drivers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS held three conferences which he fitted into his day’s schedule, while also coping with his usual heavy paper work.

Topped by a three-hour caucus with NP members of Congress, the other meetings had to do with the move by the gasoline dealers to close shop as protest against the oil companies' high prices; and with the petitions of a new group of government employees seeking greater representation in governmental activities.

In the NP caucus, the President discussed the legislative program of the administration, urging specially a more 'aggressive NP effort to pass pending urgent bills.

Also present at this meeting were members of the Cabinet. Among the prominent NPs attending were Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer and House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso.

Earlier the President received a delegation representing gasoline dealers in Greater Manila, led by Col. Emiliano Ozaeta. The President prevailed upon the dealers to continue operations while he threshed out their differences with the oil companies. Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda accompanied the group.

The employees' group was led by Romeo Roy, president of the newly organized Philippine Alliance of Government Employees. The delegation sought representation in the GSIS and the SSS boards, while also proposing a 35 percent across-the-board pay increase for civil servants. The President said that he will study their proposals.

After the caucus with the NP congressmen, which ended at about 3 p.m., the President rested briefly, then went back to his study to work on state papers. He remained at his desk through the afternoon and evening.

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with executives of local oil companies and representatives of cement manufacturers.

The President also received provincial delegations who apprised him of problems in their respective localities.

In response to his appeal for assistance to dealers of gasoline and other oil products, as well as to drivers of buses and jeepneys, the oil executives assured the President that they will meet their dealers and find out their needs and problems, and extend help.

The President also discussed with the gasoline executives a plan to put up a trust fund to which the oil companies will contribute some ₱5 million. The fund will provide hospitalization and other benefits for drivers of public conveyances.

In his meeting with cement manufacturers, the President was briefed on the problems of the industry, particularly the problems related to exportation.

The cement men are eyeing export deals in view of the inability of the domestic market to absorb local production.

The President directed Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the Development Bank of the Philippines and Governor Gregorio S. Licaros of the Central Bank to sit down with the cement manufacturers and work out solutions to the problems of the industry, including over-production.

Rep. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte led a delegation of mayors from his province to see the President. The mayors sought assistance for their respective municipalities.

The President received callers until 1:30 p.m., with the delegations headed by Gov. Henry Regalado of Misamis Occidental and Gov. Virgil Lacaya of Zamboanga del Norte among the last batch to see him.

The group of gasoline executives which met with the President in the morning was composed of S. O. Abellera of Getty, J. J. Wolahan and Francis Ablan of Caltex, Lucio Mazzei of Shell, Ramon del Rosario and Jose Chuidian of Filoil. William Potts of Esso and Robert Wales of Mobil.

The group of cement manufacturers included Jesus Cabarrus of Island Cement, Ramon del Rosario of Bacnotan, Eduardo Escobar of Filipinas, Aurelio Montinola, Jr. of Republic and Vicente Ponce of Mindanao Cement.

Among other actions, the President forwarded to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation 69 nominations to posts in the judiciary and the Land Registration Commission, mostly to fill existing vacancies in the two agencies.

Of the nominees, four are slated for municipal judgeship, three are clerks of court; 55 as chairman or members of provincial and city boards of assessment appeals, and seven as Registers of Deeds. (See pages for list of Nominees.)

The President also approved the 88 appointments to the regular force of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Of those appointed, one is as captain in the corps of professors; 10 are first lieutenants in the judge advocate general's service, medical corps, dental service, and chaplain service; 64 are second lieutenants in the Philippine Army, Philippine Constabulary, Philippine Air Force, Nurse Corps, and Medical Corps; and eight are ensigns in the Philippine Navy.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked most of the day on state papers with only-one important meeting, that with members of the House ways and means committee headed by Rep. Natalio P. Castillo.

The committee called on him in the morning to discuss the Corporate Income Tax bill, to which an alternate measure was proposed by Internal Revenue Commissioner Misael Vera, which would embody the provision that business corporations be grouped into specific categories for the purpose of systematizing the payment of taxes.

The conference also took up other pending administration measures in Congress, with an eye to speeding up congressional action on them.

Among those at the meeting were Reps. Artemio Loyola of Davao del Sur, Roberto Montelibano of Negros Occidental, Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Pablo Roman of Bataan, Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao del Norte, Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Mariano Pefiaflorida of Iloilo, Roberto Diokno of Batangas, Herminio Teves of Negros Oriental, Gaudencio Beduya of Cebu, Roberto Sabido of Albay, Jose M. Alberto of Catanduanes, Marcelino Veloso of Leyte and Jose Neri of Camiguin.

The rest of his working day was devoted to official capers, the volume of which necessitated a proxy for a speech the President had earlier set at the blessing and unveiling rites in Muntinlupa prisons, in connection with the commemoration of political prisoners who died at the national penitentiary during World War II. Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile read the President's speech which called on Filipinos who value their freedom to stand fast against the encroachment of an alien ideology.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the private sector to assume a bigger share of the necessary task of informing the public of important issues and events, adding, however, that this duty must be performed "honestly and truthfully."

He pointed out the need for constant communication with the people, particularly on the aims of government, "if we are to expect a high quality and degree of mass support, which alone can make possible democratic growth."

The President stressed that the underlying element needed to fulfill the people's aspirations is unity; first, a unity of purpose, then a unity of effort.

However, he said, to discover the purpose there must be a consensus which only a full understanding of the problems and the resources of the nation can bring about.

On returning to Malacañang near noon, the President resumed his paperwork. Among others, he ordered the NBI to probe new reports of violence in Ilocos Sur, in connection with the Bantay case; and dashed off a letter to Manila Mayor Antonio J. Villegas, in response to a published request by Villegas for the turnover of the city's esteros to city hall. In his letter, the President said that only Congress can authorize such turnover.

The President worked through the afternoon and evening at his desk, except for a brief moment of rest. He did not receive any visitors.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the primary target of the administration now is the development of a well-balanced agro-industrial economy.

The President told a visiting political science professor that the country is now engaged in the task of increasing and diversifying exports and decreasing imports.

The President said that with the stoppage of car imports the government expects to encourage local car assemblers to put up local plants to use local materials wherever possible in the assembly of cars.

Later, the President held the first conference of the air with student leaders and local government officials to discuss national and local problems.

The conference which was conducted through the facilities of the ABS-CBN radio was participated in by, among others, Manila Mayor Antonio Villegas, Mayors Angel Tiongco of Sta. Rosa, Laguna and Floro Roxas of Limay, Bataan, and Edgar Jopson of the National Union of Students of the Philippines, with Johnny de Leon as moderator.

During the conference, the President discussed with the conferees the improvement of the quality of education and the school problems in general, the flood control plans for Manila, and the release of funds for public works.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had ample time to whittle down the pile of state papers on his desk, with his schedule, totally clear of visitors.

He concentrated on studying reports from various officials and agencies, assessing various recommendations on appointments to vacant posts, and otherwise coping with state document and concerns.

Among other reports, he received one from Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. on the proposal for an extended survey of geothermal resources in Tiwi, Albay, and ordered a wider survey to include other areas where the same sources may be found and harnessed to development programs.

The President designated Jesus L. Reyna as acting chairman of the Board of Examiners for Master Plumbers, thus completing the composition of the board in time for the examinations scheduled by the board for plumber's.

Through the day, the President remained at his desk, seeing only close aides and officials for consultation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the need for cooperation and understanding among Asian nations, in a speech delivered at the ceremonies laying the cornerstone of the Asian Reinsurance Building in Makati, Rizal.

"We must increasingly break down barriers of communication, fear and mistrust," he told the audience which included representatives of 12 Asian insurance firms and governments, counting the Philippines, adding that the "tension that have convulsed our continent should be healed and understanding should be made to flow throughout the region."

Regional cooperation, he said, is the concern not only of Asian governments but of the Asian peoples, and should be the goal of both the state and private business.

Starting the day with his usual session with official papers, the President at about mid-morning hied himself to the ceremonial room to receive the papers of the new Australian envoy to the Philippines, Ambassador James Charles Ingram.

In his remarks, the President noted the remarkable rapport between Australia and the Philippines, in the pursuit of common objectives designed to strengthen regional defense and cooperation. He also thanked Australia for the training it has given Filipinos in various industrial skills under the Colombo Plan.

After the formalities, the President relaxed with the Little League Baseball Team of the Philippines, who called to pay its respects before leaving to participate in a series of games to pick the Pacific Area representative to the world championship series in the US.

The team members, accompanied by Felipe Monserrat, ranged in age 9-to-12, and included Salvador Salacup, Jimmy Bunaga, Armando Bunye, Elpidio Calinagan, Ramiro Carlos, Napoleon Esteban, Alejandro Prudo, Hermogenes Geli, Rolando Pacujan, Luisito Tolentino, Jr., Jesus de Mesa, Ramon Estipular, Fernando Dalmacio and Ramon Altaveros.

The President asked the baseball sprites to be as topflight goodwill ambassadors for their country as they should be first-rate baseballers.

Aside from receiving an array of callers, notably Gov. Anacleto Alcala of Quezon province, the President inducted Vice Gov. Ramon Villalon, Jr. as acting governor of La Union while Gov. Juvenal Guerrero is abroad for about three months.

Among those who witnessed the ceremony were Sen. Magnolia Antonino, Reps. Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega, Mrs. Villalon, and close friends and relatives of the Villalons.

In the afternoon, the President interrupted his desk work to be guest of honor at the laying of the cornerstone of the Asian Reinsurance Building in Makati, Rizal.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, honored Asian insurance commissioners and local insurance executives at a simple reception.

PRESIDENT MARCOS followed more or less his usual daily schedule, which begins with a protracted early morning stint at his desk, to scan the papers piled up for the day and act on them. Then he begins receiving the callers listed on his schedule.

First among those to see the President in the morning was US Ambassador Henry Byroade who discussed matters of mutual interest to the US and the Philippines. The hour-long meeting was held behind close doors.

The President later received the special mission of the Department of Labor scheduled to depart for countries in Asia and the Pacific, and as far afield as the US West Coast and two cities in Canada, to contact Filipino workers and explain the advantages of the dollar remittance plan of the government as well as the dollar deposits in major RP banks, recently approved for adoption.

The mission members who saw the President were Labor Undersecretary Raoul Inocentes, mission chairman; Alfredo V. Antiporda of the Central Bank, Isidoro M. Villanos of the Philippine National Bank and Cresencio M. Siddayao of the Department of Labor.

Then the President inducted J. B. Tagorda as deputy commissioner of public highways, filling a long vacant post.

The President also designated Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz chairman of the Commission on Population. The commission was created by the President last May to formulate program recommendations relating to the economic and social development of the country.

Other callers received by the President were Reps. Artemio Loyola of Davao del Sur, Eduardo Gullas of Cebu and Pablo Malasarte of Bohol who came with Gov. Lino Chacto of the same province.

He directed the National Library officials to assist in the organization or strengthening of libraries maintained by offices of the executive department.

In his directive, the President pointed out the need for the maximum use and maintenance of libraries serving offices under the executive department.

He particularly instructed the National Library officials to look into the proper acquisitioning, accessioning, circulation, and preservation of books, periodicals, and other publications purchased with government funds.

Later in the afternoon, the President approved the commissions given to 14 individuals in the reserve force of the Philippine Navy, as well as the promotions for 238 inactive reserve officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Of the AFP reserve officers promoted, six are to the rank of lieutenant colonel, 91 to major, 68 to captain and 73 to first lieutenant.

PRESIDENT MARCOS gave more than a little of his time to the consideration of such high priority concerns as the establishment of a free trade zone, meeting Free Trade Zone Authority officials for the purpose; and the still pending administration measures in Congress, all of which are deemed essential to development and better government, and for which purpose he met with Congress leaders.

Apart from these meetings, and the ceremonies this morning at which Minister James Wilson of the US embassy here was conferred an award, the President as usual was engaged mostly by his desk work.

At simple rites in Malacañang, the President conferred on Minister Wilson the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Maginoo, for distinctive services in the field of international relations, and for personal achievements in furthering the; interests of both the Filipino and American peoples in the course of discharging his duties.

Witnessing the award presentation were the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and members of Minister Wilson's family, ranking diplomatic and foreign office officials.

At the meeting to discuss the pending bills in Congress, the President decided to call a caucus of leaders of both chambers tomorrow in Malacañang.

In the meeting with the FTZA officials, headed by Chairman Rolando Geotina, the President suggested that private landowners be persuaded to sell their lands to industrial establishments, and that the FTZA should explore coordinated activities with other government economic agencies.

The President told Geotina and Commissioner Teodoro Peña to confer with officials of the National Economic Council, the Presidential Economic Staff and the Board of Investments on the formulation of rules and regulations and the zonification of the area, taking into account:

- 1) The four-year economic development program;
- 2) The availability of funds; and
- 3) The priorities approved by the Board of Investments.

The rest of the President's working day was taken up by state papers, among them new appointments to vacant posts which he approved; and a number of directives to various offices.

The Chief Executive forwarded to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of appointees to municipal judgeship and clerks of court.

The nominees include 12 for municipal judges, one auxiliary judge and three clerks of court. (See p. 6987 for list of nominees.)

The President directed officials concerned to lay down the mechanics for possible acquisition by the government of landed estates in exchange for shares of stocks in state corporations, a means eyed for hastening implementation of the land reform program.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. informed the President that he has been sounded out by certain big landowners in Tarlac, who said they were willing to swap their lands for shares in government corporations.

Some state corporations which could swap shares of lands include Manila Gas Corporation, the National Development Company, the National Power Corporation, and the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority.

The President also directed the banning of all firearms in the premises of the Manila International Airport.

He also ordered that tourists be allowed to visit Nayong Pilipino even if they are in transit.

The Chief Executive issued the twin directives to Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina and to the heads of government agencies with offices at the MIA, including the Bureau of Quarantine, Civil Aeronautics Administration, Bureau of Immigration, Office of the Airport Manager, and to all police units.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted most of his morning working hours to a conference on legislative matters with leaders of both chambers of Congress. The meeting considered how urgent bills still pending in Congress could be more speedily acted on before the session is adjourned.

Present at the caucus, which lasted three hours, were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, Senate Majority Floor-leader Arturo M. Tolentino, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso;

Senators Emmanuel Pelaez, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Helena Z. Benitez: Reps. Jose M. Alberto, Carlos Imperial, Tito Dupaya, Joaquin Rocas, Rogaciano Mercado, Natalio P. Castillo, Artemio Al. Loyola and Frisco San Juan.

Also present were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchcr, Jr., Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, Undersecretary of Finance Pio de Roda, and Angel Yoinco, executive director of the Joint Legislative-Executive Tax Commission.

In the afternoon, the President devoted most of his time to paper work. He received no visitors.

He remained at his desk through evening studying reports and disposing of urgent state business brought to his attention.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Directed Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief, to identify and arrest the gunmen who ambushed Ifugao Gov. Gualberto B. Lumauig and his party last night, while on their way back to Lagawe.
2. Wired PANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr., to "bring to Malacañang as soon as possible" the Manobo chief, Datu Manpatilan, who has signified willingness to surrender to the authorities.

Manpatilan is facing murder charges for the alleged massacre of 14 lumberjacks in Esperanza Agusau del Sur, on August 21, 1968. He has been in hiding since.

3. Submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 39 national, provincial and city officials. (See pp. 7153-7155 for list of nominees.)

After going through a sheaf of state papers on his desk early in the morning, President Marcos received a group of lawyers representing various legal aid organizations.

The lawyers took up with the President the problems of counsel encountered by poor citizens, and during the discussion of the question, the President suggested that all existing legal aid groups be integrated into a single organization so that as such it can better serve the poor and the ignorant who go to court for redress or to protect their rights.

Present at the meeting were Sen. Salvador II. Laurel, Juan T. David, Gonzalo Gonzales, Crispin Baisas and Juan L. Luna of the Philippine Bar Association and the CLASP, Teresita Sison of WILOCI, Rodolfo Palattao of the Capitol Jaycees, Cresencio Magbag of the Knights of Columbus, Roger Garcia of San Beda, and Raul Roque, Rodolfo Jimenez, Roger Cortez, Romy Vicente, Jose Cardona, Cesar Uy and Francisco Reyes of the Ateneo Legal Aid Center.

The rest of the day was spent by the President on state papers, except for a long break in mid-afternoon when he presided at a meeting of AFP brass at the GHQ building in Camp Aguinaldo.

One of the directives which the President issued from his desk was the order to the AFP to build parks within military reservations, both to preserve vanishing Philippine flora and to provide people with recreation areas which emphasize the natural beauty of the country.

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated on measures aimed at firming up certain developmental programs, notably those on Central Luzon and on trade and industry. He did not receive visitors the whole day.

He also asked Vice President Fernando Lopez, concurrent secretary of agricultural and natural resources, to take a direct hand in the settling of disputes particularly those involving rights on lands and other natural resources of the country.

The President likewise asked the Vice President to involve deeply all the appropriate agencies inside and outside of his department, simultaneous with the consolidation of all legal aid clinics.

To make more effective the implementation of programs in Central Luzon, the President reconstituted the executive committee of the Central Luzon Development Program (CLDP), as he appointed the three members of the committee.

To stress the government's policy to accelerate the development of trade and industry as a vital factor in the growth of the country's economy, the President issued a proclamation declaring the period from 1970 to 1980 as "Buy Filipino Decade."

The President said the government is intensifying efforts to industrialize and expand trade, especially the exportation of locally finished products.

"Made-in-the-Philippines" products, the President pointed out, have acquired appreciable quality comparable to imported goods.

At this stage of the nation's development, the President stressed, "it is important to stimulate greater patriotism among our industrialists, manufacturers, institutions and people to take pride in our own products."

The proclamation of "Buy Filipino Decade" was requested by the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines which has initiated the nationwide movement for the patronization of locally made goods.

PRESIDENT MARCOS took time out from his voluminous paper work to meet at length with workers' unions of the Philippine Air Lines and the Manila South Harbor, at a time when the workers of the said unions were on the verge of calling a strike because of unresolved disputes with management.

Accompanied by Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople and Labor Relations Director Amado Inciong, the representatives of the embattled workers sat clown with the President to thresh out the alternatives to a strike.

Happily, the President succeeded in putting off the projected strikes, after appealing to the workers' civic-spiritedness, and promising to intercede in their behalf with their respective management.

Involved in the disputes were the employees and pilots, associations of PAL, and the members of the Association of Pier Checkers and Workers.

Among those at the conference were Capt. Felix Gaston, president of the PAL Pilots Association; Fortunate Biangco, president of the PAL Employees Association and other PALEA officials including Roberto Espinelli, Edgar Lubiano, Socorro Remulla, Eddie Miranda, Dominador Obillo, Genaro Gonzalez, Leoncio Saranilla, Amando Regala, Hernando Guevara, Agustin Sarto, Nicanor Gustilo, Felix Garlitos, Leonardo R. arang, Andres Datinguinoo, Domingo Solomon and Arternio Lopez; and Ricardo Manalad and Ramon Oliveros, president and secretary, respectively, of the Association of Fort Checkers and Workers at South Harbor.

With his paper work getting priority, the President pared down his schedule of callers to only a few, notably Gen. Jesus Vargas (ret.), secretary general of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, who paid a farewell call prior to his departure for his post in Bangkok tomorrow. The SEATO official was here for the Council of Ministers meeting of the organization.

The only other caller was Alden Whitman, New York Times correspondent, who spent two weeks travelling in the country with Gen. Charles Lindbergh (ret.), visiting settlements and communities of the nation's cultural minorities. The Times man interviewed the President.

The rest of the President's working day was devoted to his desk work, from which, among others, issued two proclamations:

1. Declaring Wednesday, August 19 this year, as a special public holiday in Quezon Province and in the cities of Lucena and Quezon, on the occasion of the 92nd birth anniversary of the late President Manuel L. Quezon. The 19th of August of every year is as Citizenship Day, under proclamation No. 331 dated August 4, 1952.

2. Declaring the period from August 2 to 8 this year, and every year thereafter, as Land Reform Week. It was on August 8, 1953 that the present Agricultural Land Reform Code became law, which the President described as a "great stride in breaking the inequitable system of landholding in the Philippines."

He also issued an order adding three new members to the executive committee taking charge of the Colombo Plan meeting here, as well as forwarded to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation four new nominations to judicial positions.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received several callers and held conferences with various officials, while also doing a lot of paper work, all in all chalking up a rather unusually active day.

Early in the morning, he received Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe who discussed matters of mutual interest to the Philippines and Japan.

After this meeting and a spell of desk work, the President received Rev. and Mrs. Richard Wurmbrand, who came with radio reporter Hann Browne and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Magbanua of Radio DZFE. The Rumanian pastor recounted to the President his experiences as a victim of communism and outlined his present mission of enlightening people on communism's danger.

Much later in the morning, the President held a closed door conference with Placido Mapa, Jr., PES director-general; Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, Sixto K. Roxas, and Cesar Zalamea. Financial and economic matters were taken up.

Notable among the President's callers were Mrs. Ester Sinsuat, wife of Blah Sinsuat of Cotabato, who discussed the peace and order situation in that region; and Gov. Francisco Nepomuceno of Pampanga who consulted the President on problems of that province.

The rest of the President's work day was devoted to official papers, among which were new nominees to key posts which he sent on to the Commission on Appointments; proclamations, executive orders and memoranda.

Of the nominees four were for provincial fiscal, 49 for assistant provincial fiscal, four for city fiscal, 32 for assistant city fiscal and one for district state prosecutor. (See pp. 7153-7155 for list of nominees.

The proclamations and directives issued were:

1. Proclamation No. 722, declaring the period from July 27 to August 2 as "Filipino Businessmen's Week."
2. Proclamation No. 720, which extends up to August 31 this year the period within which the Philippine Cancer Society, Inc., may conduct a national educational, membership and fund campaign.
3. Executive Order No. 244, amending Executive Order No. 168 of February 5, 1969, entitled, "Creating a Small Farmers Commission.
4. Memorandum Circular No. 371, issued by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., on the President's authority, enjoining all government agencies to submit reports and/or position papers on problem areas and important issues.
5. Ordered the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration to see to it that all tobacco produce of the North this year—estimated at 30 million. kilos—should be marketed to private buyers and that no quantity of such produce should be allowed to go to waste.

The President specified that the purchase period of this produce should continue until September 15 without any single centavo spent by the government for any purchase.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a group of Datus from Agusan and Davao, notably Datu Manpatilan of Agusan, who has been in the news allegedly as the man behind the killing of some lumberjacks. The Datu denied this.

The President as usual carried on his paper work, and in the afternoon he again sat down for a conference on land problems, particularly those affecting national minorities and small settlers, with Vice President Fernando Lopez and other officials.

It was decided that Vice President Lopez will have direct control and administration of the agencies involved with the resolution of land disputes and other problems affecting- settlers, minorities and small farmers.

Others at the conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Undersecretaries Isosceles Pascual of natural resources, Arturo Tarico, Jr. of agriculture, Guillermo Santos of justice and Efen Plana of national defense; Directors Jose Viado of forestry and Fernando Busuego of mines; CNI Commissioner Mama Sinsuat; Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella, Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia and Datu Manpatilan.

In an effort to coordinate government operations against unfair trade practices the President reorganized the Fair Trade Board, vesting it with greater powers and authority “in consonance with the demands of the times.”

The board’s reorganization was prompted by the serious increase in cases of imitation products, alteration and substitution of lawful trademarks and trade names, misbranding, mislabelling, fraudulent designation of origin, false description, adulteration, fraudulent refilling of empty containers and other methods of unfair business competition and. unethical trade practices.

Also noted were increased violations of laws against “monopolies and combinations in restraint of trade,” such as collusion in price fixing, conspiracies to prevent by artificial means free competition in the market, and transactions prejudicial to lawful commerce.

As constituted, the new Fair Trade Board will be composed of the Secretary of Commerce and Industry as chairman; the Undersecretary of Justice as vice chairman; and the chairman of the Price Control Council, commissioner of customs, commissioner of internal revenue, the food and drug administrator, the chief of the Philippine Constabulary, and the presidents of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, Consumers Union of the Philippines, and the Chamber of Filipino Retailers as members.

The director of commerce will be the secretary and executive officer of the board.

Among other actions, the President directed the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration to start paying this year its indebtedness of ₱300 million to the Agricultural Credit Administration and the Central Bank.

The President said payment of this indebtedness should be completed within three years with at least ₱50 million to be paid immediately this year.

PRESIDENT MARCOS held conferences with the Price Control Council and provincial delegations which called at Malacañang.

Between conferences, he worked on papers during which he signed the nominations of new officials, for confirmation by the Commission on Appointments; issued an executive order creating the Development Management Staff in his office and designated Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., as acting chairman of the Power Development Council.

The mission of the Development Management Staff (DMS) is primarily to upgrade functions that are connected with national development and to meet crisis-situations. As created, the DMS is headed by the executive secretary, who has immediate and direct supervision and control over it.

Nominated by the President were Ernesto Bello Cachola as municipal judge of Lugalit, Misamis Oriental and Angel Babiera as provincial fiscal of Zamboanga del Sur.

The President also issued an administrative order exonerating former Register of Deeds Timoteo D. Agustin of Tarlac of an administrative charge and created a committee to determine priorities in the settlement of claims against the armed forces.

At his conference with the Price Control Council, Dr. Manuel Lim, Council chairman, reported on the progress made on the fixing of maximum selling prices of essential commodities. Dr. Lim assured the President that prices of books and school supplies had not risen more than 100 per cent.

The President received visitors until 3:30 p.m.

A delegation from Cotabato apprised the President of problems in their province. Accompanied by Commissioner Mama Sinsuat of National Integration, the group included Gov. Simeon Datumanong and Board Members Doroteo Palencia, Madpantao Dilangalen and Ishak Ampatuan.

Among other delegations at Malacañang were those from Surigao del Norte headed by Rep. Constantino Navarro, from Albay led by Rep. Roberto Sabido and from Masbate led by Rep. Emilio Espinosa, Jr., and Gov. Moises Espinosa.

The President asked Congress to pass before the end of the current special session a bill appropriating ₱30 million for the implementation of the increase of the minimum wage or salary of national government employees, as provided for under Republic Act No. 6129 otherwise known as the Minimum Wage Law.

Approval of the bill will make possible the new salary rates for government employees effective July 1, 1970.

Certifying the bill to Congress, the President said that the funds for this purpose are expected to come from the additional revenue that will be realized under the tariff classification “Others,” upon approval of House Bill No. 1056.

Some ₱90 million in revenue was expected to come from this source.

The new minimum wage law, which was approved by Congress during’ the last special session, was approved by the President last June 17.

President's Week in Review: July 31 – August 6, 1970

July 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the Department of Labor and the Anti-Smuggling Action Center to make separate inquiries into the number of workers that may be displaced when the Paper Industries Corporation of the Philippines (PICOP) takes over the disputed area claimed by the Calo logging interests in Agusan.

The President also directed the two offices to ascertain whether any party is instigating trouble in the area.

The President had a number of callers in the morning.

Among those he received were:

1. Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata who reported on his mission abroad. Virata arrived earlier in the morning after two weeks abroad.
3. Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez, who discussed problems of his constituency.
4. John Reuther, son of the American labor leader Victor Reuther, who was passing through from Moscow, where he studied for two years. He also paid a courtesy call, accompanied by Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople and Robert Kinney.

The President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments more nominees to various posts, including foreign service positions, judgeships and other posts in the judiciary. (See p. 7344-0 for list of nominees.)

Later in the afternoon, he asked Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments to coordinate with the National Water and Air Pollution Control Commission in processing applications for the establishment of new industries.

The President directed Paterno to clear all BOI applicants with the NWAPCC so as “to determine whether they have anti-pollution devices.”

August 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of the morning in conference with leaders of Congress, as the current special session looked forward to adjournment at midnight.

The President urged the leaders to expedite passage of all important bills he had certified, pointing out the importance of the proposed Measures to the various programs of government.

House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, Sen. Wenceslao R. Lagumbay, Reps. Jose Alberto and Natalio P. Castillo, Secretary of Justice Felix V. Makasiar, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad.

In the afternoon, the President presided at the ceremony launching Land Reform Week, which was featured by the signing of an agreement putting up a pilot project in Nueva Ecija which will lead the way toward wider land reform and increased productivity for farmers under the land reform program.

Present at the rites were Nueva Ecija Governor Eduardo Joson; Reps. Leopoldo Diaz and Angel Concepcion, Jr., both of that province; Agriculture Undersecretary Isosceles Pascual, former Sen. Manuel P. Manahan, president of the Philippine Rural Reconstruction Movement; Dean Jeremias Montemayor, president of the Federation of Free Farmers of the Philippines; LA Deputy Governor Ernesto Valdez and Hector Moreno of the Rice and Corn Administration, all participating in the project as advisors; US-AID Director Thomas Niblock, whose agency is providing $500,000 to meet the project's foreign exchange needs.

Aside from these two activities, the President confined himself to desk work. Among others, he approved the deportation of three foreign nationals considered undesirable; and submitted the nomination of Secretary of Justice Felix V. Makasiar as associate justice of the Supreme Court to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in keeping with an agreement reached with congressional leaders earlier, called Congress to a third special session starting 10 a.m., September 7.

The President agreed with leaders of Congress to give priority to 12 "must bills" among which are those:

- 1) Giving the President authority to borrow from foreign sources.
- 2) Providing for a peace and order fund.
- 3) Authorizing the sale of certain military camps.
- 4) Amending the tariff and customs code.
- 5) Providing for a system of developing cooperatives.
- 6) Increasing the capitalization of the Philippine National Bank.
- 7) Consolidating and revising the charter of the National Power Corporation.
- 8) Abolishing the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority.

The President and Congress leaders have also agreed that the congressional recess will be devoted to exhaustive studies of the must bills, and that there will be periodic caucuses to discuss the measures.

Except for former Secretary of Justice Felix V. Makasiar and Dean Vicente Abad Santos whom he inducted as associate justice of the Supreme Court and secretary of justice, respectively, the President did not receive any other callers.

The appointment of Justice Makasiar has been confirmed by the Commission on Appointments. The incoming justice secretary was extended an ad interim appointment by the President.

The oath-taking ceremonies, held at the Malacañang reception hall, were witnessed by, among others, congressional leaders headed by Senate President Gil J. Puyat, justices of the Supreme Court led by Chief Justice Roberto

Among other actions, the President ordered that studies be made on the feasibility of relocating all squatters and illegal occupants along esteros and river banks, especially along the Pasig River, as a means of meeting the pollution problems.

At the same time, the President asked Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to provide the necessary funds for the dredging of the Pasig River, from its mouth on Manila Bay to the San Juan River junction, as a necessary measure to control pollution of the said river.

In relation to this, the President also directed Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña to prepare a program of priorities for the dredging of the Pasig River.

The President also created a committee to study, formulate and implement plans for flood control in the Greater Manila area.

He gave the committee headed by Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manul B. Syquiao, the responsibility of finding ways and means of solving the recurrent problems of flood control.

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with local and national officials, as well as other parties concerned, to discuss peace and order conditions in several areas of Mindanao and Sulu.

At the meeting, the President issued directives to reconcile political partisans in Sulu; and to protect the rights and insure freedom from harassment of national minorities in Agusan del Sur and Cotabato.

Present at the meeting were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Justice Undersecretary Guillermo Santos, PANAMIN Secretary Manda Elizalde, Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., Rep. Democrito O. Plaza, Sen. Jose W. Diokno who is counsel for Manpatilan, Gov. Rufino Otero, Provincial Fiscal Antonio Apale, PC Provincial Commander Col. Jose Castillo, Datu Manpatilan, and representatives of Tirador Lumber, P. B. de Jesus Timber, and Republic Lumber Company.

In the evening, the President was guest of honor at the kick-off ceremonies launching the Presidential Cup series which is aimed at raising funds to support the Filipino teams at the forthcoming Asian Game in South Korea. In his speech, the President underlined the administration program to upgrade sports in the country.

The President also welcomed a contingent of basketball players from Czechoslovakia participating in the current Presidential Cup series.

In welcoming the Czechs, the President announced that his decision to allow the entry and participation of the Czech team, the first from any Socialist country in Eastern Europe, was intended to promote better relations between the Philippines and these countries, especially Czechoslovakia.

The rest of his workday was devoted to state, papers and other government problems.

Among others, the President:

1. Issued Administrative Order No. 230, creating the Philippine National Committee for the Freedom From Hunger Campaign.

The committee was created in consonance with the worldwide campaign against hunger, launched by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations on July 1, 1960.

2. Proclaimed Sunday, August 9, as “Melchor Day” in Ibaday Aldan.

The day marks the anniversary of the birth of the late Col. Alejandro Melchor, Sr., whom the President described in his proclamation as “an outstanding inventor and man of science and technology.”

August 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a number of callers, including those who came to pay a courtesy call, while also doing a full measure of desk work.

Among those who called in the morning were:

1. Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato who discussed with the President the peace and order conditions in that province.
2. Andres Soriano Jr., and Jose Mari Soriano of the Paper Industries Corporation of the Philippines, who took up land problems in Agusan del Norte.
3. O. M. Partain, managing director of Chrysler Philippines, who paid a courtesy call. He was accompanied by Ricardo Silverio of Delta Motors and one other. The auto industry in the country was discussed during the call.

In the afternoon, the President received:

1. Mayor Luis Lardizabal of Baguio City and Rudy Cuenca of the Pacific Area Travel Association (PATA), who consulted the President on the preparations for the PATA workshop in the Philippines.
2. Mayors Balakat Sangki of Ampatuan and Odon Ampatuan of Bagumbayan, both municipalities in Cotabato. The mayors were asked to return Friday for a more thorough conference on the peace and order problems in their constituencies.

The rest of the President’s working day was devoted to paper work.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a meeting with two diplomats, one presented her credentials the other took up official matters; as well as conferred with local officials and received a number of congressmen.

All in all, the President had a brisker day than usual, which included a visit to the AFP supply center at Camp Aguinaldo. He also went over various state papers, including a list of foreign service officials who were not confirmed in their new designations.

At mid-morning, the President presided at the ceremonies wherein the credentials of the first Brazilian ambassador to the Philippines were presented. The new envoy is Madame Zilah Mafra Peixoto, who is also the first woman ambassador assigned to the Philippines.

After this rite, the President received Msgr. Carmini Rocco, the Vatican envoy here, who discussed the preparations for the forthcoming visit in Manila of Pope Paul VI. Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo sat in on the talks.

In quick order, the President received Data Tuwasil of Jolo, who had personal matters to take up; Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople and Roberto Oca, who also had a private talk with the President and defense and AFP top brass.

The conference was attended by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, AFP Chief of Staff Manuel T. Yan and Brig. Gen. Rafael Ilete, PA commander.

After the meeting, the President sat down for a brief interview with Rudy Tupas, editor of the Sunday Times magazine.

He then received Reps. Jose D. Aspiras, Eddie Gullas, Felipe Almazan, Vicente Cerilles, Jose Puyat Jr., and Pablo Malasarte. Also coming in for consultations with the President were Sen. Mamintal Tamano and NEC Chairman Gerardo Sikat.

In the afternoon, the President confined himself to his desk work, after a mid-afternoon visit to the AFP supply center at Camp Aguinaldo.

The President renewed the designations of 50 ranking officials in the foreign service, whose appointments were not acted upon by the Commission on Appointments during the second special session of Congress.

Of the foreign service officials designated, 10 are career ministers, 14 foreign affairs officers, class I and consul general; 13 foreign affairs officers, class II and consul; and 13 foreign affairs officers, class III.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ended an active day with an appearance at the convention of the Filipino businessmen as guest of honor, at the Savoy Philippines Hotel in the evening, where he delivered the keynote speech.

Earlier, the President's day was marked by many callers, notably that of a group of PC officers taking advance training in a special field, and that of the incumbent president of Jaycee International, again an Asian.

The President also devoted a good part of his day to the, usual state papers and ether official business referred to him for decision and action.

In the morning, the, President received Hiroshi Maeda, world president of the Junior Chamber International, who called at Malacañang to pay his respects, following his arrival in Manila in the course of a tour of Jaycee organizations in 82 countries all over the world.

During his call, Maeda thanked the President for the support and encouragement his administration has extended to the Jaycee movement in the Philippines.

Firmo Liwanag, vice president of the Philippine Jaycees, along with a delegation of local Jaycees accompanied Maeda on his call. Liwanag formed the President that Maeda, a Japanese, is the first Asian elected president of the world organization since two Filipinos, Ramon del Rosario and Roberto Villanueva, held the post some 13 years ago.

During the call, the President signed a proclamation declaring the period December 7 to 13, this year as "Philippine Jaycee Week," in recognition of the role of the Jaycees in nation-building.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS., aside from attending to the regular order of state business, also settled a feud between two brothers which threatened to disrupt peace and order in Cotabato; received Japanese media men; a local labor group; and was guest of honor at the ceremonies launching the fund drive of the Citizens Legal Aid Society of the Philippines (CLASP).

After working for a time in his study early in the morning, the President received, the officers of the National Labor Unity Committee, who gave him a plaque for his concern and interest in the uplift of the working man. The labor group also addressed several petitions to the President, in behalf of labor.

Later in the morning, the President brought together Datu Abdullah Sangki and Mayor Balakat Sangki, brothers, and both of Cotabato, so that they can thresh out their differences and bury their feud. At the meeting, the President heard the sides of the two brothers, then appealed to them to reconcile in the public interest. The brothers shook hands and pledged to keep the peace.

Toward mid-day, the President was interviewed by a group of Japanese TV and newspapermen representing Sangkie, a newspaper; the Fuji and Nippon TV, and the Institute of Asian Economic Research. In the group were Takeichi Yamane, Kosaku Nomura, Mokoti Oshikawa and Kadasu Otake of Sangkie; Jiro Asano and Akira Enjoji of Fuji and Nippon TV; and Yukio Asano of the Institute.

In the afternoon, the President was guest of honor at the launching of the CLASP fund drive. In his brief remarks, the President urged all those who can contribute to the fund to give unstintingly saying that it is a small sacrifice to bear compared to the need of many Filipinos for assistance in getting justice from the courts.

To prevent the possible closure of public schools in Manila in view of the inability of the city government to meet the salaries of school teachers, the President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to pay said salaries without delay.

At the same time, the President asked Secretary of Justice Vicente Abaci Santos to submit an opinion as to which—the national or the city government—should pay the salaries of these teachers.

The President told Commissioner Sy-Changco that should the opinion be in favor of the city government, whatever sum that had been advanced by the national government would be reimbursable by the city of Manila.

In another front, the President modified his order banning the slaughter of carabaos, so as to allow the slaughter of carabaos and buffaloes under certain conditions.

The conditional lifting of the carabaos slaughter ban is embodied in a new order amending Executive Order No. 234 dated May 15, 1970, which bans the slaughter of carabaos and buffaloes.

Under the new order, carabaos and buffaloes three years of age or over may be slaughtered upon issuance of a slaughter permit by the municipal treasurer or city treasurer concerned.

President Marcos fulfilled two speaking engagements, one in the morning, at the rites marking the 69th anniversary of the Philippine Constabulary, and the other in the afternoon, at the closing ceremonies of the executive seminar on land reform, held at the Magsaysay Hall, SSS building.

Between engagements, the President spent time on paper work. Among other official concerns he acted on was that of the development problems of ports and arrastre services, toward meeting which he created a Port Labor Study Commission. He also directed that the government policy recognizing the rights of the previous occupants of lands licensed to lumbermen must be re-emphasized so that concessionaires would honor these rights.

The President left Malacañang at about 9 a.m. for Camp Crame, where he was guest of honor at the PC anniversary celebrations. In his speech, he urged the PC to strive to improve not only its image but also its standards and its overall capabilities. He returned to Malacañang about 11 a.m.

In the afternoon, the President left Malacañang about 4 p.m. for the SSS Magsaysay Hall. In his speech before the members of the land reform seminar, the President launched an intensified land reform program as he set new government endeavors toward a “new regime” of “land justice” for all.

As a start, he directed the National Land Reform Council to proclaim immediately for leasehold the remaining towns of Nueva Ecija not yet so proclaimed, as well as the 4th congressional district of Pangasinan, and the entire province of Camarines Sur and towns of Iloilo, Quezon and, Isabela given land reform priority.

In other directives embodied in his speech, the President:

1. Instructed the National Food and Agriculture Council to give full cooperation and support to the National Land Reform Council in expediting land reform coverage, to embrace rice and corn farmers; and
2. Ordered all government banking and financial institutions to revise their rules and regulations governing financial assistance to small farmers, with the aim of giving direct aid to beneficiaries regardless of their present tenure.

On his return to Malacañang, he relaxed briefly, then resumed his desk work. He had no callers during the day.

President Marcos had another quite but busy weekend, disposing of urgent official papers in his private study.

In resuming his work later in the afternoon, the President went over official reports from government agencies and special groups, one of which was on the dollar repatriation plan submitted by Labor Undersecretary Raoul Inocentes, chairman of the Special Presidential Mission on Dollar Repatriation.

Inocentes informed the President that vast dollar earnings of Filipino national overseas are joining into the Philippines via the Marcos dollar repatriation scheme and the new dollar account plan which guarantees the inviolability of dollar deposits in the Philippines.

During its mission overseas, the special presidential team, according to its initial report, was able to sign up several dollar accounts with Filipino businessmen with earnings abroad representing considerable sums.

At the same time, the Mission reported successful conferences with American base representatives and: representatives of American firms employing Filipino personnel which, would ultimately guarantee the massive, influx of dollar earnings into the Philippines.

The Mission reported that the Marcos dollar scheme has found active support in the American bases, particularly with the issuance of a U.S. Defense Department procurement circular and a military directive providing for mandatory dollar remittance by third country nationals, including Filipinos, to their countries of citizenship or permanent residence.

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted the major part of his working day to state papers and other state business requiring his study and action.

For this reason, he had all but a blank schedule of callers, with-only one group of visitors seeing him, the members of the Philippine team participating in the First Asian Youth Basketball Championship games in Seoul, South Korea, headed by Ignacio “Ning” Ramos, coach.

Accompanying the cage team were Manila Councilor Lito Puyat, who heads the Basketball Association of the Philippines, and Philip Monserrat, president of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked mostly on state papers, with his schedule clear of visitors.

Among other papers, he studied reports from various agencies involved with development programs, and signed a proclamation, setting the first Monday of December as the start of Aviation Week. The proclamation rescinds a former proclamation setting the second week of March as Aviation Week.

The President worked at his desk through the day, receiving only close aides for consultation, and a few officials who had problems to clear with him.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a fuller day than usual, with a formal ceremony, important, conferences, and a television interview on his schedule, apart from the usual desk work.

Early in the morning, he had a closed-door conference with Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Justice Vicente Abaci Santos, Secretary of Public Works and, Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Undersecretary of National Defense Efren Plana, and Postmaster General Enrico Palomar.

At mid-morning, he met Congress leaders to chart the agenda of the third special session of Congress.

Following this meeting, he received at a formal ceremony the credentials of Don Jose Maria Soriano, the new envoy to the Philippines of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta.

The panel included Jesus Bustamante of the Herald, Rey Naval of the Chronicle, Satur C. Ocampo of the Manila Times, Leo P. Gonzaga of the Finance Journal-Daily Mirror, Arthur Sales of the Bulletin, and Angelesio Tugado of the Times.

Also present were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros.

President Marcos was guest of honor at the ceremonies launching National Language Week, held at the Cultural Center of the Philippines, on Roxas Boulevard, Pasay City.

Before and after that engagement, the President worked on state papers at his study in Malacañang, although frequently interrupted by visitors on his schedule of callers.

Among those he received was the group headed by Vice President Fernando Lopez, which will represent the Philippines at the Asian Productivity Congress, set to open in Tokyo on August 18. The group came for final instructions.

With the Vice President were Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Director Jose Pardo of the Productivity Development Center, Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr. of the Presidential Economic Staff and, for the private sector, Julio Francia, president of the Philippine Chamber of Industries.

The next delegation to call was that composed of representatives of the NAWASA, WHO and the UNDP. The group called to submit to the President the master plan evolved by the three entities on the proper disposal of waste water in Manila and the neighboring areas.

A joint project of the three agencies, the project calls for massive financing and organization. But it is a “must” undertaking.

Those who called were Filemon Zablan and Brig. Gen. Sergio Isada (ret.), board chairman and general manager, respectively, of NAWASA; Dr. Francisco Dee, WHO regional director; Dr. Frank Go and Dr. William Harding of the UNDP.

Later in the morning, the President received Joseph Blatchford and John Shlaes of the US Peace Corps. Blatchford, who is the national director of the corps, was accompanied to Malacañang by US Ambassador Henry Byroade.

The President went to the cultural center at about 9 a.m., and in his speech, which was in Pilipino, he expressed the hope that a National Language Week will in the near future be no longer necessary as a way of promoting Pilipino, with the language already actively in use all over the country. The attainment of this goal,” he said, is the responsibility of all Filipinos, and the move toward that objectives should begin now.

Noting that the Constitution called for the development of a common language, he recalled that the Charter declared that such “a language is most necessary and crucial for forging national unity and a common consciousness.”

In pursuance with, this policy, the administration, he said, has made several moves forward.

Among them:

1. Executive Order No. 96 directing the use of Pilipino in oath-taking ceremonies and in official stationery.
2. Memorandum Circular No. 277, which requires government officials and employees to participate in regional seminars conducted by the Institute of National Language.
3. Memorandum Circular No. 172, directing the translation into Pilipino of the names of government offices.

5. Memorandum Circular No. 386 which directs national and local governments to observe National Language Week with appropriate programs.

He himself, the President said, has always welcomed diplomatic envoys in Pilipino, as do the members of the Philippine foreign service.

He was back in Malacañang at about 11 a.m., and resumed his desk work, while also receiving visitors. One of the directives that he issued from his desk was for the release of the confiscated books, "Quotations from Chairman Mao Tse Tung," but made clear that the decision will not be a precedent for similar cases in the future.

The Postmaster General had earlier confiscated 49 copies of the book on the ground that they were communist propaganda materials.

The President noted that the importation of written or printed matter through the mails is a free man's right to information. The government, he said, fully supports this freedom.

However, the President pointed out that this freedom is not without qualification, citing Section 1954 (b) of the Revised Administrative Code, which provides, among others, that no "written or printed matter in any form containing scurrilous libels against the government of the Republic of the Philippines, or containing any statement which tends to disturb or obstruct any lawful officer in executing his office or in performing his duty, or which tends to instigate others to cabal or meet together for unlawful purposes, or which suggests or incites rebellious conspiracies or tends to disturb the peace of the community or to stir-up the people against the lawful authorities . . . shall be imported into the Philippines through the mails, or be deposited in or carried by the mails of the Philippines, or be delivered to its addressees by any officer or employee of the Bureau of Posts."

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a number of callers, most of them official calls, and in-between did a full measure of paper work and, as usual, attended to other pressing state business.

Two of the earliest callers were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and BIR Commissioner Misael Vera. The conference focused on revenue and other financial matters.

Next to see the President was the Philippine women's Softball team, which will compete abroad for the Asian Women's Softball Championship. The group was headed by Prof. Agustin Cailao of the Philippine Amateur Softball Association, who represented Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, president of the association.

In the afternoon, the President discussed with US Ambassador Henry Byroade at a closed-door conference matters of mutual interest to the Philippines and the United States.

Following the US envoy were the members of the Presidential Dollar repatriation mission, headed by Undersecretary of Labor Raoul Inocentes. The group will leave Tuesday for points where Filipinos are working, as far as the United States and Canada. The mission members called on the President for final instructions.

The members of the group include Alfredo Antiporda of the Central Bank, Isidro Villanos of the Philippine National Bank, Sergio Barrera of the Department of Foreign Affairs and Cresencio Siddayao of the Department of Labor.

The commission of 61 officer-aspirants in the reserve force of the Armed Forces of the Philippines was one of the official recommendations approved by the President.

Their commission was recommended by General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff, and Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile.

Of those approved as commissioned officers, eight are first lieutenants in the Medical Corps, one captain and one first lieutenant in the Judge Advocate General's Service, one first lieutenant in the Dental Service, one first lieutenant and 39 second lieutenants in the Philippine Army, one major and three second lieutenants in the Philippine Constabulary, one second lieutenant in the Philippine Air Force, one ensign in the Philippine Navy, one second lieutenant in the Women's Auxiliary Corps, and five second lieutenants in the Nurse Corps.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent all of the morning at his desk working on official papers. He had no visitors on his schedule in the morning.

At mid-afternoon, he received the Korean ambassador and members of his staff, including his wife, in connection with the anniversary of the founding of the Republic of Korea.

A unique feature of the visit was an exhibition of the Korean karate called Taekwondo, which two Korean blackbelts performed. Bongbong, the President's son, who was initiated earlier into this sport, also did a small exhibition, by breaking two 1-inch boards, the first with a hand strike and the second with a sidekick.

The President expressed appreciation for the exhibition, and moved to have AFP, PC and Metrocom troops trained in the sport. For this purpose, he requested Ambassador Se Ryun Kim to loan out to the AFP the two Korean experts. The request was immediately granted.

The rest of the afternoon was spent by the President back at his desk, in the course of which he issued a proclamation declaring Monday, August 17, a special public holiday in the City of Pasay to give residents the opportunity to celebrate with appropriate ceremonies the City's charter anniversary, which falls on Sunday, August 16.

PRESIDENT MARCOS took a breather from his weekend session with state papers to receive in the afternoon the officers of the Philippine Air Lines Supervisors Association (PALSA) who had planned to stage a strike.

He asked the PALSA not to pursue its projected strike because of the adverse effects it will have on the public and the economy.

The President, instead, asked Cesar Legayada, PALSA president, to submit data to support the union's claim that the airline will not suffer losses if it granted their demands for a pay increase of 28 percent.

The PALSA scheduled a strike after PAL management rejected their demands for a pay increase, an additional half-month retirement pay, and a counter-offer on the demand for job evaluation review for 15C personnel on the supervisory level.

Legayada said that their demands had been submitted to the Bureau of Labor Relations for conciliation but that the talks had bogged down.

The delegation was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, and included Casiano Laquihon, legal counsel; Leonardo Agting, president of the Federation of Unions of Rizal; and Gaudioso Pomento and Rodante Maala of the same federation.

AFTER WORKING for a while in his study early in the morning, President Marcos left Malacañang for the NSDB auditorium where he addressed the opening session of the seminar on children and youth in national development.

In his speech, the President said there exists a wide gap between the old and the young generations, because the older generation has not systematically utilized its talents and resources, capacities and capabilities "to determine how the young conceive of the future and what it can do for the young."

The President added that the older generation should not force the young to conform to beliefs and practices which are no longer relevant to them or to the times. (See pp. 7798-A to 7798-K for full text of the President's speech.)

Returning to Malacañang at about 10 a.m., the President almost immediately sat down for a conference with Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata and PES Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr.

On the heels of this meeting came the call of the officials of the PALSA and PALEA, both unions of the Philippine Air Lines, with Secretary of Commerce and industry Ernesto Maceda and Labor Relations Director Amado Inciong accompanying them.

At this meeting, the Chief Executive urged the union bosses not to continue with their planned strike against PAL, while he talked with PAL officials on the demands of the unions for higher pay and transportation allowances. The union leaders agreed.

Next came the meeting with the members of the committee which studied the flood problems in the Greater Manila area, led by Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao. The President received the report of the committee, including its recommendations on the construction of a flood control system in Manila and its environs.

In the afternoon, the President met with Rafael Igoa and Leonardo Siguion-Reyna, executive vice president and general counsel, respectively, of the Philippine Air Lines. The PAL officers agreed to submit to the President complete figures on the airline's finances.

Also calling on the President were Gov. Jose Sering of Surigao del Norte and the mayor and members of the municipal board of Surigao town; and later Ambassador Rogelio dela Rosa, who discussed official matters relating to his post in Cambodia.

In-between all these activities, the President worked on state papers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored out of Malacañang to address the participants in the conference of customs collectors, at the Foreign Trade Zone Authority building in Manila's port area.

Earlier, the President concentrated on his paper work, during which he did not receive any visitor. At about 11 a.m., he left his office for the port area. In his speech he exhorted anew the officials and employees of the customs and internal revenue services to upgrade efficiency and morality.

Returning to Malacañang, he picked up from where he left off. He worked steadily at his desk, cancelling in the process a scheduled appearance at the launching of the Philippine Tuberculosis Society's fund drive. As proxy, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano delivered the President's prepared speech.

The President, however, received in the afternoon the group representing labor unions of the Baguio City mining firms and representatives of the PAL Supervisors Association. The President listened to the problems of the two unions with an eye to resolving them.

The groups were led by Fortunate Biangco and Cesar Legayada, presidents of the PALSA and PALEA, respectively; and Eliseo Flora, president of the Benguet Workers' Union.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Directed all government offices and agencies to assign personnel with the special duty of taking charge of official correspondence in Filipino.

The new presidential order was embodied in Memorandum Circular No. 384, issued by Malacañang, with Executive Order No. 187 signed by the President last August 6 as a follow-through in connection with this year's observance of National Language Week.

The order required, as much as possible, the use of Pilipino in all official communications and transactions in the government.

2. Asked the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to consider the request of the Presidential Assistant on Housing and Resettlement Agency for more public lands on which to resettle squatters from the Greater Manila Area.

PHHC General Manager Sebastian Santiago, PAHRA officer-in-charge, has made representations to obtain some 1,500 hectares of alienable public land, preferably in Montalban, Rizal, where it could resettle squatters from the city esteros and along river banks in the metropolitan area.

3. Named Undersecretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. as acting Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources in the absence of Vice President Fernando Lopez, who heads the Philippine delegation to the Asian Productivity Congress in Tokyo.

THE POLICY of social justice and the effort to deepen nationalism, keystones of the Commonwealth period, make Manuel L. Quezon still relevant today, President Marcos stated in a speech in Pilipino delivered for him by Sen. Jose J. Roy at the main rites in Lucena City commemorating the birthday of Quezon.

Today, the President said, "we do not just pay lip service to social justice," as attested to by his administration which has been "geared to social justice as the fulcrum of our national development program."

As in Quezon's time, he pointed out, "we have had to reckon with the forces of reaction, conscienceless landlords, bureaucratic corruption and apathy, anarchistic elements, abusive agents of the law" But, there is definitely "a need for restructuring this society that breeds social justice," he stressed. (See pp. 7798-L to 7798-N for full text of the President's speech.)

He requested the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, to proceed to Lucena without him, for their scheduled visit there. The President was to have delivered the main speech at the ceremonies. Instead, Sen. Roy appeared on his behalf.

A report on the government anti-smuggling campaign was received by the President from Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata.

Virata listed the measures which his department has recently adopted to strengthen his drive against smuggling, especially of "blue-seal" cigarettes. The measures are:

1. The confiscation of all airplanes, ships and trucks used in transporting smuggled cigarettes and other contraband.
2. The burning of all blue seal cigarettes apprehended by law enforcement agencies instead of selling the same at public auctions, to deprive the smugglers of the profit motive.

Secretary Virata said he had requested the assignment of additional armed troops particularly in areas where smuggling is still practiced.

The Finance Secretary also said that the Bureau of Internal Revenue has made representations with Congress for the passage of a bill requiring the quarterly payment of corporate income tax.

August 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked for most of the morning on state papers, receiving only two visitors, former Secretary of Foreign Affairs Narciso Ramos and Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos.

At about 11 a.m., the President left Malacañang for the South Harbor where he was ferried to the USS America, one of the United States' most modern attack carriers, where he was the guest of the officers and crew of the aircraft carrier.

The President was given full honors on bearding the ship, then was conducted on a tour of the vessel.

Among the papers signed by the President was the appointment of Associate Justice Felix V. Makasiar of the Supreme Court as his personal representative to the forthcoming Conference of Ministers of Justice of the Spanish, Latin-American countries and the Philippines, which will be held in Madrid, Spain.

The conference is being held from September 16 to 19, this year, in connection with the observance of the "Centenario de la Ley Organica del Poder Judicial."

He disengaged at about 7 p.m. to attend as one of the principal sponsors, the other being the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, the wedding ceremony of Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad and Fenny Cantero, held at the Santuario de San Jose, in Mandaluyong, Rizal.

Later, the President and the First Lady attended the wedding reception at the Hotel Inter-Continental. The First Couple returned to Malacañang direct from the hotel.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a heavy schedule of callers as well as a round of conferences and the usual desk work.

Among the first to call on the President was Brig. Gen. Joseph Capucci, director of the Office of Special Investigation of the United States Air Force, who came to pay his respects. Accompanied to the Palace by Col. Philip Sears, OSI commander at Clark Air Force Base, Gen. Capucci arrived here recently in the course of an inspection tour of OSI branches in Southeast Asia.

Earlier in the morning, the President accepted the credentials of Ambassador Nicolas Martin Alonzo, the new Spanish envoy to the Philippines. The members of the Cabinet led by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo were present at the presentation rites, which was held at the Palace ceremonial hall at 10:30 a.m.

After the ceremonies, the President conferred informally with his Cabinet secretaries who consulted him on pressing problems in their departments.

Then he repaired to his study where he received Jack Anderson, Washington columnist, who interviewed him on international affairs. Anderson was accompanied to Malacañang by Teodoro F. Valencia.

The President continued to receive callers through early afternoon, and discussed with acting Speaker Jose Aldeguer and Rep. Roberto Sabido of Albay a number of legislative measures which Congress will consider in the third special session set early next month.

Later, he received Chairman Manuel Lim of the Price Control Council who called to bid the President good-bye prior to his departure for Tokyo where he will attend a conference of international lawyers.

At about 12:30 p.m., the President, upon the request of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, went to the Music Room where some 20 Asian beauties, all participants in the Miss Asia quest, were gathered to pay their respects.

Back at his study, the President received Gov. Gualberto Lumaig of Ifugao who informed him of his scheduled trip to the United States for extended therapeutic treatments to avoid possible paralyzation of a left arm. Gov. Lumaig was seriously hurt in an ambush last July 23.

Later in the afternoon, the President resumed receiving callers. In-between, he worked on state papers and conferred with officials.

He directed acting Secretary of Finance Alfredo Pio de Roda, Jr. and Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina to expedite the resolution of cases filed against Customs officials and employees.

The President issued the directive upon receipt, of a list of 67 customs officials and men who had been administratively charged for various offenses, ranging from violations of office regulations to dishonesty.

August 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS flew to PAF Basa Air Base in Floridablanca, Pampanga, to speak as guest of honor at the ceremonies marking the 23rd anniversary of the base.

He left Manila at mid-morning and arrived at the base at about 11 a.m. He was received with full military honors, including a 21-gun salute, and trooped the line after the parade and review.

In his speech, he asked the air force to maintain its standards of excellence as well as pursue other activities aimed at directly helping the poor and dispossessed in addition to keeping its defense responsibility.

After the ceremonies, the President had lunch at the base with the guests and officers of the 5th Fighter Wing, then flew back to Manila to keep another engagement.

Upon arrival at the Nichols Air Base, the President motored straight for the Philippine Navy headquarters on Roxas boulevard, where he was also guest of honor at the rites celebrating the 10th anniversary of the Naval Operating Forces.

Again, the Chief Executive asked the navy to fulfill all its missions, keep its units in sharp trim, while also contributing to the civic action program which seeks to enhance the improvement of socio-economic conditions, especially in the rural areas.

Returning to Malacañang, the President rested briefly then attended to his desk work.

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated on desk work. In a memorandum circular to all heads of departments, bureaus, agencies and other instrumentalities of the government, the President warned government officials and employees that he would impose severe penalty, including dismissal from office, on those who would violate his orders against the use of smuggled products.

The President said in his circular that government men, especially those at the top, must set the example in the continuing drive against the use of smuggled goods.

Enjoining the cooperation of private citizens in the drive against the use of smuggled goods, the President emphasized that “traffic in smuggled goods cannot endure if our citizenry voluntarily desisted from buying, possessing or using smuggled products.”

August 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed the Constitutional Convention Bill at high noon, with Congress leaders present, thus ending the speculation on whether he would or would not give due course to the law.

Earlier, the President threshed out the pending urgent bills in Congress with the same legislative leaders, during which he urged that a caucus of legislators determine the order of priorities for acting on measures which will be placed before a third special session of Congress.

Present at the meeting and at the signing of the charter bill were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, acting Speaker Jose M. Aldeguer, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senators Arturo M. Tolentino, Dominador Aytona, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Lorenzo Teves; Reps. Natalio P. Castillo of Bohol and Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan.

In a day heavy with callers, the President received:

1. The Philippine Swimming team which participated in the Pesta Sukaa (first anniversary fete of Singapore) program, who paid a courtesy call. The team came home with 53 medals—16 gold, 24 silver and 13 bronze, winning an overall second place in the swimming events.

Those who called were Edwin Borja, Doe Mlari, Mazir Mikara, Mustan Radji, Paulo Pabalan, Noel Lozada, Carlos Brosas, Edgar Borja, Grace Luna, Susan Pajar, Luz Arzaga, Christine Velarte, and Greg Colmenares. They were accompanied by Jes Borja, coach; Norma Villarete, Lorenzo Guarin and Philip Monserrat.

2. Officers of the Fulbright Scholars Association, whom the President inducted. The group pledged to help bring to the people salient issues involved in the charter convention. Those who called were Dr. Gabriel Carreon, president; Antonio Arizabal, Jr., vice president; Minda Luz Loreda, secretary; Edna Montano de la Cruz, treasurer; Prof. Redentor Romero, Paulo Campos, Eva R. Gonzales, Dolores F. Hernandez, Serafin Quiazon, Silvestre Sarmiento, Raul de Guzman and Artemio D. Dolor.

3. C. J. Leedham, Far East representative of Leigh Instruments, who presented the President with a downed plane location indicator. He was accompanied by Canadian Consul General J. L. Mutter, Consul B. A. Gagosz and Mike Campos, president of the Liberty Aviation Corporation.

In the afternoon, the President worked mostly on state papers. He also received Mrs. Gerry Coffey, women's editor of the Bangkok World, who interview him; and the Crispa-Floro team which won the Presidential Cup basketball tournament.

Before receiving the Crispa-Floro team, the President received a group of 27 American students who had been living with foster parents all over the Philippines in the last two months and a half.

On the young high school students, Debi Wise, surprised the President when she greeted him in fluent Ilocano and carried on the conversation in the President's tongue for some time.

Debi, who is from Laurel, Maryland, had lived in Laoag City and had visited Batac, the President's hometown, and the neighboring town of Sarrat. Another, Joel Lees, played the nose flute before the President, while others spoke to him in the dialect of the region he or she had stayed.

The American students said they were leaving with regrets because they had learned to appreciate and like the Filipino way of life, their educational system and culture.

Filipino students, on the other hand, go to the United States and live with American foster parents for one year at a time.

August 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated on his paper work, with his schedule of visitors in the morning confined only to three callers, Sen. Arturo M. Tolentino, who took up legislative matters; and Chairman Ramon Gaviola of the Social Security Commission and Central Bank Gov. Gregono S. Licaros, who discussed official business relating to the operation of these institutions.

The President acted on several matters of governmental concern, including the reconstitution of a number of state special bodies.

1. Name Bartolome Espino to the Cooperative Coordinating Committee;
2. Include the Central Bank Governor in the Foreign Trade Council;
3. Revise the Provincial Appraisal Committee by putting the provincial engineer in the place of the district engineer in the committee.

Through the afternoon and much of the evening, the President worked at his desk.

To speed up the rehabilitation of the Philippine General Hospital, the President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release the full amount authorized for the PGH in the current appropriations act.

The ₱9,591,631 appropriated for the said hospital in the 1970-1971 budget will be fully programmed, the President told the budget chief, and that the hospital outlay for the first quarter be released before the end of this month.

The action taken by the President was the result of a series of meetings Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and Commissioner Sy-Changco have had with PGH staff and students, as well as the institutional workers of the hospital. The talks were held to find the means of solving once and for all the long standing PGH problems.

WITH only one scheduled visitor and one important conference, the President again concentrated on paper work.

Later in the morning, he taped with other participants the initial presentation of the new television program, "Confrontation," under the auspices of the Department of National Defense press corps, as the first guest.

The President was interviewed by a panel consisting of Tesoro de Guzman of the Daily Mirror, who was the moderator; Filemon V. Tutay of the Free Press; Jose V. de Vera of the Bulletin; and Alex Allan of the Chronicle.

Earlier, the President received outgoing Swiss Ambassador Marcel Grossenbacher, who paid a farewell call prior to reporting to his home office for reassignment. The President also met behind closed doors Undersecretaries Arturo Tanco Jr. and Isosceles Pascual and Policarpio Cruz of the Bureau of Mines.

The rest of the morning and through early afternoon, the President was focused on his desk.

Later, the President briefly disengaged from his chores to view with other enthusiasts the karate exhibition staged by Korean black-belter Bok Man Kim and members of the Presidential Security Agency.

The President then issued a directive to the Department of Justice to verify and investigate press reports that an Intelligence unit inside Clark Air Force Base, known as "Red Patch," has committed atrocities against Filipinos in and outside the base and to report on its results immediately so that proper measures may be taken should the matter be found to have any basis.

The President also asked Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., in his capacity as chairman of the Power Development Council, to speed up the development and utilization of known deposits of natural gas in the country, as part of the social and economic development.

The order was issued after Secretary Melchor reported on his inspection of gas fields, which are believed to have deposits in sufficient quantities to be of sufficient industrial use.

The executive secretary few early in the morning to Isabela where he saw for himself the extent of explorations made thus far, and future expansion programs to be undertaken.

In the company of Chairman Geronimo Velasco of the National Electrification Administration, NEA Officer-In-Charge Pedro Dumol, Demetrio Paz of the National Power Corporation, Director Fernando Busuego of the Bureau of Mines, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes and Gov. Samuel Reyes of Isabela, Secretary Melchor visited the gas well in San Antonio, Echague, Isabela.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered a study toward the evolvement of an integrated plan to implement the provisions of law on the grant of cost-of-living allowances to school teachers.

The five-man committee created by the President, headed by Undersecretary of Education Juan Manuel, was required to submit its recommendation within 15 days.

Cost-of-living allowance for public school teachers are authorized under Section 18 of Republic Act No. 4670, otherwise known as the Magna Carta for Public School Teachers.

Payment of these allowances, however, would take effect starting fiscal year 1974-1975, according to the implementing rules of Republic Act No. 5447.

He broke off from paper work only once, to administer the oath to Brig. Gen. Romeo Espino, vice chief of staff of the armed forces, as major general, in a ceremony held at Malacañang.

The President also inducted Nereo Andolong, former general manager of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, as major in the Philippine Constabulary, on duty with the Office of the President.

Present at the induction were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Undersecretary Jose Crisol, Commodore Hilario Ruiz, deputy chief of staff; ranking officers of the major commands, including Brig. Generals Rafael Ilete, Philippine Army; Eduardo Garcia, Philippine Constabulary; Jesus Singson, PAF; and Commodore Dioscoro Papa, Philippine Navy.

General Espino has been in the service for more than 20 years. He was vice commander, Philippine Army; superintendent of the Philippine Military Academy; and commanding general, Philippine Defense Forces, a position he still holds in a concurrent capacity.

After the induction ceremonies, the President continued to work on official papers during which he issued two proclamations, one declaring Monday, August 31, a special public holiday in the province of Zambales and in the city of Olongapo, and the other declaring September 19 this year as Law Day.

August 31 marks the 63rd birth anniversary of the late President Ramon Magsaysay, whom the President described as “an earnest defender of the common man,” who dedicated himself to the improvement of the public service and “did everything for the advancement of the Republic.”

The President, in his other proclamation, said that Law Day would bring to the attention of the people the “vital role of lawyers in the life and well-being of the nation.”

He stressed that the administration of justice is indispensable to a sound and vigorous democracy, and that lawyers play an important role in this respect as well as in “enhancing the rule of law in our democratic society.”

President's Week in Review: August 28 - September 3, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a memorandum circular enjoining all government officials and employees to strictly observe the provisions of Republic Act No. 6132, to insure the successful holding of the Constitutional Convention in 1971.

In his memorandum, the President called special attention to the specific provisions pertaining to, and prohibitions against, certain acts, of government officials under the new law.

Issuance of the memorandum was one of the first official acts of the President in the morning, before he attended to his scheduled callers. First to be received by the President later was a delegation of Filipino and American high school students who are leaving for the United States under the Youth for Understanding Teenage Exchange Program.

During the call the President was presented, with the state flag of Michigan, sent to him by the governor of the state.

The President, in turn, presented through the group a Filipino flag to the state of Michigan, where most of the 169 Filipino students will go, staying with American families.

The President also gladly obliged when requested to autograph the Barong Tagalog and jusi dresses of the young American boys and girls, who spent the two-month summer vacation, in different parts of the Philippines under the program.

The President also received members of a mission from the Economic Commission for Asia' and the Far East (ECAFE), who arrived in Manila recently in the course of a tour of ECAFE countries in the region. The 4-man group was headed by Prof. Robert Triffin, an economic and monetary expert of the UN.

The missionaries informed the President that they are leaving on Sunday after fruitful conferences with local economic and monetary officials.

They said that the tour was for the purpose of promoting regional cooperation among the member-nations, especially in the economic and monetary fields.

The President later in the evening conferred with Senate and House leaders on the projected third special session, which is scheduled to start September 7.

Present at the conference, which concentrated on the proposed agenda of the forthcoming special session, were Senate President Gil J. Puyat Acting, Speaker Jose Aldeguer, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, and Reps, Rogaciano Mercado, Natalio P. Castillo and Joaquin Rocas.

Also attending were Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and PES Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr.

August 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed optimism over the growth of Philippine aviation, the development of which, he said, has priority rating in the country's overall development program.

The Chief Executive made the declaration at the inauguration of the CAA/PAF Management and Information Center, where he was the guest speaker.

"We are committed to the fullest development of aviation because we acknowledge its role in nation building," the President said.

The new facility, he added, is another forward step in the effort to build a progressive aeronautics system. He recalled that less than a year ago, another modern facility, the CAA's communication switching center, was also established.

Emphasizing on the more important role of Philippine aviation in the rapid movement of goods and people, the President pointed out that aviation is "vital in the transmission of ideas and in the unification of our geographically fragmented country."

Moreover, he said, aviation "enables us to keep in step with the world and to join the space-oriented international aviation community."

The President spent most of his time at his study, working on state papers, during which he took the opportunity to write to Pope Paul VI a thank you note for accepting the Philippines' invitation to visit here.

The President's note will be personally brought to the Pope in Rome by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, who is enroute to London where she will enroll Ferdinand, Jr. in a boys' school there.

The only break from his desk work came in the afternoon when the President drove to the CAA offices for the CAA/PAF Management and Information Center, inaugural ceremonies.

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the nation in paying homage to its heroes and martyrs in a quiet but solemn observance of National Heroes Day.

Act No. 3827 of the Philippine Legislature sets the last Sunday of August as National Heroes Day to afford the people an opportunity to remember and pay homage to the country's heroes and martyrs.

The President motored to Fort Bonifacio in the morning and laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in the Libingan ng mga Bayani.

Also present at the wreath-laying ceremony were Secretaries Carlos P Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Onofre D. Corpuz of Education and Amadeo H. Cruz of Health; Undersecretaries Efren Plana of Defense and Manuel Collantes of Foreign Affairs; National Historical Commission Chairman

In a speech read for him by Acting Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, at the induction of the officers of the Quezon City Board of Realtors, held at Camp Aguinaldo the President again underscored the need for partnership between the government and the people in solving national problems, saying that the success of government programs depends “to a great extent on the citizens themselves.”

The President declared that the “citizens will have to ask themselves whether it is the duty alone of the government to provide all the solutions to persistent problems.”

He deplored the “tendency on the part of the populace to rely solely on the government for initiative and leadership.”

The government, he pointed out, wherever possible provides the impetus, to “blaze the trail as it were, but in the long haul it will have to be the citizens themselves who must carry the burden” of nation-building.

“This is the way a democracy works” the President stated, “both the public and the private sectors collaborating and cooperating toward national goals.” (See pp. 8317-A to 8317-D for full text of the President’s speech).

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of his working day, going over reports and other state papers.

One of the important matters which engaged him was the problem of the implementation of the minimum wage for government workers, and during the day he finalized and issued a policy order which required all salary hikes in the five big government corporations to be frozen till the minimum wage for rank-and-file employees had been implemented.

The President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to find the means for the immediate implementation of the minimum wage and the five per cent increase under the WAPCO plan.

In the afternoon, the President was felicitated by a large group of Ilocos Norte folk, led by provincial officials, who staged a potpourri of songs, dances and skits, in honor of the President’s birthday, which still has to come on Sept. 11.

At about 9 p.m., the President was again regaled when a group of Malacañang employees serenaded him and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, also in connection with his birthday.

The President was still at work when the harana, came, and he broke off to greet the well wishers and invite them into the Palace.

Earlier, the President issued the following statement on the retirement of Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman:

“I have read with regret that my good and respected friend, Tunku Abdul Rahman, is retiring as Prime Minister of Malaysia, a position which he had held for 13 years, with credit to himself and honor to his people. He is one of Asia’s great statesmen.

“Having led his country through the crucial years of its fight for freedom, and having laid the foundation of the new independent government, he has carved a permanent place for himself in his nation’s history.

“He will also be remembered by us for his advocacy and support of the; ASEAN, which, in its consistency has been effective in uniting our nations, in this area into a constructive regional group,

“I am glad’ to know that he will be succeeded by Deputy Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak, a seasoned diplomat, whose statesman ship is acknowledged by his people and admired by all those who have watched his career through the difficult years of Malaysian rise to independence.”

September 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS mobilized all government agencies involved in, relief operations for the extension of; relief; aid to victims of floods caused by the heavy downpour the whole night and throughout the day.

Ordered to undertake emergency relief operations were the Department of Social Welfare, the National Civil Defense; Administration, the Philippine National Red Cross, the Armed Forces of the Philippines, the Department of Public Works and Communications, and the Department of Health.

Flooded areas were reported in España Extension, Caloocan City, Pasay City and San Juan, among others.

In another directive, the President ordered Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-changco to release the amount needed to implement the increase in pay of the AFP enlisted men.

The hiked salaries for the Filipino soldiers, amounting to ₱54.5 million, was authorized under Republic Act No. 6104. The amount would be released monthly or gradually, effective as of last July.

Earlier in the day, at 11 a.m., Mass was held at Malacañang in observance of the birth anniversary of the President which falls on September 11, with Rufino Cardinal Santos officiating.

At mass with the First Family were Mrs. Josef a Edralin Marcos, mother of the President, members of the Cabinet, senators and representatives, justices of the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals, officers of the AFP, representatives from business and civic organizations and relatives of the President.

PRESIDENT MARCOS proclaimed a state of public calamity and emergency in some parts of the country in view of the continuous heavy rains resulting in floods. (See pp. 8291 to 8297 for- text of the proclamation)

Earlier in the morning, the President left Malacañang in a helicopter to personally direct rescue and relief operations and to view for himself the extent of damage caused by the heavy rains.

Even as the President proclaimed a state of public calamity and emergency, the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, visited ravaged areas stopping at relief centers and coordinating rescue and relief assistance from various agencies.

Mrs. Marcos, riding in a military truck, went around the affected areas with son Bongbong, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce. Enrile, PN Flag Officer in Command Commodore Dioscoro Papa, and Leyte Gov. Benjamin Romualdez.

Also early in the morning, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. made an aerial survey to determine the extent of damage caused by the heavy monsoon rains and immediately reported to the President.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a stern warning against the hoarding of consumer goods and the manipulation of prices.in the wake of the typhoon and floods which hit many parts of the country.

The President issued the warning from the Relief Operations Center at Camp Aguinaldo in the morning, even as he announced the shift of operations from relief and rescue to rehabilitation and resettlement.

The President said that the Natural Disaster and Calamity Plan has become effective and that hoarding of essential consumer goods and the manipulation of prices become immediately a crime under the law.

The President said that the primary objective of the plan is to save lives and property, and minimize damage during disasters and calamities. The plan was prepared and updated last March 10 to meet the natural disasters and calamities, since the country is within the typhoon belt.

During the preliminary briefing given by the heads or representatives of participating government and civic agencies, the President:

- 1) Ordered the immediate release by the Budget Commission of ₱100,000 more to the Department of Social Welfare for continuing operations. The President has already ordered the release of ₱200,000;
- 2) Decided to call a conference on flood control for the Greater Manila area in the immediate future with the view to recommending the necessary legislation to the next special session of Congress.
- 3) Declared a moratorium on amortizations and interests on agricultural loans granted by government financing institutions in the areas affected by the flood and typhoon.
- 4) Directed the Budget Commission to submit recommendations for the release of funds to enable farmers to replant crops washed away by the floods.
- 5) Directed the Budget Commission to release funds for fencing the 1,800 hectares intended for an agro-industrial urban settlement for some 400 to 500 squatter families rendered homeless by the flood.
- 6) Issued an order enjoining all local governments to prohibit the construction of shanties, barong-barong and other buildings along estero and river banks, to prevent the return of former residents in these danger spots.
- 7) Directed Land Authority Governor Conrado Estrella to submit plans for the establishment of another resettlement project in Tanay, Rizal.

Present at the briefing were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Jr., Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquio, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretaries Roberto Reyes and Flores Bayot, Acting Press Secretary Lorenzo J. Cruz, Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., Land Authority Governor Conrado Estrella, DSW Undersecretary Estela Primicias-Sindico, NAWASA General Manager Sergio Isada, Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Mariano Ordoñez of the METROCOM; Defense Undersecretary Efren Plana, Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, chief of the PC; Loreto Paras-Sulit of the PNRC; Gaudencio Tobias of the National Housing Corporation, PHHC General Manager Sebastian Santiago, and others.

While at Camp Aguinaldo, the President ordered the computerization of as many government activities as possible in an effort to modernize operations.

The President expressed particular interest in the computerized budget planning and cash management. Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., who heads the PES-DND Computer Operations Center, informed the President that the adoption of a computerized budget planning and cash management would be to move from the petty cash to the cash management system.

President's Week in Review: September 4-10, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a proclamation calling Congress to a third special session beginning Monday, Sept. 7, at 10 a.m., to consider certain urgent legislative measures.

The President issued the call for a third special session of not more than 30 days after a series of meetings with leaders of the Senate and the House of Representatives, during which he was assured that both chambers will act on the most urgent measures.

1. An Act to provide for the financing of an integrated flood control and drainage system for the Greater Manila area, and for other purposes.
2. H. B. No. 433—To amend certain sections of R. A. No. 4860, regarding the foreign borrowing authority of the President.
3. H. B. No. 1056—An Act increasing the rates of import duties on certain articles under Section 104 of R. A. No. 1937, otherwise known as the Tariff and Customs. Code of the Philippines.
4. H. B. No. 1537—Creating the Special Peace and Order Fund from the taxes on travel and securities transactions by amending R. A. No. 1475, otherwise known as the National Internal Revenue Code.
5. K. B. No. 2463—An Act amending Sections 38, 41, 42, 46 and 51 of C, A. No. 466, otherwise known as the National Revenue Code.
6. H. B. No. 475 (S. B. No. 1821)—Amending certain provisions of R. A. No. 3089, as amended, providing assistance to the gold mining industry.

Although the President had originally planned to certify only five bills which had been certified to the previous special sessions, he found it urgently necessary to certify a bill providing for an integrated flood control and drainage system for the Greater Manila area because of the recent destructive flood.

Earlier, the President ordered that a study be made on the management of the Radio Control Office, to find ways and means of streamlining the said office and its procedures geared toward the attainment of its objectives.

For this reason, he created a management audit committee headed by a representative of the PES-DND Computer Center, with the RCO chief and a representative of the secretary of public works and communications as members.

The committee was given until October 15, 1970 'within which to submit its report and recommendation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS convened the Flood Control Committee with Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao as chairman, to thresh out details in the proposed funding of an integrated flood control program for the Greater Manila area.

At a meeting held at the National Disaster Control Center at Fort Aguinaldo, the Chief Executive emphasized that although he had consulted the leaders of Congress who had assured him passage of five urgent measures, he had placed the bill for funding a flood control program at the top of the list of bills he had certified to the third special session of Congress, which opens on September 7.

The committee which submitted their recommendations about two months ago, is composed of the Secretary of Public Works and Communications, as chairman; and the Director of Public Works, the chairman of the Laguna Development Authority, the city mayors of Manila, Quezon, Pasay and Caloocan; and the municipal mayors of Makati, Paranaque, San Juan and Mandaluyong, Rizal, as members.

The President directed the committee to prepare a similar program for Central Luzon, possibly tied with the plan for the Greater Manila area.. The plan should be submitted to Congress as soon as possible, he said.

Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, on the other hand, sought for the revitalization of the National Waterworks and Sewerage Authority and the National Power Corporation so as to insure the success of the program.

The President directed the' technical committee, to study the suggestions and to submit to him its recommendations.

Present during the two-hour conference were Secretaries Syquiao and Virata, Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, City Mayors Antonio Villegas of Manila and Macario Asistio of Caloocan, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes. Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña, Mayor Florencio Bernabe of Parañaque and Vice Mayor Pablo Angeles of San Juan, Rizal.

PRESIDENT MARCOS invited members of Congress, provincial governors, city mayors, provincial and city chairmen of the Nacionalista Party to a meeting at Malacañang during which he reminded them of the provisions of the law governing the Constitutional Convention and enjoined them to comply strictly with such provisions.

He also signed a memorandum circular to officials and employees of the government, including government-owned or controlled corporations, requiring them to observe prohibitions in the Constitutional Convention Act.

At the meeting, the President reiterated the policy of the party that with or without a legal prohibition against party involvement in the convention, the Nacionalista Party will not field, support or finance any candidate as delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

“The law is clear on the prohibition,” he pointed out, “and any question as regards the constitutionality of certain provisions of the law will be left for the Supreme Court to decide.”

As some members of the party sought to raise questions on certain provisions of the law, the President as titular head of the party, and acting party President Jose J. Roy said the luncheon-meeting was not the proper forum for such discussions and that it was called mainly to project the attention of party leaders to the provisions of the law and to restate the policy of the party that it adheres to the principles and provisions of the law.

At the outset, the President talked to the leaders of Congress present and impressed on them the urgency of enacting the flood control bill, which he has included in the agenda of the third special session.

The Congress leaders, headed by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr. agreed that the flood control bill must be given top priority.

Present at the conference aside from Senate President Puyat and Speaker Laurel, were Senate President Protempore Roy, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, other NP senators and representatives; NP provincial governors and city mayors, and chairmen of NP chapters in provinces and cities where the incumbent governors and city mayors are not Nacionalistas.

PRESIDENT MARCOS stated that while Filipinos should consider the forthcoming Constitutional Convention as an important milestone in their nation's history, they should not expect that it would suddenly change the dangers and the perils they face in their development.

"Let us reform the Constitution," he added, "but let us not seek to solve all our problems by merely amending it." Let us reform the Constitution, he pointed out, by "reforming ourselves . . . because that is the beginning of reformation."

The President started his busy day with a conference with members of the Board of Investments, including Ting Paterno, chairman; Edgardo Tordesillas, vice chairman; Cesar Lanuza, Angel Limjuco and Antonio Ayala, governors; which was followed by a meeting with Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and Undersecretary Manuel Collantes; and had separate talks with Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and PANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr.

At mid-morning, the President received the joint committee from Congress, which notified him that the third special session had already been convened. In the group were Senators Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Dominador R. Aytona, and Reps. Fernando V. Pajarillo of Camarines Norte and Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur.

Later in the morning, the President received a courtesy call from the members of local anti-communist groups, who are leaving for Japan to attend a conference of anti-communist organizations.

Headed by Rep. Cornelio T. Villareal, the other members of the Philippine delegation are Reps. Ramon D. Bagatsing of Manila and Fermin Z. Caram, Jr. of Iloilo, Col. Ernesto P. Golez, Social Security Commissioner Inocencio Ferrer, Leon O. Ty, Pao Shin Tien. Miss Michaela A. Montemayor, Arnulfo L. Tamayo, Councilor Jose G. Guevarra, Arnold Segundo, Prudencio S. Atengco and Leon Ty, Jr.

Others who called on the President were local officials and several provincial governors who sought fund releases and prefabricated schoolhouses.

Those who called were Governors Carlos Fortich of Bukidnon, Rufino Otero of Agusan del Sur, Jose Legaspi of Aklan, Julian Pacificador of Antique, Guillermo Arcenas of Bataan, Jose Evangelista of Ilocos Norte, Samuel F. Reyes of Isabela, Amado Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Linang Mandangan of Lanao del Sur, Irene Balite of Northern Samar, Salvador P. Socrates of Palawan, Jovencio Q. Mayor of Romblon and Salvacion Yñiguez of Southern Leyte.

At about 4 p.m., the President left Malacañang to speak as guest of honor at the opening of the convention of the District and City Engineers League, held at the SSS building in Quezon City.

On returning to Malacañang, the President resumed working on state papers, during which he issued a proclamation declaring Wednesday, September 9, a special public holiday in the province of Cebu and the cities; of Cebu, Danao, Lapu-Lapu, Mandaue and Toledo.

He also designated Jose P. Fernandez, a leader of the shipping industry, as Presidential Special Trade Representative.

As the President's special representative, with the rank of ambassador, Fernandez's task will be to promote trade, explore investment possibilities, and make other studies essential to the economic growth of the country.

During the day, the President thanked the government of Australia for its offer to donate "in any kind" $10,000 worth of assistance to flood victims in the Philippines.

The offer of assistance was made for his government by Australian Ambassador James Ingram, who intimated his government's wish to determine the kind of assistance most needed by the flood victims.

In accepting the Australian government's offer of aid the President directed Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano to determine the immediate needs of the victims and communicate these to the Australian ambassador.

PRESIDENT MARCOS was kept busy by state business and callers during most of the morning in Malacañang, as well as outside when later he drove out to attend a caucus of leaders called by Senate President' Gil J. Puyat, president of the Nacionalista Party.

Leading the callers at Malacañang in the morning was Vice President Fernando Lopez, who has just returned from a conference on Asian productivity in Japan. Vice President Lopez was accompanied by members of the Philippine delegation to the conference. A chairman, he submitted his report on the meeting to the President.

Accompanying Lopez were Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr. of the Presidential Economic Staff and Jose T. Pardo.

During the call, the President asked Vice President Lopez to make a survey of the toll the floods took in Central Luzon and determine how the government could speedily help those who suffered heavy losses.

Also just back from abroad were Reps. Carmelo Barbero and Nicanor Yñiguez, who called on the President to report on their trip. The two representatives visited Soviet Russia and Czechoslovakia where they looked into the business climate and the possibility of trade ties with the Philippines.

Except for the meeting of NP leaders, the President spent the rest of his working day close to his desk, studying reports and acting on other official business.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Directed Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz to set aside that portion of the Tala Estate needed for a hospital and housing site for Hansenites.

The President further directed the health secretary to turn over to the National Housing Corporation and the People's HomeSite and Housing Corporation the remaining area of the estate for development as a low-cost housing area.

2. Instructed Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano to prepare a legislative proposal which would require business entities employing 1,000 or more workers to include in their work force handicapped individuals who possess special skills.

PRESIDENT MARCOS was engaged by conferences, callers and the usual paper work, but found time to make a quick visit at mid-morning to Santa Ana, in Manila, to look over the working model for the proposed Central Luzon flood control project.

Accompanied by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., the President was an interested listener as Director of Public Works Alejandro Deleña explained the project to him.

Back in Malacañang at about 11 a.m., the President started receiving visitors. Among the first to call on him was Argentine Ambassador Marco Aurelio Lino Benitez, who called to say goodbye, preparatory to his departure for his home office after completing his tour of duty here. The first envoy of his country assigned to Manila the ambassador came with his daughter. He gave the President a book, "Martin Fierro," as a memento.

Another envoy, Ambassador B. Deva Rao of India, also called to consult the President on matters of mutual interest to the Philippines and India.

Later in the day, the President conferred with leaders of the Bicol region. In the group were Reps. Amando Cope, Carlos Imperial and Roberto Sabido of Albay; Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte, Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur, and Rafael Aquino of Sorsogon; Governors Jose Estevez of Albay, Nicolas Pardo of Camarines Norte, Armando Cladera of Camarines Sur, and Vicente Alberto of Catanduanes; and City Mayors Jose Villanueva of Iriga and Gregorio Imperial of Legaspi.

Headed by Mrs. Erlinda Rigor, the group presented the President with century old literary and historical books. Dr. Jose Añonuevo, the President's former history professor, made the presentation.

Later, the President was among those who enjoyed the program of Ibanag folk dances, songs and other cultural presentations indigenous to the region. The troupe brought the show to the Palace, as its offering in connection with the President's birthday.

The Chief Executive also received some 109 graduating cadets of the Philippine Military Academy, who called at Malacañang to pay their respects in connection with his birthday.

He told the group to have pride in the "glorious past and uphold the fine traditions" of the country.

During the day, the President announced the amicable settlement of the ten-year boundary dispute between the Paper Industries Corporation of the Philippines (PICOP) and the Consuelo V. Calo Lumber Industries in Mindanao.

Counsel of both parties signed an agreement during a meeting today at the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources conference room. The accord ended the claims of the CVC and PICOP on a 14,000-hectare forest area in Agusan del Sur.

The agreement called for recognition by CVC of the boundary lines established by Presidential warranties, and was arrived at to "uphold the commitments made by the government of the Philippines arising from the Presidential warranties" in favor of PICOP and its fully-owned affiliate, the Bislig Bay Lumber Company, Inc.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent a good part of the day outside of Malacañang, first when he attended the Loyalty Day ceremonies at Camp Aguinaldo and second when he flew to the resettlement area for squatters and refugees from the flood in Carmona, Cavite.

The President was the center of the traditional pledge of loyalty of the armed forces to their commander-in-chief. Usually held on the eve of the President's birthday, the ceremonies went off with precision, and included a parade and review by composite crack troops of the armed services, and a flyby by the air force. After the rites, he immediately took off for Carmona to inspect the site for the resettled, refugees from the flood and squatters moved from the Greater Manila area.

The President brought with him to Carmona the food prepared for guests at the AFP rites, and shared a snack with the inhabitants of the place. He asked that any other food meant to celebrate his birthday be sent on to the Carmona resettlement area for the residents there.

He inspected the facilities already put up at the site, including schoolrooms, dwellings, and a power plant. He was briefed on other plans, such as the deep wells which will give the area potable water supply.

Other government officials with the President were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano, PHHC General Manager Sebastian Santiago, Cavite Governor Delfin N. Montaña, Carmona Mayor Cesar Casal and representatives of several government and private organizations connected with the relocation program.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS celebrated his 53rd birth anniversary quietly in Malacañang with relatives, close friends and colleagues in the government.

Early in the morning, the President received an overseas call from the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and Bongbong, who are both in London.

The First Lady conveyed her greetings to the President on his birthday and inquired into the health of the President and daughters Imee and Irene.

Later in the morning, the President, together with daughters Imee and Irene, his mother Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, and his sisters Elizabeth and Fortuna, heard mass at the Malacañang Reception Hall.

The Mass was officiated by Rev. James Donelan, S. J. He was assisted by Rev. Juan Bautista, chaplain of the Presidential Guard Battalion.

After the Mass, the President gave a luncheon for his guests.

In an interview with the radio-press, the President said, "On my birthday I usually do an assessment of the past year, of what has happened to me and what I have done, where I have committed mistakes and how I can rectify them, and what I plan for the following year.

"The past year has been an eventful one, both for myself and for our country. I am quite happy with the way things have turned out. I look to the future with confidence that we will continue to survive the trials before us and to pave the way for our advance as a nation."

Among those present at the luncheon given by the President were: Vice President Fernando Lopez, Senators Jose J. Roy and Helena Z. Benitez, Secretaries Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Blas F. Ople of Labor, Ernesto Maceda of Commerce and Industry, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, PANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr., Reps. Jose D. Aspiras, Roque Ablan and Pablo Roman, and Mayors Luis Lardizabal of Baguio City and Hilarion Ramiro of Ozamis City.

Giving the posthumous award to the honoree's mother, Mrs. Regina M. Alcaraz, at a simple ceremony in Malacañang, the President extolled the young hero saying that the young Alcaraz "died as a true Filipino who should not only have physical courage but compassion and concern for others."

Apart from studying official reports on a wide range of government business, he also issued directives, among which was a sterner policy against those who violate conditions of the contract to operate concessions geared to the exploitation of natural resources on public lands; and the organization of electric cooperatives teams, in every province to help the National Electrification Administration speed up its work.

The President also attended to the screening of prospective candidates for vacant posts in the government, including those recently vacated by officials who have opted to run for seats in the Constitutional Convention.

The President approved the promotion of Antonio Ruiz from first-assistant provincial fiscal to acting provincial fiscal of Pangasinan, vice Emeterio Castañeda, retired.

In another action, the President accepted with regret the resignation of Felipe Ysmal, special envoy to Southeast Asia and Australia.

September 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued concentrating on desk work, and disposed of official papers brought to him by aides, as well as acted on reports, both from private and government entities.

Among the directives issued from his desk was for Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata to look into the reported importation into the country of a sizable quantity of remnants, in violation of Central Bank regulations.

The entry of the remnants, said to be consisting of 757 bales and worth $571,713.40, was brought to the President's attention by Julio B. Francia, Jr., president of the Philippine Chamber of Industries.

In his directive to Secretary Virata, the President asked the finance secretary to take appropriate action on the case to protect the Philippine textile industry.

September 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS stressed the importance of social welfare to development efforts, and recognizing the lack of manpower in this field offered Manila as the site of the Asian regional social welfare research and training center.

The President made the offer upon declaring open the First, Asian Ministers Conference on Social Welfare, held at the WHO Conference Hall on United Nations Avenue.

Later in the afternoon, the President tendered a reception in Malacañang in honor of the delegates to the conference.

The President started the day's work early in the morning with an order to Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., to head a survey party to hard hit Quezon province, to assess its losses from the big typhoon that swept through its northern portion.

After working at his desk through midmorning, the President left Malacañang to formally open the First Asian Regional Conference on Social Welfare.

In his speech, the President welcomed the initiatives to tighten and widen regional cooperation on social welfare, and offered Manila as site for the first regional research and training center for this field of service.

Returning to Malacañang, the President worked for a time at his desk, then received the delegation of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines which formally invited him to be guest of honor and inducting officer when the new set of CCP officers are installed at ceremonies to be held at the Manila Hotel.

In the afternoon, the President was back at his desk working on state papers. He received the report on the typhoon toll submitted by Secretary Melchor, and promptly fired off orders on the rehabilitation of damaged or destroyed buildings, and on assistance to farmers who lost their crops or livestock.

While at work in his private study, the President received definite word from Vatican that His Holiness, Pope Paul VI, will arrive in the Philippines on November 27 for a three-day visit.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent virtually the whole morning at Nichols Air Base, where he waited in vain for clearance to fly to Baler, Quezon with the intention of surveying for himself conditions in the disaster area.

But hazardous weather conditions over the vicinity of Baler ruled out a flight for the President to the scene of the disaster. He set another flight the next day, weather permitting.

During his stay at the base, he observed the movement of medical teams and relief goods and other supplies which government aircraft will ferry to the stricken province. Later, when he returned to Malacañang at about 11 a.m., the President issued; directives to facilitate the movement of relief goods and other assistance.

Through the afternoon, the President worked at his desk as he kept in constant touch with the operations in Quezon, and studied other aspects of the situation requiring immediate action.

The Chief Executive:

1. Issued a proclamation declaring November 1970 to November 1971 as Constitutional Reform Year.

In his proclamation, he called attention to the election of delegates to the Constitutional Convention in November and the amendment of the organic law which, he said, “should be the concern of every citizen of this country.”

2. Created national and local committees to take charge of a nationwide beautification and cleanliness campaign.

The creation of the committees was embodied in Executive Order No. 257, issued by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., in recognition of the idea that “beauty and cleanliness are the basic ideals of all homes, communities and nations.”

3. Approved the composition of the Philippine delegation to the ECAFE/UNIDO Asian Investment Promotion Meeting which will take place in Manila from September 23 to 30.

As recommended by PES Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr., who is chairman of the Philippine committee on UNIDO matters, the Philippine delegation will be headed by Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments.

Still on international affairs, the President set the guidelines for Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, who heads the Philippine delegation at the 25th annual session of the United Nations, on various outstanding world questions.

The President specified that the Philippines will take a stand:

1. Against pollution of the environment, especially by nuclear tests in the Pacific and contiguous areas;

2. For family planning and population control; and

3. For greater involvement and participation of youth in international affairs.

The President also indicated the current mediation efforts of Ambassador Gunnar Jarring also deserve “our encouragement, having in mind the grave dangers that presently cloud the Middle East.”

On this point, the President instructed Romulo to maintain the stance of neutrality, pointing out that neutrality has always characterized Philippine policy on this question.

The President also directed the Philippine delegation to support UN activities in the economic and social fields, which “certainly will be the most relevant undertaking in the lives of millions of peoples, but, more important, prove to be the most beneficial and lasting, of all UN projects.”

UN action to alleviate poverty and to eliminate problems of nutrition, housing, education and freer trade deserve unstinted backing, the President also said.

He observed as well that the rambling debates that consumes much of the General Assembly’s time should be modified in such a way as to expedite assembly proceedings.

As to other specific items in the agenda of the current UN session, the President told the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, “You shall adhere, with reasonable and judicious discretion, to the policy guidelines set forth” by the Philippine Government.

In the evening, he had a working dinner with members of Congress to discuss various urgent governmental matters.

PRESIDENT MARCOS restated the government policy toward dissidence, saying that economic development and social amelioration are still the best weapons against Huk subversion in Central Luzon.

In an informal meeting with newsmen following his conversations with captured Huk Commanders Sumulong, Zaragosa and Legaspi who were brought to Malacañang at noon, the President said that with the recent capture or surrender of more Huks and arms, he looked forward to the early stabilization of peace and order in Central Luzon.

The President stated that the recent capture of Huk chieftains, including top dissident leaders, shows the determination of the armed forces in restoring normalcy to the region.

Devoting most of his working hours on official papers and other state business brought to him as he worked in his study, the President broke from this routine only three times.

The first was when he conferred an award on departing Argentine Ambassador Marco Aurelio Benitez the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Lakan.

The award was conferred on Ambassador Benitez for his contributions to the strengthening of international relations, particularly between the Philippines and Argentina.

Specifically, the President pointed to Ambassador Benitez’s efforts to win his government’s support for Philippine proposals in the United Nations and other international conferences, thus rendering this country a great service.

Following the award ceremonies, the President received a group of mayors and other local officials of Davao del Norte, during which he enjoined local executives to listen to valid grievances from the people but cautioned them against abdicating their authorities, particularly to radical elements.

His last break from his desk work came when he interrogated three ranking Huks captured by the army, including No. 2 Huk Commander Sumulong.

From there and all through the day, the President continued to work on state papers.

He issued a proclamation declaring all watersheds and lakes within water reservations as game refuge and bird sanctuaries.

Consistent with the proclamation, the hunting, taking or killing of wildlife within said watersheds, lakes and inland waters, specified in Republic Act, 2590, as amended, are prohibited.

The President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation of 52 nominations to posts in the foreign service. (See p. 8738 for list of nominees.)

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent the whole morning at the stricken areas in Quezon, which bore the brunt of Typhoon Pitang, to survey the relief operations going on and further look into the needs of the victims.

Flying from Manila in a small plane, the President took along with him his Cabinet, so that any requirements which the Cabinet could meet would be immediately understood and coordinated with the other members of his official family.

Arriving at Casiguran at mid-morning, the President first attended a Thanksgiving Mass at the town church, the only building still standing, then toured the town. He issued several directives during the public meeting which occurred spontaneously in the town.

With the President on the trip to Quezon were Gov. Anacleto Alcala of Quezon, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio M. Feliciano, Acting Press Secretary Lorenzo J. Cruz, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Acting Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoile, Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., PACD Administrator Rosendo Marquez, Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, and Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP Chief of staff.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS further tightened the anti-smuggling drive by creating the National Action Committee on Anti-Smuggling Affairs (NACASA), which will coordinate the functions of the different agencies of the government engaged in anti-smuggling activities.

The President formed the committee after it was noted that gaps and inadequacies have hampered the anti-smuggling efforts of the government. Particularly noted was the weakness in intelligence, operations, apprehensions, prosecution and disposition of smuggling cases.

The executive order specified that the committee will be composed of the Commissioner of Customs, the chairman of the Anti-Smuggling Action Center, a representative each of the Secretary of Justice, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, AFP chief of staff, and such other government entities that the committee may call, and the commandant of the Coast Guard.

The committee will elect from among its members the chairman, who will have a term of three months. Then a new chairman will be elected with the same tenure.

The committee is charged with the planning, programming, implementation, direction and supervision of the combined government agencies involved in the anti-smuggling drive.

It will also conduct joint investigation and prosecution of all cases involving violations of existing laws, rules and regulations on smuggling throughout the country.

The committee will have a permanent secretariat at the ASAC office to be composed of a secretary and two assistants provided by the ASAC. The secretariat's functions are to:

1. Maintain liaison among the members of the committee;
2. Attend to the implementation and follow-up of the decisions of the committee;
3. Maintain the records and files of the committee; and
4. Prepare and submit such reports as the action committee may direct.

The President had only one caller in the morning, Rufino Cardinal Santos, with whom he had a brief talk on the forthcoming papal visit.

The rest of the day was devoted by the President to his desk work, in the course of which he signed the executive order creating the National Action Committee on Anti-Smuggling Affairs.

The President also concerned himself with the relief operations in Quezon province, and studied reports of other state agencies on various matters.

In the evening, he had a working dinner once more, this time with finance officials, including Senator Dominador Aytona, chairman of the Senate finance committee. Others at the dinner were Board of Investments Chairman Vicente Paterno and PES Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a quiet day of work in his study, with no visitors on his schedule, and no engagements outside of Malacañang.

He utilized the whole day to study official papers and to act on urgent state matters.

The President named four officials to various city and provincial posts, namely:

1. Dr. Rufmo Ynzon, as acting city health officer of Puerto Princesa City.
2. Dr. Adelina Mil, as acting city superintendent of schools of San Carlos City (Pangasinan).
3. Roldan Alba, as acting provincial treasurer of Abra, and
4. Vicente Lopez, as acting city engineer of San Jose City.

The President also issued a proclamation authorizing the Knights of Rizal to conduct a national educational and fund campaign during the period November 30, 1970 through May 30, 1971.

The Order of the Knights of Rizal has for its primary objective the training and molding of Filipino youth, with Emphasis on character building, dynamic citizenship, civic consciousness, dedicated and democratic leadership, and enlightened nationalism.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared that as the Philippines modernizes her armed forces, “we shall strive just as hard to make the soldier a warm human being and part of the heart and Soul of our country.”

The President made this remark before the Enlisted Personnel Association of the Philippines (EPAP), at its 11th anniversary celebration at the SSS social hall.

“We are teaching our soldiers to learn the arts of peace, rather than uphold merely the science of war,” the President declared.

The Chief Executive recalled that in recent years, his administration has succeeded in bringing the soldiers from the barracks to the farms, the barrios, the towns, to do the tasks of development.

“We have trained our soldiers to heal the sick, to aid the unfortunate to teach the ignorant, to build roads and bridges, put up schoolhouses, and keep, the peace,” he emphasized.

He also expressed the wish to see more and more of the soldiers responding efficiently and effectively to the needs of the community in times of peace, “when those needs could not be fulfilled by other agencies.”

The President regretted, however, the curious paradox that “while we are exerting special efforts to humanize the military man, to purge our country of militarism, there should be sectors of the nation who would rant against so-called militarism.”

What discomfits certain critics, he said, was perhaps the fact that the military can be seen everywhere doing useful things, sometimes taking the place of civilians in doing civilian duties.

Except for the speaking engagement which took him out of Malacañang, the President was at his desk most of the morning and afternoon going-over official reports and disposing of official papers needing immediate action.

The reports included those from the National Disaster Control Center (NDCC) and from Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes.

The NDCC informed the President of the progress of relief and rehabilitation work in the typhoon ravaged municipalities of Disalag, Dinalongan and Casiguran, in Quezon province.

Secretary Collantes reported that Madame Girl of India has accepted membership in the governing body of the association for Asian culture, which was proposed by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda E. Marcos,, in a speech at the Philippine Day celebrations at Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

September 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS turned his attention to such current problems as sky hijacking, the new labor-management dispute at the Philippine Air Lines, and such development projects as are being assisted by the

The President had opportunity to focus on these problems when he conferred with officials equally concerned about them.

The problem of sky pirates was examined by the President with Knut Hammarsjold, director general of the IATA. He paid a courtesy call on the President in the morning, accompanied by Benigno Toda, Jr., president of the PAL.

Hammarsjold informed the President that the problem posed by hijacking in the air which was taken up at the IATA conference should not only be dealt with by the United Nations but individual countries should initiate internal legislation to prevent it.

The visiting IATA official submitted to the President his recommendations and proposals on the matter and the President endorsed them for study and evaluation to a technical committee.

The President also informed Hammarsjold that in addition to the administrative measures he had taken to prevent plane hijacking, he would seriously consider certification to Congress of the bill sponsored by Sen. Magnolia Antonino imposing stiff penalty for robberies committed in flying vehicles, amending for the purpose Sec. 294 of the Revised Penal Code.

The bill would impose reclusion perpetua to death when the crime is accompanied with homicide, reclusion temporal to reclusion perpetua if followed with rape, intentions mutilation, etc., and prision mayor and prision correctional.

The PAL labor dispute was also discussed when officials of the PAL Employees Association saw the President to press for the early resolution of the workers demands. The group was accompanied by Director of Labor Relations Bureau Amado Inciong. The President asked for time to thresh out the issues with the PAL president.

Those in the PALEA delegation were Fortunato Biangco, president; Eulogio Lerum and Antonio Policarpio, counsel; Egdar A. Lubiano, secretary; and Armando Regala, Eddie Miranda, Isabela Espiritu, Agustin Sarto, Pedro Calderon, Artemio Lopez, Felix Carlitos, Hernando Guevarra and Arthur Tan, directors.

Toward noon, John Hannah, US AID administrator, called on the President to pay his respects. The visitor was the President's guest at luncheon, during which AID-assisted projects here were discussed. Also at the luncheon were local US AID Administrator Thomas Niblock, Ambassador Henry Byroade, Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., Deputy Director-General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential

In the afternoon, the President concentrated on his desk work. He studied reports on the on-going relief work in the typhoon-devastated areas of Quezon province; and acted on urgent matters brought to his desk.

September 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the bright prospects for the nation, with the measures and austerity program of the government justified by the easing of the economic and financial problems of the country.

In a speech at the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines in the evening, the President pointed out that the difficulties experienced in the recent past were not new to a developing nation, that undue pessimism merely aggravated them, and that “our problems are not insurmountable, provided that we are willing to make temporary sacrifices that go with the solution of these problems.”

Toward the end of his speech, the “President was roundly cheered as he announced his signing, of House Bill No. 2175 (S. B. No. 143), otherwise known as the Export Incentives Bill. Before the officers and members of the CCP and their guests, the President reenacted the signing of the measure which became Republic Act No. 6135.

In his speech, the President said that the root problem was not the balance of payments, but the nature of the “development process of a country,” which usually incurs a certain amount of trade deficit.”

The basic problem was in the structure of the external debt, he said, which was financed by short-term loans after retiring previously contracted debts instead of contracting long-term obligations to finance development projects which have “a long gestation period.” (See pages 8963-8971 for the full text of the President’s speech.)

Except for consultations with aides and other officials, he worked uninterrupted, in his study.

He worked through the afternoon, breaking off at around 8 p.m. to attend as guest of honor and speaker at the induction ceremonies of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines held at the Plaza in Makati.

While engaged in paper work, the President expanded further the composition of the National Council for Small and Medium Industries by including a representative of the Philippine Chamber of Commerce in the council.

As originally created the NCSMI is composed of the chairman of the National Economic Council, council chairman; the director of the UP Institute of Small Scale and Medium Industries, action officer and the secretary of commerce and industry, DBP chairman, PNB president GSIS general manager, SSS administrator, and a representative each of the Pilipino Chamber of Small Business and Industries, and the Philippine Chamber of Industries, members.

The NCSMI was created by the President last June in recognition of the vital role played by small and medium industries in the economic development of the country, and in line with the policy of the government to assist and protect the interests of these industries and to encourage and development their actual potentials.

PRESIDENT MARCOS joined ECAFE and the UNIDO in recognizing the limitations of foreign aid and the ever-increasing importance of private investment in assisting the economic growth in developing countries.

The President made the statement in his address at the opening ceremonies of the ECAFE/UNIDO meeting to promote specific projects in Asian countries. The week-long meeting started in the morning at the Manila Hilton Coral Ballroom.

Expanding on this statement, the President noted that both developed and developing countries are becoming gradually disenchanted over the efficacy and efficiency of foreign aid. This disenchantment has been clearly reflected on the flows of foreign aid in the past few years.

The President also proposed that investors from developed countries gear industrial enterprise to regional markets rather than to markets confined to one country.

Returning to Malacañang, the President settled down to his usual schedule of desk work, and in-between received visitors. One of the bigger groups to see him was that of the special committee named to take charge of the observance of Aviation Week.

Members of the committee who called were CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, chairman; J. J. Wolahan and Cesar A. Mijares, vice chairmen, Francis Ablan, secretary-general; Col. Henry Meider and Epifanio Reymundo, coordinators; and Enrique Davila, Miguel Campos, Enrique Zobel and Sebastian Ugarte, in charge of operations, finance, social affairs and publicity, respectively.

Among other callers at Malacañang were Sen. Dominador R. Aytona, Reps. Rodolfo Albano of Isabela, Felipe Almazan of Kalinga Apayao, Emerito Calderon of Cebu, Jose Puyat of Surigao del Sur, and Amando Cope of Albay. The President received these solons separately. They consulted him on problems affecting their constituencies.

The President also sent a message to Ratu Sir Kamisese Mara, chief minister of the newly independent state of Fiji, welcoming the new state into the family of free nations.

Fiji, a British colony for many years, was set for proclamation as an independent state on October 10, 1970.

In extending recognition to the new state, President Marcos restated his country's policy of fostering friendly relations with its neighbors in Asia and the Pacific.

The Republic of the Philippines is happy to welcome into the family of free nations the newly independent state of Fiji. On behalf of the people and government of the Philippines I extend to your excellency my best wishes for the well-being, happiness and prosperity of your country and people, and express the hope that relations between our two countries will be characterized by the utmost cordiality and amity.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in a welcome break in presidential routine, met the young men and women who manned the Philippine pavilion at the Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan when they called at Malacañang.

Warmly congratulating the "young ambassadors of goodwill," the President said it was the unanimous observation of those who had gone to the international fair, Filipinos as well as foreigners, that although the Philippine pavilion was a modest affair, it was one of the best remembered.

Headed by Victor Lira, the personnel of the Philippine pavilion at the fair called on the President following their recent return to Manila after a seven-month stint at the Osaka fair.

They were accompanied by Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda.

Earlier in the morning, the President received Ambassador Yaacob Avnon of Israel who presented him with a copy of the Old Testament in Hebrew and in English.

During the call, the Israeli envoy also discussed with the President certain aspects of the technical assistance being extended by his government to the Philippines in the implementation of the Land Reform Code.

After the diplomat's call, the President met a group of farmers, and signed a proclamation reserving 8,221 hectares of disposable public lands located in Barrio Laac, Asuncion, Davao del Norte for the settlement of landless farmers. Present at the signing were Sen. Alejandro Almendras, Rep. Lorenzo Sarmiento, Gov. Verulo C. Boiser and representatives of some 5,000 farmers who had petitioned for the release of the lands.

Later in the morning, the President administered the oath to Mayor Juanito Purisima of Maitum, South Cotabato as member of provincial board, filling the post vacated by Fidel Purisima who had filed his certificate of candidacy as delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

At the induction were Gov. Sergio B. Morales of South Cotabato, Mayors Honorio Cornejo of Tupi and Irineo Barroso of Tampacan, and other leaders of the province.

Then the President repaired to the state dining hall where he was briefed by the Presidential Action Committee on Land Problems composed of representatives of various government agencies. The committee is charged with formulating solutions to land disputes in different parts of the country.

The President was kept busy by conferences and callers until 2:30 p.m.

Other callers included Shoul N. Eisenberg, president of the international engineering firm bearing his name with headquarters at Tel Aviv, Israel. Accompanying him were Michael N. Fleischmann, the firm's Far East regional manager and H. E. Gabriel, local representative. Eisenberg discussed with the President the problem of flood control in the Greater Manila area, as well as in other sections of the country.

The rest of the day was devoted by the President to his paper work. Among other actions, the President:

1. Authorized the National Power Corporation to increase its service rates by an average of 42 per cent over its present rates.

This would enable the National Power Corporation to initiate its power expansion program aimed at meeting ever-increasing energy demands in support of industrialization, contribute to the total electrification of the country, and maintain efficient and reliable services for its customers.

2. Directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to immediately implement simultaneously the minimum wage law and the five per cent salary adjustment for governmental workers authorized under the 1971 budget.

3. Submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nomination of Secretary, of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, and four other judiciary officials.

The others nominated were Victor G. Nituda, as associate commissioner of the Immigration Commission; Roberto G. Cordenillo, as municipal judge of Panay town in Capiz; and Artemio F. Sanglay, as auxiliary municipal judge of San Fernando, La Union.

President's Week in Review: September 25 - October 1, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCO'S again focused on his desk work, but took time out to receive visitors, including members of the Rizal Society of Japan, and was the central figure in an award ceremony where he received a plaque of appreciation from the country's science community.

Most of the President's morning activities were centered on his paper work in the course of which he signed an order deporting two undesirable aliens, and sent a couple of nominations to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

Ordered deported were Lim Liang and Sulay Chua Lay. Lim and Chua were convicted for murder and robbery, respectively.

Submitted for confirmation were the nominations of:

- 1) Assistant Director Guillermo Batto as director of the Bureau of Research, Training and Special Projects of the Department of Social Welfare, vice Eugenio Jamias, resigned; and
- 2) Mrs. Sylvia P. Montes as acting director of the Bureau of Field Research, also of the Department of Social Welfare, vice Teofilo Asuncion, retired.

Both nominees were recommended to their posts by Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio M. Feliciano.

The President also called up Rep. Salipada K. Pendatun, victim of an ambush, but miraculously escaped injury. He assured the Mindanao congressman that his office will press the hunt for the gunmen. He ordered the police agencies concerned to bring the culprits to justice, and asked for a progress report on the investigation.

The plaque of appreciation was conferred by former chairman of the National Science Development Board Juan Salcedo, on behalf of the local science community, for the President's abiding interest and concern in the promotion of science in the Philippines.

After the presentation, the President received the delegation composed of members of the Rizal Society of Japan, headed by Col. Nobuhiko Jimbo, the society president. The group thanked the President for the government's assistance in making possible for the delegation to conduct research on the life and times of the national hero.

Col. Jimbo informed the President that he and his party enjoyed their visit to Calamba, Laguna, the hero's birthplace; Dapitan, where the hero was exiled; Fort Santiago; where he was incarcerated, and the Paco cemetery, where Rizal was interred.

As chief of staff of the Japanese Forces in Mindanao, Col. Jimbo was credited with saving the life of former President Roxas. He defied the order from higher headquarters to execute the then Col. Roxas.

Others in the research delegation which called on the President in the evening were Mrs. Eiko Mura, Sohta Yamamoto, and Sadaichi Mariya, directors of the society. The group was accompanied by Professor Esteban de Ocampo, president of the Philippine Historical Association; Jorge Revilla and Justo L. Torres, secretary and chancellor, respectively, of the Knights of Rizal.

In the afternoon, the President received Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff.

Gen. Yan was given final instructions by the President preparatory to the AFP chief's departure for Seoul, Korea, where he will represent the Philippines in the celebration of the Korean Armed Forces Day.

Later in the evening, the President motored to the Cultural Center of the Philippines where he attended a performance of an Indonesian cultural troupe.

September 26—

IT WAS a day of delegations for President Marcos as no less than three sizable groups from as many provinces called at Malacañang to consult him on various problems.

The first group to see the President was the delegation from Sulu, led by Rep. Indanan Anni and Gov. Murphy Sangkula, and composed of Deputy Govs. Tuan Mohammed Ali Ligaddung, Usman Polahong, Hadji Adjid Talib, Hadji Nasser Muay, Maud din Senihay, Ibrahim Illid, Salombaton Igasan, Maandong Jailani and Hadji Asip Amilasan; Mayors Dugasan Daud, Pershing Tautali, Andan Indanan, Bening Ho, Asarab Magong, Utoh Sabuddin, Abdurahman Burohan, Abdel Asser Talbi, Ladjapehi Uto-Arani, Yap Tipail, Datu Amiral Kiram, Datu Ayidin Bahjin, Titina Anni, and Agga Abdulhem; Vice Mayors Asem Ibno and Felix Monteron, Jr., Councilor Ammah Lakbo and Kulayan Abian; former Gov. Hadji Hasan Tawasil, and former board member Jana Sangkula.

The group called in connection with the land dispute that some 100 settlers have with the family who claims prior rights to the property on which the former had built their homes. The President decided to refer the question to the courts, in accordance with the agreement reached by the contending parties.

The second delegation came from Nueva Vizcaya led by Rep. Benjamin Perez. The group sought the release of funds to rebuild or replace damaged public works and public buildings.

Composing the group were Mayor Dionisio A. Sarandi of Maddela, a municipality of the sub-province of Quirino, and Diffun Mayor Mariano Pimentel, Aglipay Mayor Nolasco Mandac and his vice mayor, Dominador Mabayo; Mayor William Giron of Dupax and Councilors Agbayani Larosa and Marcelino Periquet of the same town; as well as Mrs. Azucena Sarandi of the school district of Maddela; Municipal Treasurer Restitute Bueno and Vicente Galapon, Barrio Captains League president; all of Maddela.

The third delegation came from Camarines Norte, led by Rep. Fernando Pajarillo, and composed of Provincial Board Member B. V. Eco and Mayors Roy Padilla, Felix Tenorio and Claro Ebasco, and Division Superintendent of Schools A. Portellas. The group discussed with the President local problems.

The President later received Sebastian Ugarte of the RMN-IBC network, who presented a ₱5000 donation to the typhoon relief fund for Quezon province, which staffers of the network raised initially to fund a party celebrating the company's 10th anniversary, but which they later decided to give to the typhoon victims. Accompanying Ugarte were Ronnie Nathanielz and Ed Tipton, representing the network employees.

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved the rules and regulations on the exportation of corn which the Rice and Corn Export Committee drafted and was subsequently adopted by the National Food and Agriculture Council (NFAC).

A copy of the rules and regulations was submitted to the President in the morning by Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., presidential action officer of the NFAC.

The NFAC, headed by Vice President Fernando Lopez, also Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources, has informed the President that the Philippines could export white corn up to a modest, maximum of 90,000 metric tons, worth some $6.3 million.

The set of rules was designed to properly regulate such exportation.

Under the rules approved by the President, the exporter must be a Filipino citizen, or a partnership, corporation, cooperative, association, producer and/or miller, engaged in the corn trade and duly registered with the Rice and Corn Board. The exporter must be capable as well of meeting export obligations as determined by the availability and/or control of warehousing and milling facilities and the availability and/or control of corn stocks.

Piles of official papers kept the President at his desk most of the morning and afternoon, in the course of which he submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 10 municipal judges, two fiscals, a city judge and a bureau director.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had occasion to discuss the problems of Sapang Palay, the resettlement site for urban squatters, when PHHC Manager Sebastian Santiago and Msgr. Mariano Gaviola, who represents the church's involvement in that project, called at Malacañang.

The PHHC manager also submitted his report on the immediate problems in Sapang Palay, as well as on the improvements and facilities already instituted.

The President was particularly concerned about the lack of water sources in the site, and asked Santiago to request the Comelec to exempt from the 45-day ban imposed during the current campaign for delegate seats in the Constitutional Convention, the public works initiatives needed to provide deep wells in the area.

Apart from these two callers, and a later call made by Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Jose Ingles, who took up foreign office matters. The President was free to concentrate on his paper work, which included the report made by a special committee created to study the integrated payment plan for the cost-of-living allowance to public schoolteachers all over the country; and the plans to put up a resettlement site in Montalban, Rizal for uprooted families in the metropolitan area, who lost their homes in the recent floods, complete with arrangements for establishing cooperative farming.

In between receiving callers, the President directed Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and AFP Chief of Staff Gen. Manuel T. Yan to fly to Cotabato to take a close look at the peace and order situation of the province.

September 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with representatives of national and local law enforcement agencies operating in the Greater Manila area and received a number of callers which included provincial delegations.

In between his paper work, the President also met members of the Indonesian Dance Troupe who called at Malacañang at noon to say goodbye before enplaning to Jakarta after giving a series of performances at the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

Accompanied by Indonesian Ambassador Kusno Utomo and Director-General Suwandono of the Ministry of Education and Culture, the dancers performed in Manila following a five-month stint at the Expo '70 in Osaka, Japan.

In his meeting with police agency representatives, the President fired off a series of orders designed to coordinate the operations of national and local police forces in the wake of the recent ambush of Rep. Salipada K. Pendatun and the rash of robberies and hold-ups in and around the Manila area.

The President observed that lawless elements “are getting bolder and more daring” and exhibit virtual “contempt for the law.”

Acting upon the requests and recommendations of the conferees, the President ordered:

- 1) Activation of foot patrols.
- 2) Strict surveillance of known gangs and crime syndicates, ex-convicts and persons facing criminal charges, as well as renewed efforts to recapture escaped prisoners.
- 3) Assignment of local police officers to METROCOM teams, a practice, which had been discontinued, due to lack of METROCOM vehicles.
- 4) The loan of 25 jeeps, ten of which will be for the Manila police, and five each for the police departments of the cities Quezon, Caloocan and Pasay.
- 5) The immediate release by the Philippine Constabulary of ₱80,000 for the repair of 40 METROCOM cars sidelined because of engine or other defects.
- 6) The METROCOM to establish a civilian vehicle pool for police work, the operating expenses for which will be defrayed by the government.
- 7) Official requests from police chiefs and city mayors to import transportation and communications equipment so that the necessary foreign exchange can be worked out with the Central Bank.
- 8) The release to the METROCOM of ₱490,000 worth of communications equipment, acquired through reparations, by the defense department.
- 9) The detail of 300 PC recruits with METROCOM, as a reserve force, and thus raise its complement to 1,800 officers and men.

Present at the conference were:

Brig. Gen, Mariano Ordoñez, chief of METROCOM; Col. Pelagio Perez of the CIS, PC; acting NBI Director Ponciano Fernando; Assistant POLCOM Commissioner Sergio F. Go; Col. Luis Amor of the Peace and Order Council; Cols. Gerardo Tamayo and James Barbers, MPD chief and deputy chief, respectively; Col. Tomas Karingal, Quezon City chief of police; Col. Celestino Rosca, Caloocan City chief of police; Lt. Col/ Fernando P. Angara, Makati chief of police; and Maj. Delfin Francisco of the Pasay City police department.

Other callers at Malacañang included Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, former Secretary Alfredo Montelibano, and delegations from Pampanga headed by Gov. Francisco Nepomuceno and from Pagudpud, Ilocos Norte led by Mayor Constantino Benemerito.

The President commended the Reserve Airlift and Tactical Support Service Squadron (RATSS) commanded by Lt. Col. Enrique Zobel, which is also popularly known as the “Weekend Warriors” of the Philippine Air Force, for its effective participation in the transport of relief supplies and the mercy missions it undertook in the wake of the typhoon which devastated northern Quezon province early this month.

In his commendation, the President said that the response of the RATSS pilots, many of them flying their own planes, in airlifting food, medicines and volunteer relief workers amply demonstrated the unit's capabilities and its high state of readiness for any emergency.

While at work on state papers, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation 40 nominees to various posts in the government. (See pp. 9187 and 9188 for list of nominees.)

The President also called the following message of condolence to Vice President Anwar El-sadat of the United Arab Republic on the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser:

"I am saddened to hear of the untimely death of President Gamal Abdel. Nasser. With his passing, the United. Arab Republic lost a most distinguished son; the Arab world a respected leader; and the world an eminent statesman.

"On behalf of the Filipino people, may I request your Excellency to convey our sincere condolences to the Egyptian people who regarded him as a father, to his colleagues, and to the bereaved members of his family."

September 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received official advice from Pope Paul VI himself of the latter's arrival in Manila; accepted the donation of an entire village for indigents rendered homeless by the recent flood; and was apprised of the start of oil explorations by an all-Filipino oil firm.

These are some of the highlights of a checkered day for the President, which included attendance at the testimonial dinner for Vice President Fernando Lopez, and an interview with foreign newsmen.

Early in the morning the President received a delegation of Zamboanga del Sur mayors, with Rep. Vicente Cerilles and Gov. Bienvenido Ebarle of that province accompanying the group. Local problems were taken up.

Following the group was Msgr. Carmine Rocco, Papal Nuncio, who delivered a letter from the Pope to the President. The letter formally apprised the President of the arrival, on Nov. 27, of the Pope in Manila. The Nuncio also discussed aspects of the preparations for Pope Paul's visit.

After his meeting, the President shortly received prominent members of the local Chinese community, who made a formal turn-over of the initial check covering the construction of the Filipino-Chinese Friendship Village, which is being donated for the purpose of providing homes for squatters and other indigents whose homes were destroyed by the recent floods.

The group was headed by Antonio Roxas Chua, chairman of the board in charge of the project.

Next to call was the group representing the Philippine Oil Co., who informed the President that the firm is now completely Filipinized and is ready to start probing for oil deposits in waters just off Palawan. In the group were Jose Ma. Soriano, Earl Taylor, Joven Ibasetas, Mario Nieto and Sebastian Ugarte.

Other callers included Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella; and Reps. Rodolfo Albano of Isabela, Emerito Calderon of Cebu, Expedito Leviste of Batangas, Gaudencio Beduya of Cebu, Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, and Sen. Rene Espina. The solons took up problems in their constituencies.

In the afternoon, the President sat down with foreign correspondents for an interview, after which he received Rep. William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental.

The President also named Ambassador Yusup Abubakar and Reps. Mohammad Ali Dimaporo and Jose D. Aspiras as official representatives of the Philippines at the funeral of President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic. President Nasser succumbed Monday to a heart attack.

Among other actions, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the names of nine nominees to various government posts (See pp. 9187 and 9188 for list of nominees) as well as ordered a speed-up of the dispersal program for prisoners so as to minimize problems from overcrowding at the national penitentiary in Muntinlupa, Rizal.

In a series of directives to Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos and Director of Prisons Alejo Santos, the President also, ordered the updating and revision of the classification of prisoners, the segregation of maximum risk prisoners from the minimum and medium risk inmates.

In the evening, he went to the Manila Hilton for the dinner honoring Vice President Fernando Lopez on his silver jubilee as a public servant, where he participated in the presentation of awards to the honoree.

October 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS defined the challenge of the seventies to the nation as a many-sized task to be met simultaneously, notably the development of the economy, the redress of society, and the enrichment of culture.

This challenge, he said, is “a challenge to intelligence and imagination” and that what may cripple the country is not the difficulties in resources or other areas, but “the way we view our difficulties.”

Speaking as guest of honor at the opening of the 22nd national convention of the Philippine Jaycees, held at the Rizal Theatre in Makati, Rizal in the morning, the President projected the problems and requirements of the seventies and the years beyond, and asked that the nation be prepared to meet a many-headed and simultaneous challenge which the times impose on this country as on other countries.

Returning to Malacañang about 12 noon, the President began receiving callers. Among, the first to see him was the UN Undersecretary C. V. Narasimhan, who made a stopover here enroute to Tokyo and New York.

Other callers were officials of the Flying Tiger Airline, who paid a courtesy call, during which they informed the President that the airline is specially interested in carrying local exports to markets abroad. In the group were Wayne Hoffman and George Zettler, chairman and vice president, respectively, of the FTA.

Finally, the President discussed with officials ‘of the Confederation of Union in the Sugar Industry the social amelioration fund established for workers by industry leaders. The unionists said that many planters and millers had, failed to abide by the agreement. The President then suggested that the fund be made to stick through legislation, and pledged to certify to the regular session of Congress next year a bill to that effect.

In the afternoon, the President once more emerged from Malacañang to address the graduation rites of the NACIDA. Technological and Development Training Center in Marikina, Rizal. He told the graduates that NACIDA enterprises are substantially helping the economy and should be further pursued, to expand and intensify its activities.

Exuding optimism over the bright future of the NACIDA projects in the country, the President said, “I direct this afternoon all government offices which need any of the things produced by the NACIDA to buy them directly from the NACIDA manufacturers.

He also pledged to utilize the powers of the presidency to help NACIDA, and to have government offices patronize directly, its products, as well as support NACIDA ventures so that these will continue to flourish and progress.

At the same time, the President conveyed to Japan through Ambassador Toshio Urabe, the gratitude of the Philippine government for the assistance extended by that government to the project in the form of machinery and equipment, as well as experts and specialists in various fields.

Returning to Malacañang, the President resumed his interrupted stint at his desk. He worked through early evening on state papers.

Informed of the strong earthquake that badly hit Batanes, the Chief Executive ordered the speedy delivery of relief aid.

He directed:

1. The dispatch of Philippine Air Force plane with rice and other relief goods to Basco, the province's capital.
2. That additional supplies be shipped aboard Philippine Navy ship.
3. The Department of Social Welfare to send through the PN ship, LSM-68, 1000 sacks of rice to the Batanes Red Cross for distribution to the earthquake victims.

The President, through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., also requested the United States Coast Guard to fly to Basco the halasone tablets earlier requested by Gov. Silvino Agudd.

President's Week in Review: October 2-8, 1970

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of the morning at his desk working on state papers, then at about half past noon he motored to the Manila International Airport, along with children Imee and Irene, to meet the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, who was scheduled to arrive from the United States at about 1:30 p.m.

The President went to the MIA early so that he could also be on hand to welcome back Salvador del Rosario, who won the gold medal in his weightlifting class. On meeting the first Filipino to win first place in an international weightlifting tilt, the President said that it was a feat which gave the country great prestige.

As soon as the PAL jet, Sampaguita, came to a halt at the MIA main apron, the President and his children, as well as his mother, Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, boarded the plane. Shortly, they emerged with the First Lady.

From the MIA, the President accompanied Mrs. Marcos to the Nayong Pilipino, where she cut the ribbon opening the exhibit of ceramics at the Vigan House and presented the awards to the winners of the annual cleanliness and beautification contest.

During the day, the President designated Eliseo V. Villamor as acting undersecretary of commerce, vice Fernando Campos, who resigned to run for a seat at the Constitutional Convention.

At the same time, the Chief Executive submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nomination of Prescilio G. Evangelista as municipal judge of Lingayen, Pangasinan.

October 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed deep satisfaction over the findings of a consortium of banks which met on October 1-2, in Paris to consider the establishment of a consultative group in the Philippines. He said such findings confirmed his optimism about the country's accelerated economic growth.

The President took particular notice of the communique issued at the end of the meeting under the chairmanship of the World Bank which said that "given the difficult balance of payment situation (of the Philippines), it was noted that for the next few years, investment and growth targets indicated in the four-year economic plan were modest in relation to Philippine long-run capabilities."

He added that his optimism over the government's four-year plan has been confirmed by the consensus reached by the participants to the conference that "the present, financial difficulties (of the Philippines) could be overcome within a fairly short period and economic growth thereafter could be accelerated."

The President said "that findings of the Paris conference should now help us to renew and strengthen our support for the economic strategies and policies of the government since it cannot now be denied that there remains a strong confidence in those strategies and policies among those have been our creditors and who continue to stand ready to help us out."

The Chief Executive made these statements upon receiving the first report from Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata on the Paris meeting.

Receiving no callers, the President spent the day going over progress reports submitted by various departments, and other state papers needing Presidential action.

In the morning, the President, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda E. Marcos, motored to the Santuario de San Jose at Greenhills, Mandaluyong, Rizal where he and Mrs. Marcos stood as sponsors at the wedding of Leonardo Perez, Jr., son of the senator.

He was back at Malacañang shortly before noon.

In the afternoon, the President issued a proclamation declaring the period from December 7 through 31, this year, as "Philippine Jaycee Week."

In proclaiming the Philippine Jaycee Week, the Chief Executive hailed the Philippine Jaycee as a voluntary organization of young men working together on organized civic projects and in creating a sound business milieu conducive to civic improvement, social amelioration and economic progress.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent the day quietly at Malacañang with members of his family.

In the afternoon, the President spent some time in his private study working on official papers.

October 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS submitted to the Commission on Appointments the names of four nominees to various posts in the government.

Heading the list of new nominees is Jose M. Crisol, as undersecretary for home defense affairs.

The other nominees are Jose B. Rongo, Jr. as city treasurer ,of La Carlota City; Sergio Y. Nazareno as municipal judge of Tagbina, Surigao del Sur; and Milagros C. Martatez as clerk of court in the Court of First Instance of Davao del Norte, with official station at Tagum.

The President also designated Demetrio T. Wendam as acting assistant director of patents, Department of Commerce and Industry.

The President spent most of his working hours in his study, going over reports from various departments of the government, and attended to other matters of state, including the awarding of lots in Sapang Palay.

The President asked the Board of Directors of the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation to meet immediately to discuss pricing of lots in the Sapang Palay resettlement site.

Through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., the President authorized a representative of the Sapang Palay residents to attend the board meeting, to inform the board of the residents' views on lot pricing.

Some residents of Sapang Palay headed by Bernardo Dimalanta were received at Malacañang by Secretary Melchor and Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked mostly at his desk, being slightly indisposed, and under doctor's orders to confine himself to light exertions.

Among other official business, he followed up on the action taken to meet the requirements for improving conditions in Sapang Palay by reorganizing the PHHC board, naming technocrats to its membership, including PES Deputy Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Jr., Maj. Gen. Gaudencio Tobias (ret.) of the National Housing Corporation, Administrator Gilberto Teodoro of the Social Security System and Undersecretary of Labor Raoul M. Inocentes.

The President directed the new board to expedite the processing of applications for the purchase of home lots in the resettlement community, and to have the PHHC team working on these papers observe a seven-day week till all papers are approved.

During the day he also signed the nominations to three posts and submitted the papers to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

The nominees were Jose Catabagan, as branch clerk of court in Branch XIV (Caloocan City) of the Rizal Court of First Instance; Maximo D. Palma, as provincial treasurer of Misamis Oriental; Vicente Osorio, as city treasurer of Ozamis City; and Eleno Kabanlit, as provincial treasurer of Misamis Occidental.

The President continued to work at his desk through the day, but dealt only with the most urgent state business, during which he set the guidelines for filing complaints against public officials and employees by citizens who have observed or known of irregularities in official conduct and transactions.

The guidelines were contained in Executive Order No. 264, issued by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. (See pp. 9394 and 9395 for text of Executive Order No. 264.)

PRESIDENT MARCOS pledged the administration's full support to the program of the Safety Organization of the Philippines (SOPI) embracing safe practices in industry, as well as environmental and disaster control, saying that the government is prepared to provide available materials, resources, expertise and personnel.

In a speech read for him by Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda at the opening of the 3rd National Industrial Safety Convention, sponsored by SOPI, held at the NSDB pavilion, the Chief Executive said that the organization has "an enthusiastic supporter in your President."

Acknowledging the deep involvement of SOPI in the important tasks of promoting safety consciousness and cleaning up the environment, the President said that "a lot of sacrifice on the part of each one of you" is required.

He emphasized, "I ask you to prepare for more sacrifice," pointing out that the "problems at hand are grave and the work ahead will be tedious."

The President asserted that his "own interest in safety as President of the Republic transcends even your own lofty dedication."

The President did not receive callers, being still indisposed. He limited his activities to some official papers, which include the assurance of a proclamation declaring October 12 (Monday) as a public holiday in Quezon City, in commemoration of the city's Foundation Day.

The holiday was requested by Quezon City officials to give the residents of that city full opportunity to celebrate this important milestone in the city's history.

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued to nurture his energies, in compliance with doctors' orders, even as he coped with state business which did not unduly tax him. Mostly, he attended to paper work, meeting officials only once during the day in connection with the demand of public schoolteachers to extend the cost-of-living allowance to their colleagues all over the country.

In the meeting were Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz and Undersecretary Juan L. Manuel, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, and Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoili, and members of the committee which undertook a study of the nationwide implementation of the cost-of-living allowance to public school teachers. After the briefing given him by Secretary Corpuz on the teachers' petition, the President directed that the leaders of the teachers organizations involved be invited to Malacañang for a meeting on Saturday, Oct. 10.

The President worked alone in his study for most of the rest of the day. He did not receive any visitors.

President Nixon's ceasefire proposal and invitation to political negotiations in Vietnam is to be welcomed. It is a sound basis for negotiations and may just be the mayor breakthrough we have been hoping for in the protracted conflict in Indochina.

The Philippines has been consistently in favor of ending the war not only in Vietnam but in the whole of Indochina on just and honorable terms.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS started receiving official callers again, as he steadily recuperated from a throat ailment.

Among those who called on the Chief Executive were Senator Lorenzo Teves, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, Reps. Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte, Democrito O. Plaza of Agusan del Sur, Natalio P. Castillo of Bohol, Herminio G. Teves of Negros Oriental, Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, Simeon Valdez of Ilocos Norte, Rafael Legaspi of Aklan and Romulo Lumauig of Ifugao.

Rep. Lumauig accompanied a delegation headed by his brother, Gov. Gualberto Lumauig, and which included Vice Governor Carlos Luglug, Board Member Dominador Famosca and several municipal mayors of the province.

The President also rescheduled his meeting with the, chairman and members of the board of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association headed by Telesforo N. Boquiren, PPSTA. president, for tomorrow at 10:30 a.m., in Malacañang. Heads of the public school teachers' federations of Manila, Quezon, Pasay and Caloocan cities were also invited as observers on the President's bidding.

Aside from receiving callers, the President, now much improved, also took on a heavier load of paper work. He addressed a letter to Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile authorizing personnel of certain units of the Armed Forces of the Philippines to wear uniforms and bear arms outside their assigned posts, camps, garrisons or barracks 30 days before and after the November 10 election.

The President granted the authority on recommendation of the secretary of national defense and pursuant to the provisions of Section 8 (f) of Republic Act No. 6132, otherwise known as "The Constitutional Convention Act of 1971."

The President also congratulated the people of the Republic of China on the celebration of their National Day.

In his message to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, President of the Republic of China, the President said:

"On behalf of the people and Government of the Philippines, I extend sincere greetings and best wishes on the National Day of the Republic of China. I am confident that the Republic will continue to enjoy peace and prosperity under your leadership and that the friendship of our two peoples will endure."

RECOVERING from a throat ailment which had bothered him during the week, the President discussed the problems of public school teachers in a two-hour conference at Malacañang with officials of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association headed by its president, Telesforo N. Boquiren.

Accompanied by Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, the group which met with the President also included officials of the Federation of Public School Teachers Association of Manila, Quezon, Caloocan and Pasay cities.

After his meeting with the teachers, the President witnessed the formal exchange of notes between the Philippine and the United States governments, during which the latter turned over to the former the five long-range navigational aid stations (LORANS).

Later on, the Chief Executive sent off the Philippine team which will participate in an international shooting meet abroad.

Led by C. C. Castro, the Philippine shooting team called on the President to say goodbye prior to their departure for the international championship competitions to be held in Phoenix, Arizona, U.S.A.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ended the state of public calamity proclaimed earlier covering the areas of Central Luzon, Greater Manila and Southern Luzon.

The state of public calamity in the said areas as declared under Proclamation No. 750, on September 2, 1970, clue to heavy floods resulting from Typhoon "Meding."

The President said the situation in these areas has returned to normal, and evacuated families and refugees have been returned to their homes and/or relocated.

Among other actions, the President ordered four government offices to deal as speedily as possible with a series of urgent problems presented to Malacañang in the morning by residents in the Tondo foreshore area.

On instruction of the President, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes and Deputy Governor Ernesto Valdez of the Land Authority met with the Tondo residents to discuss their problems. They were led by Restitute de Leon.

The President ordered:

1. The Land Authority to restudy for possible amendment the Certificate of Occupancy being issued to the Tondo residents because of certain provisions objected to by the residents. The residents believe certain provisions are not in conformity with the letter and spirit of the Tondo Foreshore Land Act.
2. Undersecretary of Justice Guillermo Santos to convene a committee headed by him, created by the President under Administrative Order No. 212 of March 30, 1970 and which includes Gov. Valdez and Undersecretary of Social Welfare Petra de Joya as members, to resolve certain disputes arising from the occupancy of lots.
3. The National Shipyard and Steel Corporation to investigate the entry of occupants in an area being used by the NASSCO, and which the Tondo residents claim to be within the area covered by the Tondo Foreshore Land Act (RA 1592 and later amended by RA 2439).

4. Director Alejandro Deleña of Public Works to formulate recommendations on a petition that the areas of “Slip Zero,” which is now covered by land and beyond the 100 meter limit in the Pier Zone, the Luzviminda Village and the Isla-Puting-Bato, be awarded to bonafide occupants.

Another consideration being looked into is the construction of multi-storey tenement houses, under the Condominium Law, in order to accommodate as many families as possible within a limited area, and further providing spaces for vital community facilities such as schools, health centers and recreational sites.

The Condominium Law sanctions ownership in common of an apartment site and building, with tenants having title to their apartment units, properly registered with the Register of Deeds and transferable like any certificate of title.

PRESIDENT MARCOS confined himself to desk work as his doctors continued to pace his work schedule so as not to unnecessarily tax his energies. He had no visitors. The President still has a touch of temperature from a throat ailment which earlier had bothered him. The throat condition has improved in the last few days.

Among others, the President signed a new executive order paving the way for the opening of the Tondo foreshorelands to the construction of homes, after the earlier order to construct the rat-proof zone to the immediate customs area was amended.

The President, worked through the afternoon at his desk, but dealt only with the most urgent matters.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Ordered the departments of education and of justice to conduct a joint investigation of a feud between two factions of the faculty of the Sabani State College in Gabaldon, Nueva Ecija, which has reportedly undermined the functions of the school.

At the same time, he also directed the chief of constabulary to instruct the PC provincial command in Nueva Ecija to maintain peace and order at Sabani State College.

2. Ordered the deportation of four Chinese nationals whose continued presence in the country constitutes a menace to the peace and safety of the community.

Ordered deported were Tan Dy alias Chua Eng alias Jose Tan Dy, Sy Puat Seng alias Ong So, Thomas Ong alias Lau Tat, and Venancio Federico.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received visiting members of the Cambodian Parliament headed by Senate President Ong Sun and Senator Chhun Youhak who called at Malacañang to pay their respects.

Accompanied by Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy and Cambodian Ambassador and Mrs. Ly Chinly, the delegation presented the President with an oil painting of a typical Cambodian landscape done by one of Cambodia's well-known artists.

The group arrived in Manila recently from Saigon for a few days stopover here, enroute to Australia and New Zealand.

Other members of the Parliament with the group were To Chhun, Kim Le, Nhek Phonn, Chhor Seng Hap, Sek Samun, Ly Tlieng Check, Tan Cheang Lim and Seeing Thay Kaing.

Also with the delegation were Mrs. Sun and Mrs. Youhak, wives of the Senate president and the senator, respectively, who presented a Cambodian brass vase for the collection of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos.

The President received callers at his study up to 1:30 p.m.

Other visitors included Senator Leonardo Perez, Gov. Francisco Nepomuceno of Pampanga and former Senator and Mrs. Estanislao Fernandez.

In the afternoon, the President worked on state papers.

Among other actions, the President directed:

1. Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to act swiftly on any sign of violence and to enforce strictly the ban on carrying of firearms in Cotabato.

The President, who has been informed that two warring political factions there are girding for a showdown, said the government will take all necessary measures to forstall any breach of peace.

2. Undersecretary of Agriculture Arturo Tanco, Jr. to look immediately into the reported land disputes involving the areas cultivated by the native Tirurays along the proposed national highways from Upi-Muro to the coastal town of Lebak.

3. Land Authority Governor Conrado Estrella to look into the possibility of segregating a reservation for the Tiruray tribe in Cotabato, who are allegedly bound to become extinct due to incessant murders by their own kind.

4. Chief Quirico Evangelista of the Complaints and Investigation Office to immediately investigate the reported exacting of contribution by certain parties in Cotabato.

The President also designated Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes as Acting Executive Secretary in the absence of Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. who left for India in the afternoon on invitation of the Indian Government, Melchor will be an official guest of the Indian Government. He has been instructed by the President to explore areas of technical and economic collaboration between India and the Philippines.

PRESIDENT MARCOS summoned key government officials concerned to hear their reports on the extent, of the damage wrought by typhoon "Sening" which hit various parts of the country.

The President was informed that the typhoon, which left the Philippines in the afternoon, left a wide swath of destruction. The hardest hit areas were the Bicol region and parts of Southern Tagalog provinces. He immediately formed three task forces in the three constabulary zones, to be headed by the zone commanders, to coordinate the assistance work of provincial task forces in each of the affected areas.

The Chief Executive also directed Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquio and Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz to fly to the Bicol region to determine the extent of damage and recommend possible course of action.

The President said he was considering a plan to declare to state of emergency in the affected areas but added this decision will have to await the report of the survey teams.

Initially, he directed the Air Force to recall the aircraft which were flown to Zamboanga and Cebu as a safety measure, and prepare to ferry relief assistance to all affected areas in cooperation with the National Red Cross.

At the same time, the President warned all commercial establishments against taking advantage of the difficulties brought about by typhoon "Sening." He threatened to apply the punitive provisions of the Price Control Law on all those who would jack up prices of commodities in the wake of the typhoon.

The President directed the Price Control Council to field all its agents to keep close surveillance of all commercial establishments and retail outlets who may be selling their goods at exorbitant rates.

PRESIDENT MARCOS proclaimed a state of calamity throughout the Bicol region, except the province of Masbate, and the provinces of Quezon and Marinduque.

Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad announced the proclamation following receipt of the report of the presidential survey team headed by Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes and including Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao and other national officials, which flew to the Bicol region in the morning.

The President mostly attended to paper work, concentrating on reports on relief activities in the areas seriously affected by typhoon "Sening."

He also studied reports on the price trends conducted by the Bureau of Commerce, which he had asked the bureau to submit to him after he ordered a close watch on profiteers who may take advantage of the recent typhoon.

He kept close pace with the movements of relief teams and repair-and-construction crews fielded to restore or rehabilitate public works and other much needed public services and facilities.

The President stayed close to his desk through the morning and afternoon. He rested briefly late in the afternoon but returned to his study in the evening.

President's Week in Review: October 16-22, 1970

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a full measure of conferences, callers and usual desk work, which kept him busy throughout the day.

Highlighting the morning's activities was the presentation of credentials by the newly designated Norwegian ambassador, Lars Geelmuydan Onsager, at a ceremony held in Malacañang.

After the ceremony, the President had a closed door conference with Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, who reported on his mission abroad.

Among the callers were airline executives representing various Asian aviation companies, who paid a courtesy call.

Others were the teams competing in the 5-nation basketball tournament marking the anniversary of the Asian Basketball Confederation: a group of mayors from the second district of Ilocos Norte, who consulted the President on their problems; and a few private callers.

In the evening, the President conferred the Distinguished Service Star on Lt. Col. Angel B. Macasil, commander of the 10th Infantry Battalion, which had been directly responsible for the death of Huk Supremo Pedro Taruc earlier in the day and the capture of Commander Sumulong a month ago. Taruc was fired at when he resisted arrest in Barrio Tibagin, Angeles City, Pampanga, resulting in the death of the country's highest ranking Huk leader.

The President also signed the promotions of Lt. Col. Macasil and the other officers who had been credited with the capture and killing of the No. 2 and No. 1 leaders, respectively, in the Huk hierarchy.

In presenting the commendation and awards, the Chief Executive repeated his offer of a selective amnesty to the Huks in the wake of the death of Huk Supremo Pedro Taruc in the hands of Philippine Army penetration elements.

The President said there will be "sympathy and understanding" for those who will want to return to the fold of law and rebuild their lives.

On other state business, the President directed the Price Control Council to implement faithfully Proclamation No. 761, signed and issued by him, which declared a state of calamity in seven provinces worst hit by the recent typhoon "Sening."

At the same time, he authorized the local chapters of the Department of Social Welfare and the Philippine National Red Cross to make joint purchases of foodstuff for distribution to typhoon victims in their respective areas of operation. He added that relief work will be done in coordination with the provincial governors concerned.

The President also ordered the Department of Foreign Affairs to take concrete and, positive steps to ensure the safety and well-being of Filipinos in South Vietnam.

PRESIDENT MARCOS flew to the Bicol region to assess for himself the effects of typhoon "Sening." Flying with him was the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos.

Accompanied by Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad and U.S. AID Director Thomas Niblock, the President took off from Nichols Airbase at 6:45 a.m., arriving at Virac 55 minutes later.

Even from the air, the appalling destruction was clearly visible, causing the President to compare the sight to a bombed area. The typhoon was the worst in memory to hit the region, local, people said.

The President and the First Lady, who had followed in another plane, were met by Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Rep. Jose Alberto and Gov. Vicente Alberto, and were taken to Barrio Kabugao in the town of Bato where not a single house was left standing.

The President and his party went among the typhoon victims to assure them that “all that can be done will be done.”

At a briefing in Virac, he was informed that in Catanduanes alone, 58 were killed, 5-50 wounded, and 104,182 rendered homeless by the typhoon. Gov. Alberto added that many of the roads were impassable because of fallen trees and landslides.

The President and the First Lady congratulated the people for taking the calamity in stride and working immediately to rebuild their houses. The Commission on Elections ban on the release of government funds had slowed down rehabilitation.

After the briefing, the President and his party motored to the airport where two planeloads of “nutri-buns” were being unloaded. The President formally turned over the shipment to Gov. Alberto.

From Virac, the presidential party flew to Legaspi City where they surveyed the damage up to Tabaco, Malinao and Tiwi.

At well past noon, the President and the rest of his party flew to Naga City where they found that the typhoon damage was not as extensive as in Albay and Catanduanes.

The presidential party was accompanied throughout the trip by Rep. Roberto Sabido of Albay and Rep. Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur and Gov. Armando S. Cledera of the same province.

The President and his party took off from Pili airport at 2:15 p.m., arriving in Manila at about 2:50 p.m.

After a brief rest from his Bicol trip, the President worked at his desk, during which he signed the promotions of 15 state prosecutors on the recommendation of the Department of Justice. Promoted to the next higher grade were Senior State Prosecutors Arsenio Raquel Santos and Artemio Asuncion; and State Prosecutors Tirso Velasco, Salvador Tolentino, Lilia Lopez, Tomas de Guzman, Rene Victoriano, Alfonso Jimenez, Jose Flaminiano, Roberto Lagman, Jose de la Fuente, Alberto S. Lim, Jr., Jesus de Vega, Corona Ibay Somera and Estanislao Granados.

The Chief Executive also designated Carlos Z. Ambrosio as state prosecutor and Manuel O. Berina as city engineer of Naga City.

Ambrosio was formerly assistant provincial fiscal of Rizal, while Berina was supervising civil engineer of the first highway engineering district of Albay.

PRESIDENT MARCOS instructed Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes to convene a meeting of key government officials concerned with the relief operations in the typhoon ravaged provinces and representatives of the private sector to map out a coordinated system of relief work.

The President, who visited the Bicol region with the First Lady, said that the devastation he personally witnessed was so great all sectors of the country should pitch in to help rebuild the homes and rehabilitate the livelihood of the victims.

Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano, Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Undersecretary of Agriculture Isosceles Pascual, Acting Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Romeo Espino;

Philippine National Red Cross Director Loreto Paras Sulit, General Manager Nicanor Jimenez of the Philippine National Railways, RCA General Manager Pedro Rodrigo, heads of the National Power Corporation Presidential Arm on Community Development, and the National Planning Commission; Director of Commerce Epifanio B. Castillejos, and CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr.

Also invited were civic and business leaders, including Messrs. Joaquin Roces and Enrique Zobel, B. Praile of AID and representatives of the Catholic relief agencies.

Upon learning of the death of Rep. Floro Crisologo in the afternoon in the hands of assassins, the President ordered Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos and the NBI, Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and the CIS to immediately proceed to Vigan to personally take charge of the investigation of the assassination. Rep. Crisologo was shot to death while attending Mass inside the Vigan Cathedral.

In a statement released to the press, the President also expressed his condolence to the congressman's family.

THE PRESIDENT conferred with various officials, received others who came for consultations, and fulfilled a speaking engagement in Tanay, Rizal, where the PHILEC plant, a landmark in local electrical industry, was inaugurated. In between all these activities, he worked on state papers.

About 10 a.m., the President left his desk work to confer with Rep. Eduardo Cojuangco and a group of mayors of Tarlac to discuss development and other economic concerns to the province. Sitting in on the meeting were Board of Industry Chairman Vicente Paterno and Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata.

Later, towards noon, the President had a brief meeting with Senator Wenceslao R. Lagumbay who consulted him on problems of the senator's constituency; and immediately after this, the President conferred with the National Manpower Training Council. Among those at the latter meeting were Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, council chairman; Peter Ferguson, expert on trade test and analysis; Pastor Quaal, consultant on industrial training needs assessment; and Guy Loveridge, plant training apprenticeship expert of the ILO; and Rony Diaz, acting director-general of the Council.

In the afternoon, at about 4 p.m., the President left Malacañang for Barrio Dolores in Tanay, where he was guest of honor at the inauguration of the PHILEC plant, a subsidiary of the Philippine Electric Corporation.

In his speech, the President restated his administration's commitment to "a vigorous electrification program" as a key factor in transforming the pace of the cities, and the countryside.

"Electricity is a key element of progress," he stressed in a speech delivered at the inauguration of the distributor-transformer plant of the Philippine Electric Corporation at Barrio Dolores, Tanay, Rizal, where he was guest of honor.

It is national policy, the President said, to achieve total electrification on an area coverage basis, and for this reason both Congress and the executive branch have placed power development and electrification among the priority projects of development.

The program of total electrification, he pointed out, requires the coordinated efforts of both the government and the private sector. (See pp. 9830-C to 9830-H for full text of the President's speech.)

Back in Malacañang, he resumed his desk work, staying at his desk through the evening.

In between conferences the President attended to other important state business.

He asked government financing institutions, notably the GSIS and the SSS, to favorably consider granting loans, possibly as much as a year's salary, to their members, who suffered reverses from the typhoon that lashed the Bicol region.

He also asked the Development Bank of the Philippines to similarly consider the suspension of the payment of amortizations on crop and other types of loans incurred by victims of the recent typhoon.

The extension of loans by government financing institutions to residents in the typhoon devastated areas is aimed at enabling them to start anew with whatever was left of their homes and other property destroyed by "Typhoon Sening."

To speed-up the relief and rehabilitation operations being undertaken in the areas affected by the typhoon, the President named Major Gen. Gaudencio Tobias (ret.) as overall coordinator of the relief and rehabilitation work in the devastated areas in the Bicol region, Quezon and Marinduque.

The President also sent a message of congratulations to the newly confirmed President of the United Arab Republic, Anwar el Sadat. The President's message follows:

On behalf of the people and government of the Philippines I extend sincerest congratulations and felicitations on your overwhelming victory in referendum and in your Excellency's assumption of office as president of the United Arab Republic. I express the fervent hope that under your wise leadership the highest goals of peace and prosperity will be achieved by the Egyptian peoples. May I convey assurance of my cooperation to your Excellency in the effort to further strengthen friendly and close relations between our two peoples and governments.

PRESIDENT MARCOS along with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, flew to Vigan, to pay his respects to the late Rep. Floro S. Crisologo.

Lifting off from Nichols Air Base at 7:55 a.m., with the First Lady taking another plane, the President had in his party Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr. and CAA Administrator Federico Ablan.

He flew to Vigan in an effort to learn first-hand about the circumstances of the assassination, and to allay the anxiety of the people there by easing the tensions which grew in the wake of the murder. The President and the First Lady also wished to condole personally with the bereaved Crisologo family.

Meeting the President at the airport in Vigan were Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe and Major Gen. Romeo Espino, along with Col. Tomas Diaz and the Uocos Sur provincial commander.

After condoling with Gov. Carmeling P. Crisologo, the President conferred with officials present, which included Reps. Jose D. Aspiras, Carmelo Barbero, Eduardo Cojuangco, Joaquin Ortega; military officials, and those who came with him from Manila.

After the meeting, the President issued directives aimed at speeding up the investigation of the case and strengthening the efforts to nab the killers, including the mastermind. He also issued orders on the intensification of the round-up of loose firearms in the region.

The presidential party took off for Manila at about 11:45 a.m., arriving at Nichols Air Base at about 1:10 p.m.

The President worked at his desk and received callers for the rest of the afternoon. Among those who called were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Carlos Ledesma, Undersecretary of Industry Troadio Quiazon, and private persons including a visiting director of Mercedes-Benz, the German auto firm, who paid a courtesy call.

The Chief Executive, among others, directed Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Emile to ensure peace and order in the area by having law enforcement forces react swiftly to any sign of violence and to rigidly ban the carrying of firearms.

The President said that all necessary measures should be taken by the government to forestall any breach of the peace in the province.

Corollary to the preservation of peace and order in Cotabato, the President also directed:

- 1) The Undersecretary of Agriculture to immediately look into the reported land disputes involving areas cultivated by the native Tirurays with a view to resolving them;
- 2) the Governor of Land Authority to find a suitable reservation for the native Tirurays; and

The chief of the Complaints and Investigation Office to investigate the reported compulsory contributions being exacted from loggers, farmers, fishermen and kaingeros in Upi, Cotabato.

October 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was kept busy by an unusual number of callers, many of them public officials, while also engaged by paper work and other state business.

The brisk pace of his activities was broken in the evening when he left Malacañang for the Plaza, where he was the special guest of the TV program, "Let's Talk Business," on its anniversary.

Among those who called on the President was Gen. Jesus V. Vargas, former AFP chief of staff and now retired, and for sometime now the secretary-general of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, who paid his respects shortly before departing for Bangkok, the SEATO home base.

Gen. Vargas, who was accompanied by Col. Jose Reyna, arrived in Manila from Honolulu where he attended the SEATO Military Advisers' meeting, held October 14 to 16.

The President also received a big number of congressman, provincial governors and mayors who took up with him local problems, particularly the need for funds for relief and the reconstruction of public works projects destroyed by the series of typhoons and floods.

Reps. Ramon Durano of Cebu, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte and Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte called on the President to inform him of the arrival of the remains of the late Rep. Floro S. Crisologo in Manila.

The three congressmen said that the remains of the deceased congressman were brought by the PAF plane from Vigan to Manila. The remains will lie in state at the Crisologo home in Heroes Hill, Quezon City, and will later be transferred to Congress for the necrological services.

The President's other callers included Reps. Jose Alberto of Catanduanes, Roberto Sabido and Amando Cope of Albay, Goclofredo Tan of Quezon, Felipe Azcuna of Zamboanga del Norte, Natalio P. Castillo and Pablo Malasarte of Bohol, Tadanani Anni of Sulu, Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur, Emerito Calderon of Cebu, Teodulo Natividad of Bulacan, Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, Nicanor Yinguez of Southern Leyte and Roque Ablan, Jr. of Ilocos Norte.

Governors Jose Evangelista of Ilocos Norte, Samuel F. Reyes of Isabela, Chatto of Bohol and Jose Roño of Western Leyte; and Olongapo City Mayor Amelia Gordon who was accompanied by former Gov. Manuel Barretto of Zambales.

Among other actions, the President directed the Philippine National Railways to extend free transportation to travelers and cargo for two weeks in the Bicol area, in order to facilitate relief work and help typhoon victims rehabilitate themselves.

The President also proclaimed two special public holidays in two separate localities.

October 22 was proclaimed a special public holiday in Tagbilaran City to mark the 28th anniversary of the Battle of Ubugan in that City.

October 23 was proclaimed a public holiday in Badoc, Ilocos Norte in observance of the 113th birthday of Juan Luna who was a native of that town.

The Battle of Ubugan is held in great significance because it was in that barrio of Tagbilaran City 28 years ago where a band of Filipino guerrillas under Captain Francisco Salazar dealt a heavy blow to the Japanese Imperial forces.

October 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated on his desk work, and for that reason limited his time to only a few callers.

Notable among those few who saw him were the scouting officials of the Asia-Pacific area, who paid their respects in connection with the gathering here of scouting executives to plan the Golden Jubilee of the Philippine scouting movement and the Asian Scout Jamboree in Japan.

The officials who called were Irving Feist, president of the scouting movement in the United States; C. Teng, chairman of the Far East Scout Committee and president of the scouting movement of China; Dr. H. Banai, youth adviser to the Shah of Iran and president of Iran's scouting movement; S. Matzukata, member of the World Committee and chairman of the Scout Jamboree in Japan in 1971; Yong Wo Kim, president of the Korean scouting movement and former ambassador to the Court of St. James; Antonio Delgado, vice chairman of the World Committee and chairman of the Golden Jubilee of the BSP.

The other notable group to see the President was composed of the members of the dollar repatriation mission, headed by Labor Undersecretary Raoul Inocentes. The group submitted its report on the second phase of its drive to channel dollar remittances of Filipinos abroad through the Philippine National Bank.

In the group who called on the President were Alfredo V. Antiporda of the Central Bank, vice chairman; Isidro M. Villanos of the Philippine National Bank, Sergio A. Barrera of the Department of Foreign Affairs, and Cresencio M. Siddayao of the Department of Labor.

1) Ordered more mercy missions to Mindanao in view of reports of extensive damage wrought by Typhoon Titang, particularly in the provinces of Zamboanga del Sur, Zamboanga del Norte and Cotabato.

At the same time, the President directed Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes to fly to Mindanao immediately to assess the typhoon damage there.

2) Designated Bruno M. Santos as acting president of the Mountain State Agricultural College.

Dr. Santos served as superintendent of the college before its conversion to a charter status.

3) Approved the commission of Eric Gruaz as honorary consul of the Philippine in Lyon, France; Pablo B. Gatchalian as Philippine consul in Thailand; and Juan A. Ona and Sime D. Hidalgo as Philippine consuls in Hongkong.

At the same time, the Chief Executive had extended recognition to the commissioning by the United States Government of Loren E. Lawrence and Ralph D. Griffin as U. S. consul general and consul, respectively, in Manila; and Yen Tingwei who has been commissioned as vice-consul of the Republic of China in Davao City.

Directed the proper offices to improve the postal system and the customs service, after he was apprised of the complaints against these offices from returning Filipinos and Filipinos abroad. In a memorandum to the secretary of public works and communications, the President directed that "the recurrent complaints of Filipinos abroad about the loss of checks, money and personal items in the mail, delays in mail delivery and others be looked into with the view to further improving our postal system." In another memorandum, he directed the secretary of finance to look into "complaints of some returning Filipinos about alleged occasional harassment by customs personnel in the airport and the piers, as well as petty abuses by baggage boys." The Chief Executive directed that corrective measures be instituted and that report be submitted to him on the matter.

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day by working at his study, then at 10 a.m. left Malacañang for Congress where he joined the solons at the necrological services for the late Rep. Floro S. Crisologo of Ilocos Sur. Accompanying him was the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos.

Back in Malacañang an hour later, the President received separately Rep. Amando Cope and Secretary of General Services Constancio E. Castañeda.

In the afternoon, the President read a message which was filmed by a team from the International Planned Parenthood Federation, in connection with the worldwide drive for family planning.

He then received a group of congressmen, governors and city mayors from Pangasinan, Mindanao and Sulu, who took up local problems with him.

In the evening, he left Malacañang once more to attend as guest of honor the opening ceremonies of the 8th biennial convention of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce, held at the Intercontinental Hotel.

Earlier, the Chief Executive appointed Oscar Santiago as acting member of the board of regents of the Central Luzon State University.

The President also ordered the deportation of a Chinese national, Dee Chee Ping alias Dee Pue Chuan alias Hua Chan, whose continued presence in the country is considered a menace to the peace and safety of the community.

Dee has been convicted by the Court of First Instance of Manila for kidnapping with murder. He was sentenced to death but this was modified by the Supreme Court to reclusion perpetua.

During the day, the President sent the following cablegram to UN Secretary-General U Thant on the commemoration of the 25th anniversary of the United Nations:

“ON THE OCCASION OF THE 25TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE UNITED NATIONS, THE FILIPINO PEOPLE JOIN ME IN CONVENING TO YOUR EXCELLENCY SINCERE BEST WISHES AND CONGRATULATIONS STOP AS FIRM BELIEVERS IN THE IDEALS BEHIND THE CREATION OF THIS INTERNATIONAL BODY CMA WE HOPE AND PRAY THAT THE COMING YEARS SHALL WITNESS STRENGTHENING OF THE ORGANIZATION AND THAT IT SHALL BECOME THE DRIVING FORCE IN OUR SEARCH FOR WORLD PEACE CMA ECONOMIC STABILITY AND THE DIGNITY AND THE EQUALITY OF THE HUMAN RACE.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS was mostly free to attend to his paper work and other urgent state business, with his schedule of visitors virtually blank.

In the morning, he received a group of Manila congressmen, including Reps. Joaquin Roces, Pablo Ocampo and Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, and Frisco San Juan of Rizal, and inducted into office the new chief of the Office of the Economic Coordination, Eduardo J. Rodriguez.

In the afternoon, the President continued to work at his desk. At about 3 p.m., a group of officials from Pampanga, led by Gov. Francisco Nepomuceno, including barrio officials and members of Barrio Self-Defense Units, converged at Malacañang to present a plaque of appreciation to the President for the many benefits accruing to the province from development projects and for the upgraded peace and order in the region.

Among those present were Mayors Jose Mendiola of Floridablanca, Victoriano Panlilio of Porac, Salvador Dimson of Lubao, Eulogio Venson of Arayat, Daniel Lacson of Magalang, Norberto Blanco of Bacolor, Emiliano Candelaria of Mabalacat, Juan Deang of Sta. Ana, Jesus Santos of Mexico and Lamberto Punsalan of San Simon.

The President worked at his desk through evening, in the course of which he directed all heads of offices in the government to adopt proper measures to ensure and facilitate the prevention of petty graft and other forms of malfeasance, and to deal firmly with any employee in their departments, agencies or bureaus found guilty of irregularities.

The President issued the order in a memorandum to all department heads, heads of offices and government corporations, in view of persistent reports of dishonesty and other forms of irregularity in the public service.

In his memorandum, the Chief Executive pointed out that one of the first programs of government of the administration was that aimed at effecting a profound and thorough change in the public service through a vigorous campaign against graft and corruption.

In line with this fundamental policy, the government has since then consistently adopted and carried out measures aimed at ferreting out cases of venality which, the President said, resulted in the filing of various administrative cases, and the prosecution, suspension and dismissal of numerous officials and employees.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had an unusually busy weekend, attending to papers requiring immediate action and conferring with government officials on matters concerning their respective departments.

The pressure of desk work compelled the President to ask Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the Development Bank of the Philippines to represent him at the inauguration of the Cebu Stock Exchange in Cebu City, and to read for him the speech prepared for the occasion.

In the speech, the President sounded both a warning and an appeal to the nation to put an end to conventional politics, as characterized by the maintenance of so-called private armies.

October 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a full schedule of visitors and conferences, capped by the oath-taking of the new Philippine ambassador to the Court of St. James, London.

An outline of the President's activities follows:

- 1) A courtesy call of Andre Kostenaletz, accompanied by Mrs. Chole Romulo, Luis Araneta and Protacio Sta. Cruz.

2) A conference attended by former Supreme Court Justice Conrado V. Sanchez, Rep. Teodulo Natividad, Prisons Director Alejo Santos, Assistant Director Pedro Solis, Court of Appeals Justice Cecilia Muñoz-Palma, Assistant Fiscal Marcos Valentin and Attys. Felipe Kalalo and Manuel Yngson.

They conferred at length on a series of anti-crime measures which, from the President's point of view, deserves top priority from the national government.

The President forthwith directed the preparation of necessary administrative orders to enable immediate implementation of those measures, not requiring congressional action.

3) An official call of Secretary Manda Elizalde of Panamin, to discuss activities of the organization.

4) A call by Reps. Rafael Legaspi of Aklan, Jose Leido, Jr. of Mindoro Oriental, Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Tito Dupaya of Cagayan, Benjamin Perez of Nueva Vizcaya, Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija and Senator Leonardo Perez to discuss specific problems: and by Govs. Jose Legaspi of Aklan, Salvacion Iñiguez of Southern Leyte, Anacleto Alcala of Quezon, Benjamin Palispis of Benguet and Vicente Magsaysay of Zambales, to discuss local problems.

5) The induction of Ambassador Jaime Zobel de Ayala as Philippine envoy to the Court of St. James in London.

Later, the President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release an additional ₱600,000 from the calamity fund to the Department of Social Welfare to augment its relief operations.

At the same time, the Chief Executive authorized the DSW to make local purchases, notably in Cebu, of relief goods for distribution to areas in Mindanao stricken by typhoon "Titang."

The President's directive was issued on recommendation of Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, who reported on the conditions in the stricken areas, following a meeting of representatives of various government agencies engaged in relief work.

The President also set aside four parcels of public land with a total area of 2,934 hectares where squatters and slum dwellers in the Greater Manila Area could be permanently resettled.

Except for the 92-hectare site which is located in San Jose del Monte, Bulacan, the rest of the reservation is located in the municipality of Montalban, Rizal.

In the evening the President was guest speaker at the dinner tendered for him by the Philippine Council of Industrial Editors at the A. Soriano Executive House in Makati, Rizal.

In his speech, the President underscored the basic, thing in development which, he said, is the ability of a people to relate themselves to the requirements of development, and acquire a personal sense of responsibility for supporting and accelerating that development.

The President also discussed the options taken by the administration in the development of the country's economy.

The President declared that if Philippine society is to work, it must have that shared spirit, arising from working together, toward the attainment of goals which, in turn, will benefit everyone.

October 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS again had a series of conferences, plus a full schedule of callers. In between, he worked on state papers.

One of his earliest meetings was with Senator Jose J. Roy, and Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos.

An important conference was that which discussed new moves to combat crime, attended by Cavite Gov. Delfin Montano, POLCOM Chairman Crispino de Castro, Secretary Enrile, NBI Director Jolly Bugarin, and others. Proposals made by Gov. Montano were referred by the President for study to Secretary Enrile and the POLCOM chief.

Later the President conferred with Rep. Ramon Bagatsing and Dean Feliciano Jover Ledesma of the San Beda College on private matters.

The President also received in the afternoon the staff of the Philippine Pavilion at Expo '70, led by Commissioner Victor Lim and Deputy Commissioner Jesus Tanchanco. Also present was the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos. The President commended the staff for a job well done.

Others received by the President were Reps. Rafael B. Legaspi of Aklan, Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Angel Conception of Nueva Ecija, Eduardo Gullas of Cebu, Antonio Diaz of Zambales, Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Gov. Amado Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao and Mayor Salvador Dimson of Lubao, Pampanga.

Later, the Chief Executive affixed his signature to two air agreements earlier negotiated by the Philippine government with the governments of Belgium and Japan, and which went into effect after the exchange of diplomatic notes.

The agreements were transmitted to the President by the Civil Aeronautics Administration through Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes for the former's signature.

The new air agreements were negotiated in line with the government's open skies policy, enunciated by the President last year, which was designed to encourage tourist travel to the Philippines.

October 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated mostly on his desk work, although he had a fairly well filled schedule of visitors and one press interview.

For most of the morning, the President worked on state papers then toward noon began receiving callers. Later, he sat down for an interview, for radio and TV with Ed Tipton of DZHP.

The President also received among others Reps. Tito Dupaya, Rodolfo Albano, David Puzon, Emilio Espinosa, Jr., James Chiongbian, Emerito Calderon, Eduardo Cojuangco, Artemio Loyola, Herminio Teves, and Celestino Sybio Jr.; Senators Rene Espina and Mamintal Tamano; and Govs. Julian F. Pacificador, Jaime K. Gomez, Cornelio Villareal, Jr. and Elizabeth Keon.

Through the afternoon and evening, the President worked at his desk.

Earlier, the President directed the Rice and Corn Administration to insure the stability of cereal supply in all typhoon ravaged areas in Mindanao, and to maintain the standard level of prices in the said areas.

At the same time, he directed the Philippine Navy to assign one of its ships to service the towns on the eastern coast of Davao del Sur, particularly in the distribution of relief supplies.

The President also ordered that any government personnel found using smuggled goods, such as blue seal cigarettes, be investigated and punished.

The President's order was a reiteration of Memorandum Circular No. 386, which was issued under his authority last August 22, 1970 by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.

In that circular, the Chief Executive warned government officials and employees that he would impose severe penalties, including dismissal from office, on those violating regulations against the use of smuggled products.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received many callers and held conferences with a number of officials on various matters.

Ramon Gaviola, chairman of the Social Security System, was among the first to see the President, to submit his report on the recently concluded 17th General Assembly of the International Social Security Association in Cologne, Germany, as Philippine representative.

Gaviola had presided over the assembly after being elected vice president of the world organization. He was also reelected member of the 18-man governing body representing Asia and Oceania.

In the morning, the President conferred with three mayors from Cotabato who reported on the peace and order situation in their localities. The mayors were Esteban Doruelo of Pigkawayan, Nicolas Dequiña of Midsayap and Jose Escribano of Tacurong.

Then the President received G.S.R.B. Kobbekaduwa, minister of agriculture and land of Ceylon, who called to pay his respects, following his recent arrival in Manila for a few days visit.

The President also conferred with Julian Yballe, assistant director of the Bureau of Private Schools, whom he designated acting director of that bureau to fill the post vacated by Narciso Albarracin who was named undersecretary of education.

Early in the afternoon, the President was interviewed by Pouli S. Neilsen, foreign editor of the Denmark newspaper Intelligensia, and correspondent of that country's state-owned radio-TV network.

Other callers included Reps. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac, Alfredo Lamen of Mt. Province, Felipe Abrigo of Eastern Samar and Fermin Caram, Jr. of Iloilo; Governors Victor Masa of Eastern Samar and Nicolas Pardo of Camarines Norte, and Mayor Florencio Bernabe of Parañaque, Rizal.

The President instructed the Department of Social Welfare and People's Homesite and Housing Corporation to jointly look into the possibility of allocating a site for a workshop and an office center of the General Assembly of the Blind, Inc.

The society's request was conveyed to the President through Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, before whom the new officers of the GABI headed by Celso Jamora took their oath of office.

The President also ordered an immediate study of the economic uses bakawan, a local forest product with an eye to solving the dispute over the product between local entrepreneurs and log exporters.

A committee, headed by Chairman Johnny M. Araneta of the National Export Coordinating Center, will conduct the studies and report their findings to the President.

In the course of the day, the President issued an executive order establishing a Presidential Award in Education to be granted to citizens who have made significant and distinctive contributions to education in this country.

Creation of the presidential award was proposed by the national committee in charge of the observance of the International Education Year and subsequently recommended for approval by Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz.

Presentation of the award will be one of the highlights of the observance in the Philippines of the International Education Year this year, which was declared by the United Nations General Assembly to focus attention of member countries on the important role of education in the development of human resources, deemed essential to the attainment of the goals of the Second UN Development Decade.

In issuing the executive order establishing the award, President Marcos underscored the universal recognition of the value of education in promoting a country's enlightenment and progress, as well as world peace and understanding.

President's Week in Review: October 30 - November 5, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCOS had only one break from his desk work, to which he devoted most of his working day, when he met with the litigants in the land dispute which students and other activities had made a cause for staging demonstrations at the Department of Justice premises,

The President met in Malacañang at about noontime the farmer couple who had opposed the use of their land as a right-of-way for the trucks of a logger in Davao del Norte. During the preliminary meeting, the President tentatively inquired into the facts of the case, then set another meeting tomorrow where all parties concerned, including government authorities involved were asked to be present.

At the conference were officials of the Department of Justice headed by Secretary Vicente Abad Santos; Roman Cuison, a logging operator; Romualdo Bhadi, his wife and their counsel; Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Director of Forestry Jose Viado and Col Luis Ridad, Davao PC Provincial commander.

Receiving no callers, the President worked on official papers for the rest of the day, during which he signed a proclamation declaring Monday, November 9, a special public holiday to enable personnel of government offices and private firms to go home to their respective provinces and exercise their right of suffrage on November 10.

The nation will go to the polls on November 10 to elect the delegates to the Constitutional Convention scheduled in June next year.

PRESIDENT MARCOS again concentrated on his desk work, during which he named Brig. Gen. Florencio Medina (ret.) head of the Philippine delegation attending the organizational meeting of the Association of Ministers of Science of Asia, which will be held in Manila from November 16 to 20, this year; and signed the appointment of Apolinario Orosa as director-general of the Presidential Economic Staff; of Placido Mapa, Jr. as director of World Bank representing the Philippines and Ruben Ancheta as PES deputy director-general for programming.

Both PES officials were inducted by the President at ceremonies held at the Malacañang Reception Hall.

Named members of the delegation were Chairman Juan Salcedo, Jr. of the National Research Council of the Philippines, President Salvador P. Lopez of the University of the Philippines, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, and Ambassador Rafaelita H. Soriano, assistant secretary of the United Nations Affairs and International Conferences of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

The Chief Executive vested upon the delegation the full powers and authority to speak for the government at the meeting and to negotiate, include and sign any act or agreement with, the official delegates of the other countries participating in the conference.

In the afternoon, the President met with the leaders of the Free Farmers Federation on the same complaints raised by small farmers and settlers on the resolution of land disputes. He took steps to facilitate the early settlement of these disputes.

The President remained at his desk through the evening- working on government papers and other state concerns.

November 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored to Baguio City late in the afternoon from a pilgrimage to San Fernando, La Union, where, following Philippine religious tradition, he paid homage at the tomb of his late father in connection with All Saints' Day.

'The President left Manila aboard a Philippine National Railways coach, and arrived at the La Union capital at mid-morning.

He motored directly to the memorial built at San Fernando by the people of La Union, in honor of the former assemblyman, Mariano Marcos, the President's father who was killed by Japanese soldiers during the war.

In solemn rites at the memorial, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and their daughters Imee and Irene, the President laid a wreath and offered a brief prayer at the memorial, which was also raised by the provincial government of La Union, in homage to the fallen soldiers of the USAFIP-North Luzon guerillas, with which the President served during the Japanese occupation years, and through the liberation campaign.

The presidential party had luncheon with La Union officials at Poro Point. Among those present were Reps. Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega, Gov. Juvenal Guerrero, San Fernando Mayor Lorenzo Dacanay and other municipal officials of the province.

After consultations with local officials, and a press interview later with Malacañang newspapermen covering his trip, the President and his party motored to the summer capital for the weekend.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of his day in Baguio City conferring with various local officials, including provincial, executives from nearby provinces.

In the evening, the President met with PC commanders of the three mountain provinces, Nueva Viscaya and Isabela, to assess the current situation and the status of the drive to stabilize peace and order.

The PC officers reported that the situation in their localities are well under control, and expressed optimism that the coming election will be peaceful.

Among those who conferred with the President were Lt. Col. Pedro Zafra and Capt. Constancio Lasaten of the 91st PC company (Benguet), Lt. Col. Jackson Alfarc (Nueva Viscaya), Lt. Col. Victorino Calano, officer-in-charge of the Baguio City police department: Capt. Ernesto Venturing who represented the Isabela provincial commander who is sick; and 2nd Lt. Renato Delima of the PC headquarters in Bontoc, Mt. Province.

They were accompanied by Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, First PC Zone commander.

The President also conferred with a delegation of mayors from La Union namely Mayors Antonio Aquino of San Juan, Anastacio Uble of Santol, Mario Nicha of Balaoan, and Jose Macuci of Sudipen, who were accompanied by Gov. Juvenal Guerrero.

Another delegation, accompanied, by Gov. Tito Primicias of Pangasinan, was headed by Mayor Corleto Castro of Bugallom

In-between conferences, the President worked on stale papers brought up from Malacañang for his study and action.

In an interview with newsmen late in the morning, the President announced that he will make available to the Constitutional Convention the research agencies of the government, like the U. P. Law Center, so that delegates may be properly assisted in introducing amendments into the fundamental law of the land.

The President expressed gratification over the fact that private universities and certain, civic organizations have likewise offered their research facilities to the convention delegates.

“We certainly cannot overemphasize the importance of this convention to the future of our country,” he said.

In another official move, the Chief Executive cleared the Fisheries Commission deputy chief of charges filed against him by a fishermen’s group. on the recommendation of the special committee which looked into the case.

Santos B. Kasalan, deputy commissioner of the Fisheries Commission, was cleared of charges in an eight-point complaint filed with the Office of the President by Tobias P. Marcelo, president of the Interisland Deep Sea Fishing Association. Inc.

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with local officials, in between working as usual according to a schedule resembling very much the same norm he follows in Malacañang.

Later in the day, he met with Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and top brass of the armed forces and constabulary, to discuss the overall effort aimed at ensuring a peaceful election of delegates to the Constitutional Convention to be held next year.

Present at the meeting aside from Secretary Enrile were General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Major Gen. Romeo Espino, AFP vice chief of staff- Brig. Gen. Rafael, Ileta, Philippine Army chief; Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, IPC zone commander; and Brig. Gen. Zosimo Paredes, UPC zone commander.

In a new effort to conserve dollars in the country, the President further restricted travel abroad, by government personnel by curtailing even those trips involving no government expense.

In Memorandum Circular No. 404, issued by Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes on the President’s authority, a ban was imposed on all travel abroad except when:

1. The trip is in compliance with an international commitment of the government.
2. The trip would redound to the financial benefit of the country.
3. The trip is in connection with a fellowship, scholarship or training grant.

November 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked mostly on state papers brought up from Malacañang, and otherwise enjoyed the nippy Baguio weather and a chance to relax. He decided to remain in the Pines city on the request of local officials, so that problems in the region could be threshed out with him.

He has scheduled conferences with various officials in the area, while also awaiting national officials whom he had called to Baguio for consultations.

Earlier in the day, the President sat down with newsmen covering him for a brief interview, in the course of which he commended Commission on Elections Chairman Jaime Ferrer for his courage in initiating the drive against so-called private armies, and at the same time announced that he will order the Philippine Constabulary to give all-out support to the Comelec campaign against armed groups.

The President also conferred with Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., who among other things reported on his recent trip abroad.

In the evening, tin Chief Executive signed House Bill No. 1537, otherwise known as the Special Peace and Order Fund bill.

The measure was received by Malacañang from Congress only yesterday and was conveyed to the President for his signature by Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave.

The new law provides for a special fund to finance the activities, functions and program of the Police Commission, created under the Police Act of 1966, and police activities of the National Bureau of Investigation.

The bill appropriates F60 million for the expenditures of the Police Commission from the date of effectivity of the Act to June 30, 1971. This is in addition to the appropriations for the Police Commission authorized under existing laws.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked as usual at his desk at the Mansion House on state papers, and issued directives on various matters, including an order to the PC Chief to meet with the Comelec on the drive against private armed groups.

The President also had two important meetings, one with Senator Alejandro Almendras on the senator's drive against government personnel committing irregularities, and the other with Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda who reported on his recent mission to the United States.

The President, in his meeting with Almendras, offered the government's investigative facilities to the. Davao senator, so that the latter could pursue his probe and file the proper charges.

In his talk with Secretary Maceda, the President was informed six socialist countries in Europe are ready to establish limited trade relations with the Philippines, primarily to purchase the country's traditional export goods.

After his conferences with the senator and the commerce secret, the President continued to work through the evening on state matter brought to his attention.

President's Week in Review: November 6-12, 1970

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued his conferences in Baguio with various government leaders, some of them coming from the Visayas and Mindanao, and others from Luzon.

During such conferences, the President discussed projects which will be taken up after the election of Constitutional Convention delegates, and repeated¹ his admonition to NPs to steer clear of the election campaign, and that if any NP wished to support any candidate, he should do it on his own as a constitutional right not in the name of the party.

And in consonance with the non-partisan and non-political election of delegates to the forthcoming Constitutional Convention, the Chief Executive also addressed a special appeal to all political parties to keep off the: elections as organized parties, and desist from exerting any "untoward pressures on our people in choosing—the right delegates to the Constitutional Convention."

A ceremony honoring the President, initiated by local officials, which included a parade, was cancelled by him in deference to the election campaign.

He also conferred at length with Gov. Jose Evangelista of Ilocos Norte, where the President is expected to vote on election day, Tuesday. He disclosed that immediately after voting, he would fly back to Manila where he would keep tabs on the election returns.

Among the papers he scanned while working at his desk in the Mansion House was the report submitted by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo on his stint at the United Nations, which pertained mostly to the proposed amendments to the UN charter and the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the world organization.

During the day, the President also named the members of the delegation of the Philippines to the 21st Colombo Plan Ministerial Meeting, scheduled to be held in Manila from November 24 to December 6, this year.

Secretary Romulo was named head of the delegation.

The delegation was invested by the President with full powers and the authority to meet and confer with their peers and negotiate, conclude and sign with them any acts or agreements adopted during the meeting.

November 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued to have an active day in the Pines City, as he interspersed desk work with meetings with officials from all over the country showing up at the Mansion House.

The President broke off his desk work as often as officials arrived to consult on various problems. Among those he received were Rep. Frisco San Juan of Rizal and Mayor Osmundo de Guzman of Marikina, who came together; and Immigration Commissioner Edmundo Reyes.

Some of the President's conferences were continuations of meetings he has held with officials coming from Mindanao, the Visayas and Luzon. As usual, the President sat down with newsmen for the daily informal press conference, which has become part of his work day in Baguio City.

While at work on official papers, the President issued a proclamation declaring the period from November 23 to 29, 1970 as National Papal Visit Week.

In issuing the proclamation, the President said that Filipinos are deeply grateful for the honor the Pope has bestowed on them, and their country with his visit.

The President enjoined all citizens and resident of the Philippines, regardless of faith, color or creed, to cooperate in making—the Papal visit a fruitful one “in the promotion of brotherhood among them.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of his working hours in his study at the Mansion House going over the official papers brought up to the summer capital by Malacañang aides.

He only left his desk work a couple of times to meet with government officials, including local executives, who discussed with him matters affecting their respective agencies or constituencies.

The President also had a brief informal meeting with newsmen covering his trip to the Pines City.

November 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS inspected the rabbitry, mushroom and silk culture projects of the Mountain Province Development Authority, the stock farm of the Bureau of Plant Industry, and the experimental fruit ‘orchards of the bureau.

Accompanied by Undersecretary of Agriculture Arturo Tanco, Jr., MPDA Chairman-Manager Sinai Hamada and BAI Director Pedro Refuerzo, the President first visited the state agricultural college in La Trinidad, where he looked into the progress of the rabbit raising and mushroom and silk culture projects and other projects of the MPDA.

The projects are designed to produce improved farm commodities in large quantities for export; provide additional sources of income for farmers and create a fairly prosperous farmer class in the four mountain provinces, namely: Kalinga-Apayao, Benguet, Ifugao and Mountain Province.

From the state college, the President proceeded to the Bureau of Plant Industry experimental station where improved, varieties of fruit trees are being developed for distribution to farmers. These fruit trees are apples, pears, chestnuts and other fruits which are in great demand locally and are imported in large quantities.

Then the President metered, down Sto. Tomas road on the opposite section of the city where he visited the Bureau of Animal Industry’s cattle breeding station. He was shown the big imported bulls, which are being kept at the station for breeding purposes in connection with the cattle dispersal program of the government.

He also issued the following message on the eve of election day: Tomorrow the Filipino nation goes to the polls to elect the men and women who will rewrite the Constitution of the Republic of the Philippines. The writing or rewriting of a Constitution is the ultimate, the highest sovereign act of a people. For the Constitution is the framework, the skeleton of government, and it forecasts the future of a nation. We roust therefore all participate in this sovereign act.

I exhort each and everyone of you to go to the polls and vote tomorrow, I ask you to cast your vote on election day. In urging you to cast your vote, it is perhaps necessary to inform you and remind you that never again during the lifetime of our generation and perhaps the other generations that will follow, will our people be given an opportunity to re-cast and rewrite the Constitution of our country and of our people. It is therefore necessary that we seize and take advantage of this opportunity to mould our own future.

The government and I personally view with satisfaction the exemplary manner with which the campaign has been conducted and the way in which all the people and the government officials and employees have conducted themselves in order to maintain a free, open and unsullied expression of the popular will.

I congratulate and commend all those who have unceasingly and unstintingly labored in order that we may have a free and open election. Many have despaired and forecast apprehensions and misgivings on the manner in which this election would be conducted. But despite all of this, the campaign has been peaceful and free. It is my hope that the election on Tuesday—tomorrow—will be equally so. The fear that the campaign would be dominated by political parties or by the influential groups of men that may usually seek to pressure those who make decisions in our society, including the voters in this election, has not come about. And we are witness to the large presence of many from all the classes of our society, whether rich or poor, big or small, strong or weak, who are candidates and who hope to participate in the proceedings of the constitutional convention. I have no reason to doubt that the general desire and wish of everyone that the constitutional convention will be composed of men who are not tied down by partisan interest or committed to any selfish groups, or be subjected to pressures of any kind, will be essentially attained.

But while we are pleased with this development, there remains the duty of government to appeal once more to all the people, and this appeal I make today. I appeal to each and everyone of you, the citizenry of our country, to maintain this election free. The whole world watches us.

It is not only the Filipino people that looks to you for this act of sovereignty to be attained and for this act of sovereignty to be done with purity and with sincerity. It is the world which watches us. It is a world of friends and of enemies alike, who speculate at the manner in which we will conduct ourselves.

I have trust and confidence in the capability of our people to maintain free and open election as we have done in the past. May we continue to do so tomorrow. Let there be a free and unsullied expression of our popular will.

But first of all, all those who are qualified to vote go to the polls and vote. And when you vote, vote not only for your candidates. Vote for the best qualified of all the candidates that they may truly express the genius, the talent, the patriotism of the people of the Philippines.

PRESIDENT MARCOS left Baguio City early on a short flight to Laoag City, where he arrived at about 10 a.m. He was met by a large delegation of officials, including Gov. Jose Evangelista, Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr., Vice Gov. Elizabeth Keen, Mayor Eulalio Sison and other local officials.

From the airport, the President headed for the city cathedral where a Te Deum was sung for him. Then he drove to Batac, his hometown, arriving at about 11 a.m. He went straight to the public school where he voted at his old precinct.

He later presided at a conference with provincial and municipal officials at the Marcos residence. The officials reported on the conditions in their respective constituencies. All said that the situation was peaceful.

Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, 1st PC Zone commander, also saw the President to report on the peace and order situation. He said that Except for two shooting incidents all was peaceful in the 1st PC zone.

The President left Laoag shortly after high noon, arriving in Malacañang at about 2 p.m.

In the evening, he followed the trend of the elections as reports began pouring into Malacañang.

They have gone to the polls as a free and freedom-loving people should—with dignity, decorum and a high sense of intellectual and moral involvement.

The peaceful and orderly conduct of the elections is an expression of the maturity of our people and a source of confidence and hope that those who will be elected to take part in the convention will represent the genuine popular will.

In the nationwide election, we have sought to elect men whose first and last aim is to be of service to our people. It is our earnest hope that the results of this election will guarantee a meaningful convention.

To all those who have worked for this peaceful and orderly election and to the entire Filipino nation, who deserves such an orderly election, I extend my deepest thanks and congratulations.

November 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent a quiet day at work in his study, while occasionally scanning reports on the progress of the canvassing votes all over the country.

The President did not receive visitors, only public officials who call for consultations in the course of the day's government business, an immediate aides in Malacanang.

In the afternoon, he endorsed the position taken by the committee of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation (PAAF), the Philippine participation at the 1970 Bangkok Asia should be limited to that of a "performing delegation" of athletes who have been rigidly screened and qualified as having good chances to win

The President made the endorsement after he was notified by PAAF president Felipe Monserrat, who is also chairman of the criteria, committee, that his committee was certifying only those athletes who had passed rigid screening.

He worked at his desk through the afternoon and early evening.

On the death of former President Charles de Gaulle of France, the President issued the following statement:

"The Filipino nation mourns with fraternal sorrow the death of General Charles de Gaulle, a great leader of men and a gift to the world of the twentieth century, who was not only a father to France but also a comrade to all those nations and peoples who needed a champion in their fight for freedom, independence, honor and dignity.

"In a world dominated, by mediocrity and endless compromise, he wakened men and nations anew to the truth that the most costly, the most ruinous policy is to small, to seek every favor from everybody and yet obtain nothing.

"As he restored to France her sense of grandeur and pride, he gave to other men a vision of greatness which only a high sense of freedom, independence, honor and courage might achieve.

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted most of his time to his desk, during which he officially designated Ambassador Luis Moreno Salcedo, Philippine envoy to France, as his official representative at the funeral services for Charles de Gaulle.

The President also studied the report and recommendation of Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto Reyes on the efforts toward the rehabilitation of the typhoon-stricken areas of the Bicol Region, which emphasized the facilitation of the replanting of damaged farms and the delivery of needed reconstruction materials and seeds. Another report studied by the President was that of Commerce and Industry Secretary Ernesto Maceda on the need for broader promotion of Philippine products in the U.S., as well as of the effort to project a proper image of the country abroad.

The President did not receive any visitors, except for the officials of the National Development Corporation, whom he called in for a discussion of the immediate projects of the firm, particularly the development of export industries and the possible opening up of new investment areas.

Present at the meeting were Constando Fariñas, chairman of the NDC board; Demetrio Brillantes, general manager; and members Salvador Querubin, Tanerredo Gurav, Protacio Licsi, and Margarito Duavit.

In the course of the day the President signed into law House Bill No. 448, amending certain sections of Republic Act No. 4860, known as the Foreign Borrowing Act, with instructions to Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, to provide official interpretation on those provisions that are being debated upon as to their validity and constitutionality.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day by hosting a breakfast, along with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, for visiting Transportation Secretary John Volpe of the United States, and Mrs. Volpe at Malacañang.

Then the President had a conference with Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, and Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, who were also breakfast guests, on various state matters pertaining to their departments.

Later in the day, the President had two more conferences, one with a group of officials from Pangasinan; the other with Rep. Eduardo Cojuangco on matters in the latter's constituency.

In the afternoon, the Chief Executive directed Budget Commissioner Faustino SyChangco to release the funds needed to implement- the five per cent salary increase of public school teachers in Manila.

Funds for this purpose was provided for in the current appropriations act, and will involve some P110,000 a month. The increase will be effective July 1, this year.

The President also directed the Department of Foreign Affairs to ask the United States government for an immediate renegotiation of the Philippine-U.S. Military Bases Agreement of 1947.

The President made it clear that the agreement must be renegotiated to remove, among other things, those defects and controversial passages that tend to divide national opinion on the matter of upholding the country's sovereignty and national dignity.

After clearing off his scheduled conferences, he then worked steadily at his desk, breaking off at around 6:30 p.m. to meet, again, a group of Catholic bishops led by Rufino J. Cardinal Santos. The meeting was on the arrangements for the coming Papal visit.

Meanwhile, the President promulgated the guidelines and procedures to be followed by government offices in the dispersal of government assets with a value of over P500,000.

The guidelines were drawn in line with the policy to obtain the best price for government assets up for sale. Primarily, sealed public bidding has been prescribed, in order that a sufficient number of legitimate bidders could participate.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent the morning entirely in his study, working on state papers, during which he proclaimed Friday, November 27 and Saturday, November 28, as public holidays in honor of the visit of Pope Paul VI here, and designated Ambassador Ernesto Lagdameo,

Philippine envoy to the U.S. as chief negotiator in the talks on a civil aviation agreement between the U.S. and the Philippines,

In the afternoon, the President met behind closed doors with Solicitor-General Felix Antonio, Central Bank Gov. Gregorio Licaros', Sugar Quota Administrator Jose Unson, Silay City Mayor Natalio Velez, Sen. Ambrosio Padilla, Reps. Pablo Roman of Bataan, and Roque Ablan Jr. of Ilocos Norte to discuss problems involving the offices represented by those at the meeting.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered a study of the feasibility of merging the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation with the National Housing Corporation, while inviting at the same time the labor sector to make proposals on policies and programs for government housing agencies.

He also issued policy guidelines for the Government Service Insurance System, the Social Security System, and the Development Bank of the Philippines on the processing of applications for housing loans.

1. Undersecretary of Labor Raoul Inocentes, who is also a member of the PHHC board of directors, to consult representative labor groups on working out a system of guidelines and priorities on housing "to benefit the working class."

The President sought labor's views in appreciation of the fact that housing is a critical need of workers—a need which he had previously pointed out will become more acute as the country moves towards industrial development.

He said his administration is committed to pursuing an intensive low-cost housing program, as embodied in the Four-Year Development Plan.

He asked Undersecretary Inocentes to submit his recommendations within 30 days.

2. The chairmen of the PHHC and the NHC to create each a panel of three, to include the General Manager in the case of the PHHC, to study the feasibility of merging the two corporations.

The principal objective of this move is to avoid duplication of activities and to integrate resources.

The President further, instructed these officials to avail of the assistance and/or opinion of the Secretary of Justice in establishing the legal basis of the merger.

He also directed that the report and recommendations of both panels, duly indorsed by the Secretary of Justice, should be submitted to him within 30 days.

3. For the GSIS, SSS and DBP, the following guidelines were prescribed in executing housing projects, and in approving individual housing loans:

- a) Priority should be given to mass housing projects, utilizing PHHC and other government-owned lands, rather than acquiring private subdivisions.

Dwelling units should be-acquired from the NHC, especially where the project requires the construction of detached housing units.

b) Multi-storey apartments suitable for metropolitan areas should be planned in such a way as to maximize the utilization of NHC products.

The GSIS, SSS and the DBP, respectively, should consider the feasibility of entering into a joint venture with the PHHC, and the NHC for this purpose.

c) Approval of individual housing loans should be subject to the condition that the dwelling unit shall be provided by the NHC, so as to channel housing funds to low and moderate-income families.

d) Priority should be given in all instances to the construction of new housing over applications for remodelling or expanding existing houses.

The President at the same time directed the National Science Development Board to prepare a study on the use of tobacco dust for pesticide, and the production of milk from coconut.

The conversion of these two principal produce of the country into substitute products would mean not only their full utilization but also the conservation of foreign exchange.

The President also created a Social Defense Planning Committee, which will evolve and adopt long-range and short-term programs and policies on social defense planning.

These programs will include a review of the country's penal system and criminal statutes as a whole, as an integral and essential part of planning for national development.

Former Supreme Court Justice Conrado V. Sanchez was named chairman of the committee, with Sen. Salvador H. Laurel and Rep. Teodulo Natividad, as members.

November 16—

During his call, the President and Strand exchanged views on the prospects and problems of the tourist trade and discussed ways and means of attracting more tourists to the Philippines.

Accompanying Strand were other Hilton Hotel officials, namely:

Kenneth S. Moss, vice-president for East Asia; Andre F. Charriere, Antonio Delgado and Francisco Delgado, general manager, president, and chairman, respectively, of the Manila Hilton.

Earlier in the morning, the President motored to the National Science Development Board offices to attend as guest of honor and speaker the opening ceremonies of the Association of Ministers of Science of Asia, held at the NSDB auditorium. (See pp. 10522-10525 for the text of the President's Speech).

Back in Malacañang at well past 11:00. a.m., the President met with mining executives on the plan to establish copper smelting plant in view of the expected reduction in local exports of copper ore.

Present at the meeting were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., Mines Director Fernando Busuego, Jr., and BOI Chairman Vicente Paterno, representing the government side; and Jose Soriano of Atlas Mining, William Foster and B. M. Gozon of Marcopper Mining, Jesus Cabarrus of Marinduque Mines, Carlos Palanca and Alfredo Velayo of Lepanto Mining, G. T. Scholey, G. A. Scholey, P.

Elisorio, J. Foreta of Black Mountain Mines, Henry Brimo and Juan Singson of Philex Mines, and Senen Fua and Dr. Luis Dizon of Consolidated Mining Co.

Toward noon, the President conferred the Order of Sikatuna (rank of datu) on former Secretary of Foreign Affairs Narciso Ramos in recognition of his long and distinguished public service.

Among those who witnessed the award ceremonies were the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos; Secretary Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. who read the citation for the President, chiefs and members of the foreign diplomatic missions in Manila, and the wife and children of Secretary Ramos.

In the afternoon, the President was again guest speaker, this time at the kick-off ceremonies of the national education and fund campaign of the League of Puericulture Centers held at Malacañang's Maharlika Hall.

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed the hope that science will succeed in uniting mankind in the "pursuit of a better life, and exhorted the pharmacists of Asia to contribute to the realization of this goal through collective effort.

In a speech at the opening of the Fourth General Assembly and Third Asian Congress of Pharmaceutical Sciences, held at the Philamlife auditorium. In the morning, the President also stressed the importance of combating drug addiction and of family planning in the face of worldwide population explosion.

Noting the involvement of the pharmacists in establishing uniform regulations in drug and food additives, fair practices in drug and food trading and in improving general health conditions in Asia, the President pledged the support of the Philippine government to all these endeavors.

The President worked as usual early in the morning on state papers, then at about 10 a.m. motored to the Philamlife auditorium to address the conference of Asian pharmacists.,

After the speech, he proceeded to Camp Aguinaldo, where he was given a three-hour briefing by the AFP and PC commanders on the present status of the armed services and their missions. The briefing is a periodic ritual to keep the President updated on the armed forces and the PC.

In the afternoon, the President mostly attended to his desk work had brief meetings with officials who came to consult him on problems, among whom was Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos.

During the day, the Chief Executive also announced that the government and a religious-civic organization will jointly develop a resettlement area for displaced families in Montalban, Rizal.

The President said the Land Authority, the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation and the National Social Action Council, an organization headed by Bishop Mariano Gaviola, will work together in the rehabilitation and development of resettlement areas for squatters and other families displaced from the Manila metropolitan area and resettled in Montalban.

Early in the evening, the President received Brig. Gen. F. C. Cauton, commanding general of the 3rd Infantry Brigade, based in Cebu, who presented him with the "Kampilan," the symbol of command of the brigade.

The Kampilan was to have been presented to the President last October 20, at the rites marking the Leyte landing anniversary, but the President was not able to attend.

November 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, welcomed at the Manila International Airport, the head of government of Burma, General Ne Win, and Madame Ne Win who arrived about 11 a.m. for a four-day state visit here. The First Couple of Burma are guests at Malacañang.

Earlier in the morning, the President worked in his study, acting on various state papers brought to his desk. Well before the expected arrival of the Ne Wins, he and the First Lady motored to the airport.

Arriving at Malacañang, the President had an informal talk with Gen. Ne Win at his study, and then returned to his official chores. After lunch, he played a round of golf with his guest at the Malacañang Park golf course.

Then he resumed his work, and at 4 p.m. formally received Gen. Ne Win who came for an official call.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady honored the state guests at a dinner held at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang.

While attending to state matters in the afternoon, the President asked Vice President Fernando Lopez, concurrently secretary of agriculture and natural resources, to adopt the new simplified procedure in the processing of forest applications by offices under his department.

The new procedure was devised after a two-month study by a management audit committee headed by Juan M. Sanchez of the PES-DND Computer Center, which included Oscar Anastacio of the Bureau of Forestry, Francisco Rabuy of the Bureau of Lands, Gerardo O. Zafra of the Budget Commission, and Umberto A. Rodriguez, also of the PDCC.

The recommendations embodied in the Sanchez committee report include:

1. Decentralization of functions in the Bureau of Forestry.
2. Adoption of a simplified procedure in the processing of forest application and grants.
3. Centralization of the administrative and operational management of the Bureau of Lands' computer so that it can be utilized by all other agencies under the DANR.
4. That heads of all other government agencies using survey data in the control and disposition of public agricultural and forest lands reconcile their records on survey and maps with that of the Bureau of Forestry.

November 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS mobilized teams from the various government agencies to undertake rescue, relief and wreckage clearing operations following receipt of report in Baguio City of the damage wrought by typhoon "Yoling" which lashed metropolitan Manila and the Southern Luzon provinces in the morning and early afternoon.

At the same time, he appealed to all citizens who had not been adversely affected by the typhoon to extend assistance to typhoon victims, notably in the form of cooked food and medicines.

He also ordered the release of P100,000 from the calamity fund for relief aid to victims.

The President issued the directive following a briefing by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. on the extent of the damage wrought by the typhoon.

The President arrived in Baguio City early in the morning with Gen. Ne Win, the Burmese chief of state, who arrived for a four-day state visit.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS flew from Baguio City on the first available government aircraft, arriving in Manila just before noon.

From the Nichols Air Base he, together with state visitor, Gen. Ne Win of Burma, the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. went straight to Camp Aguinaldo where he presided at the meeting of all government agencies involved in the relief and rehabilitation of typhoon victims, to coordinate their efforts.

In the course of the meeting, the President:

1. Signed a proclamation declaring a state of calamity in the provinces of Rizal and Bataan, and in the cities of Manila, Caloocan, Quezon and Pasay.

In signing the proclamation, the President emphasized that under a state of calamity, it is a criminal act to conceal, hoard, overprice or profiteer in the process of the sale of foodstuff and other prime necessities of life.

2. Directed the Metrocom to maintain round-the-clock patrols of city streets, particularly to prevent the theft of wires and looting, in the face of the blackout and the breakdown of PLDT and other communications, including media services, which may take some time to restore.

3. Asked the heads of the Government Service Insurance System, the Social Security System, the Development Bank of the Philippines, and the Philippine National Bank to liberalize their procedures in granting emergency loans to typhoon victims.

He also asked these officials to study the feasibility of declaring a moratorium on receivables, or re-amortization of existing loans.

4. Authorized the GSIS manager, the SSS Administrator, the PNB president, the DBP chairman, and the Governor of the Central Bank of the Philippines to contribute at least P^00,000 each in order to augment government funds for relief and rehabilitation work.

5. Instructed the Department Social Welfare and the Philippine Navy to coordinate in helping homeless typhoon victims return to their home provinces.

6. Directed the Armed Forces of the Philippines to lend auxiliary generators to the Department of Health which will in turn lend the units to the National Children's Hospital and the National Orthopedic Hospital.

7. Told the Bureau of Public Works and the Army Engineers to assist the Nawasa in restoring water services wherever these have been cut off.

8. Asked Secretary Public Works and Communcation Manuel Syquiao to immediately normalize communications.

At the meeting, Dr. Aldaba Lim informed the President that the First Lady's Project Tulungan, with the assistance of the US-Agency for International Development; has been maintaining rolling kitchens to serve some 36 evacuation and relief centers in the metropolitan area.

The President also reconfirmed the suspension of classes by the secretary of education, and the closing of government offices in the meantime, in the calamity area.

Likewise, the President, through Secretary Melchor, gave a three-day weekend to government employees, from Nov. 20 through the duration of the period of calamity,

After the meeting, which broke up around 2 p.m., the Chief Executive returned to Malacañang, where he “worked on state papers awaiting him.

He issued an order removing from office Municipal Judge Pedro R. Ravage of Cagwit, Surigao del Sur, who was considered “unfit to remain in the judicial branch of the Government”.

The case against the respondent judge was brought about by a complaint of Clenio Gndona, who charged the judge with political harassment and persecution.

At about 5 p.m., the President conducted a survey of the disaster areas in the Greater Manila area, including the Philippine Navy headquarters on Roxas boulevard and Fort Bonifacio, to see for himself the actual damage and determine the needs of the victims.

At the FN headquarters, he inspected the navy facilities damaged by the typhoon, while at Fort Bonifacio, the President, also observed the distribution of potable water by members of the Philippine Army to residents of the camp and the adjacent Guadalupe area.

The President followed his regular routine the rest of the day, with emphasis on those tasks related to post-typhoon needs. He kept in touch through the evening with all relief and rehabilitation workers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a series of directives to speed up the rehabilitation of the typhoon victims, particularly in the Greater Manila area.

In a nationwide radio-television message broadcast from the President’s study in Malacañang in the evening, the President:

1. Ordered a week-long suspension of classes, from Monday to Saturday, in both private and public schools, adding that the situation will be reassessed thereafter.
2. Directed the implementation of a six-hour working day in all government offices, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily without lunch break, and a three-day weekend from Friday to Sunday, in the Greater Manila area.
3. Ordered the Government Service Insurance System and the Social Security System to give priority to the typhoon victims in the matter of loans and financing in order to repair their homes.
4. Asked all banks to be opened in order to allow government paymasters to draw money with which to pay the salaries of workers who had not received their pay for the week.
5. Suggested that industries and business scheduled to grant Christmas bonuses to their workers and employees should do so sooner.

The President said he would meet with leaders of Congress Sunday or Monday to study the augmentation of the calamity fund without congressional action, or if necessary, to call a special session.

He said this was necessary in view of the fact that the calamity fund authorized by the General Appropriations Act had been badly depleted by the successive calamities which hit the country.

The President also ordered steps taken immediately to relieve the acute water shortage caused by the power cut-off in the greater Manila area due to the damage to power lines wrought by typhoon "Yoling."

To arrest the shortage, the President directed the National Power Corporation, the Armed Forces of the Philippines and the MEKALCQ officials that generators be installed at NAWASA pumping stations immediately, or that power lines be thrown from the source of electric current to the pumping stations so that they can resume operations.

Earlier in the day, the President bade farewell to Gen. and Madame Ne Win, who ended their four-day state visit to the Philippines at noon, when they departed for Rangoon.

The President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, had breakfast with their distinguished house guests, the last get-together with the Ne Wins.

Later the President and the General had a formal, conversation on common problems facing the two countries and on matters important to the development of closer cooperation, and understanding among countries of the Asian region.

The President thanked General Ne Win and the people of Burma for their "kind message of sympathy over the tragic disaster" caused by typhoon "Yoling," and for their generous assistance.

The government of Burma has sent a planeload of candles and medicine to Manila upon learning that the power lines had been knocked out and that there was a shortage of candles. The goods came on the plane which was sent by the Union of Burma Airways to fetch General Ne Win and his party from Manila.

The President also conveyed the Filipino ^people's "deep appreciation for the great honor bestowed upon the country" by General Ne Win's visit, and his regret that the typhoon had interfered with the plans for making the visit memorable.

At about high noon, the President and the First Lady escorted their guests to the MIA, where full honors were given them, and shortly afterward, the Burmese First Couple took off, with members of local officialdom, the diplomatic corps and other personages seeing them off.

On returning to Malacañang, the President concentrated on urgent matters, primarily the measures aimed at normalizing the situation in the Greater Manila area after the destructive visit of Typhoon Yoling.

In the afternoon the President resumed his inspection of the typhoon damage in the Greater Manila area.

Leaving Malacañang at 4 p.m., the President motored slowly through San Juan, Rizal, Sta. Mesa and Cubao in Quezon City, Marikina and San Mateo, Rizal.

From San Mateo, the President motored back to Manila, arriving in Malacañang at 6:15 in the evening.

About an hour, later, the president went on radio and television to report among others, on the magnitude of the destruction caused by the typhoon, and to assure the people that the government would stand by them to the limits of its power and resources.

He also appealed to all sectors of society to help in extending aid to typhoon victims, even as he served notice to opportunists, profiteers and hoarders, the looters and manipulators, that they would be hounded and prosecuted vigorously by the government,

During the day the Chief Executive also received the following message from Pope Paul VI:

“WITH PROFOUND SORROW WE HAVE LEARNED OF THE DESTRUCTION CAUSED BY A VIOLENT TYPHOON TO THE BELOVED COUNTRY WE ARE SOON TO VISIT STOP WE ASSURE YOUR EXCELLENCY AND THROUGH YOU THE FILIPINO PEOPLE OF OUR DEEPEST SYMPATHY IN THIS TIME OF TRIAL AND OUR FERVENT PRAYERS FOR THE VICTIMS OF THE DISASTER AND THEIR GRIEVING FAMILIES”.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the inclusion of the provinces of Bulacan and Zambales under the proclamation of a state of calamity he issued earlier, as a result of typhoon “Yoling.”

In the proclamation, only the provinces of Rizal and Bataan, and the four cities of Manila. Pasay, Caloocan and Quezon were covered.

In amending the proclamation, the President reiterated its implications —that it is a criminal act, in the areas covered, to conceal, hoard, overprice or profiteer in the process of the sale of foodstuff and other prime necessities of life.

The President, accompanied by Rep. Teodulo Natividad, Secretary of Labor Bias F. Ople, and Gov. Ignacio Santiago of Bulacan, conducted an aerial survey over the province to see for himself the extent of damage to public and private buildings, and crops, which had earlier been reported to them by the province’s municipal mayors

In view of the widespread destruction caused by the typhoon, the Chief Executive said that he looks forward to the implementation of the Marcos-Johnson communique of 1966 for the U.S. aid to “our efforts at typhoon, dissipation and damage control.”

“* * * The considerable economic loss suffered annually in the Far East from typhoons was discussed by the two Presidents, who agreed that the regional initiatives undertaken by the ECAFE and WHO to improve technical capabilities for typhoon damage control deserved full support.

President Johnson offered the services of the United States meteorological team to develop a joint program of typhoon damage control in the Philippine area in concert with, regional planning’, and President Marcos agreed to the desirability of such a program. * * *”

The President cited the specific provisions of the communique when informed by acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes that the United Nations Educational Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) had offered to send a mission to the Philippines to investigate the damage caused by successive typhoons.

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with top Congress leaders and Cabinet officials to discuss additional measures to speed tro rehabilitation of typhoon victims.

Present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Sen. Gerardo M. Roxas who is the Liberal Party president, Sen. Dominador Aytona, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, House Majority Floorleader Mareelino Veloso and Borne Minority Floorleader Justiniano S. Montano.

The Cabinet officials present were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Finance Cesar & A. Virata, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Chang-co, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Commerce Undersecretary Troadio Quiazon, Jr., and Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr.

It was agreed at the meeting:

1. That the President need not call for a special session of Congress as there exists ample authorization in the current Appropriations Act to spend funds for the required rehabilitation.
2. That, instead, the President should avail of existing executive authority to raise or generate additional cash for the funding of massive rehabilitation work.

Following the meeting, the President issued additional instructions to government agencies concerned. In order to speed up the government's relief and rehabilitation effort.

The new instructions were:

1. The Fiscal Policy Committee to meet in three days, to re-examine the priorities in the overall government funding program, and to reduce expenditures of law-priority projects or activities in the light of the new crisis as a result of the recent typhoon,
2. The Secretary of Finance to release immediately to local governments concerned their respective shares from excess income tax collections.

This is aimed at enabling the local governments to undertake rehabilitation work on their own, and consequently reduce dependence on the national government.

3. The Chairman of the Separations Commission to include in the new schedule of reparations procurement additional items for prefabricated school buildings.
4. The Budget Commission to release P400,000 to the Department of Social Welfare as relief aid, in addition to the P100,000 previously released by the President. The President announced meanwhile, that the PI million contributed by the Central Bank, Philippine National Bank, Government Service Insurance System, Development Bank of the Philippines, and the Social Security System to the relief and rehabilitation fund will be used for the early resettlement, as differentiated from relief, of the victims rendered homeless by typhoon "Yoling."
5. That in connection with the earlier instructions to the GSIS, SSS, DBP, and PNB to liberalize procedures for the granting of emergency loans, the said agencies should publish such liberalized procedures in the newspapers immediately, for the guidance of loan applicants.
6. That the GSIS General Manager immediately effect the release and payment of dividends to all its members.
7. That an Agricultural Recovery Program for all damaged areas, including the latest devastations by typhoon "Yoling" be immediately implemented.
8. The Secretary of Public Works and Communications to submit an overall estimate of damaged public works projects, and to formulate an integrated program for the early repair or reconstruction of such projects to include the estimated cost and possible sources of funding.

During the meeting, the President signed the proclamation amending

Proclamation No. 775, which declared a state of calamity in the Greater Manila Area and the provinces of Rizal and Eataan. (See pp. 10695-10696 for text of the proclamation).

The amending proclamation includes the provinces of Bulacan, Pampanga and Zambales in the coverage of the state of calamity. It also designates the Price Control Council to implement the provisions of said proclamation, pertaining to legal sanctions against hoarding, overpricing, profiteering or concealing of such goods. It also empowers the Price Control Council in this regard to seize all hoarded stocks of prime commodities, and to arrest all violators.

PRESIDENT-MARCOS took up the measures for recovering the crop losses suffered from the recent typhoons with the National Food and Agricultural Council.

In a long- meeting in the morning at Malacañang, the various measures eyed to accelerate replanting of destroyed ricefields were discussed, as well as other matters pertaining to the stabilization of food supply, particularly for typhoon victims.

The President did not receive many visitors, preferring to work through the day at his desk. However, he met a delegation from Davao del Sur, which consulted him on local problems. He referred the various problems presented to the government agencies concerned. The delegation headed by Rep. Artemio Loyola and Gov. Ramon de los Cientos, was composed of provincial officials and several municipal mayors.

In the earlier meeting, those present were Undersecretary of Agriculture Arturo Tanco, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Director Pedro Refuerzo of Animal Industry, Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit of the Agricultural Productivity Commission, Director Eliseo Carandang of Plant Industry, Peter Witt of the United Nations Development Program, Frank Sheperd of the United States Aid for International Development, Hector Moreno of the Rice and Corn Administration, Felix Gonzales of the Bureau of Fisheries, Gualberto Planas of the Rice and Corn Productivity Coordinating Council, Silverio Sarmiento of the Budget Commission, E. Alejandrino of the World Food Program, and representatives of the Central Bank and the Development Bank of the Philippines.

Earlier, the President signed the commission of three foreign affairs officers as consuls general of the Philippines in Indonesia and Belgium.

Those commissioned were:

1. Eugenic Concepcion, as consul general in Djakarta, Indonesia,
2. Prudencio E. del Castillo, as consul general in Menado, Indonesia, and
3. Antero Liwanag, as consul general in Belgium.

In an address to the nation in the evening over a nationwide radio-television hookup, the President warned that hoarders and price manipulators will be prosecuted to the limit of the law.

The Chief Executive said that there are indications of attempts on the part of price manipulators and hoarders to take over control of prices.

He said that “all persons engaged in these nefarious and criminal activities come under the special powers on price control extended by Congress to the executive and are immediately punishable.”

The President added that he had directed the organization of constabulary and armed forces teams ready to jump off and take over any hoarded rice stocks in any part of the country.

November 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the reversion to the general fund of all inactive special and trust funds GI the government to be used for the rehabilitation of typhoon stricken areas.

At the same time, the President ordered that a system of priorities be set up giving emphasis to the replanting of lost crops and the repair of public works facilities.

He issued the directives during his meeting with the Fiscal and Financial Policy Committee which briefed him on the meetings of the Presidential Budget' Development Committee in the morning and the Fiscal Policy Committee earlier in the afternoon.

At the end of the conference, the President accepted the donation of P200,000 each from the five government financing institutions—the Central Bank, the Philippine National Bank, the Development Bank of the Philippines, the Government Service Insurance System and the Social Security System—to the typhoon relief and rehabilitation fund.

The President then worked on state papers, in the course of which he directed:

1. The Irrigation Service Unit to immediately release some 400 pump units to the National Food and Agricultural Council, which are needed by projects under the Agricultural Recovery Program.
2. The government institutions to consider declaring a moratorium on loans to rice millers, in the same way that this was being considered in favor of the farmers.
3. The Bureau of Telecommunications to charge not more than ten centavos (P0.10) for transmitting complains and grievances from any citizen to the Presidential Action Committee on Land Problems (PACLAP)

In his order, the President said that easy and inexpensive access to the committee should be afforded those who may have problems and grievances so that the PACLAP can accomplish its duties speedily.

The President created the PACLAP to provide greater protection and assistance to small settlers, small landholders, and members of the cultural minorities.

The President also laid down the general policy for the resumption of classes in both public and private schools in the Greater Manila Area in the provinces of Quezon, Rizal, Laguna, Cavite, Bulacan, Pampanga, Bataan and Zambales, which were severely affected by typhoon "Yoling."

In the afternoon, President and Mrs. Marcos gave a reception in honor of the delegates to the Asian Bishops Meeting, at Malacañang.

THE PRESIDENT met with leaders of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

In his meeting with the congressional leaders, at which a sprinkling of Cabinet officials were present, the President discussed the resources available to the government in the relief and rehabilitation of victims of recent calamities, and including the rehabilitation of whole areas and public services.

He disclosed that some 2000 prefab schools have been ordered through reparations, but that meanwhile the country must make do with salvaged schoolbuildings until early next year when the prefab units will arrive.

Among the leaders of Congress present at the meeting were Senate president Gil j. Puyat, Speaker Pretempore Jose Aldeguer, Senator Gerardo M. Roxas, who is the president, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Velosa, House Minority Floordleader Justiniano S. Montano, Senator Dominador Aytona and Reps, Jose Alberto and Rovertio Sabido.

Among the cabinet officials who attended were Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel b. Syquiao, secretary of Finance Cesar e. a. Virata, secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, jr., Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, jr., Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Agriculture Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., and director-general Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff.

Later in the morning, the President directed all departments and agencies of the government to furnish the joint congressional committee created under the peace and order fund act all data on peace and order as may be desired by the said committee.

The president gave this order with the understanding that such data would serve the official need of both the Senate and the House committee on ways and means in their committee hearings.

He emphasized that it might be useful for the said committees to “look into the operation and effects of accounts” as well as the “administration of taxes imposed” as provided in the Peace and Order Act.

In the name of the Filipino people, I welcome His Holiness Pope Paul VI to the Philippines. We consider his visit with us as a great honor and are truly glad that he has singled out the Philippines for special attention during his trip to this part of the world. For not only are we the lone Catholic country in the Far East, we are also the only predominantly Christian nation in this area. We are proud of this distinction, while appreciative at the same time of the importance and value of other faiths, if only because Christianity is one of our links with Western Civilization. The cultural and religious heritage of the West has enriched the spiritual and moral values handed down from our pre-Christian ancestors.

Among these values are tolerance and the sense of human brotherhood. We Filipinos have guarded our political freedoms as jealously as any other people, and in matters of faith, we have always shown tolerance toward one another, as attested by the existence in our midst not only of Christian churches of various faiths but of a large Muslim population, not to speak of scattered tribes who are sustained by the animistic beliefs of their ancestors. The acceptance of diversity in matters religious reflects our tolerant attitude in the political realm as well. Our democracy is all the more stable because it is founded on faith in the goodness of man and in the conviction that all men are brothers.

The ecumenical spirit of His Holiness’ visit is therefore something that is quite readily appreciated by us. He is coming not only as the Supreme Pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church but also as a world spiritual leader whose humanity and compassion brings a message of hope to men and women everywhere. As Catholics, as Christians, or as simple believers in one Supreme Being, we are heartened by the presence of the Holy Father and deeply grateful for the attention he has bestowed on our country and people.

President's Week in Review: November 27 - December 3, 1970

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, led the nation in extending a warm welcome to His Holiness, Pope Paul VI.

In his welcome remarks, the President said that His Holiness came “at a time of trial, of deep sorrow and deprivation as a result of a natural calamity which reminds us that all of us are in the hands of God,” and “at a time of national ordeal as we seek to change and alter the very basis of our fundamental law of our society.”

The President pointed out that faith and freedom,—faith in Christ and freedom in democracy—the two most priceless gifts of Western civilization,” are now under trial.”

For these reasons, he said, “because we cherish this faith and the freedom of true democracy, we greet you as a dedicated successor of your namesake, Paul, who said that he had an equal duty to everyone, Greek or Barbarian, learned or simple, for ‘there are no human preferences with God. (Seepp. 10852 to 10853-A for full text of the President's speech)

In reply, His Holiness, the Pope said that “we come here in obedience to our spiritual mission: to take part in the deliberations of the conference of the bishops of the whole of Eastern Asia.”

Continuing, the Pope said, “We wish to seek together, in the spirit of the Second Vatican Council, how best to proclaim the Gospel to the men of this time and of this continent. We are seeking to make an eternal and universal message an answer to the questions asked by the man of today. The Gospel is, for all men, the message of salvation.”

The President and the First Lady arrived at the Manila International Airport at 8:40 a.m., or 10 minutes ahead of schedule.

Upon arrival at the MIA, the Chief Executive was given military honors, including a 21-gun salute and review by a composite battalion of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

After the airport ceremonies, the First Couple spearheaded a motorcade which proceeded to the Nayong Pilipino where the Pontiff made a whirlwind tour of the miniature replica of the Philippines.

From the Nayong Pilipino, the President and the First Lady took a helicopter to the Manila Cathedral in Intramuros where Liturgical Procession was held, and a Holy Mass celebrated by His Holiness.

After the Mass, the President and Mrs. Marcos returned to Malacañang while the Pope and his entourage proceeded to the Luneta, then to the Apostolic Nunciature.

Among those present at the welcome ceremonies were Vice President Fernando Lopez and Mrs. Lopez, former Presidents Carlos P. Garcia and Diosdado Macapagal and their ladies, former First Ladies Esperanza L. vda. de Osmeña, Trinidad Roxas and Luz B. Magsaysay, Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, Speaker and Mrs. Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and Mrs. Roberto Concepcion, Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, Rufino J. Cardinal Santos and Julio Cardinal Rosales; Msgr. Carmine Rocco, Apostolic Nuncio to the Philippines; and the presidents of the Asian Episcopal Conferences.

In his remarks at the Malacañang reception for His Holiness Pope Paul VI, who came to call on him, the Chief Executive said the Philippines has embarked on a peaceful but revolutionary reformation in its social and economic programs, but added such a reformation can only lead to lasting results if it is based on moral responsibility.

"I believe I can assure Your Holiness," he said, "that the public authorities of this Republic are conscious of that responsibility." (See pp. 10858-B to 1085'J-D for full text of the President's remark.)

President Marcos pointed out that national leaders are and will continue to be actively engaged in seeking an equitable and humane solution to the urgent problem of inequality between those who have too much and those who have too little.

"The Pope's timely visit," he emphasized, "reminds Filipinos that in their solemn act of national re-examination the great encyclicals on social justice which have come from Rome since Leo XIII's Rerum Novarum down to the more recent pronouncements of Mater et Magistra and Pope Paul's own Populorum Progressio are foundry relevant.

In his response, the Pontiff expressed his appreciation for the "remarkable welcome which we received on arriving on your soil," and the hospitality that had been extended to them in Malacañang.

The Pope also informed the President that he was aware "of the lofty intentions which had inspired, and still inspire the policies of your government."

"We are certain," the Pope said, "that the cordial meeting between the Successor of Peter and the highest official among the clear Filipino people, the only people in the Far East that is Christian, in this greater part of the world, will likewise be an effective endeavor for new and vigorous efforts in favor of man."

November 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of the day in his office at Malacañang working on state papers, with occasional consultations with his staff and ranking officials. He did not receive any private visitors.

In one of the orders that issued from his desk, the President ordered all agencies and instrumentalities of the national government to submit an annual program for the procurement of supplies, materials and equipment.

In his order, the President pointed out the huge annual cost of purchasing supplies, materials and equipment, and that emergency procurements and piecemeal requisitions are wasteful and extravagant, and therefore must be avoided.

To achieve an economical, efficient, and effective procurement system, the President said, government agencies and the Bureau of Supply Coordination must project and plan ahead, so that a basis for a workable procurement program may be devised.

It is in this consideration that the President directed all heads of departments, bureaus, offices and agencies of the national government to submit an annual procurement program projecting the needs of their offices during the year.

In the "afternoon, he and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, left Malacañang to attend the Mass at the Rizal Park, officiated by Pope Paul VI. They both received Holy Communion.

Later, on his return to Malacañang, the President resumed his desk work. He lifted the ban on public school athletic meets below the regional level, which was instituted early this year.

Lifting of the ban was recommended by Director Liceria K. Soriano of Public Schools. Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz and Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. concurred with the decision.

November 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed the hope that the journey of Pope Paul VI will help achieve the universal dream of a lasting peace.

The President, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos and their children Imee and Irene, led a big crowd of well-wishers to bid good-bye to the Pontiff who left in the evening bound for Pago-Pago Islands in the Pacific, the next itinerary in his Asian tour.

In brief remarks prior to the Pope's departure, President Marcos quoted from the Pope's appeal to the United Nations which he said men must realize the truth.

His Holiness said then: "Peace is the fruit of a moral transformation of mankind, there is no improvising a true peace: one cannot maintain a peace that is imposed by oppression or by fear or by juridical orders that are unjust and no longer admissible. Peace must be human, and therefore free, just, happy."

In parting, the President asked the Holy Father "to pray for God's peace, a free, just and happy peace, for our people, and God's blessings on our Republic and its government, on the deliberations of those who chart our course to economic well-being and social justice and progress, and above all on the dispossessed and heartbroken among us, who are so close to your own heart, and to whom you have given fresh hopes which we shall all endeavor to fulfill." (See pp. 10853-E and 10853-F for full text of the President's speech.)

In the morning-, the President issued a proclamation declaring the period from February 15 to 21, 1971 as real estate industry week.

He also signed an administrative order, amending Administrative Order No. 240 of September 18, 1970, which created a committee to study the financing scheme for nationwide river control and reforestation projects.

The amending order includes the Commissioner of Forest Products Research and Industries Development Commission as a member of the Payer Control and Reforestation Committee.

In proclaiming a real estate industry week, the President took note of the coming meeting in Manila, starting February 15 next year, of the Sixth. Pan Pacific Congress of Real Estate Appraisers, Counselors and Valuers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent a quiet day working on government papers. In his message on the 107th birth anniversary of Andres Bonifacio, the president, said: On the occasion of Bonifacio day this year, we pay tribute to a man who inscribed his name in history by committing commonest of his fellowmen to the highest principles of individual honor, freedom and national dignity.

To that extraordinary common man, more than to many others perhaps in the pantheon of our remembered heroes, the nation owes much of the dynamic spirit that moves it to this day. Especially at a time when the nation is about to embark in the historic act of rewriting its Constitution, we are called upon to reaffirm the fact that it was perhaps in Bonifacio's, more than in any other's time, that we first sought to lay the foundation of a just equitable and progressive Filipino society.

The strong nationalist spirit, which animates a growing number of our countrymen today, makes it doubly incumbent upon us to come up with a new Constitution that will ensure the growth of that society.

Among other business, he granted executive clemency to 68 convicts, and smarted the sweeping reform of the country's Peñal system with proposals to decongest Muntinlupa prison.

The President granted the pardons and commutations of sentence as a gesture marking the Holy Father's visit here. The Peñal reforms have been part of the program of change the President had long envisioned, which he means to implement at this time with vigor.

Through the day, the President worked at his desk, except for brief breaks. He received no visitors,

December 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS proposed that Asia adopt an ideology of cooperation, to accelerate development and create for Asia an inner strength. He broached this idea, in a speech delivered at the opening ceremonies of the first Asian conference on agricultural credit and cooperatives, held at the Philamlife auditorium at about midmorning.

Earlier, the President as usual worked in his study. Then at about 10 a.m., he left Malacañang for the conference hall on United Nations avenue.

On his return to Malacañang, he received the Indian Minister on Power and Irrigation, Dr. K. L. Rao, who made a courtesy call following his arrival Monday for a weeklong visit at the invitation of the government. He will observe agricultural and hydroelectric projects in the country.

During the meeting with the justice secretary, the Chief Executive directed the former to prepare an administrative order transferring all prisoners serving not more than three-year terms from Muntinlupa to provincial jails.

The President issued the order upon being informed by Secretary Abad Santos that prisoners may be transferred from the national penitentiary to provincial jails without legislative authority.

The President had earlier instructed Secretary Abad Santos to look into the legality of transferring prisoners with light sentences from Muntinlupa to provincial jails as a means of decongesting the overcrowded national penitentiary

In the afternoon, the President received a delegation from Misamis Oriental led by Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez and Gov. Concordio Diel. The group took up local problems with the President, notably the procurement of waterworks facilities for the province.

Among those with the delegation were Provincial Board Members Alejandro and Francisco Abrogar; Provincial Treasurer Eleno Cabanlit, Gingoog City Mayor and Mrs. Romulo Rodriguez, Jr., Mayors Escolastico Laura of Lugait, Eugenio Alcid of Manticao, Salvador Legaspi of Naawan, Ismael Labis of Alubijid, Mariano Tan of El Salvador, Sergio Jocalan of Opol, Cesar Jamisalamín of Villanueva, Manuel Varquez of Balingasag, Jose Adar of Lagonglong, Jose Yatol of Sugbongcogon, Capistrano Legaspi of Kinoguitan, Vicente Santos of Balingcon, Victorino Serina of Talisayan, and Narcisa Pelaez of Medina.

Later in the afternoon, the President met once more with Monserrat, Feliciano and Quema, and the members of the National Olympic Committee, with whom the trio have had a falling out.

The President later issued an appeal to government officials and employees to contribute one-day's salary for the repair and reconstruction of elementary schools and hospitals destroyed by recent typhoons,

He issued the appeal after receiving a report on the extent of damage wrought by the recent typhoons from the National Disaster Control Committee, during a conference which he held in Malacañang in the evening.

The President said that these contributions will be added to the funds that the government will provide for the purpose in order to restore public facilities to normalcy as quickly as possible.

December 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a number of visitors and had several conferences with various officials, to make the day a particularly busy time.

Paying courtesy calls were:

1. Carlos Lleras Restrepo, former President of Colombia and the incumbent chairman of the United Nations FAQ special committee on agrarian reforms. He came with Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella and other local officials.
2. Gen. Jesus Vargas (AFP, retired), SSATO secretary-general, who consulted with the President on SEATO affairs, after a trip to Europe and the U. S. where he also talked with heads of states affiliated with the organization.
3. Kenneth MacLeish, senior assistant editor of the National Geographic Magazine, who has been here for a month looking into the conditions of Philippine cultural minorities. He was accompanied by PANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr.

The President conferred with former RCA Chairman Alfredo Montelibano; and later in the day with Sen. Mamintal Tamano, Gov. Arsenio Quibranza of Lanao del Norte and Princess Potri Ali Pacasum on problems of the region.

Also conferring with the President in the morning were Rep. Jose Puyat, Jr. and Gov. Recaredo Castillo of Surigao del Sur, along with a number of municipal mayors, on local problems.

For the rest of the his working day, he concentrated on official papers,

Among other things, the President:

1. Appointed four members of the board of directors of the Philippine-American Educational Foundation. Named directors were Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Dr. Juan Salcedo, Dr. Antonio Isidro, and Undersecretary Juan L. Manuel of the Department of Education.
2. Ordered that relief goods and seismograph and other detection instruments be sent immediately to Batanes, which recently suffered a series of earthquakes.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., relaying the President's order, wired Brig. Gen. Jesus Singson, chief of the Philippine Air Force, to assign a PAF plane to the relief mission for the province.

3. Asked Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos to give "such assistance as may be extended" to two newsmen in South Cotabato who are facing libel charges before the Court of First Instance of that province.

Reports reaching the President indicated that the two newspapermen. Victor C. Robin and Rene Peralta, editor-publisher and columnist, respectively, of the Southern Mail have been cited for libel by Mayor Restia de la Cruz of Norala, South Cotabato.

4. Ordered that henceforth, all those who will settle, on public lands must first of all organize themselves into agricultural cooperatives.

The formation of cooperatives among settlers, which follows the government policy of cooperative undertakings, will also help much in effecting rapid development of the new communities to be formed by the settlers, Jr. the spirit of “bayanihan,” which is a long cherished Filipino tradition.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received at least three big groups at Malacañang including public officials, and private individual callers.

As usual, the President had a full day of activity during which he issued. an appeal for full support of the Red Cross fund drive, which starts early next year; and named the new members of the government reorganization committee, representing the executive department, which includes two from the private sector. Chosen to head the committee was Armand Fabella

Other members named to the Commission were Cezar Zalamea and Roberto Ongpin. Along with Febella they will represent the Executive Department in the Commission. Members of the group “may come from within or without the government service, according to the reorganization law.

The other members are three senators appointed by the Senate President: Senators Salvador H. Laurel and Lorenzo Teves from the majority party, and Benigno Aquino, Jr. representing the minority party; and three Representatives appointed by the Speaker of the House: Reps, Rogaciano Mercado and Rafael Legaspi representing the majority party, and Justiniano S. Montano of the minority party.

The President also issued the official order transferring short-term prisoners in Muntinlupa to local jails, as one way of decongesting the national prison. The order was issued to Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos.

Notable among the President’s visitors were:

1. Ambassador Pablo Peña, Philippine envoy to Burma, who called for final instructions prior to his return to Rangoon. Peña accompanied General Ne Win and Mrs. Ne Win of Burma to Manila.

2. Former Supreme Court Justice Conrado Sanchez and former Solicitor General Arturo Alafriz, Jr., president of the Philippine chapter and member of the organizing committee for the Law Association of Asia and Western Pacific, and executive vice president of the Philippine Lawyers Association and chairman of the Manila Conference of the Law Association of Asia and Western Pacific, respectively, who called on the President, accompanied by Secretary Abad Santos, to invite the President to deliver the keynote speech at the opening of the said conference, to be held in Manila, from January 18 to 22, 1971, at the Philamlife auditorium.

Member countries include Ceylon, Fiji, Hongkong, India, Indonesia, Iran, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, Singapore, Taiwan, Thailand and Vietnam.

3. Judges Crispin and Augusto Sta. Maria, president and vice president, respectively, of the League of Municipal Judges, who took up with the President problems pertaining to the work of their colleagues.

4. A. delegation from Ifugao province, headed by Gov. Gualberto Lumauig and Rep. Romulo Lumauig, and which included Mayors Angelito Gianid of Lamut, Pugong Lopez of Hungduan and Carlos Cattiling of Potia, among others. The group took up local problems.

5. A delegation from Eastern Samar headed by Rep. Felipe Abrigo and Gov. Victor A. Amasa, and Mayors Cornelio Sison of Guiuan, Jesus Rediang of Mercedes, Francisco Cabogawan of Salcedo, Gregorio Anguren of Guinopandan, Filemon Gañas of Lawa-an, Guillermo Altar of MacArthur, Pedro Candido of Hernani, Rufilo Tan of Llorente, Gerundio Lira of Balancayan, Crispin Ambida of Maydolong, Luis Capito of Borongan, Felix Dolegon of San Julian, Aniceto Cabrerros of Taft, Pedro Cesista of An-avid, Hospicio Rivera of Dolores, Felix Morallos of San Policarpio, Pio Penangay of Arteche and Lucas Lomuntad of Jipapad, and Board Member S. Sabate. With the group were vice mayors of the foregoing towns and Gov. Irene Balite of Northern Samar. The delegation also took up local problems with the President.

In the afternoon, the President issued a Memorandum Circular limiting the government's appeal for voluntary contributions for the repairs of hospitals and schools to only those employees receiving salaries of ₱600 or more a month.

This limitation was embodied in a Memorandum Circular issued through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., which also proposed the adoption of the "One-Appeal-Plan" for generating a relief and rehabilitation fund. The new memorandum revoked Memorandum Circular No. 24, series of 1966, which instituted a "One-Appeal-Plan" for employee contributions for charitable purposes.

During the day, the President designated Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. as Philippine alternate governor with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD), commonly known as the World Bank.

Mr. Melchor fills the post vacated by former Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr. of the Presidential Economic Staff who was recently named IBRD executive director.

The Philippine government's participation in the World Bank is provided for in the articles of agreement of the IBRD, as set forth in the final act of the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference of July 22, 1944.

The Philippine IBRD governor is Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata who completes the Philippine participation in the World Bank with Secretary Melchor as his alternate, and Mapa as the executive director.

The term of each in the Bank is five years.

President's Week in Review: December 4-10, 1970

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS created the government committee to work with its counterpart in the private sector on the plans for setting up a copper smelting plant in the country.

The President also declared the period from December 8, 1970 to December 7, 1971, as "Philippine Pharmacy Centennial Year."

In another proclamation issued earlier, the Chief Executive declared the period from December 6 to 12, this year, as "Government Employees Week."

In issuing the latter proclamation, the President cited "the legions of honest and efficient government workers" and their contribution to nation-building.

"Recognition of their service is an incentive to greater dedication and efficiency in public office," he added.

The advisory committee on copper industry was asked to assess the possibility of the Philippines engaging in direct copper trade in the light of world production and the consumption of copper products. To be studied as well by the committee is the utilization of copper byproducts, especially the production of fertilizer.

Named to compose the committee are the chairman of the Board of Investments, the secretary of finance or his representative, and the director of mines, to represent the government side; and the chief executives of the copper producing companies or their authorized representatives, to represent the private sector.

At about 10:30 a.m., the President received a number of callers, among them U. P. President Salvador P. Lopez; the officers of the Philippine Band of Mercy who sought the release of its PCSO allotments, who included Godofredo Lorenzana, president; Beatriz Ronquillo, and Mesdames Joaquina Zapanta and Paz Reyes; and SSS Commissioner Inocencio Ferrer and Antonio Roxas Chua of the Philippine Anti-Communist Movement. The latter two visitors called to inform the President of the coming conference in Manila of the World Anti-Communist League and the Asian People's Anti-Communist League.

It was already well past 2 p.m. when the President was able to clear off his schedule of callers. He therefore asked Ernesto Maceda Secretary of Commerce and Industry to read for him his speech on the arrival of the first giant Boeing 747, otherwise known as the Jumbo Jet, to Manila.

In congratulating the Northwest Orient Airlines for bringing in the giant passenger jetliner, the President said the arrival of the 747 "should now reassure everyone that the Manila International Airport is ready to accommodate giant aircraft."

He pointed out that the Philippines has not only facilities to service modern jet planes and serve tourists but also enjoys a geographical advantage since it is a focal point for air travel in the Pacific.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked mostly at his desk, acting on official papers, including signing the appointments of two judges, and the members of the Board of Examiners for Electronics and Communications Engineers.

Appointed were Judge Emigdio H. Lopez, as district judge of the 15th Judicial District, to preside over the court of first instance of Agusan del Sur, with official station at the town of Prosperidad; and Silverio C. del Leon, as municipal judge of Makilala, Cotabato.

Named to the electronic and communications board of examiners were Engineers Rosauro P. Calupitan, Felicito Rey Signo and Rigoberto Z. Espinoza.

In a quiet day with no conferences or official callers on his schedule, the President found time to fulfill private engagements in the morning. In the afternoon and through the evening, he remained at his desk doing his paper work.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered a restudy of the Public Land Act, with the view to correcting the inequities which work against the poor.

He issued the order to the departments of justice and of agriculture and natural resources, in the course of a speech at the 17th annual convention of the Federation of Free Farmers (FFF) held at the San Beda College auditorium in the morning.

The President said the study will be to formulate an amendatory legislation to the Public Land Act, to be proposed to the coming regular session of Congress.

At the same time, the President ordered the director of lands to be guided by the rule that all grants and concessions granted, whether for logging, pasture, or mining, "are subject to private rights already established by long, continuous and unquestioned possession and ownership."

He said cultural minorities under this rule have established rights and titles to the lands which they and their ancestors had been occupying and tilling for generations and generations back.

In the afternoon, the President appointed another district judge, reappointed two members of the board of trustees of the National Coordinating Center for the Study and Development of Filipino Children and Youth (NCCSDFCY), while appointing three new members of the same board.

Those appointed by the Chief Executive were:

1. Eduardo C. Tutaan, as district judge of the 15th Judicial District. Judge Tutaan will preside over the court of first instance of Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, and the cities of Marawi and Iligan, Branch IV, with official station at Baroy, Lanao del Norte.

Reappointed to the same board following the expiration of their terms were Dr. Serafin D. Quiazon and Dr. Francisco Casanova. The board has the secretary of education as chairman, and the director of the Child Study Center as the other member.

Among other actions, the President approved the proposed ₱5 million trust fund for jeepney drivers, to be established by the Petroleum Institute of the Philippines, Inc.

The setting of the trust fund was broached to the PIP by the President when he met with oil and gasoline executives last July 16, by way of threshing out the problems confronting the jeepney drivers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a full day during which he visited Nayong Pilipino, named new officials, and received a number of callers, including two visitors from the Soviet Union,

He also attended to state papers which required his immediate attention. At Nayong Pilipino, the President formally opened “Ilocos Norte Week” at appropriate ceremonies prepared by Ilocano provincial officials.

He announced the appointment of Gov. Jose Evangelista as chairman of the Public Service Commission, and held him personally accountable to him for the institution of badly needed reforms in the PSC. Later he inducted Evangelista in the presence of members of the Governors and City Mayors League.

The President also mingled with young people who are “taking over” city hall, for the duration of Boys and Girls Week. He took occasion to speak on student activism in these words:

However, he added, before change can take hold in the country, “there must be change in man, in his heart and in his mind.”

At noon, the President handed to Jaime Zobel de Ayala letters of instructions for the latter who proceeds to London presently as new Philippine envoy to the Court of St. James.

Among other visitors, the President met Valentina Lubomudrova, member of the USSR Presidium, and Prof. Nicolai Tsagolov, who paid their respects following their arrival last Thursday.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Igor Podberesky, a Russian scholar who studied Tagalog in Moscow under Teodosio Lansang and is now a UP student; Reps. Nicanor Yñiguez, Jose Leido, Jr. and Juliano Alba of Capiz and PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa.

To cap a full day, the President received members of the Airlines Pilots Association of the Philippines, who came with Labor Relations Director Amado Inciong, to try and resolve the continuing dispute between the association and management of Philippine Airlines.

In the afternoon, the President designated Jesus Tanchanco as a member of the board of administrators of the National Electrification Administration, a government agency created under Republic Act No. 6038.

Later, the President revoked Memorandum Circular No. 409, issued November 21, which instituted a five-hour working day and three-day weekened in areas covered by Proclamation No. 775.

Through the Executive Secretary, the President directed that effective tomorrow (December 8) all government offices affected by Circular 409 shall revert to the usual legal office hours of from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The shortened work schedule in government offices was instituted to enable those state workers whose homes were destroyed by the typhoon to attend to their repair or rehabilitation.

AFTER rising quite early, President Marcos worked at his desk, then at about half past 8 went to Canlubang with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, for a private engagement.

On his return to Malacañang, the President resumed his desk work.

Late in the afternoon, he sat down with Benigno Toda, Jr. PAL president and Rafael Ygoa, executive vice president to thresh out the problems of the airline, particularly the threatened mass resignation of PAL pilots.

After the meeting, the President continued to work on government papers, which he did through the evening.

In a speech at the ceremonies marking the centenary of pharmaceutical education in the Philippines, held at the Hotel Intercontinental, which was read for him by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., the President asked the nation's pharmacists to continue to upgrade their profession and make it "relevant to the needs of our society."

The President cited the rich tradition of pharmaceutical education in the country which has bred patriots and national leaders.

He also reiterated his exhortation to pharmacists, first made at the convention of Asian pharmacists some weeks ago, to help in their own sphere in the effort to enhance regional cooperation through exchange of vital information and research data on pharmacy.

December 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a briefing from defense officials, led by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile.

The defense brass briefed the President on wide-ranging subjects from 11:20 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Earlier in the morning, the President received callers and gave one press interview.

One of the callers was Minister Samson Sabalones, charge d'affairs of the Philippine embassy in Laos. Sabalones called to receive final instructions before leaving for his post.

The Chief Executive next received Reps. Marcelino Veloso of Leyte, Emilio Espinosa, Jr. of Masbate and Carlos Imperial of Albay. He discussed with them local problems.

At mid-morning, the President motored to Camp Aguinaldo, where he received a briefing from defense officials.

In the afternoon, he worked on official papers through early evening when he broke off to receive new world flyweight champion Erbito Salavarria, the 23-year old fighter from Biñan, Laguna, who wrested the world crown by a second round TKO, from Chartchai Chionoi of Thailand the other day.

Salavarria arrived on a KLM plane at 7 o'clock in the evening and made his call on the President immediately.

During the call, the Chief Executive asked Chairman Justiniano Montano, Jr. of the Games and Amusement Board to prepare a project study on the establishment of a national coliseum for the benefit of Filipino champions.

At the same time, the President congratulated Salavarria, saying his feat was a victory and honor of the country. The President expressed the hope that the new Philippine world title holder will be able to retain his crown for many more years.

The President asked for the project study after Chairman Montano and other boxing aficionados including Mamerto Besa, president of the Philippine Boxing Association, had sought his help in the establishment of a national coliseum.

The boxing fans informed the President that because of the lack of a national coliseum in the Philippines, most of the Filipino champions are forced to defend their titles in foreign countries, where they are sometimes at the risk of a hometown decision unless they win by knockout or TKO.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked mostly on state papers, receiving only one visitor throughout the whole day, US Ambassador Henry Byroade who informed the President that the US government is ready to turn over Sangley Point, an American naval base, to the Philippines.

Among other directives issued by the President was the order to the PC chief to provide protection for a farmer's family threatened with death by unidentified parties. The head of the family was himself earlier killed by assassins.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. also saw the President to inform him of the arrival of a team of experts from India, who will help the Philippine National Railways modernize its service.

The team, headed by Manuel Menezes, director of research of the Indian Ministry of Railways, and K. Visivanatharn and T. P. S. Kent, will conduct initially a study of the railway system.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked at his desk and received several delegations until early in the afternoon.

First to see him was a delegation from Mindanao headed by Sen. Mamintal A. Tamano during which they discussed local problems and the annual pilgrimage to Mecca.

The group included Mayor Omar Dianalan of Marawi City, Sheik Sakalaram Hadji Nono, and Aman Mino.

Next to see the President was another big delegation from Rizal, composed of members of the Mayors' League of that province. The local officials sought the President's help, in rehabilitating their typhoon-damaged communities. Among others, they asked national government aid in reconstructing schools and hospitals, repairing roads and other public facilities.

In the group were Mayors Florencio Bernabe of Parañaque, Pedro Fineza of Binangonan, Antonio Esguerra of Taytay, Eustacio Flores of Pateros, Jose Oliveros of Antipolo, Monico Tanyag of Taguig, Juan Vidallo of Jala-Jala, Felipe del Rosario of Navotas, Arturo Natividad of Teresa, Jose Luciano of Makati, and Macario Asistio of Caloocan City.

Other callers included Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles, who submitted a report on the 13th UNESCO general conference held in Paris, France; Reps. Fermin Caram, Jr. of Iloilo and Simeon Valdez of Ilocos Norte; Commissioner of Customs Rolando Geotina, and OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez.

In the afternoon, the President received more callers, notably the leaders of a tour group composed of Filipinos from Hawaii.

During the call, Bart Alcazar, tour manager, informed the President that seven more groups, all consisting of Filipinos, will come to the Philippines from Hawaii in the next few months.

Other; in the group were Frank Rebultan, tour director; Laurie Miguel, tour social director; and PTTA Executive Director Salvador Peña.

In a major action during- the day, the Chief Executive ordered the dismissal of a senior special attorney for "conduct unbecoming a public official."

Removed from the service was Ernesto A. Atienza of the Office of the Agrarian Counsel in Naga City.

In connection with the observance of Census Day for Agriculture and Fisheries, which the President earlier declared, the Chief Executive created a Presidential Census Coordinating Board, which would be responsible for the systematic coordination of government agencies involved in the conduct of the 1971 census of agriculture and fisheries.

The President also proclaimed December 15, Tuesday, as a special public holiday in Naga City. The day marks the 22nd charter anniversary of the city.

RECEIVING no callers during the day, the President devoted himself exclusively to his office work, concentrating on studying reports submitted to him by various government agencies and acting on state matters brought to his attention.

In the course of the day's work, he resolved the administrative cases against five judges, all of whom he disciplined after studying the results of the investigation of their individual cases.

He suspended one judge and lined the four others.

Except for occasional rest periods, the President worked steadily at his desk through the day.

Due to pressure of work, he cancelled a speaking engagement at Fernando Air Base, to address the graduates of the PAF flying school there, and requested Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to deliver his speech for him at the exercises.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Marcos drove to the Manila International Airport to meet their son Ferdinand, Jr., who arrived early this afternoon from his school in Sussex United Kingdom to spend the Christmas holidays here.

While at the airport, the President had occasion to exchange amenities with former Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan who was transiting through Manila.

The First Family was back at Malacañang at 3:40 p.m.

Later, in a memorandum circular issued through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., the President urged all local officials in the typhoon-devastated, areas to give priority to the hospitals and school buildings in the rehabilitation and repair of damaged public properties in their respective localities.

The President said that the continued maintenance of public educational and health services demand the early rehabilitation and repair of damaged public school and hospital buildings.

He pointed out that this could be achieved only with the coordinated efforts of all agencies concerned in all levels of the government.

The pressure of desk work prevented the President from attending the award ceremonies for the Ten Outstanding Policemen of the Philippines, held at the Quirino grandstand in the afternoon.

He asked Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to read for him his prepared speech for the occasion.

In his speech, the President congratulated the exemplary policemen even as he asked the nation's citizenry to "pursue their work in a more meaningful manner." He also hailed the Philippine Jaycees, who sponsored the TOPP and other project which "aim to extol the quality of excellence."

Only six cops were chosen to be given the TOPP award, namely;

1. Captain David Laquian, executive officer of the Manila Police Department, Precinct 5.

3. Det. Nicasio Beltran of MPD Precinct No. 8.
4. Sgt. Francisco Baguio of the Maigo Police Department in Lanao del Norte.

While only six outstanding policemen were honored, the President said he was sure there are plenty of outstanding members of the police corps, and that the awardees now are the “finest” among the elite.

December 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos and their children Imee, Bongbong, and Irene, played Santa Claus in the afternoon to thousands of indigent children who were the special guests at the “Maligayang Pasko ‘70” children’s festival in Malacañang.

The children, who arrived in dozens of buses as early as 2 p.m. come from 31 parishes and 26 closed institutions and orphanages in the Greater Manila area.

In the morning, the President conferred with Cabinet officials and Cavite provincial and city officials and civic leaders on the expected dislocation of some 1,424 Filipino workers who may be laid off from work with the reversion of the US Naval Base at Sangley Point to the Philippine government.

He also discussed with the Cavite leaders plans to transform Cavite City into an industrial city.

During the conference, the President directed:

1. Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and the Presidential Economic Staff to look into the feasibility of setting up labor-incentive industries in Cavite City;
2. Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople to have a survey team from the Manpower Training Center conduct a census of the Sangley Point workers, classifying them according to the types of work they do, skills, and salaries, so that possible placement elsewhere would be facilitated; and
3. Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino to submit in a week’s time a plan for construction of a coastal highway linking Cavite City to Manila directly.

Other major actions taken by the President was the suspension of the sale of tobacco in the PYTA, pending the creation of a Cabinet committee to handle the sale of PVTA tobacco stock.

He directed that such a committee be immediately constituted with the following members: Secretary of Finance, Secretary of Justice, the Auditor General or his representative, the PVTA General Manager, and a representative of the Liberal Party.

The President cited the work of the FFCCC in helping the government build and maintain a stable society,

In his message to the Second Conference of LAWASIA, an organization of lawyers from different countries of Asia and the Western Pacific, the President said:

The Republic of the Philippines considers it a singular honor to be the host of the Second Conference of LAWASIA, an organization of lawyers from different countries of Asia and the Western Pacific. In behalf of the Filipino people, I convey our warm greetings to the conference delegates and our good wishes for their pleasant sojourn in our country.

It is well that an association of the scope of LAWASIA has been founded, because it has awakened in its members of diverse nationalities the consciousness of professional and regional kinship.

For the common concerns of lawyers, such as the just settlement of controversies and the preservation of social peace under law, constitute a noble mission that should transcend national boundaries, political creeds, and religious beliefs.

I hope that the realization of this identity in diversity will spark earnest efforts within the region to answer the need for new legal directions that will contribute to the betterment of socio-economic conditions in our part of the globe. Archaic legal doctrines must be radically overhauled to make them more progressive and vigorous instruments of human development, in keeping with the requirements of our time.

May this fresh awakening in Asia and the Western Pacific forge stronger bonds among the people of this region and open a new era of closer cooperation and understanding among us in the sensitive area of law and justice.

December 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had several closed door conferences with various officials, and as usual received other visitors.

He worked for a -while at his desk early in the morning, then one after the other received individual officials who took up urgent matters.

Among those the President conferred with in the morning were Central Bank Deputy Governor Amado Briñas, Reparations Commissioner Gregorio Abad, Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, NDC Chairman Constante Fariñas, Vicente Paterno, chairman of the Board of Investments; and CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr.

One of the topics discussed was the speedy rehabilitation of typhoon ravaged towns and barrios. He asked the Central Bank to spur moves that would channel as much money in circulation as possible to the provinces in order to speed up the rehabilitation of rural areas which suffered from the typhoons.

The President also conferred with several congressmen, including Reps. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Artemio Loyola of Davao del Sur, and William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental.

Later in the day, the President received Sen. Leonardo Perez, who took up problems of his constituency.

The President then worked on official papers, issuing in the process a proclamation creating a national committee to take charge of the observance of Rizal Day.

December 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had several conferences in the morning, with a break in between when he joined the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, to speed off the 50 trucks carrying Christmas cheer to the needy of the Greater Manila area.

Early in the morning, the President worked at his desk, then had his first conference of the day, to discuss the details of the aid in kind to localities hit hard by the recent typhoons.

The President asked his official family to spend the season in the field particularly among the unfortunate victims of the floods and series of typhoons which wrought heavy damage to the country.

The President said he will start his Christmas trip with a visit to Bicolandia, during which he will confer with local officials and distribute credit certificates which will entitle barrio captains to requisition cement for school buildings from district engineers' offices.

The conferees agreed that the certificates would be distributed to the barrio captains and that each barrio official could draw up to 1.50 bags of cement, or as much cement as indicated by a previous survey made by the Department- of Public Works and. Communications. The cement will be charger to the Development Bank of the Philippines.

Present at the meeting were Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Secretary of Finance Cesar E A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros. DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata and Governor Jose V. de Ocampo. and Carlos Leaño of the Infrastructure Operations Center (IOC).

Then at 10 a.m., the President and the First Lady stepped out of Malacañang to see off the student volunteers and others helping the First Lady bring off Maligayang Pasko 70.

Back in Malacañang about an hour later, the President worked for a while, then met behind closed doors with Secretary Virata and BIR Commissioner Misael P. Vera on the revamp of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Next, the President conferred with a delegation of mayors from Cotabato, with the governor sitting in, on the peace and order condition in the province.

Gov. Simeon Datumanong informed the President that although there were incidents in five municipalities, general peace prevail in General Santos City and in 29 municipalities of the province. Trouble spots, he added, were only the municipalities of Upi, Lebak, Magatoy, Ampatuan and Datu Flang.

The President, however, said that further violence must stop and that the best way to do this was to hold a peace conference where all sides could present their views and work toward a just settlement of all disputes.

The President has scheduled a conference of feuding minorities and other factions in the province.

At about noon, the President taped an interview with Dr. Oswald C. J. Hoffman, president of the Lutheran National Council of America. The interview was for broadcast throughout the world on the Lutheran radio network. The First Lady was also interviewed along with the President.

Other visitors received by the President were Reps. Emerito S. Calderon of Cebu, Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur, and Jose Luyat, Jr. of Surigao del Norte. The solons took up problems of their respective districts.

PRESIDENT MARCOS left Manila early in the morning for Camarines Sur, where he launched the new program of the government, which is to extend assistance-in-kind to localities with the use of a “credit card.”

Landing at Pili airport at about 10 a.m., the President conferred with local officials while waiting for the plane bearing the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R Marcos. After she arrived, the presidential party motored to the Marcos Stadium in the center of the town for the ceremonies awarding plaques and citations to American officials and military units involved in the relief and rescue operations for typhoon victims.

From Pili, the President and party drove to Bato, another town, where the President distributed “credit cards” to barrio captains. Simultaneously, the First Lady distributed gift packages to the needy, in extension of her Maligayang Pasko 70 project.

It was about 12:30 p.m. when the President and his party drove back to Pili where they took off for the return trip to Manila.

In the afternoon, the President worked at his desk, breaking off at about 4 p.m. to officiate at the markmanship award ceremonies of the Presidential Security Agency, held at Malacañang Park. The First Lady and children Imee, Bongbong and Irene also attended the affair.

The President also issued a proclamation declaring December 18, Friday, as a special public holiday in the city and province of Iloilo in honor of Graciano Lopez Jaena, one of the patriots of the Philippine Revolution, whose birth anniversary falls on that date.

December 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued his visits to the provinces, choosing this time Bulacan and Rizal where he distributed at Guiguinto and Pasig checks and “credit cards” to barrio officials. The cards can be used to draw from, district engineers’ offices the needed construction materials to repair public buildings, such as schools.

Accompanying him was the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, who on her part distributed medical kits to the barrio officials and gift bags to indigents.

Among those present at the distribution were Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Commissioner of Highways Baltazar Aquino, Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan, Vice Governor Amado T. Pineda, the members of the Bulacan Provincial Board, and PACD Administrator Rosendo Marquez. About 1000 local officials were also present.

The President was out all day, ending up late in the afternoon at Camp Aguinaldo where he was guest speaker at the commencement exercises of the second batch of graduates of the Philippine Command and General Staff College.

In his speech, the President lent new urgency to the task of preserving democracy as the Filipino way of life and to its improvement which, he said, may even be more important.

He asked the graduates to share with other concerned citizens the “task of vigorous and substantial reform” so that the democratic system could enhance the people’s life.

Back in the Palace at about 7 p.m., he rested before resuming his office work. He took up only urgent matters which required his attention, including the appointment of Epifanio R. Pangramuyen as deputy commissioner of the Civil Service Commission. The post has been vacant for some time.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked mostly at his desk, studying reports and state papers requiring his immediate attention. He had no prior schedule of visitors or conferences, but summoned to Malacañang Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief; and Brig. Gen. Mariano Ordoñez, Metrocom chief, for a conference, during which the Chief Executive inquired into the report that the Metrocom “raided” the CIS headquarters.

At this instance, the PC and the Metrocom chiefs informed the President that the press report was less than accurate, since the so-called raid was merely a response to an alarm that armed civilians were acting suspiciously in the CIS area. The same response was made to a report that similarly unidentified armed civilians were in the premises of the ANCAR headquarters.

Towards the end of the conference, the President also directed Secretary Enrile to loan to the city of Manila dump trucks to help Mayor Villegas solve the city garbage problem.

Mayor Villegas had written Malacañang requesting the President to make available some army trucks for hauling of garbage from Manila streets.

The President also told Secretary Enrile to proceed with the preparations for the holding of a peace conference in Cotabato on Dec. 28, to arrest prevailing tension between Muslims and Tirurays.

Following his conference with Secretary Enrile and the PC and Metrocom chiefs, the President received Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, who called at Malacañang straight from the airport upon his arrival from the U.S. where he attended the UN General Assembly sessions to report on the same and the Philippine delegation's participation in the said assembly.

In turn, the President congratulated the foreign affairs secretary for his effective handling of the Philippine-sponsored resolutions on air hijacking; the need for a reappraisal of the UN charter; and on the rechanneling of savings from disarmament to aid for developing countries.

The President had no other visitors through the day, thus leaving him free to work at his desk.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, visited Balanga, the provincial capital of Bataan, where they distributed cement credit cards, credit notices representing shares of local governments in the special highway fund, medical assistance kits and Maligayang Pasko '70 gift bags.

The First Couple, accompanied by members of the Cabinet and other government officials, arrived in Balanga at 10 a.m. aboard a helicopter which flew them from the National Shipyards and Steel Corporation in Mariveles, where the RPS 777 was docked.

Upon their arrival, the presidential party was welcomed by a big crowd headed by Rep, Pablo Roman, Gov. Guillermo Arcenas, other provincial, municipal and barrio officials.

The President and his party proceeded to the Balanga School of Arts and Trades where the distribution was made after the President had explained why cement credit cards instead of cash were being given as aid to the local governments which suffered heavy losses during the typhoons.

The President turned over to the provincial treasurer and the municipal mayors credit advices authorizing them to withdraw their shares of the special highway fund from the Philippine National Bank.

Then the President turned over the cement credit cards and medical assistance kits to the 172 barrio captains and their representatives.

After the distribution, the First Lady, assisted by members of the party, unloaded two truckloads of Maligayang Pasko '70 gift bags, some of which were distributed direct to the indigents while the rest were turned over to the governor, the mayors and the barrio captains for distribution.

At a little past noon, the President and the First Lady boarded the helicopter for their trip back to Mariveles to board the RPS 777 for their return trip to Manila.

Later in the afternoon, following a brief rest, the President worked on official papers in his study. He signed, among others, the ad interim appointments of Jose L. Magpali as clerk of court of the Court of First Instance of Pangasinan, Tayug branch, and of Adelaida C. Salom as municipal judge of Cabugao, Ilocos Sur.

In the morning, the President fulfilled only one outside engagement as guest of honor, in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the country's armed forces, at the rites marking the 35th anniversary of the AFP.

In his speech, the Chief Executive once again called on the nation's soldiers to initiate reforms and other change within the military organization in response to the need of the times for such change.

Accompanying the President to Camp Aguinaldo, where the ceremonies were held was the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, who on her part distributed gift bags to the families of the enlisted men of the AFP.

On returning to Malacañang, the President resumed his office work. He issued among others, a proclamation declaring December 26, December 31, 1970 and January 2, 1971 as special public holidays.

December 26, Saturday, falls between Christmas Day and Sunday; December 31, Thursday, falls between Rizal Day and New Year's Day which falls on Friday, thus January 2, Saturday, comes in between two holidays.

The President declared the special holidays to enable employees to go to their home provinces and enjoy the Yuletide holidays with their families.

The President also went over a formal report on the full implementation by the Development Bank of the Philippines of his directive to assist the victims of typhoon "Yoling."

DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata said in his report that the bank is granting a maximum loan of ₱10,000 per calamity victim for the repair and restoration of damaged houses.

Chairman Virata also said that the DBP is granting assistance to government projects and public utilities.

December 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS again focused on his office work, dispensing for that reason his usual crowded schedule of visitors.

He received only one caller, Mohammed Tewfik Oweide of the United Arab Republic, who called to pay his respects following his arrival in Manila to attend the first Muslim National Conference and the inauguration of the Supreme Council of Islamic Affairs, to be held in Marawi City from December 25 to 27.

The President's other activity outside of desk work was his induction into office of the new ranking military officials he has appointed. Sworn in by the President were Brigadier Generals Fidel Ramos, Teodorico P. Almuete, Domingo C. Tutaan, Edilberto C. V. Bernales; Commodores Leovigildo Gantioqui and Octavio A. Posadas.

After these two activities, the President continued working on state papers, including a review of the proposed rules and regulations submitted by the Board of Investments, simplifying export procedure for all exporters registered under the Export Incentives Act, which he approved.

A result of the joint effort of various government agencies involved in exportation, the simplified procedure reduces pre-exportation requirements being followed by exporters, from 13 to only three (3) basic steps, (to wit:

1. Exporter applies for export permit.
2. Exporter pays arrastre, and
3. Exporter loads goods and services in the presence of customs inspectors.

The simplified procedure has three main features, which were realized without in any way sacrificing government revenue collection.

These are the elimination of unnecessary documents, reduction in frequency of commodity clearance, and postponement of wharfage fees.

December 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS constituted the Committee on Presidential Award in Education even as he continued concentrating on desk work and other matters of state.

In an executive order that he issued from his desk, the President designated Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and Julieta Benedicto as members of the award committee.

The executive order provides for the designation of the incumbent Secretary of Education as chairman, and a former secretary of education and an outstanding citizen as members.

The Presidential Award in Education will be granted to citizens who have made significant and distinctive contribution to education in the country.

Among other actions, the President appointed three municipal judges, two registers of deeds, one clerk of court of the Court of First Instance, and a city treasurer.

Appointed ad interim Municipal Judges were Adelaida Centeno Salon, for Cabugao, Ilocos Sur, Silverio C. de Leon, for Makilala, Cotabato; and; Benjamin S. Abalos, for Pasig, Rizal.

Designated acting registers of deeds were Santiago Bautista, Jr. of San Jose City and Isabel G. Ibad of Cotabato City.

Named acting city treasurer was Virgilio B. Buendia of Batangas City, while Jose L. Magpali was appointed ad interim clerk of court of the Court of First Instance of Pangasinan.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a new proclamation further amending Proclamation No. 775 dated November 20, 1970, as amended by Proclamation No. 776 dated November 23, 1970, so as to include the provinces of Batanes and Laguna as calamity areas.

Under Proclamation No. 775, the areas declared as in a state of public calamity were the Greater Manila area, Rizal and Bataan. To these areas were added, by virtue of the amending Proclamation No. 776 the provinces of Bulacan, Pampanga and Zambales.

The new Proclamation included Batanes and Laguna in the calamity areas because of the heavy damage to public and private properties and agricultural crops in these provinces, also wrought by the recent typhoon.

The President did not receive callers in order that he could dispose of important state papers, as well as go over the list of prisoners recommended for executive clemency by the Board of Pardons and Parole.

He extended executive clemency to 115 prisoners in keeping with the tradition of granting pardons to deserving prisoners during the Christmas season.

Of these prisoners, eight were given absolute pardons, one a special absolute pardon, four conditional pardons, 58 conditional pardons with parole conditions, and 44 commutations of sentence.

In other actions, the President ordered the deportation of three Chinese nationals whose continued presence in the country is considered a menace to the peace and safety of the community.

President's Week in Review: December 25, 1971 – January 7, 1971

President's Week in Review: January 8-14, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS heard for the second time in as many days the views of both the striking and non-striking groups of jeepney drivers on the price ceiling of gasoline, during which the two groups also made known their respective stands on the question of a strike.

The striking group, led by Lupiño Lazaro of the Pangkalahatang Samahan ng Maynila at Suburbs Drivers Associations (Pasang-Masda) said they would continue with the strike pending a favorable outcome of the President's scheduled meeting with executives of oil firms, while the non-striking group, a splinter group of the Pasang-Masda headed by Oscar Lazaro, said they would continue plying their routes.

In the course of his talks with the two groups, whom he met separately, the President:

1. Directed Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, who is also acting chairman of the Price Control Council, to finish the hearings on the increase in fuel cost, stressing that the PCC should come to a decision in the shortest possible time. Hearings should be conducted continuously, he said.

2. Asked J. J. Wolahan, president of the Petroleum Institute of the Philippines, to confer with other oil executives and to consider rolling back the prices of gasoline in the meantime that the PCC's decision on its price ceiling is being awaited.

In his talk with Wolahan over the telephone, the President deplored the raising of gasoline prices by the oil companies before notifying him of their decision, which was contrary to a previous understanding.

3. Directed Chairman Jose Evangelista of the Public Service Commission to advise bus and jeepney operators to allow their drivers to ply their routes.

4. Ordered the Philippine Constabulary and the Metrocom to put more men in the field to provide security to non-striking drivers of vehicles plying their routes because of reports of harassments allegedly perpetrated by people identified with the striking group.

During his meeting with the drivers' groups, the President also discussed the possibility of the government putting up its own oil refinery or acquiring the majority stocks of oil refineries.

Complimentary to this is the establishment of fuel and spare parts cooperatives by the drivers' unions to be financed out of the ₱5 million trust fund set aside by the gasoline companies for such projects.

The President asked the drivers to agree on who should represent them in the board of trustees of the trust fund, when informed that the board members representing the drivers was not their choice for the board.

Earlier in the day, the President directed Chairman Gregorio Abad of the Reparations Commission to undertake a special mission to Japan for the Philippine government, in connection with the procurement of reparations.

At the same time the President designated Repacom Commissioner Anacleto Mangaser acting chairman of the Commission.

He also received Ambassador Ake Rodolf Wither of Finland who paid a farewell call prior to leaving for his country for reassignment.

Wither has been serving as a non-resident envoy of Finland to the Philippines, being the Finnish resident ambassador in Tokyo.

A slight fever prevented the President from receiving other callers. They, instead, paid social calls on the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos.

The callers included Dr. Georges Fischer, a scholar lecturer on Rizal; Rep. Romulo Lumaig and Gov. Gualberto Lumaig of Ifugao; Ex-Gov. Dominador Camerino and Myrna Santiago of Cavite; Mayor Emma Gadi of Kidapawan and Mayor Bai Tonina of Pagalungan, both in Cotabato.

In the afternoon, the President received Capt. O. Forsberg, president of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association, who paid a social call.

The President met with the leaders of jeepney drivers late in the evening.

January 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Price Control Council to establish whether there is a prima facie case for the oil companies to increase the price of gasoline. He gave the order to the council after meeting in the morning with oil executives who were summoned to Malacañang in the wake of the transportation strike arising from the price hike.

The President ordered Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, concurrently Price Control Council action officer, to find out at the hearings of the council whether added costs allegedly incurred by the companies would justify confirmation or suspension of the price increase.

The President deplored the fact that the prices of oil and gasoline had been increased even before the council had a chance to take up the recommendation of Manila City Mayor Antonio J. Villegas for the increase in prices of gasoline by two centavos, and diesel oil by three centavos per liter.

The President asked the oil executives to extend to the council maximum cooperation in seeking to resolve the issue.

The President also directed:

1. Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros and the Board of Investments to appear at the council's hearings and testify on the supposed additional costs being incurred by oil companies and which were being used as basis for increasing prices by the same companies.
2. Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata to finish in 90 days a close investigation into the books of accounts of the oil companies to determine once and for all the margin of profit being made by these companies.

The President also directed the Public Service Commission through Chairman Jose Evangelista to apprehend all public carriers whose non-operation would be violative of the Public Service Law.

The President reminded Evangelista that the Commission is empowered to withdraw certificate of conveniences from operators of public vehicles violating the terms of their certificates.

He also asked the commissioner to help government authorities gather and bring evidence against certain parties reported to have been collecting unauthorized "fees" from taxi drivers.

Evangelista had submitted names of these parties to the President and the latter endorsed these names to the appropriate investigating agencies.

Present at the conference were J. J. Wolahan and Francis Ablan of Caltex, P. J. Crumbine of Mobil Oil, J. Chuidian of Filoil, T. E. Wallace of ESSO, E. L. Shepley of Getty Oil, Emil Cowing of Shell Company, and Ramon V. del Rosario of Filoil.

Before the meeting with the oil executives, the President had a huddle with Secretary Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Governor Licaros, Secretary Maceda and Chairman Evangelista.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda U. Marcos sent off master Ferdinand Jr. to London to resume his schooling.

Together with Imee and Irene, and close friends, the First Family motored to the Manila International Airport, arriving there at about 6 p.m.

PRESIDENT MARCOS outlined an eight point plan designed to broaden the government's social justice program.

Addressing the first national convention of the Philippine Congress of Trade Unions at the Magsaysay Hall of the Social Security System building in Quezon City, the President said the goals of his administration are:

1. A massive low-cost housing program for the masses.
2. Creation of public defenders' office to provide free legal aid to indigent laborers.
3. Establishment of employment exchange offices to facilitate employment and systematize the chaotic labor market.
4. Encourage the organization of workers' consumer cooperatives to help secure low and reasonable prices.
5. The merger of the Court of Industrial Relations and the Court of Agrarian Relations.
6. Establishment of a Workers' Bank, to meet the special credit requirements of the workers.
7. A more serious study of unemployment insurance to be administered jointly by the Department of Labor, the Social Security System and the Government Service Insurance System.
8. A new land policy designed to effect the full development of idle lands, both public and private, as early as possible.

The President also told the convention that in accordance with the appeal of labor leaders, he had authorized the distribution of 90 percent of the ₱30 million expected from the ₱1 fee to be collected on every picul of sugar produced, as bonus for the sugar workers.

He further said that a legislation had been pending in Congress for sometime for a massive low-cost housing program for workers. The President also appealed to the labor leaders to police their own ranks because the implementation of the labor laws was their primary responsibility.

Earlier, the Pagkakaisa ng Manggagawang Pilipino group, led by its president Roberto Oca, pledged its support to the President in the current controversy between the oil companies and the jeepney drivers.

Oca informed the President that the PMP will support every move of the President to resolve the controversy particularly because the jeepney strike was causing hardship among the workers who could not go to work and earn a living.

While attending to his desk work in the afternoon, the President designated Jose Alvarez, director of the Rizal Park, as officer-in-charge of the Parks and Wildlife Office.

Alvarez took the place of Director of Forestry Jose Viado, who has been concurrent Parks and Wildlife Office head.

The President also directed the Department of Education to resume classes in all schools. Classes were suspended by the education department due to the strike of jeepney drivers.

January 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS held a two-hour joint conference with the leaders of Congress and the executive committee of the Foreign Policy Council, in Malacañang in the morning.

1. The legislative program for the current year, and
2. A preview of the report and recommendations which he would submit to Congress, at the opening of its regular session.

The President also set a meeting of the Foreign Policy Council to discuss the issue of establishing trade and diplomatic relations with Socialist countries.

Upon instructions of the President, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo furnished the meeting with background materials on the proposed establishment of trade and diplomatic relations with Socialist countries.

The President opened the conference by emphasizing two persistent demands brought about by the series of natural calamities which hit the country, namely:

1. The liberalization of credit and release of funds to reinvigorate economic activity.
2. The need for balancing the budget.

He said there was a need to balance the two demands with the release of money without causing a runaway inflation at the same time increasing agricultural productivity.

The President emphasized that the agricultural recovery program in the typhoon-ravaged provinces would need ₱35.5 million, and that the total damage caused by the floods and typhoons had been placed by the National Economic Council at over ₱600 million.

The President also asked the financing institutions to consider the possibility of recalling money that had been lent out or all maturing-loans to support productive enterprise, thus reorienting the financing system.

He also asked Congress leaders to study the proposals of the United Coconut Association to continue without the reglamentary annual reduction the export tax on coconut products so that the proceeds could be used to rehabilitate the coconut industry.

The President also called for:

1. Restructuring of the country's educational system.
2. Restudy of the tariff structure with the view to its simplification.
3. Revision of the provisions in the Special Highway Fund Act and the National Internal Revenue Code regarding the distribution and allocation of snares of cities and provinces in the special highway fund and the excess income tax collections.

The President said that under the present system the students are trained to go to the higher class but not to productive pursuits. Thus, he added, they cannot get employed.

The President called for a study of the tariff structure and suggested that a foreign exchange tax be imposed on the sale of foreign exchange. The proceeds from this tax, the President said, could then be utilized to further economic development activities.

He also proposed a total ban on the importation of luxuries, and, with the concurrence of the leaders of Congress, directed Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros to draft the necessary bill for submission to the next regular session of Congress.

He said that four significant developments had been quite overlooked by analysts which are favorable and had come from Congress and are of permanent characters.

The Central Bank Governor said these are:

1. The Export Tax Law, Sec. 5 of which provides restrictions on Central Bank credit to government, thereby establishing exchange restrictions to prevent the printing of money, etc.
2. The Foreign Borrowing Act, which limits to 20 percent the amount that could be used for servicing debts, thus automatically restricting the volume of external debt.
3. The Export Incentives Law which gives stronger impetus to the export policy adopted with the floating rate.
4. The tax on securities.

Governor Licaros said these provided the necessary guidelines for the proper implementation of the Investment Incentives Act which are of legislative origin and of permanent nature.

The President and the Congress leaders also explored the possibility of further increasing the tourist trade and exploring market possibilities for Philippine products in the United States and Canada.

Present at the conference were Vice President Fernando Lopez, Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., Senate Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, Rep. Natalio P. Castillo;

Secretary Virata, Secretary Romulo, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Jr., Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Undersecretary of Agriculture Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Governor Licaros, Board of Investments Chairman Vicente Paterno, Presidential Economic Staff Director General Apolinario Orosa, Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave, and Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad.

Earlier, the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, received government officials and members of the diplomatic corps at the traditional reception held at Malacañang for the new year.

Then followed members of Congress led by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., members of the judiciary headed by Chief Justice Roberto Concepcion, and ranking officials in the executive department, and their wives.

In the traditional exchange of toasts between the President and members of the diplomatic corps, Msgr. Carmine Rocco, papal nuncio, congratulated the President and the Filipino people, in behalf of the chiefs of missions, for achievements during the year just ended.

The dean of the diplomatic corps also cited Mrs. Marcos for her sustained charity and beautification drives which, he said, had contributed to the progress of the nation.

In his response, the President offered the following prayer: "May God grant us the serenity to accept the things we cannot change, the courage to change the things we can, and the wisdom to know the difference."

The reception lasted up to. 11 a.m.

Later in the afternoon, the President met with J. J. Wolahan of Caltex and Ramon V. del Rosario of Filoil, during which he appealed to oil companies to reduce their margin of profits and keep the prices of gasoline at an acceptable level.

The President said that the country was itself undergoing sacrifices to surmount temporary difficulties.

He said oil companies could share with the country some of the burdens of development while still operating with a reasonable return on their investments.

The President asked the Price Control Council to sit down with oil company executives on his appeal.

After the meeting, the Chief Executive received Lupiño Lazaro, president of the striking Pasang-Masda, and informed him of his talk with the oil executives.

January 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS went on a nationwide radio and television hookup in the evening, and appealed to both the oil industry and the striking drivers to end the empassé.

“I am aware that the protagonists in this unfortunate confrontation are deeply persuaded by their own reasons for making an intractable stand. But I am also aware that other sectors, the employees and hard-pressed common workers, our students, and our people in general have been deprived of their right of movement because of the strike, and they are subject to tensions and threat of injury and even death,” the President said.

The President assured the people that the government would take all the steps necessary to immediately end the strike.

In a meeting with leaders of the oil industry and members of the Price Control Council earlier in the day, the President told the oil executives that they must accept a temporary cutback on gasoline prices as a first step toward settling the jeepney strike.

The oil men agreed to cut the two-centavo increase by one centavo, until such time that the commission has completed its task and made its recommendations.

During the conference, the President announced the creation of a Presidential Oil Commission and charged it with the task of looking into the books of the oil companies.

With the oil executives in seeing the President were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda.

In another major conference, the President ordered a study on the feasibility of adopting a policy whereby the government will have a 50 percent participation in the profits of every corporation engaged in the exploitation of the country's natural resources.

He issued the order to Undersecretary Tanco and Secretary Virata during his meeting with the Presidential Budget Development Committee and with Armand Fabella, chairman of the Reorganization Commission.

The meeting was called by the President to review the reorganization plan submitted by the Reorganization Commission to promote efficiency in the government while at the same time effecting a savings of ₱30 million.

The President pointed out that the natural resources of the country belong to everyone and that these resources should be the principal source of revenue of the government, which proceeds will be channelled to social services and economic development.

Going over the recommendation of the Reorganization Commission, the President also:

1. Ordered a further study aimed at increasing expected savings from ₱30 million to at least ₱100 million without undermining service efficiency.
2. Ordered a restudy of the powers of the President to see if there may be other powers which can either be transferred or delegated to lower level officials.
3. Told the secretary of national defense and the chief of staff of the armed forces to submit a position paper on the proposed merger of the Philippine Constabulary with other army units to form the National Police Command.

Present at the morning conference were Chairman Fabella, Executive Director Abelardo Belmonte, Secretary Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., National Economic Council Chairman Gerardo Sicat, Office of the Economic Coordination Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez, Presidential Economic Staff Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros.

The President started conferring with the government officials after clearing his desk of urgent state papers. First to see him was Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, which was followed by his meeting with Secretaries Virata and Maceda on the oil prices.

Other callers included Rep. Cornelio T. Villareal, Gov. Virgilio Lacaya of Zamboanga del Norte and Mayor Habibon Pia of Sibuco, who took up with him local problems.

In the evening the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, honored Dr. S. D. Savkar, director of Asian Affairs of the IMF, at dinner. Also present were Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., and other officials.

January 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a well spaced schedule of callers which allowed him to attend to urgent official papers, and other matters of state long enough before they came in.

The President worked at his desk after having breakfast. At about 10:30 a.m., he disengaged from paper work to receive European financiers accompanied by Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr. of Ilocos Norte.

The visitors, Georges Gedilaghine of the Hanover Building and Banking Corporation and Regis Benezit of the French Society for the Expansion of Commerce and Industry, offered European dollar loans for massive low-cost housing projects and other development purposes.

The financiers assured the President that they would be ready to meet the conditions and requirements set by the International Monetary Fund for exchange borrowings by the Philippines.

The President expressed his appreciation for the offer, particularly the development of low-cost housing projects and of Corregidor as a tourist spot, since massive low-cost housing and the promotion of the tourist industry are two of the government's major projects. He endorsed the offer to his fiscal advisers for study.

Another caller was Ryotaro Sato, son of Prime Minister Eisaku Sato of Japan and vice president of Asia Off-Shore Drilling, who informed him that his firm, in collaboration with the Zapata-Norgess and the Oriental Petroleum of the Philippines, will start oil exploration off Palawan beginning March 1.

Also received by the President was Vincent Stott, TWA vice president and director of the Pacific Air Travel Association who called to pay his respects.

Stott arrived to make arrangements for the PATA workshop on January 21-23 in Baguio City and conference on January 24-29 in Manila.

Among other callers were Rep. Manuel Zosa of Cebu, and seven municipal mayors from Cotabato who discussed with him urgent matters concerning their areas of jurisdiction.

The President received his callers up to well past noon. He resumed his paper work later in the afternoon.

He resumed his paper work later in the afternoon.

January 14—

Among the President's late morning callers was Vice President Fernando Lopez, who offered his resignation. The President accepted the resignation.

Both men were mutually agreed that it was untenable for the Vice President to remain in the cabinet in view of his relationship with the pressure group which the President has exposed.

The President assured Vice President Lopez that there was nothing personal in his acceptance of the latter's resignation. "You and I have been in the best relations," the President. "But your position in the Cabinet has now become untenable in view of your relationship with the financial and political interests that I have identified as constituting a pressure group intent upon the destruction of my development program."

In an interview with newsmen later in the day, the President said he was serving notice on all other pressure groups that he would not be pressured by anyone into granting favors and concessions to vested groups against the interest of the people.

Within the hour of the Vice President's resignation, the President swore in Undersecretary Arturo Tanco, Jr. as secretary of agriculture and natural resources.

The President then sat down at a belated luncheon with Nacionalista members of the House of Representatives with whom he discussed, among others, closer coordination between the Presidential Economic Staff and those of the Senate and House of Representatives, solution of the corn shortage in Cebu and Leyte, faster processing and release of land titles, and the strike situation.

He enjoined the NP congressmen to close ranks and to make the coming regular session of Congress a "session of achievements."

The congressmen were led by Speaker Jose B. Laurel Jr. and Speaker Protempore Jose. Aldeguer.

Government officials who conferred 'with the President earlier in the day were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile. They reported on their respective departments.

The President also received Tetuo Takashima, president of the Japanese Floating Fair, who called to pay his respects and to invite the President to the inauguration of the fair.

Also received by the President was Ambassador-at-large Ramon Nolan who called for final instructions before leaving for Washington, D.C. With Nolan was Philippine ambassador to Washington, Ernesto Lagdameo.

In the evening, the President had another meeting with the leaders of the striking jeepney drivers in his continuing effort to put an end to the strike.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCUS, in remarks before a delegation of several thousands from Tondo, who marched to Malacañang late in the afternoon, said he would pursue his fight against the country's oppressive oligarchy in the name of "country, honor and duty" and that he had "absolute confidence" that the people will support him in fighting for their own cause.

For two solid hours, the Malacañang reception and ceremonial halls were turned into a public forum as the leaders of the various groups sought firm assurance from the President that he would pursue to its logical conclusion the fight he has begun with oppressive pressure groups identified with the oligarchy.

In addressing the crowd, the President said it was now time to effect drastic changes in our society.

Aside from the marchers who pledged their support to the President, various individuals and groups from various parts of the country also pledged their all-out rapport to the President in his fight against the oligarchy.

Earlier in the day, the Chief Executive ordered the temporary return, of the prices of all oil products to the January 8, 1971 levels until the reasonable prices for them shall have been determined by the Price Control Council.

He issued the order in a memorandum to the Price Control Council following a series of conferences with the drivers of jeepneys, buses and taxis, and their representatives and leaders, and a spokesman of the local oil companies.

The presidential directive was issued so as to give all parties concerned a cooling off period of seven days and to effect the early lifting of the strike being staged by jeepney drivers.

Among other actions, the President also approved the hosting by the Central Bank of the Philippines of the Sixth Conference of Governors of Central Banks in Southeast Asia with Baguio City as the conference site.

The governors of central banks in Southeast Asia decided in 1964 to meet once a year, primarily to discuss the monetary and economic Problems existing in their countries and to study together common problems of economic development of the region.

In the evening, the President extended official welcome to the 9th Japan Industry Floating Fair aboard the "M. S. Sakura Maru" at Pier 15 at the Manila South Harbor.

The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos cut the ceremonial ribbon, formally opening the floating fair.

Present at the opening rites were members of the diplomatic corps, ranking government officials and representatives of prominent business organizations in Manila.

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued to receive support and encouragement from various sectors of society in his determined effort to throw out the pressure groups and return the government to the people.

Close on the heels of a group of labor leaders representing 1,200,000 workers and farmers throughout the country, a 500-man delegation from Pasay City, headed by Francisco Piga, marched to Malacañang in order to give their pledge that whatever happened they will support the President in his fight.

Addressing the marchers, the President said that he was encouraged even more to pursue the fight until the country is rid of the evil influence of pressure groups.

“Now is the time to start and in this fight there will be no retreat,” he said, adding, “You can rest assured I will go on fighting so that the country will prosper and the people will have better opportunities.”

Earlier in the morning, the President met a group of labor leaders who discussed with him the problems of labor and presented a resolution supporting the new orientation of the government toward the dispersal of monopolies and oligarchies and an intensified program to alleviate the condition of workers and the average citizen, and protect their legal rights.

Among the leaders who called were: Roberto Oca, Andres Dingsalan, Jr. and Gerry Quadra of the Pinagbuklod ng mga Manggagawa sa Pilipinas. Israel Bocobo of the Philippine Association of Free Labor Unions, Cesar Legayada and Leonardo Agting of the Federated Unions of Rizal, Tony Diaz of the Philippine Social Security Labor Union, Fred Fajardo and Jess Gentiles of the SSS Employees Association, Bonifacio Bayhon, Efren Aranzamendo and Domingo Sta. Ana of the Federation of Free Workers, Francisco Nora of the Communications Workers Federation, Mario Rosal and Melanio Calor of the Federation of Democratic Workers, Tony Policarpio of the NLU, Vicente Arniego of the National Labor Union Congress, Amorito Cañete, Januario Seno and Eduardo Nolasco of the Philippine Congress of Trade Unions, Oliver Germendo, Eulogio Lerum and Max Cortez of the Philippine Labor Unity Movement.

The Chief Executive also received courtesy calls from Chief Justice John Kerr of Australia, who was accompanied by J. H. Wooten secretary general of LAWASIA; and Phra Manuot Vernoulart, former chief justice of the Supreme Court of Thailand.

Aside from these calls, the President received no other visitors the rest of the day except Gen. Mark Clark (retired), who made a courtesy call. Gen. Clark is the chairman of the American Battle Monuments Commission. He arrived in Manila to visit cemeteries for American servicemen and to confer with U.S. military authorities in the Philippines.

In between these calls, the President did his desk work, scanning over official papers needing his attention.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent almost the whole day in his study going over official papers. He did not receive any private callers to be able to concentrate more fully on his desk work.

Late in the afternoon, the President received a delegation of market vendors who called at Malacañang.

Headed by Mrs. Polly Cayetano, president of the Chamber of Filipino Retailers, the vendors group pledged the support of some 20,000 members, which include sari-sari store owners, behind the President in his fight against the oligarchies.

Mrs. Cayetano also thanked the President for his having signed into law a bill, now Republic Act No. 5039 also known as the Market Law.

In his remarks, the President explained that his administration's program allowed for immediate cooperation with the rich, in line with the concept of immediate industrialization.

He said he thought that by helping build a strong private industrial base, he would be in effect securing the interests of the poor.

However, he said, he saw, for himself that the conscienceless rich had an insatiable tendency to be monopolists, to dictate the conditions of the market at their convenience, starting with prices, while the poor suffer the most.

“It is now time to fight the pressure groups and the oligarchs, in the name of our people.” the President declared.

.January 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met leaders of Congress in the morning to discuss the order of priorities of bills in the coming regular session of Congress and the means of expediting action on the most urgent measures.

At the conference, Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr. submitted to the President the list of priority bills pending before the House of Representatives in accordance with an agreement between Malacañang on the one hand and the Senate and Pre House on the other on close coordination of efforts to insure swift action on vital measures.

The President requested Speaker Laurel to ask the Congress Economic Planning Office, to meet with its Senate counterpart in order that the three priority lists could be consolidated.

The President emphasized the importance of the three bodies—the Executive and the Legislative represented by the Senate and the House—getting” together and working out a single priority list, as well as on agreeing on the Reorganization Plan, particularly in regard to the creation of the National Police Commission.

In lieu of the creation of an Indent Office, the President proposed the establishment of a Government Trading Corporation which, he said, will be necessary “if we are serious about establishing trade relations with Russia.”

The President directed Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to draft the necessary bill, and, to consolidate the provisions of the two bills on housing which were included in the priority list.

The President also ordered Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpus to prepare a bill to provide free and compulsory education from the first to the sixth grade, and revising the curriculum for secondary education.

Others at the conference were Senator Leonardo Perez, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, Reps. Jose Alberto of Catanduanes, Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac, Tito Dupaya of Cagayan, and Carmelo Barbero of Abra; and Land Authority Governor Conrado Estrella.

Following the conference, the President attended the opening session of the convention of members of the Law Association for Asia and, the Western Pacific, as guest of honor, held at the Philamlife Auditorium.

In his address, the President underscored the need for law “to grow in flexibility and wisdom” in the face of rapid worldwide social and economic change, particularly in Asia.

He pointed out that the legal profession, “fairly or unfairly, is being criticized in some countries, particularly the developing ones, as a force for maintaining the status quo for resisting change in an age of reform and change.”

The President declared that it may be true that the law is inherently conservative but is often forced to be because a minimum of political, social and economic stability is “essential to the enjoyment of legal rights, and to uphold the dignity of the human person.” He stressed that human dignity cannot “flourish in an atmosphere of chronic anarchy and chaos.” (See pp. 485 to 488 for full text of the President’s speech.)

Represented at the convention were the countries of Afghanistan, Australia, Ceylon, China, Fiji, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Iran, Japan, Korea, Laos, Malaysia, Nepal, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam and Western Samoa.

In the afternoon, the President held his first formal press conference of this year.

In between these activities, the President did his regular chores; working on state papers and acting on state business.

The Chief Executive authorized the inclusion of nutrition coordination in the food production program of the National Food and Agriculture Council (NFAC).

In view of this, he designated the National Coordinating Council of Food and Nutrition, represented by the research director of the Food and Nutrition Research Center, as a member of the NFAC.

The President pointed out that “national concern should not only be for production of food but also for its nutritive utilization so that the traditional deficiencies in the average diet of the people may be remedied.

January 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met Nationalists senators at a working lunch to map out the priorities in the administration’s legislative program to be submitted to the regular session of Congress this year.

The Chief Executive recommended that action on bills taken according to this order of priority:

1. The bill banning the import of luxury items.
2. The agrarian reform and cooperatives bill.
3. A consolidated bill on housing.
4. The Petroleum Exploration Act.
5. A bill providing for educational reforms.
6. A bill creating the State Trading Corporation.
7. A bill imposing a tax on affluent consumption.

The Oil Commission bill, which was Number 1 in the priority listing submitted by Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr., had already been passed by the Senate.

However, the President informed the senators that he had instructed the Department of justice and the Presidential Economic Staff to prepare an anti-trust bill for consideration of both the Senate and the House, as a complementary measure.

On land reform the Chief Executive said that the Reorganization Commission has recommended formation of a Commission on Land Reform, and that action on the bill on agrarian reform will probably depend on the approval of the reorganization plan.

He also suggested a series of meetings with senators and representatives on the reorganization plan, which must be submitted within 40 days of the opening of the regular session of Congress.

The President suggested that a caucus be held at the end of the month, followed by two other meetings in February, so that the reorganization plan can be finalized and submitted to Congress on time.

The Petroleum Exploration Act would change from lease to service contract the permit to explore, for oil in the country. Under this system, the concession remains a property of the state unlike in the lease contract. This will also increase the share of the government in the profits.

The President underscored the importance of an improved educational system by pointing out that under the present system, high school graduates could not get employment, because they do not have job skills. That is why, he added, there has to be a manpower training program.

Present during the meeting were Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senate Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino, Senators Rene Espina, Dominador R. Aytona, Alejandro D. Almendras, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay, Ambrosio Padilla, Lorenzo Sumulong, Lorenzo M. Tañada, Lorenzo G. Teves, Salvador H. Laurel, Leonardo B. Perez, Eva Estrada-Kalaw and Helena Z. Benitez.

Other presidential activities included the usual calls, among them those Vice Speaker Speaker of the House of Representatives of Indonesia, who paid his respects; Charge d'Affaires Nguyen Van Loc of South Vietnam, who handcarried a painting from Vietnam's Senate President, as a memento for the President.

The President also inducted the officers of the Philippine Cigarette Manufacturers Association, headed by Ralph Nubia; as well as Eric Nubia, as chairman of the board of examiners for architecture.

January 20—

A LARGE GROUP of farmers representing two organizations in Nueva Ecija called on President Marcos to present a manifesto urging the government to push through its crusade against vested interests Led by Mac Fabian, chairman of the Federation of Land Reform Farmers Associations, and Sergio Cayanan, spokesman for the Filipino Agrarian Movement, the delegation urged the President to break up monopolies and otherwise effect a more equitable distribution of the nation's wealth so as to benefit the larger mass of the people.

Also present during the call of the farmers were Luis Taruc and Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella.

Earlier in the morning, the President inducted two new associate justices of the Court of Appeals, namely, Juan O. Reyes and Mateo Canonoy, both judges of the courts of first instance of Manila and Cebu, respectively, at the time of their appointments. Present at the ceremonies were relatives of the new justices, as well as prominent members of the judiciary and Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos.

In the afternoon the President received the members of the Japanese business survey team who had arrived in Manila to inquire into possibilities of investment or other trade ties with the Philippines.

At the head of the groups were Mission Chief Teiichiro Morinaga, Mission Deputy Chief Isao Masamuna, Hiroshi Shimizu, Counselor of Ministers Secretariat, Ministry of Finance; Masaki Seo, official of Asian Affairs Bureau, Ministry of Foreign Affairs; and Makoto Kobayashi, official of Trade and Development Bureau, Ministry of International Trade and Industry.

Others who called on the President during the day included Gov. Gualberto Lumaig of Ifugao, who took up local problems; Director of Prisons Alejo Santos, who discussed matters pertaining to his office; and former Gov. Madki Alonto.

PRESIDENT MARCOS whittled down his schedule of callers to only one group, even as he concentrated once more to paper work and urgent state business.

It was already late in the afternoon when he left his desk at his private study to meet with vegetable and egg dealers on the prices of prime consumer goods in view of reports of price hikes in these items.

The President appealed to the group to see to it that prices of prime commodities are maintained at reasonable levels, adding that the government would keep close watch of price trends.

In the course of the conference, the President ordered the release of ₱2 million for the operations of the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market and the extension of credit for the department of agriculture for the replanting of some 150,000 hectares of agricultural lands.

Among the Chinese businessmen present were Johnson Robert Go of Robina Farms, Tammy Chua of General Milling; and Kho Han Seng of the Vegetable and Fruit Dealers Association.

While engaged in paper work in the morning the President signed the appointment of Dr. Domingo Soriano as acting president of Central Luzon Teachers College, vice Mariano Raquel who retired from the service.

President's Week in Review: January 29 - February 4, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS bade farewell to outgoing Mexican Ambassador Federico Barrera Fuentes who called at Malacañang preparatory to his departing for his home country after completing his tour of duty here.

After his meeting with the Mexican diplomat, the President interrupted himself when he heard that a large group of Filipinos from Hawaii had expressed the desire to see him. The visitors were on a sight-seeing tour of Malacañang. He emerged from his study to talk with the group, in the process inviting them to invest in Philippine development.

Earlier, the President worked at his desk on state papers, during which he approved the establishment of a second pilot "moshav" project in Barrio Ricarte. Llanera, Nueva Ecija, in line with the administration's plan to promote cooperative farming throughout the country,

The proposal, to set up a second project was made jointly by acting Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. in his capacity as action officer of the National Food and Agriculture Council; and Governor Conrado Estrella of the Land Authority and chairman of the National Reform Council.

The first farmers' cooperative project patterned after the Israeli "moshav" concept, as established at Magalang, Pampanga through the joint efforts of the Philippine and Israeli governments, and the Filipinas Foundation of the Ayala Corporation.

Later in the morning, the President conferred with officials concerned with public works project, including those in charge of funding. The priorities of infrastructure development and other projects in this area were discussed. Present at the meeting were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, PACD Secretary Roscudo Marquoz, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, and Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino,

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with his Cabinet to discuss ways and means of effectively moving the bureaucracy, to push to the level of the rural masses the President's "democratic revolution" for 1971.

The meeting, which started at mid-morning and wound up at 2 p.m., took up the following points:

1. Within the framework of the new orientation, there must now be a concerted effort among all those in government to restore to the taxpayer, the feeling that it is his right to expect genuine, efficient service from those in the public service. It shall be the duty of all personnel holding key positions in government to see to it that there is a consistent performance audit of their respective offices and agencies truly responsible to public need. Key government personnel shall henceforth use all means possible to retrain and reorient lower echelon personnel along the only philosophy acceptable to the leadership in regard to public service, namely that, the civil servant must know, at all times, that he is a servant of the people, and at no instance their master. In this moral campaign that must be undertaken by government, the Cabinet agreed on the need to lead the example.

In this connection, the President called the attention of the Cabinet on the need for bold moves to seriously remove incompetent, corrupt and unduly privileged personnel from public service, without regard to political or blood connections and other such ties that may have in the past served to tie down the hands of administrators called upon to enforce efficiency and justice.

It was agreed that a system be worked out whereby citizens' grievances against particular personnel of government, or any particular office would be efficiently monitored and acted upon by an appropriate body. More immediate than this, a performance evaluation task force will monitor the performance of all offices and agencies, on the basis of continuing assessment and evaluation by appropriate teams of the same task force.

2. Referring to specific priority projects for 1971, the Cabinet agreed that government should now undertake a massive low-cost housing program for the workers and small employees to be supported principally by the SSS and the GSIS. The SSS has a P150 million allotment for the project in 1971, the GSIS P200 million. The President expressed the desire that the GSIS should produce units between P10,000 to P12,000. The SSS informed the meeting that its units are estimated to cost P8,500 each.

The President directed the agencies concerned to study the possibility of arriving at a situation where workers and small employees may be able to acquire low-cost houses without having to have collaterals. Speaking on this subject, the secretary of labor pointed out that workers' housing should be given higher priority by the various government financing institutions since most of them depend heavily on workers' deposits.

Upon suggestion of the chairman of the Development Bank of the Philippines, the meeting agreed that GSIS and SSS should support to the full extent workers' low-cost housing, while PNB and DBP support industry and agriculture, including small scale industries.

The meeting heard a report on the cottage industry mass-employment scheme of the NACIDA, as well as electrification-scheme of the National Electrification Administration.

3. Referring to the matter of public utility rates, the President created a Presidential Commission to supersede the existing committee of limited membership to undertake a general review of all public utility rates with a view to ascertaining whether present conditions justify any modification of their rates and with a view to safeguarding the public interest.

Named to this commission were Chairman of the Board of Investments Vicente Paterno, OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez, and Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos.

Present; during the meeting were Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Arturo B. Tanco, Jr. of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Manuel P. Syquiao of Public Works and Communications. Onofre D. Corpus of Education, Bias F. Ople of Labor, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Amadeo H. Cruz of Health, Constancio E. Castañeda of General Services, and Gregorio M. Feliciano of Social Welfare, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad;

Executive Secretary Alejandro, Melchor, Jr., Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Presidential Economic Staff Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Land Authority Governor Conrado Estrelia, Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, PNB President Eusebio Villatuya, SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros;

DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, GSIS General Manager Roman V. Cruz, Jr., Manager Gaudencio Tobias of the National Housing Corporation, PHHC Manager Sebastian Santiago; NACIDA Administrator

Mario Reyes, Ronnie Diaz of the National Manpower and Youth Councils OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez. NIA Administrator Alfredo Juinio, Secretary Manuel Elizalde Jr. of PANAMIN, Secretary Eliseo Villamor representing Secretary of Commerce and industry Ernesto Maceda and Col. P. Dumol representing Chairman Ronnie Velasco of the National Electrification Administration,, Earlier, the President received the offer of the Boy Scouts of the Philippines to use the organization as an instrument for social change in line with the President's call for a democratic revolution.

The offer was made by the executives and other officials of the BSP, headed by Dr. Vitaliano Bernardino, president; and Antonio Delgado, vice president of the national council and executive chairman of the World Jamboree Committee,

The BSP executives informed the President that in line with the objectives of the BSP Golden Jubilee celebration, the organization will “restructure its activities to exploit to the fullest its potentials , as an instrument for social change.”

The scouting organization will implement this policy through programs designed to “provide scouts and non-scouts alike opportunities for maximum involvement and participation in impact projects of economic and social nature.

In the evening, the President received 20 city mayors who presented a resolution of loyalty and support in his policies to preserve the government and bridge the gap between the rich and the poor, by some 52 city mayors who had unanimously adopted it.

The Chief Executive enjoined the city mayors to take a firm stand against the enemies of the Republic before it is too late,

The city mayors were led by league chairman Mayor Macario Asistio of Caloocan, and Mayor Elias Lopez of Davao City.

January 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS pushed further his call for a “democratic revolution” by calling on the country’s provincial governors and city mayors “to give back the government to the people, to whom government truly belongs.”

In extemporaneous remarks at the Malacañang State Dining Hall following the induction of officers of the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors for 1971, the President said:

“No matter what we do there will be change. But we must preside over that change not with the ideology of those who seek it by violence, but rather with the ideology of those who believe in radicalism and revolution within the limits of the law.”

The President said, the call of the times is for local and national government leaders “to give the people hope,” to reassure them that the government is theirs, and that it works for their interests.”

“We must now forget self and set a new style of leadership that will be accepted by our people,” he said.

The President observed that in many cases, public issues and controversies are lost by default on the part of leaders who would not speak up when they must in order to defend the truth.

“ I need your help not in my own name, nor for my own personal sake. I need your help in the name of the Republic,” he said, pointing out that “Marcos is a mere period in the history of the Republic, but the Republic must endure and prevail long after the Marcos presidency.”

Inducted into office in the league were Governor Tito Primicias, Jr. of Pangasinan, chairman; Governor Benjamin Romualdez of Leyte, executive vice-chairman; Governor Felicisimo San Luis of Laguna, vice-chairman; Governor Jose A. Roño of Western Samar, secretary-general; Governor Consuelo Calo of Agusan, treasurer; Governors Vicente M. Alberto of Catanduanes, Alfredo Montelibano, Jr. of Negros Occidental, and Henry Y. Regalado of Misamis Occidental, regional vice-chairman; Governors Teresa J. Dupaya of Cagayan and Cornelio Villareal, Jr., and City Mayors Omar Dianalan of Marawi, regional secretary-treasurers; and the following directors:

Earlier, the President ordered that a coordinated research be made toward,? formulating an overall policy on agriculture.

In this connection, he named NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat as chairman of a committee which will formulate the overall program on agricultural research.

Named members of the committee were NSDB Chairman Florencio Medina, Undersecretary for Agriculture Jose Drilon, Jr., BOI Chairman Vicente Paterno, and Dean Dioscoro Umali, vice president for agriculture and forestry of the University of the Philippines.

February 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred on Ambassador Federico Barrera Fuentes, Mexican envoy to the Philippines, the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Lakan, in a ceremony at Malacañang.

Ambassador Fuentes was cited for his service in the field of international relations and for his contributions to the furtherance of firm and friendly ties between Mexico and Philippines.

The Mexican envoy was also cited for having initiated steps for greater exchanges along cultural and commercial fields between the two countries and peoples, through trade and cultural missions, as well as friendly visits between government representatives

The ambassador was schedule to return to his home office for reassignment after having served in the Philippines for more than two years.

Earlier, the President participated in a religious ritual marking the departure from Malacañang the image of Our Lady of Fatima which had been brought to the Palace, in the course of its annual visits to churches, hospitals and charity institutions in the Greater Manila area.

Following the diplomatic rites where the President and members of the diplomatic corps also exchange toasts, the President received a number of callers, among them Ambassador Pelagio Llamas.

Ambassador Llamas called for final instructions before assuming his new post as Philippine envoy to the Republic of China. Formerly Consul General in New Orleans, Ambassador Llamas succeeded Ambassador Victorino Paredes who was assigned to the consulate general in Kobe, Japan.

Other Palace visitors were Mayor Norberto Amoranto of Quezon City who had asked for financial assistance in the completion of the new 15-storey City Hall. Rep. Constantino Navarro and Gov. Jose C. Sering of Surigao del norte who sought aid for flood victims in their province, Rep. Indanan Anni of Sulu and U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade.

Among others, the Chief Executive issued a proclamation further extending up to February 28, 1972 the national education and fund campaign of the PANAMIN Foundation, Inc. to enable it to reach its minimum goal of P3 million to finance its humanitarian activities.

The extension was requested by FANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr. who informed the President that the fund raising drive of the foundation had been interrupted by natural disasters such as typhoons, and the preoccupation of the people with important events such as the election of Constitutional Convention delegates and the visit here of Pope Paul VI in 1979.

In the afternoon, the President ordered the sending out of copies of his form letter asking citizens for direct comments on the government institution and their kind of service and asking for suggestions on how to improve the public service without any cost on the part of the citizens.

At the same time, the President called upon all officials and employees of the government to implement an institutionalized "ombudsman" in their respective offices, by encouraging citizens having official dealings with them to answer a questionnaire on the kind of service they get from government offices.

The ombudsman is part of the democratic revolution the government has launched, and one of the main vehicles in trying to involve everyone in this movement.

The President's letter said:

"Together we have embarked on a democratic revolution, One of our main vehicles in our common struggle is our government.

"I am as deeply concerned as you are with the services that you get from our government. It is continuously working to improve its public servants and its procedures in order to make it an effective vehicle of our revolution.

"I therefore ask and encourage you to write to me. Tell me what is wrong with it and what you think I can do to improve it, I have attached here a form which you can use, and mail to me without cost to you.

"Thank you for your contribution to push our democratic revolution to victory."

The President, through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., also promulgated the guidelines to be followed by its financing institutions in setting down rules and regulations to govern their respective programs on housing for low salaried workers.

The guidelines were spelled out to the chairman and general manager of the GSIS, and the chairman and administrator of the SSS. The memorandum asked the following points be considered;

1. A loan coverage of P7,500 minimum and P12,000 maximum.
2. Amortization period of 25 years,
3. No collateral other than the workers' house and lot, both of which are to be financed.
4. Financing of the full value of the workers' house and lot.

The memorandum asked the respective boards of directors of the GSIS and the SSS to convene an early meeting to consider the adoption of liberalized rules and regulations governing the workers' housing programs, according to the aforementioned guidelines.

Secretary Melchor asked the GSIS and the SSS heads to submit their respective reports on the action taken by their boards.

February 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a brisk stream of visitors to Malacañang, beginning with the private meeting he had with Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr. of PANAMIN. Prior to his meeting with the PANAMIN head, the President worked in his study going over state papers.

Among the day's visitors were:

1. Officials of the Southeastern Sierra Madre Resources, who accompanied George L. Guthrie, a geologist, who assured the President of oil deposits on the company's concession in Agusan. The officials of the firm present were Col. Jose P. Moran, president, and Alfonso Agcaoile, secretary.
2. Sen. Leonardo D. Perez, with whom the President conferred in private. Also present were Rep. Benjamin Perez and Constitutional Convention Delegate Demetrio Aquino.
3. A delegation from Pangasinan led by Reps. Corazon Primicias, Aguedo Agbayani, Robert Estrella and Antonio P. Villar, with whom the President took up local problems.
4. A delegation from Albay composed of Reps. Roberto Sabido, Carlos Imperial and Amando Cope. He discussed with them matters affecting their respective constituencies.
5. Col. Francisco V. Saula, who demonstrated how alcohol may be used to power a motor car engine. The President himself took the wheel of the test vehicle, a jeep, and drove it around the Malacañang grounds.

In between these callers and through the rest of the day, the President worked at his desk.

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with a delegation of fishermen from around Manila Bay who sought the government's assistance in preventing illegal fishing and in modernizing their fishing paraphernalia.

In answer to their appeals, the President issued a series of directives to various government agencies, such as:

1. The PC and the Philippine Coast Guard to intensify their campaign against dynamite fishing and other illegal methods, and to apprehend all violators of fishing laws.
2. Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to restudy carefully Administrative Order No. 99 with the view to recommending amendment on the basis of biological studies to be made by the fisheries commissioner.
3. Creation of a Joint Task Force composed of representatives of the Fisheries Commission, the Chief of the PC and the Commandant of the Philippine Coast Guard for the immediate and full implementation of the provisions of Republic Act No. 804S and Fisheries Commission Administrative Order No. 99 regarding the bagnet operators and trawlers over three tons net. who were not included in the injunction orders issued by competent courts.
4. The Philippine Coast Guard to utilize members of the Federation of Small Fisherman's Association in the enforcement of fishing laws.

5. The Central Bank to immediately study the feasibility of adopting a special financing program through the IBRD for small fishermen and to submit its recommendation in seven days.

6. The Greater Manila Terminal Food Market to carry on bulk trading with the small fishermen,

The fishermen's group, which was composed of fishermen from Cavite, Rizal, Bulacan and Pampanga, was led by Naic Mayor Macario Pena, Ben Santos of the Citizens for Better Cavite; Valerico Arzadon, president of the Parañaque Small Fisherman's Association; and Basilio Francisco of the Tondo Federation of Fishermen.

Earlier in the day, the President named two local officials from, Romblon and Dumaguete City.

Appointed were Senen F. Fanio, as member of the provincial board of Romblon; and Ostervaldo Z. Emilio, as member of the municipal board of Dumaguete.

Among others, the President proclaimed Fridays February 5, 1971 as a special, public holiday in the provinces of Lanao del Sur and Sulu, and in the cities of Basilan, Marawi and Iligan, in connection with the feast of "Bidul Adha Almubabak."

Later in the afternoon, the President ordered the withdrawal of METROCOM troops and Quezon City policemen from the campus of the University of the Philippines in Diliman to ease tension prevailing there resulting from the activists barricading the UP campus.

The Chief Executive, however, gave UP President Salvador P. Lopez the responsibility for the maintenance of the peace and order within the university campus.

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with four city mayors of Greater Manila who reported to him that things have returned to normal in their respective cities.

Those who met the president were Mayors Antonio J. Villegas of Manila, Macario Asistio of Caloocan City, Norberto Amoranto of Quezon City and Jovito Claudio of Pasay City.

Following the conference, the President announced that he was withdrawing the METROCOM troops reinforcing the regular police forces in Greater Manila since the mayors reported that the local police forces could already handle the situation resulting from the activities of student demonstrators.

The mayors also reported that while there were still incidents of violence, these were few and far between and that tension has eased in their respective areas.

The President said, however, that while the METROCOM will be withdrawn from anti-riot duties, routinary mobile patrol by METROCOM will continue. A representative of the local police force will accompany the METROCOM patrol.

"Inasmuch as we now are dealing with simple hooliganism and the commission of crimes, upon the request of local governments, the CIS and other police agencies of the national government have been directed to cooperate with the local officials to immediately identify the perpetrators of crimes and obtain evidence against them," the President said.

"It is hoped," he added, "that this action will help stop the various incidents in the cities."

In an interview aired over the Manila Overseas Press Forum in the evening, the President expressed the feeling that oil companies and other public utility firms should sell part of their securities to the public.

“I think they (oil companies) should now start selling securities to the public. You see, the feeling of most, and I think this is an accurate assessment, is that this is a monopoly which is controlled by a few Americans and these Americans are trying to impose upon our people an unfair and unjust prices. If the securities were sold to the public and were owned by as many people as possible then these accusations will not be valid,” the President said.

Asked on whether he favors buying directly from the oil producing-countries, the President said “this is a very ticklish matter.”

As you have probably been told, the question of the international game of buying and selling oil is that there are cartels, there are monopolies and there are mutual efforts to protect each other. I refer to suppliers as well as the big companies. However, we are looking inks this.”

President's Week in Review: February 5-11, 1971

PRESIDENT MARCOS challenged all those in the government to make public service the vanguard of the democratic revolution by reorienting it to genuinely benefit the people.

The President issued the challenge when he addressed a seminar of top officials of the Bureau of Internal Revenue shortly before noon.

In his address, the Chief Executive called upon government workers to help provide the moral ground for a democratic revolution based on justice and equity, and designed to return the government to the people.

He pointed out that “government bears within itself the seeds of its own destruction” and that any government, whether authoritarian or democratic, depends upon the compliance of the people to its basic policies.

“Otherwise,” he added, “that government, no matter how strong, will ultimately fail.”

The delegation of top BIR officials, headed by Commissioner Misael P. Vera, Deputy Commissioners Conrado P. Diaz and Ambrosio M. Lina, was received by the President at the Maharlika Hall in Malacañang.

Earlier, the President enjoined the Philippine Labor Alliance to open a dialogue with the jeepney drivers supposed to be on strike and to ask them to help conditions return to normalcy.

The President was informed by Roberto S. Oca, chairman of the PLA, that the first to suffer as a result of the prolonged strike fanned by student demonstrators are the workers who lead a hand-to-mouth existence.

Those who called on the President, besides Oca, were Antonio Ancheta of the Confederation of Unions in Government Corporation (CUGCO), Fortunate Biangco of the Philippine Airlines Employees Association (PALEA), Temistocles Dejon of the Philippine Trade Union Congress (PTUC), Julito Serrano of the Philippine Transport and General Workers Organization (PTGWO), Pedro Fernandez of the Union de Obreros y Estivadores Filipinas (UOEF), Frank M. Nora of the Communications Workers Federation; Oliver Gesmundo of the CCLU, Johnny S. Oca of the PEPCW. Geronimo Quadra of the Pinagbuklod ng Manggagawang Pilipino (PMP), Vicente Rafael of the Philippine Labor Unity Movement (PLUM), Magfidio H. Cruz of the NADROSS, Antonio Policarpio of the National Labor Union (NLU), and Clemencio Leaño of the NUFM.

Later in the afternoon, the President issued a proclamation approving the First Export Priorities Plan under the Export Incentives Act.

The plan was prepared by the Board of Investments pursuant to the provisions of Republic Act No. 6135, otherwise known as the Export Incentives Act, and was recommended by the National Economic Council.

February 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS renewed his appeal to all government officials and employees to spearhead the democratic revolution by being the first to effect changes and reforms in their daily conduct and attitudes in serving the general public.

The President had occasion to renew his appeal during the rally for “economic emancipation” staged by a representative delegation from different government offices under the auspices of the Kapisanan ng Mga Kawani ng Pamahalaan (KKP).

During the rally in Malacañang, the President also called on the “silent majority” to speak out openly and fearlessly whether they are for the putting to a stop to the intimidation, harassment and terrorism being committed by a radical minority.

He said that a great majority of the people are against communism but that they were being cowed into silence by the terroristic activities of the few who want to overthrow the duly constituted government and impose the communist ideology over the country.

The President pointed out that the government workers, the teachers, and the enlisted men being the symbol of government to the people, it is necessary that they initiate the democratic revolution by being courteous to those who come to their offices, by being efficient in their work, and by helping eradicate corruption.

He also added: “We can no longer allow the few who, by intimidation and coercion, have attained financial power and use that power to terrorize the people in public office for economic gains.”

During the rally, the KKP presented a manifesto of loyalty to the government, assuring the President that they will police and purge their ranks of corrupt and dishonest officials and employees and denounce publicly their acts of venality, dishonesty and irregularity in the public service.

The delegation composed of some 2,000 men and women from various government offices and agencies was headed by Maximo F. Belmonte, KKP president; Salvador Pads, KKP executive vice president; Santos Pascual, KKP vice president (general manager, PPSTA); Esmeraldo Acorda, KKP board member and EPAP president; Juan Echiverri, coordinator for other office; Deogracias Atienza, KKP secretary; Jose Unson, KKP board member; Juan Santos, KKP secretary-general; Undersecretary of Education Juan L. Manuel, Maj. Demetrio Taboji, PTA administrator; Bureau of Lands Assistant Director Eusebio David; Julio Balmes, Superintendent of City Schools David Cruz, Rizal PTA president; Caloocan City Schools Supt. Modesta Boquirin and Max Castañeda of the Land Authority.

Earlier in the day, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments the nominations of five individuals to various posts in the judiciary.

Those nominated were:

1. Remigio A. Castillo, as city judge of Caloocan City, Branch II;
2. Filemon M. Mendoza, as auxiliary judge of the city court of Caloocan City, Branch IX;
3. Clarito A. Demaala” as municipal judge of Aborlan, Palawan;
4. Sergio A. Bantiles as municipal judge of Kapatagan, Lanao del Norte; and
5. Norodin A. Dimacisil, as clerk of court of the court of first instance of Cotabato, Pagalungan branch.

The President also granted conditional pardon to Anastacia C. Ragot, on recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

In recommending executive clemency for Ragot, the board said that the prisoner has already served a good portion of her sentence “with very good conduct.”

February 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted the whole morning and most of the afternoon to desk work. He did not receive callers, but consulted with aides as he worked on official papers.

One of the actions taken by the President during the day was the designation of Fr. Horacio de la Costa as chairman of the Burgos, Gomez, Zamora Centennial Commission.

In the executive order which created the commission, the President also designated Supreme Court Associate Justice Calixto O. Zaldivar and Carlos Quirino as additional members of the said commission.

Fr de la Costa filled the post vacated by retired Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Jose Ma. Paredes, who resigned his chairmanship of the commission when he ran for delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

The Commission was created on October 28, 1963 to take charge of preparations for the observance of the 100th anniversary of the martyrs' execution which falls due on February 17, 1972 The martyr-priests are Fathers Jose Burgos, Mariano Gomez and Jacinto Zamora.

Others in the commission are Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, vice-chairman; and Luis Montilla, Jose P. Apostol Mrs. Carmen Guerrero Nakpil. National library Director Serafin D. Quiazon and National Museum Director Galo B. Ocampo, members.

PRESIDENT MARCOS put in a whole morning's work on state papers, including studies on reports of various government agencies.

He received callers in the afternoon and also inducted Jose Drilon, Jr., executive officer of the International Rice Research Institute, as Undersecretary of Agriculture.

Drilon took the place of Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. who has been appointed secretary of agriculture and natural resources.

Among those who witnessed the induction ceremony held at the President's study were Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary Tanco, Bureau of Plant Industry Director Eliseo Carandang and Executive Director Roberto Fronda of the National Food and Agriculture Council.

At 4 p.m., about an hour after the induction ceremony, the Chief Executive honored at a reception, the 74 surviving delegates of the 1935 Constitutional Convention in connection with the observance of Constitution Day.

In addressing the guests composed of high government officials and delegates to the 1971 Constitutional Convention who also attended the reception, the President underscored the importance of the forthcoming Constitutional Convention which will "recast, our political, social and economic system to a pattern that will release the deepest potentials of the Filipino people."

He added: "This convention will be, in principle, omnipotent in the sense that no one and no force may hinder the convention in its task of redefining the postulates of our society. But such enormous power, I am sure, will be matched by an equally immense feeling or responsibility."

The President pointed out that the convention will legislate not only for today and tomorrow, but for the ages."

Manuel Abella, Gaudencio E. Abordo, Felipe Abrigo, Manuel T. Albero, Jose M. Aldeguer, Salvador Araneta, Francisco Arellano, Jose M. Aruego, Eugenio Baltao, Saturnino Benito, Miguel B. Binag, Juan L. Bocar, Jose Bonto, Teofilo B. Buslon, Mateo Cahonoy, Florentine O. Chioco, Atilano E. Cinco, Gaudencio Cloribel;

Miguel Cuaderno, Jose Gutierrez David, Jose M. Delgado, Max Du-guiang, Demetrio B. Encarnacion, Mariano Ezpeleta, Sofronio M. Flores, Vicente J. Francisco, Alejandro A. Galang, Ezekiel S. Grageda, Delfin Gumban, Antonio Guzman, Pedro C. Hernaez, Alejo Labrado, Baldomero M. Lapak, Jose C. Locsin, Eusebio M. Lopez, Tiburcio Lutero, Manuel Lim, Jose M. Lorenzana;

Juanito T. Maramara, Mariano C. Melendres, Pedro D. Melendrez, Antonio J. Montesa, Anastacio A. Mumar, Francisco Muñoz, Dionisio Nierre, Camilo Osias, Jesus Y. Perez, Gabriel P. Prieto, Demetrio Quirino, Jose S. Reyes, Timoteo O. Ricohermoso, Jose E. Romero, Victorino N. Salazar, Vicente Salumbides, Conrado V. Sanchez, Jose G. Sanvictores, Enrique C. Sobrepeña, Numeriano Tanopo; Arolas Tulawie, Jose C. "Velasco, Juan Ventenilla, Francisco Ventura, Cornelio T. Villareal, Domingo T. Zavalla, Jesus B. Surban, Severo Cea, Juan D. Nepomuceno, Pascual M. Beltran and Enrique Maglanoc.

Also in connection with the observance of Constitution Day, the President earlier issued the following statement:

The commemoration of Constitution Day today takes an added meaning in the light of the Constitutional Convention which will soon convene to consider the restructuring of the basic charter of our nation, so as to make it a more effective framework for nation building and more relevant to our times.

I join all Filipinos in prayerful hope that the coming Constitutional Convention would succeed in laying the premises for the needed transformation of our society, particularly in ridding our society of certain age old inequities which have burdened the mass of our people. In order that our nation may fully flower in freedom and progress, we must make social and economic justice not only an abiding principle of government, but part of our way of life, as guaranteed by the Constitution.

We celebrate Constitution Day because we believe in our hearts that it is basically a sound instrument of democracy although there are a few among us who would renounce it by degrading the majesty of the law, and substituting force for the rule of law, but ultimately men of peace and goodwill and with a faith in freedom and in an orderly society will prevail.

I pray that our new Constitution will uphold this ideal and perpetuate a life of freedom and justice for all our people.

PRESIDENT MARCOS gave final instructions to three Philippine ambassadors assigned to different countries abroad; and received other visitors at Malacañang.

Ambassador Narciso Reyes, newly appointed permanent representative to the United Nations, reported to the President of his initial meetings with the UNDP governing council from January 14 to 29 this year.

A former Philippine envoy to the United Kingdom, Ambassador Reyes informed the President that he had flown direct from London to present his credentials to the UN president in New York and subsequently attended meetings of the UNDP.

Other envoys who received their instructions were Ambassador Gregorio Abad who was assigned to Australia and Ambassador Modesto Farolan who brief the President before returning to his post in Jakarta.

Earlier in the morning, the President signed the ₱4.574 billion national budget proposed for the ensuing fiscal year and sent the same to Congress for its consideration, thus beating the headline set by law for his submission of the appropriations bill for enactment of the legislative body.

The President has 15 days following the opening of the regular session of Congress within which to submit his budget proposal.

Present during the signing were ranking officials of the Budget Commission headed by Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco.

Shortly before noon, the President received a delegation from the Taxicab Operators Association headed by its president, Philip Monserrat, which petitioned their inclusion in the roll-back of prices of regular gasoline, as decreed by the Price Control Council.

The taxi operators explained that their companies have their own gasoline stations but had not been included in the ruling recently promulgated by the PCC regulating the prices of petroleum products.

Later, the President received Donald M. Graham, board chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company, who came to pay his respects. Graham arrived in Manila in the course of a tour of branch offices and agent banks of his organization in the Far East.

Accompanied by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Graham's group included N. Joel Smith, vice president for the Far East and Paul Niemantsverdriet, the bank's representative in the Philippines.

Other callers were provincial delegations which apprised the President on local problems.

In a speech read for him by Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos at the opening program of the BSP Northern Luzon Jamborette at Bacnotan, La Union in the morning, the President said the authentic way to a "meaningful reformation" is by a democratic revolution, a revolution fought not with arms but with convictions, and through the assertion of the will and ideas.

The President stressed further that the people who are in the best position to wage this revolution are the youth, whom he described as "the biggest, most active and most articulate members of our society."

He also added that majority of the country's young men and women are prepared to renew their world in the libertarian manner.

As in the positive approach of scouting to citizenship and nation-building, the President said, these young men and women "see not only the shortcomings but the best features of our society. They see not only the sins but the potentials of our system."

"They would rebuild their society in the manner of builders and engineers and not in the fashion of warriors who know only the power of force".

"The ethic of boy scouting is to effect change in a peaceful manner, to wage revolution the democratic way," he concluded.

PRESIDENT MARCOS advised a delegation of jeepney operators and drivers affiliated with the Manila South Operators and Drivers Confederation (MAS-CON) to speed up the formation of cooperatives so that the government can extend to them the necessary assistance through said cooperatives.

In his remarks before some 400 jeepney operators and drivers affiliated with MAS-CON, who called on him in the morning, the President lauded the decision of the MAS-CON affiliates to abide with the ruling of the Price Control Council on gasoline prices.

He said that the decision benefitted the people for by standing fast the drivers helped bring about normalcy to the Greater Manila area.

“I thank you for peacefully bringing your problems to the attention of the government,” the President said. “With your support, I am confident that this Republic will not be forsaken but will move forward.”

The confederation, led by Rafael Sarao, MAS-CON president, was accompanied to Malacañang by Pasay City Mayor Jovito Claudio.

For most of the morning and through the afternoon, he worked on his desk, during which he approved the creation of a commission that will, among others, conduct a conciliation and pacification campaign among the various feuding groups in Cotabato.

Called the Cotabato Peace Commission, it has Gov. Simeon Datumanong as chairman, Lt. Col. Carlos Cajelo, was named co-chairman.

Designated members of the commission were Bishop Gerard Mongeau, Bishop Manguramas, Pablo Mangulabnan and the president of the Cotabato Mayors' League.

Toward early evening, the President broke off from his paper work to appear on a TV program, “Straight from the Shoulder,” as special guest.

Among other visitors received by the President were Senators Rene Espina, Alejandro Almendras and Emmanuel Pelaez.

Senators Espina and Almendras reported on the increase in price of corn grit in Cebu. The President directed Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to channel the corn produce in General Santos City to bring down the rising cost of corn grit in Cebu.

Sen. Pelaez reported to the President a new arrangement between jeepney operators and drivers, which would do away with the anomalous boundary system.

Under the new arrangement, the jeepney operator and driver would become partners and would share equally in the profits and expenses for the operation of the jeepneys.

With Sen. Pelaez were Gov. Concordio Diel of Misamis Oriental, Mayor Arturo Casiño of Tagaloan, same province, Pablo Sasing, representing the jeepney drivers, and Jesus Alinsub, representing the operators.

February 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started his day working on state papers, but broke off towards mid-morning to receive a stream of callers, mostly congressmen, who discussed with him various local problems.

First to see the President was Rep. Rodolfo B. Albano, Jr. of Isabela who accompanied Mayor Severo Lachica of San Mateo, who requested the release of funds for the reconstruction of the public market which was destroyed by fire.

The President also received Msgr. Mariano Gaviola, secretary-general of the Catholic Bishops of the Philippines, who requested that a government survey be made of some 5,000 hectares of public land in Montalban, Rizal, which would be converted into a housing resettlement and cooperative farming project for urban squatters under the auspices of the Church, as part of the reorientation of the church.

Msgr. Gaviola informed the President that he had already discussed the project with Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella, who expressed support for the project.

Later, the President met with Rep. Rogaciano Mercado of Bulacan who requested the Chief Executive to fill the post, of municipal judge of Valenzuela, Bulacan, as soon as the incumbent Judge Teofilo Avejo retires at the end of February.

Mercado recommended Judge Conrado D. Manzana of San Ildefonso for the post to be vacated by Avejo.

Other representatives who discussed local problems with the President were Eduardo Gullas of Cebu, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan, Rafael Aquino of Sorsogon and Angel Conception of Nueva Ecija.

The congressmen mostly requested for the release of funds allocated to their respective districts for community development projects.

Among the President's prominent action of the day was his approval of the promotion of 739 officers of the armed forces of the Philippines, upon the recommendation of Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff.

President's Week in Review: February 12-18, 1971

During the meeting, the President emphasized that he was more concerned with the idea of setting up an effective mechanism, which would be embodied in the reorganization plan, for the removal or punishment, of crooked, ineffective and discourteous government personnel, particularly in the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. In advancing the idea, he noted the 60-day suspension required under the Civil Service Law proved too short or outright ineffective in disciplining erring civil servants. The President said that usually after 60 days the crook is back in the government and up to his old tricks,

The Chief Executive recommended that suspensions should be made executory pending the hearing of the administrative charges filed against the accused. However, in fairness of the accused, the President suggested that a period should be set for the final disposition of the administrative case.

On the other hand, the President added, the Commission should also give emphasis to rewarding or recognizing model public servant.

The President directed Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos to make a study of these recommendations and to submit to him his report before the meeting of the Commission with congressional leaders.

Commission Chairman Armand Fabella informed the President that under the tentative plan, the Commission would favor a 10 per cent reduction of government personnel, or about 40,000 employees. Fabella said that the proposal would enable the government to realize an outright savings of about ₱200 million.

Fabella said that the scheme of the plan was actually to eliminate temporary and casual employment except on emergency and seasonal basis. Deserving and necessary casual should be converted to permanent, classified positions. In other words, Fabella said, there would be an eventual professionalism of government service.

Other problems discussed by the Cabinet included the regionalization of the power of department heads and the question of whether there should be only one or more undersecretaries and whether the position should be permanent or political.

The President also instructed members of the Cabinet concerned to attend the Monday meeting with specific schemes for incorporation into the reorganization plan, such as the machinery capable of carrying out more expeditiously the various priority development) programs of the administration, as outlined in his statet-of-the-nation message.

Present at the meeting were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz, Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, Secretary of General Services Constancio E. Castañeda, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad;

Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Reorganization Commission Chairman Armand Fabella, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez, Panamin Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr., Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave, Land Authority Governor Conrado Estrella, CNI Commissioner

Before the President met with his Cabinet, he received a delegation from Sorsogon headed by Rep. Rafael Aquino; and Mayor Datu Balakat Sangki of Ampatuan, Gotabato. The callers discussed local problems with him.

Following a meeting with his official family, the President had a brief rest, and then received the three bar topnotchers from the Far Eastern University, namely, Romulo D. San Juan, Obed C. Cotaran and Jose Baisas.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., who accompanied the three topnotchers, said he invited them to join the government and would assign them to the management audit in order to get a good perspective of the work in the government.

During the call, the President expressed the hope that the three new young lawyers would make their services and talents available to the administration.

Later in the afternoon, the President received Raymond Goodman, World Bank director for East Asia, and Mrs. Goodman. They were accompanied to Malacañang by DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, CB Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, Secretary Melchor and Secretary Virata.

In the evening, the President was guest of honor and speaker at the closing ceremonies of the 3rd National Convention of Small and Medium Scale Industries, held at the SSS auditorium in Quezon City.

In his speech, the Chief Executive urged the economic community to work hand in hand with government in opening up more opportunities for the poor so that they can “participate fully in the political life of the nation.”

He said that the government has been reorienting domestic policy in order to “redress the balance on the side of the people.”

In other words, he said, where before the emphasis was purely economic, the welfare of the working class must now be taken into account in any development scheme.

“I call on each one of you to join the nation in this effort, this democratic revolution; which should end once and for all the injustices, the abject poverty of the great masses of our people, and the over-reliance on external sources for the sustenance of our economy,” the President concluded.

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of his working hours at his desk, occasionally calling in for consultation officials in connection with urgent state matters. He had no formal schedule of callers, but was available to visitors with important things to take up with him.

Among others, the President had a conference with Acting Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr.

Working at his desk through the afternoon and for most of early evening, the President concentrated his attention on the draft of details of, the organization and operation of the Development Performance Evaluation System, a new agency he had created to improve the performance of government agencies concerned with development projects, as well as to meet the urgent need of revitalizing the government structure and the changing directions of development objectives in the coming decade.

The DPES took the place of the proposed Development Performance Task Force.

As organized, the system would encompass the entire spectrum of development activities of government—social, economic, political and national security.

The President also approved the issuance of an entry visa to Florin Gheorgiu, a Rumanian international grandmaster, to play a series of simultaneous chess exhibitions in Manila.

The President approved the visa upon representations made by Ernesto Coronado, secretary-general of the Philippine Chess Federation. The latter said that Gheorgiu would stay here for one week beginning the 18th of February.

February 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered all government departments, bureaus, offices, agencies and instrumentalities to adopt and implement a system of rotation in the assignment of personnel.

Adoption of the system of rotation is designed to improve the career civil service and gear it towards maximum national development.

The President noted that under the present career service, many talented and capable employees could not be fully utilized because of the rigid and constructing rules on such matters as tenure, seniority, length of service, next-in-rank, etc.

He said that a system of rotation would revitalize the public service and gear the bureaucracy, in harmony with the other sectors of society, towards the goal of national development.

By rotation in personnel assignment, he explained, the talents, training, capacities and abilities of civil service employees may be availed of and used in whichever position and whatever functions they are needed without directly violating, and within the bounds of, the existing laws and rules on civil service.

In this regard, the President directed that there should be close coordination among the departments and agencies as to their personnel needs or requirements.

In pursuance of this policy, the President set forth the following guidelines:

1. The actual rotation or assignment of the personnel concerned should be effected in the manner provided in a memorandum of agreement which should be entered into between and among departments, where the rotation or assignment involved is from one department to another.
2. The memorandum of agreement should be between and among bureaus and offices within a department where the rotation or assignment is within the said department, with the approval of the department head.
3. In preparing the memorandum of agreement, the parties to it should always remember that the same is entered into with the objective of removing roadblocks to the full utilization of the talent, training, capability or expertise of career service personnel in the interest of national government.

The President's order was embodied in an Administrative Order issued by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. The order required all concerned to submit as soon as possible a report on action taken, with copies of the memorandum of agreement.

The President spent part of the morning and most of the afternoon in his private study working on other urgent official papers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS left the whole morning free for himself, with no visitors on his schedule of callers, thus giving him time to discuss thoroughly with the Cabinet the reorganization plan for the executive department of the government. The two-hour meeting, which started at 10 a.m., is the second of a series of meetings on the revamp plan.

The discussions centered mainly on the restructuring and strengthening of the various departments in the executive branch and turning them into primary policy, planning, programming, coordinating and administrative entities in their respective fields.

Included was the proposal of the Reorganization Commission to reduce the number of agencies reporting directly to Malacañang. Of 140 offices under the Office of the President, only 25 were proposed to be retained.

Also taken up was the projected creation of a new department which would take charge of agrarian reforms, community development and local government affairs.

The proposed restructuring and strengthening of the different departments, aimed primarily at minimizing duplication of functions and achieving maximum economy, efficiency and effectiveness, would involve the abolition or merger of commission, bureaus, councils, boards, committees and other like, bodies, or their transfer to more appropriate departments of the government.

It would also involve the merger or “decabinetization” of certain departments in order to integrate or simplify overlapping functions and turn them into effective, unified agencies of the government.

It was agreed at the meeting, however, that each department should have only one undersecretary who should be a career administrator, to insure continuity of policies despite changes in political administration.

In the afternoon, the President worked for sometime at his desk, then at 4:30 p.m., he honored the officers and members of the City Judges Association of the Philippines at a merienda-cena. The city judges called on the President after the termination of their three-day convention.

In his brief remarks before the judges, the Chief Executive warned that injustice is one of the main causes of violent revolution that could lead to the overthrow of governments.

He then called upon the members of the judiciary to join the “democratic revolution” by showing more dedication in the administration of justice in their respective jurisdictions.

The President said that the “democratic revolution,” as an alternative to violent revolution, would not only mean the restructuring of Philippine society or the narrowing down of the cleavage between the rich and the poor.

It also assures equal justice to all segments of our society,” he added.

The group, which was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, was led by its president, Judge Buenaventura J. Guerrero of Quezon City.

Upon the request of the group, the President authorized the release of ₱61,250 for the employment of 102 process servers to help facilitate the early resolution of cases pending before the city courts.

Later in the evening, the President conferred with NP congressmen representing constituencies in the Bicol Region, the Visayas and Mindanao.

February 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS certified to Congress four urgent measures, including an anti-trust act, which he had proposed in his state-of-the-nation message last January.

The measures are:

1. An act outlawing restraints on trade and curbing monopolies, combinations and other similar practices.
2. An act which further amends Republic Act No. 409 of the Revised Charter of Manila,
3. An act appropriating ₱250,000 for the holding of, the 5th Joint World Anti-Communist League Conference and the 17th Asian Peoples' Anti-Communist League Conference in Manila in 1971.
4. An act strengthening the independence of the Supreme Court as the court of last resort and the Presidential Electoral Tribunal.

Aside from certifying these vital measures, the President was kept busy in the morning by a stream of callers that begun with the visit of Rep. Cornelius Gallagher, chairman of the Far East Sub-Committee on Foreign Affairs of the U. S. House of Representatives.

Congressman Gallagher, arrived in Manila in the course of an Asian tour. He was accompanied in paying a courtesy call on the President by Elmer Hullen of the US Embassy.

The former informed the President of the extensive hearings being conducted by his sub-committee on the future role of the United States in Asia, the Nixon Doctrine, and the effects of the reduction of U. S. troops in Asia.

Gallagher arrived Sunday, February, 14, to inspect U. S. military installations in Subic and Clark Field before proceeding to other Asian countries.

Later, the President conferred with Ambassador Hortencio Brillantes, who planed in Friday, February 12, for consultations.

At mid-morning, the President inducted the newly-elected officers of the Philippine Chamber of Communications, Inc., an organization of telegraph and telephone companies headed by Bernardo Silverio, president of Capitol Wireless.

Among other Presidential callers were Rep. Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur and Mayor Ponciano Guillen of Molave; Governor Salvacion Yñiguez of Leyte and Rep. Lamberto Marias of Negros Oriental.

THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE further discussed with his Cabinet the proposed integrated reorganization plan for the executive branch of the government prior to its submission to Congress.

In the meeting, the President approved the proposal of the Reorganization Commission creating two new departments in government geared towards hastening agrarian reform, community development and the amelioration of local governments.

Going deeper into the plan, the President stressed to the Commission the need to eliminate overlapping powers and functions of office and to simplify business procedures of the government.

Earlier, the President inducted Ligaya Perez as member of the Board of Examiners for Optometry.

At 4 p.m., the President addressed some 400 officials of various provincial and city chapters of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association of the Philippines, who called at Malacañang.

In brief remarks, the President urged the reactivation of the parent-teachers associations and supported the plan of public school teachers to hold rural congresses throughout the country.

“Let us not default in the performance of our duties not only as teachers but as parents and let us guide our children in the ways of freedom,” the President said. “It is necessary for each and everyone of us to undertake his own mission.”

The President pledged to support the efforts of the school teachers with all the facilities at his command.

Early in the evening, the President video-taped an interview on television with a panel of reporters from the morning dailies.

February 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a heavy schedule that started with the call of the members of the presidential commission which, undertook the survey and assessment of the country's educational system.

Chairmanned by Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, the Commission recommended the total overhaul of the educational system and its reorientation to the present goals of national development,

The President also received the 25-man study group on Asian Tax Administration and Research which held a seminar in Manila on tax collection and incentives promotion. Participants from, nine Asian countries composed the study group.

The President was informed by Rep. Artemio Loyola that the Philippine delegation, of which he is the chairman, has proposed the establishment of an Asian Center for Tax Administration and Research. The group was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Finance Cesar A. Virata, Among other callers on the President were Mayor Lucio Gutierrez of Malabon, Delegate-elect Domingo Guevarra, former Rep. Carmen Dinglasan Consing and former Cavite Governor Dominador Camerino.

In the evening, the President met with some 100 business, trade and industrial leaders, representing a fair cross-section of the economic community, at the Makati residence of Jesus Cabarrus, a mining industrialist, during which he enlisted the Support of business and industry behind a long-range massive housing program for the common laborers.

The President also sounded out the private sector on the various features which may be incorporated into a proposed exports incentives bill which he will submit to Congress.

The administration's proposed low-cost housing program will be submitted by the President for Senate Committee hearings.

Present during the three-hour conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries Cesar E. A. Virata of the Department of Finance; Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Ernesto Maceda of the Department of Commerce and Industry; NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, RCA Chairman Alfredo Montelibano, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles, CB Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, GSIS General Manager Roman.

Cruz, Jr., SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro, Minister Sergio Barrero of DFA, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso and Johnny Araneta of the Export Coordinating Center.

From the private sector were Manuel Elizalde, Jesus and Jose Cabarrus, Jose Ma. Soriano, Andres Soriano, Jr., Washington and Alfonso Sycip, Domingo Guevara, Manuel Lim, Polly Cayetano, Ramon V. del Rosario, Hans Menzi, Jose Campos, Antonio Roxas-Chua, Jose de la Cruz, Generoso Tanseco, Greg Timbol, Sebastian Ugarte, and many others.

While working on state papers earlier in the afternoon, the President issued an administrative order formally removing from office Felipe B. Pareja, city treasurer of Cebu. Pareja and three others were sentenced to life imprisonment by the Court of First Instance of Cebu for the murder of Antonio Abad Tormis, editor of the Republic News of Cebu City. The sentence was later affirmed by the Supreme Court.

February 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a full measure of desk work, but broke off from it from time to time to receive a number of callers on his schedule.

One of the first to call on him was Greek Ambassador Dimitri Avramidis, whom the President received at the guest house of Malacañang, the Pangarap. The Greek envoy to the Philippines paid a farewell call prior to his departure for Athens.

Among the President's other callers were Rep. Cornelio T. Villareal and Gov. Cornelio Villareal, Jr. of Capiz, and a delegation from Agusan headed by Rep. Democrito O. Plaza. They took up local problems concerning their respective constituencies.

During the day, the President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments for its consideration 44 nominations for various posts in the Department of Justice.

The President worked at his desk hi the afternoon and through the evening, during which he:

1. Issued an administrative order redefining the functions and status of the Infrastructure Operations Center;
2. Named Johnny Araneta and Francisco Oira as members of the executive committee for the 21st Colombo Plan consultative committee meeting; and
3. Declared. Wednesday, February 24, as special public holiday in Cebu City so that the city can mark properly its charter anniversary.

PRESIDENT MARCOS officiated at the inauguration in the afternoon of the prefabricated low-cost house factory of the National Housing Corporation at Tala, Caloocan City.

The President delivered the main address and pushed the lever activating the porous cement block factory while the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, unveiled the markers.

In his brief remarks, the President said that the administration has embarked on a massive low-cost housing program in order to narrow the gap between the actual needs for housing and the actual rate of construction,

He said that the NHC is the administration's answer to all the dreams and aspirations of the poor to own houses they could call their own.

"We dedicate this vast production complex we are now inaugurating," the President said, "to the small man, in accordance with our pledge in my state-of-the-nation address to launch a democratic revolution."

The President confined himself to his private study the whole morning working on state papers, in the course of which he issued an executive order reconstituting the Committee on Wood Industries Development (CWID) and two proclamations, one declaring the first week of March of every year as "Better Environment Week," creating a committee to take charge of its observance; and the other setting the period from March 29 to April 4, 1971 as "Tax Consciousness Week."

The President reconstituted the CWID in view of the capabilities for rapid growth and expansion of the local wood industry.

The President stressed the need for the accelerated development of the country's wood industry as a vital factor of the country's economic program, and proposed that the government provide a stable environment for the industry, in return for which a fair share of the proceeds of forest products and services would go to the government.

In proclaiming Better Environment Week, the President pointed out that the health, welfare, and general well-being of the people depend on the quality of the country's physical environment.

It is important, he said, to foster public consciousness of the importance of good environment, which could be maintained through the conservation, wise utilization and development of natural resources, including national parks, wildlife, and marine resources, as well as the wise use of land, water and air.

The President proclaimed Tax Consciousness Week because of the need of instilling into the citizenry a greater awareness of their obligations as citizens, and of underscoring the taxpayer's role in promoting economic progress and in pursuing nation-building.

It is the civic obligation and patriotic duty of every citizen to pay his just taxes promptly, the President said.

With his day clear of scheduled callers, President Marcos had time to concentrate more fully on official papers and other urgent matters of state.

He continued his review of the reorganization of the executive branch of the government, as recommended by the Reorganization Commission, even as he scheduled another meeting with his Cabinet on this matter.

In the afternoon, the President worked on state papers, in the process issuing a proclamation designating the years 1971, 1972 and 1973 as the golden jubilee years of scouting in the Philippines.

The designation of the three-year period was made to focus the nation's attention to the important and far-reaching effects of scouting in the country.

The President noted that the Boy Scouts of the Philippines, through the Golden Jubilee board and committees, is undertaking long-term projects and programs.

These are designed, he said, to prepare the movement for even greater and more significant national and community development in the coming years, by providing the youth with opportunities for meaningful service to community and the nation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS held morning and afternoon sessions with his Cabinet to finalize the integrated reorganization plan for the executive branch of the government. Also present at the afternoon session to which Congress leaders were invited were Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senators Dominador Aytona, Wenceslao R. Lagumbay and Lorenzo Teves; and Reps. Justiniano S. Montano, Rogaciano Mercado, Jose Alberto and Rafael B. Legaspi.

In between these two conferences, the President did his usual desk work. He had no callers except for the delegation of San Miguel Corporation distributors in the United States, who paid a courtesy call.

The President thanked the group for their response to his call for intensifying the national campaign to encourage tourism and the development of export products.

Accompanying the group were SMC officials, including Andres Soriano, Jr., president; Joaquin B. Preysler, executive vice president; Col. Lee A. Telesco, assistant vice president; A. E. Streegan, U. S. marketing director; G. Adolfo Roenach, beer marketing division manager; Jose A. Carpio, public relations office manager; Augusto de Asis, expert department manager; Mariano Limjap, marketing service manager; Felix Avellana, general sales manager; and M. J. Edralin, Jr., public relations coordinator.

Because of his morning and afternoon conferences, the President was not able to attend the opening convention of the Assembly of Teachers, Future Agricultural Homemakers and Future Farmers in Batac, Ilocos Norte.

He however asked Undersecretary of Agriculture Jose Drilon, Jr. to read his speech prepared for the occasion, in which the President expressed the government's determination to pursue land reform "to break up the shackles of feudalism in our land tenure system."

Pointing to the "period of change" the nation is undergoing, he said that Filipinos "must accept the reality of change or change will impose itself upon us."

The administration itself, he said, is committed to democratic change and has "set in motion a peaceful revolution."

The change initiated by the government, he said, "to emancipate our farmers" will be achieved not through violence but through a democratic revolution "within the framework of our Constitution and our laws."

February 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted most of the morning to his desk work, then motored to the Savoy Hotel where he was the keynote speaker at the ministerial meeting of the Colombo Plan.

in his address, the Chief Executive underscored the need for organized cooperation among nations "on a scale that transcends regional and ideological boundaries," as an imperative for survival of all developing and "rich and developed nations."

"The dominant anxiety of our times center on the necessity to remove the source of this major peril to the future of human society," the President asserted.

This source, he said, is found in the "existing disparity between the few powerful states and the many weak states with their impoverished peoples," the sharp disparity in the conditions of life, economic opportunities and social status.

"Indeed a disparity," the President added, "that is an anachronism and an abnormality in the modern world."

The President said that there has developed from this disparity the urgent need to "defuse the tension and impatience in depressed regions that comprised the 'Third World.' "

In the afternoon, the President addressed the conference of Catholic Broadcasters in Asia held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall, during which he urged communication media men to abide by the truth in reporting or expounding on the news, relating this activity to the proper and peaceful realization of reform and change.

He said that he had no doubt that the overwhelming majority of the Filipino people can be mobilized by network media to provide the power for effecting the “radical process of democratic change that I envision.”

The President told the broadcasters that it is “up to men like you, artisans of the spoken word and molders of responsible thought, to pour into this waiting matrix (the people’s hearts and minds) the substance of the Filipino dream and the spirit of reform that will make the fulfillment of that dream possible in our time.”

Then, at about 6:30 p.m., the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, hosted a merienda for the delegates to the Colombo Plan conference.

Among those present were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Undersecretary Manuel Collantes, former Secretary of Foreign Affairs and Mrs. Narciso Ramos, Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, Assistant Executive Secretary Ponciano G. A. Mathay, Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe, Deputy Prime Minister Pote Sarasin of Thailand, Minister Richard Wood for Overseas Development of the United Kingdom, and the delegates from Australia, Bhutan, Burma, Canada, Ceylon, India, Indonesia, Iran, Khmer Republic, Korea, Laos, Malaysia, Nepal, New Zealand, Netherlands, Pakistan, Singapore, United States, Vietnam and Germany.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received in the morning the board of directors of the Provincial, City and Municipal Treasurers and Assessors Association of the Philippines, who extended an invitation to the President to keynote their annual convention on March 15, 1971.

Afterwards, the President worked at his desk, but in-between, he also received callers, among whom, were Reps. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, James Chiongbian of South Cotabato, Roberto Sabido of Albay, Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija, Manuel Zosa of Cebu and municipal officials of Paranaque headed by Mayor Florencio Bernabe who discussed local problems with him.

In the afternoon, the President presided over a joint meeting of the leaders of both chambers of Congress and members of the Cabinet, during which Reorganization Commission Chairman Armand Fabella briefed them on the proposed reorganization bill to effect simplicity, efficiency and economy in the government service.

During the conference, the President was also assured by the leaders of Congress that the deadline for his submission of the National Government reorganization bill will be extended another 60 days up to May 5.

Under the law, the President has to submit the bill not later than 40 days after the start of the regular session of Congress or up to March 5.

The President then explained to the Congress leaders that he could use the time to review the report with them, since the bill has to be rejected or approved en toto.

It was later decided by the President and the legislative leaders that a series of meetings be held with all members of both Houses of Congress present, in order to thresh out points of possible disagreement and insure the swift passage of the bill.

Present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat and President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino and Minority Floorleader Gerardo M. Roxas; Speaker Jose B. Laurel, Jr. and Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso and Minority Floorleader Justiniano Montano; Senators Benigno Aquino, Jr. and Lorenzo Teves, and Reps. Rogaciano Mercado and Rafael Legaspi, representing the Senate and House panels in the Reorganization Commission; Reorganization Commissioners Cesar Zalamea and Roberto Ongpin, Executive Director Abelardo Samonte; Secretaries Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Manuel B. Syquiao of Public-Works and Communications, Onofre D. Corpuz of Education and Blas F. Ople of Labor; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat and Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco.

During the day, the Chief Executive submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the names of five nominees to various local posts.

Nominated were Gregorio Besinga, as city treasurer of Surigao City; Antolin J. Ouano, as register of deeds of Mandaue City; Saaduddin A. Alauya, Jose G. Genilo, Jr., and Santos Adiong as municipal judges of Bubong and Ditsaan, Lanao del Sur; Calapan, Mindoro Oriental; and Piagapo, Lanao del Sur, respectively.

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated on paper work, in the course of which he directed the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to expedite action on mining claims, and Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos to personally conduct an investigation into the graft charges aired by Sen. Alejandro D. Almendras against two members of the Cabinet and six other government officials.

Charged by the senator for having allegedly violated the Anti-Graft Law were Secretaries Manuel B. Syquiao of Public Works and Communications and Onofre D. Corpuz of Education, CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr., former secretary of General Services Salih Ututalum, acting Telecommunications Director Pedro Villaseñor, NDC Chairman Constante Fariñas, former officer-in-charge Celerino Delgado of the Bureau of Supply Coordination, and former Public Schools Director Jose Enriquez.

The President ordered the Justice Secretary to “proceed with a full-dress investigation of the charges to determine if there is sufficient evidence to support the alleged culpability of these officials under the anti-graft and corrupt practices law.”

He likewise told Secretary Abad Santos to submit to him before the end of the week his recommendations on whether or not any or all of the officials charged should be temporarily suspended pending the investigation of the charges.

Toward noon, the President took time out to meet the officers of the Association of Rice Millers of Bulacan, with whom he threshed out the problem of rising prices in Manila and suburbs. The President asked the group to stabilize prices at present levels, poising drastic action if hoarding and rice manipulations are resorted to by rice dealers.

Present at the meeting with the President were Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, Undersecretary Troadio Quiazon, Jr., Undersecretary of Agriculture Jose D. Drilon, Jr., RCA General Manager Pedro Rodrigo and Mrs. Magdalena Santos, head of the Association.

In the afternoon, the President continued his desk work, during which he prepared and went over the list of nominees to various public posts he sent to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

In one of the directives he issued in the afternoon, the Chief Executive ordered the AFP to refrain from initiating any aggressive action against the so-called black-shirts in Mindanao and to stop any intended reinforcement of the troops there.

He gave the order as he appealed for sobriety and calmness and asked all these in a position to help ease tension in the South.

The President indicated that a more definitive action on this matter would await reports from the field from two teams now in Mindanao, one of them headed by Brig. Gen. Rafael Ileta, Philippine Army commander.

Official Week in Review: February 26 – March 4, 1971

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with Director of Forestry Jose Viado and Director of Mines Fernando Busuego, Jr. on the progress of priority projects being undertaken by their respective bureaus.

Director Viado presented to the President a vegetative map of the Philippines delimiting the areas for forest reserves, national parks, principal logging concessions, commercial forests, alienable and disposable lands which were given priority in the budget proposals submitted by the President to Congress.

In land classification, priorities were given to reservations for native settlers and cultural minorities, while in land subdivision, preferences were given to actual occupants or tillers.

Director Busuego, on the other hand, reported that the delay in the issuance of permits for oil exploration was due to the failure of many applicants to meet standard policy requirements.

The President has ordered expeditious action on pending permits, and laid down the policy that only applicants who are technically and financially competent should be given licenses for oil explorations.

Also at the conference were Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and Antonio Quejado, presidential assistant on forest matters.

Then the President received Rep. Jiew Jow Leou of Nationalist China who presented him with a maple sculpture of the “god of good luck which, he said, was a sample of one of the native handicraft in Taiwan.

Later, the President inducted the newly elected officers of the Philippine Automotive Association headed by Anthony Lee.

In the afternoon, he conferred with government officials and religious leaders who came from Cotabato on their assessment of the peace and order situation in the province.

The President also issued an Executive Order creating The Order of Kalantiao award to be given to any citizen of the Philippines for exceptional and meritorious services in the administration of justice and in the field of law.

The Order of Kalantiao is divided into four ranks, as follows:

1. First Class—for extraordinary services and high standards of performance in the judicial branch of government, notably in the Supreme Court, or in the field of international law;
2. Second Class—for exceptionally meritorious services in the judicial and other branches of government;
3. Third Class—for outstanding services in the administration of justice in the government;
4. Fourth Class—for excellent services in the enhancement of the rule of law and high degree of professionalism and integrity in private law practice.

In his Executive Order creating the decoration, the President also said that the Order of Kalantiao may also be awarded posthumously to any person entitled thereto, in which case it shall be received by his legal heirs or nearest kin.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked at his desk for most of the morning acting on state papers and other official business.

At noon he broke off, to receive a delegation composed of members of the Future Farmers of the Philippines and the Future Agricultural Homemakers of the Philippines.

The President was visibly relaxed with the young people, whom he lauded for being engaged at their age in a very important area of activity, saying that the escalation of national efforts to develop fully the agricultural potentials of the country requires the participation of the young.

The President urged rural youths who have migrated to urban centers to “renew their kinship with the soil and thus help the government increase its capabilities in fully exploiting the green revolution to benefit the mass of the people.”

He told the students that one of the top priorities in the Reorganization Plan of the government is related to the reorientation of the entire educational system from academic to vocational education with emphasis on agricultural courses.

The delegation was accompanied to Malacañang by officials of the Bureau of Vocational Education, headed by Assistant Director Napoleon Dignadice.

After lunch, the President rested briefly then returned to his desk work. He remained at his study till about 5 p.m. when he conferred with Mindanao leaders on the Cotabato situation.

Among those present were Gov. Simeon Datumanong and Lt. Col. Carlos Cajelo, PC provincial commander and co-chairmen of the Peace Commission, Bishops Gerard Mongeau and Constantino Manguramas, members; Mayor Dima Dalid of Carmen, president of the Cotabato Mayors League, Undersecretaries of national Defense Efren Plana and Jose M. Crisol, Undersecretary of Agriculture Jose Drilon, Jr., Undersecretary of Justice Guillermo Santos, Sen. Mamintal A. Tamano, Rep. Salipada A. February 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS limited his schedule of callers to only one group, even as he concentrated more on official papers and other matters of state.

He started his paper work after having breakfast, then broke off at about 11:30 a.m. to receive the governors of Central Banks of several Asian countries who had met in Baguio City on regional cooperation.

The bank officials, who were accompanied to Malacañang by CB Gov. Gregorio Licaros, included Ismael Bin Mohamed Ali of Malaysia, Radius Prawiro of Indonesia, Long Boret of Cambodia, Y. P. Pant of Nepal, and Nguyen Van Dong of South Vietnam.

Following the call of the CB governors, the President had lunch, then took a brief rest. He resumed his desk work later in the afternoon.

March 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked as usual early in the morning on state papers, in the course of which he:

1. Issued a proclamation extending the deadline for applying for free patents, to give national minorities ample time to perfect their petitions for land title;
2. Created a Fertilizer Commission to assess the current situation of the fertilizer industry and its needs; and
3. Submitted to the Commission on Appointments the designation of Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. as alternate governor representing the Philippines in IBRD, as well as a number of nominees to posts in the Office of the Solicitor General.

At noon, the President received representatives of PHILCOA workers and PHILCOA Chairman Eliseo Carandang and Roberto Oca, PMP president, who were accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople.

The President conferred with the workers who were on strike and convinced them to return to work.

At the same time, the President ordered that a program be drafted, aimed at scaling up the planting of high yield coconuts and the full utilization of coconut by-products.

In the afternoon, the President was back at his desk to continue working on state papers, but disengaged from it once more to receive Sen. Jose J. Roy, who presented to him on behalf of the Philippine Lawyers' Association Volumes 3 and 4 of the book on the Philippine Constitution published by the P.L. A.

March 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked on state papers through the morning, among other things designating Assistant Executive Secretary Ponciano G.A. Mathay as acting secretary of justice, during the absence of Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos who left for abroad to attend an international conference; and extending pardons to 45 penalized jockeys and racehorses.

In the afternoon, the President conferred with Mindanao leaders on the Cotabato situation, with the aim of restoring as soon as possible normalcy to that province.

The President appealed for understanding, particularly to the people of Cotabato—Muslims, Christian, and Tirurays—in order to maintain the unity of the people under one Republic and one flag.

At the end of the three-hour conference, it was agreed that the agreement of December 27, 1970, arrived at in a peace conference in Cotabato, be fully implemented.

The agreement was that all unlicensed guns would be confiscated in an intensive province-wide campaign, the Philippine Constabulary and all other law enforcement agencies work on the investigation of alleged training grounds of armed men to stop once and for all the suspicions of alleged activities of armed elements whether outlaws or subversive organization, and the civic action work will continue.

Present at the conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Rep. Salipada Pendatun of Cotabato, Senators Mamintal Tamano, Leonardo Perez, Alejandro Almendras, Lorenzo Tañada and Helena Benitez of the Senate committee on national minorities.

Reps Ramon Durano, Guillermo Sanchez, Mariano Peñaflorida, Manuel Zosa, Felipe Azcuna, Corazon Primicias, Antonio Villar, and Benjamin Perez, Artemio Mate, Teodoro Galagar and Pedro Roa of the House committee on national minorities;

Gov. Simeon Datumanong, Lt. Col. Carlos Cajelo, Bishop Constancio Manguramas, and Mayor Datu Dalid of the Cotabato Peace Commission; Mayors Nicolas Dequina of Midsayap, P. de la Cerna of Libungan, Jorge Labog of Lebak, Hadji Drus Ali of Palimbag, Datu Michael Sinsuat of Upi, Don Ampatuan of Bagumbayan; Reps. Ali Dimaporo and Indanan Anni, Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Defense Undersecretaries Efren Plana and Jose Crisol, Gen. Manuel Yan, Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, Brig. Gen. Rafael Iletto, Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, Datu Abdullah Sangki, Ester Blah Sinsuat and others.

Among the few callers received by the President during the day were Mrs. Anna Chenault, who called on the President to pay her respects, and a number of provincial governors and city mayors, who took up matters concerning their respective constituencies.

The President then inducted former Justice Undersecretary Ramon Fernandez and former CFI Judge Luis B. Reyes, as associate justices of the Court of Appeals; and Assistant Executive Secretary Ponciano G.A. Mathay as acting Secretary of Justice.

The appointments of Justices Fernandez and Reyes were approved by the Commission on Appointments.

Secretary Mathay would head the justice department in the absence of Secretary Vicente Abad Santos who left to represent the Philippines in the conference on the Peaceful Uses of the Seabed and Ocean Floor Beyond the Limits of Jurisdiction.

March 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued three proclamations excluding from Davao del Norte Penal Colony three parcels of land aggregating some 4,023 hectares which would be made available to the public as settlement farms. The public lands segregated for distribution to settlers consist of 1,913 hectares in Barrio Dujali, Panabo; 910 hectares in the Logan area in Sto. Tomas; and 1,200 hectares in the Solis area in Barrios Palangaan and Bobongan, Sto. Tomas.

Distribution of the land would be made through the Land Authority so that technical and financial assistance may be extended to the farmers and speculation and landlordism be prevented.

The President signed the proclamations in the presence of a provincial delegation led by Rep. Lorenzo S. Sarmiento, and which included Gov. Verulo C. Boiser, Vice Gov. Cecilia A. dela Paz, Board Members Ruperto O. Garcia, Dominador F. Selga and Candido M. Perales, Mayor Gregorio Dujali of Panabo, president of the Mayors League of the province; and Mayors Feliciano Ganade of Sto. Tomas and Hermenegildo Baloyo of Tagum.

Later, the Chief Executive received the credentials of Ambassador Eduardo Lauro Novaro, new Argentine envoy to the Philippines.

In presenting his credentials, the new envoy pledged to carry on the mission of his predecessors to further strengthen the cordial ties between his country and the Philippines.

Responding in Pilipino, the President assured Ambassador Novaro of full government cooperation in the achievement of the common goals of their two countries.

Present at the presentation ceremony held at Malacañang shortly before noon were members of the Cabinet headed by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and ranking officials of the Argentine embassy in Manila headed by First Secretary Alberto Agrelo.

In the afternoon, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 19 individuals to various government posts.

Submitted were nominations of one as first assistant city fiscal, one as second assistant city fiscal, five as clerks of courts, three as municipal judges, one as register of deeds, one as city assessor, one as chairman of the board of assessment appeals, four as members in the board of assessment appeal, and one as member of the board of dental examiners.

March 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS discussed plans for updating the radar system at the Manila International Airport and the Mactan Airport in Cebu with Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquio, CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr., and Col. Jesus Villamor (ret.), who called at Malacañang for the purpose.

Also taken up during the meeting were certain aspects of the national electrification program.

After the meeting, the President received a group headed by Mayor Lino David of Tarlac, Tarlac, to discuss local problems. Others in the group were Councilor Benjamin Rivera. Municipal Treasurer Antonio Punzalan and Assistant Treasurer Butch Nicolas.

Of special concern to the Tarlac mayor was the reconstruction of the public market which was razed by fire. He said that the town needed financial aid to rebuild the market.

Next to see the President was a delegation from Bataan led by Rep. Pablo R. Roman, who conferred with the former on the free port zone in that province. With them in the meeting were Secretary Syquio and Teodoro Peña, who heads the Foreign Trade Zone Authority.

Peña showed the President the blueprint of the planned facilities within the zone, including piers and the housing project to be built by the SSS.

Other callers were Allan Foran, general manager of Ford Philippines, who conveyed the appreciation of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford II for the Hospitality extended them during their recent visit here; the new set of officers of the Philippine Association of Board Examiners, who were inducted by the President, with Eric Nubla as president; a delegation of the Provincial Election Supervisors Association of the Philippines, led by Rodolfo C. de Guzman, association president, who petitioned the President for a raise in the salary of the supervisors.

In the afternoon, the President confined himself mostly to his desk work, during which he signed the nomination of Jose M. Evangelista as Chief of Mission, Class III, with the rank of ambassador.

A career diplomat, Minister Evangelista was recommended by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and the Board of Foreign Service of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

Evangelista has, until his nomination, held the rank of Chief of Mission, Class III. He was the last of the three Deputy Chiefs of Mission in Tokyo before his promotion.

During the day, the President ordered the dismissal from the service of two municipal judges who had been found guilty of charges ranging from immorality to grave abuse of judicial power.

Ordered dismissed were Leandro P. Reyes, municipal judge of San Jose, Mindoro Occidental and Francisco D. Boter, municipal judge of Midsalip, Zamboanga del Sur.

The removal of the two judges was recommended by the secretary of justice, who concurred with the findings of the district judge assigned to investigate them.

President's Week in Review: March 5-11, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 5.—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had an unexpected reunion with a former comrade-in-arms, Sgt. Gregorio Sampag, (ret.), who served with him in the 14th Infantry Regiment, USAFIP-NL, during the war.

Visiting in Manila with his family, the burly sergeant, now a farmer in Quezon province, took a chance in seeing the President by contacting Lt. Col. Venancio Duque, also a fellow guerilla and now the President's appointments secretary. Duque, then arranged for the former sergeant to meet his unit commander, the President. It was a pleasant occasion for both.

Aside from his reunion with his former comrade-in-arms and a courtesy call given to him by 11 exchange students sponsored by Rotary International from Australia and the United States, the President had no other visitors on his schedule.

The youngsters, all girls, were Sue Fairly, 17, Julie Whitehead, 15, and Brian Kildea, 17, from Australia; Marcia Busto, 17, and Pel Roselle, 18, from New York; Debbie Grub, 17, from Oregon; Diana Sawyer, 17 from Illinois; Joanne Wagner, 17, from Pennsylvania; and Sharon Robinson, also 17, from Ohio.

Along toward noon, the President sat down for an interview with Mrs. Gloria Abaya, a representative of McGraw publications.

In the afternoon and through the evening, the President concentrated on his desk work, during which he signed the designation papers of Small Farmers Commission Chairman Raoul H. Beloso, as one of the action officers of the Presidential Action Committee for Land Reform.

Beloso took the place of former Undersecretary of Natural Resources Isosceles Pascual, who had retired, as action officer of the committee.

The committee was organized by virtue of Executive Order No. 251 dated July 31, 1970 to expedite and coordinate the investigation and resolution of land disputes, streamline and shorten administrative procedures, adopt bold and decisive measures m solve land problems, and/or recommend other solutions.

Also during the day, the President exhorted local officials to take on the burden of strengthening the effectiveness of government in solving problems and carrying out public services, pointing out that the government's effectiveness is "increasingly being challenged."

The President made the call in a speech read for him by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor Jr. at the opening of the Third Pangasinan Executive Development Seminar in Baguio City in which he said that in a time when the people's impatience and demands are increasing, the "most ambitious actions of government have fallen short of the people's expectations."

The challenge to the government's effectiveness, he added, is nowhere more evident than at the level of the local government, "which is the focal point of contact between the government and the people."

March 6 —

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent almost the whole day working on state papers, receiving only very few callers in the afternoon.

At about 6:40 in the afternoon, the President received the Sultan of Pahang and his wife, Che Pusa Marie, who arrived early in the afternoon for a week's stay here.

The Malaysian Sultan was accompanied to Malacañang by Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, Col. Jake Zobel and Enrique Zobel, and Malaysian Ambassador and Mrs. Hashin bin Sultan.

After receiving the visiting dignitary, the President conferred with Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief, and Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, VI PC zone commander, who briefed him on the peace and order situation in Cotabato.

Gen. Tutaan reported to the President that it was generally peaceful, but that some 27 to 30 armed men were reported in Barrio New Panay, Midsayap, and that the PC was verifying the report.

He also reported that the people were in favor of placing the police forces of the eight towns, particularly Pikit, Pagalungan and Midsayap, under PC control.

During the conference, the Chief Executive ordered the Philippine Constabulary to implement immediately the agreement reached at Cotabato Peace conference held in Malacañang on March 2, which was attended by the Cotabato Peace Mission, members of the Senate and House committees on national defense, local governments, and cultural minorities. It was agreed then that:

1. All unlicensed guns in the province will be confiscated in an intensive provincewide campaign.
2. The PC and other law enforcement agencies will look into the reported training of armed elements to stop once and for all the suspicions on such alleged activities of armed elements whether outlaws or subversives.
3. The police forces of eight towns in the province will be placed under PC control. These are Pikit, Pagalungan, Midsayap, Libungan, Pigkawayan, Alamada, Carmen and Kabacan.

Following his conference with the PC zone commander, the President rested for a while and then, returned to his study where he continued his desk work, through the evening.

Among other actions, the Chief Executive constituted the Philippine delegation to the 4th meeting of the Foreign Ministers of the Association of South East Asian Nations (ASEAN) scheduled to be held in Manila on March 12 and 13.

With Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo as chairman and Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto M. Maceda as vice chairman, the Philippine delegation has as members Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez and Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez of the Senate and House committees on foreign affairs, respectively;

Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Undersecretaries of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes, Undersecretary of Industry Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., Ambassadors Modesto Farolan and Romeo Busuego, Philippine envoys to Indonesia and Malaysia, respectively; BTTI Commissioner Gregorio Araneta II and Pedro Afable of the National Science Development Board.

Ambassadors Guillermo V. Sison, Francisco Oira, Sergio Barrera and Mario Belisario, all FAO assistants; CAA Director Federico Ablan, Jr., NMPC Assistant Director Gregorio Cendana, Director of Public Works Carlos Castillo, NDC General Manager Demetrio Brillantes, Mrs. Rosario G. Manalo, ASEAN secretariat;

Dean Jose Encarnacion of the U. P., Dr. Gregorio Zara of the CAB, Mrs. Rosalinda V. Tirona and Oscar Velenzuela of the Department of Foreign Affairs,

The President also submitted for consideration of the Commission on Appointments the nominations of Dr. Ricavdo A. Arcilla as president of the, Bicol University and Leonor C. Gorgolon as municipal judge of Del Carmen and San Isidro, Surigao del Norte.

March 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, was guest of honor at an air show at the Manila International Airport climaxing the nationwide celebration of Aviation Week.

Arriving by helicopter from Malacañang at 8:10 a.m., the President was greeted by a large Sunday crowd that jampacked the ramp and main terminal building of the airport.

On hand to welcome the President were Civil Aeronautics officials and Philippine Air Force top brass, led by CAA Administrator Federico Ablan, Jr., MIA General Manager Luis Tabuena and Brig. Gen. Jesus Singson, PAF commanding general,

The President was then escorted to the improvised platform adjoining the VIP Room, where the other distinguished guests were seated, among them Col. Jesus Villamor (ret.), Don Alfredo Carmelo, Col. Antonio Arnaiz and several United States Air Force officials.

The President was later joined by the First Lady and Irene who also flew in by helicopter from Malacañang. Mrs. Marcos was presented a bouquet of red roses by Miss Aviation, Lotis Key.

An appreciation plaque and a 747 jumbo jet model were also presented to the President by the International Airline Operators Council, Manuel Silva of the MIA Press Club and Helmuth Dosch of the Northwest Airlines.

At exactly 8:30 a.m., the President officially opened the air show, which featured an aircraft display, flying exhibitions by the PAF's Blue Diamonds aerobatic team, United States Air Force and Nationalist China Air Force; parachutists' mass jump, skydiving, balloon and aero-model exhibitions, and fly-by by the Reserve Airlift Tactical Support Service (RATSS), an organization of civilian and private pilots established for humanitarian missions.

In brief remarks, the President emphasized the need for progress in aviation to cope with the ever increasing demands in air travel.

In between the exhibitions, the President, assisted by the First Lady and Irene, awarded Presidential plaques and citations to individuals and different participating units.

The President was back in Malacañang in time for lunch. He had a brief rest later and then attended to desk work the rest of the afternoon and early evening.

March 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted his time to his desk work, among other concerns named the Philippine panel to negotiate the agricultural commodities agreement under US Public Law 480 with the US government; designated National Historical Commission Chairman Carmen Guerrero Nakpil to head the Historical Documents Committee, vice Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, who gave up the chairmanship because of the pressure of work in his own department; and ordered the strict enforcement of the policy making Virginia tobacco purchase deals in public and at the designated trading centers.

The President received only one caller, Gordon E. Jones and his wife, who paid a courtesy call. Jones is board chairman of the IBM World Trade Corp. He arrived in Manila to formally install Raimerio O. Reyes as manager of the IBM company in the Philippines, the first Filipino to take charge of an IBM firm. Jones said that it is the IBM policy to turn over control of IBM offices in various parts of the world to local citizens.

The rest of the workday was devoted by the President to his desk work, during which he signed the promotional appointments of three special attorneys in the Office of the Agrarian Counsel (OTAC), designated eight individuals as acting members of the board of directors of the Philippine Veterans Bank (PVB), and appointed a city treasurer for Gingoog City.

Promoted in the OTAC were Amado B. Castaño, from senior special attorney to supervising special attorney; Salvacion G. Birco, from special attorney to senior special attorney, vice Castaño; and Ana Bon-Uy, from legal officer to special attorney.

Designated acting board members of the PVB were Agustin Marking, Alejo S. Santos, Jaime S. Mejia, Benjamin S. Florentino, Generoso Salazar, Alfredo C. Gray, Moises A. Maramba, Sr. and Alfonso V. Arellano.

Appointed treasurer of Gingoog City was Iligan City assistant treasurer Wilfredo J. Cabili.

March 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the immediate recovery of over five million (5,000,000) cavans of palay deposited by the Rice and Corn Administration with some 150 bonded warehouses. He added that the stock should be placed at the disposal of the RCA.

The President issued the order in a memorandum to the secretaries of commerce and industry, and of agriculture and natural resources, and the RCA chairman, giving them one week within which to carry out his instructions.

The initial objective of the officials concerned, the President said, should be to recover some two million cavans of palay within that period.

Once again, the President suspended his schedule of callers in favor of working at his desk on important state business.

He worked all morning on government papers, among others signing the nominations of four employees in the judiciary due for promotion, and submitting the same to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

Appointed were:

1. Bonifacio V. Curso, as municipal judge of Kawayan, Leyte,
2. Arturo L. Juliano, as auxiliary municipal judge of Cabuyao, Laguna.
3. Mrs. Zosima Ramos-Oandasan, as special attorney in the Office of the Agrarian Counsel, Cagayan de Oro Regional Office.
4. Miss Aurea G. Peñalosa, as branch clerk of court, Court of First Instance of Camarines Norte, Branch I, in Daet.

In the afternoon, the President had one conference, with the officials of the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration, with whom he discussed the means of improving the operations of the tobacco agency, particularly in making it possible for poor tobacco growers to benefit fully and immediately from their produce. He issued a series of directives to this effect.

The PVTA officials also submitted their resignations to afford the President a free hand in reorganizing the agency.

Present at the meeting were Chairman Federico B. Moreno and Directors Adriatico Golea, Ricardo Aguila and Taciano Ledda of the PVTa; Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, BIR Commissioner Misael P. Vera and Jaime Mejia and Phil-Asia President Vicente Velasco, Jr.

After the meeting, the President resumed his desk work, remaining in his study through evening.

PRESIDENT MARCOS did a full measure of desk work early, after which he attended to the stream of callers that began with Krishna Moorthi and Cornelio Balmaceda, vice president and alternate director, respectively, of the Asian Development Bank, who were accompanied to, Malacañang by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata.

He discussed with the ADB officials a number of priority development projects earmarked for assistance by the bank.

Next, the President received the delegation of school teachers from Espiritu, Ilocos Norte, headed by former Mayor Teodorico Agres, who asked the President for assistance in the construction of an administration building of Espiritu Elementary School.

Others in the delegation were: Victorino LI. Jose, principal, Espiritu Elementary School; Blesida Bumanlag, Teresa Barbers, Ofelia Dichoso and Winifred Barbers, teachers; and Alberto Dichoso, chairman of the Board of Inquiry, Bureau of Immigration.

At mid-morning, the President received Ricardo Silverio and Rodolfo Cuenca, presidents of Air Manila and Construction Development Corporation of the Philippines, respectively, who brought to Malacañang several Trans World Airlines officials.

Silverio informed the President that Air Manila has concluded an aid and assistance agreement with TWA, with the latter providing the local airline firm with aircraft, as well as technical and marketing assistance, including personnel training in the projected international operations of Air Manila. Silverio said Air Manila's international flights will help boost the local tourist industry by providing more travel facilities to tourists.

Toward noon, the President inducted Nicetas S. Viesa as director of the Rice and Corn Board. Among the witnesses were Reps. Leopoldo Diaz and Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija; Mrs. Viesca and their daughters Blanquita and Violeta; and relatives and friends of the inductee.

At past noon, the President took time to attend to several congressmen who called to discuss with him the problems of their respective districts, among them Jose G. Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, Democrito O. Plaza of Agusan, Leopoldo Diaz and Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija and Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte.

In the afternoon, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments the nominations of seven individuals as members of the board of directors of the Philippine Veterans Bank, and of a division chief as assistant director of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

Nominated to the PVB board were Agustin Marking, Alejo S. Santos, Jaime S. Mejia, Benjamin S. Florentino, Generoso P. Salazar, Alfredo C. Gray and Moises A. Maramba, Jr.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in a speech at the opening ceremonies of the fourth meeting of the ASEAN foreign ministers, held at the Manila Hilton, called for new directions in regional economic cooperation, and for this purpose proposed the proclamation of an ASEAN Development Decade for the seventies.

In the pursuit of regional economic cooperation, the President said, "the time for action has come."

The ASEAN must draw up a definite and specific program for economic cooperation, the President said, which should indicate both short-term and long-range goals.

The President specifically proposed:

1. An ASEAN common market, which would promote throughout the region harmonious economic development, continuous and balanced expansion, increased stability, rapid improvement of the standard of living, and closer relations between member countries.
2. Expansion of intra-regional trade, with a limited free trade area on a selective basis set up as a start.
3. The formation of an Asian Payments Union, to serve all of Asia, with limited payments union set up first in the ASEAN region, as a sort of pilot project".

At the same time, the President cautioned against the danger of attempting too much too soon. He said that it is better "to make haste, slowly in order to prevent discouraging and costly setbacks." (See pp. 2143-2148 for full text of the President's speech.)

Before going to the conference, however, the President worked at his desk. He left Malacañang at mid-morning, arriving at the conference site about 10 a.m., where he was met by the ministers in attendance, headed by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, who leads the Philippine delegation at the meeting.

Returning to Malacañang at about 11:30 a.m., the President received a delegation from the Bureau of Forestry, led by Director Jose Viado. The delegation was composed of regional directors and district foresters. The group paid its respects to the President.

After receiving the delegation, the President resumed his desk work, in the course of which he signed and submitted two nominations to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation, and appointed four persons to various posts in the government.

Nominated were Eric C. Nubla, as chairman of the Board of Examiners for Architects; and Renato D. Acain, as municipal judge of Salay, Misamis Oriental.

Appointed were Ignacia B. Olaso, as president of the Zamboanga State College; Eusebio Botengan, Jr., as acting member of the board of the Mountain Province Development Authority; Gregorio G. Tronco, as clerk of court in the Court of First Instance of Negros Occidental; and Felipe H. Romero, as acting city superintendent of schools of Tangub City.

Later at 5:30 p.m., the President received the members of the Japanese industrial survey mission.

The group assured the President that Japan will extend all possible cooperation in the efforts of the country toward economic development. Masaharu Doi, mission chairman, said that in view of the very bright economic future of the Philippines, "there is much room for Japanese private firms to increase their investments where they are welcome."

Others in the group were Teizo Horikoshi, vice chairman of the mission, Masakazu Echigo, Chobei Takeda, Mitsuo Aikyo, Yukio Shibayama, Junji Hiraga, Mamoru Okita, Atsuhiko Yatabe;

At 8 p.m., the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, honored the ASEAN foreign ministers at dinner in Malacañang.

March 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued an executive order reconstituting the Institute of National Language with a membership representing the major native languages.

In his order, the President stressed the necessity of reconstituting the INL "to facilitate and enhance the effective propagation and development of the national language and to actively involve all linguistic groups in this nationalistic endeavor."

Assistant Director Fe Aldave-Yap was named secretary and executive officer of the institute.

Having no scheduled callers, the President attended mostly to his office work. However, toward noon, he received a delegation of La Union officials, who called to discuss local problems.

In the group were Sen. Magnolia W. Antonino, Reps. Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega, Gov. Jovenal K. Guerrero, Mayors Antonio Aquino of San Juan, Romeo de Guzman of Bauang, and Mauro Nicha of Balaoan; Board Member Castor Z. Concepcion, Engineers Aureo Gallardo and Fernando Gallardo, and Col. Ernesto Kasintahan, PC provincial commander.

In the afternoon, the President again concentrated on his desk work, during which he issued orders suspending a municipal judge and a city health officer from office for three months without pay.

Suspended were Municipal Judge Antonio Rodriguez of Las Piñas, Rizal and Dr. Augusto Jornales, city health officer of Canlaon City.

Judge Rodriguez was found guilty of failure to resolve a criminal case on consented abduction within the 90-day period prescribed by law, and for erroneously dismissing said case over which he had no jurisdiction except to conduct a preliminary investigation.

Dr. Jornales, on the other hand, was found guilty by a special investigator of violating a Department of Health order when he sold to patients medicines allegedly left to him by a drug agent on consignment.

The only other activity he had was a press conference held at about 5 p.m.

March 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reminded elected delegates to the Constitutional Convention of their solemn duty to rewrite the Philippine Constitution to make it more responsive to the needs of the people.

The President gave the reminder when he addressed 21 delegates from Northern Luzon during the testimonial luncheon at Camp Aguinaldo given in their honor by the USAFIP-NL.

In his address, the President said:

“I am for radical reforms. But I am for radical reforms that can be implemented, reforms that will alter the social structure and bridge the gap between the rich and the poor.”

The President reiterated his state-of-the-nation message to the effect that reforms are some of the most important things that the people need today.

However, he told the delegates that they should not expect him to come to them because it would create the impression that he was “imposing” on them.

“I will be more circumspect and prudent in seeing to it that you are considered independent,” the President told the delegates-elect.

During the luncheon, the President also inducted former Rep. Miguel Rilloraza, Jr. of La Union as the new presidential legislative liaison.

The President spent most of his time going over state papers, and did not receive any caller.

Among the papers he studied were those on prospective candidates for salas in the courts of first instance of several provinces, and the vacancies in the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration. The entire PVTA board has tendered its resignation to give the President leeway in reorganizing the tobacco agency.

He also issued two executive orders, one placing the Anti-Smuggling Action Center (ASAC) under the direct supervision and control of the secretary of finance; the other reconstituting the Gomez, Burgos, Zamora Centennial Commission, by designating Supreme Court Justice Calixto Zaldivar as chairman of the commission, vice Fr. Horacio de la Costa.

The Commission was charged, among others, with the preparation and management of the general program of the centenary, as well as the publication of the writings of the three martyr priests, and such other Works pertaining to the martyrs, considered necessary in the proper understanding of their lives and labors, specially as these relate to the development of the Filipino nation.

March 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the workday at his desk as usual, than at midmorning disengaged to address two gatherings.

First, the President motored to Camp Aguinaldo, where he was guest of honor and speaker at the 9th anniversary rites of the Armed Forces of the Philippines Supply Center (AFPSC).

In his speech, the President expressed confidence that the Filipino “can do great things in the face of the impossible,” including (meeting the nation’s need for change, provided, he said, there is common purpose and unity of effort, performed with “a high sense of duty and honor.”

He took cognizance of the achievement of the unit, when he noted that it has demonstrated its ability to fill the needs of the military through innovation and ingenuity in the absence of tools, equipment, and funds.

In solving the country's problems, compounded by the imperatives of change, the President said, "a soldier or a plain citizen can contribute invaluablely to the democratic revolution I have envisioned not through extraordinary feats but simply in the fulfillment of obligations as citizens or as public servants." (See pp. for full text of the President's speech.)

The President later toured the AFPSC's sprawling plant and warehouse complex, including the section which builds components of the Marcos pre-fabricated schoolhouses, and various exhibits of modern weaponry as well as the emergency dispensary clinics used during disaster operations.

From Camp Aguinaldo, the President proceeded to the Manila Hotel Fiesta Pavilion where he addressed the provincial, municipal and city treasurers and assessors of the Philippines, on the occasion of the group's 53rd annual convention.

In his address, the President urged the said officials to pursue the ideals of the democratic revolution by serving faithfully as public servants and as prime movers of national development.

He described the urgency of instituting reforms, stressing some of the most crucial changes needed, including the more equitable distribution of the nation's wealth so that the few who are rich may not get richer, while the average and the poor citizens may enjoy more advantages; the broadening of land reform; the implementation of mass public housing projects; the facilitation of the award of land titles to landless farmers; and the prevention of the use of political influence and economic power to advance the interests of a few oligarchs to the detriment of the majority of the people.

The President returned to Malacañang to past high noon.

While engaged in paper work in the afternoon the Chief Executive signed the appointment of Augusto Pacis as city treasurer of Cebu City, as well as submitted to the Commission on Appointments the following for confirmation:

1. Francisco T. Bueser, as auxiliary city judge of San Pablo City;
2. Miguel P. Avestruz, as municipal judge of Daram, Samar;
3. Francisco G. Centeno, as provincial treasurer of Batangas; and
4. Jose R. Vera, chairman, and Asterio Favis, Jesus M. Bondoc, Daniel Visco and Rogelio W. Manalo, as members, of the Board of Assessment Appeals of Manila.

The President also issued a proclamation declaring Wednesday, March 31, 1971, as a special public holiday in the provinces of Leyte and Southern Leyte.

The date marks the 450th anniversary of the first Holy Mass celebrated in the Philippines. The Mass was held at the island of Limasawa, off the mainland of Leyte.

Among others, the President congratulated Prime Minister Indira Gandhi for her victory in the recent elections in India. He sent the following. congratulatory message:

"I AM HAPPY TO LEARN OF YOUR EXCELLENCY'S OVERWHELMING NEW VICTORY STOP MRS MARCOS JOINS ME IN CONVEYING TO YOUR EXCELLENCY SINCEREST CONGRATULATIONS AND BEST WISHES FOR CONTINUED SUCCESS STOP AS PRIME MINISTER OF A GREAT NATION YOUR EXCELLENCY HAS A VITAL AND HISTORIC ROLE IN SHAPING THE FUTURE OF MANKIND STOP FILIPINOS ARE CONFIDENT THAT OUR GOVERNMENTS AND OUR PEOPLES WILL CONTINUE TO WORK TOGETHER IN THE CAUSE OF PEACE AND FREEDOM IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF FRIENDSHIP AND TRUE UNDERSTANDING.”

March 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to work out arrangements with the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market (GMTFM) toward making the Fishermen’s Market in Navotas, Rizal operational by the end of the month.

The President said the opening of the fishermen’s market will contribute to the stabilization of the prices of fish and other sea products in the Greater Manila area.

Their arrangements ordered by the President for the GMTFM to include the completion of construction and the installation of the needed facilities, for eventual turn over to a fishermen’s cooperative.

To prepare the groundwork for the market’s transfer to the cooperative, the President ordered Secretary Tanco to take steps toward the organization of a cooperative for fishermen.

In the course of his work on official papers in the afternoon the President designated Jesus A. Avanceña as acting member of the board of governors of the Development Bank of the Philippines.

The President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments for consideration the nomination of Oscar T. Eusebio as register of deeds of Rizal.

March 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a busy day with callers, including many provincial delegations who came to discuss local problems.

Early in the morning, the President as usual worked at his desk, to act on urgent state matters.

Then toward midmorning, he began receiving visitors. The first to see him was a group of Reparations Commission officials, led by Chief of Mission Eulogio Balao.

They took up with the President the financing, through the Reparations Commission, of priority projects.

Next, the President received Senator Ambrosio Padilla, who accompanied Mayors Perfecto Lim and Graciano Lim of Pintuyan and Liloan towns, respectively, both in Southern Leyte.

The President also inducted the new officials, namely: Jose Evangelista as chief of mission Class III and career ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary; and Recio Garcia as member of the board of governors of the DBP. Among those who witnessed Garcia’s oath taking were Dr. Pacifico Marcos, and close friends and relatives. Present at the induction of Evangelista were Mrs. Evangelista, BIR Deputy Commissioner and Mrs. Conrado P. Diaz, Brig. Gen. Antonio D. Evangelista and Undersecretary of National Defense Manuel Salientes.

At noon, the President and the First Lady, Imelda ,R. Marcos, were hosts at luncheon for UPI President A. A. Thomason and Mrs. Thomason. The U.S. press mogul arrived in Manila in the course of a survey of Asia. Other guests at the luncheon were representatives of local mass media.

Later in the day, the President received delegations from Samar, Bukidnon and South Cotabato. Again, they came to consult with the President on local problems.

In the evening, the First Couple tendered an informal dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomason, with newspaper and magazine publishers and editors as guests.

March 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said the country may expect sugar surpluses in the next three years and should prepare now to solve any problem on over-production might cause.

As the same time the President expressed optimism that the Philippines would not only continue to get its quota from the United States but perhaps succeed in increasing it.

The President made these points in a speech at the opening of the sugar industry convention, where he was guest speaker.

Arriving at the convention at 11:15 a.m. the President was welcomed and escorted to the presidential table by Don Manolo Elizalde, president of the Sugar Club of the Philippines, Inc. and the Sugar Association; Don Carlos Ledesma, president of the National Federation of Sugarcane Planters; Ciro Locsin, president of the Sugar Producers' Cooperative Marketing Association, Inc.; and Ernesto V. Santos, president of the Sugar Exporters Association of the Philippines.

The President started the day with a breakfast with UPI President A. Mims Thomason, and publishers and editors of newspapers, after which he put in some desk work.

Later in the morning, Thomason returned to Malacañang to interview the President. Accompanying Thomason was Vicente Maliwanag, Manila UPI manager.

Then the President received at formal rites the credentials of the new Swiss envoy, Ferdinand Dufour, ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary. The ceremony was attended by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of General Services Constancio E. Castañeda, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes and Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes.

After a spell of work back at his desk, the President again submitted to an interview, this time by Fr. Martin Ramsaver of the Ateneo East Asia Pastoral Institute. The Jesuit priest was accompanied to Malacañang by Fr. Friedrich, a colleague from the EAPI and a television reporter.

Before noon, the President also had a conference with NBI Director Jolly Bugarin and put in an appearance at the sugar industry convention at the Hotel Intercontinental.

He had a working lunch with Henry Kearns, president and chairman of the Export-Import Bank, along with Secretary Romulo, Central Bank Governor, Gregorio S. Licaros, Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, and J. E. Corette, general counsel of the Export-Import Bank.

In the afternoon, the President worked mostly at his desk, but disengaged from it at about 4 p.m. to receive two large delegations from Bataan and Pangasinan who took up local problems with him, notably public works and PACD projects.

The Bataan delegation, headed by Gov. Guillermo Arcenas and Rep. Pablo R. Roman, was composed of the mayors of Dinalupihan, Hermosa, Samal, Abucay, Pilar, Bagac, Morong, and officials of the Federation of Barrio Councilmen of the province.

The Pangasinan delegation was headed by Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella, Vice Gov. Vicente Milora, former Vice Gov. Nancy Q. Sison, Board Members Porfirio Sison, Agerico Rosario, and Alfonso Bince, Jr., and included delegates to the Constitutional Convention and municipal mayors from five districts.

After receiving the provincial delegations, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, received Mr. and Mrs. A. Mims Thomason who came to bade goodbye before leaving Manila.

President's Week in Review: March 19 - April 8, 1971

President's Week in Review: April 9-15, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 9—

Except for his attendance at the commemorative ceremonies marking the 29th anniversary of Bataan Day, President Marcos otherwise had another relatively quiet day as the nation paused in observance of Good Friday.

The President motored to the Libingan ng mga Bayani at Fort Bonifacio, Rizal at about 8 a.m. for the commemorative rites. He led in laying wreaths at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

From the Libingan, the commemorative ceremonies shifted to the nearby U.S. Military Cemetery, where the same rites were held.

Later in the afternoon, the President motored to Pier 15 where he boarded the RPS 777 for the Bataan Day commemorative rites at sea, off Mariveles, Bataan.

Among others present at the ceremonies were AFP top brass led by Gen. Manuel T. Yan, chief of staff; Brig. Generals Rafael Ilete, Fidel Ramos and Eduardo Garcia; Rep. Ramon D. Bagatsing, and Ernesto Rufino, past president of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor, and other officers of veterans organizations, including Mrs. Charles Shaw, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

In-between the commemorative ceremonies, the President confined his other activities only to the most urgent state business.

In his Bataan, Day message issued earlier, the President said:

Once again we commemorate the Fall of Bataan, in remembrance of those who fell in the last war. Almost three decades have now passed since that day in Bataan, and perhaps we only dimly remember their heroism in the relative calm of our times.

Yet the long span of the years has not diminished the significance of their sacrifice; rather it assumes a new meaning at this time of self-confrontation.

For if in time of war, it took heroes to keep this nation from the rule of tyrants, it takes the same kind of heroism to move this nation in time of peace.

Neither can we forget that the world we live in today is haunted by a tenuous, if not a violent and volatiles, peace.

The wars that continue to rage in Asia and the Middle East inflict a deep wound upon the hearts of men everywhere, but especially upon us who have paid the supreme exactions of war.

The history of Bataan and the men who died there continue to strengthen our bonds with all those who must, today or tomorrow, fight for their peace and freedom.

April 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued to have no schedule of callers, but spent a couple of hours in the morning and afternoon on important matters of state, including urgent desk work.

April 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS resumed his regular schedule of activities, paced by his inauguration of the first two units of bunker-type houses constructed by the National Housing Corporation (NHC) at the customs area in North Bay Boulevard for the temporary retention of the fire victims in Tondo.

The emergency housing complex was designed to house some 3,000 families.

The President inspected the bunker-type houses after attending an Easter Sunday Mass with the fire victims at the chapel of the Don Bosco Youth Center in Tondo. With the President were the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos; their children Irene and Bongbong, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Senator Helena Benitez, chairman of the Senate committee on housing, urban development and resettlement; Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes and Undersecretary of Health Clemente Gatmaitan.

In the course of his brief remarks before the Tondo fire victims, the President invited their leaders, including those of other civic organizations, to a meeting in Malacañang with national and city officials concerned with the Tondo rehabilitation work.

Back in Malacañang, the President signed the appointment papers of Estefania Aldaba-Lim, a Malacañang special consultant on community services, as secretary of the Department of Social Welfare, vice Secretary Gregorio M. Feliciano, who has resigned.

Undersecretary Petra R. de Joya of the DSW was designated to discharge the duties of secretary in the absence of Dr. Lim, who had left for an official mission abroad.

Toward noon the President received General Abdul Haris Nasution, chairman of the Provisional People's Consultative Assembly of the Republic of Indonesia, who arrived in Manila for a six-day official visit to this country. Mrs. Nasution was likewise received by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and Indonesian Ambassador and Mrs. Utomo.

Later, the President met with Senate President Puyat and Speaker Villareal, during which the three agreed on the need for action on vital measures pending in Congress, particularly those designed to increase production. They also agreed on a moratorium on intramurals to enable both chambers of Congress to devote the remaining days of the regular session to fruitful legislation.

In another conference, this time with Justice Undersecretary Catalan; Macaraig and prisons officials, the President directed that strict disciplinary measures be instituted to prevent the recurring violence at the state penitentiary in Muntinglupa, Rizal. He also:

1. Directed the Philippine Navy to transfer qualified prisoners to Iwahig, Davao and Sablayan Penal Colonies;
2. Authorized the transfer of prisoners to army camps as a temporary measure until the restoration of normal conditions at the New Bilibid Prisons;
3. Released P200,000 to set up additional building where prisoners can be housed; and
4. Ordered the allocation of 40 prefabricated school buildings establishment of a medium security compound for 3,000 prisoners who, the President said, should have their own administration office, vocational shops, kitchen and mess, hospital, library and recreation hall.

In his Easter message in English and Pilipino, the President said:

(ENGLISH)

We share anew today a special day of hope and triumph with the rest of the Christian world.

Throughout its long history, mankind has always found in Easter a renascence of the spirit and a reawakening of moral energies.

In the timeless story of Christ's death and resurrection, man has always found comfort in facing the vicissitudes of his world, and hope in the healing of his troubled spirit. To its great and glorious mystery, men have learned to look for deliverance from the darkest crises of their personal lives.

None of us can fail to appreciate the significance of this unique occasion, especially at this time when great tension troubles the whole of mankind, and great difficulty faces our country and people. The kind of work which we are now engaged in as a nation, and the fulfillment that we seek in our national life, need the kind of illumination and radiance, the sobriety and peace, that Easter uniquely brings to our individual lives.

My family and I join one and all in wishing each and everyone of you a very happy Easter.

(PILIPINO)

Magkaisa tayong nagsasaya ngayon sa muling pagsapit ng araw na ito—isang araw ng pag-asa at tagumpay.

Sa simula pa, ang Mahal na Araw ay laging sagisag ng masiglang pagkapukaw at pagkagising ng kabutihan ng sangkatauhan.

Sa walang katapusang kasaysayang ito ng pagkamatay at muling pagkabuhay ng Panginoon, ay walang katapusang dumadaloy ang kasiyahang loob upang ating harapin ang mga suliraning pandaigdig.

Sa kasaysayang ito ay walang katapusang nagmumula ang likas na pananalig, sa gitna man ng pinakamadilim na sandali ng ating buhay.

Walang sino mang maaaring hindi kumilala sa kahalagahan ng na-tatanging okasyong ito, laluna sa panahong ito na ligalig ang buong sangkatauhan, at maraming kahirapang tinatawid ang ating bayan at mga mamamayan.

Ang mga gawaing ginampanan natin ngayon bilang isang bansa, at ang katuparang hinahangad natin, para sa bansang ito ay nangangailangan ng ilaw at liwanag na tanging Mahal na Araw lamang ang makakapagbigay.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had two major conferences, one on vital legislation and the other on the rehabilitation and relocation of the fire victims in Tondo. In between these meetings, the President received several callers and worked on state papers.

The President first met at about 10 a.m. with some 40 Nacionalista congressmen led by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, and House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino R. Veloso.

He called upon the members of Congress to put an end to political wranglings and buckle down to their vital task of considering legislation.

The President served notice that he was leaving the reorganization of the lower chamber entirely in the hands of its members and urged them to resolve the question of leadership as soon as possible.

“I presume that whatever you decide on will be for the good of the country,” the President said.

The President also took occasion to dismiss as ridiculous speculations that he was forming his own party, pointing out that he was convoking the NP national directorate to a meeting at the end of the month for a general assessment of party problems,

Even as the meeting continued, the President broke off at 10:30 a.m. to receive, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, General and Mrs. Abdul Haris Nasution, who paid them a courtesy call.

The President and General Nasution had an exchange of views on latest developments in Southeast Asia and other matters of common interest to their two countries.

With the Nasutions in calling on the First Couple were Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, and Indonesian Ambassador and Mrs. Utomo.

Following the courtesy call of the Indonesian visitors, the President rejoined the congressmen for the continuation of his meeting with them.

Toward noon the President conferred with some members of Congress, national and city officials, and representatives of the church, private organizations and Tondo residents. In the course of the meeting, the President directed:

1. the opening and clearing of six main streets in the area, namely: Pacheco, the road behind the Don Bosco compound, Fishermen's Channel, Herbosa, Roxas Boulevard Extension and Dandan;
2. the NAWASA to use the P500,000 payment of the city government to the agency for the construction of water facilities in the area; and
3. that no government agency, private organization or individual should undertake any construction on Roxas Boulevard Extension.

The President also ordered that lands within 40 meters along Roxas Boulevard Extension be cleared of any housing, and to transfer residents thereof to the bunker-type houses built by the NHC or have them relocated temporarily at the Fishermen's Channel.

Following the conference, the President created a coordinating committee, with himself as overall chairman, to hasten the rehabilitation and relocation of the fire victims. The committee will undertake the planning and implementation of an urban renewal and housing program in the burnt area in Tondo.

Mayor Antonio J. Villegas was named chairman for city government projects, while Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña was designated chairman for national government projects.

Named members of the committee were Sen. Helena Z. Benitez, chairman of the Senate committee on housing, urban development and resettlement; Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr., chairman of the House committee on housing; Rep. Francisco Reyes, Land Authority Deputy Governor Ernesto Valdez, NHC Executive Vice President Gaudencio Tobias, Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino.

PHHC General Manager Sebastian Santiago, NAWASA Assistant General Manager Victor Recio, Councilor Martin B. Isidro, Col. Pacifico de Leon, liaison between the national and city governments; Col. Fidel Ventura, AFP chief of Engineers; Carlos Valdez, Jose Ma. Soriano, Nelly Nufable of the Department of Social Welfare, representatives of USAID, and such civic, religious and charitable organizations as may be willing to provide financial assistance to the program.

April 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated mostly on desk work, receiving a few government officials only, who called at Malacañang for consultations.

Among other actions taken by the President in the morning was the submission to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation of the nominations of Eduardo Rodriguez as administrator of the Office of Economic Coordination and three others for municipal judges.

Nominated to judicial posts were:

1. Romulo S. Sasondoncillo, as municipal judge of Pakil, Laguna;
2. Ceriaco A. Sumaya, as municipal judge of Famy, Laguna; and
3. Norberto T. Hebayan, as municipal judge of Maslog, Eastern Samar.

Rodriguez has been acting OEC administrator for seven months.

Early in the afternoon, following allegations made by Rep. Salipada Pendatun on the floor of the House of Representatives, to the effect that Muslims in Cotabato were being killed, and their houses being burned, no longer by fanatics, but by uniformed PC men, the President directed National Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile to create a Board of Inquiry composed of three (3) officers to inquire into the charges.

In view of conflicting reports, however, the President directed Secretary Enrile to give all those who might be cited for the alleged abuses a chance to present their side, giving them the assistance of counsel if necessary.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, tendered a formal dinner in Malacañang in honor of General and Mrs. Abdul Haris Nasution.

April 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS limited his schedule to only one engagement—the proclamation of five more provinces as land reform areas in ceremonies held at the Maharlika Hall. The whole morning and early evening were devoted to paper work.

Proclaimed were eight towns of Isabela, nine towns in the fourth congressional district of Pangasinan, eight municipalities of Quezon, 13 in Iloilo province, including Iloilo City; and the entire province of Camarines Sur.

In his speech at the proclamation ceremonies, the President underscored the need for eliminating the oppressive features of the nation's outmoded land tenure system before "a meaningful level of economic development" can take place in the country's essentially agrarian economy.

"We know that if we fail to bring about land reform through peaceful and democratic means, attempts will be made to carry it out by force and violence," the President said.

He pointed out that despite the odds the administration has to contend with, its achievements in the area of land reform had been very substantial.

As of December 1970, he said, the land reform program had spread to 16 provinces, involving some 161 municipalities with a total of 222,021 rice and corn farmers working on an area of about 544,789.82 hectares.

Undertaken by the government under the land reform program were the acquisition of private agricultural lands, the opening of public lands or settlement projects, and manpower and clientele development programs, the President said.

He disclosed that as of December 1970, 99 estates had been acquired, covering an area of 68,974 hectares with 51,339 farmer beneficiaries.

Aside from this, the President said, 35 estates had been acquired by the Land Bank with a total area of 4,009 hectares, costing some P16,893,800, and with 2,316 farmers directly benefiting from the acquisitions. He also mentioned the acquisition of 30 settlement reservations and EDCOR farms with an area of 527,033 hectares, on which some 24,509 families had been settled under the government settlement scheme.

“The process of land reform will go on until it is completed,” the President said. “Before the end of 1973, before I step down from the Presidency, the whole Republic of the Philippines shall have been declared a land reform area,” he said.

The President was introduced by Conrado F. Estrella, Land Authority governor and chairman of the Land Reform Council, who formally read the proclamation declaring an additional five provinces, as land reform areas.

Present at the proclamation were former President Diosdado Macapagal under whose administration the Land Reform Code was enacted; senators, representatives, governors, city and municipal mayors; and a large delegation of farmers from the newly proclaimed localities.

The President was back to his desk work later in the afternoon, in the course of which he submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nomination of a career minister, Monico Vicente, as Chief of Mission, Class III.

AFTER AN early morning stint at his desk disposing of official papers, the President turned to other official activities, which started at 10 a.m., with the conferment of the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Maginoo, to former Mayor Gordon S. Clinton of Seattle.

Clinton was specially cited for his “abiding concern for the well-being and greater welfare” of the Filipinos in Seattle, both in his capacity as former mayor of that city and as a private citizen.

The conferment ceremony was followed by the oath-taking of the chairman and five members of the newly reconstituted Institute of National Language.

Sworn in by the President were Director Ponciano B.P. Pineda (Tagalog), chairman Dr. Lino Q. Arquiza (Cebuano), Dr. Nelia Cuanco Casambre (Hiligaynon), Dr. Lorenza Ga. Cesar (Samar-Leyte), Dr. Alejandro Q. Perez (Pampango), members; and Assistant Director Fe Aldave-Yap, secretary and executive officer.

The President then received the members of the CFI-National Association of Clerks of Court led by Vicente S. Pulido, president, who called at Malacañang on the second day of the three-day annual convention of the group to pay their respects.

Also received by the President were Mayors Emma Gaddi of Kidapawan, Cotabato, and Florencio Bernabe of Parañaque, Rizal who took up with him local matters.

In the afternoon, the President motored to Navotas, Rizal for the inauguration of the Navotas Fish Market.

In his speech inaugurating the 3-hectare fish landing complex, the President described the Navotas Fish Market as a precursor of a more intensive effort of the government to transform Navotas into a center of the country's fish industry.

The President said that the government has allotted P60 million for the construction of a fish port in Navotas, complete with such facilities as refrigeration storage, auction rooms, and facilities for fish brokerage activities in connection with wholesale transactions.

Of the P60 million, he said that the Asian Development Bank has already assigned to the Philippines a loan of $5.5 or some P37 million for the construction of the fish port.

The President, in the presence of national and local officials, big and small fishermen of the Manila Bay area, and residents of Navotas, signed an executive order opening the Navotas Fish Market and creating a Fish Landing Authority for Navotas.

Under the order, the authority to administer the fish market was transferred from the GMTFM and the DBP to the cooperative union, to be established by the fishermen of Navotas. He asked the fishermen-residents of the municipality to hasten the formation of these cooperatives.

Among those present at the ceremonies were Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, Commodore Santiago Nuval (ret.), of the Bureau of Customs, Navotas Mayor Felipe del Rosario, Commissioner of Fisheries Andres Mane, and DBP Governors Leon O. Ty, Atilano Cinco, Jose Estevez and Jose D. Ocampo.

The Navotas Fish Landing Authority will manage and operate the fish market under the administration of the Philippine Fisheries Commission.

Earlier in the afternoon, the President formally accepted the resignation of Director Alejo Santos of the Bureau of Prisons and named Brig. Gen. Vicente Raval (ret.) to succeed him.

The President also issued a proclamation authorizing the Press Photographers of the Philippines (PPP) to conduct a nationwide fund campaign during the period from April 15 to June 15.

President's Week in Review: April 16-22, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had three farewell calls, including that of General and Madame Abdul Haris Nasution, who ended a six-day unofficial visit here.

In the morning, the President received Italian Ambassador Dante Maticotta, who bade goodbye after a four-and-a-half-year tour of duty in the Philippines. He intimated to the President during the call that he was being reassigned to Jordan. As a parting gift, he gave the President a folio of reproductions of Italian paintings.

Also in the morning, the President received Ambassador Rogelio de la Rosa, who paid a farewell call prior to his departure for The Hague, where he was assigned as this country's envoy. De la Rosa spent six years in Cambodia: as Philippine ambassador.

Among other callers in the morning was a group of officials from Palembang, Cotabato. In the group were Mayor Druz Ali and Councilors Sixto Maluyo, Tranquilino Ramos, Sabino Manalo, and Salamin Martin, a lawyer with the Commission on National Integration. The officials discussed with him local problems, including the need for a survey of public lands in the municipality, and the issuance of titles to legal occupants of several parcels of land. The group also requested the President to initiate road construction projects in the locality, with assistance from armed forces engineers.

In the afternoon, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, had a pleasant 30-minute visit with General and Madame Nasution. The visiting couple went direct from Malacañang to the MIA, where they boarded their plane for Jakarta.

In-between all these calls, the President as usual worked on state papers and otherwise attended to state business.

Earlier, the President approved the hosting by the Philippine government of a course on the new United Nations System of National Accounts (SNA) and its data requirements and uses, scheduled to be held from the last week of April to the third week of May.

The new system provides a detailed and comprehensive framework for the systematic and integrated recording of the flows and stocks of an economy urgently required for planning and policy-making purposes in the developing countries.

The pressure of work prevented the President to attend the closing ceremony of Inventors Week. He sent Labor Secretary Blas F. Ople to deliver his speech for him, in which the President thanked the inventors for their contributions to the enrichment of Filipino life and said that the awards conferred on Filipino inventors for distinguished work are not alone a recognition of excellence but one way of honoring the "spirit of discovery," the "seeking of new horizons." He asserted that the government pledged to provide "the widest assistance and encouragement" to promote inventions and build up the body of inventors in the country.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had only two major activities on his schedule—a conference with some 200 small fishermen at 10:30 in the morning, and attendance as guest of honor at the formal launching of the "Green Revolution" project of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, at the Nayong Pilipino at 4:30 p.m.

In the course of his meeting with the fishermen, the President ordered the increase of harbor patrols with an eye to apprehending all trawlers operating in waters less than seven fathoms (42 feet) deep in Manila Bay, following a report from the group that destructive trawl and basnig fishing continues to be conducted in Manila Bay.

The President also directed:

1. Secretary of Agriculture Arturo Tanco, Jr., and Fisheries Commissioner Andres Mane to submit to him written studies on the fishing problems in Manila Bay and San Miguel Bay;
2. The agriculture secretary to look into the possibility of easing the terms under which members of fishing cooperatives can get loans from rural banks; and
3. Secretary Tanco to look into a report that the mayor of Manila has plans to construct housing projects for Manila policemen and firemen in an area of the city proclaimed by the President in 1957 as a fishermen's village.

Present at the two-hour meeting were, aside from Secretary Tanco and Commissioner Mane, Naic (Cavite) Mayor Macario Pena, who led the group; other representatives of small or "sustenance" fisherman; and representatives of trawlers led by Mayor Felipe del Rosario of Navotas, Rizal.

The President and the First Lady motored to the Nayong Pilipino at past 4 p.m., after receiving the greetings of government and private groups who had come for the occasion in green dresses, bush jackets and caps, they proceeded to the Hunting Barrio for the blessing ceremonies.

After the blessing of the Hunting Barrio by Fr. Juan Bautista, chaplain of the Presidential Guard Battalion, the First Couple went up the improvised stage for the program.

In his brief extemporaneous remarks, the President said that the Green Revolution actually was started in 196 when the First Lady launched the home garden movement.

He said that although the Green Revolution "aims to conquer want, hunger, and the limitations of resources, it is also symbolic of the fight against customs, traditions, attitudes and habits."

The President expressed the hope that the Green Revolution would catch on and ultimately provide the foundation for unity of the entire people.

Addressing the First Lady and others responsible for the movement, the President said: "Perhaps where the statesmen and diplomats, the technicians and technocrats have failed, you will succeed in bringing about unity among our people by this simple and very obviously common thing of planting seeds upon the soil and seeing them grow into life."

In-between these two activities, the President attended in paper work in his private study.

PRESIDENT MARCOS addressed the national convention of the Agricultural (cooperatives League of the Philippines, held at the DBP auditorium in Makati, Rizal.

In his speech, the President underscored the importance of the cooperative movement, which he described as the only salvation of the country and the Filipino people. He said that all the other programs of government depend on the success of the cooperative movement for their success.

The President cited the land reform program, which was given a new orientation with the introduction of farm cooperatives in the pilot projects in Magalang, Pampanga, and in Nueva Ecija.

The President said that a farmer should not only be given his own piece of land but should be taught how to utilize it along the system of cooperatives.

He explained that if a farmer is given five hectares under the land reform program but divides this land among his five children, giving each only one' hectare, and these children in turn divide the one-hectare lot among their own children, the land is fragmented into small unproductive lots. Thus, the problem of lack of land becomes recurrent generation after generation.

"Here is where the cooperative comes in," the President emphasized. "If the farmers bond themselves together they can purchase a tractor which they cannot individually purchase and maintain."

The President also urged the ACLP to move forward in order that ultimately it could supervise the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market and others programmed for construction in either parts of the country.

He said that food terminals are being established to provide a ready market for the producers and break up the monopolies that control the prices of commodities.

Among those present at the convention, besides the officers and members of the League, were DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata and Governors Leon O. Ty and Jose R. Tengco, Jr.

The President had no other scheduled engagement. He devoted the rest of his working hours to desk work, in the process submitting to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation 31 nominations to Courts of First Instance and one to the Court of Agrarian Relations.

April 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a number of officials and prominent business leaders in one of his most crowded days in recent weeks.

He also inducted into office the new officers of the Philippine Historical Association. During the call of the group, the President was presented with a compilation of the writings of Cen. Emilio Aguinaldo, the president of the First Philippine Republic and other historical documents authored by the revolutionary leader.

Inducted by the President were Dr. Gregorio V. Zaide, president; Jose Ma. Aruego, vice president; Col. Crisanto Alba, secretary; Dr. Ricardo Arcilla, treasurer; and Dr. Sixto Orosa, Dr. Pedro GageIonia, Prof. Celedonio Ancheta, Prof. Celedonio Resurreccion and Prof. Gabriel Isabella, board directors.

The President was also presented a book written by Rev. Richard Wurmbrand, the Rumanian evangelical pastor who defied the ban of the communist regime of that country against religious services and was imprisoned and tortured. The book, titled "Tortured for Christ," is an account of the years spent by the minister in prison. It was presented by Roy Alvarez.

Later in the morning, the President received Tristan Beplat, senior vice president of the Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., who paid a courtesy call. Accompanying the visitor were Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, C. E. Harkness and George B. Colins, chief and deputy representatives, respectively, of the firm.

Also at Malacañang in the morning to pay his respects was ECAFE Executive Secretary U Nyun, who was accompanied by Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda. The ECAFE official arrived for the 10-day meeting of the organization.

Among other callers was Demetrio Tabije, assistant general manager of the Philippine Tobacco Association.

He issued a memorandum to RCA Chairman Jose Drilon, Jr. directing him to break up a syndicate of RCA officials and employees reportedly trafficking in rice, and which had been seen as responsible for an estimated shortage of some 5.1 million cavans of RCA rice.

According to reports received by the President, this syndicate, which was said to have been operating since the administration of former President Macapagal, withdraws rice from RCA warehouses by using one invoice over and over.

"I received these reports from a reliable party who has promised to help the RCA weed out undesirable elements in the agency," the President told Agriculture Undersecretary Drilon, the concurrent RCA chairman.

"You are hereby directed to take immediate steps to break up this syndicate and to stop its operations within one week."

The President added: "Considering your knowledge of RCA operations, I do not anticipate any difficulty in your accomplishing this task."

He also called Drilon's attention to reports that most of the rice dealers in Mindanao who had not paid their debts to the RCA are Filipino-Chinese.

The President directed that steps be taken to enforce collection of these unpaid debts.

April 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor and speaker at the opening of the 10-day 27th ministerial session of the Economic Commission on Asia and the Far East (ECAFE), held in the morning at the Manila Hotel.

In his speech, the President urged the ECAFE to accelerate the integrated development of the region, stressing that social progress must be pursued hand in hand with economic growth.

Stating that the "key resource of any nation is the human potential," the President pointed out that the recent past has demonstrated "beyond dispute that neglect of the human factor can give rise to social instabilities which negate economic development."

He added that it could be accepted "as a universal rule that economic development is hallowed at its core if it does not benefit the greatest number."

The President also emphasized the lag in development of the region, attributing it to the population explosion, the inability of developing countries to mobilize their full potential for development, and the failure of developed countries to "reconcile principle with practice in extending assistance to less fortunate countries."

Unless the "original meaning of international assistance is restored," he said, the developing countries will remain in the grip of what he called the "trial of poverty."

This triad, he said, consists of:

1. The hardening of international loans which, along with "aid-tying," constricts development.
2. The existence of immovable trade barriers which adversely affect first of all the developing countries.
3. The requirement for substantive international reserves which inhibits the mobilization of development resources by developing countries.

The President said that it is the last factor which must be reviewed, "since its harsh impact is beginning to be felt by the less fortunate regions.

Earlier, the President worked at his desk, among others issuing a directive which gave to the Joint Committee on Financial Management the added responsibility of clearing the debts of government agencies and financial houses through a new system of procedures.

The President left Malacañang at mid-morning for the Manila Hotel, arriving there at exactly 10 a.m. He was welcomed by U Nyun, executive secretary of ECAFE, and other officials of and delegates to the conference.

He was back in Malacañang before noon, and conferred on Tristan Beplat, senior executive vice president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, the Presidential Golden Heart Award, for distinguished services to the Philippines. Present at the award rites were the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, and a number of local leaders of the private sector.

In the afternoon the President broke away from his desk work to motor with the First Lady to the Manila International Airport, where they welcomed King Mahendra and Queen Ratna of Nepal. The royal couple planed in for a two-day stopover in Manila before flying on to Australia on a state visit.

The President and the First Lady were back in Malacañang at about 6 p.m. Later they had a dinner with the Nepalese king and queen.

April 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received the heads of delegations to the ECAFE meet in Manila, some individually, others in groups.

First to call to pay his respects was former US Treasury Secretary David Kennedy, now ambassador-at-large, and head of the US delegation.

He was accompanied by William Knight, deputy head of mission of the US embassy here.

Also making an individual call on the President was Australian Minister for Primary Industry I. Sinclair, who presented to the President the donation of Australia through the SEATO Aid Program of some US$308,000 worth of telecommunications equipment to improve the country's typhoon warning system; and Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik.

Hungarian Ambassador Peter Koos, who is his country's envoy to New Delhi; Ambassador Jerzy Bociong, Poland's envoy to Jakarta; Dr. Jaromir Johanes, Czechoslovakia's ambassador to Indonesia; and M. M. Volkov, the USSR ambassador to Indonesia, made the courtesy call on the President as a group.

They were accompanied to the Palace by Philippine delegate, Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda, and ECAFE Executive Secretary U Nyun.

Later in the morning, the President inducted the officers of the Advanced Management Association of the Far East. Inducted were Rene Cristobal, president; Col. Manuel Salientes (ret.), first vice president; Pedro Nisperos, second vice president; Domingo Y. Itchon, treasurer; Arsenio Vistro, secretary; and Angel Limjoco, Jr., Horacio Gutierrez, Romeo Intengan, Gabino Mendoza, Edgardo de Leon. Gil Sulil, Jr., Patrocinio Bautista, Eusebio Viilatuya, and Patemo Kintanar, directors.

In his brief remarks following the induction, the President said the organization could help particularly in looking into new approaches for solving old problems, which emerged as "new conflicts" as a result of the implementation of innovative programs of government.

Later, the President sought the improvement of the real property assessment committee in the Department of Finance.

In creating the committee, the President stressed the importance of the realty tax as a source of revenue for local governments.

The President also emphasized that an improved real property assessment would result in the fair distribution of the realty tax burden among real property owners throughout the country.

In the afternoon, the President had leeway for attending to his desk work and other state matters. Much later, he and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, again played hosts to the visiting King and Queen of Nepal, as the royal visitors went on a brief sight-seeing tour of the city environs.

April 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, tendered a formal dinner in honor of King Mahendra and Queen Ratna Rajya Laxmi Devi Shah, during which the President conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Rajah, on the King, and the Golden Heart Presidential Award on the Queen.

Later in the evening, the President and the First Lady accompanied the visiting Royalty from Nepal to the Manila International Airport where they boarded a plane for their state visit to Australia.

Among those present at the dinner were Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, Speaker and Mrs. Cornelio T. Villareal, Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo, Education Secretary and Mrs. Juan Manuel, General Services Secretary Constancio Castañeda, Justice Secretary and Mrs. Vicente Abad Santos Central Bank Gov. and Mrs. Gregorio Licaros, chiefs of the diplomatic missions in the Philippines, and members of the Royal Couple's entourage.

The President had a full schedule of callers in the morning, among

1. Dr. Henry Clement, a tourism expert from the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) on assignment with the Presidential Economic Staff (PES) to help draft a tourist development program for the Philippines. Dr. Clement is author of the famed "Chechi Report," which projects the future of tourism in the Pacific and the Far East.
2. Members of a team, of the Rural Volunteers of the Philippines (RSVP), who called to pay their respects prior to their departure for Agusan del Sur to engage in a summer project among the rural folks of the Land Authority resettlement area there.
3. Members of the Philippine football team, who also called to pay their respects preparatory to their departure for Japan to compete in the Asian Youth Football Tournament.

The President worked on state papers and went over reports from various government agencies the whole afternoon.

He submitted to the Commission on Appointments two more nominations to the courts of first instance, and issued a memorandum to all members of the Cabinet on the purchase of supplies and equipment, and an executive order creating a national committee to undertake preparations for the celebration of the 73rd anniversary of Independence Day on June 12.

Nominated to CFI posts were Ildefonso Bleza, state prosecutor, and Eduardo R. Bengzon, secretary of the Senate Electoral Tribunal, as judges of the courts of first instance of Mindoro Oriental and Negros Oriental, respectively.

In his memorandum to Cabinet members, the President ordered that all purchases of supplies, materials, equipment and the like by government offices should be made directly with reputable manufacturers or their duly registered and licensed distributors in the country, to the exclusion of middlemen, as a way of precluding overpricing.

In this connection, the President directed the Department of General Services to make a list of legitimate manufacturers and their duly registered or licensed distributors in the Philippines.

The President said that should the needed materials, supplies, and equipment be not in stock, a certification to that effect issued by the general manager of the reputable manufacturer or his duly authorized representative, or the firm's duly registered and licensed distributor, shall be made the basis for the procurement through competitive public bidding of the needed materials or equipment. The certification, he said, shall be included in the claim for payment, otherwise any purchase of supplies, materials equipment and the like shall be considered irregular and therefore not be passed in audit.

Named to head the Independence Day committee were Labor Secretary Blas F. Ople, chairman; and Education Secretary Juan Manuel, vice-chairman.

For the purpose of discharging its functions effectively, the committee was empowered to create sub-committees as may be necessary.

It was also authorized to call upon any department, bureau, office, agency or instrumentality of the government, including government-owned or controlled corporations, for assistance to insure the success of the celebration.

President's Week in Review: April 23 - May 6, 1971

President's Week in Review: May 7-13, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS sought the early completion of public works and rural improvement projects, urging greater effort during the summer months to head off the rainy season.

The President told Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquio, and PACD Officer-In-Charge Rosendo Marquez in a conference in Malacañang, that all necessary funds be released for the priority projects so that substantial progress may be made before the rains set in.

The President said that unless the projects are completed on time they might be set back by the elements when the rains start, and the expenses and effort put into them would just be wasted.

He later received several provincial governors and city mayors from Luzon who took up with him their local problems, particularly releases from the Calamity Fund, Special Highways Fund, and from their share of excess income tax collections.

Among those who railed were Governors Cipriano Primicias, Jr. of Pangasinan, Silvino B. Agudo of Batanes, Jose S. Estevez of Albay, Elizabeth M. Keon of Ilocos Norte, and Bienvenido Ongkeko representing Gov. Amando Cledera of Camarines Sur; and City Mayors Reynaldo Reyes of Lipa, Cesar P. Dizon of San Pablo, Cipriano Manaois of Dagupan and Elpidio Cucio of Palayan.

Among other actions, the President delegated to the National Historical Commission the authority to choose the awardee or awardees in the field of history in connection with the Annual Republic Cultural Heritage Awards.

The President's move was in recognition of the functions and responsibilities of the historical commission, notably to enable it to "encourage research in Philippine history and the writing and publication of textbooks on the subject, research on and the writing of biographies of heroes accounts of historical events, translation of important scholarly works of Filipinos and foreigners" through appropriate and adequate incentives.

The President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments the nominations of four bar topnotchers, four provincial and city fiscals, three Department of Justice officials, six law professors, one clerk of the Supreme Court, live law practitioners as judges of the Court of First Instance of various salas in the country; and transferred 12 CFI judges to salas in the Greater Manila area.

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the need for an effective administrative structure, which is both strong and flexible, in the planning and implementation of economic and social programs, if these programs should meet current needs and the demands posed by growing populations.

"We cannot afford to let them be overwhelmed by the scope and complexity of the problems they face. As needs and priorities change, they must adjust, anticipating and meeting new responsibilities and challenges." the President said in a speech read for him by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile at the opening of the 6th General Assembly and Conferences of the Eastern Regional Organization for Public Administration (EROPA), held at the Ramon Magsaysay Center memorial hall.

The President hailed EROPA for pioneering again in deciding to organize a regional conference on the administrative implications of rapid population growth in Asia, saying that administrators cannot ignore change as a factor in their planned activities.

Earlier, the President conveyed to the people and government of Nationalist China the gratitude of the people of the Philippines for the loan of 50,000 metric tons of rice to relieve the temporary rice shortage.

The President requested Minister of Finance K. T. Li during the signing of the Rice Loan Agreement between China and the Philippines, to convey to President Chiang Kai-Shek and the people of Nationalist China “our gratitude for your understanding and sympathy for the Filipino people.”

The Rice Loan Agreement was signed by Minister Li for and in behalf of his government, and Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. for and in behalf of the Philippines, in the presence of President Marcos.

The Rice Loan Agreement provides that China would loan to the Philippines 50,000 metric tons of milled rice, payable in kind over a period of 10 years.

Under this agreement, the proceeds from the rice sale could be used by the Philippines for the promotion of agricultural productivity while the payment is not yet due. The rice loan was negotiated by Secretary Tanco.

Also present at the signing of the agreement were Undersecretary of Agriculture and acting RCA Chairman and General Manager Jose D. Drilon, Jr., Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Ambassador to China Pelagio Llamas, Director of Plant Industry Eliseo C. Carandang, PNB Vice President Nicanor Fernandez, Antonio Roxas-Chua of the Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce.

H. P. Chen, director of the Central Trust of China; Chinese Ambassador Patrick Pichi Sun; S. T. Shih, acting director of Taiwan Provincial Food Bureau; Stewart Y. F. Pei, secretary of the Chinese delegations; and S. J. Ho and William Sun, counsellor and commercial attache, respectively of the Chinese embassy.

PRESIDENT MARCOS and Mrs. Marcos led the nation in commemorating the 29th anniversary of the fall of Corregidor by making a pilgrim age to Corregidor island.

The President was the guest speaker while the First Lady officiated at the wreath-laying ceremony at the marker on the exact site where the Philippine-American forces surrendered to the Japanese conquerors.

During the simple but solemn ceremonies, the President renewed his pledge to sacrifice “our everything—our lives, our hope and our dreams—even unto death, to fight for the freedom for which we stand.”

A veteran and member of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor the President said:

“We come to rededicate ourselves to the ideals and valor of those who lie here.

The President said that the difficult thing about the present struggle was that as free men, “we must give the same rights and privileges which we consider as basic and are enshrined in the very Constitution which they seek to destroy.”

The Presidential party arrived at Corregidor at 11:20 a.m. After the President received full military honors from a composite battalion of the AFP, he proceeded to the actual site of the surrender where the First Lady laid a wreath. Rizalino Lacuna, DBC national commander, assisted her. This was followed by the President’s remarks.

Then, U. S. Ambassador Henry Byroade inducted the new set of officers of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor headed by its national commander, Rizalino Lacuna.

Others who took their oaths were Alfred X. Burgos, vice national commander; Reno G. Lavadia, national adjutant; Antonio S. Vinlian, national finance officer; Ismael C. Lomibao, national public relations officer; Jose Syjuco, national judge advocate; Jose D. Regala, national inspector; Teofilo S. San Agustin, national auditor; Ismael D. Lapus, immediate past national commander; Gen. Manuel T. Yan, Undersecretary of National Defense Manuel Q. Salientes, Bienvenido C. Buenaventura, Angel A. Ricasata, Mario O. Cruz, and Jose C. Moran, national directors; and Constante Ma. Cruz, national welfare officer; Carlos Vergel de Dios, national surgeon; and Fr. Sebastian Posadas, OP, national chaplain.

After the induction of officers. and departure honors, the President and his party boarded the RPS 77 and proceeded to Mariveles to give the guests who had gone on the pilgrimage a chance to visit the Dambana ng Kagitingan on Mount Samat.

Among those who accompanied the President were Executive Secretary and Mrs. Alejandro Melchor. Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, participants in the Green Revolution including PACD Officer-In-Charge Rosendo Marquez. Fisheries Commissioner Andres Mane. and National Agriculture and Food Council Executive Director Roberto Fronda.

Among other actions, the President nominated Mrs. Lucina C. Alday, as director of the Bureau of Women and Minors, vice Carmen Herrera-Acosta, retired.

May 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated on official papers and other matters of state, preparatory to his scheduled trip to the north in another of a series of visits to the provinces during summer.

The President attended to desk work shortly after breakfast, breaking off at well past noon for lunch and a brief rest. He was back to paper work later in the afternoon.

He did not receive callers, but consulted with his aides in the course of the day.

May 11 —

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned the people of Northern Luzon against national leaders who, once having gained power, are using that power “wittingly or unwittingly,” to help advance communism in this country.

He made the warning in brief remarks at the inauguration of the branch of the Philippine National Bank in Aparri before noon.

The President also cautioned the people to be more discriminating in their choice of aspirants to government posts such that leaders of dubious motives and qualifications are not returned to power.

The President was accompanied to Cagayan by the First Lady Imelda R. Marcos, who took advantage of the opportunity to thank the people of the region for their wholehearted support of her Green Revolution.

The First Lady impressed upon the Ilocanos the importance of the movement, saying it is the basic foundation of any developing country like the Philippines.

The First Couple was accorded a rousing reception upon their arrival in Aparri. It was their first visit to the northernmost town of Luzon since the President assumed the highest office of the Republic.

The President was introduced by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, who is a native of the province. Other speakers included Gov. Teresa Dupaya, Aparri Mayor Oscar W. Litaua, and PNB President Eusebio Villatuya who headed PNB officials at the ceremony.

Following the inaugural rites, the Presidential Party flew to the capital town of Tuguegarao where they boarded helicopters which ferried them to Liwan, Kalinga-Apayao. In that town they viewed the fossilized remains of prehistoric animals and man-made tools said to date back to 100,000 to 400,000 years ago.

The artifacts were unearthed by archaeological excavation undertaken by the National Museum and the University of the Philippines archaeological department.

The First Couple was accompanied to the excavation site by Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr., president of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Association.

From Kalinga-Apayao, the President returned to Tuguegarao where he conferred with local officials whom he urged to finish improvement projects in their areas before the rainy season sets in. He also inquired into the peace and order situation in their respective localities.

May 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, made a side trip to the Fuga Island group, some 47 nautical miles north of Luzon, for some relaxation.

The President was originally scheduled to visit Isabela, but decided to postpone it and proceeded instead to Fuga Island, where he tried his luck in the clear waters of the island. He caught a 5-pound [unreadable] and an 8-pound jack.

May 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS returned to Manila from a three-day visit to the Cagayan Valley provinces, which he undertook in connection with his annual summer tour of the country.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, the President covered the provinces of Cagayan, Kalinga-Apayao and Isabela, where he looked into the progress of various on-going development projects.

While in Isabela, the President also received a briefing from military officials on the peace and order situation in the province.

The military commanders reported that communist dissidents previously operating in Tarlac and Pampanga had transferred their operations to Isabela but that the armed forces have them on the run and are in full control of the situation.

Present at the briefing held at the residence of Gov. Samuel F. Reyes in Cauayan at noon were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief: Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, 1st PC zone commander; and ranking officers of the provincial and task force commands.

After his conferences with the local and military officials, the President and the First Lady left for Manila, arriving in Malacañang late in the afternoon.

President's Week in Review: May 14-20, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS resumed work at his study after a three-day absence from Malacañang, during which he visited Cagayan Valley where he assessed the progress of on-going projects and conferred with local officials on their problems. After a spell of work at his desk, he received Gen. Shim Heung-Sun, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff of the Armed Forces of the Republic of Korea, who called to pay his respects. The visiting Korean top brass was accompanied by Korean Ambassador to the Philippines Se Ryun Kim.

Later at formal ceremonies, the President conferred the Legion of Honor (rank of commander) on Gen. Shim, for signal services in promoting and enhancing the friendship between the Philippines and his country, and for his contributions to the security of the Asian region. At the ceremonies were top brass of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

After the rites, the President took advantage of the presence of the military leaders of the country to discuss current problems of defense, and to get a briefing on the peace and order situation.

In the afternoon, the President again worked at his desk, and received a few more private visitors. Then he motored to the Hotel Intercontinental where he addressed a gathering of 4-H Club members.

In his speech, the President lauded the 4-H Club for "paving the way for the Green Revolution."

The President said that so long as there are young men and women like the 4-H Club members, who believe there is need for reform and look forward to reforms, and who believe in bringing about reforms without violence, those reforms can be obtained peacefully.

In the evening, the President conferred the Order of the Golden Heart on Gen. Charles A. Lindbergh "for his persevering concern regarding the kind of impact civilization makes on the quality of all forms of life on earth—human life, and other life as well."

The award was presented to the world renowned aviator, humanist and conservationist at a formal dinner tendered by the President and the First Lady. Imelda R. Marcos, in Malacañang.

Lindbergh was cited for, among others, his personal commitment in dramatizing the urgent need for concentrated efforts to preserve the tamaraw, the monkey-eating eagle, the green sea turtle and other dwindling species of Philippine wildlife from extinction, as well as for generating international support of Philippine conservation efforts in the form of field laboratory equipment and other facilities.

May 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor and speaker at the closing ceremonies of the Livestock, Piggery and Poultry Week and National Agricultural Fair held at the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market.

In his speech, the President urged the intensification of animal production, saying that it is one of the greatly deficient areas of production in the country.

The President also congratulated the officials and industrial leaders responsible for the holding of the Fair.

The President said that national problems like unrest, reform, medical indigency, or pollution control can be solved through production.

“If each and every child, man or woman produces something, no matter how modest or small,” the President said, “he will be able to solve all our problems.”

He said production means increased income for the farmers who need not beg for food or clothing, but could afford to send their children to school and live comfortably.

Before motoring to the GMTFM, the President witnessed the signing of the deed covering the donation of $1 million worth of rice by the Japanese government to the Philippine government.

The document was signed by Ambassador Toshio Urabe on behalf of the Japanese Government, and by Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles on behalf of the Philippine Government, at a simple ceremony held in Malacañang.

The President later signed a note conveying to the Japanese government and people the gratitude of the Filipino for the rice donation.

In the afternoon, the President had a reunion with a wartime buddy, Marcelo Paat, who provided him shelter and refuge from the Japanese during the war.

Aged 78 and jobless, but healthy, Paat came to Malacañang upon invitation of the President who wanted to know in what way he could help the old man. Paat hails from Bantay, Ilocos Sur.

Following his reunion with his wartime comrade, the President held a press conference at Malacañang, during which he, among others clarified points on the PC circular regarding the arrest of persons inciting rebellion during demonstrations.

The President said that the PC circular ordering the filing of charges against persons inciting rebellion in connection with anti-government demonstrations and rallies would not in any way affect the right of free speech and assembly.

He said that the administration would continue to tolerate criticism, but the President added seditious acts are punishable under the law and the authorities are going to enforce the law.

Proper legal procedures would be observed, the President concluded.

May 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS inducted into office Dr. Estefania Aldaba-Lim as secretary of social welfare.

The President appointed Dr. Aldaba-Lim to the social welfare post after Secretary Gregorio M. Feliciano resigned to re-assume his position in the International Institute of Rural Reconstruction.

The new DSW secretary took her oath of office in the presence of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos; Sen. Helena Z. Benitez, Rep. Jose Alberto and Ali Dimaporo, Dr. Vicente Villamin and other members of her family, which included her mother Estefania J. Vda de Aldaba; mother-in-law Pilar Hidalgo-Lim; brothers Benjamin Homobono and Rodolfo and their ladies; sisters Lualhati, Dalisay and Diwata; children Cristina, Alberto, Luis, Jr., and Ricardo; and son-in-law Yuzon.

The President devoted the rest of his working hours in the morning and afternoon to state papers, in the process ordering a nationwide crackdown on the production of pornography in all its forms.

He issued the order in a directive to the Secretary of Justice, the Secretary of National Defense, the Philippine Constabulary, the National Bureau of Investigation and local executives and their prosecutors.

The President directed them to arrest and prosecute all guilty parties.

May 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had another day spent mostly on official papers.

Among others, he issued an executive order creating an Education Project Task Force which would undertake feasibility studies of certain specific projects to be financed through soft loans from the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank).

Proposed by the Department of Education, the task force would evaluate and choose the specific projects from among those recommended by a Presidential Commission previously constituted under an earlier executive order to conduct a survey of education in the Philippines.

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued concentrating on paper work and other urgent matters of state, even as he kept his schedule clear of callers.

The President limited his conferences to government officials, who discussed with him developmental concerns of their respective departments.

While engaged in desk work, the President certified to Congress House Bill No. 1919, otherwise known as the Electoral Reform Bill.

The President, in messages to the Senate and the House of Representatives, certified to the urgency of enacting the bill subject to proper amendments.

The bill has been reported out by the House Special Committee on Electoral Reforms, with some amendments.

The bill, among others:

1. Organizes and defines the powers and functions of the Commission on Elections.
2. Defines the election period.
3. Creates the Office of Election Prosecutors.
4. Moves national elections from the second Tuesday to the second Monday of November.
5. Requires the registration of political parties and defines their rights and obligations.
6. Prohibits contributions from foreign sources for election campaigns.
7. Prohibits candidates and leaders from receiving contributions, specifying that only the political party as an organization is authorized to do so.
8. Limits expenditures and advertisements for election campaigns.

9. Cites violations of the provisions of the law and sets down the corresponding punishment.

May 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS maintained the pace of his desk work, trimming down the piles of official papers in his private study.

The President started acting on official papers at about 9:10 a.m., breaking off some three hours later for lunch and a brief rest. He was back in his study later in the afternoon, remaining at his desk through early evening.

May 20—

Earlier in the day, the President certified to Congress House Bill No. 3609, transferring the site for the inaugural meeting of the Constitutional Convention from the Congress building to the Manila Hotel.

The President certified the bill upon the request of the Inaugural Committee of the Constitutional Convention, members of which called on him to invite him to attend the inaugural ceremonies.

The members of the Inaugural Committee informed the President that during their pre-convention meeting on April 21, Manila Hotel was made the overwhelming choice for the site of the inauguration.

They said that with 320 members, the Hall of the House of Representatives would be too small for all the delegates. The Manila Hotel, they said, is spacious enough to contain even more guests than already invited.

Those who called on the President were Delegates Cicero Calderon, inaugural committee chairman; Felino Neri, Rev. Pacifico Ortiz, Eriberto Misa, Antonio Raquiza and Heherson Alvarez.

The President called Congress to a special session upon recommendation of the leaders of Congress in order to take up several vital measures pending before both Chambers of the legislative body.

He summoned Congress to a special session for a period not exceeding 30 days starting June 14, in response to the request of Congress leaders to give them at least two weeks after adjournment of the regular session, within which to iron out their differences on some of the bills.

In his proclamation, the President listed down four bills for inclusion in the agenda of the special session, namely:

House Bill No. 3343—	AN ACT APPROPRIATING FUNDS FOR THE OPERATION OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE REPUBLIC OF THE PHILIPPINES DURING THE PERIOD FROM JULY FIRST, NINETEEN HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-ONE TO JUNE THIRTIETH, NINETEEN HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-TWO AND FOR OTHER PURPOSES
SENATE BILL No. 184—	AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR ELECTORAL REFORMS, TO AMEND THE ELECTION CODE AND INSERTING NEW SECTIONS THEREIN, AND AMENDING FURTHER REPUBLIC ACT NUMBERED THIRTY-THREE, THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-FOUR, AS AMENDED;
HOUSE BILL No. 1919—	NEW ELECTION CODE OF THE PHILIPPINES;
SENATE BILL No. 478—	AN ACT AMENDING REPUBLIC ACT NUMBERED THIRTY-THREE, THOUSAND FIVE HUNDRED AND EIGHTY-FOUR, AS AMENDED;

Earlier in the morning, the President received the credentials of the Italian envoy. Ambassador Luigi Martelli, at ceremonies in Malacañang.

Immediately after the rites, the President sat down with Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo who reported on the SEATO ministers meeting in London, and the meeting he called in Madrid of Philippine envoys in Europe.

Shortly afterward, the President again sat down for a conference with USAID Assistant Director Roderick O'Connor. They discussed future uses of USAID assistance, in such areas of development as electrification and such problem areas as population control. Also present at the conference were Secretary Romulo, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat.

In the afternoon, the President had time to work extensively at his desk, during which he issued a proclamation calling Congress to a special session.

The President knocked off only for a meeting with US Assistant Secretary of State Marshal Green. With the US official was Frank Shakespeare, USIS director. They were accompanied by US Ambassador Henry Byroade.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, were hosts at a dinner honoring the visiting US envoys in Asia, who had gathered in Manila for a conference.

President's Week in Review: May 28 - June 3, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred the Golden Heart Presidential Award on Dr. Clark Bloom, resident representative in the Philippines of the Ford Foundation.

The President presented the award in recognition of Dr. Bloom's, distinguished service to the Philippines and the Filipino people, particularly in strengthening Philippine institutions relating to development in essential areas like agriculture and education.

In the afternoon, the President was honored with a parade and review by the Presidential Guard Battalion in a ceremony held at Malacañang Park, commemorating the 33rd anniversary of its founding.

Addressing the officers and men of the organization, the President pointed out that the "unsettled character of our times pose dangers to our democracy."

This present crisis, the President stated, would require those in the military and those in the government, to exercise the "ability to keep events from getting ahead of us and to keep the ship of state from sinking in the eye of the typhoon."

The President stressed the difficulty of the task, saying that government response, if it is to be truly reflective of democracy, must never "trample on the bedrock of freedom—civil liberties."

He continued: "Our response must be tempered with caution even in dealing with those who are sworn to bring down the government."

The President was introduced by Brig. Gen. Fabian C. Ver, PGB commander.

Present at the rites were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce 'v Enrile, Undersecretary Jose F. Crisol, AFP Chief of Staff General Manuel Yan, heads of the major services of the armed forces, families and friends of the members of the PGB.

PRESIDENT MARCOS told some 64 graduates of the seminar on provincial electric cooperatives that they are responsible for the success of one of the most important programs of government.

Composed of representatives from the Presidential Arm on Community Development, Cooperatives Administration Office, local government, teachers and civic groups, the trainees had just completed a 10-day intensive training, preparatory to being divided into five-man teams to be called Provincial Electric Cooperatives Teams and sent to the barrio^ and towns, some to gather data for feasibility studies and others to organize or set the proper atmosphere for the organization of cooperative as a new approach to the problem of electricity.

"Thus," the President told them, "you will bring light where there is darkness, progress where there is stagnation, knowledge where there is ignorance, abundance where there is scarcity, and health where there is disease."

The President also took occasion to express his gratitude to the United States Government through Director Thomas Niblock of the local U.S. Agency for International Development for the various assistance given by that and other U.S. agencies to the Philippines.

Later in the afternoon, the President sent the following letter to the delegates to the Constitutional Convention:

The				Delegates
1971		Constitutional		Convention
Through	the	Inaugural	Committee	Chairman
Dr.	Cicero		D.	Calderon
Manila

Gentlemen of the Convention:

In answer to a letter of your inauguration committee, I have the pleasure to accept your invitation, which I understand has been supported by a Resolution inviting me to speak.

It is my hope that this will lay the foundation for unity among our people, who are praying for the success of the Constitutional Convention.

Very truly yours

(Sdg.)	FERDINAND	E.	MARCOS
President of the Philippines

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed RCA Chairman-General Manager Jose D. Drilon, Jr. to effect a complete revamp of the agency with the view to making it a more effective and respected arm of the government.

The President gave the order after Drilon reported that syndicates which had been responsible for shortages in RCA stocks have virtually been busted with the filing of administrative charges and suspension of five RCA regional managers, three branch and agency managers, nine finance officers, nine provincial inspectors and 44 warehousemen.

The President commended Undersecretary Drilon for cleaning up the RCA, the agency charged with stabilizing the supply of the staple food of the people.

In proclaiming the opening, of the Constitutional Convention a special holiday, the President said that “the people should be given the opportunity to ponder upon the importance of the historic undertaking and to think out and propose to their respective delegates much-needed reforms in the social, economic and political structure.”

The President also designated Leticia Perez de Guzman, a vice president for administration of the Philippine Women’s University, as member of the National Manpower and Youth Council, to represent Family Organizations.

May 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS paid tribute to the war dead, urging the people to carry on with the ideals for which they had fought and died.

At the Memorial Day services held at the Manila American Cemetery in Fort Bonifacio in the afternoon, the President urged his hearers to “keep our promises to the men who had believed with us but are not here to share our burdens.”

The President decried that the peace the war heroes had looked forward to “remains fragile and fragmented, with the evils and malignancies they had sought to cleanse away with their blood still haunting the world, enslaving or wounding men, if not their flesh, their spirit; if not their minds, their hopes of a brighter day.”

Refusing to concede that all that these heroes had died for had been nothing, the President stated that “perhaps the world is what it is today, wracked by suspicion and prejudice, by hostile conspiracies and mindless violence; moved by greed and lust for power; because the idea of human brotherhood and common dignity has not yet reached its time.”

The President exhorted the people to “overcome the dissensions and the jealousies dividing the human family,” to “dominate the tigers that ceaselessly strive to break loose within us and thus make us one of the same pack of predators stalking the weak and the helpless.”

He continued: “Let us strive so that we too could live as emblems of conduct, in the way they fought and died.”

Present at the solemn rites were members of the diplomatic corps, representatives of 36 participating veterans organizations, ranking American and Filipino military officials and families of the war dead.

Military honors were accorded the President by a company of Philippine Army men upon his arrival at the cemetery gate at exactly 4:00 p.m.

The President was welcomed at the steps of the cemetery by U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade; John F. McLaughlin, master of ceremonies; Dr. Charles Mosebrook, minister of United Methodist Church; (Lt. Cmdr.) James Clark, catholic chaplain; and (Lt. Cmdr.) Richard Smithy protestant chaplain.

Then the President laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, followed by Ambassador Byroade. Some 20 special guests and representatives of veterans, civic and military organizations also jointly made floral offerings.

As part of the observance, the United States and Philippine flags were lowered at half-mast the whole day.

Capping the ceremonies were memorial day prayers delivered by both the Catholic and Protestant chaplains.

Earlier in the morning the President directed the chief of the Philippine Navy to take “strong punitive action” against a PN officer allegedly involved in a gunrunning attempt in Saigon, Vietnam.

At the same time, the President ordered the Department of Foreign Affairs to explore with the local Vietnamese embassy by means of regulating the entry into Vietnam of Filipino job-seekers without appropriate working visas.

The President issued the twin directives through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. following receipt of reports of unsavory incidents involving Filipinos in South Vietnam.

The Chief Executive asked both the Secretary of Foreign Affairs and the PN chief to submit their respective reports on the action taken by them on these cases.

June 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS appealed to the delegates to the Constitutional Convention to cast aside narrow interests and work in unity and close cooperation in the framing of a new Constitution.

Addressing the opening session of the Constitutional Convention at the Manila Hotel, the President also asked everyone to help provide the moral climate of cooperation and support “without which this great opportunity for human growth in this part of the world must surely lapse unfulfilled.”

The President said he had come to the Convention “to offer that cooperation and support,” and “to express in person the fervent hope that the Constitutional Convention will succeed in its noble task to meet the great expectations of our people in a Philippine Constitution.”

The President said that “the price of a successful new Charter is unity itself, for neither the making of a new Constitution nor its blueprints of ideals and principles is an assurance by itself that we shall attain the peaceful, abundant and meaningful life which alone is the object of our best endeavors.”

The President reminded the delegates that they go into their historic mission with the confidence of the people who elected them in their “ability and willingness to discard narrow interests so that neither political ends, nor personal fortune, nor fanaticism shall stand in the way of a Charter expressive of the true aspirations of our people.”

The President continued, “The new tribalism engendered by organized anarchy must now be discarded in favor of national unity, which alone can ensure the calm and orderliness that can guarantee the success of you efforts.” (See pp. 4436-4437 for text of the President’s speech.)

The President, together with the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez-Marcos arrived at the convention hall at about 10 a.m. Their arrival was announced by a long standing ovation as the delegates and their guests stood up to greet them.

After acknowledging the greetings from the crowd, the President proceeded to the rostrum where he sat flanked by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, while the First Lady joined Mrs. Mariquit Lopez, wife of Vice President Fernando Lopez, and former First Ladies, namely, Mesdames Carlos P. Garcia, Diosdado Macapagal and Sergio Osmeña, Sr.

As soon as the President and the First Lady were seated, Senate President Puyat and Speaker Villareal called the convention to order.

The program started with the singing of the National Anthem, followed by an ecumenical prayer led by representatives of the Iglesia ni Cristo Muslim faith, National Council of Churches, Philippine Independent Church and Roman Catholic Church.

This was followed by a speech by Senate President Puyat, and the certification of the election of the delegates present by Chairman Jaime N Ferrer of the Commission on Elections, who informed the convention that there were 312 delegates elected, with eight others not yet decided and 309 of the 312 elected were present at the opening session.

The Speaker then introduced the President who spoke for 13 minutes, and then waited for the session to be recessed before leaving the convention hall.

Also present at the opening session of the Constitutional Convention were surviving members of the Constitutional Convention of 1934, members of the Cabinet, senators and representatives, members; of the diplomatic corps, and other government officials.

June 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with leaders of Congress headed by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, to insure the passage of four vital measures which he had certified to Congress for consideration in the coming special session.

In his proclamation calling Congress to a special session for a period of 30 days or less starting on June 14, the President certified for inclusion in the agenda, the following:

- 1) H. No. 3443, otherwise known as the General Appropriations Act;
- 2) H. No. 184, otherwise known as the Electoral Reform Bill;
- 3) H. No. 1919, calling for a New Election Code; and
- 4) H. No. 3453 (S. No. 478), otherwise known as the Land Reform Act;

The President, however, emphasized that the agenda may be expanded to include other pending bills which the leaders of Congress might consider of vital importance and urgency.

In today's meeting, the President and the leaders of Congress took up the pending measures and agreed to limit the agenda to as few bills as possible.

Present at the conference were Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, Reps, Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega of La Union, Emerito Calderon of Cebu, James L. Chiongbian of South Cotabato, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Rafael B. Legaspi of Aklan, Jose J. Leido, Jr. of Oriental Mindoro, Lamberto L. Macias of Negros Oriental, Pablo Malasarte of Bohol, Pedro C. Medalla of Occ. Mindoro, Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, Pablo R. Roman of Bataan, Roberto Sabido of Albay, Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao del Norte and Nicanor E. Yñiguez of Southern Leyte.

He was accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos.

Before leaving Malacañang, the President directed:

1. Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments to discuss with ASEAN investment agencies regional investment and industrial programs, taking into consideration the Philippine car manufacturing program and its expected effect on the economy of the region.
2. The Philippine ambassador to Washington Ernesto Lagdameo to submit an official report on the reported cut made on Philippine sugar quota in the United States.

In a memorandum circular issued through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., the President asked all departments, bureaus, offices and government-owned or controlled corporations to sponsor or conduct on or before June 12 appropriate programs commemorating Philippine Independence Day.

The directive was a reiteration of a circular issued by the Rational Independence Day Committee, chair manned by Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople.

In keeping with the temper of the times and cognizant of the imperative need for immediate reforms in society, the committee adopted "Social Regeneration" as the theme for this year's Independence Day celebrations.

The committee said that "the 73rd Independence Day anniversary is an auspicious occasion for all departments, agencies and corporations owned or controlled by the government to give practical content to the theme of "social regeneration" by sponsoring programs and activities designed to relate themselves in a real and immediate sense to the reforms that "the people are clamoring for programs that would generate clearly and strongly a pervasive mood or temper for critical self-reexamination that could pave the way for the departments, bureaus, offices and corporations to improve their performance and their services to the people."

President's Week in Review: June 18-24, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS led public officials, the kins and friends of the late President Carlos P. Garcia in hearing the special Mass celebrated by Rufino Cardinal Santos at the Ceremonial Hall of Malacañang for the late President.

Among those who attended, apart from the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, and the family of the deceased, close relatives and friends, were the officials who served under President Garcia, members of the Constitutional Convention, the Senate and the House of Representatives; the judiciary and the diplomatic corps; and military top brass.

At about 12:30 p.m., the President conferred with officials and chapter presidents of the Philippine Public School Teachers Association (PPSTA) who were accompanied by Secretary of Commerce and Industry Ernesto Maceda to Malacañang. Also present were Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and Secretary of Education Juan L. Manuel.

The First Couple later had luncheon with members of the family of the late President Garcia and others who had come for the Mass.

Notable among those present at the Mass were Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, Linda Garcia-Campos, Fernando Campos, their three children; Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz, Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary Reyes, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary Manuel, Commissioner Sy-Changco, Auditor General Ismael Mathay; Reps, Emerito Calderon of Cebu, Jose D. Aspiras of La Union, Jose Aldeguer of Iloilo, William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental, and Lamberto Macias and Herminio Teves of Negros Oriental; and Senator Dominador Aytona.

Delegate and Mrs. Roseller T. Lim, former Secretary of Education Jose Romero, former Defense Secretary Alejo Santos, former Asst. Executive Secretary Enrique Quema, former Executive Secretary Fortunato de Leon, former Social Welfare Administrator Amparo Villamor, Mons. Mariano Gaviola, and SSS Chairman Ramon Gaviola, Jr.

The President spent the rest of the day at work in his study, during which he issued a proclamation declaring June 19, Saturday, a special public holiday in the province of Laguna and the city of San Pablo.

June 19, 1971, marks the 111th birth anniversary of Dr. Jose Rizal, the Philippine national hero, who was born in Calamba, Laguna.

June 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, headed the funeral procession together with Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia and her daughter Linda, when the remains of the late President Carlos P. Garcia were taken in the morning to a waiting funeral car at Gate 2 from the Malacanang Ceremonial Hall for airlifting to Tagbilaran, where necrological services were held in the afternoon.

Earlier, the President and the First Lady, the bereaved family, and relatives and friends of the late President, heard Mass said by Msgr. Mariano Gaviola.

Toward noon, the President motored to the GSIS building to address the 26th annual convention of the Philippine Veterans Legion.

In his speech, the President renewed his plea for unity and called on the people to be ready to fight for freedom and democracy.

The President reminded the veterans that freedom was being eroded once more by negative attitudes. He said that to some people it is the height of patriotism to speak ill of their government and to assassinate the character of their leaders.”

The President said the people can remain free only as long as “we recognize the limitations of our, freedom and exercise that freedom with a sense of maturity and responsibility.”

Later in the day, the President issued a proclamation declaring June 24, Thursday; as a special public holiday in the Greater Manila Area.

The day marks the 400th anniversary of the formal organization of the City of Manila.

June 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had one engagement which took him out of Malacañang. The rest of the day he spent mostly on paper work.

At 8:00 a.m. the President motored to the Rizal Coliseum where he shot the first arrow which formally launched the whole-day National Open Indoor Archery Tournament.

In his brief remarks during the launching ceremony, the President pledged to give all the public and private encouragement for the development of archery in the Philippines.

The President said that the development of athletics is something which every man, whether a public official or not, should encourage. “The policy of government is to encourage athletics from the highest level all the way down to the lowest,” added.

The President was to address another gathering, the annual general assembly of the Philippine Veterans Legion at Fort Bonifacio, Rizal, “but he had to ask Secretary of Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to read his message to the assembly because he could not make it on time.

In his speech, the President renewed his appeal to Filipino veterans to be ready once again to fight in defense of freedom.

The President said that to some people “it is the height of patriotism to speak ill of their government and to assassinate the character of their leaders.”

The President said that while the freedom of the press should be powerful force contributing to national development, “the press, if it abuses its own freedom, may weaken the very system under which it thrives.”

The President said that if one were to listen to some of the strident voices of the activists one would think “we had wiped out their liberties and installed a regime of fascism. But the fact that they can slander their president and employ the most vitriolic language against him ” the President said, “is the very refutation to their claim that fascism prevails in this country.”

The president deplored the fact that some of them even foment disorder and commit acts of vandalism and abuse in the exercise of freedom.

The President said that the exercise of freedom is regulated by law and it is the duty of government to protect the people and preserve their individual liberties.

The President said the people can remain free only as long as “we recognize the limitations of our freedom and exercise that freedom with a sense of maturity and responsibility.”

The President said the Filipinos should be proud of the fact that in a region where most peoples are deprived of human freedom, “we still enjoy our heritage of democracy and freedom.”

Concluding, the President told the veterans the value of freedom is immeasurable and if it is necessary “that we should fight again, we shall do so for freedom. We shall not hesitate to offer our lives, our honor, our dreams and aspirations, so that the people will remain free.”

June 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS constituted an interim inter-agency committee which will coordinate and centralize all activities to Sangley Point.

The official turn-over of the United States naval base at Sangley Point to the Philippine government was scheduled for September 1.

A development plan for the eventual use and land allocation of the naval base has been prepared.

Other preparatory work and pertinent analytical studies pertaining to the eventual transfer of Sangley Point had also been conducted.

Named to the committee were the director-general of the Presidential Economic Staff or his representative, as chairman; and the chairman of the Board of Investment, the Secretary of Public Works and Communications, the administrator of Economic Coordination, the Flag Officer-in-Command of the Philippine Navy, Commanding General of the Philippine Air Force and the Director-General of the National Manpower and Youth Council or their representatives, as members.

The governor of Cavite, the mayor of Cavite City, the chairman of the Cavite Socio-Economic Council, and the president of the Filipino Employees Association of U.S. Bases in the Philippines could seat as ex-officio members in the Committee on an invitation basis.

At past noon, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, had as luncheon guests Administrator David Hamil of the U.S. Rural Electrification Administration and Mrs. Hamil who arrived in Manila recently in the course of a tour of U.S. assisted projects in Asia.

During the luncheon, the President received assurance from the U.S. Agency for International Development that it would continue to support the rural electrification program of the government, aimed at providing cheap electric power in the rural areas and improve the living conditions in outlying regions.

Among other luncheon guests at Malacañang were U.S. Ambassador Henry A. Byroade, Director and Mrs. Thomas C. Niblock of USAID in Manila, Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, PACD Secretary Rosendo Marquez and Chairman Geronimo Velasco of the Electrification Administration.

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the Filipino people in paying homage to the late President Carlos P. Garcia who was laid to rest at Fort Bonifacio, Rizal at high noon.

The burial of the late President ended a week-long period of memorial services during which the remains of the former President of the country lay in state at the session hall of the Constitutional Convention at the Manila Hotel, at Malacañang, at the Tagbilaran Cultural Center, and at the House of Representatives.

In an extemporaneous funeral oration, delivered in the session hall of Congress, the President extolled the late President as a politician, statesman, poet and dreamer whose irreplaceable loss will be felt by the whole nation.

The President said the late President “symbolized the gentleman of the old school and represented the virtues of his generation—generosity, goodwill, graceful accommodation and compromise.” . (See pp. 5086 to 5087 for full text of the President’s eulogy.)

The President and the First Lady arrived at the Hall of Congress at 7:30 a.m. and were greeted by other officials led by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, and members of the Constitutional Convention led by President Protempore Sotero Laurel.

After the delivery of the invocation by Msgr. Mariano Gaviola, other funeral orations were delivered by President Protempore Laurel, Chief Justice Roberto Conception of the Supreme Court, Speaker Villareal and Senate President Puyat.

At about 9 a.m., as the necrological services ended, the flag-draped casket bearing the remains of the late President was borne away by a funeral car at the head of a long procession which headed for the Manila Cathedral.

At the Cathedral, a Mass was said for the dead by Rufino Cardinal Santos, after which the long procession started for the place of burial at the Libingan ng mga Bayani at Fort Bonifacio.

The funeral procession passed along Roxas Boulevard, through Harrison Boulevard to the South Superhighway, then Buendia and Ayala Avenue in Makati, and finally Mckinley Road to Fort Bonifacio.

As the funeral cortege entered Fort Bonifacio, an artillery batten-boomed a 21-gun salute to the late President.

At the gate to the Libingan, a composite battalion made up of units of the Philippine Army, Philippine Constabulary, Philippine Marines, Philippine Air Force and Philippine Navy, followed by a formation of the Presidential Guard Battalion, preceded the caisson bearing the casket.

Following the casket were the President and the First Lady, the members of the Garcia family headed by Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, members of the Constitutional Convention, other government officials, and relatives and friends of the bereaved family.

At the foot of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the procession stopped as the Philippine National Anthem was played. Then, slowly and carefully, the casket was lifted by the pallbearers and gently placed at the graveside.

Rufino Cardinal Santos then blessed the dead and, after the widow and Children of the late President, and other relatives and friends had taken a last look, the casket was closed and the flag draping folded and presented to Mrs. Garcia by the President himself.

Then, the muffled drums sounded the three volleys of musketry reverberated as taps was sounded in a final salute. Overhead a plane hovered, swooped and springled the grave with flowers.

As the casket was being lowered into the grave, another 21-gun salute bommed in the distance, and the late President was laid to rest.

With the remains of the departed leader in its final resting place and the grave eventually sealed, the First Couple invited members of the bereaved family into the Presidential car and accompanied them to the Garcia residence on Bohol avenue in Quezon City.

There the First Couple alighted and lingered for a while to comfort Mrs. Garcia and other immediate members of the family. The President and the First Lady were back at Malacañang about 2 p.m.

In the afternoon, the President directed key officials concerned to go over carefully the bill (HB 3417) intended to increase the salaries of public school teachers.

The President emphasized that in the bill to be presented to Congress, extreme care be taken to obviate any disparity in the matter of salary adjustment among teachers.

June 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the revamp of two bureaus which he described as “most inefficient,” notably to weed out misfits and improve performance.

The President ordered the revamp of the Bureau of Posts under the Department of Public Works and Communications and the Bureau of Customs under the Department of Finance.

The President also expressed dissatisfaction with the slow pace of road construction, even as he directed Acting Secretary of Public Works and Communications Baltazar Aquino to rush completion of the cementing of Pampanga road, the Ilocos Norte road, and the Bataan road. The condition of the Bataan road, he said, has discouraged tourists from, traveling to Bataan.

In his directive on the revamp of the two bureaus, the President ordered the pinpointing of responsibility and the prosecution and separation from service of personnel found guilty of misfeasance and malfeasance in office.

In a day which he devoted mostly to office work, the President received a few callers, among whom were a group of Agrarian Relations Court judges who presented a resolution pledging support of the administration policies in land reform and other important areas; and Senator Wenceslao Lagumbay who discussed local problems with the President.

He worked at his office through the afternoon and evening.

June 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his call for “improved honesty, efficiency, initiative and courtesy in the public service” in a speech on the opening of the 11th general convention of the Confederation of Government Employees held at the capitol building in Pasig, Rizal.

The President, at the same time, pledged that he would continue to “hold uppermost, within the means of our government, the happiness and well-being of all government employees.”

The President asserted that it is the rank and file of government employees that serve as a link between the government and the people.

“In effect, the performance of the government is your performance,” he said and added that the government is not what the President, or Congress or the Supreme Court makes it but is what the rank and file employees make it.

"I call on you to be honest, morally and intellectually, which means doing your functions and duties efficiently and without regard to any ulterior consideration," he added.

With no scheduled callers to attend to the President concentrated on deskwork. Among other actions, he created a coordinating committee for nuclear power study, 'which will look into the feasibility, in all its aspects, of establishing a nuclear power plant in the Philippines before the end of this decade.

An agreement in principle has been entered into by the National Power Corporation (NPC) and the Manila Electric Company (MERALCO) for the integrated planning of capacity additions to the Luzon Grid.

Named to compose the coordinating committee were the commissioner of the Philippine Atomic Energy Commission, as chairman; and the assistant general manager of the National Power Corporation, the deputy director-general for operations of the Presidential Economic Staff, and the director of the Office of Foreign Aid Coordination, National Economic Council, as members.

Issued earlier by the President was the following message on the 400th anniversary of the formal organization of Manila as a Christian city:

The 400th anniversary of Manila as a Christian city comes at a time when the Philippines is poised to enter a new era, a period characterized by ferment and debate, an outward reaching out as well as an inward search for identity and direction. All these manifestations are sharply reflected in Manila, which has always been the central nervous system of the nation, and for more than three centuries the cultural, economic and political capital of this archipelago.

Today Manila has the image and pulsebeat of a modern city, yet different from similar metropolises in that somehow it has retained the increments of history and the distinct substance of the Filipino.

This is only right for we need, among other imperatives, to assert our uniqueness as a people, to keep alive our history as a nation, because there is a real danger of losing our identity in a world more and more growing impersonal and insensitive. I welcome therefore the efforts to perpetuate in Manila the Filipino essence, perhaps best exemplified by Andres Bonifacio, happily enshrined as the city's emblem of Filipinism, who possessed the rugged individualism, the sturdy virtue, the affinity to the land, the love of freedom which define and animate the Filipino.

As the nation grows and develops, Manila will surely pace the rest of the country as it has done in times past, thereby posing new challenges not only to the city's leaders but to its population, a population which is, properly, a cross-section of the nation's inhabitants, affirming once again the central place Manila enjoys in the life of the Philippines.

It is my pleasure indeed to extend congratulations to the people of Manila and to its energetic leaders, beginning with Mavor Villegas with the hope that the next decade will be the most dynamic and significant period of growth for Manila, for it is the period when Manilans working together and spurred by; the same great dreams can bring about a renaissance of their City, perhaps to surpass the progress it has made in all the centuries past.

In a conference in the evening with a team he had dispatched to Cotabato to verify reports of mass killings in the area, the President directed Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile to deploy a battalion combat team in Cotabato to conduct a search and destroy operation against outlaw bands responsible for the loss of lives and property in the area.

The team, composed of Secretary Enrile, Rep. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, who is chairman of the House committee on defense; and Rep. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, president of the Mindanao, Sulu and Palawan Association (Minsupala); returned to Manila late in the afternoon and rendered its report to the President.

During the conference, the President also ordered, among others:

1. The Department of Health to dispatch medical teams to minister to the health needs of refugees, and the Department of Social Welfare to send relief teams to locate and attend to the relief requirements of evacuees and assist in their relocation in suitable resettlement centers, pending normalization of conditions in the region;
2. The disbandment of the Cotabato Peace Commission previously created to help restore peace in the province. The commission had been found to be ineffective.

In dispatching a batallion combat team to the area, the President said the government has no other alternative but to saturate the area with troopers in order to put a stop to what he considered senseless killings and destruction of property in the province.

He observed that the warring groups in the province had violated agreements entered into with the President in a series of meetings at Malacañang to police their own ranks, disarm their men, and refrain from resorting to violence as a means of resolving their conflicts.

President's Week in Review: June 25 - July 1, 1971

June 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS gave three hours of his time to a conference on the Cotabato situation, when he met at Malacañang the political leaders and officials of that province to thresh out the problems and the solutions to the resurgent armed strife among hostile factions in the region.

Deeply concerned about the situation in that province, the President asked the officials and other leaders of the region to stick to their posts during this emergency so that the people may better respond to authority and allay their fears.

He also issued directives and asked local leaders to coordinate with the military in hardening peace and order in the area.

Present during the conference were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Sen. Mamintal Tamano, Reps. Constantino C. Navarro, who is chairman of the House Committee on National Defense; Mohammad Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte and Salipada K. Pendatun of North Cotabato.

Mayor Omar Dianalan of Marawi City, Gov. Simeon Datumanong of North Cotabato, Board Member Doroteo Palencia, Mayors Esteban Doruelo of Pigkawayan, Nicolas Dequinia of Midsayap, Armando S. Lagda of Kabacan and Dima Dalid of Carmen, all in Cotabato.

Earlier in the morning, the President received officials of the Anti-Communist League of the Philippines. The group requested the early release of the ₱250,000 authorized by Congress for the expenses of holding the joint conference of Asian anti-communist groups in Manila next month.

Those who composed the group were Senators Jose J. Roy and Leonardo B. Perez; Reps. Ramon D. Bagatsing, Frisco San Juan, Salipada K. Pendatun, Fermin Z. Caram, Jr.; former Director of Prisons Alejo Santos, Antonio Roxas Chua, Col. Ernesto Golez, N. Fernandez, Leon O. Ty, former Rep. Inocencio V. Ferrer, and Prudencio T. Europa.

Among the few other callers the President received was a delegation from the Philippine Jockeys Association and the Sta. Ana Park Horse Race Trainers and Jockeys Association, headed by Lumen Policarpio, which presented a plaque of appreciation to the President for his support of R.A. 6115 providing benefits to these class of workers, and which he subsequently signed.

In-between these conferences and callers, the President acted on other urgent official matters, including certifying to Congress the bill giving public school teachers increases in salary rates.

He also designated Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal as his personal representative at the inauguration of President Park Chung Hee of Korea on July 1.

Others designated to compose the Philippine delegation were Philippine Ambassador Benjamin Tirona to Korea; Mayor Elias Lopez of Davao City; Brig. Gen. Edilberto Bernaldes of the Philippine Air Force and Atty. Ramon Martinez.

Among other actions, the President declared July 1, 1971 (Thursday) a special public holiday in the province of Southern Leyte, marking the 11th anniversary of its creation as a separate province.

Proclamation of the public holiday was requested by Governor Salvation O. Yñiguez and Rep. Nicanor E. Yñiguez of that province.

June 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had his schedule of activities for the day cleared of callers, even as he devoted his working hours to urgent official papers preparatory to his trip to the Leyte provinces.

Among the matters acted upon by the President were nominations to various posts in the government, which he submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

Heading the list of nominees were Dr. Estefania Aldaba-Lim, as Secretary of social welfare; Eduardo Rodriguez, as administrator of economic coordination; Gregorio Cendaña, as director of the National Media Production Center; Juan Mariano, as director of soils; and Godofredo L. Alcasid, as director of the National Museum.

June 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued to focus on desk work, but made himself available to some heads of department who took up important matters with him.

During the day, the President, among others, directed Undersecretary of Finance and Acting Customs Commissioner Alfredo Pio de Roda to inform him of the “identity” of the high government official reportedly interested in the disposition of imported remnants seized at the bureau of customs.

The official reportedly tried to pressure the Bureau of Customs into selling to his client more than 3,000 bales of remnants worth millions of pesos, and even threatened to take the customs bureau to court.

The President also approved the promotion of 481 regular and reserve officers in the active service of the Armed Forces of the Philippines to the grades of 1st Lieutenant/Lieutenant (JG.) PN and Captain/Lieutenant (SG)/ PN, as well as the commission or appointment of 66 individuals in the reserve force of the AFP.

Shortly before midnight, the President and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos, boarded the RPS 777 at Pier 15 for the resumption of the President’s summer inspection trips to the provinces.

June 28—

WHILE enroute to Ormoc City, President Marcos confined himself to his cabin on board the RPS 777 the greater part of the day and disposed of piles of state papers he brought along with him in the trip.

The President and the First Lady went out to the deck at about midmorning to view the coastline and see just how far the ship has sailed during the night. After conferring briefly with some Malacañang aides, the President returned to his cabin and started his paper work.

In a speech read for him by Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, at the opening of the 3rd National Representative Assembly of the Kapisanan ng mga Kawani ng Pamahalaan, held at the SSS building in Quezon City, the President said that the seeming national consensus for change is meaningless, and will remain no more than the “rhetoric of change,” if the people do not first of all change themselves.

He said that those who call for sweeping change in disregard of the rights of the people in a democratic society do not seek democratic change.

The Filipino people, he said, “are prepared for heroic measures, but they must not be deluded into believing that the sacrifice of their freedom is the best way to improve their economic and social conditions.”

June 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, arrived in Ormoc City aboard the RPS 777 at 6 a.m. to inspect and inaugurate some public works projects.

A big crowd led by Mayor Iñaki Larrazabal was on hand to give the First Couple a warm welcome. From the pier they proceeded to the local parish church for Mass, and then went to the residence of Mayor Larrazabal for breakfast and a meeting with local officials.

After the conference, the President and the First Lady inaugurated the ₱4 million Bao irrigation system, practically the biggest irrigation project in the entire Visayas that would provide irrigation to some 6,000 hectares,

Another public works projects inaugurated later by the First Couple was the Cantubo bridge.

From Cantubo, the President and his party proceeded to the OSPA-Farmers Medical Center for the inauguration rites. Built by the Ormoc sugarcane planters for the benefit of their laborers and their dependents, the President described the hospital as “a monument to compassion, to conscience and to courage.”

He expressed gratification over the initiative taken by some sectors of society to help their fellowmen who are not as fortunately situated in life as they are.

Following the OSPA-Farmers Medical Center inaugural rites, the President and the First Lady reboarded RPS 777 for Tacloban City, arriving there early in the evening.

Another enthusiastic crowd led by Gov. Benjamin Romualdez, met the First Couple at the pier. From the pier they dropped by the Nipa Hut, the governor’s official residence in Tacloban City, before proceeding to the family resthouse in Sitio Olot, in Tolosa, some 25 kilometers away.

Upon learning of the result of the election for the presidency of the Constitutional Convention earlier in the day, the President sent the following congratulatory wire to former President Diosdado Macapagal:

“Congratulations for your sound victory on the first balloting of the Constitutional Convention. I am certain your election augurs well for the unity of the convention. Regards.”

June 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, led the faithful in celebration of the Tacloban City fiesta in honor of the Sto. Niño.

Early in the morning, the First Couple attended a Pontifical Mass officiated by Leyte Bishop Manuel Salvador, at the public plaza fronting the city cathedral.

Later in the afternoon, the President and the First Lady, joined, the procession which started from the pier and wended through the city streets to the city cathedral.

The President and the First Lady motored to Tacloban city early in the morning from Olot for the Mass.

After the Mass they proceeded to the Nipa Hut, Gov. Benjamin Romualdez's official residence, for breakfast and a meeting with provincial and municipal officials. Then they again drove back to Olot, returning to the city early in the afternoon for the procession.

In the course of his work on urgent state matters at the resthouse, in Olot, the President took steps to avert possible disruption of essential government services due to the failure of Congress to enact the general appropriations act for the incoming fiscal year, starting July 1.

In a directive to Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, the President said that "if at midnight (June 30), the end of the present fiscal year the appropriations act for the next fiscal year is not approved into law, you are directed to release such funds for the operation of the government as are within the limits of the present appropriations act."

Among other actions, the President issued the following message on the death in space of three Russian Cosmonauts:

The death of the Soviet cosmonauts is a great loss to all men and nations of the world.

Their historic voyage had brought all of us closer to our highest dreams in space exploration, and we can only grieve this terrible tragedy at the moment of their greatest triumph.

The Filipino nation joins all of mankind in expressing its highest admiration for their courage and example, and its deepest sympathies to the Russian people.

July 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS checked on the progress of the construction of the San Juanico Bridge, the longest bridge in the Philippines, even as he focused on the status of the different developmental projects in Tacloban City and the province of Leyte.

The President, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, motored to the construction site on the Leyte side of the bridge in sitio Kabalawan in the morning to inquire from the engineers and officials concerned on the progress of construction and to see for himself the work so fast accomplished.

The bridge spans the San Juanico Strait and is 2,162.40 meters long. It would serve as water-link of the Pan Philippine Highway that would run from Aparri through Southern Mindanao.

Obviously satisfied with the progress of the work, the President said "it looks so good."

In a conference later with the provincial, district and city engineers and other Public Highways officials, the President reviewed with them the road system in Leyte which would form part of the Pan Philippine Highway, as well as other provincial and city roads which, when completed, would help accelerate the development of the province socially and economically.

Among those present at the conference were Division Engineer Florencio Coloma and District Engineers Vicente Sy-Diongco, Luis Mendoza, Cipriano Perez, Vicente Villegas and Melchor Cañete. Also present were Rep. Artemio Mate and Gov. Benjamin Romualdez of Leyte.

Following the conference, the President and the First Lady, motored to the Leyte Institute of Technology for the inauguration of the new building of the Institute. The President also laid the cornerstone of the Leyte Sports Center.

The First Couple then motored back to the family resthouse in Olot, where the President spent the rest of the day going over state papers, including nominations to various posts in the government.

President's Week in Review: July 2-8, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, attended the signing of the loan agreement between the National Electrification Administration (NEA) and the Leyte Electric Cooperative, Inc., held at the Leyte provincial capitol at noon. Mrs. Marcos signed as one of the witnesses to the agreement.

In brief remarks, the President said the active involvement of electric cooperatives in the government's rural electrification program assures, in more ways than one, the success of that program itself.

The system of cooperatives will prove to be the key to that success, the President said.

He said that rural electrification is one of the top priority projects of the government in order to expand the country's areas of productivity and thus provide greater employment opportunities for the people.

The Leyte Electric Cooperatives, Inc. has programmed initial service to nine municipalities, namely: Dagami, Dulag, Julita, La Paz, Mallorca Pastrana, Santa Fe, Tabon-Tabon and Tolosa, with an aggregate population of approximately 144,000.

The cooperative's generating plant consists of three units of 2,500 kilowatt each, with a distribution system consisting of 258 kilometers of primary lines and 332 kilometers of secondary lines.

The loan agreement was signed for the NEA by Chairman Geronimo Velasco and for the LEC by Dr. Nicanor Tancingco, president.

Among those present at the signing ceremony were Leyte provincial, municipal and barrio officials, Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade, and Ambassador and Mrs. John N. O. Curle of Great Britain.

Mrs. Marcos participation in the signing ceremony was one of the highlights of her birthday celebration. She has been the recipient of advance birthday greetings since her arrival in Tacloban, and was visibly touched by the warm greetings of provincemates who started serenading her since the eve of her birthday.

Some of the well-wishers came individually while the greater majority composed mostly of plain folk from the different towns of the province came in groups.

The President helped the First Lady in receiving well-wishers, even while holding brief impromptu conferences with officials of the executive department who had called at the resthouse to felicitate Mrs. Marcos. Among the officials were Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and Assistant Executive Secretary Ponciano Mathay.

The President also acted on some urgent official papers brought to him by Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave and Presidential Assistant Guillermo C. de Vega.

July 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS' plans to return to Manila were upset by typhoon Neneng, whose strong winds and heavy rains started buffeting the eastern coast of Leyte and Tacloban City in the morning.

Also spoiled by the typhoon were certain scheduled activities of the President and the First Lady, including the inauguration of the NACIDA community kiln in the town of Tanauan.

Earlier, when the weather was just beginning to worsen, the First Couple, together with the members of the Romualdez clan, attended the blessing and dedication of the Don Vicente Orestes Romualdez Memorial in Tolosa, and officiated at the inauguration of the Tolosa municipal hall.

By about mid-morning, the typhoon's torrential rains and strong winds bore down on the province and Tacloban City, as the howler cut through the northern tip of Leyte and on to Masbate, Romblon, Marinduque and the southern Tagalog provinces.

In anticipation of the damage wrought by the typhoon along its path, the President alerted all relief and health agencies to stand by for immediate relief work.

At the same time, the President directed Budget Commissioner Faustina Sy-Changco to make immediately available funds for relief work and for the repair and reconstruction of public works projects damaged by the typhoon.

The President directed Commissioner Sy-Changco to set aside immediately ₱300,000 for public works repair and ₱200,000 for relief, and to be ready to release more funds if necessary.

Forced to "lie low" by the typhoon, the President spent the day going over official papers at the resthouse, aside from keeping tab of damages caused by the typhoon.

July 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, boarded the RPS 777 in clear weather at the Tacloban pier for their return trip to Manila after having been stranded in Leyte by typhoon Neneng.

The First Couple boarded the ship at 10:00 a.m. following military honors rendered the President at the wharf by a contingent of the Philippine Constabulary.

Shortly after the ship had gone underway, the President, the First Lady and the rest of the presidential party heard Mass celebrated before an improvised altar at the upper deck.

While sailing through San Juanico Strait, the First Couple officiated at the renaming in Pilipino of RPS 777. It was renamed "Ang Pangulo." They unveiled the ship's new nameplate and the presidential seal, which was also worded in Pilipino.

Following the ceremony, the President buckled down to paper work in his cabin, in the process issuing an administrative order invalidating as of June 30 the authority granted to insurance and surety companies to become sureties "upon official recognizances, stipulations, bonds and undertakings" unless they have paid-up capital of ₱1 million.

He issued the order upon recommendation of both the secretary of finance and the insurance commissioner not only to increase the underwriting capacity of domestic insurance companies but to enable them to absorb government securities.

Among other actions, the President conveyed the felicitations and best wishes of the Filipino people to the people of the United States, on the occasion of the celebration of their Independence Day. In his cable to President Richard M. Nixon in Washington, the President said:

“On the occasion of the celebration of your Independence Day, the Filipino people join me in conveying sincere felicitations and best wishes. It is our hope that Philippine-American friendship in the years to come shall continue to grow ever stronger for the mutual benefit of our two countries.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS was back in Malacañang early in the evening from his trip to the South, after a brief stopover in Bataan to inspect the progress of development work at the Dambana ng Kagitingan in Mt. Samat.

Earlier in the day, as the RPS “Ang Pangulo” steamed Manila-ward, the President issued among others, an administrative order creating a special presidential committee charged with investigating administrative complaints against provincial and city treasurers, as well as other similar presidential appointees under the department of finance.

The President constituted the permanent probe body to obviate the necessity of having to amend the administrative order everytime a provincial or city treasurers or order presidential appointees under the department of finance, comes up for administrative investigation.

Named to compose the committee were a representative of the Department of Finance, as chairman; and a representative each of the Department of Justice and the General Auditing Office, as members.

July 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a three-hour conference with members of the Price Control Council and a number of Cabinet members on the stabilization of prices, particularly of prime commodities.

During the conference the President directed the Rice and Corn Administration to release to the public as much of the newly imported rice as necessary at ₱2.10 to ₱2.20 per ganta, to prevent hoarding and price manipulation.

At the same time, he called for a close watch on price trends and directed several members of his Cabinet to submit immediately updated statistics on the supply of rice, cement, and other local manufactures likely to be affected by price increases.

The President also informed those who attended the meeting that he could not create a Price Control Council with powers to punish those who increase prices beyond reasonable levels.

Because of this, “we can only monitor prices,” the President said, “and the Central Bank, the Department of Commerce and Industry, and the National Economic Council are continuously monitoring price levels.” During the conference, the President also directed:

1. The Central Bank to release additional dollars up to double the normal requirements for the importation of consumer goods.
2. The Bureau of Customs to promptly release all imports of consumer goods provided all legal requirements are complied with by importers.
3. The Central Bank and the Development Bank of the Philippines to fund, further imports required by tinplate manufacturers to meet deficiencies and maintain current levels.
4. Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros to meet with the Bankers Association’ of the Philippines and seek exemption of imported consumer goods from the imposition of a per cent marginal deposit requirement.

Present at the meeting were Secretaries Arturo Tanco, Jr. of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Ernesto Maceda of Commerce and Industry, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., DBP Chairman Leonides S. Virata, CB Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Undersecretary of Finance Alfredo Pio de Roda and Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes.

Following the conference, the President conferred on Alan Ford, first secretary of the U. S. Embassy in Manila, the Philippine Legion of Honor, degree of Legionnaire, for outstanding services in enhancing Philippine-American relations.

Ford was scheduled to return to Washington, D. C. after a four-years tour of duty in this country.

Present at the conferment rites were U. S. Ambassador Henry Byroade, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; and Rear Admiral George Muse, commander of the U. S. Naval Forces in the Philippines.

Toward noon, the President received a number of provincial delegations, including one of Sorsogon mayors accompanied by Rep. Rafael C. Aquino. The local officials discussed with the President matters concerning their respective constituencies.

The President devoted the afternoon to desk work.

In the evening, the President inducted the newly elected officers of the Malacañang Press Corps, headed by Jose de la Cruz of the Philippines Herald, president.

The other MPC officers inducted were Primitivo Mijares of The Manila Chronicle, vice president; Domingo Quimlat of the Taliba, secretary Manuel Salak of The Manila Times, chairman; and David Borje of The Evening News, board member.

July 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a series of conferences with congressmen, being Congressmen's Day at Malacañang, mostly on problems and requirements of the solons' constituencies.

The President, in the course of his meeting with them, appealed to some 30 congressmen to push through the passage of vital administration measures, particularly on land reform and electoral reform, before the end of the special session.

He had called Congress to a 30-days special session, certifying four urgent measures on land reform, electoral reform, the budget, and a new Election Code.

With the extra session ending on July 17, the President expressed grave concern over the still unacted measures pending before both Houses of Congress.

Apart from these meetings, the President had conferences with various executive department officials on current problems of the country, notably on the threatened spiral of commodity prices. In this connection, he took steps to stem increases in the prices of food, such as livestock meat and poultry products, by declaring the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market a national abattoir.

The President also ordered several government agencies to launch a massive production program as the best way of preventing an increase in prices and of improving the earning capacity of the people.

He issued the directive during his conference with Rosendo Marquez, officer-in-charge of the PACD; NACIDA Administrator Mario Reyes, and Bureau of Fisheries Commissioner Andres Mane.

The President told the agencies concerned, including the Bureaus of Animal Industry and Plant Industry, to redouble their efforts toward attaining peak production because this is the best way to stop rising prices.

He also called to a separate conference on the progress of the workers' housing program, GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. and SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro to Malacañang.

Notable among the President's other callers was Taiwan solon Mah Su Lay, a member of the Legislative Yuan of that Republic, who paid a courtesy call. The Chinese legislator was here in the course of a survey of Southeast Asian countries.

Earlier, the President directed the Department of Foreign Affairs to explore new markets abroad for Philippine logs, one of the nation's biggest dollar-earning products.

Upon the recommendation of the Presidential Committee on Wood Industries Development, the President instructed Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo to utilize diplomatic posts abroad for the purpose of sounding out foreign countries interested in buying Philippine lumber, "regardless of ideology."

Members of the committee called on the President to submit their report and recommendations on the improvement of forestry operations, including the reorganization of the resources and activities of the Bureau of Forestry, the assessment and reorientation of present policies and the adoption of an integrated and basically export-oriented wood industry development plan.

Headed by Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo Tanco, Jr., chairman; members of the presidential committee who attended the Palace meeting included Florencio Tamesis of the Society of Filipino Foresters, Jose Sanvictores of the Philippine Association for Permanent Forests, Nicolas Lansigan and Renato Arevalo of the Philippine Lumber Producers Association and Apolinario Dionilio of the Philippine Chamber of Wood Industries.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a big stream of official callers whom he started receiving at mid-morning through up to about 3 p.m. Among those who called were:

1. Iloilo City Mayor Reinerio Ticao, accompanied by Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer and Rep. Fermin Caram, Jr., who brought up problems affecting the city.
2. The Philippine Normal College Faculty Association, which sought certification of House Bill No. 3002, providing free tuition for PNC undergraduates.
3. Gov. Jose B. Legaspi, accompanied by Rep. Rafael B. Legaspi of Aklan, who also discussed local problems.
4. Gov. Armando S. Cledera of Camarines Sur and Mayor Jose C. Villanueva of Iriga City, accompanied by Rep. Roberto Sabido of Albay, who again took up local problems.
5. Gov. Sergio Morales of South Cotabato, who likewise consulted him on local problems.
6. Mayors Eufenio Daconday of San Agustin, Carmen Martinez of Cortez and Candelario Viola of Hinatuan, Surigao del Sur, accompanied by Rep. Jose Puyat, Jr., all of whom focused on local problems, particularly roads and bridges.

7. Governors Verulo C. Boiser of Davao del Norte, Leopoldo Lopez of Davao Oriental and Ramon de los Cientos of Davao del Sur, and Davao City Mayor Elias Lopez, accompanied by Reps. Artemio Al. Loyola, Lorenzo Sarmiento and Constancio Maglana.

8. Gov. Irene Balite of Northern Samar who also requested fund releases for public works projects.

The President attended to urgent state papers in the afternoon.

President's Week in Review: July 9-15, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with government officials having to do with food production and cottage industries with the view to consolidating government resources and facilities behind a massive program designed to provide incomes and food for the masses.

During the conference, the President called for an integrated effort in the drive to promote cottage industries, fishing, vegetable raising and meat production, even as he expressed dissatisfaction over the progress of the uncoordinated campaigns being waged by different agencies of the government, such as the National Cottage Industries Development Authority (NACIDA), Bureau of Plant Industry, Bureau of Animal Industry, Bureau of Fisheries, Agricultural Credit Administration and the Agricultural Productivity Commission.

The President designated Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. as over-all coordinator of the integrated drive.

He instructed Secretary Tanco at the conference to prepare a comprehensive program, setting forth its requirements, government facilities and resources now available for its implementation, and estimated expenditures and projections.

Present at the conference, besides Tanco, were Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Undersecretary for Industry Troadio Quiazon, Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit of the Agricultural Credit Administration and Amado Lansang of the Agricultural Productivity Commission.

The President worked at his desk most of the day, but took time out to receive a number of callers, including two groups of government organizations, the officers of which he inducted. Inducted by the President were the officers of the Confederation of Government Employees Organization (COGEO), namely, Fernando Santico, president; Simon Guillermo, 1st vice president; Leonardo Cabanero, 2nd vice president, Mariano Noriel, 3rd vice president; Antonio de la Cruz, PRO; and members of the board of directors.

Also sworn in by the President were the following officers of the Bureau Directors Association:

Other callers included Mayors Conrado Apacible of Nasugbu, Luis Ramos of Balayan, Mariano Venturanza of Lemery, and Olimpio Sayo of Calatagan, all in Batangas, who requested for replacements for prefabricated schoolhouses destroyed by typhoons;

Mayors Jose Sison of Surallah, Honorio Cornejo of Tupi and Ireneo Barroso of Tampakan, all in Cotabato, who took up with the President priority community projects; and Governors Salvacion D. Yñiguez of Southern Leyte, Cipriano Primicias, Jr. of Pangasinan, and Samuel F. Reyes of Isabela, who likewise discussed with the President matters concerning their respective constituencies.

While engaged in paper work, the President considered other urgent matters of state, including the question of Freedomland, on which he scheduled a meeting of the National Security Council.

The President also issued an order suspending Capt. Rogelio C. Morales, superintendent of the Philippine Merchant Marine Academy (PMMA) following the filing of administrative charges against him by Col. Tagumpay A. Nañadiego, Constabulary judge advocate.

The Constabulary judge advocate, in a formal complaint sent to the President, charged Morales with having taken advantage of his positions as superintendent and vice-chairman of the Academy's board of trustees, allegedly approving appointments of candidates to the academy's cadet corps despite their failure to qualify in the entrance examinations as well as allowing certain employees to receive pay without rendering any actual service, among other cases.

PRESIDENT MARCOS convoked the National Security Council to a three-hour meeting at Camp Aguinaldo to consider the situation obtaining in one of the Spratly Island Group as it affects the security of the Philippines.

The meeting was preceded by a briefing conducted by intelligence officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

A communique on the meeting was read by the President at his press conference in Malacañang later in the afternoon, in which was stated, among others, that the Council is of the unanimous opinion that because of the fast pace of developments in the region and because of the proximity of the island to the Philippines its occupation by a foreign power constitutes a serious threat to the country's national security (See pages 5673 & 5674 for full text of the Communique).

Among those present at the NSC meeting were Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, and Cesar E.A. Virata of Finance; Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso and members of the Rouse committees on defense and foreign relations, including Reps. Carmelo Barbero, Nicanor Yñiguez, Constantino Navarro, Ramon Mitra, Jr., and Rafael Aquino.

Also present were Undersecretaries Jose Crisol and Efren Plana of National Defense, Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes of Foreign Affairs, and Alfredo Pio de Roda of Finance; NBI Director Jolly Rugarin, Brig. Gen. Ismael Lapuz of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency, members of the AFP general staff and chiefs of the major command led by Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff.

The President attended to desk work the rest of the afternoon and early evening, during which he issued a proclamation designating the period from July 11 to 17, as University Presidents Week, to coincide with the holding of the World Congress of University Presidents during the said period.

The special week was proclaimed in appreciation of the necessity to focus public attention on the role of university presidents in the development of a nation, in molding public opinion, in humanitarian services and civic leadership and in promoting the professions.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called upon the world's institutions of learning to take the initiative in the promotion of "human brotherhood and peace among nations."

In a speech at the opening of the week-long World Congress of University Presidents at the Philamlife Auditorium in the morning, the President said that the world has moved from one crisis to another in an era described as "a permanent state of undeclared."

The President said that while it is all very well to hope that men would soon come to their senses and that the dream of One World would become a reality, “we cannot wait for the millenium to happen a decade or a century from now.”

He warned: “The odds against us are too great and the margin of safety has become too narrow. With thermonuclear weapons being stockpiled in the arsenals of an increasing number of states, we are truly running a race with catastrophe and doom.”

He expressed gratification over the dialogue initiated by men of learning and without regard for race, creed or ideology. (See page 5675 to 5679 for full text of the President Speech).

Earlier in the morning, the President presented the Bronze Cross to five officers and enlisted men of the Philippine Air Force for “exceptional heroism” in saving two men from certain death during the fire which destroyed the FGU building in Makati, Rizal.

Decorated by the President were: First Lt. Felix A. Enriquez, pilot; Second Lt. Gabriel I. Mainit, co-pilot; M/Sgt. Percival Dornonila ere chief; M/Sgt. Andres G. Sison, PARAMEDIC, PAF; and Sgt. Evaristo Ruiz, also a PARAMEDIC.

The President said that by their courage and bravery they helped enhance the prestige of the Philippine Air Force.

In the afternoon, the President, among others, issued an administrative order creating the Rural Improvement Committee to take charge of the government’s integrated rural improvement program.

In another order, the President amended Executive Order No. 213 creating the Cottage Industry Development Council and a Cottage Industry Development Enterprise, so as to include the director of the Cooperatives Administration Office as a member of the Council.

The President made the amendment to emphasize the role of cooperatives m the development of cottage industries in the country.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued an administrative order creating a committee to study the problem of excess workers in the sugar plantations throughout the country and how to resettle and rehabilitate them.

The President issued the order upon the recommendation of Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople who informed him of the recent strike against five sugar haciendas in Bais City, Negros Oriental, which was the result of the displacement of some 264 Dumaan families. The displaced families represented the excess workers of the haciendas.

In his order, the President took special cognizance of the plight of the sugar plantation workers affected by the labor dispute in Bais City.

Earlier, the President thanked local rancher, Engr. Virgilio V. Dionisio of Pulilan, Bulacan, who donated 207 head of cattle to the food production drive of the government and the Green Revolution project of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, for his interest and concern in the common welfare.

The donation, he said would greatly boost the government’s food production program.

The President also thanked the Republic of China for its donation of fruit and vegetable seeds to the Philippines, more particularly to the Green Revolution project of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos.

The initial shipment of 75 kilos of improved fruit and vegetable seed varieties was presented to the FIRST COUPLE by Taipei's Foreign Minister Chou-Shu-Kai at a simple ceremony in Malacañang.

Minister Chou, who arrived in Manila for the Asian and Pacific Council (ASPAC) ministerial meeting, paid a courtesy call on the President earlier in the morning.

The seeds turned over by Minister Chou to the First Couple include those of Pai Chung Welsh onion, Ta-tong sweet pepper, tomato, radish, hot pepper, Taiwan Early Yehsen cabbage and petsay.

July 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS urged the Asian and Pacific Council (ASPAC) to form a consensus on the immediate tasks before the nations of the region, which he said, in a larger perspective, aim at strengthening the peace and stability of the region.

He declared that in achieving this objective, a decisive influence "on the future course of our nations and on their common well-being" will be exerted.

Delivering the keynote speech at the opening of the ASPAC sixth ministerial conference, held at the Intercontinental Hotel in Makati, Rizal, in the morning, the President, however, emphasized that there is good reason to view with optimism the prospects of success in solving the problems eyed by the council.

Despite the hopeful elements which encourage an optimistic view of the region, the President said, "the Asian and Pacific area remains a troubled one," pointing out that it is in the midst of problems "for which there are no immediate solutions, and these are problems which bear the most intimate relation the peace of the continent." (See pages 5680 to 5686 for full text of the President's Speech).

The pressure of desk work prevented the President from attending the launching of the Medical Assistance Program (MAP), held at Talavera, Nueva Ecija in the afternoon. He asked his brother, Dr. Pacifico Marcos, to represent him at the affair and to deliver his message for the occasion.

In his prepared speech, the President hailed the MAP, but cautioned that its success would depend on the kind of cooperation established between the community and the doctors, stressing that the "active participation and support of every community" are decisive in fully realizing the program.

The private medical practitioners of the country, he said, play a critical role in "the life and future of the nation," and expressed confidence in their capacity to fulfill this role by virtue of "this unprecedented and voluntary program of medical assistance that you now undertake with the national government."

While attending to official papers, the President created the Coordinating Committee on Project Feasibility Studies, with the primary task of coordinating and correlating all project feasibility studies towards the attainment of national objectives.

Named to head the committee was PES Deputy-General for Operations Antonio Locsin.

The President also issued orders deporting two Chinese nationals considered undesirables and whose continued presence in the Philippines is deemed a menace to the peace and safety of the community.

Ordered deported by the first available transportation to China or Taiwan were Santiago Cheng alias Santiago Ching alias Santiago Chung alias Roberto Chua, and Valentin Go.

The President issued the order upon the recommendation of the Deportation Board, which found them guilty of committing acts contrary to good morals and public policy.

In the evening, the President signed into law Senate Bill No. 614 (H. B. 3305), regulating rentals for two years, of dwelling units or of land on which another's dwelling is located and penalizing violations thereof.

The bill provides, among others, that "no lessor of a dwelling unit or of land on which another's dwelling is located shall, during the period of one year from the effectivity of this Act, increase the monthly rental agreed upon between the lessor and the lessee as of the effectivity of this Act when said rental does not exceed three hundred pesos (P300.00) a month. Thereafter, for the next year the rentals may not be increased more than ten (10%) per centum."

The President was guest of honor and speaker late in the afternoon at the launching of the special fund campaign for the celebration of the Golden Jubilee of Philippine Scouting in 1973, at ceremonies held at the Malacañang Maharlika Hall.

In his extemporaneous remarks, the President said that scouting is the best youth activism and one of the best types of manpower development because it is concerned not only with vocational skills, but also with the inculcation of sound physical, moral and spiritual values.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had an unscheduled caller in the morning in the person of Libyan Ambassador Salem Buyasir, who called to pay his respects.

During their meeting, the President briefed Ambassador Buyasir on the Cotabato situation. The President said the unrest in Cotabato is "not a dispute between Muslim on one side and Christians on the other, but between conflicting interests and groups in the region.

He said the roots of the conflict are land ownership, politics, and the activities of agent provocateurs who are trying to foment disorder and dissension in the region.

Earlier, the President received some local officials from the Ilocos and Albay provinces, who consulted him on problems of their constituencies.

The President devoted the rest of the day to official papers, taking time off toward evening to induct two newly confirmed assistant city fiscals of Manila, namely, Roque A. Tamayo and Marcelo Obien.

A graduate of the college of law of the University of Santo Tomas, Tamayo was admitted to the bar in 1955, and entered government service as a member of the legal staff of the Senate president.

Obien is a graduate of the Manuel L. Quezon Education Institution. He passed the bar in 1959, and served as municipal councilor, legal assistant in the office of the Legislative Council of the Philippine Senate, and secretary to Rep. Simeon Valdez.

Present at the oath-taking were Reps. Roque Ablan and Simeon Valdez, Gov. Elizabeth Marcos Keon, Mayors Alfonso Garbido of Bangui, Pedro Alviar of Vintar, Leonardo Velasco of Banna, Generoso Aquino of Piddig, Chito Ruiz of Sarrat, Felicisimo Asuncion of Batac, Angel Bautista of Badoc, Cirilo Quilala of Currimao, Candido Llaquino of Paoay, Napoleon Foz of Dingras, Anselmo Matubi of Marcos, Antonio Bumanglag of Espiritu, Ulpiano Anam of Nueva Era, Irineo Cariaga of Solsona and close relatives and friends of the inductees.

President's Week in Review: July 16-22, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. of the government Service Insurance System to make certain that sites for the massive workers' housing program will be suitable for the purposes of the program.

The President told General Manager Cruz that the criteria for selecting sites for the workers' housing projects are:

1. The land should be located within a radius of 50 kilometers from Manila.
2. The area should be close to main roads and highways.
3. The value of the land should be within reasonable reach of the working man.

In another directives issued during the day, the President asked Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino to review the entire road-building program and to expedite completion of on-going constructions.

In his conference with the GSIS official in the morning the President emphasized that most of the homeless workers eyed by the government as beneficiaries of the housing program work in the Greater Manila area and send their children to schools in Manila.

For this reason, the President said, it would be impractical to locate housing projects far from the city, both from the standpoint of economy as well as convenience.

The President added that many housing projects and subdivisions are in out-of-the-way places necessitating special arrangements for transportation facilities. For this reason, he said, housing projects should be within at least walking distance from highways and main roads.

The President issued the directive to Commissioner Aquino upon receipt of complaints from a number of groups of citizens and officials in the provinces on the bad condition of their roads, especially after the typhoons and incessant rains had done their worst.

Among those who complained of poor roads to the President were Gov. Jose C. Estevez of Albay, who was accompanied by Reps. Roberto M. Sabido, Carlos R. Imperial and Amando D. Cope; Gov. Amado B. Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao; and Rep. David M. Puzon of Cagayan.

Earlier, the President received the report of Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata on the progress of negotiations for the US $65 million long-term loan from Japan.

Virata said that a statement was initialled in Tokyo declaring that the Japanese government would extend a loan on a concessionary basis to the Philippine government in the amount of $65 million.

The statement was initialled by BOI Chairman Vicente Paterno and Central Bank Deputy Governor Amado Briñas for the Philippines, and by Ambassador Sawaki for the Japanese government.

The loan would be as follows: $40 million as commodity loan, and $25 million as project loan.

Virata said the loan would be extended at three-and-a-half percent interest, with a grace period of seven years. After the grace period, it may be paid in 13 years, thus allowing a total of 20 years.

July 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS held his weekly press conference in Malacañang, during which he announced he was calling another special session starting August 2 to consider vital legislation still pending in Congress. The call for another extra meet was requested by the leaders of both Houses of Congress.

Earlier in the day, the President worked on official papers in his private study, breaking off at noon for a luncheon with Paul Miller of the Associated Press.

He was back to paper work later in the afternoon.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, together with their children Imee, Bongbong and Irene motored to the Cultural Center of the Philippines on Roxas Boulevard to see the presentation of the Pilipino zarzuela, “Walang Sugat.”

July 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, along with the First Lady, spent a couple of hours in the morning and afternoon with his three children while cruising along Manila Bay on board the presidential yacht Ang Pangulo.

The President went on a week-end cruise to be able to concentrate more fully on piles of urgent official papers and other important state business. In a statement to the press later in the day, the President emphasized that the Philippines is not laying any claim on any of the Spratley Island group.

The President’s statement was in answer to queries arising from reports that the Philippine government has been misinterpreted abroad as laying a claim to the trust territories comprising the Spratley Island group.

The President said the Philippine position is that these islands are trust territories, and should not be occupied by any country, including the Philippines, except with the approval of the other allied powers.

The President pointed out that the islands on which Philippine troops are stationed, are not part of the Spratley Island group.

The President reiterated that the Philippines has requested for the withdrawal of the Nationalist Chinese garrison on Itu Aba in the Spratley Island group because of its proximity to the Philippines, which considers the presence of foreign troops there as a threat to its security.

On the other hand, the President believes that the withdrawal of Nationalist Chinese troops from the island would not affect the security of that friendly country.

July 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called Congress to another special session beginning August 2, and certified five vital measures for its consideration. The President called for the special session upon the request of the leaders of both Houses of Congress.

The bills certified were:

1. HB No. 3443—An Act appropriating funds for the operation of the Government of the Philippines during fiscal year 1971-1972, and for other purposes;

2. SB No. ,184—An Act to provide-electoral reforms, amending for these purposes certain sections of the Revised Election Code and inserting new sections therein, and amending further R. A. 3588, as amended;

3. HB No. 1919—A new Election Code of the Philippines;

4.	SB	No.	478
3453—An Act amending R. A. 3844, as amended, other wise known as the Agricultural Land Reform Code, and for other purposes;

5.	HB	No.	3463
SB No. 633—An Act to accelerate the implementation of the Agrarian Reform Program, creating for the purpose an Agrarian Reforms Special Account in the General Fund providing the necessary funds therefore, and for other purposes.

The above-mentioned measures were on the agenda of the first special session of Congress which adjourned July 17, but failed to get Congress action due to lack of time.

Earlier, the President directed Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and Acting General Manager Arensenio Abrazaldo of the Rice and Corn Administration to work out a scheme whereby RCA rice could be distributed through the public schools in the Greater Manila area.

The President issued the directive with a view to insuring a more effective distribution of RCA rice, selling at ₱2.10 to ₱2.20 per ganta, such that the cereal would benefit as many households as possible, especially the low-income groups.

The distribution of the RCA rice through the public schools in the Greater Manila area was suggested by Mrs. Polly Cayetano, president of the Chamber of Filipino Retainers (CFR), who called on the President; in the morning, together with other CFR officials. The CFR has offered its services to bring down the price of the cereal.

The President likewise directed Secretary Tanco to confer with Mrs. Magdalena L. Santos, president of the Bulacan Rice Millers Association (BRMA), who has also helped in the distribution of RCA rice, Mrs. Santos' organization has been selling RCA rice through its rolling stores in Manila, with Mayor Antonio J. Villegas providing police security for BRMA's rolling stores.

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor and speaker at the induction the elected officers of the Sugar Club of the Philippines, held at "the Philsugin auditorium in Quezon City.

In his speech, the President said that the change in American policy means "that every Asian nation and leader must now review the basis all the agreements between the United States and their respective countries," and must prepare themselves for all eventualities, including the possibility of an American pullout from Asia.

The President said that the new U.S. policies require an overall study for long-range implementation of the military, and possibly economic treaties the Philippines has with the U.S.

It has also been suggested by some, he said, that the Philippines should plan on the possibility of complete withdrawal of the U.S. from Asia.

The President stated while the U.S. State Department has sent word that President Nixon's visit to Red China does not mean any prejudice to her allies, the President said this alternation in U.S. policy calls for a review of agreements with the United States.

"With these policies of the American government and of Red China anything is possible in Asia, and we must prepare for anything," he said. "We must now predict, no matter how difficult and how hard it may be, what will happen in the next five years, in the next ten years, in the next twenty years."

Before delivering his 45-minute address, the President inducted the officers of the club, led by Antonio Roxas Chua, president.

Also present at the luncheon meeting were Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., PHILSUGIN Chairman Luis Tirso Rivilla, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Sen. Ambrosio Padilla, Constitutional Convention Delegate Carlos Ledesma.

July 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received important personages among other callers, and presided at the ceremony whereby the letters of credence of Ambassador Tiao Khan Hing as new ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the Kingdom of Laos to the Philippines were presented.

The new Laotian envoy also presented to the President the letter of recall of his predecessor, Ambassador Leuam Rajasombat, during the ceremony held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall.

After the presentation ceremony, the President started receiving callers first of whom were the members of the Korean delegation to the joint conferences in Manila of the Anti-Communist League of Asia and of the World.

Led by 80-year old General Lee Eung-Joon, and accompanied by Korean Ambassador Se Ryun Kun, the Korean group included Admiral Sohn Won-II, Generals Choi Duk-Shin and Shin Hyun-Joon, former Vice Foreign Minister Lee Won-Kyung, Director Hub Baek of the Korean Anti-Communist League and Moon C. Park.

The President took the occasion to request the delegation to convey his best wishes for the success of President Park Chung Hee and his congratulation for the remarkable economic progress and valuable contribution of Korea to the defense of freedom.

He also received the foreign delegates to the recently held conference of the Asian Parliamentary Union who called to say goodbye before leaving for their respective countries.

Those who paid their respects to the President were Delegates Kuo-Chi Yeh Shin-chin and Charles Z. Yeo of China; Yoshiharu Takeno and Yochiro Kubo of Japan; Pheng Shahanikone and Sisisphanh Phoenpradit of Laos; Mr. and Mrs. Suchon Charmpoonod of Thailand; and Nguyen Huy Chien, Chairman of the Asian Development Center, and Tran Ngoc Danh and Tran Do Cung of Vietnam.

The foreign delegations were accompanied by Emmanuel Yap, secretary general of the conference, who informed the President that the APU has included in its agenda a study of the political and economic repercussions resulting from the projected visit of U.S. President Richard Nixon to Red China.

The President said that all the countries of the world are now busy reassessing their own economic, military and political policies in the light of fast moving developments like the adoption of a flexible policy by both the United States and Red China.

After receiving scheduled callers, the President swore into office some 30 new appointees, mostly to the judiciary.

In the afternoon, the President concentrated on office work. Among other actions.

1. Directed the Free Trade Zone Authority to set aside 30 hectares to accommodate a Ford car manufacturing complex, which would turn out Asian Ford cars with a Filipino name starting 1972. The President issued the order after being informed by W. O. Bourke, president of Ford Asia-Pacific, of the project. Bourke made a courtesy call in the morning after his arrival here on a business visit.
2. Proclaimed July 22, a special public holiday in Batangas province and in the cities of Batangas and Lipa, to commemorate the birth anniversary of Apolinario Mabini, the Sublime paralytic.
3. Issued an administrative order requiring Commissioner of Civil Service Abelardo Subido to resign three days from the receipt of the order, otherwise, he would be considered resigned upon the expiration of that period.

The President's order was the upshot of an administrative charge filed against Commissioner Subido by Faustino Tugade, former CSC legal officer, for violation of the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, particularly for entering into contracts grossly disadvantageous to the government.

The Presidential Investigating Committee headed by Dr. Gaudencio Garcia, chairman which was assigned to investigate the case, found Commissioner Subido guilty of the charge.

July 22—

HIGHLIGHTING President Marcos' schedule was his keynote speech at the opening of the joint conference of the World Anti-Communism League and the Asian Peoples' Anti-Communist League, and the presentation of the Order of Malta award, Colar Pro Merito Malitensa the highest decoration given by that entity to foreign heads of state.

Briefly, the President's day had the following high points:

1. Presentation of award to the President by Minister Jose Soriano of the Order of Malta.

In his brief remarks, the President said: "I receive this award not only on my behalf," the President said, "but on behalf of the entire people and government of the Republic, since I presume this award has been given in recognition of the good work in which our people and government are engaged."

The President received the award in the presence of several Knights of Malta including Vice Consul Justo Lopez, Ernesto Rufino, Sebastian Ugarte and Daniel Vasquez. Also present were the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez-Marcos, and children Imee, Irene and Bongbong.

2. Courtesy call of Gough Hitlam, opposition leader of Australia, who had come from Red China. Hitlam exchanged impressions with the President on the effects and implications of the change in foreign policy of the U. S. and China.
3. Courtesy call of delegates to the joint conference of the World Anti-Communist League and Asian Anti-Communist League.
4. Courtesy call of representatives of the Filipino Alumni Association of Los Angeles, who requested the establishment of a PNB branch in that city where some 70,000 Filipinos live and work.

They pointed out that the PNB has branches in San Francisco and New York City where there are fewer Filipinos. The President promised to endorse their request to the PNB board. Those who called included Antonio M. San Jose, president; Dr. Lina B. Navarro, crowned Mrs. Philippines of Los Angeles; and Dr. Rolando Navarro, president, Philippine Medical Society of Southern California.

5. Meeting with Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. on the rice situation.

6. At 2 p.m. the President addressed the joint conference of the Anti-Communists League at the SSS Building, Quezon City.

Among other actions, the President directed Secretary of Justice Jose Abad Santos to render an opinion on whether the Development Bank of the Philippines (DBP) can legally make public significant data on all loans and guarantees extended by it since the beginning of his administration on January 1, 1966, as well as those granted under all previous administrations.

The President made this move upon the suggestion of Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, who wrote the President expressing his concern over the trend of congressional investigations of banks, notably the DBP.

The President also took steps to alleviate the critical food situation and arrest the spiralling prices of rice.

In his conference with Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and representatives of other government agencies involved in rice production, the President directed that immediate action be taken to alleviate the rice problem.

The President told Secretary Tanco that provincial governors, city and municipal mayors continue to complain about critical rice deficiencies and soaring prices in their regions.

“Let us do something about this situation,” the President said want a report on the action you have taken.”

In another directive to Secretary Tanco, Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz and the administrator of the Food and Drug Administration, the President ordered that:

1. Henceforth the use of DDT as an insecticide for agricultural crops would be prohibited;
2. No permits would be given to new drugs from abroad for use by the public or for sale in the Philippines unless it is shown that the drug is permitted for public use in the country of origin by the government of that country.

The President ordered a study made as to the essentiality of prohibiting completely the use of DDT.

Among those present in the conference were Director Leonardo A. Paulino of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics; Director Eliseo C. Carandang of the Bureau of Plant Industry; Director Pedro G. Refuerzo of the Bureau of Animal Industry; Commissioner Andres Mane of the Philippine Fisheries Commission; Acting Manager A. B. Abrazaldo of RCA; Deputy Commissioner Francisco G. Rentutar of the Agricultural Productivity Commission; NFAC Deputy Executive Director Domingo Panganiban; Vicente C. de Jesus and R. E. Fronda of NFAC; and Juan A. Mariano and Julian S. Frianeza of the Bureau of Soils.

President's Week in Review: July 23-29, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS launched his nationwide rural electrification program when he flew to Laoag City to witness the signing of a loan agreement between the Ilocos Norte Electric Cooperative Association and the National Electrification Administration (NEA).

In a speech at the Ablan Heroes Memorial Hall, the President said that the putting up of the pilot project marked the beginning of the administration's nationwide program to provide cheap electric power to the rural areas.

The President said the administration has earmarked ₱600 million for the next three or four years for the implementation of the program aimed at providing the whole country with cheap power not only to light up rural communities but also to run cottage industries that will provide incomes to the people.

The signing of the agreement was participated in by officials of the Ilocos Norte Electric Cooperative Association and the NEA, and was also witnessed by U. S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and Director Thomas Niblock of the US-AID, the U. S. agency assisting in the electrification program.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, and their children Imee, Bongbong and Irene, the President landed at the Gabu Airport shortly before 9 a.m. On hand to welcome them at the airport were city, national, provincial, municipal and barrio officials from Ilocos Norte, Ilocos Sur, La Union, Isabela and Pangasinan.

The welcomers included Reps. Roque Ablan, Jr. and Simeon Valdez, Gov. Elizabeth Marcos-Keon, Rep. Jose D. Aspiras and Gov. Juvenal Guerrero of La Union, Rep. Rodolfo Albano of Isabela, and Gov. Tito Primicias of Pangasinan.

After military honors at the airport, the President headed a long motorcade to the city cathedral where Te Deum was sung. Then he proceeded to the nearby auditorium for the signing ceremony.

Speaking alternately in English, Pilipino and Ilocano, the President said that in the forthcoming election campaign for local officials he would go around the country and ask the electorate to choose between democracy and communism.

In the course of his speech, the President was informed of some of the complaints of his provincemates. He was told that while he keeps on building roads and bridges all over the country, he has neglected his provincemates.

The President forthwith authorized the release of ₱3.5 million for each of the first and second districts of the province for the concrete paving of their dilapidated roads and national highway.

After taking a late lunch at Barrio La Paz, the President motored to different sections of the province to look into the progress of on-going improvement projects.

Before leaving Manila, the President issued a directive to the Police Commission to undertake a comprehensive training program for police forces throughout the country geared towards a nationwide anti-narcotics drive.

The President gave the order after taking note of the reported upsurge in narcotics addiction among the youth, and of the discovery of a number of flourishing marijuana farms.

The President told Brig. Gen. Crispino de Castro (ret.), POLCOM chief, that police forces all over the country should be taught the various techniques of identifying and combatting the grave social menace deriving from narcotics addiction.

In this connection, the President authorized the release to the POLCOM of five prefabricated schoolbuildings for the training program.

Training sites should be immediately put up at strategic points of the country, the President said.

The President also designated Julio A. Sulit, Jr., as acting deputy commissioner of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

Sulit fills in the post vacated by Jose Nepomuceno, who had retired.

July 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, left his hometown of Batac where they spent the night, for Vigan, Ilocos Sur where Mrs. Marcos also launched the local chapter of the “Green Revolution.”

Addressing thousands of green uniformed local ladies who converged at the Quirino Memorial Stadium, Mrs. Marcos gave assurance that the Green Revolution is not a political gimmick but a product of the President’s democratic revolution “to change our hearts, our habits of indolence, our weakness as a nation and as individuals of not caring for our fellowmen.”

While in Vigan, the President conferred with local officials headed by Gov. Carmeling P. Crisologo on problems of the province, including the status of local development projects.

In the afternoon, the President crossed over to San Fernando, La Union where he held another conference with local officials on the progress of various on going projects in their respective localities.

On the way to San Fernando, the President made a whistle-stop in Agoo, hometown of Rep. Jose D. Aspiras, to address the townspeople who had lined the route and converged at the town plaza to welcome him.

The President and his family spent the night in Poro Point.

July 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS returned to Manila early in the evening from a three-day swing through the Ilocos provinces where he rallied the people’s support behind the cause of democracy.

In speeches delivered in Ilocos Norte, Ilocos Sur, La Union and Pangasinan, the President declared that the people would be made to choose between democracy and communism in the forthcoming local elections.

“I have come here to warn you that the threat of a bloody revolution to overthrow the democratic government is real and imminent,” the President said in his conferences with provincial, municipal and barrio officials. “The people should decide now whether they would unite behind their democratic institutions before it is too late.”

Accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez-Marcos, and children Imee, Bongbong- and Irene, the President left Poro Point in the morning for Lingayen, Pangasinan where a huge rally was held at the local stadium.

Welcoming the presidential party in the province were local leaders from the 48 towns of Pangasinan, both Nacionalistas and Liberals. After discussing, the status of community improvement projects and other local problems with provincial, municipal and barrio officials in a conference held at the provincial capitol, the President motored to Manila, arriving in Malacañang early in the evening.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to ask the National Economic Council to certify to the importation of 350,000 metric tons of rice as earlier recommended by Tanco himself.

The President took a direct hand in the rice crisis after receiving reports that rice prices all over the country have continued to rise in some places up to ₱3.00 per ganta despite efforts of the Rice and Corn Administration to bring down prices to P2.20. The RCA has attempted to flood the markets with portion of the 110,000 metric tons of rice imported from Taiwan and Thailand and donated rice from Japan.

At the same time, the President instructed RCA Chairman-General Manager Jose D. Drilon, Jr. to explore the possibility of obtaining rice on “thirty-years to pay” terms from Japan and Thailand for the 350,000 metric tons additional rice import.

The President also asked Tanco to call rice merchants all over the country to a meeting to discuss the rice situation with them and to appeal for the lowering of prices.

In the afternoon, while working on state papers, the President created a committee to investigate the complaints lodged by the municipality of Carigara and the Carigara Farmers Cooperative Association against the operations of a logging firm, allegedly being carried out within the proposed Carigara watershed reservation.

Named to compose the committee were a representative each of the U. P. College of Forestry, who will act as chairman; the National Irrigation Administration, the Bureau of Soils, the Bureau of Forestry, and the Bureau of Public Highways, as members. In another Administrative Order, the President reconstituted the membership of the technical committee created to determine the true and correct boundaries of Zamboanga City, Zamboanga del Norte and Zamboanga del Sur.

Included as members of the technical committee were the other district land officers and highway district engineers of the Zamboanga provinces.

The President also issued a proclamation reserving for port development purposes (customs zone) a parcel of land in the port area of Davao City.

The site adjoins the pier facilities at Sasa Wharf, Port of Davao and has an area of approximately 115,622 square meters.

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law Senate Bill No. 709 (HB No 3758) fixing the selling price of essential commodities and re-activating the Price Control Council.

Enactment of the new Price Control law was deemed necessary by the President who certified it to Congress during the special session in view of the sharp rise in prices of prime commodities when the old Price Control Law expired on June 30.

The law fixes maximum prices of articles at levels established by the Price Control Council under R. A. 6124 as of June 30, 1971, effective for a period of two years, from the date of its approval up to June 30, 1973.

Earlier in the day, the President was invested all the necessary powers he may need, as titular head of the Nacionalista Party, to lead the party to complete victory in the local elections.

The President was voted these powers by the National Directorate of the Nacionalista Party during its two-hour meeting at the residence of the acting NP president, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, in Quezon City. The vote was taken on motion of NP President and Senate President Gil J. Puyat.

Under this party mandate, the President would have, among others, the power to choose the party election inspectors and representatives, and to initiate the party organization and act on all matters aimed at assuring an NP win in November.

In accepting the mandate of the party, the President appealed to the party rank and file to unite and affirm their faith and loyalty in the party and its leadership by giving the party full support.

July 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received the 591-man Philippine contingent to the 13th Boy Scouts World Jamboree, who called at Malacañang in the morning to bid farewell before flying to Shizouka Prefecture, Japan for the world jamboree scheduled to be held August 2 to 10.

The President asked the contingent to act as ambassadors of goodwill for the Philippines, and help promote amity, understanding and friendship with other nations.

The President told the contingent that they should be proud of their traditions “because most of the leaders of the country today have a background of scouting.”

The President added that “we look forward to a system by which we can certainly train our young men and women along the ways not only of decency but of spiritual strength and the ancient virtues that: separate the old from the young, virtues that a scout holds dear.

The scouters were headed by Raymundo Crystal and Dominador B. Rañezes, head and deputy head of the BSP contingent, among others.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Antonio Delgado, vice-president for international affairs of the BSP and vice-chairman of the Boy Scout World Bureau.

After his meeting with the scouters, the President received provincial delegations led by local executives, who apprised him of problems of their constituents.

Toward noon, the President repaired to the Malacañang Maharlika Hall, where he had a luncheon meeting with some 200 members of the NP National Directorate, including senators, representatives and some of the senatorial aspirants.

During the luncheon conference, the President inducted into the Nacionalista Party 19 former Liberal Party leaders, led by former Governor Gregorio Santayana of Quezon, deputy secretary-general of the LP; Vice Governor Virgilio Ramos of Zamboanga del Norte and Severo Abos of Abra, and Antonio Villanueva, chairman of the LP chapter in Ilocos Sur.

IN response to the growing public clamor against postal service irregularities which have prejudiced the general conduct of government, President Marcos created a management team to study the problems and deficiencies plaguing the bureau, and to recommend solutions.

Retired Gen. Marte U. Iglesias, director of the bureau of supply, was named chairman of the management team. Designated members were Arcadio Sunga, Washington Solidum and Gerardo Zafra, all of the Management Service of the Budget Commission, and a representative of the Philippine Council of Management (PCM), a private group. The PCM has named Augusto Acoymo, governor and auditor of the organization, as its representative.

The team was instructed to submit its recommendation to the President within one month.

Earlier in the morning, the President received the members of the Joint Philippine-Indonesian Economic Commission who called at Malacañang at the close of their three-day meeting held at the Luna Hall of the Department of Foreign Affairs. They informed the President that they had agreed on specific measures for the effective implementation of projects geared to the realization of the common objectives of the two countries.

In his talk with the members of the commission, the President underscored the need for the mutual assistance among the neighboring countries of Asia in view of the fast changing conditions in this part of the world.

He expressed gratification over the efforts exerted by the Philippines and Indonesia to help one another in attaining their mutual goal of industrial and economic development.

The Philippine panel was headed by Undersecretary of Commerce Eliseo Villamor, while the Indonesian panel was led by Dr. Mohammed Sisman, secretary-general of the Department of Trade. They were accompanied by Ambassador Modesto Farolan, Philippine envoy to Jakarta; and Ambassador Utomo, Indonesia's envoy to the Philippines.

Following the call of the joint commission, the President conferred the Rizal Pro Patria award on Sister Mary Magdala Verhuizen in recognition of her distinguished and outstanding services in the field of education.

The Rizal Pro Patria award is conferred on deserving individuals who have perpetuated the ideals of the national hero, Dr. Jose Rizal, through meritorious and outstanding public service.

The citation was read by Miss Maria Imelda Marcos (Imee), the elder daughter of the President and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez-Marcos.

Later, the President inducted into office Deputy Commissioner Epifanio Reyes Pangramuyen as acting Civil Service Commissioner, vice Commissioner Abelardo Subido who was considered resigned.

The President, in separate ceremonies, also swore into office Ricardo Galano as judge of the court of first instance of Isabela; Willelmo Fortun as judge of the court of first instance of Zamboanga del Sur; and Josue Bellosillo as judge of the court of agrarian relations of Iloilo.

Present at the induction ceremonies were close friends and relatives of the inductees; officials and employees of the Civil Service Commission, and a large delegation from Ilocos Norte headed by Dona Josefa Edralin-Marcos, mother of the President; Gov. Elizabeth M. Keon and Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr.

The President also received a delegation from the Manila Market Vendors Association which sought his intercession in the improvement of what the group described as deplorable conditions in city market.

Headed by Jose J. Lapid, association president, the delegation complained of uncollected garbage scattered in the public markets which, the group said, had become breeding places of flies which swarm all over the market.

President's Week in Review: July 30 - August 5, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS, signed into law House Bill No. 3417 providing for the acceleration of the adjustment of salaries of public school teachers at a ceremony attended by a throng of teachers, school officials, and other interested parties. The author of the bill, Rep. Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, was also present at the signing, held in Malacañang in the morning.

The new law provides a definite salary progression of four steps, effective July 1, 1971, each step being granted automatically after a period of three years of satisfactory service, within a period of 10 years.

After the signing ceremony, the President had a private meeting with Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senators Arturo Tolentino and Dominador Aytona, and Reps. Agbayani and Joaquin Ortega.

Later in the morning, the President motored to Camp Aguinaldo to preside over a meeting of the National Security Council. Among those who attended the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata, Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Senator Gerardo Roxas and Rep. Ramon Mitra, Jr. of the opposition party, Reps. Nicanor E. Yñiguez and Constantino Navarro, NBI Director Jolly Bugarin, Defense Undersecretaries Jose M. Crisol and Efren Plana, and the general staff and chiefs of major commands of the AFP, led by General Manuel T. Yan, chief of staff.

The meeting lasted for more than two hours.

The President, as well as the members of the council, was briefed on foreign policy matters by Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo, and on intelligence and defense matters by Gen. Yan and Gen. Ismael Lapuz (ret.), chief of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency (NICA).

Back in Malacañang shortly after 1 p.m., the President rested briefly, then returned to his study for desk work. He issued, among others, a directive to Solicitor General Felix Antonio to coordinate the efforts of the private sector, the schools, the local police agencies and various religious organizations in a massive drive against drug addiction.

The instructions were issued to Antonio in his capacity as chairman of the Citizen's Committee on Order and Justice (CCOJ) created under Administrative Order No. 219 of May 15, 1970.

The President also ordered the Solicitor General to assist the Police Commission in the training of local police forces throughout the country on the techniques of combatting the drug menace.

At 4 p.m., the President sat down with representative of mass media for his regular press conference, during which he announced that on the basis of reports submitted to him by the Department of Foreign Affairs and the military and intelligence authorities during the National Security Council meeting earlier in the day, the Philippines has no alternative but to adopt the two-China policy at the United Nations.

The President said this position would be submitted to the Foreign Policy Council for ratification at its meeting on August 17.

The President emphasized that the Philippine government would oppose any attempt to expel Nationalist China from the United Nations.

Toward evening, the President received some local executives and leaders from Mindanao and Northern Luzon. Among the callers was a delegation from Davao led by Senator Alejandro Almendras and Davao City Mayor Elias Lopez.

In the group were Vice Mayor Manuel Sotto and Councilors Manuel M. Garcia, Pantaleon Pelayo, Jr. and Antonio S. Castillo, all Liberals, who took their oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party.

July 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a quiet but busy day working on official papers and poring over reports from a number of government agencies.

One of the reports was that of the Police Commission on the peace and order conditions in Cotabato and on the police departments in the province, an assessment undertaken by the POLCOM on orders of the President.

In the report, POLCOM Chairman Crispino M. de Castro said, among others, that “no religious war exists” between Muslim and Christian settlers in the areas covered by the survey.

August 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS made a surprise inspection of the progress of work on the 556-hectare site of the Free Trade Zone in Mariveles, Bataan.

The President disembarked from the RPS Ang Pangulo in the morning. He was met at the Mariveles wharf by FTZ Chairman Teodoro Peña, Rep. Pablo Roman, Gov. Guillermo Arcenas and Mayor Carlos Sarreal.

After a briefing on the progress of work by Chairman Peña and other FTZ officials, the President made a tour of the site.

The President was informed by the FTZ officials that some 110 hectares complete with facilities could already be made available for light and heavy industries in the zone.

Noticing the slow pace of progress due to the levelling operations, the President directed Chairman Peña to submit a progress report, presenting all his problems and recommendations.

The rest of his working hours were spent on paper work in his private study.

August 2—

1. House Bill 3045—An Act preventing and penalizing carnapping

2. House Bill No. 658—An act increasing the penalties for the possession, preparation, use, importation and sale of prohibited drugs; penalizing the cultivation, production, manufacture and certain acts relating to the distribution of such drugs, amending for the purpose the Revised Penal Code, and authorizing the appropriation of funds for the treatment and rehabilitation of victims of drug addiction;

3. House Bill No. 393—An act establishing probation for persons 16 years of age and above who are convicted of certain crimes by the courts of the Philippines, providing probation officers therefor, and for other purposes; and

4. Senate Bill No. 712—An act consolidating and revising the charter of the National Power Corporation.

At mid-morning, the President received Earl Carlson, U.N. adviser on financing and organization of housing and environmental improvement programs, who paid his respects on the President preparatory to his departure for New York after serving as consultant to the Philippine Senate for two years.

Carlson was accompanied to Malacañang by Senator Helena Benitez, chairman of the Senate committee on housing, urban development and resettlement.

After attending to a few other callers, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, officiated at past noon at a tree-planting ceremony held at the Malacañang grounds in connection with the observance of Arbor Week.

Participating in the rites were members of the Cabinet who each planted a Narra tree around the Palace lawns.

In brief remarks at the rites, the President said that the nation's forests are being denuded at an estimated, rate of 80,000 hectares a year. He warned that at this rate, the country is bound to lose most of its forest cover in 10 years.

It was for this reason, he said, that upon assumption of the Presidency, he immediately declared numerous virgin areas as permanent forests, and would continue setting aside areas not only as permanent forest but also as parks and wildlife sanctuaries.

Early in the evening, the President received superintendents from public and private institutions attending a four-day convention in Manila.

The President was assisted in receiving the conventionists by Mrs. Marcos, who was cited for her many welfare projects.

The conventionists pledged the support of some 330,000 elementary and secondary school teachers, public as well as private, to the President's "Democratic Revolution" and the First Lady's "Green Revolution".

Addressing the superintendents, the President called upon them to pitch in and help indoctrinate the people in such worthwhile projects as the drive against malnutrition, manpower training, food production and population control.

The conventionists were accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Education Juan Manuel and Undersecretary Narciso Albarracin.

August 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a busy schedule receiving callers, some of them coming in large delegations, apart from which he also put in an active day attending to important state papers and other official business.

Notable among those who called on the President were:

1. Speaker Hadji Achmad Sjoichu of Indonesia, who made a courtesy call following his arrival for a brief official visit.

2. Yuichi Nishida, Japanese businessman, who plans to invest in a joint venture with Filipinos to put up refrigeration plants and set up shrimp ponds.

3. The Philippine basketball team participating in the Pesta Sukan basketball games in-Singapore. Accompanying the group on the call were Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez and Manila Councilor Lito Puyat.

4. Governors Carmeling P. Crisologo of Ilocos Sur, Elizabeth M. Keon of Ilocos Norte, Teresita Dupaya of Cagayan, Consuelo Calo of Agusan and Salvacion Yñiguez of Southern Leyte, who came to see the President on problems in their constituencies.

5. Gov. Antonio Ortiz of Guimaras and Mayor Jose Oliveras, president of the League of Mayors, accompanied by Mayors Luis Herrera and Abelardo Javellana of Jordan and Buenavista, respectively, who also consulted the President on local problems.

6. Nicanor Sison, who took his oath of office before the President. He is the new judge of the court of first instance of Pasig, Rizal.

7. The officers and members of the Government Prosecutors League, who thanked the President for appointing colleagues to the judiciary. The League officers were inducted by the President.

8. Quezon City Mayor Norberto Amoranto and Vice Mayor Ismael, Jr., who also discussed local problems.

9. A group of mayors from Cavite, who were accompanied by Sen. Helena Z. Benitez. Three of the mayors, former Liberals, took their oath of affiliation with the NP.

In the afternoon, the President directed all government agencies concerned to push the anti-narcotics drive in order to awaken nationwide consciousness on the urgency of solving this grave national problem.

Upon recommendation of the Cabinet, the President:

1. Ordered the director of private schools to call the attention of all heads of private schools, particularly those in the Greater Manila area, to the gravity of this national problem and enlist their participation in the drive;

2. Sought the reactivation of all police units engaged in anti-narcotics operations.

The President also submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation, the nominations of six persons to judiciary posts—three as municipal judges and three as clerks of court. Nominated were:

1. Mariano A. Mendieta, as municipal judge of Meycauayan, Bulacan.

2. Abraham Alagar, as municipal judge of Imus, Cavite.

3. Dominador Ll. Mercado, as municipal judge of Bacon, Sorsogon.

4. Teresita D. Capulong, as branch clerk of court CFI, Manila. Branch XVII.

5. Carmen Zapata Reyes, as branch clerk of court, CFJ, Manila, Branch XI.

August 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS again had a heavy schedule of callers some of whom were officials he inducted, and which included a big delegation from Nationalist China.

Notable among the President's visitors were:

1. Rep. Rafael Aquino and Angel Tupaz, who consulted the President on the case of a fugitive mayor, Ricardo de la Camara who had signified his intention to surrender to the authorities. Accompanying the two men were the fugitive's wife and niece.
2. Pasay City Vice Mayor Jesus P. Paredes, former LP who was sworn in as NP.
3. A study group from the 12th War College of Nationalist China which paid its respects to the President.
4. A group of judges and the deputy fisheries commissioner who took their oaths of office. Inducted were Ambrosio M. Dar, as deputy commissioner of fisheries for research and technology; Miguel P. Valera as judge of the Court of Agrarian Relations of Isabela; Benjamin Crisostomo as circuit court judge of Roxas City; Felipe P. de Vera, Bernardo P. Fernandez and Sanbago Tañada as judges of courts of first instance of the cities of Dagupan, Olongapo and Calocan, respectively; and David Lindayag as municipal judge of Hagonoy, Bulacan.
5. The elected officers of the Veterans Federations, who were inducted by the President. They were Col. Simeon Medalla, president; Col. Agustin Marking, executive vice president; Paulino D. Tolentino, Leonardo Cabañero, Vicente Alberto and Tomas T. Nufable, vice presidents; Arsenio R. Fabros secretary-general; Tranquilino Capobres, treasurer general Carlos R. Lardizabal, auditor general; Onesimo Soriano inspector general; Brig. Gen. Dionisio Ojeda and PVA Administrator Atilano R. Cinco, advisers.
6. Several provincial delegations who discussed local problems with the President, including those headed by Reps. Tito Dupaya and David Puzon of Cagayan; Rep. Indanan Anni of Sulu; the Benguet group led by Rep. Andres Cosalan and Gov. Ben' Palispis, and including all the mayors of the province.

In the afternoon, the President proclaimed August 9, Monday a special public holiday in Ilocos Norte and Laoag City.

The day marks the birth anniversary of the late Governor Roque B. Ablan, an outstanding resistance leader of the occupation.

August 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day quietly with a breakfast in the morning honoring Robert Jackson, senior consultant to the administrator of the United Nations Development Program, at which he and The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, played hosts.

Also present at the breakfast were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Secretary of Public Works and Communications Manuel B. Syquiao, Secretary of Social Welfare Estefania Aldaba-Lim, Board of Investments Chairman Vicente Paterno, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, and William Harding, UNDP resident representative here.

Then he began receiving callers, the first of which was a delegation from Zamboanga del Sur led by Rep. Vicente Cerilles. In the group's wake came former Rep. Luis Hora of the Mt. Province, Gov. Jaime Gomez, Deputy Gov. Alejo Manao and Board Members Alfonso Layog and Jose Dominguez, along with nine town mayors.

Taking time off from visitors, the President signed the gold subsidy bill. Among those who witnessed the signing were Sen. Leonardo B. Perez, Rep. Benjamin Perez, and a number of provincial and municipal officials of Nueva Vizcaya.

Under the new law, the gold subsidy would be given only to gold producing firms 70 per cent owned and held by Philippine citizens, and producing gold as a principal product by itself or through an operating agreement.

Resuming his reception of callers, the President met with a group from Ilocos Norte headed by Reps. Simeon Valdez and Roque Ablan, Jr. and Gov. Elizabeth Marcos-Keon.

The President continued to receive callers the rest of the day in between spells of desk work and brief meetings with officials consulting him on various problems.

Official papers acted upon by the President included those on the promotion of 255 reserve officers (inactive) of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

One of those promoted from captain to major was Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata.

The promotion of the reserved officers was recommended by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, and was in line with the citizens army build-up program of the AFP as envisioned in the National Defense Act.

Of the officers promoted, six were to the grade of Colonel, 13 to the grade of Lt. Colonel, and 53 to the grade of Major, Lt. Commander.

President's Week in Review: August 6-12, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Rice and Corn Administration to devise a scheme whereby cheaper government rice could be distributed through the barrio captains all over the country, with special attention to places with short supply of the cereal.

The President issued the directive to insure that RCA rice selling at from P2.10 to P2.20 per ganta each as many families as possible, especially those of the low-income groups in the rural areas.

The sale of cheaper rice through the barrio captains was suggested by the League of Barrio Captains of Cabanatuan City, members of which called at Malacañang at noon to request the approval of House Bill No. 3294 passed during the special session of Congress. The bill officially recognizes the official standing of 59 Cabanatuan barrios.

Accompanied by Reg. Angel Concepcion, author of the bill, the delegation of barrio captains informed the President that the original charter of Cabanatuan enacted in 1955 had listed only 11 barrios and inadvertently failed to include 59 other barrios which were already existing before the capital town of Nueva Ecija was converted into a city.

Oscar P. Justo, chairman of the League, said that the forgotten barrios have thus been deprived of their rightful share of most of the nationwide rural improvements undertaken by the administration.

The President forthwith signed the measure.

The Cabanatuan group was one of several delegations who called on the President to take up urgent local matters. These were delegations from Cotabato, Lipa City, La Union and Rizal.

Earlier in the morning, the President received a group of young American Civil Air Patrol cadets who arrived in Manila under the auspices of the International Air Cadet Exchange Program. Accompanied by Col. Henry Meider, vice president of the Aerospace Association of the Philippines, the U.S. cadets called at Malacañang to pay their respects.

The group was composed of Lt. Col. Keith Laddie Lysinger, of Boise, Idaho; Cadet Lt. Col. Bruce Kenneth Adams of Des Moines, Iowa; Cadet Lt. Col. Mark Larry Lupfer of Sta. Monica, California; Cadet Lt. Col. Roberto Thomas Lohne of Westminster, Colorado; and Cadet Capt. Kevin M. Carlson of Fremont, Nebraska.

The President spent the rest of the day working on official papers, breaking off once at 4:30 p.m. to hold a general press conference.

PRESIDENT MARCOS trimmed his scheduled callers to only a few, even as he concentrated more on desk work and other urgent state business.

The President buckled down to paper work shortly after breakfast. Toward noon he received Gov. Petronilo Seares of Abra, who apprised him on matters concerning his constituency, and Judge Serafin E. Camilon whom he inducted as judge of the court of first instance of Negros Occidental, with jurisdiction over the cities of Bacolod, Silay, San Carlos, La Carlota, Bogu and Cadiz.

The induction ceremony was witnessed by the inductee's wife Constancia, brother Benjamin, and Senator Helen Z. Benitez.

The President resumed his paper work in the afternoon, in the process issuing an order creating the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Board which will, among others, serve as an institutional link between the government and the private sectors involved in the Philippine Virginia tobacco industry.

In creating the board, the President emphasized that the preservation, promotion and enhancement of the Philippine Virginia tobacco industry require a vigorous, concerned and integrated planning and programming, and a coordinated implementation of projects relative to the industry.

Named to compose the tobacco board were the chairman/general manager of the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration, as chairman, and the following as members:

The commissioner of the Agricultural Productivity Commission, the administrator of the Agricultural Credit Administration, the commissioner of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, the directors of the Bureau of Plant Industry and of the Bureau of Soils, a representative elected or designated by the cigarette manufacturers who have a contract with the PVTa to operate trading centers, a representative of tobacco redriers and exporters who have contracts with the PVTa to operate trading centers; an official of the PVTa, to be designated by the PVTa chairman with the concurrence of the board, who will act as executive secretary, and the corporate treasurer of the PVTa, who will be ex-officio treasurer of the board.

August 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS enjoined the officers and men of the Philippine Constabulary to stay out of politics in the elections and to perform their solemn duty to uphold the law without favor to anyone at all.

Addressing the men in khaki and red on the 70th founding anniversary of the Philippine Constabulary at Camp Crame, the President said that "in a very real way, the issue of democracy as against communism rests on your performance as soldiers of democracy and not as minions of a privileged few."

"Our people rely firstly on you to keep the peace and order," the President said, "and you are beholden to no politician, only to our people and to your duty."

"You must prove that although there are a few transgressors, the main body of the constabulary is as it has always been—men dedicated to flag and country, oriented to public service, completely trustworthy and reliable, and in accordance with the highest traditions of command, ready to lay their lives down for the greater good," the President said. (See pp. 6492-6495 for full text of the President's speech.)

Upon arrival at the PC headquarters, the President was given military honors by the Presidential Guard Battalion, after which he and the First Lady proceeded to the grandstand.

After the troops had been presented to him, the President accompanied by Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, chief of the PC, and Brig. Gen. Fabian Ver, commanding general of the PGB, trooped the line, and then presented the awards to distinguished officers, enlisted men, units and a civilian employee.

The President then delivered his address, after which the troops composed of two PC brigades from the metropolitan area, passed in review, followed by motorized units including METROCOM, Trafcon, Signal and other units.

After exchanging greetings with other guests, including military top brass from the United States Army and Navy installations, members of the diplomatic corps, and chiefs of commands of the AFP, the President and the First Lady motored to the PC-Police Coordinating Center building for the inauguration.

The President and the First Lady left Camp Crame at 11:45 a.m., arriving at Malacañang exactly 12 noon.

In the afternoon, the President created the Pesticides Control and Research Committee on recommendation of Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to regulate the importation, manufacture, sale, distribution and use of pesticides.

The President created the committee to fill the long felt need for a specific government instrumentality to monitor the use of agricultural pesticides commercially manufactured and distributed in the country in view of the increasing danger of pollution and contamination to public health.

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor, degree of commander, on Maj. Gen. George Peckett, Jr., outgoing chief of the Joint U. S. Military Advisory Group, in a ceremony held at Malacañang which was the only break in his usual routine.

Present at the rite were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Romeo Espino, vice chief of staff; and Commodore Hilario M. Ruiz, deputy chief of staff.

Following the ceremony, the President inducted members of the Philippine Medical Care Commission headed by Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, chairman. The composition of the commission was unanimously recommended by a large delegation representing the major medical organizations in the country, which called at Malacañang.

Inducted, aside from Dr. Marcos, were Dr. Jose C. Denoga, administrator and vice chairman; Dr. Ricardo L. Alfonso and Jesus V. Tamesis, as members representing the private sector; and the following ex-officio members: Dr. Edgardo Caparas, president of the Philippine Medical Association; Dr. Eliodoro Congco, president of the Philippine Hospital Association; Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz and SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro.

The President also administered the oath of affiliation to the Nacionalista Party to several Iloilo leaders headed by Brig. Gen. Alfonso Palencia (ret) chairman of the Liberal Party chapter in the fifth district of the province. The affiliation was witnessed by Rep. Fermin Z. Caram, Jr. and Board Member Heber Catalan.

The President otherwise received callers until 2 p.m., consisted mostly of provincial delegations seeking solutions to local problems. In between the President worked on state papers.

ABOARD RPS Ang Pangulo, enroute to Tagbilaran City, President Marcos read and worked on official papers most of the day as he sailed in occasionally rough sea on Tagbilaran, Bohol for the proclamation of the NP senatorial candidates.

Also on board were senatorial candidate Mrs. Leonila Garcia and party, including her daughter, Mrs. Linda G. Campos, SSS Chairman Ramon Gaviola, Tomas Toledo and Dr. Antonio Guytingco.

Before leaving for the South, the President instituted the Presidential Citation for Outstanding Humanitarian Services.

The award was instituted to give due official cognizance and gratitude to Filipino citizens, resident foreigners and others who have rendered spontaneous, exemplary and conspicuous service in the areas of social welfare, education, health and national defense undertaken by the government in times of urgent national need.

The award may also be conferred, on the authority of the President by the Executive Secretary and the Secretary of the Department which has initiated special operations in any of the areas mentioned above, during which the awardee rendered meritorious service and assistance.

The Presidential Citation would be conferred in the form of gold, silver and bronze medals.

The line of endeavor in which the awardee has rendered outstanding services would be distinguished thus: a blue ribbon for social welfare, green for education, white for health, and red for national defense.

August 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS arrived in Tagbilaran City at 9:30 a.m. for the proclamation rally in the evening of the Nacionalista Party. He was joined by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, who flew from Manila.

On hand to welcome the President at the wharf were Gov. Lino Chato, Reps. Pablo Malasarte and Teodoro Galagar, City Mayor Venancio Inting and other East Visayan leaders who had converged in the city.

After full military honors at the wharf, the President and his party proceeded to the St. Joseph Cathedral for Te Deum. Then he held a conference with local officials who reported on the progress of improvement projects and advised him of the further needs of their constituents.

The conference was held after the luncheon tendered by national, provincial and municipal officials at the Bohol Cultural Center.

The President urged the local officials to take the initiative in providing the necessary leadership in the implementation of the food production program of the administration.

In a talk with newsmen later in the afternoon, the President announced he had ordered a ceasefire in Cotabato to last until all efforts to find a peaceful solution are exhausted. He said his order covers the area around Buldon, adding however that government troops have orders to secure their positions,

At the rally in the evening, the President issued a challenge to the Liberals on four points, based on the issues of graft and corruption, peace and order and communism, as he drew the battlelines for the election campaign.

The President challenged the Liberals to:

- 1) Present a concrete, coherent and harmonious platform of government to electorate;
- 2) Authorize him to declassify intelligence and police records regarding politicians and candidates linked to subversive elements;
- 3) Agree to the opening to the public by the Bureau of Internal Revenue of all documents pertaining to the payment of income taxes, inheritance and investments of all candidates and political leaders, including himself;
- 4) Authorize all banks to disclose all accounts kept by candidates running for office.

The President said the NP stands squarely on the issue of nationalism, the reorganization of government to remove the corrupting influence of the rich, and the restructuring of society for public welfare.

The President said the people must choose between control of private ownership as advocated by the Nacionalista Party and outright abolition of private ownership as advocated by the communists.

August 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with PC and army commanders, provincial political leaders of Cotabato on the peace and order situation in said province.

Upon request of Rep. Salipada K. Pendatun the President, during the conference, wired Senators Mamintal Tamano and Leonardo B. Perez, requesting them to conduct negotiations with Mayor Bangon Aratuc of Buldon for a peaceful settlement of the conflict in Cotabato.

Rep. Pendatun assured the President that the mayor of Buldon was willing to meet the President or his representative if given a safe conduct by the government troops.

In a series of directives issued during the conference, the President ordered:

1. Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief; and Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, Fourth PC Zone commander, to lift the August 15 ultimatum for armed Muslims fighting government troops to surrender;
- 2 The two PC generals to stop all aggressive action in the area, but for government troops to dig in and stay put in their positions;
3. The armed forces to hold their artillery fire on Muslim positions to prevent destruction of life and property; and
4. The PC to gather all evidence against known leaders of the Ilagas and to file corresponding charges.

Present at the meeting were Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Eimle and Undersecretary Efren Plana, Brig. Gen. Rafael Ileta, Philippine Army commander; Gen. Garcia Brig Gen. Juan B. Cruz of the Fourth Brigade Gen. Tutaan former Rep. Blah Sinsuat, CNI Commissioner Mama Sinsuat Gov Simeon Datumanong, Mayor Udtog Matalan Jr. of Pikit, Datu Odin Sinsuat, Mayors Emma Gaddi of Kidapawan, Bonifacio Tejada of M'lang, Conrado Buencamino of Isulan, Sansalona Rivera of Parang, Balakat Sangki of Ampatuan, Michael Sinsuat of Upi, Ricardo Ipong of Makilala; and Lt. Col. Adolfo Bringas, Cotabato provincial commander.

Arriving in Iligan City at 9:30 a.m., after an overnight voyage from Tagbilaran City aboard the RPS Ang Pangulo, President Marcos motored direct to the local airport where he boarded a plane for Cotabato for the meeting with military officials and provincial and political leaders in the province.

From Cotabato, the President proceeded to Davao where the President and the First Lady attended another rally in the evening to proclaim the NP senatorial bets.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with his emissaries in Davao City, who came back in the afternoon and reported to him that Mayor Bangon Aratuc of Buldon was willing to meet him in Manila.

The President stayed the whole day in Davao and waited for the return of the intermediaries, namely, Chairman Raul Beloso of the Small Farmers Commission, Mayors Sansalona Biruar of Parang and Michael Sinsuat of Upi, and Bongsar Tumaui. While waiting for the return of the intermediaries, the President conferred with local executives on improvement projects and worked on official papers.

Following his 30-minute meeting with the intermediaries, the President ordered the Department of Health to send medical and health teams to Buldon as soon as possible, and the NB1 and other civilian investigation agencies to send investigators to look into the grievances which Mayor Aratuc and others would bring to his attention.

The President also sent back the intermediaries to inform Mayor Aratuc of the actions he had taken, and to continue further negotiations.

Mayor Aratuc had told the emissaries that he was ready to explain to the President the circumstances leading to the outbreak of hostilities between the Muslims and the government troops, and that he was willing to turn over authority over the municipality of Buldon to anyone except the military on condition that his people would not be harmed.

Because of his inability to return to Manila, the President asked Labor Secretary Bias F. Ople to deliver for him his message at the opening ceremonies of Linggo ng Wikang Pambansa, held at the Malacanang Maharlika Hall in the morning.

In his prepared speech in Pilipino, the President said that obstacles notwithstanding, efforts toward the development of a Pilipino language would continue.

“We believe that this language will remain alive and healthy and strong enough to enable it to overcome the difficulties in the way to full development,” the President said.

When the Pilipino language shall have fully flowered, the President said, every Pilipino will take pride in using his own language and the unity of the country will have come true, “a unity brought about by a consensus on a national language.”

The President stated that among the reasons for the slow development of the Pilipino language were the efforts wasted in endless debates on such matters as purism, the lack of technical and scientific terms, and regionalism.

He said however that the drive toward the “development and propagation of the Pilipino language is moving ahead,” and has in fact gone a long way.

August 14—

IMMEDIATELY upon arriving at Malacañang at about 10:30 a.m. from his three-day trip to the South, the President focused on urgent state business, including important state papers.

He did not receive callers to be able to concentrate on desk work preparatory to another trip to the North, for proclamation rallies of the senatorial bets of the Nacionalista Party.

August 15—

Accompanied by the NP senatorial candidates, President Marcos arrived in Laoag City at 10 a.m. for the start of the proclamation rallies in the Ilocos region.

The Laoag noontime rally was attended by delegations from Ilocos Sur, Abra, La Union and Pangasinan.

After the Laoag rally, the President and his party crossed over to the Cagayan Valley where even larger delegations from Isabela, Nueva Vizcaya, Ifugao, Kalinga-Apayao and Benguet had converged.

In his speeches in Laoag and Tuguegarao, the President rallied the support of the traditional “Solid North” behind the Nacionalista Party in the November senatorial and local elections.

The President also took occasion to berate opposition leaders for raising such political issues as high prices, peace and order, reforms in government, while failing to offer alternative programs to solve the nation’s problems.

He also charged that certain members of the opposition are in league with communist elements, to the extent of giving them sanctuary and financial support.

“The threat against our democratic institutions is real and imminent,” the President warned. “In this election, the people will also be asked to choose between democracy and communism.”

August 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had two major conferences, one in the afternoon with Tumatic Aratuc, son of Buldon Mayor Bangon Aratuc, and the other in the evening with members of his Fiscal Policy Committee.

It was quite a busy day for the President, following his return to Manila in the morning from the North where he presented the NP senatorial candidates in huge rallies in Laoag City and Tuguegarao, Cagayan.

Before meeting with Aratuc’s son, who was sent by the Buldon mayor to relay his message to him, the President worked on official papers in his private study.

Tumatic Aratuc, who was accompanied by his wife Nelly, Senators Mamintal Tamano and Leonardo Perez, Rep. Constantino Navarro and Judge Lau Tan of Buldon, transmitted to the President a complaint from Mayor Aratuc that nine houses belonging to Muslims were burned in a barrio of Buldon by “men in uniform.”

He also informed the President that no food or medicine have arrived in Buldon despite the President’s orders for immediate delivery of same.

In the course of his meeting with Tumatic, the President communicated directly by telephone with Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, Fourth PC Zone commander. He directed Gen. Tutaan to pull out the 543rd PC company and all other Ilongo elements from the Buldon area, the presence of which was deemed the main irritant to the Muslims.

The President also ordered Gen. Tutaan to conduct a full-dress investigation of the burning of the nine Muslim houses, and to-maintain active patrolling in the area, with special attention to armed men who may attempt to destroy or sabotage the peaceful settlement of the factional differences in the province.

The President likewise ordered Gen. Tutaan to expedite the delivery of food and medicine and the deployment of civilian doctors aid social workers to Buldon.

In another directive, the President ordered Brig. Gen. Fabian Ver, chief of the Presidential Security Unit, to furnish Mayor Aratuc with a single sideband radio set and two operators to enable the mayor to communicate with Malacañang any time.

At the end of the conference, the President requested Tumatic and his wife to return to Buldon immediately so that they could help facilitate the delivery to and distribution of food and medicine among the evacuees, and to convey his desire to confer with Mayor Aratuc in Malacañang on the measures which should be taken to maintain peace and order in the area.

The President met with the members of the Fiscal Policy Committee in the evening to assess the effects of U.S. President Nixon's decision to suspend the gold conversion of the dollar.

The Council agreed that the "floating" of the dollar would have no adverse effect on the Philippine economy.

On the other hand, it was agreed that since the government had more liabilities than deposits in dollars in the U.S., the new policy might favor the Philippine Government.

The same situation, it was agreed, would obtain for the private sector.

Present at the meeting were Central Bank Governor Gregorio Liqaros, Finance Secretary Cesar Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melehor, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, DBP Chairman Leonides Virata, SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro, Board of Investments Chairman Vicente Paterno, GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr., Veterans Bank President Esteban Cabanos, and Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad.

August 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was back to his regular schedule after his trip to the provinces, and as usual he received visitors in between stints at his desk.

Among those who called in the morning were Minister William Thorpe of New Zealand, who completed a 3-year tour of duty in this country. He called to say goodbye, prior to returning home for reassignment as high commissioner of Samoa.

Later in the morning, the President was regaled by the call of young singing ambassadors from Japan, Taipei and South Korea, composed of children's choirs.

The First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, joined the President to listen to the youngsters sing a few songs. Accompanying the children was Rev. Walter C Libre, who presented the three groups to the President on behalf of Mayor Antonio J. Villegas of Manila. A particular hit was the rendition by the Taipei choir of "Dahil Sa Iyo."

A large delegation from Mindanao was received by the President soon after. The Muslim group sought assurance that marriage rituals of non-Christians would continue to be in force despite the expiration of the law which authorized these rites. The President, to reassure them, re-enacted the signing of R.A. 6268, which restored the exemption retroactively to June 19, 1969, when the original law expired.

In the afternoon the President devoted most of his time to his desk work and other state matters.

Early in the evening, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, received Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives and Mrs. Carl Albert.

Speaker Albert arrived in Manila in the afternoon at the head of a 23-man congressional delegation conducting an Asian tour.

The Alberts were accompanied to Malacañang by Speaker and Mrs. Cornell T. Villareal, Rep. Jose D. Aspiras of La Union, and Ambassador and Mrs. Henry Byroade.

The U. S. congressional delegation arrived from Taipei via Hongkong at 4:40 p.m. and were met at the Manila International Airport by members of Congress led by Speaker Villareal, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and Ambassador Henry Byroade.

Among the papers signed by the President in the course of the day was a proclamation declaring August 19, a special public holiday in Quezon province, Lucena City and Quezon City.

The day marks the birth anniversary of the late President Manuel L. Quezon.

August 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, accompanied the visiting 23-man congressional delegation of the United States, led by Speaker Carl Albert, in a tour of historic Corregidor and Bataan.

The First Couple and the visiting American solons and their ladies boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo at 7:30 a.m. at Pier 15 and sailed for Corregidor first, arriving on the “Rock” some two hours later.

Boarding the busses, the President and the First Lady guided the American ‘visitors in a tour of historic sites, among them the battery or big gun emplacements and the Malinta tunnel. Also shown them was the Pacific War Memorial.

During their three-hour stay on the erstwhile fortress, the visitors were shown the documentary film entitled “The Flame and the Sea,” depicting the war in the Pacific.

They reboarded the RPS Ang Pangulo at 12:30 p.m. for lunch while the ship sailed for Mariveles, Bataan where they boarded PAF helicopters for the “Dambana ng Kagitingan” on Mt. Samat.

After touring the national shrine, the First Couple and the American visitors helicoptered back to Mariveles where they reboarded the RPS Ang Pangulo for the trip back to Manila.

With the First Couple in showing the American visitors around in Corregidor and Bataan were Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Rep. Macacuna Dimaporo and Senators Ambrosio Padilla and Emmanuel Pelaez.

Shortly after his return from Bataan, the President met with Mayor Bangon Aratuc of Buldon, Cotabato and hammered out a six-point formula to restore peace and order in Buldon. The President met the Bul-don mayor for 30 minutes at the Pangarap.

The peace formula agreed upon between the President and Mayor Aratuc includes:

1. The rehabilitation of the town of Buldon, and its conversion into a pilot project.
2. The peaceful surrender and registration of all firearms followed by the pull-out of all PC troops from the area.
3. The possible transfer of Christian settlers from the EDCOR settlement in Buldon to Alamada, and the transfer of Muslims from Alamada to Buldon.
4. The reorganization of the army and PC units with the total elimination of Ilongos from them.
5. The prosecution and punishment of all guilty parties in accordance with law, after an impartial investigation is conducted by investigators not from the Cotabato PC command.
6. The immediate clearing of the roads in order to allow the harvest of standing rice crops in Buldon.

Upon request of Mayor Aratuc, and the recommendation of Sen. Mamintal Tamano and Reps. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte and Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, the President promised to order the immediate rehabilitation of Buldon with the construction of roads and bridges, and the setting up of a dispensary.

It was also agreed that two days after the return of the mayor to Buldon, all firearms will be surrendered and registered in the poblacion, after which the mayor would assume full responsibility for the peace and order in the town and the PC would be pulled out

HIGHLIGHTS of today's activities of President Marcos included:

1. Receiving, along with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, the visiting delegation of U.S. Congressmen and their ladies, who were earlier honored with luncheon by Speaker and Mrs. Cornelio T. Villareal at Nayong Pilipino.

2. A brief meeting with former Dean Dioscoro Umali of the U.P. College of Agriculture in Los Baños, who came to say goodbye before leaving for Bangkok to assume his new post with the UN as Assistant Director General for Asia and Far East Affairs of the Food and Agriculture Organization.

Dean Umali, who has been with the UP College of Agriculture since 1949, also served for some time as undersecretary of agriculture.

3. A conference with Reps. Jose Alberto of Catanduanes, Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac, Teodulo Natividad of Bulacan, Rafael Aquino of Sorsogon and Frisco San Juan of Rizal, all of whom took up local problems with the President.

In the afternoon, the President worked as usual on official papers and at 8 p.m., he and the First Lady, were hosts at dinner for the U.S. Speaker and Congressmen and their ladies, at the Maharlika Hall of Malacanang.

Shortly before the dinner, the President received Mayor Bangon Aratuc of Buldon, who informed him that a peace rally would be held in the town plaza at 10 a.m. Wednesday (August 25) for the purpose of surrendering the loose firearms for registration and ballistic examination to determine those responsible for the recent killings in the area. Mayor Aratuc also emphasized to the President his desire to have the guilty persons brought to justice and duly punished.

During the day, the President commissioned 59 officers into the armed forces upon recommendation of Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile and General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff, in line with the citizen's army build-up program of the country.

Of those commissioned, one was a major, three were first lieutenants, 26 were second lieutenants and 29 were ensigns in the Philippine Navy.

A crowded schedule forced the President to ask Acting Undersecretary of Labor Adrian Cristobal to deliver for him his speech before the members of the Philippine Trade Union Congress gathered at the Selecta Restaurant for their 12th biennial convention.

In his speech, the President strongly supported the move to bring labor into social activism and political action, saying that this involvement "is crucial to labor's efforts to achieve meaningful gains."

In enlarging its role in Philippine society, labor, the President said, could offer an alternative to the programs of the two leading political parties.

"A labor party, it is believed, would make for a more desirable pluralism in the body politic," the President said.

There are those, however, the President observed, “who would denigrate labor’s attempts at political undertakings.” These are the people, he said, who are wont to sneer and ask: “But is there a labor vote?”

This cynicism, he said, derives from the so-called “labor jinx,” with which organized labor has been tagged for perennially failing to elect a labor secretary aspiring for the senate.

“Whether the so-called labor jinx should be attributed to the aspirant of the labor movement is debatable however,” the President remarked.

President's Week in Review: August 20-26, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received the credentials of a new ambassador, to the Philippines, which along with his signing of House Bill No. 3520 (S. N. 555) authorizing the sweeping rehabilitation of the government railway firm were the only deviations from his usual routine of callers and desk work.

The President received the letters of credence of the new Greek ambassador, at formal ceremonies held in Malacañang. Attending the rites were Cabinet members headed by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo.

In the presence of a large group of Philippine National Railways officials, the President signed the bill authorizing the complete rehabilitation of the troubled railway. Present at the signing were a large delegation from the PNR headed by General Manager Nicanor Jimenez; Salvador Villa, chairman of the board; and Macario Roque, chairman of the Federation of PNR labor unions;

Senators Dominador Aytona and Magnolia W. Antonio, Reps. Roberto Sabido, Carlos Imperial and Amando Cope of Albay; Felix Fuentabella of Camarines Sur, Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte, Rafael Aquino of Sorsogon, Emilio Espinosa of Masbate, Andres Cosalan of Benguet, and Joaquin Ortega and Jose D. Aspiras of La Union.

The President also proclaimed several provincial candidates, including those for governor, mayor, mostly from the Bicol Region. Leading the NP candidates was Pepita Baltazar-Aquino, wife of the highways commissioner, and the NP official bet for governor of Albay.

The rest of the President's day was divided between callers, mainly delegations from the provinces who came to consult him on local, problems, and state matters requiring his attention. He worked later in the afternoon steadily at his desk.

He issued two proclamations, one declaring August 23, the "Cry of Pugad Lawin Day" in the cities of Caloocan and Quezon, and the other declaring August 30, a special public holiday in Mandaue City.

August 23, marks the 75th anniversary of the first Filipino uprising against Spain which led to the Philippine Revolution, while August 30 is the anniversary of the founding of the city of Mandaue.

August 21—

FOLLOWING receipt and confirmation of reports on the bombing of the Liberal Party rally in the evening at Plaza Miranda, President Marcos, among others, directed the National Bureau of Investigation, the Metrocom and the Armed Forces to use their special demolition squads and investigate the nature and sources of the explosives used in the bombing. He likewise summoned acting Mayor Felicisimo Cabigao of Manila to make a report on the incident.

In a statement he issued, the President said:

We condemn the bombing of the Liberal Party rally at Plaza Miranda tonight as an unmitigated crime against the entire Filipino nation and people.

It is a crime against every Filipino who believes in democracy as a way of life and who believes that democracy draws its vitality and strength from the spirit of peaceful political competition. This is certainly a day of shame for the Filipino people.

The government will spare no effort and will use all its resources in going after those responsible for this barbaric act and in seeking justice for those who suffered injuries and those who lost their lives.

I appeal to every person who has any information on this heinous crime or who has any clue to the identity of the persons guilty to cooperate with the government in tracking them down.

I have directed the NBI, the Metrocom and the Armed Forces to use their special demolition squads and investigate the nature and sources of the explosives used in the bombing.

I have also summoned the acting mayor of Manila to make a report on the incident.

This to me is a national tragedy which we must bear with sorrow and compassion for the victims. Mrs. Marcos joins me in expressing our deepest condolence to the victims.

Earlier in the morning, the President had a three-hour conference with both Muslim and Christian leaders of Cotabato on the peace and order condition in that province.

In accordance with the leaders' recommendations, the President ordered a shift from the use of the military to civilian authority in the peace and order campaign in Mindanao, particularly in Cotabato.

The governor, the congressman, the mayors and the barrio captains were reactivated to perform their duties and may call upon the military for support only when necessary.

Present at the conference were Sen. Leonardo Perez, Reps. Salipada Pendatun of North Cotabato and Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, former Rep. Blah Sinsuat, Mayor Michael Sinsuat of Upi, Maj. Gen. Romeo G. Espino, AFP vice chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, Deputy Chief of Staff for Home Defense Activities; and Col. Valentin S. Mayuga of intelligence, AFP; Lt. Col. Carlos Cajelo, former PC provincial commander and Delegate Roseller T. Lim of the Constitutional Convention.

The President devoted the whole afternoon to desk work, during which he submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nomination of Conrado Sanchez, Jr. as member of the Board of Investments.

At the time of his designation by the President to the BOI, Sanchez was vice president of Fil-Hispano Ceramics and Monja Estate, Inc.

August 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent most of his time working on official papers in his private study, and attending to other urgent state business.

Among other actions, the President ordered a moratorium on the campaign of the Nacionalista Party senatorial ticket following the Plaza Miranda bomb attack, until the two political parties have met and decided "what should be done under the circumstances."

The President said "democracy as a way of life, rather than the Liberal Party candidates, was the object of the bomb attack at Plaza Miranda, and it is now time for the two parties to meet and decide how this naked attack shall be met."

August 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS went on radio and television to announce the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in the government effort to deal with subversive elements in rebellion against constituted authority.

This capped the President's activities, which included the induction of David Consunji as acting secretary of public works and communications.

Present at the induction held at Malacañang at noon were Mrs. Freddie Almeda Consunji, the new secretary's wife; their sons Isidro, 22 and Victor, 21; and officers of the Philippine Contractors Association headed by Ricardo P. de Leon, association president.

Consunji, who succeeded former Secretary Manuel Syquiao, was once PCA president and chairman of the board of examiners for contractors.

Following the induction, the President conferred with Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal.

The President also had conferences with Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Acting Mayor Felicisimo Cabigao of Manila and Col. Gerardo Tamayo, chief of the Manila Police Department. These officials reported on the progress of the investigation to determine responsibility for the bombing of the Liberal Party rally at Plaza Miranda.

About 1 p.m. the President administered the oaths to officials of Roxas City who affiliated with the Nacionalista Party. The new affiliates were Mayor Mabini S. Altavas, Vice Mayor Miguel B. Albao, and Councilors Juana B. Javier, Socorro B. Alvarez, Esmeraldo Caldeo, Roberto Amesco and Felipe Ignacio. Also taking their oath with the group were Mrs. Altavas, wife of the city mayor, and Matilde S. Belo.

Then the President repaired to the Malacañang State Dining Hall where he announced to the nation, through radio and television, and in the presence of representatives of various news media, the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

In his statement, the President said that after making available to his office the best tempered and most judicious counsel, and after consultations with national leaders, he had as of midnight of Saturday, August 21, suspended the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, in accordance with the provisions of the Constitution.

He read Proclamation No. 889, dated August 21, 1971, suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus "for the persons presently detained, as well as all others who may be hereafter similarly detained for the crimes of insurrection or rebellion, and all other crimes and offenses committed by them in furtherance or on the occasion thereof, or incident thereto, or in connection therewith. (See pp. — for text of the President's statement)

PRESIDENT MARCOS focused on desk work, disposing of urgent state papers and going over reports from various government agencies.

In the evening, the President delivered another radio-television address from the Malacañang State Dining Hall, during which he made an impassioned plea to subversive elements to refrain from pushing through their plans of terrorizing the country.

The President said that although the armed forces are capable of meeting any eventuality, such violence would only mean the senseless loss of lives and property, and the dislocation of the economy.

The President showed with the aid of a chart how the subversive activities of lawless elements had progressively increased during the last five years, as he justified his suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

He said that the increase in the tempo of incidents, which started in 1968, "was due to the fact that in December 1968, Jose Maria Sison organized a new communist party and also due to the fact that some politicians brought the leaders of the New Communist Party together with Commander Dante and thus strengthened it."

The President said that from 81 incidents or engagements between AFP troops and subversives at the end of 1968, these rose to 173 at the end of 1969, and 244 at the end of 1970. The 1970 incidents exacted 126 casualties on government forces.

The President said however that as of June 1971 the casualties (killed and surrendered) inflicted by the armed forces totalled 1,294 or almost treble that of the casualties inflicted on government troops.

During the press interview that followed his address, the President, among others, exhibited an M-1 carbine equipped with telescopic sight, one of the firearms which, he said, was supplied by a leading member of the opposition party to Huk commanders.

On fears expressed by certain quarters on possible abuse in the exercise of the power under the writ suspension, the President said, among others, that no one would be apprehended unless the evaluation of evidence against any person has been thoroughly reviewed and his apprehension has been approved by the Secretary of National Defense, and that only the Armed Forces of the Philippines, the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) and the agents of the Department of Justice or the CIS may make arrests.

IN A CONFERENCE with justice and defense departments officials, President Marcos ordered the Department of National Defense and the Department of Justice to conduct a public hearing of charges concerning Sen. Benigno S. Aquino, Jr.'s alleged link with communist elements in the country.

This was one of the important conferences the President held with government officials, in the course of a working day which for the most part followed his regular schedule.

The President, however, gave specific instructions to Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos and the military not to arrest Sen. Aquino at this stage.

The President directed that the hearing be initiated as soon as possible allowing Sen. Aquino to confront and cross-examine witnesses and contest any evidence that may be presented.

Present at the meeting were Secretary Abad Santos, Undersecretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Solicitor-General Felix Antonio, Undersecretary of Justice Catalino Macaraig, Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; and Chief State Prosecutor Emilio Gancayco.

The President also received as many callers as his busy schedule could accommodate, including:

1. Ambassador Chitamy Amatayakul of Thailand, who called to say goodbye after completing his tour of duty here. He has been reassigned as Thai ambassador to Rome, and will leave on the first week of September for his new post.
2. Mayor Amelia Gordon of Olongapo City, who came to consult the President on city problems.
3. Rep. Romulo Lumaig of Ifugao, who accompanied the faculty of the School of Deaf-mutes led by Mrs. Florencio Castro, principal. Also with the group were a number of students and their parents, including Jose de la Cruz, president of the senior class. The group saw the President to request the release of the P100,000 earmarked for the school. The President immediately approved the request. De la Cruz thanked the President in sign language, adding that the students pray "the communists will not succeed" in imposing their will on the Filipinos.

In the afternoon, the President administered the oath of office to seven officials, including three judges of courts of first instance, a provincial treasurer, a city fiscal, a register of deeds and a municipal judge.

Inducted by the President in the presence of a number of senators and representatives, friends and close relatives of the inductees were:

1. Judge Florentine Villanueva, as judge of the court of first instance of Laguna, with station at Siniloan.
2. Judge Ramon D. Jabson, as judge of the court of first instance of Rizal, with station at Pasig.
3. Judge Alberto Gampona, as judge of the court of first instance of Cagayan and Batanes, with station at Tuao.
4. Dioscoro Soberano as provincial treasurer of Nueva Vizcaya.
5. Atty. Bienvenido Salamanca as assistant city fiscal of Manila.
6. Josue Beimudez as register of deeds of the sub-province of Quirino, Nueva Vizcaya.
7. Judge Eugenio Labitoria, as municipal judge of Bamjbang, Nueva Vizcaya.

August 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presided over the meeting of the National Security Council, held at Camp Aguinaldo, to assess the internal security situation following the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus. The meeting which lasted from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., was also attended by chosen representatives of the Constitutional Convention.

Apart from a report of an attack by communist elements on two military helicopters in Isabela in the morning, no new major insurgent action was reported to the council.

During the meeting, the President answered questions on the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus from the convention delegates, notably from the chairman of the committee on political and civil rights of the convention.

In this question and answer period, the President assured the delegates that the suspension of the privilege of the writ was a matter of necessity rather than of convenience; that it was a choice between national security and the safety of the population on one hand, and his personal popularity on the other: that the suspension would last as long as necessary, but not a minute longer.

The President also assured the delegates that no indiscriminate or mass arrests would be made under the suspension order; that arrests would be made only by authorized national police agencies and only after a long, careful and competent process involving an exhaustive evaluation of evidence by three impartial panels. The President emphasized that no arrest would be made under the suspension order without having gone through this process, and without having been finally approved in writing by the Secretary of National Defense.

In order to assure the public that arrests under the suspension order are limited to the crimes of rebellion, insurrection, and other crimes in furtherance or on the occasion thereof or incident thereto, or in connection therewith, the President directed the military to make public the names of persons detained under the suspension order.

At the same time, the President issued Executive Order No. 333 creating a Presidential Administrative Assistance Committee, which would handle complaints arising from the suspension order.

Named to compose the committee were Justice Undersecretary Catalino Macaraig, Jr., as chairman, and Defense Undersecretary Efren Plana, and Romaldo B. Zaniara of the Executive Secretary's Office, as members.

Present at the NSC meeting were: Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso and Rep. Constantino Navarro; Sen. Leonardo Perez; Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Vicente Abad

Santos of Justice, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance and Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad;

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Undersecretaries of National Defense Manuel Q. Salientes and Efren I. Plana, Solicitor General Felix Antonio, Chief State Prosecutor Emilio Gancayco, Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Romeo Espino, AFP vice chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, and the following delegates to the Constitutional Convention:

Delegates Edmundo Cea, Gregorio Purugganan, Leocadio ignacio, Reynaldo Villar, Carlos Valdez, A. Pacificador, Cirilo R. Montejo, Mangu-tawan B. Guzo, Fidel Purisima, Antonio Olmedo, Jesus T. Garcia, Vicente dela Cerna, Leonardo Syguion-Reyna, Romuldo Mendiola, Magtanggol Gunigundo, and Alfredo Abueg.

In another move in connection with the writ suspension order, the President later in the afternoon ordered that public hearings be conducted also on charges against all other persons detained in connection with insurrection or rebellion.

While attending to other state business, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of live foreign affairs department officers to Chiefs of Mission Class III. Nominated were Jose S Estrada, Julia L. Palarca, Rolando A. Garcia, Manuel A. Viray and Ireneo Cornista.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual received numerous callers, while also doing his regular stint at his office desk and holding conferences on various matters with public officials.

Among those who called early in the morning at Malacañang was Msgr. Carmine Rocco, papal nuncio here. He called to say goodbye as he prepared for a two-month vacation.

Also making a farewell call was Ryoichi Sasagawa, Japanese Philantropist, who left at 2 p.m. for Tokyo shortly after he saw the President. Sasagawa offered to donate Y60 million worth of medical equipment to the Philippines, and also expressed his desire to help in the anti-communist campaign.

The President asked Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, chairman of the Medical Care Commission, to prepare a list of medical equipment needed by medicare to form-the basis of the donation.

At mid-morning, the President conferred with Gov. Delfin N. Montano of Cavite and Lino Bocalan, an aspirant for the governorship of that province. The meeting was held to avert violence in the election in the province. Another meeting was set to resolve the issue.

A large group of customs collectors, led by Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina, next saw the President to pay their respects following the close of the group's conference.

Others callers through the day included:

1. Rep. Antonio M. Diaz of Zambales and Mayor Amelia Gordon of Olongapo City, who consulted the President on local problems.
2. Rep. Herminio Teves of Negros Oriental, who accompanied officials of two cooperatives formed by displaced workers in Bais.

In connection with the call, the President issued Administrative Order No. 298, which constituted a committee to study the problem of excess workers in sugar plantations, with an eye to resettling and rehabilitating them. The President named the secretary of labor as chairman of the committee, with the Land Authority governor as vice chairman.

Named members of the committee were a representative of the Agricultural Credit Administration, the executive, director of the Cottage Industries Development Enterprises, the director general of the Manpower and Youth Council, the PNB president, the director of the Bureau of Soils, and the administrator of the PHILSUGIN.

The cooperatives are the La Paz Hangyad Workers Cooperative (LAPAHAWA) headed by Baldomero Suligan, and consisting of 84 families; and the Bato-Naronbon Marketing Association (BANAMA) headed by Nerio Millas, and consisting of 215 families.

3. A delegation from Ilocos Norte led by Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr., Gov. Elizabeth M. Keon and former Gov. Jose Evangelista. The President played host at lunch to the delegation.

During the day, the President also inducted Ulpiano Ramas, a lawyer, as assistant provincial fiscal of Zamboanga del Sur. Witnessing the induction was Rep. Vicente Cerilles of that province.

In the evening, the President swore in two new flag officers in the Armed Forces of the Philippines, namely, Col. Felino M. Mallari and Capt. Ernesto R. Ogbinar, as Brig. General and Commodore in the AFP, respectively.

August 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor and speaker at the induction of officers of Lions International, District 301-C, held at noon at the Malacañang Maharlika Hall.

In his extemporaneous speech, the President expressed his determination to stamp out the communist movement in the country.

Tracing the history of communism in the country, the President said that communism was never really arrested completely since it became active in 1946. It may have subsided for some time but it was never really stopped, he said.

“I intend to dismantle the communist apparatus while it can still be dismantled in this country,” the President declared. “I have decided that now is the time and I assume full responsibility for this decision. The Constitution definitely and specifically places upon the shoulder of the President the responsibility for such a decision and I assumed it. No One else is responsible,” the President added.

In an open forum which followed his speech, the President took occasion to answer some of the charges being aired by administration critics, particularly in connection with the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

The President debunked claims that the suspension of the writ was intended to stifle criticisms against the administration. He said that the same atmosphere of criticism pervades, through the radio, television and the newspapers. He stated that although these criticisms are sometimes malicious and libelous, dissent will be allowed to continue provided they are not connected with rebellion or insurrection.

The President worked on official papers in the afternoon, in the process signing, among others, an executive order creating the Coconut Coordinating Council, which will supervise, coordinate and evaluate the implementation of the coconut self-sufficiency program of the government.

He also submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 22 government officials and others to various posts in the government.

In the evening, the President received Prime Minister Sirik Matak of Cambodia, who called at Malacañang to pay his respects. The Prime Minister arrived in Manila in the afternoon for an overnight stopover enroute back to Cambodia from a state visit to the United States.

With Prime Minister Matak in calling on the President were Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Joun Wick and Brig. Gen. Sak Sutsakan, deputy chief of staff of Cambodia.

August 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the nation in commemorating National Heroes Day, even as he motored to the “Libingan ng mga Bayani” in Fort Bonifacio in the morning to officiate at the wreath-laying ceremonies.

In his brief remarks, the President vowed that the Filipino people will not waiver in their determination to fight off the new danger facing their country.

Addressing the Unknown Soldier, the President said: “As your Republic once again faces this new danger, a test of courage confronts the Filipino people. We have come to pledge anew, as we pledged in the past together, that we shall wage war against this new despotism. We shall, like you, not hesitate, we shall not waiver, we shall not compromise, we shall not surrender, and if the price for the safety and the survival of this your Republic, is the same price you paid, we shall pay it and gladly.”

Among those present at the rites were Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Undersecretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Romeo C. Espino, AFP vice chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Rafael M. Iletto, PA Commander, Commodore Dioscoro Papa, PN flag-officer-in-command; and Brig. Gen. Jesus Singson, PAF commander.

Upon returning to Malacañang later in the morning, the President worked on state papers, in the course of which he addressed a memorandum to the Philippine Virginia Tobacco Administration ordering the immediate preparation of an up-to-date register of farmers and producers of fluecured Virginia tobacco to help insure closer government supervision in the trading of the commodity.

The President also issued an executive order designating the Bureau, of Customs as the certifying agencies of the government authorized to issue certificates of origin of products exported under the UNCTAD Generalized Scheme of Preferences (GSP).

The President said that preference-giving developed countries had indicated their willingness to implement their respective schemes of general preferences and it would be beneficial for the Philippines to participate and take advantage of the trade opportunities under these schemes.

IN VIEW of doubts expressed as to the scope of the proclamation (No. 889) suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and to further limit any possibility of abuse in the implementation of said proclamation, President Marcos amended his proclamation of Saturday, August 21.

In another move, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., on authority of the President, issued Memorandum Circular No. 500, urging all concerned to encourage aggrieved citizens to wire complaints and grievances to the Presidential Administrative Assistance Committee.

According to the Circular, any citizen who has any grievance to report in connection with the implementation of the proclamation suspending the writ privilege may send his complaint by telegram, through the Bureau of Telecommunications, to the PAAC at the Department of Justice building. The telecom bureau would transmit the complaint wire at a nominal charge of ten centavos per 50 words.

Secretary Melchor also instructed the Director of Telecommunications to accommodate any and all citizens who may wish to avail of the telecom bureau facilities in sending their complaints, should there be any abuse in the implementation of the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus.

The President was in his private study most of the day disposing of piles of state papers and going over reports from various government agencies.

August 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had an interesting morning, as he received a report on the downtrend in rice prices, the start of the production of inexpensive local corned beef, and the smooth handling of the arrests in connection with the roundup of subversives.

Among the first to see the President was a group composed of Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and Undersecretary Jose D. Drilon, Jr., concurrent RCA chairman, and a number of congressmen.

Tanco briefed the President on the current project to tin corned beef, under the Bonanza label, a joint undertaking of the department and of the Delta Food Co. The corned beef would be sold at prices almost three times lower than the imported variety.

Next to sit down with the President was the three-man Presidential Administrative Assistance Committee, which reported on the response so far to the government's invitation to citizens to report any abuse in connection with arrests made under the present emergency, with the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus temporarily suspended.

The committee, chaired by Undersecretary of Justice Catalino Macaraig and with Undersecretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana and Malacañang Assistant Ronaldo Zamora as members, reported that so far only one complaint had been received. Plana said that he would take action on the complaint.

The President also inducted in the morning the officers of the Philippine Chamber of Insurance and Surety. Inducted were Prima Cruz, president; Greg Derigo, first vice president; Cecilio Caponpon, secretary; Felipe Castro, treasurer; Emeterio Roa, Jr., auditor; Reynaldo de Dios, PRO; and Marciano Agana, Jr., Jose Abeleda, Romeo Cruz, and Eduardo Echauz, directors.

In the afternoon, the President received a number of visitors, most of them officials who came to consult the President on various problems. Most of the time, he concentrated on his desk work.

He directed the Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources to institute certain basic changes in the policies and procedures of the department, and several bureaus under it, such as to ensure optimum conservation and utilization of the country's natural resources.

The President's action was based on the report of the Performance Audit Team which surveyed the DANR two months ago.

Among the basic changes recommended by the audit team were the amendment of the Public Land Act and the Mining Act; the computerization of the land titling and patenting processes; and an experiment on aerial seeding for massing reforestation.

September 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received pledges of unqualified support in his fight against communism from some 2,000 provincial, city and municipal officials from all over Luzon, who presented him a resolution endorsing the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

The endorsement came as a complete surprise to the President who called the meeting for another purpose. Concerned that most of the on-going public works and rural improvement projects would not be completed before the 45-day ban in connection with the elections takes effect, the President invited the local executives to Malacañang to thresh out problems and bottlenecks.

The President also took occasion to discuss with the local executives the prohibitions embodied in the new Election Code which were not in the old Code.

The President enjoined his fellow Nacionalistas to "adhere openly to the fact of radical reform in our society; that our society needs new movement, new causes, new projects, one of the basic projects of which is the overhaul of the electoral system to remove the primacy of the wealthy and the candidates of the wealthy."

During the day, the President issued an executive order creating a Medical Assistance Program Task Force with the main objective of extending "medical care to all residents in an evolutionary way within our economic means and capability as a nation."

In establishing the “Task Force,” the President underscored the need to make available the benefits of medical science to all the people, especially those in the remote and isolated areas of the country.

In another order, the President directed the various agencies of the government concerned with the country’s export and import activities to fully adhere to the guidelines on the shipment of import and export samples prescribed by the National Export Coordinating Center (NECC).

The President stressed the need for strict adherence to the guidelines “to stop the violation of Customs and Central Bank rules and regulations” governing exports and imports.

September 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had several important conferences, which added to the brisk pace of his activities. He also continued to receive scheduled callers.

Meeting with a delegation of Knights of Rizal, the President ratified the deed of conveyance of a 1,200 square meter lot on Bonifacio Drive, Manila, with the Knights of Rizal, recipients. The deed was signed by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. on behalf of the government and Supreme Court Justice Claudio Teehankee, supreme commander of the Knights of Rizal.

Among those present at the signing were Councilor Sofronio T. Veloso of San Juan, Rizal, Knight of Rizal supreme pursuivant; Dr. Manuel Lim, Justice Jose Paredes, Adolfo Santos, Santiago de la Cruz, Esteban de Ocampo, and other officials and members of the Knights of Rizal.

In expressing gratitude and appreciation on behalf of the group, Justice Teehankee assured the President that the land would be utilized to perpetuate the ideals and objectives of the national hero, pointing out that the solutions to the many problems facing the nation may be found in Dr. Rizal’s teachings and ideals and his spirit of sacrifice.

The President expressed the hope that the occasion would mark the beginning of a partnership between the public and private sectors for the perpetuation of the ideals of the national hero.

The President next sat down for a closed door conference with Sen. Gerardo Roxas and Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal. Sen. Roxas was wheeled to the President’s study by his son, Manuel A. Roxas II.

The President asked the opposition Liberal Party to take a common stand with the ruling Nacionalista Party in waging war against insurgent communist elements in the country and all other enemies of the state.

The President also:

1. Asked that the two major political parties adopt common efforts to implement the new electoral reform code limiting expenditures in the elections.
2. Proposed that lines of communications be kept open between him and the LP president at all times, in order to ensure continued, maximum consultation between the two leaders and their respective parties.
3. Offered to take the LP president and other select opposition leaders into the confidence of the President on the nature of intelligence fund expenditures. (The law provides for the utmost secrecy in the disposition of intelligence funds.)
4. Briefed the LP president on the latest developments in the investigation of the August 21st Plaza Miranda bombing incident, with the understanding that such information be for the moment classified as highly confidential in nature, and not for publication or dissemination.

After this meeting, the President signed the Election Code of 1971, passed by Congress during the special session.

The new law, which will govern the election of all public officials except those of the barrios, and plebiscites, broadened the powers of the Commission on Elections.

Present at the signing were Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senators Gerardo Roxas and Lorenzo Teves, Reps. Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Jose Alberto of Catanduanes, Fermin Z. Caram, Jr. of Iloilo, AH Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines del Norte and Godofredo M. Tan of Quezon.

His other conference was with Quezon City officials, on local problems. Present were Mayor Norberto Amoranto and Vice Mayor Ismael Mathay, Councilors Tino Lapuz, Rafael Mison, Jr., Jesus Perlas, Jr., Fred Montilla, Hermogenes Caluag, Eddie Paredes and Romulo Lucasan; and Noli Rodriguez.

President's Week in Review: September 3-9, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred in the afternoon with the Christian and Muslim leaders of Lanao del Sur on the peace and order situation in the province.

During the conference, the President ordered Gov. Arsenio Quibranza to stay put in the province in order to be able to discharge his primary responsibility of maintaining peace and order in his province and to allay the fears of the people who are evacuating. The President also directed Quibranza to gather all the mayors and inform them of their responsibility for the maintenance of peace and order in their respective municipalities.

The President said he would send a task force to disarm and apprehend all unauthorized persons carrying firearms in the province.

After hearing the charges and counter-charges hurled by Rep. Ali Dimaporo and Gov. Quibranza against each other's men, the President observed that it was similar to the case of South Cotabato.

"I am going to organize a task force and this task force will go after anybody, whether Nacionalista or Liberal, Christian or Muslim, and anybody who disturbs the peace and order will be apprehended and prosecuted," the President said.

The President scheduled a conference in Baroy, Lanao del Norte with all local officials, and civic and religious leaders of the province, and asked Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile to preside on his behalf.

Present at the conference, which lasted for almost two hours, were Defense Undersecretary Efren I. Plana, Vice Governor Malamit Umpa, Board Members V. Janial, Sheik Ampang and M. Bartolome; Delegate to the Constitutional Convention Francisco Abalos, and Mayors J. Perez of Tubod, S. Fernandez of Baroy, N. Solimbangon of Lala, P. Tawantawan of Salvador, M. Lobe of Kapatagan, J. Umpa of Sugod, L. Mutia of Tangcal and others.

Earlier in the day, the President received scheduled callers, including the participants in the seminar on modern land distribution and titling, who called at Malacañang in connection with the 70th anniversary of the Bureau of Lands.

In his remarks, the President said that "the government is at present undertaking radical and massive land distribution program," which he described as "the only kind of positive and constructive revolution that is legitimate in the country."

The group was accompanied to the President by Lands Director Vicente A. Valdellon.

The President then inducted into office four new brigadier generals and one commodore in the Armed Forces of the Philippines, in the presence of members of Congress led by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, military top brass headed by General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff, and friends and close relatives of the inductees.

Sworn in were Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion, commander of Task Force Pagkakaisa and deputy commander of the 4th PC Zone; Brig. Gen. Constante Ma. Cruz, commandant of the Command and General Staff College, AFP; Brig. Gen. Jose G. Syjuco, president of the National Defense College, AFP; Brig. Gen. Emilio E. Alcoseba, commanding general of the Third Army Brigade, Camp Lapu-Lapu; and Commodore Romulo M. Espeldon, vice commander of the Philippine Navy.

PRESIDENT MARCOS received callers only in the morning, devoting the whole afternoon and early evening to paper work.

Among those who met with the President were officials of Quezon City led by Mayor Norberto Amoranto and Vice Mayor Ismael Mathay.

The President also administered the oath of allegiance to the Filipino flag to Rev. Fr. James P. Moran, the first foreign-born Jesuit to be granted Filipino citizenship.

Fr. Moran was granted Filipino citizenship by special act of Congress (House Bill No. 3692) on August 11, which was finally approved by the President on September 2.

In renouncing his American citizenship and adopting the Filipino citizenship, Fr. Moran said it was to him “the crowning gift of the work of a lifetime,” and the “greatest gift within the beneficence of the Filipino people to give.”

Already 73 years old and infirm, Fr. Moran volunteered for work in the Philippines while only about 23 years old, and even after his return to the United States to be ordained, he once more volunteered to work in the Philippines which was then still a colony of the United States.

As a priest, Fr. Moran devoted 42 years of service as a professor of Latin and Theology, librarian, writer and retreat master and spiritual director of the Catholic community.

Among those present at the oath-taking ceremony held at the Malacañang Reception Hall were the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Cojuangco, Francisco Ortigas, Jr., Macario Palanca, and representatives of the Assumption, Holy Spirit, St. Theresa, St. Paul and Carmelite convents.

September 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was closeted in his private study most of the morning and afternoon working on official papers and going over the final draft of his book entitled “Today’s Revolution: Democracy.”

At about 3 p.m., he disengaged from his paper work to receive the crew members of the London-Manila Pilipino Express, who called at Malacañang following the successful completion of their trip.

The President told the 16-man crew that they had not only promoted tourist trade but had successfully demonstrated the road-worthiness of Philippine-assembly vehicles.

The Express, composed of two teams, the Silangan (American) and Kanluran (Asian), each team with a crew of eight, used for the trip the typical jeep and the sakbayan assembled by local firms.

The crew members who called on the President were Loy Martinez captain; Freddie Masigan, co-captain; Boots Viola, Tom Boria Pilo Garcia, Gus Villanueva, and Apolinario Bagamaspad of the Silangan Team; and Romy Pasola, captain; Ramon Achero, co-captain; Willie Ingles, Benrus Pascual, Romy Riel, Enrique Gonzales, Willie Anla, and Tirso Aguilar of the Kanluran Team.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by D. Guevara, Michael Poliakoff, local manager of Air France, one of the sponsors; and Salvador Peña, executive director of the Philippine Travel and Tourist Association.

September 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued to concentrate on desk work, with his schedule of callers limited only to three out-going foreign ambassadors, whom he presented with the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Datu, at midmorning.

Decorated were Ambassadors Chintamye Amatayakul of Thailand, Rhurum Khan Panni of Pakistan, and Haji Daacob Bin Mohamed of Singapore.

The foreign envoys were cited for their “exceptionally meritorious service” in the field of international relations, and their contribution to the success of the 4th Foreign Ministerial Meeting of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and the 6th Ministerial Conference of the Association of Southeast Asia and Pacific Council (ASPAC). The envoys were prime movers in the standing committees of the two conferences held in Manila.

The three ambassadors expressed their profound thanks and gratitude for the cordiality, understanding and warm friendship of the Filipino people which they experienced during their tour of duty in the country, both as officials and as private persons.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a tight schedule which included a meeting with public works engineers, a conference with constabulary top brass, and meetings with a number of callers, led by UN Adviser Torsten Eriksson.

Among the President’s activities today were:

1. Courtesy call: Torsten Eriksson, inter-regional adviser, UN Social Defense Research Institute, who was accompanied by Secretary of Social Welfare Estefania Aldaba-Lim. Eriksson has been in the Philippines for a week looking into the penal system and conducting seminars on penology.

2. Induction of officers:

- a) Officers of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, led by Miguel Arambulo, Jr., president; Justiano Montano, Jr., Wigberto Clavecilla, Eduardo Echauz, Ricardo Nicolas, Eduardo Escobar, Jr., and Ramon Pedrosa, vice presidents; Benito F. Madalla, secretary-treasurer; R. de la Cuesta, assistant secretary-treasurer; Directors Teodoro Kalaw, Jr., Esteban Cabanos, Gabriel Ambrosio, Cristino Concepcion, Buenaventura Loberiza, Jose R. L. Orosa, Francisco J. Nicolas, Benjamin Guingona.

- b) Officers of-the Radio-TV Federation of the Philippines led by P. Talastas, president, and Juan Basa, vice president.

- c) Officers of the Reserve Officers Legion of the Philippines: Lt. Col. Antonio M. Mendoza, president; Lt. Col. Henry M. Cuyong, executive vice president; 1st Lt. Juan P. Bañaga, national secretary; Col. Vicente Malapitan, treasurer; Lt. Col. Efigenio Bautista, Capt. Felix C. Codilla and Maj. Godofredo L. Kaamiño, vice presidents; and the following directors—Capt. Juan Cesar D. Adapon, Maj. Felimon L. Claudio, Lt. Col. Alfredo P. Quiazon, Capt. Carlos B. Beñegas, Maj. Sabas Edades, Lt. (SG.) Arturo T. Velasco and 1st Lt. Ernesto de las Armas.

The President then received the members of the District and City Engineers League, who called in connection with the group’s annual convention.

The President exhorted the engineers to maintain their professionalism and discipline during the elections and keep away from partisan activities.

He also called on the group to carry on the program of development as mapped out by the administration.

As new problems come up, he said, it would be remembered that old program exists and remains valid, particularly in the infrastructure program.

“We have a program,” the President said, “which is correct and true, and historically appreciated, and therefore we must continue with it.”

This program, he said, must be carried on even after he ceases to be President, adding that despite controversy and criticism, the program is basic to the development of the nation.

Later in the morning, the President conferred with Brig. (Jens. Eduardo M. Garcia and Domingo Tutaan, PC chief and 4th PC Zone commander, respectively, who reported on the peace and order condition in Davao del Norte, and on the conference with local officials and civic and religious leaders in the town of Baroy. A big delegation of provincial, city and municipal officials of Agusan del Norte and Butuan City also called on the President to express their endorsement of his suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

“In these times when lawless elements are poised to overthrow the duly constituted authority, it is the wisest course of action to effectively arrest their evil activities for the security of the country and the people,” the Agusan and Butuan local officials said in a joint letter they presented to the President.

Among the signatories to the joint letter were Mayor Silvestre M. Osin of Butuan City, Board Member Vicente C. Rosales of Agusan del Norte, and Mayors Felixberto C. Dagoni of Cabadbaran, Alex C. Luison of Kitcharao, Cayetano E. Amoroso of Buenavista, David Q. Sandalo of Tubay, and Eufonio V. Rosales of Las Nieves.

September 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS constituted the board of trustees of the newly-created Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System (MWSS).

Designated to compose the board were Felimon Zablan, who would also act as acting chairman; Brig. Gen. Sergio Isada (ret.), as acting vice chairman; Antonio Locsin and Silvestre Payoyo, acting members.

Brig. Gen. Isada was also named general manager of the new water works agency.

Under the law creating it, the MWSS would have supervision and control only of the water systems of Manila, Pasay, Quezon and Caloocan cities, and the towns of Antipolo, Cainta, Las Piñas, Makati, Malabon, Mandaluyong, Marikina, Montalban, Navotas, Parañaque, Pasig, Pateros, San Juan, San Mateo, Taguig, and Taytay in Rizal, and Valenzuela, Bulacan.

All other waterworks and sewerage systems then under the NWSA would be transferred to their respective provinces, cities or municipalities, while the Wells and Springs Department of the abolished entity would be absorbed by the Bureau of Public Works.

Earlier in the day, the President received Undersecretary of Agriculture Jose D. Drilon, Jr., concurrent RCA chief, who reported on the negotiations for the purchase of 10,000 metric tons (179,000 cavares) of Japanese rice.

The RCA chairman and general manager, who arrived from Tokyo, informed the President that he had already signed the agreement for the purchase of Japanese rice on a deferred payment plan at $137 (47,320 yen) per ton F.O.B. stowed.

In the afternoon, the President administered the oath to Undersecretary Adrian E. Cristobal as acting secretary of labor.

Following his induction, the President designated Secretary Cristobal as chief of the Philippine delegation to the Third Asian Labor Ministers' Conference to be held in Seoul from September 27 to October 2.

Designated members of the delegation were Ambassador Benjamin T. Tirona, Philippine envoy to the Republic of Korea; Jaime Ranases of the Office of Manpower and Development; and Crescencio M. Siddayao, chief, ILO Affairs Secretariat of the Department of Labor, with the following as alternate delegates:

Jose J. Hernandez, general secretary of the Philippine Trade Unions Council; Democrito Mendoza, president of the Philippine Confederation of Trade Unions; Juan C. Tan, president of the Federation of Free Workers; Andres Dinglasan of the Pinagbuklod na Manggagawang Filipino; and Crispin C. Uy, president of the Philippine Council of Management.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos and some government officials, boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo in the morning for Limay, Bataan for the commissioning of the Bataan Thermal Plant of the National Power Corporation.

However, the commissioning ceremonies, which were supposed to be held at the BTP compound, had to be scrapped when the RPS Ang Pangulo was delayed and a heavy downpour disrupted preparations made in the compound. The ceremonies were held instead on board the presidential yacht,, which docked at the ESSO pier at 12:30 p.m.

While the ship was maneuvering, a huge crowd which had gathered at the wharf waved at the President and the First Lady, who were later joined by daughters Imee and Irene, and sang happy birthday songs.

The chiefs of diplomatic missions, members of the Cabinet, NPC officials and employees and other officials led by Gov. and Mrs. Guillermo Arcenas Rep Pablo Roman, Mayor and Mrs. F. Roxas Chairman and Mrs Manuel Barretto and General Manager and Mrs. Ramon Ravanzo boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo for the commissioning ceremonies.

In his brief speech, the President said the completion of the thermal plant proved that while the Philippines has succeeded in insuring its security, it was also moving forward in social and economic development. He said that the failure of attempts at subversion in the country was not So much to the strength of the military as it is to the fundamental acceptance by the program of development he enunciated in 1965. The President also announced:

1. The release of f 12 million for the completion of the infrastructure projects in the Foreign Trade Zone in Mariveles;
2. The release of funds for the completion of the Bataan-Manila highway; and
3. The conduct of studies on the proposed coastal road linking Manila with the Foreign Trade Zone in Mariveles and the reclamation of portions of Manila Bay for the purpose.

Following his speech, the President signed into law a bill amending the charter of the National Power Corporation by increasing the ceiling of its borrowings to $200 million, to give new life and strength to the NPC.

The President then sailed back for Manila, arriving in Malacañang at past 4 p.m.

After a brief rest, the President buckled down to paper work till early evening.

President's Week in Review: September 10-15, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law Senate Bill No. 478 (H. No. 3453), providing omnibus amendments to the Agricultural Land Reform Code (R.A. 3844); and Senate Bill No. 633 (H. No. 3463), providing for an Agrarian Land Reform Special Fund.

The signing was done at the Malacañang grounds in the presence of a big group of farmers, including delegations from the Agricultural Cooperative League of the Philippines (ACLP) and the Federation of Free Farmers led by its president, Jeremias Montemayor.

Also present were the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, senators, congressmen, provincial governors, and city and municipal mayors from the Visayas and Mindanao.

In his brief remarks during the ceremony, the President said that the amendments to the Land Reform Code was made in response to the insistent clamor of the nation for a more dynamic land program.

He said that the new laws represent the accumulated experience in the implementation of the Code since its enactment in 1963.

Earlier in the morning, the President met with some 2,500 provincial, city and municipal mayors and other officials from the Visayas and Mindanao, at the Malacañang Maharlika Hall.

The President asked the local officials to demonstrate their support for the objectives of the Nacionalista Party in the November elections, such that the "irrevocable fight against communism" would become a deep commitment of the people.

The President was swamped with resolutions adopted by provincial boards and municipal councils pledging support to the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

Upon the suggestion of the President, the local officials also adopted unanimously a resolution pledging to comply with the provisions of the Electoral Reform Bill (now R.A. 6388) which, the President said, is part of the Nacionalista Party reform program.

Another group, the United Disabled Veterans Association of the Philippines, presented the President with a resolution endorsing the suspension of the writ privilege.

In their resolution, the disabled veterans led by Ben S. Florentino, president, said that they "have complete faith and trust in His Excellency, President Marcos, and believe that His Excellency's decision to suspend the privilege was the result of a dispassionate and careful examination of intelligence documents, facts and evidence which he alone was in a position to assess."

On the eve of his birthday, the President granted executive clemency to 191 prisoners, upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Of the prisoners extended executive clemency, five were granted absolute pardon, five special absolute pardon, on[^] conditional pardon, with voluntary deportation, 128 conditional pardon with parole conditions, and 5.7 commutation of sentence.

September 11—

THOUSANDS of well-wishers converged at Malacañang as President Marcos marked his 54th birth anniversary. Unlike in previous years, no previous announcements were made for the day as the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, had expressed their intention to observe the day quietly with a few close relatives and friends.

In deference to the wishes of the First Couple, the armed forces had dispensed with the traditional loyalty parade at Camp Aguinaldo on the eve of the birth anniversary of their commander-in-chief.

However, as early as 8 a.m., the Palace grounds started swarming with people who sought audience with the First Couple to greet the President on his natal day.

The President started the day working on urgent state papers in his private study.

At about 11:30 a.m., the First Couple emerged from the study, and was promptly swallowed by the big crowd of admirers which jam-packed the spacious reception hall. Among the well-wishers was Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, the President's mother. The President and the First Lady cheerfully acknowledged the greetings as they inched their way to the ceremonial hall where Mass was said.

The "Mass of the Holy Spirit with Special Thanksgiving" was said by Fr. James Donelan, S.J., assisted by Fr. Juan Bautista, chaplain of the Presidential Guard Battalion, and the Sto. Domingo Boys Choir.

Following the Mass, the President and the First Lady repaired to the Heroes Hall downstairs where lunch was served for their guests.

The affair ended at 3 p.m. after a musical program where members of the Cabinet and the Armed Forces and their ladies took turns in presenting surprise numbers to the delight of the First Couple and their guests. Other participants in the program included members of the Bayanihan Dance Troupe and a choral group of cadets from the Philippine Military Academy who gave snappy renditions of Happy Birthday songs.

During the day, the President received hundred of wires from chiefs of state from all over the world, national and local officials, civic and religious organizations, and prominent and plain citizens felicitating him on his birthday.

Later in the afternoon, the President addressed a letter to Acting Mayor Jose Luciano of Makati (Rizal), advising him that he had lost all rights to act as mayor upon the filing of his certificate of candidacy for the position of mayor of the town.

The President told Luciano that he was considered resigned from office as councilor upon the filing of his certificate of candidacy and, having ceased as such, had lost all his rights to act as mayor.

The President cited Section 24 of the Electoral Reform Code of 1971 (R.A. 6388), which provides that "any elective provincial, sub-provincial, sub-provincial, city, municipal, or municipal district officer running for an office other than the one which he is holding in a permanent capacity shall be considered ipso-facto resigned from his office from the moment of the filing of his certificate of candidacy."

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual utilized some of his Sunday waking hours disposing of urgent state papers and acting on other state business.

Official papers acted upon included those on the grant of executive clemency to 124 more prisoners, on recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole. This second batch of pardoned prisoners brought to 315 the total number of prisoners given the traditional executive clemency in connection with the observance of the President's birth anniversary.

September 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law House Bill No. 2306 separating the subprovince of Quirino from Nueva Vizcaya and constituting it into a regular province.

The signing was witnessed by a delegation of barrio captains and Mayors at Malacañang headed by Sen. Leonardo B. Perez, Rep. Benjamin B. Perez, author of the measure, and Mayor Dionisio A. Sarandi of Maddela, Nueva Vizcaya, official NP candidate for governor of the proposed province.

The President continued receiving provincial delegations who reported on the progress of various improvement projects in their respective localities.

The delegations included those from Isabela headed by Gov. Samuel F. Reyes and Rep. Rodolfo Albano, Surigao del Norte led by Rep. Constantino Navarro, Zamboanga del Sur led by Rep. Vicente Cerilles, and Binangonan, Rizal headed by Vice Mayor Antonio Antiporda.

September 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a comparatively quiet day, enabling him to concentrate more on state matters and paper work.

Of the few visitors, among the most prominent were Ambassador Hadji Bin Mohamed of Singapore and his wife, who called to say goodbye to the President before enplaning for Singapore for reassignment following the completion of his tour of duty here.

Belated birthday best wishes continued to reach the President, including the receipt of a plaque expressing birthday felicitations from the municipal and barrio officials of Batac, Ilocos Norte.

The President received a few other visitors, mostly officials who came to consult him on local matters. Most of the time, he worked at his desk with his aides. He signed, among others, the appointment of Prof. Estelito P. Mendoza as ad interim undersecretary of justice.

Mendoza filled the post vacated by former Undersecretary Ramon Fernandez, who had been appointed associate justice of the Court of Appeals.

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred in the evening with the heads of the investigating agencies of the government working on the Plaza Miranda bombing incident.

In reporting on the progress of the investigation, the chiefs of the investigating agencies assured the President and the general public that they were doing everything within their capacities and capabilities to solve the case, contrary to speculations that they had failed and were not doing anything about it.

Among those who met with the President were NBI Director Jolly Bugarin, Brig. Gen. Gerardo Tamayo, MPD chief; Col. Prospero Olivas, CIS chief; and Col. Enrique Morales, MPD Detective Bureau chief.

The President had other conferences earlier in the day, mostly with local executives on local development projects.

He also received the officers of two organizations—the Lawyers League for Better Philippines led by Victor G. Nituda, and the District and City Engineers League (DACL) led by Augusto F. Perez who presented resolutions reiterating their support of the President's decision suspending the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

The President, however, vowed not to curtail freedom of speech but to let all speak out their minds so that the democratic dialogue would continue since “the suspension of the privilege of the writ does not alter the democratic atmosphere but only the relations between the rebels and traitors, who are few and far between, and the great majority who believe in democracy and freedom.” In accepting the resolutions, the President said “these strengthen my will and resolve that, over and above anything, we must continue to take all steps necessary to protect our democratic way of life.”

Earlier, the President inducted into office the officers of the DACL, in the presence of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, Senators Rene Espina, Lorenzo Teves and Mamintal Tamano, and Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino.

Inducted by the President were Augusto F. Perez, president; Felino C. Manalo and Pacifico T. Aranas, vice presidents; Fernando C. Montes, secretary; Laureano S. Mendiola, treasurer; Alfredo P. Torres, auditor; Romulo M. del Rosario, PRO; and the members of the board of directors.

September 16—

Except for a couple of department and bureau heads who took up with him matters concerning their respective offices, the President did not receive any other callers. He concentrated instead on desk work the rest of the day.

In the course of his paper work, the President approved a resolution of the National Economic Council recommending the Philippine policy on the devaluation of the dollar and the revaluation of the yen, in connection with the computation of the balance of Japanese reparations payments to the Philippines.

The Philippine stand was adopted following the official announcement made by the United States and Japanese governments that their respective currencies had been allowed to float which, in effect resulted in the devaluation of the dollar and the revaluation of the yen.

The NEC observed that Article I of the Reparation Agreement between the Philippines and Japan signed on May 8, 1956, provides that Japan shall supply the Philippines with the services of the Japanese people and the products of Japan “the total value of which shall be so much in yen shall equivalent to US $550 million at present computed at Y198 billion.”

“In view of the devaluation of the U.S. dollar and the revaluation of, the Japanese yen, and in order to protect the interests of the Philippines in the remaining balance of the Japanese reparations payments, it is necessary that an interpretation be made on the said proviso,” the NEC stated in its resolution.

The NEC forthwith resolved to interpret this proviso in the reparations agreement, to mean as a “one-way hedge only against a possible devaluation of the yen and did not contemplate any situation where the United States dollar would be devalued in respect to the yen.”

Meeting as an executive committee on September 9, the NEC unanimously resolved that “should there be any upward adjustments in yen value, it is the yen valuation without reference to the value of the U.S. dollar which shall be the applicable currency in the Japanese reparations payments to the Philippines.”

In adopting the council resolution as the Philippine stand, the President directed government officials and agencies concerned to take the necessary steps to protect Philippine interest in this regard.

Among other actions, the President issued an executive order prohibiting the carrying firearms outside residence, except by those who are authorized to carry or who may be issued permit to carry as provided in Executive Order No. 56 dated December 29, 1966, as amended by Executive Order No. 231 dated May 7, 1970.

The President issued the order “in the interest of peace and order. Violation of the order shall be ground for confiscation of the firearm.

September 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed into law Senate Bill No. 478 (H. No. 3453), providing omnibus amendments to the Agricultural Land Reform Code (R.A. 3844); and Senate Bill No. 633 (H. No. 3463), providing for an Agrarian Land Reform Special Fund.

The signing was done at the Malacañang grounds in the presence of a big group of farmers, including delegations from the Agricultural Cooperative League of the Philippines (ACLP) and the Federation of Free Farmers led by its president, Jeremias Montemayor.

Also present were the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, senators, congressmen, provincial governors, and city and municipal mayors from the Visayas and Mindanao.

In his brief remarks during the ceremony, the President said that the amendments to the Land Reform Code was made in response to the insistent clamor of the nation for a more dynamic land program.

He said that the new laws represent the accumulated experience in the implementation of the Code since its enactment in 1963.

Earlier in the morning, the President met with some 2,500 provincial, city and municipal mayors and other officials from the Visayas and Mindanao, at the Malacañang Maharlika Hall.

The President asked the local officials to demonstrate their support for the objectives of the Nacionalista Party in the November elections, such that the “irrevocable fight against communism” would become a deep commitment of the people.

The President was swamped with resolutions adopted by provincial boards and municipal councils pledging support to the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus.

Upon the suggestion of the President, the local officials also adopted unanimously a resolution pledging to comply with the provisions of the Electoral Reform Bill (now R.A. 6388) which, the President said, is part of the Nacionalista Party reform program.

Another group, the United Disabled Veterans Association of the Philippines, presented the President with a resolution endorsing the suspension of the writ privilege.

In their resolution, the disabled veterans led by Ben S. Florentino, president, said that they “have complete faith and trust in His Excellency, President Marcos, and believe that His Excellency’s decision to suspend the privilege was the result of a dispassionate and careful examination of intelligence documents, facts and evidence which he alone was in a position to assess.”

On the eve of his birthday, the President granted executive clemency to 191 prisoners, upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Of the prisoners extended executive clemency, five were granted absolute pardon, five special absolute pardon, on[^] conditional pardon, with voluntary deportation, 128 conditional pardon with parole conditions, and 5.7 commutation of sentence.

September 11—

THOUSANDS of well-wishers converged at Malacañang as President Marcos marked his 54th birth anniversary. Unlike in previous years, no previous announcements were made for the day as the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, had expressed their intention to observe the day quietly with a few close relatives and friends.

In deference to the wishes of the First Couple, the armed forces had dispensed with the traditional loyalty parade at Camp Aguinaldo on the eve of the birth anniversary of their commander-in-chief.

However, as early as 8 a.m., the Palace grounds started swarming with people who sought audience with the First Couple to greet the President on his natal day.

The President started the day working on urgent state papers in his private study.

At about 11:30 a.m., the First Couple emerged from the study, and was promptly swallowed by the big crowd of admirers which jampacked the spacious reception hall. President's Week in Review: September 24-30, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS in a memorandum asked Budget Commissioner Faustino SyChangco “to strive at all time to emphasize” the release of funds for infrastructure and other development projects rather than for operating expenditures.

The President further said that efforts should always be exerted to maintain a balanced budget, adding that if the general revenue is not adequate to provide essential operations of the government, arrangements should be made to borrow from non-inflationary sources.

The President's memo to Commissioner Sy-Changco was only one of the directives issued by the Chief Executive in the course of his desk work on board the RPS Ang Pangulo while en route to Iligan City.

Among other actions, the President appointed Ramon C. Aquino as member of the Presidential Investigating Committee created under Administrative Order No. 50 of April 18, 1967.

The committee, headed by Dr. Gaudencio Garcia, was empowered to investigate cases assigned to it by the President.

September 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Proclamation No. 889-C lifting the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in Mindanao and Sulu, with the exception of the two Lanao provinces and Cotabato.

Covered by the proclamation were the provinces of Surigao del Norte, Surigao del Sur, Davao del Norte, Davao del Sur, Davao Oriental, Bukidnon, Agusan del Norte, Agusan del Sur, Misamis Oriental, Misamis Occidental, Camiguin, Zamboanga del Norte, Zamboanga del Sur, and Sulu; and the cities of Surigao, Davao, Butuan, Cagayan de Oro, Gingoog, Ozamis, Oroquieta, Tangub, Dapitan, Dipolog, Zamboanga, Basilan and Pagadian.

The President issued the proclamation on the advise of military and civilian officials that requirements of public safety and national security could be met by the normal exercise of governmental powers.

The Chief Executive conferred with the military and civilian officials on board the RPS Ang Pangulo shortly after arriving in Iligan City at 8 a.m.

During the four-hour conference, Iligan and Lanao del Norte civic and school officials recommended the withdrawal of Gov. Arsenio Quibranza and Vice Gov. Malamit Umpa from the gubernatorial race in favor of a common candidate. Although both agreed in principle, Quibranza asked for time to consult his leaders.

After his meeting with the military and civilian authorities the President ordered:

- 1) The transfer of the entire 26th Battalion Combat Team from Zamboanga to Lanao del Norte, to be under Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion;
- 2) That raids be conducted in installations and establishments in the province for firearms;
- 3) The army to go after armed men, whether Christians or Muslims. Reports indicated four armed bands roam in unpatrolled areas;

- 4) The Rice and Corn Administration to reroute to Iligan and Lanao del Norte the rice intended for other areas;
- 5) The Department of Social Welfare to sent food and medicine to evacuation centers;
- 6) The Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Department of Public Works and Communications to finish Ozamis airport as an emergency undertaking, even as he directed the Budget Commission to release immediately ₱100,000 for said airport.

Among those present at the conference were Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion; Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, Fourth PC Zone commander; Col. Jimmy Bangcola, Lanao del Norte PC provincial commander; Col. Cirilo Bueno, Task Force Pagari commander; and all provincial commanders of Mindanao and Sulu.

At 4 p.m., the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, sailed for Ozamis City to look into the plight of the evacuees from Lanao del Norte.

September 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS officiated at the inauguration of the Misamis Oriental Rural Electric Service Cooperative (MORESCO) at Lagindingan, Cagayan de Oro, which he described as an important milestone in the country's history.

He said the MORESCO is one of the administration's pilot projects in the cooperative movement which has gained momentum throughout the country.

Among those present at the inaugural rites were Senator Emmanuel Pelaez, some members of the diplomatic corps and their ladies, Rep. Pedro N. Roa, General Manager Ramon Ravanzo of the National Power Corporation, National Electrification Administrator Pedro Dumol, and Henry Baker and Philip Parker of the US-AID.

In another meeting on the situation in Lanao del Norte with the political, civic and religious leaders of the province, held on board the RPS Ang Pangulo, the President succeeded in persuading Gov. Arsenio Quibranza and Vice Gov. Malamit Umpa to withdraw from the gubernatorial race to pave the way for the restoration of peace and order in that province.

The parties concerned signed an agreement which also made Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion the common candidate upon the suggestion of the civic groups. Sen Emmanuel Pelaez, LP Mayor Camilo Cabili and other political and religious leaders of the province were present.

Later, the President and the First Lady visited some 23,000 people from Lanao del Norte who had evacuated to Ozamis City, to bring relief and urge them to return to their homes.

At the gathering at the parochial hall, the President announced, among others, that:

- 1) He had assigned the 26th BCT to Lanao del Norte with enough troops for every town and with orders to go after the armed bands.
- 2) CIS teams are conducting raids to ferret out arms from suspects.
- 3) He had released ₱150,000 for the repair of Ozamis airport to make it operational.
- 4) He would release ₱100,000 from the calamity fund to help rehabilitate burned homes of evacuees.

The President also distributed ₱50,000 through the Department of Social Welfare and Red Cross for the purchase of the needs of evacuees and 100 boxes of medical kits.

The party returned to the yacht past 9 p.m. after which it weighed anchor for Cagayan de Oro.

September 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, disembarked at Tacloban City at 8 a.m. for an overnight stopover in Ulot, Tolosa en route back to Manila.

While in Leyte, the President:

- 1) Surveyed the agricultural and fisheries development project in the province, including the RP-Japan Rice Experimental Farm in Alang-Alang.
- 2) Looked into the coconut research project and the medical research on schistosomiasis Japonica at the United Nations Research Center in Palo.
- 3) Looked into the progress of the work on the Pan-Philippine Highway, particularly the bridge to span the San Juanico Strait.

In the course of his work on official papers at the resthouse in Ulot, the President issued an order- for the immediate stopping of disbursement of public works fund, in consonance with the 45-day ban under the Electoral Code.

The President issued the directive through the secretaries of finance and of public works to all treasurers, disbursing officers, engineers and other officials responsible for expenditures of public works fund.

To insure strict compliance, the President also ordered the officials concerned to submit balance sheets of spent and unspent public works funds released to them.

September 28—

The President took advantage of his sailing time to dispose of piles of urgent state papers in his cabin.

In an interview aboard the ship with the Voice of the Philippines, the President announced his intention to meet with the Cabinet on the various development projects, including the workingmen's housing program, the industrial development of areas around Manila, and reports on the peace and order situation in Cotabato and Lanao del Norte.

September 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS returned from a week-long inspection trip to the South.

Before disembarking from RPS Ang Pangulo, which docked at Pier 15 at about 11 a.m., the President had an interview with TV reporters, during which he said that the trip was "most unusually successful inasmuch as we have been able to attend to the twin problems of security and development."

Following the interview, the President motored direct to Malacañang where he immediately conferred with Palace aides on urgent state business.

The President spent the whole afternoon working on official papers in his private study.

September 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had two major conferences; one with the Cabinet and the other with the political and civic leaders of Sulu.

Among the major items taken up at the Cabinet meeting, which lasted from 9:30 to 11:30 at the State Dining Hall, was the problem of rice distribution, particularly in places of scarcity.

The President mobilized the government machinery towards solving this particular problem, saying that the government should utilize all powers, including confiscation of hoarded stocks to normalize the flow of the staple into the market, especially in the rural areas.

He created a committee composed of the Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources, as chairman, and the Secretary of Commerce and Industry, the chairman of the Board of Investments, and the Acting Secretary of Public Works and Communications, as members, to study and recommend immediate solutions to the problem.

The President then instructed the Secretary of Justice to assist the committee in devising ways of counteracting hoarding, even to the extent of confiscating hoarded stocks.

During the meeting, the heads of departments and agencies concerned reported on other government projects, such as on rural electrification, mass housing, cottage industries, fisheries, cattle and swine dispersal, and other projects designed to provide rural employment.

On mass housing, the President directed the Government Service Insurance System, the Social Security System, the People's Homesite and Housing Corporation and the National Housing Corporation to coordinate their respective activities in the implementation of the administration's housing program.

On cattle dispersal, the President urged the department heads concerned to get some action done at lower levels. He directed as well that artificial insemination centers be set up in every big barrio. The President said expenses for these centers should be minimized through the construction of bamboo buildings instead of the costly concrete affairs being set up by the Bureau of Animal Industry.

Following the Cabinet meeting, the President repaired to his study where he signed House Bill No. 229 appropriating the sum of ₱590,000 to indemnify the heirs of the victims of the January 30, 1970 student riot, and for other victims of a public demonstration, rally, protest march, assembly or mass action occurring after January 1, 1970.

The bill, which was sponsored in the House by Rep. Alfredo G. Lamen of Mt. Province and in the Senate by Sen. Mamintal Tamano, was signed by the President in the presence of the heirs and relatives of the six deceased victims of the January 30 mass action.

Of the amount appropriated, ₱90,000 would be paid as compensation to the heirs of mass demonstration victims Ricardo Alcantara, Fernando Catabay, Felicisimo S. Roldan, Bernardo Bausa, Jesus Mejia and Leopoldo Inelda, who were killed during the mass demonstration of students on January 30, 1970.

The President then met with the political, civic and religious leaders of Sulu on the peace and order condition in that province.

During the conference, the President ordered the strict implementation of the firearms ban and the screening of members of the police department in the province, so that only qualified men may be authorized to carry guns.

The President reminded all Jolo leaders that policemen and provincial guards could no longer act as bodyguards for candidates and officials under the new election code.

Among those present at the conference were Sulu Gov. Murphy Sangkula and former Secretary of General Services Sali Ututalum contending gubernatorial candidates; Rep. Indanan Anni, Mayor Aminkadra Abubakar of Jolo, Dr. Miguel Cuevas, president of the Sulu Lions; Maj. Fernando Villamor (ret.) of the local Knights of Columbus; Mrs. Lily Cid, president of the Catholic Women's League; Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief; and Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, IVPCZ commander and Lt. Col. Rogacion Espiritu, Sulu provincial commander.

The President attended to some individual callers the rest of the afternoon, and then worked on urgent official papers till early evening.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in a move to normalize the supply and distribution of the nation's most important cereal, prevent the excessive spiralling of prices of rice and other essential commodities by profiteering and hoarding, and enable the government, civic and welfare agencies to carry out their relief operations effectively, declared a state of calamity in nine additional provinces in Luzon and Mindanao.

Heavy damage to rice crops in these areas were wrought by intensive tungro infestation, typhoon and drought.

The provinces embraced by the proclamation were Nueva Ecija, Tarlac, Pangasinan, Isabela, Albay, Camarines Sur, Camarines Norte, Cotabato and South Cotabato.

The President had previously declared the Greater Manila area, Rizal, Bataan, Bulacan, Pampanga, Zambales, Batanes and Laguna as calamity areas in separate proclamations, due to extensive damage from typhoon "Yoling" in 1970.

The President directed the National Disaster Control Center (NDCC) to expand its scope of responsibility of overseeing, coordinating and directing rescue and relief operations of the Armed Forces, other government agencies and the private sector in the affected areas.

He likewise designated the Price Control Council to implement the provisions of the proclamation, empowering it to order the seizure of any commodity or material or merchandise of prime necessity, to sell it to the public at authorized prices, and to reimburse to the owner of the same its legal price.

In the course of the day, the President met twice with Lanao del Norte officials and civic leaders regarding the proposal to have Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion as a common candidate for governor of the province.

The President, however, scheduled another meeting in view of the inability of Gov. Arsenio Quibranza to attend the conference.

During the two conferences, the President directed Acting Defense Secretary Efren I. Plana to seek declaratory relief on behalf of Gen. Encarnacion as well as the two candidates—Quibranza and Vice Gov. Malamit Umpa—who had agreed to withdraw.

The President also asked the Lanao officials and civic leaders to submit another list of prospective candidates for governor should Gen. Encarnacion be declared as not qualified.

In another conference aimed also at the maintenance of peace and order, the President effected an agreement between the two warring factions in Ilocos Sur designed to stop further bloodshed in that province.

Those who met with the President were Gov. Carmeling Crisologo and her son Vincent, a candidate for mayor of Vigan, and their political rivals led by Luis "Chavit" Singson, his brother Evaristo, also a candidate for mayor of Vigan.

Aside from these conferences, the President received several scheduled callers, including the officers of the UP Vanguard Fraternity whom he inducted into office.

In brief remarks following the induction rite, the President rallied the group to a full commitment to the Flag, even as he warned that the communists would use every tactic and strategy to take over the government through peaceful or violent means.

Inducted were Senator Mamintal Tamano, national commander; and Agriculture Undersecretary Jose Drilon, Jr., Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, Luis Beltran, Ramon Dumaul, Mars Espino, Sonny Ventura, Ted Javier, Jimmy Cortez, Col. Bienvenido Castro, and Lt. Col. Rodolfo Villoria, members of the board of governors.

In the afternoon, the President inducted Jose Campos as judge of the court of first instance of Pasay City, following confirmation of the latter's nomination by the Commission on Appointments.

Campos, and his appointment to the judiciary, was a law professor at the University of the Philippines and a successful business executive.

The President also issued an administrative order creating an ad hoc Cabinet committee to inquire into the various problems arising out of the rice situation and to recommend appropriate solutions therefor.

The President's order formalized a decision arrived at during the Cabinet meeting for the creation of such a body to inquire into the feasibility of adopting effective counter-measures to prevent rice shortages in the country.

Named to the committee were Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., as chairman, and Secretary of Public Works and Communications David M. Consunji, Acting Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, and Undersecretary of Agriculture Jose D. Drilon, Jr., as members.

October 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS addressed the special convention of the National Labor Unity Congress at the GSIS auditorium, which was convened to enable the labor ranks to determine the most qualified candidates for senator.

All the 16 senatorial candidates, both Nacionalistas and Liberals, President Marcos and Senator Benigno Aquino, Jr. of the Liberal Party had been invited but only the President and candidates Bias F. Ople, Alejandro Almendras and Ernesto Maceda showed up at the convention.

In his address before the huge assembly, the President accused the opposition of trying to deceive the electorate, and challenged the Liberal candidates to put up a platform of government for the country.

The President also challenged the opposition to define its stand on the question of communism and private ownership, the suspension of the privilege of the writ "Of habeas corpus, and many other issues.

In the afternoon, the President met with the leaders of Lanao del Norte for the third time on two days to find solutions to the peace and order problems in the province.

The President reiterated his decision to maintain law and order in the province and warned that any further outbreak of lawlessness in the area would be met with force. The President, however, said he would exhaust all means to seek a political solution to the peace and order problem in the province.

In the meantime, the President directed all government agencies to reorient the entire civic action efforts of the government in Lanao del Norte, and the Department of National Defense to provide transportation facilities for the return of Muslim evacuees to their homes.

The President also directed Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief, to pull out and replace all CIS agents sent to the province who were living with partisan families, as well as all PC officers and men suspected of harassment.

Rep. Dimaporo reported that some CIS agents sent to the province were living in the house of Governor Quibranza and that an officer and some enlisted men of the 441st PC Company had harassed his brother, Rep. Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, although he had identified himself properly to them.

On the suggestion of the civic leaders that the President impose "selective martial law" in areas where there is disorder, particularly where the people had left their homes, the President said he would "not consider this casually" because "it requires serious and careful study."

The President said he was afraid innocent civilians would suffer should this happen, but promised that he would send even up to a whole division to maintain the majesty of the law in the province.

Present at the conference were Senators Emmanuel Pelaez and Lorenzo Teves, Reps. Ali Dimaporo and Constantino Navarro, Vice Gov. Malamit Umpa, Iligan City Mayor Camilo Cabili, Dr. Angelo Maralo of the Concerned Citizens Movement, Salvador Nosce of the Bankers Club, Jose Siy of the Association of Schools and Colleges, Manuel Laurel of the Ozamis City Civic and Religious Organizations, Sebastian Cortes and Perfecto Rival of the CCM, Pafs Mejia of the Cursillo Movement, Raul Sepulveda of the Citizens Social Action Committee, Saturnino Chan of Iligan Chamber of Commerce, and Judge Michael Adeva.

The President convened the meeting- at past 12 noon and adjourned it at 2 p.m., to meet other government officials who took up with him matters converging their respective departments.

October 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored out of Malacañang at mid-morning for Quezon City to address the 18th annual convention of the Free Farmers Federation (FFF), held at the Divine Word Mission Seminary gymnasium.

In his speech, the President assured the farmers of the country that the administration will continue to initiate and extend all-out support to measures designed to ameliorate their living conditions.

He also announced two basic measures designed to help the small farmers and the farm workers, particularly in the sugar industry, namely, the formulation of a basic land distribution policy and the creation of a sugar council to administer the special amelioration fund.

The President directed Secretary of Agrarian Reform Conrado F. Estrella to draft, in collaboration with the secretary of agriculture and natural resources, the commissioner of the Small Farmers Commission, and the directors of land and of forestry, an administrative order setting down the basic policy.

He lauded the FFF as a kind of movement that would be helped by the government and by every Filipino because, he said, it "is carrying the banner of democratic revolution in the countryside."

The President was back at Malacañang in time for lunch. He took some rest afterward, and then worked on state papers later in the afternoon.

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed the national budget for the fiscal year 1971-1972 totalling P4,169,732,780.

The budget represents an increase of P453,516,943 over that of the previous one. The increase was due to expanded public services, especially in health and education, salary adjustments, and the creation of new offices necessary for a developing economy.

Congress appropriations also had an increase from P94,842,000 to P110,780,012 or a difference of P15,956,012.

The President also signed a message on the vetoed items, consisting mostly of new appropriations for the executive department.

In another major action, the President issued Proclamation No. 889-D lifting the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in seven more provinces and four more cities of Luzon.

The President lifted the suspension of the writ privilege in the provinces of Cagayan, Cavite, Mountain Province, Kalinga-Apayao, Camarines Norte, Albay and Sorsogon, and in the cities of Cavite, Tagaytay, Trece Martires and Legaspi.

The President started the day disposing of urgent official papers in his study.

At noon, he received the officers of the League of Women Voters of the Philippines, whom he inducted into office. Inducted were Paz Veto Planas, president; Remedios Gatmaitan, 1st vice president; Felicidad Calip, 2nd vice president; Agustina Rosete Navarro, secretary; Catalina M. Evangelista, assistant secretary; Felicidad Soller, treasurer; Consolacion Ilagan, auditor; and Pacita Catolico, Adelina Rodriguez and Beatriz Ronquillo, board members.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Mrs. Josefa Edralin-Marcos, mother of the President and adviser of the organization.

The President resumed his desk work later in the afternoon, during which he signed into law House Bill No. 3559, which divides the province of Lanao del Sur into the provinces of Lanao del Sur and Maranaw.

As provided in the bill, Lanao del Sur would include the municipalities of Lumbatan, Butig, Binadayan, Bayang, Tubaran, Madalum, Madamba, Bacolod Grande and Balindong. The Province of Maranaw would consist of the municipalities of Masiu, Poona-Bayabao, Wao, Tamparan, Marantao, Kapai, Bubong, Ragain-Ditsaan, Mulondo, Saguilaran, Piagapo and Taraka.

October 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS once more concentrated on official papers and other urgent state business.

The President started his desk work at 9:30 a.m., breaking off at way past noon for lunch and a brief rest. He was back at his private study at 3 p.m. for the resumption of his paper work, which lasted till early evening.

October 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was pinned down in Malacañang by a full range of state business, including a ceremonial, meetings with officials, and callers which ranged from a group of weight lifters to a delegation of horse jockeys and trainers.

Notable among the conferences the President had on serious matters were the meetings with Caloocan Mayor Macario Asistio; and with GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. and SSS Administrator Reynaldo Gregorio.

The former conference was held to examine the causes of the violence in Caloocan City during the two student demonstrations. The President ordered Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos to look into the two violent incidents which resulted in the death of three and injuries to many.

The President directed that two investigators, preferably from the Office of the State Prosecutor, be assigned to the case, “to determine who started the shooting and explosions.”

He said it was necessary to pinpoint responsibility for the incidents because of claims that both the demonstrators and the group that tried to disperse the demonstrators were armed.

With Asistio in meeting with the President were Col. Celestino Rosea, Caloocan City police chief; and Brig. Gen. Mariano C. Ordonez, chief of METROCOM.

The latter meeting with the GSIS and SSS officials was to discuss the housing program of the government, with an eye to accelerating the pace of house construction.

Earlier in the morning, the President received at proper ceremonies the credentials of the new ambassador of Singapore, Cheam Kim Seang, who expressed the hope that the Philippines and the island nation would continue to be partners in developing Southeast Asia.

Ambassador Cheam said that his country attaches greater value to her relationship with the Philippines, as a fellow member of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN), and out of common aspirations for peace and security, as well as for stability and for the dynamic progress of the region.

In reply, the President stressed the need for “close cooperation and sincere intensification of efforts” by all countries and peoples in Southeast Asia on important issues that serve to contribute to the peace and prosperity of the region and to success in varied fields of mutually beneficial endeavors.

Among those who attended the ceremony were Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles, Secretary of General Services Constancio Castaneda, and Secretary of Public Works and Communications David Consunji.

The weight lifters belonged to the Asian teams participating in the First Asian Weight Lifting Competition “here. They came to pay a courtesy call on the President.

The leaders of the delegations were Chang Shin of Korea, Noshe Edelstein of Iran, Bob Henderson of Australia, Shigeru Akimene of Japan and Eetanislao Carbungco of the Philippines.

They were accompanied to the President by Elpidio Doroteo, president of the Philippine Weight Lifting Association; Capt. Santiago Yangwas, first vice president; Cesar Gallegos, second vice president; and Brig. Gen. Jose Syjuco, overall chairman.

The racing people belonged to organizations of jockeys, horse trainers and owners, who discussed with the President the resumption of the Manila Jockey Club operations.

The President told them that the fitness of the club should be affirmed first before it could get back to business.

October 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received the first East German to visit the Philippines under the liberalized policy of the administration with regard to visitors from communist countries. The visitor was Ulrich Makosch, Asia correspondent of the Television Network of the German Democratic Republic (East Germany).

Mr. Makosch interviewed the President on various topics. He was accompanied in his Philippine visit by his cameraman, Fritz Hemmerling. Most of the rest of the President’s working day was confined to desk work.

Among other actions, the President issued an executive order creating the Presidential Investigation and Recovery Commission, and an administrative order reconstituting the Telecommunications Development Board. The President created the commission in order to avert the prospect of the government incurring huge losses for lack of an efficient mechanism to investigate and enforce collection of the receivables of various government agencies.

The commission would look after collections and the recovery of all collectible and recoverable funds, monies and properties pertaining to the government.

Named to compose the commission were the secretary of justice, as chairman; the chairman-general manager of the Rice and Corn Administration, as vice chairman; and the undersecretary of industry, a representative of the auditor general, and a representative of the Philippine National Bank, as members.

The Telecommunications Development Board was reconstituted by the President by naming a new chairman of the body and adding another member.

The board was originally created under Administrative Order No. 130 of June 18, 1968, with the undersecretary of transportation and communications as chairman.

Named as new chairman was Brig. Gen. Ceferino S. Carreon (ret.), one time commanding officer of Philcag V, and a member of the board of administrators of the National Electrification Administration.

Designated as additional member was the president of the Philippine Chamber of Communications.

President's Week in Review: October 8-15, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 8—

REACTING to a wire dispatch from Cairo quoting President Moammer El-Kaddafi as saying that Libya would be forced to "assume its responsibilities" if the "extermination campaign" supposedly being mounted against Muslims in the Philippines continues, President Marcos directed the Department of Foreign Affairs to verify the exact text of the Libyan President's statement.

The President likewise ordered the DFA to use all its facilities abroad to clarify reports about the situation in Muslim areas in the country.

He expressed concern over the manner the real situation in the Muslim areas in the Philippines had been misreported in the foreign media, especially in Muslim countries.

A few days earlier, the President had occasion to stress that the fights between Muslims and Christians in the South were feuds and vendettas which had existed in Mindanao since time immemorial. But then he said the government was able to come between the two groups.

The President further said that the people who had been complaining about "genocide" did not seem to understand what the term means. They also had been falsifying and distorting stories to make it appear that the government troops were the ones killing the Muslims, he added.

Except for the video-taping of a television interview in his study shortly before noon, the President otherwise had a quiet but busy day going over state papers.

In the course of his desk work, the President signed a proclamation declaring October 9, Saturday, a special public holiday to give unregistered voters the opportunity to register, and thus enable them to exercise their right of suffrage in the November elections. October 9 is the last day for registration of voters, as provided in Republic Act No. 6388, otherwise known as the Election Code of 1971.

PRESIDENT MARCOS led well-wishers in seeing off the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, who left early in the evening on a combined diplomatic-cultural mission to Iran.

The First Lady took a Qantas Fokker plane which took off from the Manila International Airport at 6 :30 p.m.

In addition to attending the 2,500th anniversary of the founding of the Iranian dynasty under Cyrus the Great, Mrs. Marcos was scheduled to meet with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, during which she would pursue discussions on the establishment of the Asian Cultural Association which she had earlier proposed, and would want to be organized as soon as possible.

Shortly before boarding the plane, the First Lady said that she had been asked by the President to undertake the mission to attend the Iranian anniversary rites.

"On this important occasion in Iran's history," the First Lady said, "we are called upon, not only by our existing formal ties but also by the special bond existing between that country and our Muslim brothers in the South, to make a genuine expression of amity and goodwill."

At the “Meet the Press” television interview later in the evening, the President said that in-depth studies were being made on all military and economic agreements of the Philippines with the United States so as to determine “our own intentions and our own national interest” on these matters.

Covered by such studies, he said, were such questions as:

1. Are the U.S. bases necessary?
2. How much longer they should stay?
3. Should they not be taken over by Filipinos, and if so, when and how?

The President was tied down to his desk most of the morning and afternoon because of the pressure of paper work.

October 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS mobilized all government relief agencies for the extension of immediate assistance to areas affected by typhoons “Barang” and “Krising.”

In a memorandum, the President directed:

1. The Department of Social Welfare to deploy relief teams to the ravaged areas and minister to the needs of the typhoon victims;
2. The Department of Health to attend to the medical requirements of the victims, and to take steps to prevent the possible outbreak of epidemics in the affected areas;
3. The Department of National Defense to assist in the relocation of homeless families in temporary evacuation centers and to help local police forces in the maintenance of peace in the paths of the destructive typhoons; and
4. The Department of Public Works and Communications to attend to the immediate repairs of broken down roads and bridges for the purpose of restoring normalcy in the regions as early as possible.

The President directed the relief agencies to submit reports on the extent of the damage and other requirements of the typhoon victims.

In another move, the President asked his lawyers to prepare for the filing of criminal and civil libel suits against Senator Benigno Aquino, Jr. and the Manila Times Publishing Company in connection with allegations contained in a story appearing in the Manila Times issue of the day, referring to supposed particulars of the President’s alleged wealth.

“In the interest of truth, in the best public interest, it becomes necessary that we file this suit now, and open to public scrutiny these long-tolerated allegations,” he said.

Most of the President’s working day was devoted to state papers.

October 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with Manila Mayor Antonio J. Villegas, who called at Malacañang in the morning to submit a progress report on the Plaza Miranda incident.

Also present at the conference were MPD Chief Gerardo Tamayo, NBI Director Jolly Bugarin, Col. Prospero Olivas, CIS chief; and Major Felicisimo Lazaro, MPD District 5 commander.

Just before the conference started, the President through Director Bugarin, commended the nine NBI agents who were responsible for putting an end to the outlaw activities of Leonardo Manecio alias "Nardong Putik."

Manecio was killed in a gunbattle with the NBI agents along the national highway in Kawit, Cavite.

The President received other callers in the afternoon, among them Acting Mayor Cesar Alzona of Makati and Chairman Crispino de Castro of the Police Commission, who took up with him matters concerning their respective offices.

October 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS summoned Agriculture Undersecretary and concurrent RCA Chairman Jose Drilon, Jr. to Malacañang following receipt of reports that commercial rice had disappeared from the market and that unless a steady supply of the cereal is maintained the price of the cereal might unduly go up.

The President inquired into the general rice situation, particularly in view of the series of typhoons which hit the country the past few days.

Secretary Drilon informed the President that the typhoons had hampered RCA operations causing a reduction in the volume of RCA rice injected into the market as well as slowed down the unloading from the ships of imported rice.

Two vessels with a shipment of 320,000 cavans of Thai rice had arrived but could not be unloaded immediately because of the strong winds.

The President directed Secretary Drilon to watch closely the unloading of the imported rice from the ships and to get the cereal to the consumers as fast as possible.

Among other actions, the President released P600,000 from the calamity fund for relief and rehabilitation of typhoon ravaged provinces.

In releasing the amount, the President also directed Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to expedite the disbursement of the share of Isabela province, which was reported as the worst hit by the typhoons.

The other places that benefitted from the fund release were the Greater Manila area, Baguio City, and the provinces of Bataan, Zambales, Occidental Mindoro, Cavite, Batangas, Camarines Sur, Bulacan, Palawan, Rizal, Nueva Vizcaya, Ilocos Norte and Ilocos Sur.

During the day, the President received some national and local officials, among whom were Senator Helena Benitez, Mayor Macario Asistio of Caloocan City, and Public Service Commissioner Filomeno Kintanar.

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued giving priority attention to the problem of rice distribution in view of reports that rice dealers were withholding commercial rice from the public, a practice that usually induce a price spiral.

He called the ad hoc committee on rice to a meeting in Malacañang in the morning on the general rice situation, in the course of which he ordered the Rice and Corn Administration to keep a steady flow of RCA rice to the market, and the Price Control Council to flush out hoarded commercial rice and to enforce strictly the prices set by the council.

Acting Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio Quiazon, Jr., concurrent vice chairman of the Price Control Council, informed the President that PCC agents were preparing cases against 16 rice dealers who were suspected to have passed off RCA rice as commercial rice.

Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., who arrived from a country-wide survey of rice harvests, briefed the conferees on the need to formulate of palay trading program as soon as possible.

Present at the conference' besides Secretaries Tanco and Quiazon were Agriculture Undersecretary and concurrent RCA Chairman-General Manager Jose D. Drilon, Jr., Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, Secretary of Public Works and Communications David Consunji, Defense Undersecretary Efren I. Plana, and Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes.

Among other actions, the President issued an executive order setting the procedure for the disposition and disbursement of the proceeds from the sale of the rice donated to the Philippines by Japan.

The Japanese government, in the wake of the rash of disastrous typhoons which hit the country in 1970, donated 10,000 metric tons of rice in assistance to the relief and rehabilitation operations undertaken by the private and public sectors here.

Specific objectives and allocations of the proceeds from the said sale were proposed by the Philippines through Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles, and were approved by Ambassador Toshio Urabe of Japan, as follows:

1. Food and agricultural development	P4,500,00
2. Repair and construction of school houses in typhoon-damaged areas	3,000,000
3. MEDICARE Program	1,000,000
4. Relief from previous and future typhoons	500,000
	P9.000.000

Included under food and agricultural development were price stabilization measures, a livestock and poultry program, an intensified vegetable program, joint RP-Japan pilot farm projects, the Corn Downy Mildew program, manpower development, a nutrition program, fingerlings production and disposal, and expanded radio communications.

The President designated the Rice and Corn Administration as the custodian agency for the rice donations and the proceeds from the sales.

The President received some callers in the morning. He spent most of the afternoon and early evening on state papers.

October 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS limited his callers to a few government officials who had urgent matters to take up relative to their respective agencies, even as he focused once again on desk work.

In the course of the day, the President designated Secretary of Public Works and Communications David M. Consunji as executive director of the Presidential Committee on Housing and Urban Resettlement with a view of effecting closer coordination in the implementation of the government's, housing program.

As such, Secretary Consunji assumed the executive functions of the Committee, including those exercised by the committee's action officer, who become a member of the committee.

Among other actions, the President directed the Price Control Council to take an official stand on the directive of Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., suspending for a period of 10 days the price ceiling on rice set by the PCC in five Mindanao and Visayan provinces.

At the same time, the President ordered that Secretary Tanco's directive be frozen pending official action on the matter by the PCC.

Secretary Tanco was reported to have suspended the rice price ceiling in Cebu on the promise of the rice traders that they would dump all their stocks into the market.

The President issued the order to prevent possible conflict of policy between the PCC and the Presidential Committee on Rice.

October 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed the Presidential Economic Staff and the Department of Finance to prepare a massive rural employment plan aimed at alleviating the unemployment and underemployment problem in the rural areas.

The President issued the order during his meeting with Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata and PES Director-General Apolinaric, Orosa, who were among government officials, delegations and individual callers who called on the President.

Called the national rural employment program, the plan would integrate the efforts of all government agencies concerned with generating more jobs into a single program of action. Among these were manpower training and development, cottage industries development, cattle and hog dispersal, rural improvement, workmen's housing program, and intensive farming similar to the Magalang pilot farm project.

During his call on the President, Secretary Virata also reported on the result of his talks with the officials of the World Bank, the International Monetary Fund, the U.S. government, Latin American central banks and Japanese financing institutions. While in the United States, Secretary Virata also secured an exemption for Philippine oil from the 10 percent surcharge slapped by the U.S. government on imports.

The finance secretary presented to the President the draft of an agreement prepared by Japanese financing officials whereby they would extend some 65 million concessionary loans to the Philippines for priority projects and commodity purchases.

Also present at the conference was Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., who also arrived from an official mission abroad.

Among the delegations received by the President were those composed of some 60 scouts and scout leaders and officers of the Council of Health Agencies of the Philippines (CHAP).

The scouts and scout leaders, led by Dr. Vitaliano Bernardino, president and chief scout, called on the President in connection with the observance of Boy Scouts Week from October 25 to 31.

In brief remarks, the President underscored the vital role that scouting plays in the building of a "strong and progressive nation," and called on all the people to lend support to the scouting movement in the country. The President also paid tribute to the leaders as well as to every level of the citizenry who, quietly in their own way, had contributed to the success of the scouting movement in the country.

In the group were explorer, rover, cub and boy scouts from the Greater Manila area, Superintendent Alfredo J. Andal, vice president for local council operations; Judge Josias K. Guinto, international commissioner; Prof. Vicente Escasa, deputy commissioner for program, Godofredo P. Neric, national scout executive; Supt. Conrado de los Reyes, Capt. Florentine Casanova, Deputy National Scout Executive Alfredo T. Sanchez Isaias Bolivia, chief of training; Manuel L. Sison, chief of program; and Ulderico Santos, program executive.

Following the call of the scouts and scout leaders, the President presented awards of merit to a member-organization of the Council of Health Agencies of the Philippines, and three outstanding individuals. The awardees were:

- 1) The Philippine Medical Women's Association, for being the most active member-organization of CHAP;
- 2) Dr. Joaquin Maranon, for conducting valuable research on health needs;
- 3) Dr. Rosita Tivera Ramirez, for civic health work; and
- 4) Dr. Pedro Siojo of the Philippine Mental Health Association, for valuable contributions to the CHAP.

The President also inducted the officers of CHAP, namely: Lourdes T. Echauz, chairman; Dr. Helen P. Abundo, vice-chairman; Juana Reyes, secretary; Dr. Procopio Reyes, treasurer; Felix Pestanas, auditor; Gonzalo Santos Rivera, counsel; Mamerto Banatin, PRO; and Dr. Jesus Azurin, Leticia O. Canoy, Paz M. Catolico, Dr. Eliodoro D. Congco, Ines P. Gatmaitan, Dr. Elpidio Panganiban, Carmen F. del Rosario, Winnie Luzon, Dr. Pedro Siojo, Helen Sanchez and Dr. Primo Gonzales, members of the board.

In the afternoon, the President issued a proclamation (No. 923) declaring the existence of a state of public calamity in the province of Cagayan. Typhoon "Dadang" had wrought heavy damage to crops and property in the province

The President issued the proclamation to prevent the excessive increase in the prices of rice and other essential commodities due to profiteering and hoarding, and to enable the government and civic, relief and welfare agencies to carry out their objectives effectively.

The President attended to other important state papers from mid-afternoon till early evening.

President's Week in Review: October 16-22, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS addressed the opening of the 13th biennial convention of the Philippine Coconut Producers Association, held at mid-morning at the Malacañang Maharlika Hall. In his speech, the President appealed for the release by the coconut producers of their ₱1 million counterpart so that the coconut research, similar to that conducted on rice by the International Rice Research Institute, could be stated.

Under an agreement between the government and the coconut producers, a ₱2 million fund would be set up for the intensified research into various and new uses of coconut, with the government putting up ₱1 million and the producers contributing another ₱1 million counterpart fund.

The President expressed the hope that in the same way the IRRI produced the “miracle rice,” the coconut research project should also be able to produce the “miracle coconut.”

The President said the coconut industry accounts for roughly one-fourth of the country's total dollar earnings, thus making it one of the major pillars of the Philippine economy. For this reason, he said, he had always sought to preserve it and maintain its position as a major industry.

The President, in the course of his speech, ordered the release of the ₱1 million government's share in the project.

After addressing the convention, the President returned to his study where he received coconut planters from Leyte and Samar, who paid him their respects, as well as a few other scheduled callers, among whom were Rep. Teodulo Natividad and nine mayors of the first district of Bulacan, who reported on the heavy damaged wrought by floods in their areas of jurisdiction.

The President mobilized the major relief agencies of the government to extend relief and rescue operations to the flood victims. He also ordered Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren Plana to make a survey of the disaster areas with Rep. Natividad to determine the extent of the damage.

The President worked on official papers and attended to other urgent state business in the afternoon and early evening. He issued, among others, a proclamation declaring October 26 a special public holiday in Catanduanes to enable its residents to observe the 25th anniversary of their province with fitting and appropriate ceremonies.

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco and Undersecretary Jose Drilon, Jr., concurrent chairman of the Rice and Corn Administration, on the status of palay crops throughout the country.

Secretaries Tanco and Drilon reported to the President that palay harvests in Panay Island, the Bicol region and South Cotabato were good.

The President gave Secretaries Tanco and Drilon the go-signal for the start of the government palay buying program at the support price of ₱22 per cavan.

The palay buying program would help rice growers, especially the small farmers, who were often compelled to dispose of their produce to unscrupulous middlemen at reduced prices. The elimination of middlemen would also serve to stabilize the price of the cereal and keep it within the reach of low-income groups.

The President directed Tanco and Drilon to avail of the ₱180 million proceeds from the sale of imported rice for the palay buying program

The President concentrated again on desk work in the afternoon.

October 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued' concentrating on urgent official papers.

Except for a few officials of the executive department who consulted him on matters concerning their respective agencies, the President did not receive any other callers.

October 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a full schedule of callers, most of whom were foreign businessmen, rural bankers, and local officials.

Among the first to be received by the President were Mitchell L. Werbell III and Huge McWhinne, American businessmen, who paid him a courtesy call.

They were followed by the officers of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines, who took their oaths of office before him. Those inducted were Oscar Ravanera, president; Edgardo Reyes, Rhium Sanchez and Modesto Buenaflor, vice presidents for Luzon, Visayas and Mindanao, respectively; Dr. Isagani Sayo, secretary; Guillermo Narvaez, treasurer; Jose O. Desiderio, Jr. and Cesar Ocampo, consulting directors for legal and public relations affairs; and Jose Bullas, Ponciano Rivera, Jr., Francisco German, Sergio Montinola, Ramon Melencio, Amando Buhain, Amando R. de Jesus and Saturnino Abesamis, directors.

The President told the rural bankers that the government would extend all the necessary help to the rural banking system which, he said, plays an important role in economic development.

The rural bankers informed the President that they would require an initial additional capital of ₱25 million from the Agricultural Guarantee Loan Fund. They said that a ₱56 million fund provided for the rural banks from the AGLF in a bill submitted to Congress "was lost along the way to the approval of the bill."

The President expressed the hope that he would be able to talk to Congress leaders "in more sober terms" after the November elections.

Present at the oath-taking ceremony were Honesto O. Francisco and Mariano Gimenez, director and associate director, respectively, of the Central Bank Department of Rural Bank.

At past noon, the President administered the oath to Ernesto Pilares as acting vice mayor of Quezon City, vice Ismael Mathay, Jr. who resigned to run for mayor of the city.

The President was guest at the TV program "Impact" in the evening

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor and speaker at the opening of the 8th General Assembly of the Asian Broadcasting Union (ABU), held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall in the afternoon. Before addressing the regional gathering, the President received the delegates and observers from 56 member-countries and United Nations agencies, as well as chiefs of the diplomatic missions in the Philippines who graced the affair.

In his speech, the President reminded radio and television broadcasters of their responsibility in enlarging the consciousness of the public and giving it an idea as to its identity and direction. He said that no other medium quite parallels the reach and impact of radio on the lives of so many, adding that not even print approximates the immediacy of broadcasts methods or the speed of their transmission of news and information to their audiences.

In the Philippines, the President said, "mass media have been a strong force in keeping our citizens aware of national issues and directions, despite the diversity and fragmentation of our geography."

"In Asia," he said, "media plays an indispensable role in nation building so that it must be preeminently social in its outlooks which must be progressive."

Yoshinori Maeda, president of the Japanese Broadcasting Corporation and of the ABU, who spoke for the delegates and delivered the opening remarks, thanked the President and the Filipino people for hosting the convention. He expressed confidence on the ability of the ABU to continue promoting the interests of its member nations.

Following the opening rites, the President received the delegates at cocktails held at the Palace Reception Hall.

The President attended to urgent state papers and other state business in the morning.

Toward noon, he had an interview with Elmer Lower; president of the American Broadcasting Corporation.

Early in the afternoon, the President received the parents of two non-participant young victims of the violence that attended the Caloocan demonstration on October 5, and another wounded youth who came with his mother.

Accompanied by Mayer Macario Asistio, those who called on the President concerning the misfortune that befell their sons were Abelardo Antonio and Ernesto de Lara, Sr., whose sons died from injuries suffered during the demonstration.

The wounded victim who came with his mother was Segundino Fernando. He was still nursing wounds on both legs and came to Malacañang in crutches.

The President commiserated with the parents of the victims, and asked them to inform him of any help he could extend to them.

October 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received callers in the morning only, and devoted the whole afternoon and early evening to paper work and other urgent state business.

Among those received by the President were officials of Chemical Bank of New York and of Sanyo, Ltd., who called at Malacañang to pay their respects following their arrival in the course of a tour of branch offices in the Far East.

The bank officials were Charles W. Carson, Jr., executive vice president and in charge of the international division and W. Donald Brown, senior vice president. They were accompanied by Paul Mayers and Charles Sherwood III, local representatives of the bank, and Ernesto Rufino. The Sanyo official was T. Kimura.

During the day, the President addressed a letter to Mrs. Benito L. Prieto extending his and the First Lady's condolence on the death of the president of the Manila Times Publishing Company.

He paid tribute to Prieto as a gentleman "devoted to life itself, who valued and enriched friendships; and who stood steadfast in his beliefs."

The President also received a Deed of Donation from a philanthropist from Barotac Nuevo, Iloilo, who offered to donate to the peace campaign in Mindanao one year's produce or income from his land in Bukidnon, which has an area of some 10 hectares.

The donor was Teodulo Padernal, who expressed in his deed of donation his desire to contribute to the peace campaign in Mindanao," initiated by the Office of the President.

October 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS summoned the heads of the government investigating agencies looking into the Plaza Miranda rally bombing incident of August 21 to clarify news reports that the arrest and detention of Antolin Oreta, brother-in-law of Senator Aquino, was a frame-up, that he was implicated by a witness who was third degree by the Manila police, and that he was not allowed to confront witnesses against him.

Summoned to Malacañang were General Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff, who was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos and Col. I. I. Paz; Col. Prospero Olivas, chief of the PC Criminal Investigation Service; Col. Jolly Bugarin, director of the National Bureau of Investigation; and Col. Gerardo Tamayo, chief of the Manila Police Department.

Col. Tamayo reported that immediately after the Plaza Miranda bombing, the MPD picked up a man who, when investigated, admitted having sold hand grenades to a certain person connected with an official from Central Luzon. Further investigation, he said, showed that the person who had entered allegedly into the transaction on the sale of Armalites, hand grenades, explosives and other firearms had these weapons delivered to subversive elements in Central Luzon and Laguna.

"Since this had something to do with, subversion and rebellion and is covered by Proclamation No. 889," Tamayo said, "we turned him over to the national government investigating agencies." He also said that the MPD did not employ third degree methods, but used the normal method of police interrogation and investigation.

The President told the officials to inform him of the developments because he was sometimes caught by surprise by newspaper reports, adding that "it would be to the interest of everybody if we are informed of the results of the investigation."

In a statement he issued after the conference, the President said that the government was determined to solve the bombing incident in accordance with due process and without trampling upon the civil rights of anyone.

He, however, pointed out that nobody, whether the relative of a politician or not, should be exempt from investigation if the evidence indicates that such person has committed the crime, of subversion, insurrection or rebellion.

"But", the President said, "I assure everyone, whether Liberal or Nacionalista, that fairness and justice will reign in all investigations and I shall see to it that the investigating agencies will not frame anyone or employ third degree or intimidate witnesses."

Earlier in the day, the President received callers, among whom were Don Manalo Elizalde, Jose Africa, and Mrs. Chito Serrano.

He also had a video-taping session with Bob Stewart and Leon O. Ty of Channel 7.

President's Week in Review: October 23-28, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met anew with Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and Undersecretary Jose Drilon, Jr., concurrent chairman-general manager of the Rice and Corn Administration on the rice situation throughout the country.

To ensure continuous supply of rice in the Greater Manila area and other parts of the archipelago, the President ordered:

1. Rolling stores in Greater Manila doubled from 106 to about 200;
2. Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, PC chief, to assign one PC trooper to each of the rolling stores to prevent blackmarketing and diversion of the cereal;
3. The Price Control Council to meet with major women's clubs in order to get some 200 women vigilantes from the private sector who would serve as undercover agents in public markets and report violations to the FCC;
4. The PCC to intensify surveillance of 400 miller-wholesaler bodegas throughout Manila and Central Luzon, padlock bodegas of violators, and prosecute those guilty of hoarding.
5. Secretary Drilon to investigate reports that RCA warehousemen, PNB representatives, and GAO auditors were collecting a tong of PI per bag from retailers withdrawing rice from RCA bodegas.

The President also called a meeting in Malacañang of all 3000 rice retailers in the Greater Manila area, rolling store operators in Luzon and all millers and rice merchants.

During the conference, Secretaries Tanco and Drilon reported that rice prices were down to as much as ₱2.30 and ₱2.50 in South Cotabato, Zamboanga, Negros Occidental, Iloilo and the entire Panay region, the whole of Bicol, and most of Cagayan Valley.

The President directed the Rice and Corn Administration to conduct full-scale price-support (buying) operations in places where palay prices threaten to go below the cost of production to the detriment of the farmers.

Earlier in the day, the President received well-known comedian Danny Kaye, who called at Malacañang to pay his respects following his arrival in the course of a four-week mission of goodwill to 19 countries for the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF).

Before leaving, Kaye promised the President that he would come back in 1972 to hold a concert for the UNICEF and a similar project of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos.

Kaye was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Social Welfare Estefania Aldaba-Lim; Paul Edwards, UN information officer in New York; Anthony E. Meager, UNICEF representative in the Philippines, and Wilfred Binns, director of the local UN information center.

On another aspect of UN activities the President announced the completion of a $20 million "Philippine Country Programme Proposal for United Nations Development Programme Assistance" from 1972 to 1976.

In his foreword to the proposal, the President pledged the Philippine Government's support for the full implementation of the program. He also expressed pride "in the knowledge that with its submission the Philippines becomes one of the first countries to undertake country programming of UNDP assistance."

The President said "utilization of the assistance will be guided above all by the Government's keen awareness of the need to combine the highest possible rate of material growth with active promotion of social justice."

In the evening, the President motored to the DZBB-Channel 7 station in Quezon City, where he was interviewed by Leon O. Ty and Bob Stewart in their "What The People Want To Know" program.

During the question and answer session, the President lengthily discussed subjects ranging from the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus to the rice situation. The program lasted from 9 to 10 p.m.

October 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored to Camp Crame early in the evening in response to the request of some of the persons detained under Proclamation 889 to see him, and to find out what they wanted.

The five detainees who had signified their desire for a direct dialogue with him were Radio-TV commentator Roger Arienda, Nemesio Prudente, PCC president; Teodosio Lansang, PCC professor; and Julius Ballesteros and Bayani Alcala, PCC instructors.

The President informed the detainees of the basic charges against them, and gave them the opportunity to answer off-hand those charges. He likewise informed them of the summary examination he had ordered, wherein they could confront witnesses and produce evidence on their own behalf.

The President ordered the release of Ballesteros when he found out that evidence in the hands of government prosecutors against him was the least serious. He issued the release order on condition that Ballesteros' parents guarantee his appearance in court when required and that he would not go into hiding.

Among those present at the President's meeting with the detainees were Col. Tagumpay Nanadiego, JAGO; Col. Prospero Olivas, CIS chief; Brig. Gen. Bruno Balancio, deputy PC chief; and Lt. Col. Nicolas Camello, PC chief of staff.

The President left Camp Crame for Malacañang at 8:30 p.m.

Earlier in the day, the President was closeted most of the time in his private study attending to paper work and other urgent state business.

October 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS cleared the deck for formal inquiry into the subversion cases of persons detained under Proclamation No. 889, as amended. The inquiry was set to start Thursday.

The President transmitted to Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos a letter dated October 24, 1971 of the acting secretary of national defense reporting that there was prima facie basis for prosecuting the persons listed therein for acts of subversion.

In a memorandum to Secretary Abad Santos, the President said:

“You are to constitute a panel of investigators to be headed by Chief State Prosecutor Emilio A. Gancayco, to conduct an inquiry for the purpose of determining whether the persons listed should be brought to court or not on the basis of available evidence. The investigating panel should be guided as follows:

1. Notify the persons listed that they can be present and represented by counsel;
2. Such persons listed or their counsel shall have the right to cross-examine the witnesses against them and to adduce evidence in their defense; and
3. The hearing must be summary in nature and shall as far as practicable be terminated at the earliest possible time.

“On the basis of the findings of the panel of investigators you shall submit appropriate recommendations.”

Later in the evening, the President contacted Muslim leaders of Lanao del Norte to get their views on the situation in the province, and to ask them to cooperate by exerting their influence in the maintenance of peace and order in that province.

The President has been informed that a platoon of A Company of the 26th Infantry Battalion stationed at Magsaysay, Lanao del Norte was attacked by armed bands.

It was also reported that a reenforcement sent to Magsaysay was ambushed four kilometers before reaching the town proper, resulting in the killing of three officers and 14 enlisted men.

The President focused on desk work the whole morning and part of the afternoon.

In a message he issued earlier on the occasion of United Nations Day, the President said:

“This is an affirmation of faith in the fact that while the United Nations may not have completely fulfilled all’ hopes for peace of our human community, majority of the world’s nations find in the United Nations a viable instrument for strengthening the foundation of international understanding, cooperation and security.

“While the United Nations remains until now a forum where, one hears all expressions of disappointment about its supposed failure to enforce peace in many sensitive and troubled areas in the world, it; also remains the same forum where hopes for a better future for mankind continue to be raised and heard by all.

“For all its deficiencies, the United Nations constitutes a sturdy framework in which international cooperation in all fields of human development may be pursued by nations large and small, with equal voice and opportunity. It is but fitting, therefore, that on this day, the Filipino people rededicate themselves to the ideals that have made the United Nations the last sanctuary of our hopes, particularly in times of instability, grave peril, or war itself.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the Philippine Army to take over the job of maintaining peace and order in Lanao del Norte, even as he sent Brig. Gen. Rafael Ileto to the province to assess the situation. “If necessary, I will bring the army strength in the province to division level to maintain peace and order there,” the President said.

The President had been informed that four armed bands operating in the province had been identified and that operations were being conducted against them.

Because of the pressure of work, which necessitated his presence in the Palace, the President was not able to attend the Second Regional Convention of the Asian and Australia Hotel and Restaurant Association, held at the Hotel International in the morning.

He asked Tourism Commissioner Gregorio Araneta II to read for him his prepared speech for the occasion.

In the afternoon, the President had an interview with Teddy Locsin, Jr. of the Philippines Free Press. He also met briefly with Malacañang newsmen.

The President's interview with Locsin centered mostly on fiscal and economic matters, while his talks with the Malacañang newsmen focused on the entry of Red China into the United Nations and the peace and order condition in Mindanao, particularly in Lanao del Norte.

In connection with the admission of the People's Republic of China into the U.N. and the expulsion of the Republic of China (Taipei) from the world organization, the President made the following statement:

"The Philippines will continue to have fruitful and friendly relations with Nationalist China, which is recognized by 59 other states, 56 of whom are members of the United Nations. At the same time, we will now have to study in greater depth the prospects, opportunities and problems of increased contacts with the People's Republic of China.

"If Communist China accepts membership in the United Nations and enters it with a conciliatory and cooperative attitude, the prospects of solving certain vital problems before the U.N. would be greatly enhanced. International cooperation for economic and social development could likewise benefit from the contributions and experience of Communist China. Furthermore, Communist China could provide a constructive and effective leadership to the so-called third world."

ANOTHER meeting on the rice problem and a welcome reception on the arrival of the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, from her trip abroad, highlighted the President's day which was comparatively a busy one for him.

In the morning, after a brief stint at his desk, the President met with the local officials and leaders of Cotabato on the peace and order condition in that province.

The President then repaired to the Maharlika Hall for the meeting with rice traders, millers, retailers and market vendors from Manila and the neighboring provinces on the problem of the "disappearing rice" in Manila and suburbs. Also present at the meeting were officials of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and of the Rice and Corn Administration led by Secretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., and Undersecretary Jose Drilon, Jr., concurrent RCA chairman; Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio Quiazon, concurrent chairman of the Price Control Council (PCC); and Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes.

In the course of the conference, the President suspended temporarily the implementation of the ceiling prices fixed for commercial rice by the PCC on condition that no rice would be sold at over ₱3 per ganta.

At the same time, the President directed the RCA to maintain a regular daily injection of 21,000 cavans of rice in the Greater Manila area, which had a normal requirement of only 18,000 cavans a day.

The President ordered the suspension of the PCC price ceiling when the rice traders and millers promised that they would mill their palay flood the market with commercial rice at ₱2.80.

During the open forum, the President received numerous complaints on alleged inefficiency and red tape on the part of RCA people. The President asked the RCA management to gather all the complaints and to investigate them, and to submit a report to him.

At 3:30 p.m. the President motored to the Manila International Airport to meet the First Lady, who arrived at 4:00 p.m. from a 16-day diplomatic mission abroad, which included meetings with Prime Minister Indira Ganhi of India and President Richard Nixon of the United States and attendance on behalf of the Philippines at the 2,500th foundation anniversary celebration of the Persian empire.

While in the United States, Mrs. Marcos also attended the inauguration of new wing of the Institute of Arts of the University of Michigan. Among the welcomers were some members of the Cabinet, diplomatic corps and Congress, and their ladies.

Back in Malacañang at 5 p.m., the President sat down with some local officials from northern Luzon, who discussed matters affecting their respective constituencies.

In the evening, the President was guest at the “Straight from the Shoulder” television program of Evening News columnist Luis Beltran. The TV interview was broadcast from the Malacañang Music Room.

October 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a long list of callers, notable among whom were Senator Arturo Tolentino and Rep. Ali Dimaporo, with whom he conferred privately; top officials of the First National City Bank of New York; and officials of labor unions of government corporations.

Later in the day, the President received a group of mayors from Pampanga, led by Gov. Francisco Nepomuceno. The meeting was also held privately.

Throughout the day congressmen and governors were received by the President. Among them were Reps. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, and Marcelino Veloso of Leyte; Governors Julian Pacificador of Antique, Gualberto Lumauig of Ifugao, and Recaredo Castillo of Surigao del Sur.

The FNCB officials who called on the President to pay their respects were Walter B. Wriston, chairman and chief executive; William J. Spencer, president; and Samuel Eastabrook, vice president. They flew into town for a joint meeting here of the FNCB board of directors and trustees, the first to be held outside the U.S. mainland.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros and Ramon Orosa, FNCB resident vice president.

The delegation of the Confederation of Unions in Government Corporations (CUGCO) was led by Antonio Ancheta of the Government Service Insurance System.

The union officials assured the President that they were not planning to strike as reported in the newspapers but that they merely wanted to take their problems to the President and enlist his assistance in solving them.

Ancheta and his group said they were protesting the issuance of a circular by OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez requiring managements of government corporations to first consult him before entering into agreements with the unions.

The President directed Secretary of Labor Adrian Cristobal and Administrator Rodriguez to sit down with the CUGCO officials and chart the way toward the preservation of industrial peace in government corporations.

The President continued to see visitors throughout the day whenever he was not busy with other state problems.

President's Week in Review: October 29 - November 4, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a crowded morning schedule, topped by conferences with officials on certain projects of the government, and with political leaders on the November 8 elections.

The President started the day with a meeting with SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro and GSIS Chairman-General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. on the government's housing projects.

This was followed by private conferences with Senator Jose J. Roy, acting Nacionalista Party president, and Sen. Arturo Tolentino; and later with NP senatorial candidates Ernesto Maceda, Blas F. Ople, Alejandro Almendras, Tito Primicias and Leonila Garcia.

Also received by the President were Reps. Fermin Caram of Iloilo Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, Lamberto Macias and Jose Pro. Teves of Negros Oriental, who discussed local problems with him.

The President finished receiving callers at past 2 p.m. After a belated lunch, the President took a brief rest and then attended to paper work the rest of the afternoon.

He directed Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to issue a proclamation declaring November 1 a special public holiday, and a memorandum order creating a committee to take charge of the reception, as well as the funeral arrangements and interment of the late Col. Jesus Villamor hero of World War II.

The President declared November 1 a special public holiday to give the people full opportunity to observe All Saints' Day with the proper religious spirit.

In his order creating the committee to handle funeral arrangements and interment of Col. Villamor, the President noted that the hero "demonstrated the highest tradition of Filipino valor and patriotism when he single-handedly opposed the Japanese "zeros" at the outbreak of the Pacific War in 1941."

The President said it is fitting that a proper reception be given his remains and funeral arrangements be accorded Col. Villamor, "in grateful recognition of his indomitable courage and willingness to offer his life that all of us may live in peace and freedom."

The President named Brig. Gen. Jesus Z. Singson, PAF commanding general, as chairman of the committee, with CAA Director Epifanio Raymundo as vice chairman, and the following as members: Col. Agustin Marking; a representative of the US Armed Forces; Judge Florencio Villamor, representing the hero's family; and Col. Miguel Villamor of the AFP.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, tendered a dinner at the Maharlika Hall in honor of the visiting directors and trustees of the First National City Bank of New York, during which he conferred the Golden Heart Presidential Award on FNCB chairman Walter B. Wriston.

Wriston was cited for his outstanding services to the country through the "determined application of the progressive policies which have made the institution he heads not only an international company but a real and productive part of the development of nations."

Present at the conferment ceremony, held at the Maharlika Hall, were FNCB officials, heads of government financing institutions, representatives of the Bankers Association of the Philippines and the Senate and House committees on banking.

October 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS held a confrontation meeting with military top brass and civic authorities of Lanao del Norte and Lanao del Sur and convinced them that the only way to end violence in the two provinces was by cooperating with one another.

With the approval of other top officials, and civic and religious leaders from the two provinces, the President forged an agreement for the solution of the peace and order problem obtaining there.

The President warned that should the formula fail, it was “my intention to organize a special unit to operate in Lanao del Norte immediately after the elections, with the active participation of Muslims, especially in local governments.”

After the two-and-a-half hour conference, during which both sides expressed mutual recriminations and blamed each other for the outbreak of violence, the President ordered:

1. The establishment of a liaison group to clarify any misunderstanding between the two groups for the apprehension and arrest of all outlaws, whether Muslims or Christians.
2. The assignment of Muslim officers in joint commands with Christian officers in the PC command in Lanao del Norte.
3. The withdrawal of any troops not belonging to the regular PC unit from the province of Lanao del Sur.
4. The release of ₱100,000 for the relief and assistance to be extended to evacuees from Lanao del Norte and had gone to Lanao del Sur.
5. The study of the need to postpone elections in Lanao del Norte where it was reported that there are many ghost towns.

The President also announced that he was offering rewards for the capture, or for information leading to the capture of leaders or members of outlaw bands, or of the surrender of firearms:

He asked Rep. Ali Dimaporo, Brig. Gen. Mamarinta Lao ret. and Vice Gov. Malamit Umpa to meet immediately with Undersecretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff, Brig. Gen. Rafael Iletto, PA commander, to work out a joint operations plan.

This joint operations plan would be carried out jointly by the military and the Muslim communities against all outlaws, with the Ilagas as priority targets as well as Muslim outlaws.

Among those present at the conference which ended at 2:30 p.m. were Senators Mamintal Tamano and Leonardo B. Perez, who is chairman of the Senate committee on national defense; Undersecretary Plana; Gen. Yan, Maj. Gen. Romeo Espino, vice chief of staff; Gen. Iletto, Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, Cols. L. T. Penares, G. A. Pecache, C. C. Campos and I. de los Reyes; Lt. Col. M. B. Bangcola; Rep. Dimaporo, Vice Gov. Umpa, Gov. Mandangan Dimakuta, former Gov. Madki Alonto, former Rep. Amir Mindalano, Gen. Lao, Datu Asis Mindalano and Rev. Robert McKinnie of Lanao del Sur.

Earlier in the morning, the President received some callers, most of whom were mayors and barrio captains who discussed local matters with him.

The President devoted the rest of the day to other urgent matters of state and paper work.

October 31—

WITH NO scheduled callers to attend to President Marcos had; all the time for important desk work in the morning and afternoon.

The President started working on official papers at mid-morning, knocking off at 12:45 p.m. for lunch and rest. He resumed his paper work at about 3 p.m., in the course of which he signed, among others, the designation of Vicente P. Rodriguez, project director of the Bureau of the Treasury, as acting national treasurer.

Rodriguez succeeded Ubaldo Carbonell, who died on October 28 following a heart attack.

PRESIDENT MARCOS took advantage of the holiday to catch up with his paper work.

In the course of the day, the President also received briefings from some party leaders on the status of the election campaign.

November 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received scheduled callers in the morning, among them Michael V. Stolen, outgoing vice-president of the First National City Bank of New York, on whom he conferred the Golden Heart Presidential Award.

The President conferred the award on Stolen “in recognition of his signal service to the nation during his stewardship of the FNCB of New York in which he manifested a sincere concern for the country’s development and a friendship for the Filipinos.”

Present at the award ceremony, which was held at the President’s study, were Sen. Lorenzo Teves, Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, who read the citation, and FNCB officials led by incoming Vice President Eastabrooks and Ramon Orosa, resident vice president.

The President spent the rest of the afternoon and early evening working on piles of official papers in his private study.

November 3—

The President had another day devoted mostly to desk work and important matters of state.

The only scheduled callers received by the President were two ranking Indonesian military officers, who made a courtesy call following their arrival for a round of talks with their counterparts in the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Those who called on the President were Major Gen. Tjokropranolo and Brig. Gen. Sofjar, chairman and manager, respectively, of the Indon Union Army Foundation which looks after the welfare of veterans, their widows and orphans.

The two generals, who were accompanied to Malacañang by Ambassador Modesto Farolan, had conferred earlier with Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff.

Early in the afternoon, the President flew to Pangasinan and La Union to assess the political situation with NP leaders of the two provinces. He Was back in Malacañang before sundown.

November 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS continued concentrating on desk work and important state business.

He was closeted in his private study after breakfast at 9 a.m., working on state papers and going over progress reports from the different agencies of the government.

The President followed the same work scheduled in the afternoon and early evening.

President's Week in Review: November 5-11, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reviewed with defense and military officials the peace and order situation in the country.

Present at the conference were Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Rafael Iletto, Philippine Army commander; Brig. Gen. Jesus Z. Singson PAF commander; Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, First PC Zone commander; and Commodore Dioscoro Papa, Flag Officer-in-command, Philippine Navy.

During the conference, the President gave the military officers guidelines to observe and follow in connection with the November 8 elections, to wit:

1. To put themselves at the disposal of the Commission on Elections, and give the COMELEC all possible support it needs to ensure a clean, orderly, peaceful elections; and
2. To prevent any disorder that may disrupt the voting.

Among other actions, the President promoted 1st Lt. Ramon P. Maddela to the rank of captain for the capture of Silvestre Mate y Abad, a Forbes Park kidnapper, less than 24 hours after the airborne escape of the latter.

Lt. Maddela was head of a team of jungle fighters of Task Force "Lawin" who tracked down and cornered Mate in Sitio Paitan, Maguisguis, Botolan, Zambales.

In promoting the PC officer, the President waived the provision of Circular No. 2 of GHQ which requires that a commissioned officer should have one year time in grade in the rank he is occupying prior to the promotion.

The President himself placed the shoulder board of a captain on Maddela in the presence of Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia PC Chiefs, and Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, First PC Zone commander.

Earlier in the morning, the President received Dame Margot Fonteyn, prima ballerina, who made a courtesy call.

The President also issued a proclamation declaring Saturday, November 6, and Tuesday, November 9, special public holidays.

Under the Election Code of 1971, the day of the election has been moved from the second Tuesday to the second Monday of November of the election year.

The proclamation was issued by the President to give personnel of the government and of private firms the opportunity to return to their respective provinces and exercise their sovereign right of suffrage.

Reports received by the President during the day included one on the capture by the PC of a commander of the National People's Army operating in Northern Luzon.

Captured was one commander Abrino Aydinan, who reportedly confessed to being the head of the organization department of the NPA in Northern Luzon.

Captain Santos Tutaan of the Ifugao PC, who reported the capture to the President, described Aydinan as half Ifugao and half Tarlakeño, and 20, years old.

November 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the nation in paying last homage to the late war hero, Col. Jesus Villamor, who was laid to rest at the Libingan ng mga Bayani in Fort Bonifacio at high noon.

The President left Malacañang at 11 a.m. and joined the funeral cortege at the gate of the Libingan at 11:30 a.m., together with other high ranking officials, representatives of the U.S. government led by Ambassador Henry Byroade, comrades in arms, close relatives and friends of the deceased.

As soon as the procession reached the burial site, the band played the Philippine National Anthem, a squadron of PAF jet fighters made a fly-by, and a PAF light plane sprayed the cortege with flowers.

The President then took the flag which had been carefully folded by the honor guard, and gave it to the tearful widow.

After the last rites, the casket was slowly lowered into the grave to the sound of muffled drums and “taps” and three volleys of musketry.

Back in Malacañang at about 12:30 p.m., the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, honored at luncheon Malacañang house guest Dame Margot Fonteyn.

Among those present at the luncheon were Australian Ambassador James Charles Ingram, members of the Australian Dance Company, and heads of local dance troupes.

November 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent the day working on state papers in his private study and keeping tab of the overall situation in the country, it —being eye of election day.

Throughout the day, the President received reports from leaders from North to South, who assured him that they were doing everything to insure clean and orderly elections, in cooperation with the Commission on Elections and other instrumentalities.

In an election eve message, the President asked every Filipino to “make of record, and to sanctify with the ballot, his own choice of men and women who should . . . be entrusted with some of the powers of government.”

“I ask our people to affirm their faith in our own capacity to stand together and work united under any circumstance, and to advance the cause of peace and progress instead of violence and hate,” the President said.

November 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS left Malacañang at 8 a.m. for the Manila International Airport where he boarded a light plane for his hometown of Batac to vote.

As in previous years, the President cast his vote at the town’s Precinct No. 11-A, located in a small industrial shop of the Batac Central Elementary School, across the street from the Marcos’ residence.

He was assigned Ballot No. 3777 and was the 72nd elector to cast his vote, out of a total 154 voters registered in the precinct.

Interviewed by media men upon emerging from the polling place, the President said that every election, especially after being elected to public office, he had taken every available means of transportation to reach his hometown, regardless of where he happened to be at the time.

He said he would like to hold it as a symbol for the Filipino people to appreciate the value of the right to vote.

Landing at the Gabu airport in Laoag at 9:35 a.m. aboard a light "Kingaire" plane, the President was met by local leaders headed by Gov. Elizabeth Marcos-Keon, Reps. Roque Ablan, Jr. and Simeon Valdez, Laoag City Mayor Eulalio Siazon and Mayor Feliciano Asuncion of Batac.

From the airport, the President motored direct to Batac, some 17 kilometers away, and upon arrival, he first dropped at the town church to offer a brief prayer, a ritual he had followed for years before proceeding to the nearby schoolhouse to vote.

The President was in the polling place for 10 minutes. With him was his mother, Mrs. Josefa Edralin-Marcos, who was assigned the next ballot, No. 3778. The President was listed down as No. 13 in the voters' registry and his mother No. 14.

The President was back in Malacañang at 2 p.m. After a belated lunch, the President rested briefly and then worked on official papers in his private study.

Toward evening, the President followed the trend of voting as reported by various television election programs.

November 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with United States Secretary of Treasury John B. Connally who called at Malacañang during a brief stopover in Manila enroute from Indonesia to Japan.

Following his two-hour meeting with the visiting U.S. secretary, the President said he had been assured by Secretary Connally that:

1. The United States had no intention of abandoning Taiwan;
2. Economic relations between the Philippines and the United States will continue to be for mutual advantage;
3. Philippine quota exports are exempted from the surcharge;
4. American aid to developing countries would continue; and
5. The United States would keep her presence in Southeast Asia as long as the peoples of Southeast Asia want her to.

Secretary Connally explained that President Nixon's projected visit to Peking was intended to prevent any miscalculation on the part, of the two big powers which might end in war and to ease the tension in Asia arising out of the confrontation between the United States and China.

Secretary Connally assured the President that economic relations between the Philippines and the United States would continue to their mutual advantage, pointing out that the Philippines was given a special and additional privilege in the matter of the 10 per cent surcharge on all U.S. imports.

The U.S. Treasury Secretary and his party arrived in Malacañang at 2:20 p.m. and were received by President and Mrs. Marcos.

While Secretary Connally was having a conference with the President and his fiscal advisers, Mrs. Connally and the other ladies in her party were received by the First Lady at the Music Room.

Present at the conference were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, BOI Chairman Vicente Paterno and Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros;

U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade, Deputy Assistant Secretaries of State William H. Sullivan and Herman Barger, Director of Bilateral Assistance Edgar Gordon, Minister William C. Hamilton, AID Director Thomas C. Niblock and Economic Counsellor Terrell E. Arnold.

After the conference, the President and the First Lady entertained the visiting U.S. officials at merienda.

Secretary Connally and his party left Malacañang at past 4:30 p.m. after bidding goodbye to the President and the First Lady.

The President attended to state papers and other urgent state matters the rest of the afternoon and early evening.

November 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked on official papers almost the whole morning and afternoon.

At 5:30 p.m., the President held a press conference at the State Dining Hall, during which he called for unity and cooperation from all sectors.

In his opening statement, the President also expressed satisfaction over the “exemplary conduct of our people in the elections of the 8th” which, he said, was a tribute to the capability of the Filipino people.

“It is an achievement of everyone, not just of any particular party or any group of men or any office or agency in government,” but of the entire Filipino people, he said.

The trend of the unofficial tallies at the time indicated that a majority of the new senators belong to the Opposition party, while on the local front about two-thirds to 70 per cent of all the local leaders or executives belong to the Nacionalista Party.

“My reading of the results of the elections,” the President said, “is to the effect that while the Constitution and our laws and traditions demand that I assume responsibility for decisions, policies, and their implementation for and on behalf of the party that is in power, because the Nacionalista Party still controls the majority in both chambers of Congress, the House of Representatives and the Senate, it is now-necessary that I consult every sector of our society, especially the political opposition. I hereby announce that I invite all the presidents of all political parties, including of course the Liberal Party, to accept the membership in all the various councils, especially in the Security Council, in the Foreign Policy Council, in the Council of Leaders, in the Development Council, and various other groups which I shall indicate in detail later on.”

November 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had another day devoted almost exclusively to desk work.

He was closeted in his private study from 9 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., and then from 2:20 p.m. till way past 5 p.m., when he took a breather for a round of golf at the Malacañang Park.

In the course of his afternoon paper work, the President addressed a letter to Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, commending the ROTC cadets for their splendid performance during the November 8 elections.

He hailed the ROTC cadets, including the women's auxiliary, as "exemplary young people, highly aware of their responsibility and obligation to our country."

The President said that their high ideals, splendid incorruptibility and courage did much to inspire in turn most of the people, who voted with calmness and prudence.

"I daresay their presence at the polling place in many parts of our country served both to reassure our people and to compel them to carry out their own obligation with continence and self-confidence," he said.

In saluting the ROTC cadets, the President also thanked all of those "who did their work well," adding that "they shine as fine examples of our youth."

The President asked Secretary Plana to convey his message to all concerned.

President's Week in Review: November 12-25, 1971

President's Week in Review: November 26 - December 2, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

November 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presented to the Philippine Marine Battalion the Presidential Unit Citation Badge of the Republic of the Philippines for outstanding service and exceptional gallantry and fidelity.

The Philippine Marine Battalion was cited for:

1. Outstanding participation in operations against dissidents in Luzon and pirates and outlaws in the Visayas and Mindanao;
2. Sincere participation in the government's socio-economic program;
3. High sense of courage and steadfast devotion to duty; and
4. Consistent manifestation of loyalty to the government.

The citation added that because of the firm conviction of the members of the unit in the tightness of their missions, they were able to discharge their tasks with courage and integrity, whenever called upon to undertake hazardous missions.

The unit was also lauded for its integrity and fidelity to duty when it helped police the polls, and participated in the socio-economic program, thus contributing in bringing the government closer to the people.

In presenting the citation, the President said that the Philippine Marine battalion had demonstrated the capability not only of the entire organization but of the individual officers and men, and therefore can be considered as a model for all the units in the entire armed forces.

The President personally pinned the citation badge on Capt. Rodiardo Brown, the unit commanding officer, while the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, placed the citation ribbon on the battalion colors.

Among those present at the Malacañang ceremony were Commodore Dioscoro E. Papa, PN flag-officer-in-command, and Commodore Gregorio Lira, Philippine Military Academy commandant and former commander of the Philippine Marines.

After the award ceremonies, the President received a few callers, and then repaired to his private study to work on state papers, in the course of which he:

- 1) Signed the designation of Social Security Commissioner Israel Bocobo as acting Undersecretary of Labor.

Commissioner Bocobo fills the post vacated by incumbent Secretary of Labor Adrian E. Cristobal.

- 2) Appointed five more Liberal Party nominees to vacancies in provincial boards and city councils, in accordance with the decentralization law.

The appointees replaced LP provincial board members and city councilors, who had resigned to run for other elective positions.

Named to provincial boards were Nicholas Baggao (Isabela) and Gregorio Awisan (Mt. Province), while Isidro Rubio (Pagadian City), Conrado Bueno (Baguio City), and Jose Buñi (Roxas City), were appointed city councilors.

November 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, after consultations with the Foreign Policy Council at a meeting in Malacañang in the morning, authorized Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo to sign the declaration of the foreign ministers of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) at Kuala Lumpur on the neutralization of Southeast Asia.

The declaration, which was signed by the five foreign ministers of ASEAN at 11:30 a.m. in Kuala Lumpur, would be ratified by the respective heads of government of the member-countries of ASEAN.

At the same time, the President created a committee that would take charge of preparations for the summit conference scheduled to be held in Manila about the middle of March 1972. Named to compose the committee were the Secretary of Foreign Affairs, as chairman, and the Department of Foreign Affairs, as secretariat, and the following as members:

Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, for economic matters; the chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, on military matters; Senator Gerardo Roxas or his representative, the chairmen of the committees on foreign relations of both Houses of Congress or their representatives, the President of the Constitutional Convention or his representative, and all heads of the political parties or their representatives.

Present at the meeting were Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Undersecretary of Commerce Eliseo Villamor, Undersecretary of Justice Estelito Mendoza, Undersecretary of Finance Alfredo Pio de Roda, PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, BOI Chairman Vicente Paterno, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad;

Senators Gerardo M. Roxas, Emmanuel Pelaez and Lorenzo M. Tañada, former Secretaries of Foreign Affairs Narciso Ramos and Felino Neri, Hans Menzi of the Manila Daily Bulletin, Sebastian Ugarte and Manuel Abad Gaerlan of the Philippines Herald; Eddie Monteclaro of the Manila Times, Emilio Aguilar Cruz of the Daily Mirror, J. Amado Araneta of the Weekly Nation, Leon O. Ty of the Examiner, Gregorio Brillantes of the The Leader, Andrew Velasco Go of the Daily Star and Neal H. Cruz of PACE Magazine.

Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Ernesto Singson, PAF chief; Commodore Dioscoro E. Papa, PN flag-officer-in-command; Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, acting PC chief; and Brig. Gen. Teodorico Almuete, PA Second Brigade commander, acted as resource persons.

In the course of his desk work in the afternoon, the President signed the designations of six labor officials to top posts in several bureaus and offices of the Department of Labor.

Appointed were Rachel E. Fidelino, as acting chairman of the Wage Commission; Edmundo T. Cabal, as acting director of the Bureau of Labor Relations; Cleto T. Villatuya, as acting associate commissioner of the Wage Commission; Diego P. Atienza, as acting director of the Bureau of Labor Standards; Eugenio I. Sagmit, Jr., as acting associate commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Commission; and Angelita Alberto-Gacutan, as acting associate commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Standards.

November 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS followed his weekend routine schedule of desk work.

In the course of the day, the President acted on a recommendation of Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos and State Prosecutor Jesus R. de Vega for the dismissal of an assistant city fiscal of Manila.

He issued an administrative order dismissing Assistant City Fiscal Salvador M. Gaa for grave misconduct in office and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service.

Secretary Abad Santos and Prosecutor De Vega found that the respondent fiscal had acted with “questionable bias and partiality” and recommended his removal from office “with prejudice to Reinstatement in any branch of the government.”

The President also named five more nominees of the Liberal Party to seats in three municipal boards left vacant by LP city councilors who had resigned to run for other elective positions.

Appointed by the President in accordance with the Decentralization Law and on recommendation of Sen. Gerardo M. Roxas, LP president, were Drs. Feliciano Vergara and Marius Abesamis, as members of the municipal board of Cabanatuan City; Vittorio Arnaldo and Ricardo Dorado, as members of the municipal board of Roxas City; and Eduardo Cartagena, as member of the city council of Basilan.

November 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received at breakfast General Robert Partridge (ret.), general manager of the National Rural Electrification Cooperatives Association (NRECA) of the United States, who arrived in the course of an inspection tour of NRECA-assisted countries.

During the call at Malacañang in the morning, the President underscored the crucial role of cooperatives in economic development, especially to a country with limited resources like the Philippines.

Gen. Partridge, in turn, assured the President that the NRECA would continue extending all-out support to the government’s rural electrification program designed to provide electric power and light up the outlying areas of the country.

Also present during the call were Col. Pedro Dumol of the National Electrification Administration, William Wenner, head of the NRECA team in the Philippines; Philips Parker, William Robert and Philips Costas, team members; Thomas Venables, coordinator, international programming division of the US-AID; and Terry Arnold, counselor for economic affairs of the U.S. embassy.

Toward noon, the President conferred with his top fiscal advisers on the government’s housing program for low-income employees.

The President instructed his advisers to map up ways by which small wage earners may be provided with adequate low-cost housing.

While engaged in desk work, the President signed an administrative order creating a special committee that would take charge of all arrangements in connection with the commemoration of Rizal Day on December 30.

He also ordered Secretary Estrella to set down the integrated targets of land reform, particularly on loans to small leaseholders, the acquisition of lands for subdivision and lease, and the opening of settlement projects.

The President received several callers up to 1 p.m., most of whom were local officials. He worked on state papers most of the afternoon.

In the evening, the President swore into office Social Security Commissioner Israel Bocobo as acting undersecretary of labor.

Present at the oath-taking held at the Malacañang Reception Hall were officials of the Department of Labor headed by Secretary Adrian E. Cristobal and Undersecretary Amado G. Inciong, close friends and relatives of the inductee led by his wife, and labor leaders, including Cipriano Cid of the PAFLU, Johnny Tan of the Federation of Free Workers, Themistocles Dejon of the Pinagbuklod na Manggagawang Pilipino-MPTUC, and Wage Commissioner Gerry Quadra.

December 2—

AMONG the first visitors to Malacañang was Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, who arrived from the ASEAN Foreign Ministers Meeting held in Kuala Lumpur from November 25–27.

Secretary Romulo submitted to the President a comprehensive report on the meeting which discussed the subject of neutralization of Southeast Asia and agreed to hold an ASEAN summit conference in Manila on or about the middle of March 1972.

On the basis of the secretary's report, the President expressed the belief that the ASEAN should undertake all initiatives to form a firm and lasting foundation for regional responsibility for the security and development of the region.

Shortly after the call of Secretary Romulo, the President received U. S. Ambassador Henry Byroade, with whom the President discussed matters of mutual interest to the Philippine and United States governments.

The President asked the U. S. government, through the ambassador, to support, as a further extension of the Nixon doctrine, the initiatives taken by the Southeast Asian countries for regional action and responsibility for security and development.

The Nixon doctrine promulgated in Honolulu envisaged a progressive assumption by the Asian countries of the responsibility for their own security.

Accordingly, the President has asked that negotiations on the Philippine-US military bases agreement be finalized and the respective negotiating panels set a date for the termination of such negotiations.

Also notable among the early morning callers was the group of 40 delegates of the 15 countries participating in the one-week Sixth Asian Electronics Conference.

The President told the group that the conference could help maintain peace and amity among nations by establishing strong ties through wider communications inter-linking the Asian nations.

The delegates, who were accompanied to Malacañang by Dr. Wigberto Clavecilla, head of the Clavecilla Radio Network, were headed by their respective chief delegates, namely:

L. M. Harris of Australia, Minister Hien-chu Fang of the Republic of China, V. Rajayanogama of Ceylon, J. San Agustin of Guam, M. G. K. Menon of India, Nayer Nouri of Iran, General Soelharjono of Indonesia, Minister Mokomoto of Japan, Mr. Oh of Korea, Mohammad Hassan of Malaysia, Brig. Gen. Godofredo Carreon of the Philippines, Tadao Inami of the Ryukyus, Sutjon Sattabuysa of Thailand and Pham Hun Hief of Vietnam.

Just before noon, the President saw Dr. Paterno Millare, mayor-elect of Bangued, Abra, who requested assistance in securing an SSS loan for a modern market for the town, to replace their obsolete market; and to request national government help in rehabilitating the town's water system.

From noontime to about 2 p.m., the President continued to receive callers, among them:

1. Governor-elect Lino Bocalan and Vice Governor-elect Dominador Camerino of Cavite, who came with Sen. Helena Benitez. They discussed the projected development of Sangley Point to make it productive for the people of the province.

The President, on his part, appealed to the new Cavite officials productive for the people of the province.

2. Sen. Mamintal Tamano, National Integration Commissioner Mama Sinsuat, and Cotabato Governor-elect Carlos Cajelo. Again the President focused on the restoration of peace and order in the region. Sen. Tamano indicated that he and Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez were working to bring together the leaders of Mindanao and Sulu and forge a united effort to make a hard and fast peace in the region.

3. Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, Reps. Fernando Veloso of Samar, Lamberto Marias of Negros Oriental, Pablo Malasarte of Bohol, Antonio Villar of Pangasinan, Antonio Diaz of Zambales, Teodulo Natividad of Bulacan, Pedro Medalla of Mindoro Occidental, and Jose Neri of Camiguin.

With the group were Governor-elect Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Gualberto Lumauig of Ifugao, Jaime Gomes of Mt. Province, Jose Roño of Western Samar, and other provincial officials, who discussed local problems with the President.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual had a busy day of callers and desk work, not to mention conferences and special concerns.

The President first received Takahiro Yamauchi, president of the Daiwa Securities of Tokyo, who paid a courtesy call. Yamauchi arrived on a business survey.

Then he met with representatives of the Cement Association of the Philippines, led by A. Diokno, president, on the problems of the industry.

During the meeting, the President took steps to help the cement industry and at the same time to protect the government's investment in the industry. He directed:

1. The Presidential Economic Staff to review the cost studies submitted by the various cement manufacturers and determine the merits of their petition for an increased price ceiling, and to submit its recommendations so he could confer with Acting-Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., concurrent chairman of the Price Control Council.

2. Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to meet with Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the DBP, which has large investments in the industry, and representatives of the Cement Association, with the view to authorizing the DBP to regulate the production, sale and/or exportation of cement.

The President, at the same time, assured the group that the government would do everything to save the industry while also protecting DBP loans extended to the industry.

He also asked PES Director-General Apolinario Oroso to prepare a memorandum study on the Free Trade Zone (FTZ) in order to speed up its completion.

The President expressed concern over the slow pace of development in the FTZ, even as he stressed that it should not be engaged by lack of funding because it is tied to the government policy[^] of creating a strong export trade.

Others received by the President included:

1. NBI Director Jolly Bugarin, who reported on his trip to Canberra where he attended an international conference on illegal drugs; and

2. Rep. Indanan Anni, who came with former Gov. Arzad Salih. They took up the unstable peace and order situation in Mindanao with the President.

The President received visitors up to early afternoon, but devoted the rest of the day to his desk work.

December 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presided over the initial meeting in the morning of the reinvigorated Development Council.

During the meeting, the body decided to continue with the program of a balanced agro-industrial economy so that agriculture could be given emphasis in financing and in the employment of the country's limited resources.

The advisory body, which took up the updated four-year development plan and various sectoral plans for the period from 1972 to 1975, was briefed by NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat on the overview of the four-year development program.

Under the updated plan, the country is divided into ten regions with specific objectives and targets for development for each particular region.

The body decided to continue with the program of a balanced agro-industrial economy so that agriculture could be given emphasis in financing and in the employment of the country's limited resources.

The Council also took up the rural employment program, which includes the whole gamut of agricultural activity like cattle dispersal, fisheries, backyard poultry, piggery, large scale farming through cooperatives, and others.

The Council, aside from Chairman Sicat's briefing, was also oriented by Joselito Gallardo of the Presidential Economic Staff on the fiscal and stabilization program; Roberto Fronda of the National Food and Agriculture Council on the need for nutrition; Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments on the rural employment program; Sen. Helena Z. Benitez, SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro and GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. on housing; and Rep. Ali Dimaporo and Constitutional Convention Delegate Francisco Abalos on peace and order.

Aside from its regular members, the meeting was also attended by local government officials, members of Congress and the Constitutional Convention, whom the President invited. They were asked by the President to go over the sectoral development plans pertaining to their respective regions and to submit their recommendations.

Present at the conference were Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Sen. Emmanuel Pelaez, Rep. Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao; Delegates Benjamin Campomanes, Julian Locsin, Artemio Lobrin, Domingo Guevarra, Honesto Mendoza, Celso Gangan, Lamberto Mardeno, Miguel Matsura, William Claver, Floro Bugnosen, Infante Calaycay, Fanny Cortez-Garcia of the Constitutional Convention;

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Juan L. Manuel of Education, Efren I. Plana of National Defense, Amadeo H. Cruz of Health, David Consunji of Public Works and Communications, Estefania Aldaba-Lim of Social Welfare, Constancio E. Castañeda of General Services, Conrado F. Estrella of Agrarian Reform; Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez of the Office of Economic Coordination; Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco;

PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, DBF Chairman Leonides S. Virata, PNB President Eusebio Villatuya, National Power Corporation Chairman Ramon Ravanzo, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Undersecretary of Commerce Eliseo Villamor, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Angel Yoingco of the Tax Commission;

Governors Vicente Alberto of Catanduanes, Lino Chatto of Bohol, Teresita Dupaya of Cagayan, Virgilio Lacaya of Zamboanga del Norte, Murphy Sangkula of Sulu and Jose Sering of Surigao del Norte;

Julio Francia of the Chamber of Industries, Miguel Arambulo of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, Yao Shiong Shio of the Federation of Filipino Chinese Chambers of Commerce, Jose Fernandez of the Bankers Association of the Philippines, Lorenzo Mariano of the Rural Bankers Association, Jose Ma. Soriano of Atlas Mining and Development, Antonio Infante of the Business for Social Progress, Greg Timbol of the Chamber of Small Industries, Cesar Zalamea of the Monetary Board, Manolo Elizalde, Francisco Cristobal of the Federation of Free Workers, Cipriano Cid of the Philippine Association of Free Labor Unions, and Themistocles Dejon of the Pinagbuklod Na Mga Manggagawa ng Pilipinas.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a day free of the usual callers but buckled down to desk work and other important state business.

Among other actions, he issued an administrative order amending the composition and functions of the Telecommunications Development Board, as follows:

The Secretary of Public Works and Communications, as chairman; the representative of the National Economic Council, as vice chairman; and the representative of the Public Service Commission; the Director of Telecommunications; the chief, Communications-Electronics of the AFP; representative of the Philippine Domestic Carrier; representative of the Philippine International Carrier; an official of the Philippine Chamber of Communications, Inc.; and a representative of the Radio and Television Broadcasting Association, as members.

The board was empowered to:

1. Study and plan the integration of the existing facilities and development program of the public and private sectors operating telecommunication services thereby insuring an orderly and economic development of the country;
2. Advise the Public Service Commission on effective rules and regulations on technical and operational standards conforming to Consultative Committees on International Telecommunications' recommendations for proper coordination of services in accordance with Section 13 and 16(b) of the Public Service Act.
3. Extend technical assistance and advice to government banking institutions in assessing technical aspects of loan applications for telecommunication services development to ensure the economic usage of funds granted and to avoid duplication of service facilities;
4. Maintain a complete record of technical facilities and equipment in the Philippines and of traffic data for national and international services;
5. Undertake such other duties as required by the President; and
6. Submit recommendations on matters of national importance pertaining to decisions of the board, as well as semi-annual reports to the President.

December 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with the officials concerned on the implementation of government projects, among them the Foreign Trade Zone, and on ways of speeding up their completion.

Present at the conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, DBP Chairman Leonides Virata, OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez, REPACOM Chairman Anacleto Mangaser, and FTZ Commissioners Dioscoro Manrique and Eugenia Banzon Jose.

During the meeting, the President ordered:

1. That plans for the 500-hectare trade zone be immediately¹ updated and studies made on how all government departments and agencies could be mobilized to help in successfully promoting the project;
2. Administrator Rodriguez to prepare for the implementation of a Cabinet decision to dispose of the shipbuilding facilities of the NASSCO within the FTZ. The Cabinet has decided that NASSCO facilities in the zone be leased or sold to the private sector on condition that a shipbuilding complex be set up in the area;

3. Director-General Orosa to submit a list of all industries that were receiving incentives but were not moving along satisfactorily;
4. The Reparations Commission to participate in the development in FTZ and other development projects;
5. The National Economic Council, the Board of Investments, the Presidential Economic Staff and the Reparations Commission to get together and undertake studies on how and where private industries and investments could be helped by the Reparations Commission;
6. That plans be drawn for the establishment of a copper smelting plant in the country; and
7. Coordination of all departments in the formulation of legislative proposals, including the proposed abolition of the Rice and Corn Administration and the setting up of rice and corn price levels.

After the conference, the President attended to a few scheduled callers, among whom were Governor-elect Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato, and Mayors Amando Laurel of Talisay, Batangas, and Lucio Gutierrez of Malabon, Rizal.

Cajelo informed the President of the need for some kind of reorganization of the military in the province. He said morale has gone down because of past incidents, indicating lack of trust in the military.

Mayors Laurel and Gutierrez apprised the President of the need of their towns for some urgent infrastructures.

At 5:30 p.m., the President motored to the studios of Channel 13 where he was guest at the “Vigilantes” TV program. The interview lasted for two hours.

December 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received two foreign delegations which paid courtesy calls following their arrival on separate missions here.

The President also received two local delegations which came to pledge their support to the administration, particularly to the intensified tax collection drive.

The first delegation to call on the President was a group of Norwegian manpower and labor-management relations experts invited to lecture at a two-day seminar under the joint sponsorship of the International Labor Organization and the Norwegian Agency for International Development in Quezon City, December 8 and 9.

Accompanied by Labor Undersecretary Amado G. Inciong, the delegation included Campbell Balfor of the United Kingdom; Lars Bjorheim, director of the Cooperation Council of the Norwegian Federation of Trade Unions and Norwegian Employers Confederation; Harry Oevar Hansen, teacher of Norwegian Trade Unions Residential School for shop stewards; Jon Rikard Ivarson, ILO expert; Nils Johan Schjander, general manager of Norwegian Institute for Personnel Management; and B. N. Datar, ILO Asian regional officer.

The second delegation which called on the President was a Mexican commercial mission headed by Eliseo Mendoza Berrueto, undersecretary of industry and commerce. The group was accompanied by Ambassador Pablo Padilla Ramirez.

The Mexican delegation informed the President that the purpose of its visit here was not only to promote closer commercial ties between the Philippines and their country, but also to look into the possibility of entering into joint economic ventures with Filipino entrepreneurs.

The delegation also offered to supply the Philippine National Railways with rolling stocks and spare parts.

The President told the delegation that he was glad they had come all the way across the Pacific to initiate trade ties and that the common history of the Philippines and Mexico should lead to better cooperation between the two countries.

The Mexican delegation also presented the President with a replica of a Mexican sombrero preserved in silver alloy and two Mexican shirts.

Other members of the delegation were Jose Bravo, assistant director of the Bank of International Industries; Luis Bravo, assistant director of finance; Jose Terrones, president of the Chamber of Industries and Transformation; Roberto Villa, economic assistant of the Chamber of Industries; Hector Menchaca of the National Board of Science and Technology; Joaquin Gamboa of the Board of Workers; and Francisco Lopez, secretary to Berrueto.

Bishop Macario Ga of the Iglesia Filipina Independiente called to pay his respect following his elevation to the post of Obispo Maximus of the IFI, after the death of Bishop Isabelo de los Reyes.

As new head of the IFI, Bishop Ga pledged the support of his church and those of his followers to the policies and future undertakings of the President and the First Lady, Imelda Romualdez Marcos.

The Chamber of Cigarette Manufacturers, on its part, pledged support and cooperation, through the chamber president, Ralph Nubla of Crown Tobacco, who called at Malacañang, to the President's campaign aimed at intensifying tax collections.

December 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, following a three hour meeting with the Foreign Policy Council that started at mid-morning, announced that the Philippines would adhere to a policy of "strict neutrality" in the India-Pakistan conflict.

The Council discussions centered on the conflict resulting in the Philippine position which, the President said, was "in accordance with our traditional position that we would like to stay clear of any hostilities and with the Constitutional mandate in which we renounce war as an instrument of national policy."

The conference also took up, among others, the proclamation of a state of emergency in South Korea and Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo's report on the recent conference of ASEAN foreign ministers in Kuala Lumpur. Secretary Romulo reported on the national emergency in Korea and on the latest development in the Thailand change of government.

Present at the Council meeting, held at the Malacañang State Dining Room, were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, former President of the Republic and Constitutional Convention President Diosdado Macapagal, Senators Lorenzo M. Tañada, Gerardo M. Roxas and Emmanuel Pelaez;

Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez; Secretaries Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Efren I. Plana of National Defense, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.; Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad; Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments;

Undersecretaries Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes of Foreign Affairs, and Estelito Mendoza of Justice; Ambassador Vicente Singian and Minister Armando Manalo of the Department of Foreign Affairs; former Secretaries of Foreign Affairs Raul S. Manglapus, Felino Neri, Narciso Ramos and Salvador P. Lopez; Sebastian Ugarte of the Philippines Herald, Hans Menzi of the Manila Daily Bulletin, Joaquin P. Roces and Eddie Monteclaro of the Manila Times, Neal H. Cruz of PACEMagazine, Manuel Benitez of the Daily Star, Luis Mauricio of the Graphic, Benjamin Campomanes of Manila Rotary Club and Miguel Arambulo of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines.

Before presiding over the Council meeting, the President presented certificates of appreciation to four American heart specialists as an official recognition of their contribution to furthering knowledge of cardiovascular diseases. Awarded certificates of appreciation in the presence of their wives were:

1. Dr Forrest Adams, president of the American College of Cardiology (AGC) and professor of pediatric cardiology, University of California, Los Angeles (UCLA);
2. Dr. Eliot Corday, ACC past president and clinical professor of medicine, UCLA;
3. Dr. William Likoff, ACC past president and clinical professor of medicine, Hahnemann University, Philadelphia; and
4. Dr. C. Walton Lillehei, ACC past president and professor in surgery, Cornell University, New York.

In presenting the awards, the President conveyed the appreciation and gratitude of the Filipino people for the assistance given them by the members of the American College of Cardiology, who concluded their 25th course which benefited some 1,200 Filipino doctors.

Dr. Mariano Alimurung of the University of Santo Tomas, Filipino governor of the American College of Cardiology, also received a certificate of appreciation for outstanding service as physician and surgeon, and for his positive leadership in the field of medicine.

Among those present at the presentation ceremony were Drs. Maria Grajo, Helen Abundo and Fr. Gabriel Pastrana, regent of the UST College of Medicine.

After the ceremony, the President conferred with some 25 delegates from Mindanao and Sulu to the Constitutional Convention in an effort to speed up the restoration of peace and order in that area.

After hearing the report and recommendations of the MINSUPALA delegates, through Delegate Roseller T. Lim, the President said that the basic problem still was the establishment of some kind of sanity in the area disturbed by outlaw bands.

He turned over the report and recommendations to the Presidential Economic Council and requested the delegates to consult with that office on the long range plan of developing Mindanao.

During the conference, the President also reiterated his proposal to establish security hamlets or villages where Muslim and Christian settlers could take refuge in case of attack and avail of the protection of the military and civil defense units.

Present at the conference were Delegates Sergio Toca, Antonio Velasco, Mike Matsura, Sandiale Sambolawan, Midpantao Adil and Anacleto Badoy, and Datu Duma Sinsuat of Cotabato; Maria Clara Lobregat, Roseller T. Lim, Antonio Geniza and Ramon Blancia of Zamboanga del Sur; Mariano Badelles and Francisco Abalos of Lanao del Norte; Eri-berto B. Misa, Fanny C. Garcia of Surigao; Antonio Olmedo of Davao Oriental; Jesus Matas of Davao del Sur; Lamberto Mordeno of Agusan del Sur; Edelmiro Amante of Agusan del Norte; Fidel Purisima of South Cotabato; Augusto Saguin and Adolfo Azcuna of Zamboanga del Norte; Tating Sangkula of Sulu; Alfredo Lagawon of Bukidnon; Pedro Romualdo of Camiguin ; and Julio Ozamis of Misamis Occidental.

December 9—

It was another crowded day for President Marcos in the way of visitors. Among the notable callers was a group composed of fellows of the White House, Washington, D.C., who arrived in Manila in the course of an Asian tour to learn first-hand about conditions in this part of the world.

Those who called on the President were Lt. Col. Richard E. Stephenson, U.S. Army; Majors Rober A. Day of the Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army; and John S. Grinald and Robert C. McFarlane of the U.S. Marine Corps; Glen R. Kendall of Dartmouth College; John M. Maurice of Boise Cascade Corporation; Brandon W. Cweitzer of McKinsey and Company, and Arthur E. Dewey, director of the Presidential Commission on White House Fellows. They were accompanied by John David Forbes, second secretary of the United States Embassy in Manila.

A visiting Italian official, Luigo Martelli, turned over to the President a donation of $10,000 from his government, to help the victims of Typhoon Yoling.

The President had two conferences, one behind closed doors with Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, and the other with Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina who reported that customs collections have again scaled upward.

The President also received several delegations, among them:

1. A group of incoming provincial officials of Quirino province, along with Senator Leonardo Perez and Rep. Benjamin Perez, who witnessed the swearing in of the elected officials: Gov. Dionisio C. Sarandi, Vice-Gov. Silverio L. Pascua, and Board Members Nolasco S. Mandac and Epitacio Ugoban.
2. Governor elect Juan Frivaldo of Sorsogon, accompanied by Rep. Rafael Aquino, who made representations for the early completion of the Philippine National Railways extension line to that province from Guinobatan, Albay to Matnog, Sorsogon, a distance of 163 kms. Gov. Frivaldo noted that the right-of-way for the line has been acquired and that a foreign firm has offered to undertake the project in two years on a turn-key basis.
3. Bukidnon Gov. Carlos Fortich who sought the early settlement of a land dispute in the province. The President referred the case to the proper agencies with instructions to expedite the disposal of the problem.

Other officials who called included Gov. Elias Lopez of Davao Oriental, Reps. Artemio Mate of Leyte, Fermin Caram of Iloilo and Lucas Cauton of Ilocos Sur. The solons consulted the President on local problems.

While engaged in desk work in the afternoon, the President directed Chairman Crispino de Castro of the Police Commission to submit a detailed and comprehensive report on all police organizations in the country. He also informed the POLCOM chairman that he was going over the recommendees for POLCOM associate commissioners in order that that body could effectively carry out police reforms.

Among other actions, the President certified to the Court of Industrial Relations the four-month labor dispute at the Victorias Milling Company.

Undersecretary of Labor Amado G. Inciong recommended certification of the dispute after conciliation efforts had failed.

President's Week in Review: December 10-16, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS addressed the Second Annual Conference on Business Prospects for 1972, held at The Plaza in Makati, Rizal by leading business leaders of the country.

In his address, the President told the business community of the bright prospects for business for the ensuing year.

The President, at the same time, called on the private sector for cooperation, pointing out that while the President could provide the plans and the necessary incentives and encouragement, much of the vital work and the funding must come from the private sector.

From the conference site, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, motored to the Manila International Airport to welcome General and Madame Ne Win of Burma, who made a brief stopover enroute to Rangoon from Tokyo.

The First Couple arrived at the MIA at 2 p.m. and had to wait up to 3:20 p.m. when the jetliner of the Burma Airlines landed.

As soon as the plane taxied to the MIA apron to refuel, the President and Mrs. Marcos, accompanied by Ambassador Maung Maung of Burma and other Philippine officials, proceeded to the ramp to wait for the two distinguished visitors.

The First Couple greeted the General and his wife and took them to the VIP kiosk where they exchanged amenities for some 30 minutes.

At 4:15 p.m., the First Couple escorted the visiting Burmese general and his wife to their plane, which took off 10 minutes later.

The President and the First Lady were back in Malacañang at about 5 p.m.

In the course of his paper work later in the day, the President signed the appointments of two more nominees of the Liberal Party to vacancies in provincial and city boards, as well as three individuals to posts in the government.

Appointed to local boards were Teodoro Calizo, as member of the provincial board of Aklan; and Nemesio C. Monton, as member of the city board of Tagbilaran City.

Other appointees were Felipe H. Pads, as branch clerk of court of the Court of First Instance of Rizal, Caloocan branch; Eufemiano M. Asuncion, as municipal judge of Burgos, Isabela; and Lamberto Flores, as provincial treasurer of Oriental Mindoro.

December 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS put in a full measure of desk work, receiving only a couple of department officials who took up with him- matters concerning their offices.

Early in the evening, the President received the member of the Malacañang Press Corps.

Asked to comment on the unanimous decision of the Supreme Court upholding his suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, the President declined to make any statement saying he has not received any official report on the matter.

December 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with defense and military leaders, and representatives of government agencies involved in the peace and amelioration work in the Cotabato and Lanao provinces.

After an extended briefing on the various activities in the area, the President directed that:

1. All possible measures be adopted to encourage the evacuees to return to their old homes;
2. Payment of reparations should be limited to actual casualties and properties destroyed as a result of the military operations; and
3. A plan be worked out to provide employment to the evacuees and for the prompt restoration or reactivation of paralyzed public services.

During the meeting, the President also directed:

1. Maj. Gen. Romeo Espino, vice chief of staff; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa to get together and prepare a long range plan for the economic and social development of the area;
2. Secretary Melchor and Director-General Orosa to submit a check list of economic activities which had been disrupted and which should be restored to normalcy, as well as the various government agencies that should get involved in such effort;
3. The Department of Social Welfare to conduct a physical count of the refugees which may form the basis for long range government planning, and to import the 10,000 to 13,000 metric tons of wheat donated by Australia to the Philippines for the use in the amelioration work in the Lanao and Cotabato provinces;
4. The Department of Public Works and Communications to move in equipment and men to repair the bad roads in the provinces in question to facilitate the return of the evacuees and the economic development of the people; and
5. The military to proceed with the establishment of security centers, particularly in Lanao del Norte where, according to Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, 97,000 farmers, both Muslims and Christians, had left their farms and homes.

The President also directed Secretary Melchor to request the Envelopment Bank of the Philippines to set aside funds for small crop loans and to set up a temporary lending office right in the farming area in Kapatagan.

Present at the conference which lasted for about two hours, were: Undersecretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana, Undersecretary for Home Defense Jose M. Crisol, Undersecretary of Social Welfare Petra de Joya, Rep. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Gen Manuel T. Yian, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Rafael Iletto, PA commander; Brig. Gen. Crispino de Castro, chairman of the Police Commission; Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Domingo Tutaan, 4th PC zone commander; Commodore Dioscoro E. Papa, PN flag-officer-in-command; Brig. Generals Fidel Ramos and Wilfredo Encarnacion, and Col. Bienvenido Castro and A. N. Venadas.

The whole afternoon, was spent by the President on urgent desk work.

December 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with Admiral John S. McCain, Jr., commander in chief of the U. S. armed forces in the Pacific, during the monthly meeting of the RP-US Mutual Defense Board at Camp Aguinaldo at noon. The American admiral and Gen. Manuel Yan, AFP chief of staff, are the co-chairmen of the board.

Admiral McCain, who used to be represented in the meetings of the board by Rear Admiral George A. Muse, was asked by the President to be personally present at the meeting so that the admiral could brief him on conditions in the Pacific area.

At the meeting, the President assured the Americans of the determination of the Philippines “to dismantle the Communist apparatus in our country.”

He said that the principal threat against the Philippines continues to be internal subversion.

Aside from members of the board, present at the meeting were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and Acting Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana.

Back in Malacañang at about 4 p.m., the President spent the rest of the afternoon and early evening going over state papers. Among others, he signed a proclamation authorizing the Center for Educational Television, Inc. to conduct an educational and fund campaign for a period of six months, from January 1 to June 30, 1972.

In his proclamation, the President pointed out that the center, in its program stage, has demonstrated that television is a valid medium of instruction and has educational and pedagogical advantages, including the presentation of high quality instruction to widespread student audiences, the modernization of the curriculum, advanced in-service training and substantial in-class aid for teachers; the introduction of audio-visual aids into classrooms; and stimulating innovations in school curricula.

PRESIDENT MARCOS had greater opportunity to concentrate on his desk work, with callers not heavy as usual.

In the morning, he had only two ceremonies to attend to, one, the presentation of credentials by the new envoy from Finland, Ambassador Aarno Eino Karliho, a non-resident diplomatic representative of his country to the Philippines. At the rites, the President expressed the hope that the two countries would work more closely in attaining common goals. Ambassador Karliho conveyed his country’s hopes for the continuing growth and progress of the Philippines, while affirming his country’s policy of strict neutrality in world affairs.

Present at the ceremony were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary of Agrarian Reform Conrado F. Estrella, Secretary of General Services Constancio E. Castañeda; and Undersecretaries of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes.

Later in the morning, the President inducted Judge Arsenio Solidum as the presiding judge of the court of first instance of Albay and Legaspi City.

Present at the induction were high government officials and close friends and relatives of the inductee, among them: Sen. Lorenzo Teves, Reps. Jose Alberto of Catanduanes, Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte and Carlos Imperial of Albay; Gov. Vicente Alberto of Catanduanes, and Mrs. Aurora Solidum, wife of the inductee.

The President had no other callers of note the rest of the day except for a group of mayors from Rizal province, who consulted him on peace and order problems and made representations for the release of barrio improvement funds to the municipality of the province.

Among those who called on the President were Mayors Florencio Bernabe of Paranaque, F. del Rosario of Navotas, F. Aguilar of Las Piñas, M. Tanyag of Taguig, E. Flores of Pateros, A. C. Esguerra of Taytay, Osmando de Guzman of Marikina, N. Roxas, of San Mateo, T. Rodriguez of Montalban, F. Felix of Cainta, B. Fenesa of Baras, L. Aquino of Pililla, F. Javier of Mandaluyong, A. Natividad of Teresa; Mayors-elect S. Tiongson of Angono, C. Yonasco of Binangonan, Jose Cruz of Malabon and F. Pasay of Cardona.

The rest of the work day was spent by the President at his desk, where he went over state papers and considered and acted on other government business.

December 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with the bipartisan Foreign Policy Council at the Malacañang State Dining Room, on the question of establishing diplomatic and trade relations with some socialist countries including Soviet Russia and the People's Republic of China.

During the meeting, a consensus had been reached within the bipartisan Council that the Philippines establish formal diplomatic and trade relations with some Eastern European Socialist countries.

No decision however had been arrived at in the case of Soviet Russia and the People's Republic of China because of, among others, the Indian, Pakistani conflict, which threatened to involve the major powers.

Present at the conference held from 10 a.m. "to 12 noon were former President of the Republic and Constitutional Convention President Diosdado Macapagal, Sen. and LP President Gerardo M. Roxas, Acting Speaker Jose Aldeguer, Senators Lorenzo M. Tañada and Emmanuel Pelaez; House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez;

Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs and Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.; Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad; Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments;

Undersecretaries Jose Ingles and Manuel Collantes of Foreign Affairs, Efren I. Plana of National Defense, and Estelito Mendoza of Justice; Ambassador Vicente Singian, former Secretaries of Foreign Affairs Felino Neri, Narciso Ramos and Salvador P. Lopez; Joaquin P. Roces of the Manila Times, Manuel Abaci Gaerlan of the Philippines Herald, Benjamin Rodriguez of the Manila Daily Bulletin, Neal H. Cruz of PACE Magazine, Antonio V. Roces of the Daily Star, Luis Mauricio of the Graphic, Benjamin Campomanes of Manila Rotary, Miguel Arambulo of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines and Julio Francia of the Chamber of Industries.

Following the Council meeting, the President addressed the members of the Philippine Muslim Lawyers League who called at Malacañang shortly afternoon, at the opening of their second national conference.

The President appealed to all Muslim leaders to participate actively as concerned citizens in the restoration of peace and order in the troubled areas in Mindanao.

Introduced by Sen. Mamintal Tamano, league president, the President expressed hope that the four-day convention of the league would come up with specific recommendations and offer workable solutions to the Mindanao problem.

Later, the President issued a provincial circular urging provincial governors, city mayors, municipal mayors and other local officials, to conduct a campaign discouraging temporarily local folk from emigrating to settlements in Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur and Cotabato.

He issued the circular "in view of the unsettled peace and order condition in those provinces arising from animosities between Christians and Muslims directly resulting from controversies and conflicts over land."

Upon learning of the death of I. P. Soliongco later in the day, the President issued the following message of condolence:

I am deeply grieved to learn of the sudden demise of Mr. I. P. Soliongco of the Manila Chronicle.

The nation has lost in his passing a distinguished man of letters, a leading journalist and a dedicated nationalist.

Through four decades of writing for the Philippine press, he represented to all of us the best in the life of the intellectual. He brought to his work learning, compassion and a consuming interest in the larger concerns of our society. And among his many legacies, he taught many of us the meaning of pride and self-esteem.

To the very last, he was this kind of unfailing witness among us, and we can only regret the void that this tragedy now leaves behind.

To his bereaved kin, and to the Manila Chronicle, my family and I extend our deepest sympathy and condolence.

The President attended to official papers and other urgent state matters in the afternoon.

December 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, together with their son Ferdinand, Jr. (Bongbong) played Santa Claus in the afternoon to thousands of indigent children, who were special guests at the “Maligayang Pasko 71”, the children’s festival in Malacañang.

The children came from the different orphanages and slum communities in the Greater Manila area.

Santa Claus in person regaled the young guests when he descended on the Palace grounds in a helicopter.

In brief remarks welcoming the children, Ferdinand, Jr., who arrived from England for the Christmas holidays, conveyed the greetings of the season on behalf of his family.

The First Couple and Bongbong mingled freely with the children, and obviously enjoyed the afternoon as much as the youngsters.

Earlier in the day, the President met with some 1,000 incumbent and newly-elected national, provincial, city and municipal officials, including Nacionalistas, Liberals and the uncommitted, as well as chiefs of police and Philippine Constabulary officers.

During the two-hour meeting held at the Maharlika Hall, the President called particular attention to the establishment of “rural sanctuaries by the subversives from which they plan to expand their influence through politicalization and para-military operations to pave the road for the actual Communist take-over.”

Citing Isabela and other provinces where subversive activities have been on the increase, the President said “it is now quite obvious that they are implementing the original program of the Communist Party of the Philippines to erode the faith and confidence of the people in their leaders and the government so that they will no longer resist Communists.”

He mentioned Ilocos Sur, Mt. Province, Kalinga-Apayao, Benguet, Ifugao, Cagayan, Central Luzon, Laguna and Camarines Sur as the other areas.

The President said there would be no compromise in the fight against criminality and the full protection of the law would be accorded to peace officers in the performance of their duties in the drive against crime.

Present at the conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Defense Secretary Efren Plana, Public Works Undersecretary Baltazar Aquino, PACD Officer-in-Charge Rosendo Marquez, Senator Helena Benitez, Reps. Rodolfo Albano of Isabela, Jose D. Aspiras of La Union and Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur;

Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Eduardo Garcia, chief of the PC; Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, I PC zone commander; Brig. Gen. Zosimo Paredes, II PC zone commander; Brig. Gen. Tomas Diaz, Task Force Lawin commander; Cols. Tomas Karingal, and Celestino Rosea, chiefs of police of Quezon and Caloocan, respectively and Col. James Barbers, Deputy chief of the Police Department.

After attending to few scheduled callers toward noon, the President and the First Lady honored at luncheon Governor and Madame Ali Sadikin of Jakarta. Governor Sadikin arrived in Manila to receive the Ramon Magsaysay Award for government service for 1970.

As usual the President devoted the rest of his working hours to official papers and other state business.

President's Week in Review: December 17-23, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received numerous provincial delegations and business groups.

First to be received by the President was the group representing the National Federation of Sugarcane Planters led by its president, Carlos Ledesma, and accompanied by Ambassador Ramon Nolan and Sugar Quota Administrator Jose Unson.

During his meeting with the sugar planters, the President extended the life of the social amelioration program of the sugar industry indefinitely until Congress shall have passed an alternate measure.

He told officials of the National Federation of Sugarcane Planters that he would like to make the social amelioration program, which was started in 1968, a continuing scheme in the absence of legislation that will give the sugar workers a fair share of the profits of the industry.

Because of the failure of Congress to establish a social amelioration fund for the sugar industry, the President directed the Sugar Quota Board to extend the collection of the ₱1 levy per picul indefinitely.

At the same time, the President told the sugarcane planters to request sugar millers indebted to the Philippine National Bank to pay their amortizations on time to enable the PNB to extend more crop loans to the sugar planters.

Among those who called on the President, aside from Carlos Ledesma, were Jaime Dacanay, M. Bagabaldo, Roberto Lian Tada, Marino Rubin, Rosendo Coruña, Desideria Miranda, Jose Montalbo, Erwin Bautista, and Enrique Rojas.

Following his meeting with the sugarcane planters, the President repaired to the Maharlika Hall where he received a number of provincial delegations which included:

1. The Albay delegation, which sought assistance in the form of operational funds, repair of public works facilities, the Manila South Road, avid support for the peace and order drive in the Bicol region.
2. The Marawi City delegation, headed by Mayor Omar Dianalan, which consulted the President on the economic and social development program for Lanao and Cotabato provinces. The group was accompanied by Pauti Terico, DBP branch manager in Ozamis City.
3. The group from Ilocos Sur, led by Acting Gov. Antonio Villanueva and Governor-elect Luis "Chavit" Singson, who accompanied to Malacañang Marina Salibo, whose husband, the late Mayor Marciano Salibo of San Emilio, was ambushed December 6 while enroute home from Vigan. They called to request national government aid in the early apprehension of the ambushers believed to be members of the New People's Army.

Acting on their request, the President directed Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief, to send a special team to Ilocos Sur to verify reports of increased activity by members of the NPA in the province; and also to check on the reports that they had something to do with the ambush killing of the mayor and to apprehend the perpetrators after filing the proper charges in court.

Among others received by the President was Mayor-elect Nemesio Yabut of Makati, Rizal, who presented a check in the amount of ₱10,000 for the Maligayang Pasko 71.

For the rest of his workday, the President concentrated on his desk work.

December 18—

Notable among the few callers of the President were Bolivia's Minister of Foreign Affairs and Madame Mario Gutierrez who called at Malacañang to pay their respects.

The President and the Bolivian official compared notes on the communist problem facing both the Philippines and Bolivia, while the First Lady, Imelda P. Marcos, and Madame Mary Reese de Gutierrez exchanged pleasantries in the Music Room.

The Bolivian couple, who were later presented Christmas gifts by President and Mrs. Marcos, were accompanied to Malacañang by Monico Vicente, Department of Foreign Affairs protocol director.

The President devoted most of his time during the day on desk work.

Early in the evening, the President had an interview with newsmen covering Malacañang, during which he said, among others, that he:

1. Asked milk importers, who threatened to close shop unless the Price Control Council (PCC) stops pegging the price ceiling on milk and milk components, to wait for the decision of the PCC before undertaking any drastic action which would prejudice public interest.
2. Was surprised on the report that Karomatan in Lanao del Norte had been taken over by Muslim Barracudas while the troops looked on as the settlers fled. The President said that he could not believe that the report was one coming from responsible sources because Karomatan is from 80 to 85 per cent Muslim town and that it need not be invaded by Muslims.

Probably, the President added, the settlers fled because the task force commander, Col. Bienvenido Castro, was reassessing the situation in Kapatagan Valley and was organizing the area into a "security center."

3. Ordered defense and military officials, particularly Secretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana and Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; and the military intelligence to make themselves available for briefing various elements of society on the growing communist menace.

He issued the directive in the wake of claims by opposition leaders of the administration efforts to "build up justification for the imposition of martial law."

The President told the newsmen that the fear expressed by Sen. and LP President Gerardo M. Roxas and other LP members had no basis.

He said that reports that the towns of San Emilio, Lidlidda and other towns, including Vigan, in Ilocos Sur had already been infiltrated by NPA elements are now being checked and verified.

December 19—

The absence of the usual heavy schedule of callers enabled the President to devote more time on desk work.

He signed, among others, an order granting executive clemency to 281 prisoners, in connection with the yuletide season.

Of the prisoners extended executive clemency, ten were granted absolute pardon, one special absolute pardon, 222 conditional pardon with parole conditions and 48 commutation of sentence.

The President granted the executive clemency on the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

December 20—

The President continued concentrating on paper work, even as he trimmed his scheduled callers to a few officials of the executive department who consulted him on projects of their respective agencies.

He was closeted most of the morning and afternoon in his private study going over official reports and disposing of urgent state papers.

December 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor in a parade and review at Camp Aguinaldo in Quezon City in connection with the observance of Armed Forces Day.

In his speech during the morning ceremonies, the President decried attempts to undermine the people's confidence in the Supreme Court which, he said, "our Constitution has established as the court of last resort in our system of government."

The President said "it is unfortunate that partisan politics and blind zealotry have inveighed against even the high tribunal simply because its judgment ran counter to their own views and their own narrow objectives."

He was introduced by Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, and their daughter, Imee, the President left Malacañang about 9 a.m. He was met by an honor guard formed by a contingent of Philippine Military Academy cadets behind the reviewing stand.

The anniversary rites was highlighted by the presentation of awards and decorations to two civilians and seven military men for distinguished services. The awardees were:

1. Maj. Jose P. Santos, Jr. of the PC—gold cross medal for gallantry in action in the face of heavily armed men during an encounter with dissidents;
2. First Lieutenants Roberto I. Sabularse and Conrado G. Tanabe (deceased), both of the PAF—gold cross medal for gallantry in action as pilots, who ferried the first wave of troops during combat operations of the Task Force Lawin in Tarlac. Tanabe's award was received by his widow, Mrs. Josefina Reyes Tanabe.
3. Second Lt. Arsenio L. Tecson of the PA, platoon leader of 'A' company, 26th Infantry Battalion—gold cross medal for successfully defending Magsaysay, Lanao del Norte when attacked by outlaw bands;
4. Vero Perfecto of the Voice of the Philippines—Legion of Honor Award for having been instrumental in the surrender of Lapiang Malaya Supremo Valentin de los Santos in 1967;
5. M/Sgt. Carlos Rodriguez of the PAF, as Enlisted Man of the Year;
6. Seawoman First Class Arabella O. Diangson of the PN, as Enlisted Woman of the Year;
7. Cdt. Lt. Col. Mariano A. Angeles of the UP Army ROTC, as ROTC Cadet of the Year; and
8. Dominador A. Nuñez, as Civilian Employee of the Year.

Following the President's speech, contingents from all the major AFP services, including the Women's Auxiliary Corps, PMA and ROTC cadets, marched in review as Philippine Air Force jet fighter planes made a fly-by.

Then the First Lady, assisted by daughter Imee, distributed "Maligayang Pasko" gift bags to hundreds of children of enlisted men.

After the ceremony, the guests repaired to the nearby Officers' Club where the President inducted the new set of officers of the PEFTOK Veterans Association, headed by Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, president.

Back in Malacañang shortly before noon, the President received scheduled callers, including Guillaume Georges Picot, president of the French Far East Committee on Organization of Employers and Industrial Firms, who paid a courtesy call following his arrival on a business survey.

The President also received a delegation from Ilocos Sur composed of municipal mayors, who had signified their desire to resign because of threats against their lives.

During his meeting with the group led by Acting Gov. Antonio Villanueva and Vincent Crisologo, the President ordered the Criminal Investigation Service of the PC to submit its findings on the peace and order situation in Ilocos Sur.

Those who called at Malacañang to confirm the reports of NPA activities in the province were acting Board Member Juanito Tolentino, Mayon Gonzalo P. Lazo and Councilor Elias Laureta of Tagudin, Mayors Roberto Pati of San Idefonso, Benjamin Sanidad of Sto. Domingo, Antonio Cabaldon of Caoayan, Maria Porte of Bantay, and Canuto Fariñas of Magsingal; Vice Mayor Pablo Arde and Councilor Jack Aquino of Vigan.

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked at his desk as usual and received visitors according to schedule.

Notable among the callers who trooped to the President's study were:

1. Washington Sycip and Dr. Daniel Vasquez, who had a private audience with the President.
2. Caltex executive John I. Wolahan and Francis Ablan, who discussed business matters.
3. Gov. Antonio Villanueva of Ilocos Sur who led other leaders of the province in threshing out with the President the disruptions in the region.

During the two-hour confrontation meeting between the Villanueva-Crisologo faction, on one hand, and the group of Governor-elect Luis "Chavit" Singson and his brother Evaristo, mayor-elect of Vigan, on the other, the President forged an agreement and prevailed upon the contending political factions of the province to join hands in the fight against communisms and in the preservation of peace and order in Ilocos Sur.

The two factions agreed to the President's proposals that:

- A. They would help in fighting communism by putting their own men side by side with the Philippine Constabulary units against the NPA;
- B. They would cooperate in the investigation of violent incidents by trained intelligence investigators; and
- C. The municipal police forces would be screened, trained and then armed by the PC in order to be able to help preserve peace and order.

At the same time the President directed Brig. Gen. Eduardo M. Garcia, PC chief, to submit a report on which police forces would be given priority in training and arming, and to replace the original PC unit in the province with fresh officers and men. He also told Gen. Garcia to assign Lt. Col. Honorio Balanon as provincial commander, and to provide him with a good deputy.

D. Senators Mamintal Tamano and Ambrosio Padilla; Reps. Marcelino Veloso, the House majority floorleader; Godofredo Tan of Quezon, Emerito Calderon of Cebu, Antonio Villar of Pangasinan; and Governors Ignacio Santiago of Bulacan and Tito Primicias of Pangasinan. They discussed problems of their constituencies with the President.

In the course of his desk work, the President signed an executive order redefining the functions and powers of the Medical Assistance Program Task Force, which was created under Executive Order No. 337 issued on September 1, 1971. He redefined the task force's function to obviate the duplication of functions of the Philippine Medical Care Commission created by virtue of Republic Act No. 6111, approved on August 4, 1969.

As redefined, the functions and powers of the task force are:

1. To advise the Commission on policies that would lay the groundwork for Program II of Republic Act No. 6111;
2. To suggest ways and means of providing medical care benefits to non-beneficiaries of Program I of the same republic act;
3. To advise the Commission on factual conditions in the rural areas relevant to the evolvement of Program II;
4. To recommend to the Commission the implementation of policies, plans, and action programs as formulated from the time or organization; and
5. To advise the Commission on pertinent changes and revisions of action programs as may be deemed necessary.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, honored cabinet members and other ranking officials at dinner.

December 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with Ilocos Sur officials led by Acting Gov. Antonio Villanueva and Mayor Benjamin Sanidad of Sto. Domingo, chairman of the Ilocos Sur Mayors League.

During the conference at Malacañang, the President appealed to the incumbent and newly-elected officials of the province to effect a peaceful and orderly turnover of authority and join hands in the peace and order and social and economic development programs.

In his appeal, the President asked the outgoing and incoming governors, as well as the chairman of the Ilocos Sur Mayors League to meet with all incumbent mayors and those elected to succeed them and map out an orderly and peaceful turnover of authority on December 30.

The President also:

1. Requested Gov. Villanueva and Mayor Sanidad to recommend on who of the policemen, including those of the Vigan police force, should be armed by the PC;
2. Turned down anew the suggestion of Gov. Villanueva that martial law be imposed in the province; and expressed the belief that the PC is still capable of meeting any subversion threat in that province;

3. Announced that in connection with the Four-Year Economic Development Plan, under which the country is divided into ten regions, each with its own peculiar and specific programs and targets, the government planners would visit the province;

4. Directed Lt. Col. G. F. Cuaresma, PC provincial commander who will retire in January and will be replaced by Col. Honorio Balanon, to make sure that the PC in Ilocos Sur discharge its duties without fear or favor; and

5. Reminded those present that under the agreement forged in the previous meeting, the leaders of the warring factions and their men will fight side by side with PC in the event that the New People's Army become active in the province.

Present at the conference were Vincent Crisologo, son of Gov. Carmeling P. Crisologo, Governor-elect Luis "Chavit" Singson and his brother, newly-elected Mayor Evaristo Singson of Vigan, Mayors Antonio Cabf.l-don of Caoayan and George Cabacungan of Sinait; Acting Board Member Juanito Tolentino; Mrs. Canuto Farinas representing her husband who is the mayor of Magsingal.

In the afternoon, the President closetted himself in his private study and worked continuously until late in the evening.

President's Week in Review: December 24-30, 1971

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with his Cabinet to review and assess the administrations performance during the year about to end, and to find out its failings and problems.

The meeting started with the President thanking the members of the Cabinet for their full support and cooperation, saying, "more than anybody else, I am aware of the credit that should be extended to each and everyone of you who helped a lot in the face of the many calamities, both natural and man-made, that beset us.

During the meeting, which "was the last for the current year and attended by members of the Financial and Fiscal Policy Committee and some other heads of offices and agencies, the President:

1. Asked for formal reports from the various departments for incorporation in the state-of-the-nation and budget messages;
2. Ordered the increase of funds for the procurement of local palay at not less than P22 per cavan;
3. Directed that expenditures for normal government operations be cut to the minimum so that funds for capital outlays and investment could be increased;
4. Instructed the various government financing institutions to make more credit facilities available for agriculture and industries;
5. Created a three-man committee to map out a program to salvage the cement industry.

The committee is composed of NEC Chairman Gerardo P. Sicat, as chairman, with Chairmen Leonides S. Virata of the DBP and Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, as members.

6. Ordered the various departments to submit legislative proposals to be recommended to Congress when it meets in regular session next month.

Toward the end of the meeting, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, after conveying the best wishes of the other members of the Cabinet to the President, expressed the hope that "we can continue supporting you in facing the crises that may come".

Prior to the Cabinet meeting, the President received a briefing from the Financial and Fiscal Policy Committee on the effects of the dollar devaluation on the Philippine currency as well as on the nation's economy.

Present at the four-hour meeting were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries Conrado F. Estrella of Agrarian Reform, Constancio E. Castaneda of General Services, Efren I. Plana of National Defense, Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr. of Commerce and Industry, Adrian E. Cristobal of Labor, Juan L. Manuel of Education, Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Amadeo H. Cruz of Health, Cesar ,E. A. Virata of Finance;

Chairmen Leonides S. Virata of the Development Bank of the Philippines, Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments and Gerardo P. Sicat of the National Economic Council; Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez of the Office of Economic Coordination, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Director-General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Commissioner Mama Sinsuat of National Integration, Undersecretary of Social Welfare Petra de Joya; Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros of the Central Bank, Philippine National Bank President Eusebio Villatuya, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, GSIS General Manager Roman A. Cruz, Jr. and SSS Acting Administrator Reynaldo Gregorio.

Earlier in the day, the President received Admiral and Mrs. Samuel E. Morrison who called to pay their respects following their arrival early in the morning.

Admiral Morrison, the world's foremost living historian-adventurer, was tracing the 40,000-mile round-the-world route taken by Ferdinand Magellan who came to the Philippines in 1521.

Later, the President discussed with Secretary of Labor Adrian E. Cristobal matters affecting the latter's department; and with Rep. Tito Dupaya of Cagayan the problems of his constituencies.

The President devoted most of his time in the afternoon and early evening to desk work.

As it was the eve of Christmas day, the President issued the following message:

"As we celebrate Christmas this year, we find our nation in dire need of greater unity, faith and hope. The fabric upon which is woven the strength and oneness of our people is increasingly strained by new forces of enmity and discord, we are called upon to rededicate ourselves to the constructive labor of human goodwill, charity and sacrifice.

"In a society menaced by social, political and economic opportunism and unrest, it is oftentimes necessary to speak of total rebirth in order to attain our objectives. Let us, on this occasion, afford ourselves a deeper reflection on this.

"If we need to build a more lasting solidarity and oneness, let us now build it.

"If we need to keep a strong faith, as well as a higher sense of duty to ourselves, let us now work for it.

"The true meaning of Christmas would be lost, if it does not bring us to a deeper consciousness of the duties that we bear towards our neighbors, our families and the future of our human community. For every single one of us who is fortunate and has much to thank for and celebrate this Christmas, there are thousands upon thousands, in our country and outside, who are hungry and deprived.

"I ask the more fortunate among us to share the spirit of Christmas with the less fortunate.

"At the same time I ask our people to now unite in one common resolve and end all petty quarrels and disputes that detract from our national goals. Our society must progress without internal dissidence or civil strife, we must build a more lasting society of our own and more effectively join the rest of the world in putting an end to the conflicts that divide nations and peoples.

"I especially appeal to our own Christian and Muslim brothers in the South to find new ways of productive cooperation so that they may continue to live harmoniously together, not merely as Muslims and Christians, but as Filipinos bound to a common destiny under a common flag.

"Our country and our people will be strong so long as we know the meaning of hard work, dedication, and sacrifice. I, therefore, ask our people to forge on this occasion, a new covenant among themselves based on hard work, dedication, and sacrifice.

"Merry Christmas to you all."

December 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS did not received any callers. Christmas day notwithstanding, he went on with his usual desk work, reviewing reports submitted to him by various government departments and agencies.

He also signed two executive orders—one providing for the organization of the Department of Agrarian Reform; and the other designating the new department as trustee of the special fund for assistance to the country's land reform education program.

The organization of the new Department was in accordance with Republic Act No. 6389, otherwise known as the Code of Agrarian Reforms of the Philippines; and upon the recommendation of the special committee created under Special Order No. 11 of the Land Reform Project Administration, and the Commission on Reorganization created under Republic Act No. 5435.

The executive order defined the functions, powers, duties and responsibilities of the Secretary and Undersecretary of Agrarian Reform including those of the various units of the department.

In that same executive order, the President required the Budget Commissioner to effect the orderly reallocation of funds and other transitional actions relative thereto, to enable the department to be fully operational within 60 days following the issuance of the order.

The Budget Commissioner was likewise required to reflect in full the provisions of Republic Act No. 6389 and the executive order or parts thereof in the budget for the next succeeding fiscal year, and thereafter, except as may otherwise be more specifically provided.

The designation of the Department, of Agrarian Reform, which was embodied in another executive order, was agreed upon by the Philippine and the United States governments when the latter made available to the former the special fund.

The special fund, in the amount of 11,281,935, was appropriated by the U.S. government from the Special Fund for Education, U.S. Public Law No. 8894, known as the Land Reform Education Fund.

As agreed upon by both the Philippine and U.S. governments, the Land Reform Education Fund will be established as a permanent trust fund, the income of which will be used to finance the land reform education program in the country.

As trustee of the special fund, the Department of Agrarian Reform will perform the following functions, subject to the approval of the President;

1. Formulate the general policy for the Fund, and make decisions on the use of the funds, income and capital gains, including final action on appropriation for grants and research projects;
2. Formulate and adopt an assistance program based on educational programs which have been set forth in the agreement on the use of the fund; extending preference to projects which are enduring or self-sustaining, or which incorporate counterpart financial agreements;
3. Approve programs and projects to be undertaken by the Philippine Land Reform Center for Continuing Education which shall implement such programs and projects out of the earnings of the fund;
4. Obtain professional counsel and services for the wise and prudent management of the fund entrusted to it through an Investment and Financial Manager; and
5. Employ staff personnel, advisers and consultants to assist in the educational program, planning and implementation.

In the evening, the President in a wire condoled with the bereaved family of the late Secretary of Health Amadeo H. Cruz, who succumbed to heart attack at 5:50 a.m., on Christmas Day.

In extending condolence, the President called Secretary Cruz a dedicated public servant, who spent a lifetime in the service of his people.

IT WAS another day of desk work for President Marcos, as his usual schedule of callers for the day was clear.

Among the official matters he acted upon was the recommendation of the Monetary Board, contained in a resolution it passed at a recent meeting, which would authorize the Financial and Fiscal Policy Committee (FFPC) to make an over-all review of allocation, expenditure, investment and lending of government resources, and the economy as a whole.

In an executive order, the President authorized the FFPC to create executive committees and such other sub-committees as may be necessary for it to effectively carry out national objectives, achieving this by means of balanced and integrated fiscal, monetary and economic policy; and of coordinating and synchronizing the borrowing and lending activities of government financial institutions.

The Financial and- Fiscal Policy Committee was reconstituted on April 21, 1970 under Executive Order No. 225 in order to integrate into one body all functions pertaining to fiscal, financial and government investment policies.

As reconstituted, the committee is composed of the Secretary of Finance, Commissioner of the Budget, Chairman of the National Economic Council, Governor of the Central Bank, Administrator of the Office of Economic Coordination, Chairman of the Board of Investments, Chairman of Vie Development Bank of the Philippines, General Manager of the GSIS, President of the PNB, Administrator of the SSS and Director-General of the Presidential Economic Staff.

In the evening the President, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez-Marcos and their three children, Irene, Bongbong and Irene, motored to Nichols Air Base in Pasay City where they boarded the presidential fokker plane for Baguio City.

December 27—

THE PRESIDENT met with leaders of the two warring factions in Ilocos Sur, headed by Acting Gov. Antonio Villanueva and Vincent. P. Crisologo, on one hand; and Governor-elect Luis Singson and his brother, Evaristo, mayor-elect of Vigan, on the other.

Meeting them at the guesthouse in Bagnio City, the President persuaded the said officials to surrender their followers who were wanted by the law.

He directed them to prepare their respective lists of followers and asked them to submit the same to Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe, First PC Zone commander, who was also present at the meeting for verification with the warrants of arrest in the hands of the PC.

Crisologo and Singson assured the President that they will surrender their respective followers against whom warrants of arrest had been issued not later than January 15.

Earlier in the morning, the President flew to Vigan in order to preside over the scheduled meeting of incumbent and newly-elected officials of the province to ensure a smooth turn-over of authority on December 30.

However, because of inclement weather the President could not land in Vigan and instead landed at Poro Point from where he motored back to Baguio City. Upon arrival in the city, the President summoned the Ilocos Sur political leaders to the Pines City for the conference.

The political leaders arrived in the city later in the afternoon. They were accompanied by General Tanabe, Lt. Col. J. F. Cuaresma, PC provincial commander; and the following mayors of the province:

Benjamin Sanidad of Sto. Domingo, chairman of Ilocos Sur Mayors League Antonio Cabaldon of Caoayan, Porfirio Rapanut of Sta. Catalina, George Cabacungan of Sinit, Fely Quilala of San Juan, Juanito Tolentino of Magsingal, Juanito Langiten of Sugpon, Vice Mayor Pablo Arde of Vigan, and Mrs. Marciano Salibo, widow of the late mayor of San Emilio.

Also during the day, the President designated Undersecretary of Health Clemente Gatmaitan as officer-in-charge of the Department of Health.

The designation was issued by Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes on order of the President, in view of the sudden passing of Secretary Amadeo H. Cruz, who succumbed to a stroke the other day.

December 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, in a tape-recorded speech aired over three radio stations “in Vigan, Ilocos Sur, appealed to the people of the province to forget political differences.

The President told the province’s folk to “forget political squabbles, unite, cooperate, and face the greater challenges of nation-building.

The President called on the people of Ilocos Sur to stand united against the problems of peace and order now that the “elections are over and that we should respect the electorate’s will in the last elections.”

The President’s speech, tape-recorded in Baguio City was broadcast over the radio stations because of the cancellation of his scheduled Vigan trip.

The President, through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., issued a proclamation declaring Tuesday, January 4, a special public holiday in the Bicol region. The day marks the anniversary of the execution of the 15 martyrs of the Bicol in 1897.

December 29—

STILL in Baguio City where he is spending the holidays, President. Marcos, during an interview with newsmen covering him, promised that after the New Year, there will be “surprising revelations” on the August 21 Plaza Miranda bombing incident, even as he assured that the government will be able to solve the crime.

During that interview at the Mansion House, the President also:

1. indicated that he had no intention of restoring the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus within the foreseeable future in areas, including the Greater Manila, where it remained suspended;
2. Revealed the extent of Communist infiltration in government, including some offices in Malacañang; and
3. Disclosed an alleged tie-up between the Communists and some underworld characters in the recent commission of some crimes within the Greater Manila area.

Also from the Pines City, the President issued the following message on the eve of the 75th anniversary of the martyrdom of Dr. Jose Rizal:

“It is the essential activism of Dr. Jose Rizal that specially comes to mind today as we commemorate the 75th year of his martyrdom.

“He was a man rare in his and in our time; yet even in this exemplary life, there is much that links him to everyone of his countrymen who seeks to address his talents and energies to the service of our country.

“Rizal’s activism sprung from the same abiding compassion that animates many of us today, and it realized for us the greatest good in ways that continue to serve us to this day.

“We can make no more fitting tribute to the man than that three quarters of a century after his death today, his vision and his example continue to attend our efforts in meeting the challenges of our time.”

December 30—

THE PRESIDENT tarried in Baguio City. He put off his plan to return to Manila, and summoned the provincial officials of Ilocos Norte led by Governor Elizabeth Marcos-Keon, for a functional meeting, to discuss the problems and economic development needs of the province.

At a meeting with Manila newsmen covering him, the President reviewed the administration performance during the past year, and predicted that the coming new year would be a “year of bitter debate on fundamental problems, and also of critical decisions.

He cited the work being undertaken by the Constitutional Convention which would soon be up for debate among the populace; and the rapidly changing political situations in the whole world particularly in the Southeast Asia, and the move toward the neutralization of the region.

President's Week in Review: December 31, 1971 - January 6, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 31—

AS THE YEAR comes to end, President Marcos flew early in the morning from Baguio City to Laoag City in Ilocos Norte, his home province, for the traditional reunion with relatives and friends.

Accompanied by Leyte Gov. Benjamin Romualdez, the President enplaned at 8:15 after reviewing an honor guard composed of Philippine Military Academy cadets. He was seen off by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos and Baguio City officials led by Mayor Luis Lardizabal. She later boarded another plane direct to Manila.

Half an hour later at the Laoag airport, the President was met by delegations from different towns of Ilocos Norte and nearby provinces. The welcomers were headed by Mrs. Josefa Edralin-Marcos, the President's mother, Gov. Elizabeth Marcos-Keon, Reps. Roque Ablan, Jr. and Simeon Valdez.

From the airport, the President led a long motorcade to the city church where a Te Deum was sung. Then he inducted the newly-elected and reelected officials of the province, city and municipalities of Ilocos Norte.

In brief remarks following the induction ceremony, the President pleaded for national unity which, he said, is the only means of saving the country from its enemies.

"Only a united nation can find sufficient strength to defend itself against its enemies," he declared.

The President then motored to Batac, his hometown, where he had a brief reunion with kin and friends.

He then returned to Laoag where he enplaned back to Manila, arriving in Malacañang at 2:30 p.m. The President took a short respite, before he buckled down to work.

Among others, he granted executive clemency to 192 convicted persons, upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, in connection with the observance of New Year.

Of the prisoners granted clemency, eight were for absolute pardon, two conditional pardon, 155 conditional pardon with parole condition, and 27 commutation of sentence.

Later in the day, the President announced the lifting of the suspension of the writ of the privilege of habeas corpus in the entire country, to take effect upon the resolution by Judge Vicente Ericta of the Quezon City Court of First Instance of the subversion cases.

The President also issued the following New Year message:

"At the end of 1971 and the beginning of the new year, we see our nation enriched by experience and ready to move on towards the challenges of the future.

"We see our people committed to a new policy of dynamic change, all seeking to articulate their individual aspirations and all seeking to find their own individual places in the collective national endeavor.

"Throughout the past year, we saw ignorance, apathy and indifference being fought, renounced and condemned in all levels of our society, in favor of involvement, commitment and activism.

“In that period of great awakening, we witnessed the unleashing of energy from the various sectors of our community, in the free and militant discussion of ideas and issues that govern the conduct of our national life.

“Indeed, we have seen during the year just past, where our strength and our weaknesses lie, we have shown to ourselves how from a multitude of tongues and voices, we can distill the voice of reason to rule our collective life.

“As we enter the new year, it is my hope that the same vigor and enthusiasm, involvement and reason will continue to dominate the forums of free speech and the councils of our democratic institutions so that we may continue to pursue with increased faith, the efforts we have begun.

“Our government is determined that during the year 1972 security and development shall remain the twin primary objectives to which shall relate all our positive efforts.

“We are determined that the fears and shadows of the past shall not weaken our course, but rather that new faith, greater vision and a new sense of purpose shall govern it.

“In cooperation with the various sectors of our society, we shall continue to seek a better life for all our people, but in so doing, we shall ask our people to give us their abiding faith, their unstinted support and cooperation.

“We have much to achieve and work for during the new year. Let us not expect that government will achieve this in isolation, but rather, let us expect government to achieve it with the good wishes and the support of all.

“A Happy New Year to All”

January 1, 1972

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the new year by receiving the Junior Diplomats of the United States, composed of American newspaper boys currently on a tour of Hawaii and the Far East.

Talking to the young ambassadors, who were led by Mr. and Mrs. Max Milians, director and house mother, respectively, the President expressed the hope that they will have a very fruitful tour and that someday he will read their names in their country's economic, political and social hierarchy.

The young envoys' tour is sponsored by the Hearst Newspapers, in cooperation with Trans-World Airways, Hilton Hotels, Thai International Airways and the tourist bureaus and associations of host countries.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Executive Director Salvador C. Peña of the Philippine Tourist and Travel Association.

After the call, the President closetted himself in his study and worked on his desk until early afternoon and evening.

Leaving his desk work for a while late in the afternoon, the President inducted into office Col. Carlos J. Cajelo as governor of Cotabato. Present at the oath-taking ceremony were the inductee's relatives and friends led by his wife and children.

January 2—

AS USUAL on a Sunday, President Marcos' schedule of callers was clean. Thus he was able to concentrate on urgent state business. Among others, the President:

1. Appointed retired Associate Justice Arsenio Solidum of the Court of Appeals as associate commissioner of the Oil Industry Commission; and
2. Extended the designation of Epifanio Rey Pangramuyen as acting Commissioner of Civil Service until the appointment of a permanent commissioner.

January 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS did not receive callers, but instead worked steadily on his desk until late in the afternoon.

Early in the evening, the President received Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang, following his assumption of office as the new city mayor of Manila.

The President and Mayor Bagatsing briefly discussed the problems affecting the city, among which are: low finances, relocation of squatters, garbage collection, dredging of esteros, housing and flood control.

The President pledged national government support to the city government and immediately directed:

1. Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release P500,000 for the purchase of much-needed equipment of the Manila Metropolitan Police in support of the peace and order drive in the City;
2. Secretary of Public Works and Communications David M. Consunji and Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino to allocate road-building equipment for the repair and improvement of city streets; and
3. Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata to release amounts representing shares of the city government in income taxes which had been frozen due to an indebtedness of the city to the Central Bank totalling P40 million.

The President also assured Mayor Bagatsing that the cooperation of both national and city governments would be maintained for the early solution of the Plaza Miranda bombing case.

The Manila mayor was accompanied on the call by Col. James Barbers, deputy chief of police of Manila.

Also during the day, the President condoled with the bereaved family of the late Delegate Felino Nevi, who died yesterday.

In his message, the President described the former Secretary of Foreign Affairs as "an able and dedicated public servant and an energetic business and civic leader."

January 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS inducted former Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, who has been reappointed to the same position.

The oath-taking ceremony held at Malacañang in the morning was witnessed by Armed Forces of the Philippines top brass headed by Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff.

After the induction, the President conferred with the retiring AFP officers, during which he informed them:

1. Of plans to organize a commercial corporation to absorb retiring AFP officers and enlisted men for gainful employment; and

2. That he instructed Secretary Enrile and Gen. Yan to work out a plan for the organization of a veterans bureau. The bureau will have a corporate and commercial arm which will keep the veterans occupied in gainful pursuits.

Present at the meeting aside from Secretary Enrile and Gen. Yan, were Maj. Gen. Romeo Espino, AFP vice chief of staff; the chiefs of major commands and services, PC zone and PA brigade commanders, and other top AFP officials.

The rest of the President's day was devoted to desk work.

January 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS' morning schedule was free from callers. He concentrated on urgent official business until early evening.

The President designated Undersecretary of Commerce Eliseo V. Villamor as acting general manager of the Rice and Corn Administration, vice former RCA chief Jose D. Drilon, Jr. who resigned last December 31. Villamor holds the position in a concurrent capacity.

January 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS asked the heads of tax collecting agencies to redouble their efforts, while expressing the hope that these agencies could still improve on their past performance.

The President gave the injunction after going through reports on revenues and tax collections including that of Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina, which stated that actual collections in the Bureau of Customs from July to December, 1971 showed an increase of about 11 per cent over the revised estimates; that the increase in collections for December (1971) alone was only 17 per cent more than that of the same month in 1970, and only 9.6 per cent than the projected estimates.

"Better and higher collection of revenues will be very vital for the implementation of the administration program the President said.

President's Week in Review: January 7-13, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 7—

“THE PRAYER for peace becomes more urgent and the demands for greater labor to attain it by the leaders of mankind more exacting,” thus declared President Marcos in an exchange of toast with heads of diplomatic missions led by Msgr. Carmine Rocco, dean of the diplomatic corps in the Philippines, during the traditional New Year reception held at the Maharlika Hall of Malacañang, where the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, received New Year well-wishers.

“As we look around us,” continued the President, “we see more and more the expressions and demonstrations of disparity between the ‘ advance and progress of natural sciences on the one hand and political science on the other. We see man move forward not only within our small sphere, the earth, but, into the space that once was referred to as a strange and unknown world but which has now been moved into as a new frontier by man’s ingenuity, talent and daring.

“However, as we move forward to other worlds we seem to have retrogressed in the efforts of man himself to harness his heart, his emotions and his feeling and, thus, we witness all around us the conflicts and disagreements, often violent, between races and peoples, factions and governments, and all to no purpose apparently except to satisfy certain prejudices, biases and preconceived notions and desires.”

Thousands of well-wishers had gathered as early as 8:30 a.m. at the Malacañang grounds for the start of the reception which was delayed because of the breakfast tendered by the First Couple in honor of visiting Senator Barry Goldwater and Rep. Barry Goldwater, Jr. who were enroute to Sydney, Australia.

The long queue of well-wishers was spearheaded by the Senate group led by Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, followed by members of the House of Representatives led by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Justices of the Supreme Court led by Chief Justice Roberto Concepcion, members of the Cabinet headed by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, and the chiefs of diplomatic missions led by Msgr. Carmine Rocco, papal nuncio to the Philippines.

The reception was interrupted for a while when the President had the traditional exchange of toasts with diplomats, and after which the President and the First Lady resumed receiving well-wishers. These included the generals of the armed forces, led by Gen. Manuel T. Yan, AFP chief of staff; representatives of the press, personal friends of the First Family, personnel from the Office of the President, and other government officials.

In the afternoon, the President was guest of honor and speaker during the presentation of awards held at the Malacañang ceremonial hall honoring the three most outstanding model barrios chosen under the PACD-SEATO Model Community Development Contest for 1970-1971.

The President paid tribute to a lady barrio captain who was an awardee, pointing out that her accomplishment indicated the fact that “sometimes man may dream big but it takes a woman to really implement and bring it down to the level of comfort and living that development and beauty really mean.

In presenting the plaque of merit to the barrio captains, the President particularly noted the achievements of Mrs. Juana de Dios of Barrio San Jose, Binalbagan, Negros Occidental, winner of the third prize, as “indicative of a woman’s touch.

The Chief Executive assured the barrio officials that he will continue to support the contest and see to it that proper emphasis will be placed to the achievements “of our leaders in the barrios.”

The ceremony was witnessed by the officials of sponsoring agencies led by Rosendo Marquez, PACD officer-in-charge; Jose Panganiban of the SEATO; and Mrs. Leticia R. Shahani of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

January 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS asked Immigration Commissioner Edmundo Reyes to await the opinion of the Department of Justice before acting on the case of Japanese nationals being eyed for possible “violation of their visa conditions.”

The President ordered the immigration commissioner to “desist from issuing orders for the deportation of Japanese nationals in the Philippines until the issue concerning their deportation and other legal issues shall have been decided by the secretary of justice.”

He issued the order following reports that Commissioner Reyes had told 38 Japanese nationals acting as liaison officers for many Japanese firms in the Philippines to leave the country within 10 days.

January 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted most of his time in the morning and early afternoon going over state papers. Later in the afternoon he was guest of honor and speaker at the inauguration of the Metropolitan Broadcasting Company’s Channel 11 studios in Quezon City.

In his remarks, the President underscored the identical objectives of media and government, pointing out that these are “compossible” and not “conflicting,” as they both seek the people’s well-being and the national welfare. (For full text of the President’s speech see pp. 390-394).

The President was accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, who officiated at the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

January 10—

URGENT state papers on high priority development projects of the government during the current year served as starter of President Marcos’ schedule during the day. He worked on his desk till early afternoon, and broke off only to meet with Manager Roman A. Cruz, Jr. of the GSIS, Director Vicente Valdellon of the Bureau of Lands, and Chairman Teodoro Q. Pena of the Foreign Trade Zone Authority.

The President directed Pena to make a survey of all big corporations which are interested in operating in the area for inclusion in the FTZA’s plans and projections.

He also instructed Chairman Pena to begin with manufacturing firms in the country which, the President said, should be given a first crack to operate in the zone, and later, those of neighboring countries which produce machineries and other products, principally for export.

Chairman Pena briefed the President on development plans for the 1,231 hectare zone, which the latter had previously ordered updated and that studies be made on how other agencies and departments of the government could be mobilized to help successfully in promoting the project

During the conference, the President also directed:

1. Director Valdellon to accelerate the titling of lands in Bataan, particularly those in and around the FTZA area, defining the concept, for the issuance of land patents to applicants who had complied with all legal requirements. The President emphasized that titles should be issued to those who had applied for land³ for development purposes only and not for speculation.

2. General Manager Cruz to undertake studies on how the GSIS could help establish a low-cost housing project for low-income workers in the zone.
3. Director Jose Viado of the Bureau of Forestry to expedite the classification as disposable and alienable of forest lands in the vicinity of the zone. The President was informed that some two-thirds of the Mariveles area consisted of still unclassified forest lands. He pointed out that development and possible expansion of the zone would be difficult unless these forest lands are classified as early as possible.

The President stressed the high priority being given to the FTZA project, because it is tied up to the government's policy of expanding the export trade.

Late in the afternoon, the President administered the oath of office to Undersecretary of Commerce Eliseo V. Villamor as concurrent chairman of the Rice and Corn Administration.

Villamor filled the post left vacant by the resignation of Jose D. Drilon, Jr., who resigned.

January 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started on his day's work by issuing two executive orders, one creating the Philippine Committee for the Establishment of the Asian Handicraft Center, and the other creating consumer cooperatives and consumer unions throughout the country.

The President created the committee on handicraft center upon recommendation of the Philippine Committee on ECAFE Matters.

As created, the Committee is charged with, among others, the determination of all requirements for the establishment of the Center in the Philippines, and implementation of the various matters taken up during the Second Preparatory Meeting held at Bangkok, on November 8 to 12, 1971.

The creation of consumer cooperatives and consumer unions was embodied in Executive Order No. 363, attested to and issued by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.

The order provided that the local cooperatives and unions "shall be composed of residents of specific areas in the cities, municipalities and municipal districts."

The Rice and Corn Administration is to coordinate the cooperatives program, and submit a list of nominees of the officials who shall be formally charged with the responsibility of implementing the policy.

At mid-morning, the President broke off from his desk and conferred with Nacionalista members of the Senate and House, and a number of NP Governors to discuss the administration's legislative proposals for the incoming regular session of Congress.

Matters taken up at the conference held at the Pangarap Guesthouse included the funding for major government programs such as: peace and order, rice and corn, land reform, housing, electrification, infrastructure, including flood control, typhoon damages, cooperatives, rural employment, population control, postal services. Also discussed were plans for government reorganization, and how to achieve maximum efficiency of the government's tax collecting machinery.

The Chief Executive appealed to members of both houses of Congress to support plans which he intends to present for legislation in order to secure the necessary funding for government programs. He informed the legislators that he will submit plans to upgrade both the Philippine Constabulary and local police forces, underscoring the need to strengthen the PC, modernize its equipment, and rid local police forces of misfits and corrupt elements.

The President also appealed to those present, and through them to the public, to help the government support its various programs by paying their taxes faithfully and promptly.

Among those present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senate Majority Floorleader Arturo M. Tolentino, Senators Helena Z. Benitez, Rene Espina, Ernesto M. Maceda, Ambrosio Padilla, Emmanuel Pelaez, Leonardo B. Perez, Lorenzo Teves and Magnolia W. Antonino, some 52 members of the House of Representatives, led by Speaker Cornelio T. Viliareal and House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, and some 26 provincial governors.

Later in the evening, the President signed Proclamation No. 890, lifting the suspension of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus throughout the country, and emphasized that “the idea is to bring about normalcy as much as possible.”

The President’s proclamation was in accordance with his statement on New Year’s day, when he first announced the imminent restoration of the writ privilege throughout the country.

January 12—

FREE from his usual schedule of callers, the President presided over the joint meeting of the National Security Council and the Foreign Policy Council, held at the AFP general headquarters in Camp Aguinaldo. The joint meeting discussed the matter of relations between the Philippines and Socialist and/or Communist countries.

In line with the new trend in Philippine foreign policy to open ties with Socialist and/or Communist countries, the Foreign Policy Council unanimously decided that steps now be taken to establish diplomatic relations initially with Rumania and Yugoslavia.

Present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Constitutional Convention President Diosdado Macapagal, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senate Minority Floorleader and LP President Gerardo M. Roxas, former Senator and NCP President Lorenzo M. Tanada, former Secretaries of Foreign Affairs Raul S. Manglapus and Salvador P. Lopez; Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, Reps. Constantino Navarro and Nicanor E. Yñiguez, chairmen of the House committees on national defense and foreign relations, respectively; Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. Executive Sec’etary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad;

Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Defense Undersecretaries Efren Plana and Jose Crisol, Foreign Affairs Undersecretaries Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes; Julio Francia, Jr. and Miguel Arambulo, presidents of the Philippine Chamber of Industries and the Chamber of commerce of the Philippines, respectively;

Sebastian Ugarte of the Philippines Herald, Hans Menzi of the Manila, Daily Bulletin, Ben Penaranda of the Manila Chronicle, Leon O. Ty of the Examiner, and military top brass led by General Manuel T. Tan, AFP chief of staff.

After the joint meeting, the President had lunch together with AFP general officers, who were soon to be retired from the military service.

Back in Malacañang late in the afternoon, the President worked on state papers. He signed a proclamation declaring a state of public calamity in Leyte, in view of the widespread destruction to property and loss of lives in the province.

The proclamation was issued upon recommendation of Leyte Governor Benjamin Romualdez, to prevent the excessive increase in the prices of essential commodities in the area due to profiteering and hoarding by those who control the supply thereof and also to enable the government and civic, relief and welfare agencies to carry out their objectives effectively.

In another proclamation, the President fixed the period from June 19, 1971 to December 31, 1976 as the time for the filing of free patent applications and for the judicial confirmation of imperfect, or incomplete titles in the whole archipelago except in the provinces of Agusan del Norte, Agusan del Sur, Cotabato, South Cotabato, Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, Davao City, Davao del Norte, Davao del Sur, Davao Oriental, Sulu, Mountain Province, Benguet, Kalinga-Apayao and Ifugao.

Issuance of the proclamation was recommended by the Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and pursuant to the provisions of Sections 45 and 46 of Commonwealth Act No. 141, which was amended by R. A. No. 6236.

January 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received a number of callers early in the day. His visitors included National Integration Commissioner Mama Sinsuat and a number of senators, representatives and governors who took up local problems in their respective jurisdictions.

Commissioner Sinsuat called to request approval of the release of P402,000 for the purchase of small tractors and other farm equipment for the CNI settlements in Lake Sebu, Surallah, South Cotabato, saying that these will be for the use of Bilaan, Tiruray, Manobo and Muslim settlers.

Other received by the President were Senators Lorenzo Sumulong, Ambrosio Padilla and Leonardo B. Perez; Reps. Dupaya of Cagayan, Leopoldo Diaz and Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija, Vicente Cerilles Of Zamboanga del Sur, Rafael Legaspi of Aklan, and Constancio Maglana of Davao Oriental; Governors Cornelio Villareal, Jr. of Capiz, Ignacio Santiago of Bulacan, Jose B. Legaspi of Aklan, Arsenio Villarosa of Mindoro Occidental, Alfonso Umali of Mindoro Oriental, Salvador P. Socrates of Palawan, Jaime Gomez of Mt. Province, Elizabeth Marcos-Keon of Ilocos Norte.

Later in the day, the President motored to the residence of Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal to attend a caucus of NP congressmen.

President's Week in Review: January 14-20, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with a long list of callers throughout the day.

First to be received by the President was Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, with whom he had lengthy discussions on legislative proposals which the administration would present to the regular session of Congress.

Later, the President received M. C. Kunz, who called to pay his respects.

Then the President welcomed Mrs. Anna Chennault, widow of the famed commander of the Flying Tigers of World War II, the late Gen. Claire Chennault.

Mrs. Chennault, on a brief visit here, relayed a message from Mayor Sam Yorthy of Los Angeles, in connection with the inaugural cargo service of the Flying Tiger Airline. She was accompanied by Vicente Faustino, head of the local airline's office.

Also received by the President were the officials of the Private Investment Company for Asia, headed by Dr. Willen A. Van Ravestaijn, PICA president. The group was assured by the President of the receptiveness of the government to foreign investment in development areas of the economy.

In the group were Yoshizane Iwasa, chairman; Colin Syme, vice chairman; Peter Wodtke, executive vice president; Harutsuga Makita, vice president; Hinoyuki Tamagawa, Mark C. Feer, A. O. Hartmann, Addison H. Kermath, Tadayoshi Yamada, James G. Bickford, John Hopkins, Makoto Yoneda, Louis C. Louvet, L. E. C. Letts and R. L. Hedrick.

Another group the President received consisted of the officials of the North Trek Organization who called to pay their respects.

Composed of young professionals from the Visayas, the group launched a 'North Trek' program, aimed at encouraging local tourists to know more of the Philippines, and to demonstrate that the RP-Japan Friendship Highway is safe.

The group plans to negotiate the RP-Japan Friendship Highway by car in four days, starting from Zamboanga City on February 2.

The President endorsed the North Trek project and enjoined government agencies to extend the necessary assistance and support to the 16-man team behind it.

The North Trek officials who called were Joey Garcia, president; Tony Dumo, chairman; Rene Cortes, Salvador Escudero, Manuel Bautista and Manuel Timonera.

In the evening, the President administered the oath of office to Gen. Romeo T. Espino as chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, vice Gen. Manuel T. Yan who retired from the military service.

The President also inducted Maj. Gen. Rafael Iletto, former Philippine Army commander, as vice chief of staff of the AFP, succeeding Gen. Espino in that post.

The oath-taking ceremonies were witnessed by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Gen. Yan, Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Rafael Zagala, the new Philippine Army commander; Commodores Dioscoro E. Papa and Hilario Ruiz, outgoing and incoming PN flag-officer-in-command, respectively; Brigadier Generals Jesus Z. Singson and Jose L. Rancudo, outgoing and incoming Philippine Air Force commanders, respectively; other ranking officers of the four major AFP commands, and the inductee's kin.

January 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS devoted the entire day to desk work going over reports and recommendations coming from the different government agencies.

Through Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, the President issued Memorandum Circular No. 528, which enjoined all government offices and agencies to procure their supplies and equipment from the Cottage Industries Development Enterprise (CIDE) and the registered producers of the National Cottage Industries Development Authority, thru the latter.

January 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS did not receive callers during the day, except Secretary of Labor Adrian E. Cristobal, who reported on the reorganization which he undertook in the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation.

The President commended Secretary Cristobal for instituting a complete revamp of the bureau, which the labor chief initiated following the apprehension of one of its officials for alleged extortion.

The President concentrated on desk work until evening.

January 17—

HAVING no scheduled callers in the morning, President Marcos worked on state papers. He signed the appointments of 10 municipal judges and one clerk of court.

On recommendation of Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, those appointed with their corresponding station of assignment were Gideon G. de Pedro for Malay, Aklan; Alfredo A. Rosero for Cambusao, Camarines Sur; Ligaya E. Lazaro for Noveleta, Cavite; Solomon A. Macoy for Aloguinsan, Cebu; Lucio G. Tan for San Isidro, Northern Samar; Benedicto N. Morton for Unisan, Quezon; Melecio L. Yap for San Ricardo, Southern Leyte; Perfecto D. Gatarman for Tomas Oppus, Southern Leyte; Simon D. Encinas for Barcelona, Sorsogon; and Fidel G. Candari for Navas, Aklan.

Appointed clerk of court of the Court of First Instance in Negros Oriental, Bayawan branch, was Felipe T. Torres.

Towards noon, the President disengaged from his desk work to receive New York Secretary of State John P. Lomenzo, who called to pay his respects.

The President was informed by the New York official that he was highly impressed by the economic potentialities of the Foreign Trade Zone in Mariveles, Bataan which he had visited.

Secretary Lomenzo was here on a combined official and business tour of Southeast Asian countries. He was guest at luncheon later in Malacañang.

Also during the day, the President called upon the men of the Armed Forces of the Philippines to "be prepared to meet any insurgency which threatens to rob us of our freedom and to undermine lawful authority, and ultimately to bring about the downfall of the duly constituted government."

The President issued the call in a speech read for him by Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, at the graduation exercises of the Philippine Constabulary-METROCOM Counter-Urban Guerilla Course at Fort Magsaysay in Laur, Nueva Ecija.

January 18—

THE USUAL string of callers on President Marcos was not visible during the day. This enabled him to go over the letters of resignations so far received by the Chief Executive, preparatory to a thorough overhaul of the executive department and some offices under it.

Letters of resignations received by the President as of this day are those from the members of the Cabinet, top officials of government-owned corporations, including the members of its respective boards.

The President also issued a proclamation declaring certain days of this year as special public holidays in specific places.

Declared special public holidays in connection with the observance of the centennial anniversary of the martyrdom of the three Filipino priests—Fathers Mariano Gomez, Jose Burgos and Jacinto Zamora, in the places indicated are the following:

1. January 20 (Thursday), in the province of Cavite and cities of Cavite, Tagaytay and Trece Martires. This day marks the Revolt of 1872, known as the Cavite Mutiny.
2. February 9 (Wednesday), in Vigan, Ilocos Sur. The day is the 125th birth anniversary of Fr. Jose Burgos.
3. February 17 (Thursday), in the entire country. It is the 100th anniversary of the execution of the three priests.
4. August 2 (Wednesday), in Bacoor, Cavite. The day is the 173rd birth anniversary of Fr. Mariano Gomez.
5. August 14 (Monday), in the city of Manila. It marks the 137th birth anniversary of Fr. Jacinto Zamora.

January 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a private breakfast with former Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan, who came here to attend the inauguration of the Philippine-Japan Society headquarters in Caliraya, Quezon. Kishi is the president of the society.

Earlier, the President and the Japanese visitor played a round of golf at the Malacañang Park golf course.

After the breakfast, the President administered the oath of office to Roberto S. Benedicto as Philippine ambassador to Japan, vice former-Ambassador Jose S. Laurel III, who had resigned.

Among the hundreds present at the induction were high government officials, local business and industrial leaders, friends and close relatives of the inductee, including the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Ambassadors Ramon Nolan and Gregorio Abad.

Also present were former Prime Minister Kishi and the members of his party composed of Ambassador Kiochi Azakai, Setsuroso Kobayashi, Seiki Tozaki, and Wataru Mori.

Later in the afternoon, the President met with Bureau of Internal Revenue regional directors and collectors. The group called on the Chief Executive in the course of their annual convention.

He commended the BIR personnel for “establishing a record in tax collection which cannot be considered as something to be ashamed of, but rather something to be proud of.”

Even as the President lauded their remarkable accomplishment, he exhorted the conferees to “please always remind ourselves and our men in the field that the same enthusiasm, dedication, and discipline which are required in public service, is still demanded of us.”

Those who attended the conference were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Commissioner Misael Vera, BIR Deputy Commissioners Ambrosio M. Lina and Conrado P. Diaz, BIR Assistant Commissioner Bernardo D. Carpio, and 20 regional directors.

January 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a busy day with callers, which included the officers of the Rural Broadcasters Association of the Philippines (RBAP) and the Pulp and Paper Manufacturers Association (PPMA), whom he inducted in separate ceremonies.

In brief remarks before the RBAP officers, the President enlisted the organization’s assistance in the formation of at least one producers’ and consumers’ cooperative in every barrio.

The President said that funds for the program will be included in the budget proposal.

The pulp and paper manufacturers group informed the President that they can now produce all the paper needed by the country and 30 per cent of pulp requirements.

The PPMA officers was headed by Zoilo M. Estrella, association president, while the new set of RBAP officers led by Paquito “Rey” Pacheco, RBAP chairman.

After the induction ceremonies, the President received Prime Minister Chow Shu-Kai of the Republic of China who paid a courtesy call. The Chinese official was on a brief stopover enroute from an official mission to European and African countries.

Minister Chow, conveyed to the President and the Filipino people the felicitations and gratitude of President Chiang Kai-shek and the people of his country, particularly for the Philippine support behind Taiwan in the councils of the United Nations.

He also assured the President of his government’s policy to remove all sources of irritants in the close relations between his country and the Philippines.

The President sent his best wishes to President Chiang and expressed the hope that the Chinese leader will continue to lead his people towards peace and prosperity. The President also took the occasion to discuss with the visiting minister the problem of the overstaying Chinese.

Minister Chow was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Ambassador to Taipei Pelayo Llamas and Chinese Ambassador to the Philippines Patrick Pichi Sun.

Through afternoon and evening, the President worked on state papers.

President's Week in Review: January 21-27, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day working on state papers, and in the process signed the ad interim appointment of Gen. Manuel T. Yan, as Chief of Mission, Class III, and Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Republic of the Philippines.

Gen. Yan retired recently as chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

At midmorning, the President disengaged himself from deskwork to receive the credentials of His Excellency Said Kassim Rishtya as the new non-resident ambassador of Afghanistan to the Philippines.

In presenting his credentials, Ambassador Rishtya said that although the Philippines and Afghanistan are far apart geographically, the two Asian nations share many things in common which bring them together, and that both countries have undergone "long and unrelenting struggle in maintaining and safeguarding national independence" and are "firm supporters of world peace and good understanding among nations."

Responding to the new envoy's remarks, President Marcos noted "that the existing bonds of friendship between our two peoples have strengthened through the years and that this has been made possible by our common aspirational determination to safeguard and uphold the ideals of liberty, fraternity, and independence."

"My administration," the President stressed, "looks forward to the intensification of cooperative efforts between our two countries in the field of cultural, trade, and commercial relations."

Among those who attended the ceremony were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, and Acting Secretary of Health Clemente S. Gatmaitan.

In another ceremony later, the President conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Lakan, on Executive Director Virgilio Barco of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development in simple award ceremonies at Malacañang.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, read the citation which lauded Dr. Barco for his "work in promoting better relations between the Philippines and Latin American countries" and his esteemed services to the government and people of the Republic of the Philippines," in his capacity as executive director of the IBRD, International Finance Corporation, and International Loans Association representing the Philippines, Colombia, Brazil, Ecuador, and the Dominican Republic.

After the ceremonies, the President tendered a luncheon in honor of Barco.

Present at the rites were Secretaries Cesar E.A. Virata of Finance, David M. Consunji of Public Works and Communications and Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., of Agriculture and Natural Resources; General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. of the Government Service Insurance System, Governor Gregorio S. Licaros of the Central Bank, Chairman Leonides S. Virata and Governor Leon O. Ty of the Development Bank of the Philippines, and Chairman Vicente T. Paterno of the Board of Investments.

In the evening, the President tendered a formal dinner in honor of Dr. Takishi Watanabe, president of the Asian Development Bank.

January 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day going over urgent state papers. He asked Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo to read for him a prepared prayer at the “Presidential Prayer Breakfast.”

In that prayer, the President said:

“To see men of different faiths and persuasions gathered thus under the same house, and to know that they are brought together by hopes and concerns they share in common, is to realize the extent to which we truly are one mind in one house, regardless of the diversity and differences of our individual creeds.

“Today, we live in a world wracked by doubt and conflict; and increasingly we are confronted with the terrible realization that serenity and happiness seem to recede farther away as our science and technology bring us closer to our material wants.”

The President concluded that “prayer is an education in fortitude as well as in hope, for it is in faith that we derive much of our energy and inspiration in the successful pursuit of our highest and greatest endeavors.”

The President ended the prayer by asking those gathered to share in from the Book of Common Prayer:

“Grant us grace fearlessly to contend against evil, and to make no peace with oppression; and, that we may reverently use our freedom, help us to employ it in the maintenance of justice among men and nations.”

Later in the afternoon, the President inspected the Manila International Airport which was gutted by a dawn fire of still unknown origin.

In the course of his 45-minute inspection, the President appointed retired Brig. Gen. Jesus Singson, as civil aeronautics administrator and directed him to immediately take steps to normalize operations at the Manila International Airport.

Accompanied by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, the President was met and briefed by airport and aviation officials, including Acting Civil Aeronautics Administrator Epifanio Raymundo, MIA Manager Luis Tabuena and Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, PAF chief; and Director Jolly Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation.

Following the briefing, the President ordered:

- 1) The National Bureau of Investigation, the Metropolitan Command and the Civil Aeronautics Administration as well as the Pasay Police Department to assign their investigating arms to look into the arson angle.
- 2) The Department of Public Works and Communications to survey the damage as soon as the building cools off, determine the extent particularly of the damage to communications facilities, and to survey possible sources of replacements.

The President left the MIA for Malacañang at about 4:35 p.m.

PRESIDENT MARCOS did not receive any callers today but instead closeted himself in his private study to put the finishing touches to his State-of-the-Nation Message.

Early in the evening, the President broke off from his study to hear Mass at the Malacañang chapel.

January 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS in his address on the State-of-the-Nation before a joint session of Congress at the opening of its 100-day regular session, presented a 12-point priority program for an all-out drive against crime and stepped-up economic development.

The President said that the 12 bills, together with other specific legislation that he outlined, are aimed at giving meaning to his democratic revolution.

In his 55-minute speech, during which he reviewed what he called the “battalia of crises” which griped the country last year, the Chief Executive also expressed confidence that the nation will “not only stand but will also prevail.”

“This nation stands, tested by adversity and deriving strength from it, summoning a fresh will from the continuing challenge that are the historical legacy of all struggling nations,” the President said.

But the President added that the international and local developments were moving so fast as was the case 1971—that the Philippines would have to keep pace with developments if it was to survive.

Earlier, the President received a Congress committee composed of Senators Mamintal Tamano, Genaro Magsaysay and Lorenzo Teves, and Reps. James Chiongbian, Calixto Zaldivar, Jr. and Joaquin Roces who informed him that the legislative body had convened and was ready to receive his message.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and the Congress committee, the President arrived at the session hall at 11 a.m. as scheduled.

The President and the First Lady were given a standing ovation. They were escorted in by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Sneaker Cornelio T. Villareal.

Among the top government officials present the session hall were Vice President Fernando Lopez; members of the Cabinet, the Judiciary, the diplomatic corps, and their ladies. Also present were Mrs. Josefa Edralin-Marcos, the President’s mother, and some provincial, city and municipal officials.

The President and the First Lady were back at Malacañang about 12:30 p.m.

January 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual engaged himself in his private study going over state papers needing his utmost attention, and only broke off to receive the members of the Japanese Economic Cooperation and Reparations Mission who paid their respects following their arrival.

The mission came to evaluate the effects of the Japanese government’s economic cooperation program here and see in what way it can be further improved. It will also confer with government and private officials on all aspects of economic cooperation, including technical and financial assistance, reparations payments, direct loans and suppliers’ credit.

During the call, the President conveyed through the group the gratitude and appreciation of the Philippine government and people to Japan for:

- 1) The credit assistance extended by Japan to the Philippines, particularly in the construction of the EP-Japan Friendship Highway, and for the commodity loan.

2) Japan's quick response to the Philippines' call for support and her leadership in the Consultative Group Meeting held in Paris last April, resulting in the immediate grant of the commodity loan to the Philippines.

3) Japan's donation of 10,000 tons of rice for the typhoon victims last year.

The President expressed the hope that the level of assistance of Japan to the Philippines be not only continued but increased under softer terms.

The Japanese mission was accompanied to Malacañang by Ambassador Toshio Urabe of Japan.

The meeting with the Japanese was attended by Finance Secretary Cesar E.A. Virata, Public Works and Communications Secretary David Consunji, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Director General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Acting Reparations Commissioner Anacleto Mangaser, Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the Development Bank of the Philippines, and Ambassador to Australia Gregorio Abad, the former chairman of the REPACOM.

The President then conferred with officials of the executive department present at the previous meeting and told them to be deadline conscious about the various economic and social projects under their respective jurisdiction. The President said that each department should be able to establish target dates for the completion of particular projects and to meet such deadlines set by them.

In this connection, the President ordered:

1. The Presidential Economic Staff to draw up a list of all projects previously approved by him and to report on the status of each immediately;
2. Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to check and report on the performance of the groups created sometime ago to supervise the planning and implementation of projects by various departments and offices.

The President went back to his private study to continue on paper work. He issued a proclamation declaring Wednesday, January 26 a special public holiday in the provinces of Lanao and Sulu, and in the cities of Iligan, Marawi and Basilan.

January 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos attended in the morning the funeral of the late Ambassador Estela Romualdez Sulit, an aunt of the First Lady.

The First Couple returned to Malacañang before noon arriving just in time for the President's luncheon engagement with Senator Mamintal Tamano.

The President pushed his announced drive against crime another step forward by sending to Congress a number of proposed laws to curb widespread criminality.

The bills seek to provide stiffer penalties for illegal possession of firearms or parts thereof and ammunition, and for violation of crimes relative to opium and other prohibited drugs; remedy the inadequacy of present laws on carnapping; include members of the Armed Forces as among those to whom licenses for the possession of firearms may be exhibited when called up to do so; and provide for free transmission of all mail matter involving data or information on crime, from provincial commanders to the Chief of Constabulary.

With respect to the proposed law increasing penalties for selling or administering opium, the President pointed out that the crime is particularly “heinous because the victims include students, minors and young women, many of whom, because of the drugs, are forced to live a life of shame, misery and criminality.”

The President worked on official papers in the evening.

January 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started the day going over state papers. At mid-morning he interrupted his studies to confer the Order of Sikatuna (rank of datu) on Speaker Paik Too Chin of the National Assembly of the Republic of Korea.

The President honored the Korean dignitary for his “service to international relations as a worthy spokesman of his people,” and which, as a result, helped strengthen the friendly ties between the Philippines and Korea and promoted greater understanding through the exchange of mutually beneficial ideas.

In accepting the decoration, Speaker Paik credited his colleagues at home and said that the visit here of Korean solons would help strengthen the friendly ties between the two countries so that the two peoples “will achieve the common goals they are presently pursuing.”

The entourage of Speaker Paik who also attended the conferment ceremony included Kim Chae Kuoang, Moon Tai Joon, Hyon Oh Bong, Lee Jung Suk, You Tark Kim, Park. Oang Yull, Chung Je Ho, and Lee Kwan Seuh, who are all members of the Korean National Assembly.

Also present at the ceremony were Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, officials of the South Korean Embassy led by Ambassador Se Ryun Kim, Ambassador Narciso G. Reyes to the United Nations, Ambassador Benjamin T. Tirona to Korea; and Monico Vicente, DFA chief of protocol.

Ugale informed the President that he was looking into the possibility of exporting locally manufactured fish products, among others.

He also recommended the establishment of a Philippine National Bank branch in Honolulu to serve over 100,000 Filipinos residing there, many of whom are successful businessmen and industrialists.

Following his meeting with Ugale, the President conferred with head of key departments and agencies involved in development and infrastructure projects, and called on them to coordinate closely to speed up completion of such projects.

The President pushed his announced drive against crime another step forward by sending to Congress a number of proposed laws to curb widespread criminality.

The bills seek to provide stiffer penalties for illegal possession of firearms or parts thereof and ammunition, and for violation of crimes relative to opium and other prohibited drugs; remedy the inadequacy of present laws on carnapping; include members of the Armed Forces as among those to whom licenses for the possession of firearms may be exhibited when called up to do so; and provide for free transmission of all mail matter involving data or information on crime, from provincial commanders to the Chief of Constabulary.

With respect to the proposed law increasing penalties for selling or administering opium, the President pointed out that the crime is particularly “heinous because the victims include students, minors and young women, many of whom, because of the drugs, are forced to live a life of shame, misery and criminality.”

The President worked on official papers in the evening.

The President also ordered that an inventory be made of all infrastructure and development projects, listed by category, so that the proper priority ratings could be determined for budget funding purposes.

During the 30-minute meeting, he was informed that:

- 1) Only 50% per cent of P109 million intended for financing the “palagad” rice program had actually been loaned out to farmers by the rural banks.
- 2) The land reform program was suffering from lack of funds, particularly in Nueva Ecija where tungro destroyed the rice crops.
- 3) The release of 4,700 additional irrigation pumps was snagged by the lack of coordination between the National Irrigation Administration and the Irrigation Service Unit.

The President ordered a study on the possibility of merging the NIA and ISU in order to prevent overlapping of functions, and at the same time speed up the distribution of pumps.

The conference was attended by Secretary of Finance Cesar E.A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Secretary of Agrarian Reform Conrado Estrella; Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Director General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, and Public Works Undersecretary Baltazar Aquino.

President's Week in Review: January 28 - February 3, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, with only a few scheduled callers, had the opportunity to concentrate on his desk work this day. He issued a proclamation, amending Proclamation No. 952, to include the province of Southern Leyte under the declaration of the existence of a state of calamity in the province of Leyte due to typhoon "Asiang."

The President said that extensive destruction to life and property had similarly been wrought upon the province of Southern Leyte by typhoon "Asiang," thus it was just and proper to include the province of Southern Leyte in the calamity area.

The President signed as well an executive order creating the Philippine committee on the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development (UNCTAD).

In creating the committee, the President noted that the Philippines is an active member of the UNCTAD and that the country's participation in conferences of this body should be made more effective.

As created, the Philippine committee is composed of the Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, as chairman; and a representative each from the Departments of Commerce and Industry, and of Finance; the National Economic Council, the Central Bank of the Philippines, the Presidential Economic Staff and the Board of Investments, as members.

In a separate action the President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release additional funds for the economic rehabilitation of displaced settlers, both Christians and Muslims, in Mindanao.

The President's directive was in response to representation made by Governors Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato and Sergio Morales of South Cotabato, who requested that priority be given to basic needs such as food, clothing and medicines, which should be immediately dispatched to their provinces. The duo informed the President that hunger was forcing Muslim evacuees to forage for food, resulting in violent clashes with Christian settlers who do not want to lose their animals and crops.

January 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started this day going over state papers in which he:

1) authorize the transfer of administration and custody of the Aguinaldo Mansion in Kawit, Cavite from the National Museum to the National Historical Commission; and

2) revised the membership of the Executive Committee charged with the observance of the 30th anniversary of the Fall of Bataan and Corregidor. As amended, the committee members include the governor of Bataan province, the deputy commissioner of the Budget, and the national commander of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor.

January 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS put in a full measure of desk work by first of all designating the members of the Philippine delegation to the first meeting of the Association for Science Cooperation in Asia (ASCA), with Chairman Florencio A. Medina of the National Science Development Board as leader.

The President also vested the members of the delegation with full power and authority to meet and confer with their counterparts from other governments represented in the meeting, and who are invested with like power and authority.

Other representatives in the Philippine delegation are Dr. Juan Salcedo, Jr. of the National Research Council of the Philippines, Director General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Mrs. Lefcicia Ramos Shahani of the Department of Foreign Affairs, Bienvenido Villavicencio of the National Economic Council, Jose Torres of the Philippine Atomic Energy Commission, and Dominador O. Reyes who will also serve as adviser.

The President worked on his desk till late in the evening.

January 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started this first working day of the week by busying himself early enough, attending to urgent state papers. He broke off only later to receive the directors of Renault International, Inc.

In meeting the Renault group, the President reiterated the country's basic policy to encourage the entry of foreign capital, especially on a joint venture, and said that "we are very happy that Renault is here in the Philippines and we are also very glad to see the interest of France in the investment field in the Philippines." He took particular interest on the fact that Filipinos are in control of Renault (Philippines) Inc.

The directors of Renault International visited the country to submit their proposals for the expansion of their automotive investments in the Philippines.

The party who called on the President was headed by Pierre Revol, French ambassador to the Philippines, leader of the delegation.

At a meeting with Director Gabriel Carreon of the Philippine General Hospital later in the afternoon, the President released a total of ₱2.8 million for the hospital.

He authorized the fund release on being informed of the conditions in the hospital by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda Romualdez-Marcos, who made an ocular inspection of actual conditions obtaining therein and inquired into the hospital problems.

Checks covering the fund releases were handed to Director Carreon who was accompanied by Acting Secretary of Health Clemente Gatmaitan on the call at Malacañang.

February 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed the nominations of seven persons to fill vacancies in municipal courts, in line with the determined campaign of the government against criminality and lawlessness.

At mid-morning the President broke off from his usual early deskwork to confer with representatives of the two feuding political factions in Iloilo City, headed by Rep. Fermin Caram and City Mayor Rodolfo Ganzon.

Emphasizing his concern for peace and order which he said "leads the agenda of government through the remainder of my Administration," the President asked the protagonists to "settle their differences."

Others who attended the conference were:

Solicitor General Felix Antonio; Director Jolly Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation; Colonel Luis Amor, III PC zone commandor; Col. Prospero Olivas, CIS chief; Col. Emilio Narcise, Iloilo PC provincial commander; Ex-

Vice Mayor Arturo Dican; Ex-Vice Mayor Godofredo Quimsing; Ex-Congressman Pascual Espinosa; Ex-councilor Neil Hechanove; Vice Mayor Francisco Garganera; Councilors Remy Jacomille, Flor Gallon, Francisco Divinagracia, Reuben Duron, Federico Abadiano, Edclie Ledesma, Edgar Gil, Romeo Hibionada, and Assistant Chief of Police Teodolfo de la Cruz.

After the conference, the President received Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Lotuza, and Letty Formoso, representing the Filipino community in Stockton, California, who came to say good-bye before returning to their adopted homes.

Next to call on the President was Rev. Macario Ga of the Philippine Independence Church, who offered the PIC's assistance in the promotion of the people's welfare. The President asked the Bishop to leave the proposal with him for further study.

Other callers who saw the President were Governors Lino Bocalan of Cavite, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, and Mayor Omar Dianalan of Marawi City, all of whom consulted the President on the problems of their respective constituencies.

Later in the day, following a 30-minute briefing on the operations of the Department of Social Welfare, the President called for an integrated approach by all government and agencies concerned with the implementation of the program of socio-economic development, to prevent overlapping of functions and the thin dispersal of government resources.

The agencies involved in this program are the Department of Social Welfare, Presidential Assistant on Community Development, Agricultural Productivity Commission, Agricultural Credit Administration, National Food and Agriculture Council, National Cottage Industries Development Authority, Manpower and Youth Training Council, and the various offices under the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

After the briefing on the disaster relief operations, the President directed Secretary Estefania Aldaba-Lim of social welfare to draw up a realistic estimate of the calamity fund needed for the year, based on her own experience, so that he could recommend to Congress a more realistic and adequate calamity fund.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, as usual, started the day going over state papers which call for his urgent attention and only took time out to receive his scheduled callers.

First to see the President was Congressman Lester Wolff of New York who paid his respects in the course of a brief stopover from his world observation tour. Mr. Wolff was accompanied to Malacañang by William Fiorito, an American industrialist who proposed to launch a tourist program designed to drum up interest among more European and American travellers to visit Southeast Asia. The Chief Executive requested Fiorito to confer with Commissioner Gregorio Araneta of the BTTI.

Next to call on the President were Reps. Ramon Durano, Manuel Zosa, and Eduardo Gullas of Cebu; Mariano B. Peñaflorida of Iloilo; Teodulo C. Natividad of Bulacan; Felipe J. Abrigo of Eastern Samar; Felipe B. Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao; Rafael B. Legaspi of Aklan; Jose G. Puyat of Surigao del Sur. They discussed local matters with the President such as the appointment of judges and prosecutors, the installation of pre-fabricated schoolhouses, and the construction of roads rendered impassable by rains and typhoon.

Other callers included Senator Leonardo Perez who accompanied the governor, vice governor, and board members of Kalinga-Apayao; Vice Governor and Mrs. Francisco Rabat of Davao Oriental, accompanied by Mayor Thelma Almario, Vice Mayor Jesus Abear, councilor Afrodesio B. Andrada, Gervasio Valenteros, Hansel Magno, Ellen Andrada of Davao Oriental, who likewise presented the problems of their constituencies.

At past noontime, the President conferred privately with Bishop Mariano Gaviola, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Delegate Estanislao Fernandez of the Constitutional Convention, Chief of Police Roland Siquijor of Pasay City, and retired General Emilio Zerrudo.

February 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, free from his usual schedule of callers, devoted most of his time going over state papers. Among others, he issued:

1) an executive order redefining the functions and duties of the Medical Assistance Program Task Force, which was created earlier under Executive Order No. 337, dated September 1, 1971.

The President amended the functions of the task force in order that its activities will not overlap and duplicate the responsibilities and duties of the Philippine Medical Care Commission.

As modified, the functions and powers of the task force will be recommendatory and advisory to the commission.

2) an administrative order creating a special committee on narcotics.

In his order, the President stated that narcotic addiction had increasingly become a major social problem and it threatens to corrupt and degrade the youth and student population, undermine society and the economy as well.

“There is an urgent need to formulate and adopt preventive, curative, rehabilitative and developmental measures to repel and contain this social menace before it gets out of control, to the detriment of our national interest and public welfare.”

The special committee is composed of: secretary of Justice as chairman; the solicitor general, as vice chairman; the secretary of health, secretary of education, secretary of social welfare, secretary of finance, commissioner of the budget, and the chief of constabulary, as members.

The President, from time to time have to leave his private study to attend to unscheduled callers especially his fiscal and legislative advisers.

The Chief Executive worked lengthily on his desk in the afternoon and until late in the evening.

Official Week in Review: January 21 – January 27, 1972

January 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day working on state papers, and in the process signed the ad interim appointment of Gen. Manuel T. Yan, as Chief of Mission, Class III, and Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Republic of the Philippines.

Gen. Yan retired recently as chief of staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

At midmorning, the President disengaged himself from deskwork to receive the credentials of His Excellency Said Kassim Rishtya as the new non-resident ambassador of Afghanistan to the Philippines.

In presenting his credentials, Ambassador Rishtya said that although the Philippines and Afghanistan are far apart geographically, the two Asian nations share many things in common which bring them together, and that both countries have undergone “long and unrelenting struggle in maintaining and safeguarding national independence” and are “firm supporters of world peace and good understanding among nations.”

Responding to the new envoy’s remarks, President Marcos noted “that the existing bonds of friendship between our two peoples have strengthened through the years and that this has been made possible by our common aspirational determination to safeguard and uphold the ideals of liberty, fraternity, and independence.”

“My administration,” the President stressed, “looks forward to the intensification of cooperative efforts between our two countries in the field of cultural, trade, and commercial relations.”

Among those who attended the ceremony were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, and Acting Secretary of Health Clemente S. Gatmaitan.

In another ceremony later, the President conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Lakan, on Executive Director Virgilio Barco of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development in simple award ceremonies at Malacañang.

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, read the citation which lauded Dr. Barco for his “work in promoting better relations between the Philippines and Latin American countries” and his esteemed services to the government and people of the Republic of the Philippines,” in his capacity as executive director of the IBRD, International Finance Corporation, and International Loans Association representing the Philippines, Colombia, Brazil, Ecuador, and the Dominican Republic.

After the ceremonies, the President tendered a luncheon in honor of Barco.

Present at the rites were Secretaries Cesar E.A. Virata of Finance, David M. Consunji of Public Works and Communications and Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., of Agriculture and Natural Resources; General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. of the Government Service Insurance System, Governor Gregorio S. Licaros of the Central Bank, Chairman Leonides S. Virata and Governor Leon O. Ty of the Development Bank of the Philippines, and Chairman Vicente T. Paterno of the Board of Investments.

In the evening, the President tendered a formal dinner in honor of Dr. Takishi Watanabe, president of the Asian Development Bank.

January 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day going over urgent state papers. He asked Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo to read for him a prepared prayer at the “Presidential Prayer Breakfast.”

In that prayer, the President said:

“To see men of different faiths and persuasions gathered thus under the same house, and to know that they are brought together by hopes and concerns they share in common, is to realize the extent to which we truly are one mind in one house, regardless of the diversity and differences of our individual creeds.

“Today, we live in a world wracked by doubt and conflict; and increasingly we are confronted with the terrible realization that serenity and happiness seem to recede farther away as our science and technology bring us closer to our material wants.”

The President concluded that “prayer is an education in fortitude as well as in hope, for it is in faith that we derive much of our energy and inspiration in the successful pursuit of our highest and greatest endeavors.”

The President ended the prayer by asking those gathered to share in from the Book of Common Prayer:

“Grant us grace fearlessly to contend against evil, and to make no peace with oppression; and, that we may reverently use our freedom, help us to employ it in the maintenance of justice among men and nations.”

Later in the afternoon, the President inspected the Manila International Airport which was gutted by a dawn fire of still unknown origin.

In the course of his 45-minute inspection, the President appointed retired Brig. Gen. Jesus Singson, as civil aeronautics administrator and directed him to immediately take steps to normalize operations at the Manila International Airport.

Accompanied by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, the President was met and briefed by airport and aviation officials, including Acting Civil Aeronautics Administrator Epifanio Raymundo, MIA Manager Luis Tabuena and Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, PAF chief; and Director Jolly Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation.

Following the briefing, the President ordered:

- 1) The National Bureau of Investigation, the Metropolitan Command and the Civil Aeronautics Administration as well as the Pasay Police Department to assign their investigating arms to look into the arson angle.
- 2) The Department of Public Works and Communications to survey the damage as soon as the building cools off, determine the extent particularly of the damage to communications facilities, and to survey possible sources of replacements.

The President left the MIA for Malacañang at about 4:35 p.m.

PRESIDENT MARCOS did not receive any callers today but instead closeted himself in his private study to put the finishing touches to his State-of-the-Nation Message.

Early in the evening, the President broke off from his study to hear Mass at the Malacañang chapel.

January 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS in his address on the State-of-the-Nation before a joint session of Congress at the opening of its 100-day regular session, presented a 12-point priority program for an all-out drive against crime and stepped-up economic development.

The President said that the 12 bills, together with other specific legislation that he outlined, are aimed at giving meaning to his democratic revolution.

In his 55-minute speech, during which he reviewed what he called the “battalia of crises” which griped the country last year, the Chief Executive also expressed confidence that the nation will “not only stand but will also prevail.”

“This nation stands, tested by adversity and deriving strength from it, summoning a fresh will from the continuing challenge that are the historical legacy of all struggling nations,” the President said.

But the President added that the international and local developments were moving so fast as was the case 1971—that the Philippines would have to keep pace with developments if it was to survive.

Earlier, the President received a Congress committee composed of Senators Mamintal Tamano, Genaro Magsaysay and Lorenzo Teves, and Reps. James Chiongbian, Calixto Zaldivar, Jr. and Joaquin Rocas who informed him that the legislative body had convened and was ready to receive his message.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, and the Congress committee, the President arrived at the session hall at 11 a.m. as scheduled.

The President and the First Lady were given a standing ovation. They were escorted in by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Sneaker Cornelio T. Villareal.

Among the top government officials present the session hall were Vice President Fernando Lopez; members of the Cabinet, the Judiciary, the diplomatic corps, and their ladies. Also present were Mrs. Josefa Edralin-Marcos, the President’s mother, and some provincial, city and municipal officials.

The President and the First Lady were back at Malacañang about 12:30 p.m.

January 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual engaged himself in his private study going over state papers needing his utmost attention, and only broke off to receive the members of the Japanese Economic Cooperation and Reparations Mission who paid their respects following their arrival.

The mission came to evaluate the effects of the Japanese government’s economic cooperation program here and see in what way it can be further improved. It will also confer with government and private officials on all aspects of economic cooperation, including technical and financial assistance, reparations payments, direct loans and suppliers’ credit.

During the call, the President conveyed through the group the gratitude and appreciation of the Philippine government and people to Japan for:

- 1) The credit assistance extended by Japan to the Philippines, particularly in the construction of the EP-Japan Friendship Highway, and for the commodity loan.

2) Japan's quick response to the Philippines' call for support and her leadership in the Consultative Group Meeting held in Paris last April, resulting in the immediate grant of the commodity loan to the Philippines.

3) Japan's donation of 10,000 tons of rice for the typhoon victims last year.

The Japanese mission was accompanied to Malacañang by Ambassador Toshio Urabe of Japan.

The meeting with the Japanese was attended by Finance Secretary Cesar E.A. Virata, Public Works and Communications Secretary David Consunji, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Director General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Acting Reparations Commissioner Anacleto Mangaser, Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the Development Bank of the Philippines, and Ambassador to Australia Gregorio Abad, the former chairman of the REPACOM.

The President then conferred with officials of the executive department present at the previous meeting and told them to be deadline conscious about the various economic and social projects under their respective jurisdiction. The President said that each department should be able to establish target dates for the completion of particular projects and to meet such deadlines set by them.

In this connection, the President ordered:

1. The Presidential Economic Staff to draw up a list of all projects previously approved by him and to report on the status of each immediately;

2. Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to check and report on the performance of the groups created sometime ago to supervise the planning and implementation of projects by various departments and offices.

The President went back to his private study to continue on paper work. He issued a proclamation declaring Wednesday, January 26 a special public holiday in the provinces of Lanao and Sulu, and in the cities of Iligan, Marawi and Basilan.

January 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos attended in the morning the funeral of the late Ambassador Estela Romualdez Sulit, an aunt of the First Lady.

The First Couple returned to Malacañang before noon arriving just in time for the President's luncheon engagement with Senator Mamintal Tamano.

The President pushed his announced drive against crime another step forward by sending to Congress a number of proposed laws to curb widespread criminality.

The bills seek to provide stiffer penalties for illegal possession of firearms or parts thereof and ammunition, and for violation of crimes relative to opium and other prohibited drugs; remedy the inadequacy of present laws on carnaping; include members of the Armed Forces as among those to whom licenses for the possession of firearms may be exhibited when called up to do so; and provide for free transmission of all mail matter involving data or information on crime, from provincial commanders to the Chief of Constabulary.

With respect to the proposed law increasing penalties for selling or administering opium, the President pointed out that the crime is particularly “heinous because the victims include students, minors and young women, many of whom, because of the drugs, are forced to live a life of shame, misery and criminality.”

The President worked on official papers in the evening.

January 27—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started the day going over state papers. At mid-morning he interrupted his studies to confer the Order of Sikatuna (rank of datu) on Speaker Paik Too Chin of the National Assembly of the Republic of Korea.

The President honored the Korean dignitary for his “service to international relations as a worthy spokesman of his people,” and which, as a result, helped strengthen the friendly ties between the Philippines and Korea and promoted greater understanding through the exchange of mutually beneficial ideas.

In accepting the decoration, Speaker Paik credited his colleagues at home and said that the visit here of Korean solons would help strengthen the friendly ties between the two countries so that the two peoples “will achieve the common goals they are presently pursuing.”

The entourage of Speaker Paik who also attended the conferment ceremony included Kim Chae Kuoang, Moon Tai Joon, Hyon Oh Bong, Lee Jung Suk, You Tark Kim, Park. Oang Yull, Chung Je Ho, and Lee Kwan Seuh, who are all members of the Korean National Assembly.

Also present at the ceremony were Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, officials of the South Korean Embassy led by Ambassador Se Ryun Kim, Ambassador Narciso G. Reyes to the United Nations, Ambassador Benjamin T. Tirona to Korea; and Monico Vicente, DFA chief of protocol.

Ugale informed the President that he was looking into the possibility of exporting locally manufactured fish products, among others.

He also recommended the establishment of a Philippine National Bank branch in Honolulu to serve over 100,000 Filipinos residing there, many of whom are successful businessmen and industrialists.

Following his meeting with Ugale, the President conferred with head of key departments and agencies involved in development and infrastructure projects, and called on them to coordinate closely to speed up completion of such projects.

The President pushed his announced drive against crime another step forward by sending to Congress a number of proposed laws to curb widespread criminality.

Office of the President of the Philippines. (1972). Official Week in Review. Official Gazette of the Republic of the Philippines, 68(5), xxxi-xxxvi.

Official Week in Review: February 4 – February 10, 1972

February 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, with only one scheduled caller, started the day early going over state papers. In the process he issued Executive Order No. 369 modifying the rates of import duty on certain imported articles as provided under the Tariff and Customs Code of the Philippines.

At about mid-morning, the President broke off from his desk work and administered the oath of office to:

- 1) Col. Carmelo L. Agbayani as acting commissioner of the Police Commission.

Agbayani's designation fills the vacancy created by the expiration of the term of office of former Commissioner Jose Lukban.

- 2) Miss Rora H. Navarro as Foreign Service Officer (Class IV) and Vice-Consul of the Philippines.

After the induction ceremonies, the President resumed his study of urgent state papers uninterruptedly until late in the evening.

February 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started early on the day going over urgent state papers.

Among others, the Chief Executive:

- 1) Issued a proclamation designating the period from February 15 to June 15 for the 1972 national membership and educational fund campaign of the Philippine Mental Health Association, Inc.
- 2) Signed the nominations for one original appointment and four promotional transfers in station assignment of judges of the Court of First Instance.

He then submitted the nominations to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation.

The President also issued a directive to the Philippine Constabulary, "to employ all available and necessary force" to keep the peace in Lianga, Surigao del Sur. He issued the directive at a conference in Malacañang attended by officials of the justice and labor departments, the PC and of the province of Surigao del Sur. The President had summoned these officials to work out solutions to the labor dispute in the area.

Present at the conference were: Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Undersecretary of Labor Amado G. Inciong, Reps. Jose G. Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur and Roberto M. Sabido of Albay, Fiscal Vicente Murillo of Surigao del Sur, and Commodore Hilario M. Ruiz, PN flag-officer-in-command.

February 6—

FREE from his usual schedule of callers, President Marcos devoted the whole day to desk work. He issued a proclamation declaring Saturday, February 19, a special public holiday in Bago City. The day marks the anniversary of the city's organization.

Interrupting his desk work at about noontime, the President met with some members of his Cabinet who come to consult him on problems affecting their respective departments.

February 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS certified to Congress the urgency of Senate Bill No. 543, a bill seeking to provide for closer supervision over the dispensation of dangerous drugs, and imposing stiffer penalties on those who illegally traffic in prohibited drugs. In certifying the bill, the President pointed out that drug addiction had aggravated the peace and order problem, and that it is especially dangerous because it destroys the fabric of morality.

In the afternoon, the President presided over the meeting of the Foreign Policy Council which discussed the matter on the Philippine recognition of the new state of Bangladesh (East Pakistan).

However, upon request of national and local Muslim leaders whom the President invited to the meeting, the Council deferred action on the matter “at least until after Indian troops had pulled out of the territory.”

The President told the Muslim delegation headed by Sen. Mamintal Tamano that he would bring up their request at the next Foreign Policy Council meeting.

The Muslim delegation which saw the President included Rep. Indanan Anni of Sulu, Mayor Omar Dianalan of Marawi City, Governor-elect Tarhata Lucman of Lanao del Sur; and Governors Carlos Cajero of Cotabato and Virgilio Lacaya of Zamboanga del Norte.

After the meeting, the President resumed his paperwork the rest of the afternoon and evening.

He signed the designations of:

1) Ronaldo B. Zamora as assistant executive secretary for legal affairs. Secretary Zamora filled the post vacated by former Assistant Executive Secretary Ponciano G. A. Mathay, who was appointed chairman of the Oil Industry Commission.

2) Manuel T. Mañosa, Jr. as member of the Board of Examiners for Architects, to succeed Tomas Arguelles whose term of office in that Board had expired.

February 8—

THIS IS a red letter day in the country’s history, as it brings back to memory the promulgation of the fundamental law of the land. In commemorating the event, the President issued the following message:

“We mark Constitution Day this year amid a unified national effort to write a new Constitution that will best embody our hopes and aspirations for a better life.

“Although the new Constitution should certainly carry features different from the original document, I am sure, at the very core, the new Constitution will pay allegiance to the same virtues, the same ideals, and the same principles that give life to our free Republic and our democratic way of life.

“We have reason to be particularly proud in the fact that whereas in other countries, Constitutions are disrupted and modified after the shedding of blood, peaceful order and democratic ceremony attend our present Constitutional effort.

“It is best perhaps that on this occasion our thoughts should turn to those who gave us present Constitution, while our prayers and good wishes go to the men and women who are trying to give us a new one. “It is also fitting that our people unite to support their efforts.”

The President's activities for the rest of the day hewed close to schedule, with the morning devoted to desk work. Among others, he signed his Budget message to Congress, covering his proposal for the FY 1973 general appropriations.

The President devoted the afternoon to receiving callers.

Among his visitors were:

1) R. F. Johnson, president and managing director of Caltex (Phil.) who succeeded J.J. Wolahan as head of the gasoline firm. Accompanying Johnson on the call were Caltex officials led by Wolahan and Francis Ablan.

2) Mayor Silvestre Boma and the councilors of the new town of Imelda, Camarines Norte who sought financial assistance for their municipal projects, such as for the construction of a municipal building, roads and other public works, and for the purchase of firearms and ammunitions for the local police force.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, were hosts at cocktails, honoring the surviving delegates to the 1934 Constitutional Convention.

February 9—

WITH a few scheduled callers, the President started the day early attending to urgent slate papers. In separate actions he:

1) Ordered Commissioner Misael P. Vera of the Bureau of Internal Revenue to make public the latest income tax returns of the top 100 individual and corporate taxpayers in the country;

2) Signed the designations of three officials in the Bureau of Public Schools, and of the acting chairman of the Board of Examiners for Civil Engineers; and

3) Issued a directive requiring that any contract for the reconstruction of the Manila International Airport terminal building should comply with guidelines he spelled out in a similar order we sent to Secretary of Public Works and Communications David Consunji.

Later in the morning, the President disengaged from his desk work to meet officials of the United Nations Development Programme. He discussed with them the projected establishment of a Philippine Coconut Research Institute in the Philippines.

The UNDP is offering to provide the Institute with the equipment needed to train coconut scientists, especially in conducting leaf analyses of all coconut palms to ascertain fertilizer needs.

Senator Emmanuel Pelaez, chairman of the Senate committee on agriculture, accompanied the UNDP officials to Malacañang.

The other UNDP officials in the group were Tom Unwin, Dr. Horst Gueting, and Dr. W. V. D. Pieris. Others in the group were NSDB Chairman Florencio Medina; D. Juan T. Carlos, Jr., Philcorin director; and Miss Cherie Palileo, secretary to the NSDB Board of Trustees.

Another caller of the President was Shinzo Ohya, president of the Teijin (Ltd) of Japan. Ohya informed the President that his company had granted 10 two-year scholarships abroad for Filipino college graduates.

The President thanked Ohya, who is also chairman of the Japan Textile Federation, for the scholarships and assured him that the Department of Education will see to it that only the worthy and most qualified nominees would be chosen for the scholarships.

Ohya was accompanied by his wife, Masako Ohya; Kuniaki Matsumoto, Carlos Palanca, Jr., Jesus Yujuico, P. L. Lim, Yoichi Watanabe and Cesar Concio.

February 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS made two important decisions while going over state papers needing his immediate attention.

1) He issued Executive Order No. 373, designating the Department of Commerce and Industry as the agency to take over and finish the business operations of the Board of Industries.

2) He directed the implementation of Article 2186 of the Civil Code of the Philippines.

The said article provides: “Every owner of a motor vehicle shall file with the proper government office a bond executed by a government-controlled corporation or office, to answer for damages to third persons.”

At about 10 a.m., the President held a caucus with leaders of the Senate and the House of Representatives.

The Chief Executive said during the meeting that facilities and projects boosting production would be given top priority in the matter of fund releases.

The President said it was extremely necessary to program the funds available because of the meager resources and the great demand for funds to boost production.

Among those who called on the President were Reps. Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur, Lamberto Macias of Negros Oriental, Armando Cope of Albay, Antonio Diaz of Zambales, Ramon Durano and Manuel Zosa of Cebu, Rafael Legaspi of Aklan, Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Godofredo Tan of Quezon, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur and Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao.

President's Week in Review: February 11-17, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored to Sta. Rosa, Laguna early in the morning for the inauguration of the Filipinas Synthetic-Fiber Corporation plant where he was also the guest speaker.

In his speech the President said that “the genius of private enterprise and the assistance and encouragement of government” made possible “the manufacture of polyester fiber in the Philippines.”

He stressed anew what he has always maintained, “that the future of industry is best assured by the system that gives full scope of the genius of private enterprise, and that the government’s place in this effort is not to displace the entrepreneur but to encourage, support, and assist him in this endeavor.”

The new plant, a first in the country, was to produce polyester, described as “the fiber of our time.” Incorporated on July 22, 1958, Filsyn is a 60 per cent Filipino and 40 per cent Japanese joint venture, with a ₱50 million authorized capital stock.

The President said that the “hopes of the government are great that the project will meet with success.”

Prominent among those present at the inauguration were Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe; Shinzo Ohya, president of Teijin Limited and Chairman of the Japanese Textile Federation; Mrs. Masako Ohya; Bishop Pedro Bantigue of San Pablo City, who officiated at the blessing; and Filsyn executives and their wives, including Jesus Yujuico, chairman; Seiichiro Watanabe, vice-chairman.

After the inauguration ceremonies, the President partook of lunch with the company executives and thereafter, he motored back to Manila arriving in Malacañang at 3 p.m.

After a brief rest, he worked on official papers. In the process, he issued Executive Order No. 368, which certified as a preferred pioneer industry the production of polyester fibers, and entitled the product to post-operative tariff protection.

The President continued his desk work until evening.

February 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presided over the meeting of the Foreign Policy Council in the morning.

During the meeting, the Council decided to open trade relations with all countries including Socialist and Communist countries, but excluding those under United Nations embargo such as Rhodesia and South Africa.

The President said that the decision to establish trade relations with all countries would push forward the frontiers of the country’s diplomatic and trade relations in accordance with the plans of the Council.

He said that under this policy, trade will be carried on all levels, whether between individuals or firms, and between corporations.

At the same time, the Council deferred action on the question of recognition of Bangladesh (East Pakistan).

The Council's action was in response to the appeal of Muslim leaders led by Sen. Mamintal Tamano who urged a more cautious attitude towards recognition.

The meeting was attended by Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senators Mamintal Tamano, Arturo M. Tolentino, Lorenzo Teves and Emmanuel Pelaez, former Sen. Lorenzo M. Tanada; Reps. Nicanor Yñiguez, Ali Dimaporo, Macacuna Dimaporo, and Jose Aldeguez;

Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, and Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr. of Commerce and Industry; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles, Commissioner Mama Sinsuat of National Integration;

Constitutional Convention Delegate Raul S. Manglapus, Roman Pedrosa of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, Benjamin Campomanes of the Rotary Club, U. P. President Salvador P. Lopez, Ambassador to the United Nations Narciso G. Reyes, Governors Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato and Linang Mandangan of Lanao del Sur.

Earlier, the President conferred with Senate and House leaders with whom he discussed the administration's legislative proposals.

In the afternoon, the President devoted his time working on state papers and reviewing reports submitted to him by various government officials.

While going over the reports, the President ordered the immediate preparation of a comprehensive system of rotation and assignment of government personnel to achieve full utilization of their talent, training, capability or expertise in the interest of national development.

Toward this end, he organized a committee to prepare the rotation plan, with Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes as chairman.

Named members of the committee were Angelita Ofilada of the Presidential Economic Staff, Carmel C. Perfecto of the Commission on Reorganization, and Filemon U. Fernandez of the Civil Service Commission.

The committee was directed to review the memoranda of agreement submitted by the various government departments, and to incorporate the same into the comprehensive rotation plan.

He also ordered the committee to submit the final draft of the Comprehensive Plan and the schedule of implementation within 30 days after receipt of all memoranda of agreement from the various departments.

February 13—

SUNDAY is usually a day free of callers, so President Marcos had ample time to review important reports submitted to him by various officials regarding government projects.

At about 4:35 in the afternoon, the President, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, motored to the Manila International Airport to welcome President Soeharto of Indonesia who arrived for a three-day state visit.

Upon the arrival of President Soeharto on board an Indonesian Garuda Airways plane, which touched down at 4:55 p.m., the President and Mrs. Marcos approached the ramp to meet the Indonesian chief of state, who was accompanied by Madame Soeharto.

The Indonesian leader was given the traditional 21-gun salute and full military honors.

From the airport, the Philippine and Indonesian presidents headed a long motorcade that brought them to Malacañang. They arrived at the Palace at 5:45 p.m.

President Soeharto's party included: Adam Malik president of the United Nations General Assembly and concurrently Indonesian foreign minister; Dr. Widjojo Nitisastro, minister for national development; Gen. Umar Wirahadikusumah, chief of staff of the Indonesian army; maj. Gen. Soedharmono, secretary of State; Brig Gen. Soetikno Loekitodisastro, presidential secretary; R. B. I. N. Djajadiningrat, director-general for political affairs of the Indonesian foreign ministry.

Prominent among the welcomers of President Soeharto were Vice President and Mrs. Fernando Lopez, Constitutional Convention President and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, Senate President and Mrs. Gil J. Puyat, Speaker and Mrs. Cornelio T. Villareal, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and Undersecretaries Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes, members of the diplomatic corps, the Cabinet, the Senators and the House of Representatives, and the Indonesian community in the Philippines.

In the evening, President and Mrs. Marcos tendered a state dinner in, honor of President and Mrs. Soeharto.

In their after dinner remarks, both the host and the honoree reaffirmed the existing cordial relations between the Philippines and Indonesia.

The President also noted the invaluable contributions of President Soeharto to the enhancement of the friendly and fraternal relations between the Philippines and Indonesia.

In response, the Indonesian President assured President Marcos of the continuing brotherly and friendly sentiments of the entire people of Indonesia towards the Filipinos.

February 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had breakfast and private talks with the visiting Indonesian, chief of state, President Soeharto.

Official talks were also conducted by the two Presidents, wherein also present were the top officials of the Philippine and Indonesian governments. These included Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Soraudo, Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Ambassador Narciso G. Reyes, Philippine envoy to the United Nations; Gen. Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; and Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes on the Philippine side; and on the Indonesian side were Foreign Minister Adam Malik, Ambassador Kusno Utomo, Minister Widjojo Nitisastro of national development; Gen. Umar Wirahadikusumah, chief of staff; Maj. Gen. Soedharmono, secretary of state; and R. B. I. D. Djajadiningrat, secretary-general for political affairs of the Indonesian foreign ministry.

Aside from his talks with the visiting President, the Chief Executive also received a number of callers.

Notable among the callers was Dr. Malcolm Mackay, minister of the Australian Navy, who paid his respects. Dr. Mackay was accompanied to Malacañang by Australian Ambassador to the Philippines James C. Ingram and Gregorio Abad, Philippine envoy to Australia.

At noon, the President joined the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, at the Nayong Pilipino where they hosted at a luncheon in honor of visiting President and Madame Soeharto of Indonesia.

In the afternoon, the President resumed his regular schedule of desk work and received callers in-between.

February 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS gave President Soeharto and his party an overview of the Philippine economic development program in a one-and-a-half-hour briefing held in the morning at the Malacañang Music Room. The President was assisted by his advisers at the briefing.

The briefing supplemented the working sessions of Philippine officials headed by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments with their counterpart from the Indonesian government.

During the briefing the President, said that like any developing nation, the Philippines has two principal targets—security and economic development.

He added that this was the reason why the administration embarked on the development of agriculture as the foundation of a well-balanced agro-industrial economy, citing among others land reform, the formation of cooperatives, the rural employment program, rural electrification, and promotion of cottage industries.

Those who assisted the President were Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., PACD Officer-in-Charge Rosendo Marquez, Agricultural Productivity Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit, ACA Deputy Administrator Amado Lansang, and a representative each from the National Electrification Administration and the Cooperatives Administration Office.

Later, President and Mrs. Soeharto tendered a formal luncheon in Malacañang in honor of President and Mrs. Marcos.

After the luncheon which climaxed the Indonesian President's three-day state visit, the two Chiefs of State issued a Joint Communique, wherein they reaffirmed the close friendship between Indonesia and the Philippines and agreed to continue preparations for an Asian Summit Meeting that will discuss the proposed neutralization of Southeast Asia. (See pp. 1311-1313 for full text of the Joint Communique)

In the afternoon, President and Mrs. Marcos escorted the party of President and Madame Soeharto from Malacañang to the Manila International Airport where they, together with other Philippine Officials, accorded the departing visitors a warm send-off.

The entourage left the Palace at 4:30 p.m. immediately after the press conference held by Indonesian President with local and foreign newsmen.

At the MIA, the two Presidents were given full military honors, eluding a 21-gun salute, by a composite battalion representing the major services of the AFP. Then the two First Couples went through the long line of members of the Cabinet, Congress and the Judiciary; and chiefs of diplomatic missions, and their ladies, who saw the visitors off at the airport.

After the farewell ceremonies, the Soehartos boarded their plane for their return flight to Indonesia.

Back in Malacañang at about 6 p.m., the President buckled down to desk work for a few hours in the evening. He issued a proclamation declaring Wednesday, February 16, as a special public holiday in Caloocan City, on the occasion of its charter anniversary.

February 17—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos officiated at the unveiling ceremony of the monument to the country's three martyr priests—Fathers Mariano Gomez, Jose Burgos, and Jacinto Zamora at the Plaza Roma in Intramuros.

The First Couple were fetched from Malacañang by Justice Calixto Zaldivar of the Supreme Court. Justice Zaldivar is the chairman of the Gomburza Centennial Commission.

The unveiling and dedication of the monument was in connection with the observance of the 100th anniversary of the execution of the three martyr priests.

The First Lady unveiled the monument, assisted by Justice Zaldivar and relatives of the martyrs.

In his speech highlighting the unveiling ceremony, the President pledged to exert every effort to recover from the Spanish government the documents on the proceedings of the trial of the martyr priests.

He recalled that “the Spanish colonial government shrouded the events of 1872 in mystery, and the proceedings of the trial of Fathers Gomez, Burgos and Zamora have remained unavailable even today—and even the graves have not been located.”

In desiring the acquisition of the trial documents, the President stressed that his interest lies on the plane of political theory, as he would like the Filipino people to consider whether it would not be more “a source of pride for us if the three priests were not innocent of the crime attributed to them.”

The President declared:

“I am motivated by my personal beliefs and by my oath of office to see to it that the grounds be minimized for citizens becoming firm in their convictions that there is no longer any way getting justice save through the destruction of the entire political and social system. Since there are many obstacles to granting justice to citizens, brought about by a number of causes, some historical, some fortuitous, everyone should be permitted not only to be critical of the system but to persuade vigorously the administration and the government to listen to their way on justice.

“It is in the spirit that we, today, dedicate this memorial to Fathers Gomez, Burgos and Zamora, the Filipino patriots, from whose blood issued the great Filipino nation.”

Prominent among those who attended the unveiling ceremony were: the officers of the Gomburza Centennial Commission headed by Justice Zaldivar and the relatives of the martyrs—Natalia Gomez-Quintos, Carlos Xeres-Burgos, Alfred Xeres-Burgos, and Leonardo Guerra. The members of the Cabinet, the Diplomatic corps, and the Supreme Court.

After the ceremony, the First Couple returned to Malacañang, arriving shortly before 11:00 a.m.

At Malacañang, the President received a big group of Ford Motor Company executives who were in Manila to inspect the proposed site of the Ford assembly plant at the Free Trade Zone in Mariveles, Bataan

The Ford officials informed the President of their observation that with his vigorous and active leadership the Philippines appears to have assumed the leadership in the progressive car manufacturing field which may well set the pattern for all countries in Southeast Asia.

On the other hand, the President expressed satisfaction over the interest shown by a lot of car manufacturers in setting up factories in Mariveles. He said this was an indication that the political leadership in Asia have awakened to the need for cooperation and integration of their efforts in the economic field.

He promised to extend all possible support from the government to the progressive car manufacturing program, adding that he hoped it “would further advance our standards in the field of car manufacture.”

The Ford group was led by Allan C. Foran, president of Ford (Phil.) Inc., and accompanied by Chairman Teodoro Pena of the Free Trade Zone Authority.

The Ford executives' call was followed by a luncheon conference the President had called among Visayan representatives who informed him on matters affecting their respective constituencies.

In the afternoon and until early evening the President went over reports and other urgent state papers which needed his immediate attention.

President's Week in Review: February 18-24, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had his usual schedule of callers which included delegations from the provinces who came to request for fund releases to finance various improvement projects in their respective localities, including the construction of public buildings.

The President informed them that a list of priorities was being drawn, and the first priority was being given to communications and transportation facilities like roads and bridges; the second for projects involving production like flood control and irrigation; and the third for hospitals, health centers and schools.

The delegations included those from Davao del Sur and Davao City headed by Gov. Nenito Llanos, Sr. and Mayor Carlos Ginoo, respectively. The delegations were accompanied by Reps. Lorenzo Sarmiento and Constancio Maglana.

Other delegations the President received were those from Loay, Bohol and Luna, Kalinga-Apayao, which were respectively headed by Mayors Francis Clarin-Zarraga and George Bargas.

In between receiving callers, the President signed a number of designations, including that of Dr. Generoso E. Espinosa as acting health officer of Olongapo City. Dr. Espinosa succeeded Nicanor Ednalino, retired.

The President also issued a proclamation declaring Wednesday, February 23, a special public holiday in Marinduque. The day marks the 52nd anniversary of that province.

The Chief Executive also conferred with Sen. Mamintal Tamano on matters pertaining to cultural minorities, and with the Director of Plant Industry Eliseo Carandang.

He received callers until 2 p.m.

February 19—

WITH ONLY one scheduled caller, President Marcos started the day going over urgent state and official business which needed his attention.

In the course of his desk work, the President:

1. Signed Executive Order No. 376 elevating to Cabinet rank the position of Press Secretary; and
2. Issued a proclamation declaring the first week of March of every year as Environmental Week.

The setting aside of a week of the year as Environmental Week by the President was aimed at focusing national attention on the need for environmental planning and the control of pollution, deforestation and other threats to a balance ecology which is very essential for human progress and survival.

In order to insure the maximum effectiveness of environmental planning, the President also created a committee to take charge of the observance of Environmental Week, with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R Marcos, as its honorary chairman.

At about noon, the President received his lone caller, Philippine Ambassador Modesto Farolan to Indonesia. The envoy called for final instructions before reporting back to his post in Jakarta.

During the day, the President also ordered that a continuing study be made on the changing prices of coconut oil and copra in the world market. At the same time, he instructed government officials concerned that “no coconut oil or copra and other coconut products can be exported except when sold at definite check prices which we should now establish and should be higher than the present price.”

He likewise ordered the elimination of all obstacles to efforts at oil exploration in the country.

The President’s directives were given to Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros, Commissioners Misael P. Vera of Internal Revenue and Rolando Geotina of Customs, and Bureau of Mines Director Fernando Busuego, Jr.

In this connection, the President further ordered “henceforth, rules shall be issued so that only a bond shall be necessary without payment of any taxes and the machinery (for oil exploration) may be kept here for as long there is a contract and actual work in mining or exploration”.

Later in the day, the President inducted into office Vice Governor J. Antonio/Leviste as the new governor of Batangas. Gov. Leviste fills the vacancy left by Gov. Antonio Carpio, who succumbed to a heart attack while in office.

Present at the induction held at Malacañang were close relatives and friends of the inductee.

After the induction ceremony, the President worked continuously in his private study until late in the evening.

February 20—

NOW FREE from the usual schedule of callers, President Marcos devoted most of the morning and afternoon to desk work.

In the process, the President:

1. Issued a proclamation declaring Monday, February 21, as a special public holiday in Batangas, in deference to the death of Gov. Antonio Carpio.
2. Issued a directive enjoining Secretary of Education Juan L. Manuel to implement immediately the plan to reorient the country’s educational system as recommended by the Presidential Commission to Survey Philippine Education.

The President ordered that the survey be implemented “not later than June, 1972, so it can be fully implemented by the end of 1973.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS had his usual heavy schedule of callers, whom he begun receiving at about mid-morning.

Before attending to his callers, the Chief Executive conferred on Ambassador Patrick Pichi Sun of the Republic of China the ancient Order of Sikatuna, rank of Datu. The Chinese envoy was especially cited for “his devotion in championing the cause of close and fraternal relations at all levels between the Republic of the Philippines and the Republic of China.” The later was also commended “for his services in the field of international relations and for having been a worthy spokesman of his government and people.”

Ambassador Pichi Sun accepted the award “with deep humility and profound gratitude,” and said that the award was “a symbol of the assurances of friendly relations that have been subsisting between our two countries.”

Among those present at the ceremony were: The First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos; Mrs. Pichi Sun; Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Mons. Carmine Rocco, papal nuncio to the Philippines; U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade, Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe, Spanish Ambassador Nicolas Martin Alonso, Minister Yu Pen and Counselor Winston Mih of the Chinese Embassy; and former Secretary of Foreign Affairs Narciso Ramos.

Later, the President received Jacath Pathi, head of the Asian regional team for employment promotion of the International Labor Organization, and Hugo Lane, ILO regional director.

The ILO officials were here for “a round of consultations with Philippine economic planning agencies on employment and manpower matters.”

They were accompanied to Malacañang by former Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople and Director-General Rony Diaz of the National Manpower and Youth Council.

The President received other private and government officials until way past noon.

After going through reports on inefficient handling of mail matters, he created a Postal Reform Task Force to study and recommend corrective measures to improve the country’s postal service.

In this connection, the President appointed retired Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe as presidential assistant and designated him chairman of the task force.

In another action, the President authorized the Children’s Museum and Library, Inc. to conduct its education, membership and fund campaign from March 1 to December 31, this year. The authorization was embodied in a proclamation.

February 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS enplaned for Bacolod City in the morning to address the delegates to the 19th annual convention of the National Federation of Sugar Planters.

Accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, the President arrived in Bacolod about 9:30 a.m.

After receiving full military honors upon arrival at the Bacolod airport the First Couple motored to the residence of Gov. Alfredo Montelibano, Jr. where the President conferred with provincial and municipal officials.

The President was gratified to learn that aside from a few cases of piracy in remote coastal towns, the peace and order in the province was generally satisfactory.

Among the requests received by the President from local officials were those for assistance by the national government in the repair of broken down roads and bridges, dredging facilities and the construction of sea-walls to protect the inhabitants of certain coastal communities from floods.

At 11:30 a.m., the President and the First Lady proceeded to the convention site where they were met with a prolonged, standing ovation as they entered the hall.

The President hailed the sugar industry on which, he said, “the livelihood of three million Filipinos depends and upon whose health and vigor the nation’s economic development depends so much.”

The Chief Executive urged the sugar industry leaders to defend the industry against “libelous indictments” by its critics. He declared: “As long as I am President, the government will continue to protect the industry and be allowed to participate in the stabilization of the economy.”

The First Couple returned to Manila immediately after partaking of lunch with the convention delegates.

February 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started the day going over state papers. From time to time he broke off from desk work to receive some unscheduled callers who consulted him on various problems.

At mid-morning, the President conferred with leaders of the cultural minorities to push through plans for the development and maintenance of peace and order in their respective regions.

They discussed the various problems requiring his immediate attention, such as transportation and communications, peace and order, health and economic development affecting the cultural minority groups.

During the conference the President announced the plan to reorganize both the Mindanao Development Authority and the Mountain Province Development Authority.

The conference was attended by National Integration Commissioner Mama Sinsuat, Senator Mamintal Tamano, Reps. Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur, and James Chiongbian of South Cotabato; Governors Gualberto Lumauig of Ifugao, Jaime Gomez of Mt. Province, Sergio Morales of South Cotabato and Murphy Sangkula of Sulu; Vice Governors Kasan Marohombsar of Lanao del Sur, Judge Mama D. Busran of the Court of First Instance of Cotabato, Fiscal J. Rasul and Mayor Palawan Disumimba of Tamparan, Lanao del Norte.

The President resumed his paper work in the afternoon and evening.

February 24—

PRESIDENT MARCOS after disposing of urgent state papers requiring his immediate attention, flew to Nueva Ecija to officiate at the inauguration of the pilot seed processing plant of the Maligaya Rice Research and Training Center in Muñoz. Before a big gathering of Novo Ecijanos, he pledged anew his determination to continue allotting the major portion of government funds to the uplift of the forgotten masses in the rural areas.

The President reiterated his plan to set up at least one cooperative in every municipality. Considering that it costs ₱2 million to set up one cooperative,” the President said, “this is hardly enough for a start because there are 1,440 municipalities in the entire country.”

The President also expressed the people’s appreciation for the assistance given by the United Nations and United States agencies in setting up the seed processing plant, reputedly the first of its kind in Southeast Asia.

The President said the pilot plant will serve as the model for future plants to be established in other parts of the country such as Cagayan Valley, the Visayas and Mindanao.

After inaugurating the seed plant, the President distributed certificates of appreciation to the persons who had contributed significantly to the realization of the project.

Then the President flew back to Manila where he presided over a meeting of the Foreign Policy Council.

The President furnished the members of the council with copies of the report submitted to him by Gov. Benjamin Romualdez, on the latter's visit to Peking.

The President announced after the meeting that upon the recommendation of the Foreign Policy Council, the Philippines has extended formal recognition to Bangladesh as a separate, sovereign and independent state.

Local Muslim leaders present at the meeting interposed no objection to the recognition of the new state "at this time."

The Muslim leaders were Reps. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, and Indanan Anni of Sulu; Con-Con Delegates Duma Sinsuat and Lindy Pañgandaman; Govs. Murphy Sankula of Sulu and Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato; and Commissioner Mama Sinsuat of National Integration.

In the afternoon, the President returned to his private study to work on state papers until late in the evening.

President's Week in Review: February 25 - March 2, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

February 25—

THE PRESIDENT had only one scheduled conference day, and decided to concentrate in his study of pending state papers.

He submitted, to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the ad interim appointments of 37 individuals headed by Juan Ponce Enrile as secretary of national defense. The nominees included a member of the Board of Investments, five officials in the foreign service, and 30 in the judiciary.

At about noontime the President interrupted his desk work to confer with Messrs. E. Aboitiz, Sixto K. Roxas, Luis Lorenzo, Victor Guevara, and Ramon Cardenas. He designated Aboitiz as chairman-general manager and the four others as members of the Board of Directors of the Mindanao Development Authority (MDA).

The Chief Executive directed the immediate revitalization of the MDA and specifically instructed the new governing body to follow through his earlier order to set aside 20 per cent of the special economic development plan from reparations for the revitalized agency.

After the conference, the President resumed his desk work.

February 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started working on state papers early in the morning.

He formed a panel to conduct public hearings on whether the country should import flour, and to look into complaints that “the pan de sal had shrunk and appears to be still shrinking.”

The President instructed the panel to invite to the hearings representatives of flour mills, bakeries, as well as from consumer groups. He also directed the panel to submit its report and recommendations as soon as possible.

The panel is composed of the Chairman of the National Economic Council, the Secretary of Commerce and Industry, the Director-General of the Presidential Economic Staff, and a representative of the Central Bank.

In response to representations made by the press sector; the President issued a proclamation declaring the period from March 6 to 12, 1972 as National Press Week. The setting aside of Press Week was to enable the people to appreciate fully the “vital role of the press in our community and national life.”

At about 2:30 in the afternoon, the President left Malacañang for the Plaza Restaurant in Makati, Rizal where he was guest of honor at a luncheon meeting of the country's top 100 businessmen.

Addressing the gathering of business leaders, the President reiterated the basic policy of the government “to establish a balanced agro-industrial economy” for the country.

At the same time, the President assured that the government will continue helping them and that it will seek their counsel and advice on vital problems.

He concluded his remarks by saying that “right now we are engaged in the implementation of economic development plans including manpower training, rural employment, and formation of cooperatives to turn the rural areas into productive units; and that “the government is ready to help the businessmen for the government is not an isolated institution—but rather reflects sensitively the feelings, attitudes and opinions of our people.” (See pp. 1897-1898-D for full text of the President’s Speech.)

An open forum followed the President’s speech.

February 27—

Being a Sunday, the President engaged in a little deskwork on state papers.

The Chief Executive asked Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., to deliver a speech for him at the opening of the Northern Mindanao Athletic Meet in Surigao City.

The President announced through Secretary Melchor the start of a massive program of development for Mindanao, with the immediate establishment of moshav-type cooperatives as barrio project to be called Bayanihan ng Nayan.

The cooperatives will be responsible for the production of dairy products and such projects as fisheries, irrigation, cottage industries, truck gardening and other activities that will serve as the basic structure for the agro-industrial development of the entire country.

In line with all this, the President said the government was also drawing up a physical fitness program. “Physical fitness,” he said, “must engage us a permanent goal—a way of life in and beyond the athletic field.”

The Chief Executive, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda P Marcos, heard Mass at the Malacañang chapel in the evening.

February 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day with a series of top-level conferences in Malacañang. One such meeting discussed the implications of the state visit of U.S. President Richard Nixon to the People’s Republic of China.

Those who conferred with the President were Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, and Vicente Abad Santos of Justice; and the members of the general staff of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, composed of Gen. Romeo Espino, chief of staff; Major Gen. Rafael Ilete, vice chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos chief of Constabulary; Brig. Gen. Rafael Zagala, commanding general of the Philippine Army, Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, chief of the Philippine Air Force, and Commodore Hilario Ruiz, nag-officer-in-command of the Philippine Navy.

The President also summoned Ambassador Henry A. Byroade of the United States for a meeting.

Early in the afternoon, the Chief Executive met with Undersecretary of Commerce Eliseo Villamor, concurrently chairman-general manager of the Rice and Corn Administration; and later with Customs Commissioner Rolando Geotina.

Others who saw the President included a delegation from Batanes headed by Gov. Simeon Gato.

The President issued a proclamation declaring Saturday, March 4, a special public holiday in the City of Puerto Princesa, (in Palawan), to give residents there an opportunity to observe with appropriate ceremonies the 100th year of the City’s existence.

In the evening, the President was the guest of honor and speaker at the 11th induction ceremonies of the new officers of the Federation of Provincial Press Clubs, held at Manila Hotel.

February 29—

EARLY today President Marcos issued two executive orders: one creating the Philippine Tourist Board; and the other further amending Executive Order No. 212 dated February 17, 1970, and designating Edgardo E. Q. Yap as vice-chairman of the National Artificial Rain Stimulation Committee.

The President attended to his scheduled callers at mid-morning. The first to be received was Mr. L. Gibbs, managing director of GM Holden, a car manufacturing firm of Australia, who called to pay his respects following his recent arrival in connection with the Australian Trade display at the Intercontinental Hotel in Makati, Rizal.

Australian Ambassador James C. Ingram accompanied the Holden executive to Malacañang.

Later the President presided over a conference of local officials from Cavite. During the conference, the President ordered that the entire province of Cavite be placed under Philippine Constabulary control for effective maintenance of peace and order in the province.

The Cavite officials present at the conference were Rep. Justiniano Montano, Gov. Lino Bocalan, Col. G. Manuel, Cavite PC provincial commander, and Col. E. D. Tobias. Also present were Senator Helena Z. Benitez who is from Cavite, and Col. E. C. Navarro, 2nd PC Zone commander.

The conference was also attended by Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos and Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, and Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, chief of constabulary.

The President ordered Abad Santos and Enrile to organize a team of interrogators to gather information on criminal activities from all those apprehended for various crimes. He directed Gen. Ramos to organize a task force exclusively for the province, suspend in Cavite all permits to carry firearms outside homes, and give all armed groups and wanted men in the province seven days to surrender along with their firearms.

The afternoon and evening was devoted by the President to paperwork.

March 1—

FREE from his usual schedule of callers, the President had sufficient time to study a pile of pending state papers.

He reconstituted the membership of the Coconut Coordinating Council, and directed the council to assume responsibility for the supervision coordination and evaluation in the implementation of the coconut self-sufficiency program of the government.

In another action, the President issued an administrative order creating the Philippine Technical Panel that will negotiate with its counterpart from: the United -States government for the implementation of the 1972 PL-480 Package Agreement.

The PL-480 Package Agreement for the Philippines consisting of tobacco, cotton and corn has been recently approved by the United States government.

March 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started the day going over state papers needing his urgent attention. He later disengaged from his desk to attend to his morning callers.

Those who called on the President were Mr. and Mrs. Basilio Pineda and Mrs. Consolation Aquino, parents of the condemned rapists of movie actress Maggie de la Riva.

The Chief Executive granted a two-month reprieve to the condemned prisoners.

The President said that the reprieve will give the Department of Justice time to review and study all other cases against the doomed men which are pending before the Supreme Court.

In the afternoon the President resumed working on his desk.

He issued an administrative order revoking the authority granted to the Maharlika Insurance Co., Inc. to become a surety upon cognizances, stipulations, bonds and undertakings.

The revocation recommended by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata was based on a certification from the sheriff of Manila that as of October 31, 1971, the insurance company was indebted to the government in the total amount of ₱788,656 on writs of execution for confiscated and forfeited bail bonds in various criminal cases.

Late in the afternoon, the President administered the oath of office to Roger Tiglao as representative for the second district of Pampanga.

The new congressman, who won by 15 votes over Cornelio Sanga, had lodged a poll protest which was decided only last week. He was earlier proclaimed winner by the Commission on Elections.

President's Week in Review: March 3-9, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS as usual started the day going over state papers. In the process he issued an executive order revising the rates of toll fees being collected from motor vehicles passing through Kennon Road in Mountain Province.

The revision of toll rates was recommended by Secretary of Public Works and Communications David M. Consunji.

At about 9:30 in the morning, the President left his deskwork to attend a briefing on the reorganization plan conducted by Chairman Armand Fabella of the Reorganization Commission.

The important proposals in the reorganization plan included:

- 1) Reduction of agencies directly under the supervision of the Office of the President from 158 to 28, and the establishment of 11 uniform regional districts, and further providing for increased delegation of authority within the individual departments to effect greater decentralization of operations.
- 2) Merging of the National Economic Council and the Presidential Economic Staff into a National Economic Development Authority, and creating planning and programming units at various levels to facilitate preparation and execution of national development programs.
- 3) Creation of a Department of Local Government and Community Development to absorb the PACD, to improve further the interrelated process of development from the national to the local level.

The reorganization plan was submitted to Congress by the President after the one-hour briefing held at Malacañang.

The briefing was attended by Senator Ernesto Maceda, Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., of Agriculture and Natural Resources, David M. Consunji of Public Works and Communications and Juan L. Manuel of Education, Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez of the Office of Economic Coordination; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments and Undersecretary Manuel Collantes of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

After the briefing, the President met privately with Governor Aristeo Lecaroz and Rep. Francisco Lecaroz of Marinduque; Vice Governor Francisco Rabat and some municipal mayors from Davao del Norte who consulted with him problems of their respective constituencies.

The President then welcomed delegations from 10 nations participating in the Third World Men's Softball Championship which was to be held at the Rodriguez Sports Center in Marikina, Rizal.

The participating teams was accompanied to Malacañang by Gov. Isidro Rodriguez of Rizal, president of the Amateur Softball Association of the Philippines and host in the tournament.

Early in the afternoon, the President motored to the Phil-Am Life building to view the car exhibits of the Philippine Automotive Association.

The President was accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos. Back at Malacañang hours later, the Chief Executive returned to his private study and resumed his interrupted deskwork, going over urgent state papers until late evening.

Every now and then the President disengaged from his deskwork to attend to some unexpected callers who consulted him on the problems of their respective offices.

March 4—

WITH a limited schedule of callers, President Marcos started early going over state papers needing his immediate attention.

At about 9:00 a.m. the Chief Executive received Marshall Green, U.S. assistant secretary of state for Pacific and Asian affairs, and special envoy of President Richard M. Nixon.

“Mr. Green briefed the President on the recent visit of President Nixon to the People’s Republic of China.

They conferred for almost three hours.

Early in the afternoon, the President motored to the Rodriguez Sports Center in Marikina, Rizal where he formally opened the Third World Men’s Softball Championship.

Addressing the various delegation of athletes from countries participating, the President declared that “physical fitness will be quickly accepted as a major goal of a society or its government if it is understood in the context of human resources development.”

He said that training for physical fitness not only promotes bodily health, but also creates moral values that arise from the experience of strength, endurance, and the conquest of difficulties.

Speaking of efforts to promote local sports, the President said, “In the Philippines, we want to make up for the omissions of the past by accelerating our physical fitness programs. And may I say that this encounter beginning today of the great softball teams of many countries in our midst will help accelerate the awareness of this need among our countrymen.”

March 5—

AS IN the day previous, the President alternately worked in his study and fulfilled his speaking engagement with the country’s labor groups affiliated with the organization called Pinagbuklod ng Manggagawang Pilipino.

While in his usual early morning chore of acting on pending state papers, the President signed an executive order creating the Manila International Airport Rehabilitation and Improvement Committee.

The President was guest speaker at noontime at the first biennial anniversary convention of the Pinagbuklod ng Manggagawang Pilipino, held at the Manila Hotel. The Chief Executive deplored the apparent division and fragmentation of the labor ranks which prevent them from being heard, not only on matters that affect them but on the more vital issues that concern every Filipino.

Labor Secretary Adrian Cristobal introduced the President to the labor delegates.

The president was back at Malacañang early in the afternoon. As it was the start of Press Week observance in the country, the President, issued the following statement:

“Amid misunderstandings and confusions, the Press must continue to sift the facts from unverified data, the significant from the merely sensational, the essential from the artificial, and interpret things true and things false according to their real nature. In the conduct of government it must continue to act as the vigilant watchdog, but must never pass up any opportunity for constructive advice. Within society and within itself, it must remain society's foremost critic and its own, too, so that it may always comport itself with excellence."

The Chief Executive worked on his desk uninterruptedly until late evening.

March 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a series of conferences, first with heads of government agencies charged with the nation's production of staple commodities and, second, with the committee who will take charge of the rehabilitation and improvement of the Manila International Airport.

In conferring with the rice and corn production group, the President directed that new roads be opened up in potential rice and corn producing areas of the country as a means of encouraging greater production of the staple commodities.

He ordered the Cooperatives Administration Office, Agricultural Productivity Commission, the Presidential Arm on Community Development and the Agricultural Credit Administration to pool all their personnel, funds and materials towards the organization of such cooperatives.

In the same conference, the President ordered Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release public works funds and make them available for projects geared to increasing rice and corn production, such as roads, bridges, irrigation and flood control facilities.

He also instructed the various agency heads charged with the prompt organization of the barrio and municipal cooperatives to coordinate and submit recommendations on the implementing details of the massive programs.

Those who conferred with the President were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo Tanco, Jr., NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, CB Governor Gregorio, S. Licaros, Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña, APC Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit, PACD Secretary Rosendo Marquez, ACA Administrator Teofilo T. Azada and CAO Director Orlando N. Pagulayan.

In the meeting with officials given the task of rehabilitation and improvement of the MIA, the President reiterated that there is an urgent need to rehabilitate the terminal building of the MIA the electronic equipment of the control tower, and the airport facilities.

Present at the meeting were Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Director-General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Director Jesus Singson of Civil Aeronautics Administration, Gen. Jose Rancudo of the Philippine Air Force and Architect Abelardo Batacan of the CAA.

In the afternoon, the President devoted his time on state papers. From his study, the President issued a directive to the Secretary of National Defense to include all firearms owned and used by the government in the annual verification of firearms being conducted by the Philippine Constabulary. The President issued the directive on recommendation of Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief.

March 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started the day by discussing with Nacionalista senators foreign policy matters at a breakfast conference.

After his meeting with the senators, the Chief Executive received Tengku Mahkota Ahmad Shah of Pahang, Malaysia, who paid a courtesy call, having just arrived in Manila to participate in a series of polo games with Filipino teams.

Ambassador Mauro Calingo, the newly accredited envoy of the Philippine government to the Republic of West Germany, paid a farewell call before proceeding to assume his post in Bonn.

Next to call on the President was a group representing the International Executive Service Corps in the Philippines, headed by A. A. Wilcox, director of operations.

Mayor Osmundo de Guzman of Marikina, Rizal accompanied the group to Malacañang.

Later in the day, the President presided at a closed-door briefing for committees on foreign relations of the two chambers of Congress.

The briefing was attended by Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senators Mamintal Tamano, Ernesto Macecla, Ambrosio Padilla, Arturo Tolentino, Lorenzo Sumulong, and Magnolia Antonino; Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguez, Majority Floorleader Marcelino Velosu; Reps. Aspiras, Rafael Legaspi, Jose Leido, Jr., Eduardo Gullas, Ramon Durano; Secretary Carlos P. Romulo of foreign affairs Undersecretary Manuel Collantes, and Minister Felipe Mabilangan, Jr., of the DFA.

The last group to see the President was composed of National Irrigation Administration officials.-

March 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a proclamation declaring Thursday, March 9 as Laurel Day in the province of Batangas and in the cities of Batangas and Lipa, to afford residents there full opportunity to observe, with appropriate ceremonies, the 81st birth anniversary of the late leader whom the President described as a “jurist, patriot and statesman.”

The President also created a special committee to pursue implementation of the Manila Bay Road Projects.

Earlier in the day, The President met with Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing of Manila who sought the release of at least ₱4 million from the city government’s share of regular and special allotments from national revenue collections.

Mayor Bagatsing informed the President that the city government, with an overdraft of ₱32 million and a cash deficit of ₱10 million, was in very serious financial straits because it has a monthly budget of ₱9.2 million.

The President assured the mayor that he “will extend all the help and assistance necessary to avoid disruption of essential services.

Following the call of Mayor Bagatsing, the President received a large delegation from Laguna led by Reps. Joaquin Chipeco and Leonides de Leon, the delegation took up problems affecting the province particularly the funding of public works projects. Sen. Ernesto Maceda accompanied the group to Malacañang.

In the delegation were Mayors Cesar Dizon of San Pablo City, Dominador Cabuhat of Cavinti, Mauro Alimagno of Cabuyao, Lorenzo Meneses of Los Baños, Benjamin Real of Sta. Maria, Luis Rellosa of Famy, Felicisimo Vierende of San Pedro, David Aventurado of Magdalena, Tomas Manalang of Nagcarlan, Pedro Aritao of Pangil and Proceso Rondilla of Luisiana.

March 9—

THE FATE of some 1,600 families who will be displaced by the proposed Pantabangan Dam of the Upper Pampanga River Project a multimillion power and irrigation complex, was the principal concern of President Marcos as he signed a proclamation setting aside five parcels of land With a total area of 6,007 hectares wherein families to be displaced by the dam will be resettled.

The President interrupted his desk work at about 9:45 in the morning, and presided at a conference with members of the Cabinet and heads of agencies involved in the agriculture and public works programs of the government.

The conference concentrated on the problems arising from increasing production, and the need to intensify the public works building program. The President emphasized the necessity for checking on past public works fund releases.

Towards this end, the President ordered:

1) Secretary of Public Works and Communications David Consunji to check on past fund releases for public works to determine how much was spent, how much still remained, and what had been accomplished.

Secretary Consunji also to meet with provincial executives and engineers to determine where to build feeder (farm to market) roads in the most productive regions of the country.

2) Secretary of Finance Cesar E.A. Virata to release directly to the local governments their regular and special allotments from the revenue collections.

Secretary Virata also to submit a monthly breakdown of funds available for agricultural production and public works projects, which would serve as basis for future releases.

3) National Irrigation Administrator Alfredo Juinio to submit periodic reports supported by a map of the Philippines on the progress of the irrigation program, and to prepare both long-range (25 years) and short-range (10 years) irrigation programs.

4) The Presidential Arm on Community Development to coordinate the efforts of all government agencies participating in the establishment of cooperatives.

Present at the conference were Secretaries Cesar E.A. Virata of Finance Arturo Tanco, Jr., of Agriculture and Natural Resources, David Consunji of Public Works and Communications, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, BIR Commissioner Misael P. Vera, Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, NIA Administrator Alfredo Juinio, Animal Industry Director Pedro Refuerzo, Fisheries Commissioner Andres Mane, Agricultural Productivity Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit, Deputy Agricultural Credit Administrator Amado Lansang, PACD Regional Director Alberto Virtucio and others.

At another conference, the Chief Executive reiterated that the production of more rice and corn by local farmers not the importation of these basic staples has always been the policy of his administration. The conference this time was with representatives of the rice production sector and with heads of government agencies involved in rice production.

The President lamented the popular impression emphasizing the deficiencies of rice and corn, without taking into account that the government had exerted extraordinary efforts and thereby achieved cereal surplus in 1968-69.

He stressed that lie would not allow the price of rice to go beyond ₱3.00 per ganta.

President's Week in Review: March 10-16, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS took time out from his busy schedule to receive several callers which included the following:

1) John Woodley, deputy director of the International Monetary Fund's Asian department; Kemal Siber, IMF representative in the Philippines; Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata and Central Bank Gov. Gregorio S. Licaros. The IMF official called on the President to pay his respects as the annual consultations between the IMF and the Central Bank on the shape of the country's monetary and fiscal policies drew to a close yesterday.

During the call, the President requested Deputy Director Woodley to convey his gratitude to the IMF officials for the substantial assistance they have extended to the Philippine government.

2) Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. who accompanied to Malacañang several provincial governors with whom the President conferred on the infrastructure and other projects being undertaken in their respective areas, and to find out whether such projects are being properly supported by the national government.

In the course of the conference, the President expressed the hope that the initial meeting would usher in "a continuing dialogue between national and provincial officials" so that the faulty implementation which has resulted in inefficiency and waste of funds and time could be avoided.

The President also told the chief executives of the country's top rice producing provinces that production must now be given all the boost that it needs all over the country.

Present at the conference aside from Secretary Tanco, were Secretary of Public Works and Communications David M. Consunji, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino, Agricultural Productivity Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit; Governors Conrado Norada of Iloilo, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Eduardo Josen of Nueva Ecija, Brigido Valencia of Pampanga, Vicente Magsaysay of Zambales, Teresa Dupaya of Cagayan, Felicísimo San Luis of Laguna, Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato, Ignacio Santiago of Bulacan, Alfonso Umali of Oriental Mindoro and Felix Alfelor of Camarines Sur.

Following the conference, the President administered the oath of affiliation with the Nacionalista Party to Rep. Rogelio Tiglaog of Pampanga.

The President's afternoon time was devoted mostly to desk work.

March 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a three-hour conference with his advisers during which he started a thorough reassessment of the various development programs to establish funding priorities and insure increased national production.

Among the various programs and projects reviewed by the President with his advisers were the irrigation, school budding and highways programs, flood control systems, reclamation of Manila Bay area, rural improvement and the formation of cooperatives.

During the conference wherein Sen. Lorenzo Teves and Rep. Jose Alberto, chairmen of the appropriations committees of both chambers of Congress were present, the President:

1. Directed National Irrigation Administrator Alfredo Juinio to submit a comprehensive survey showing potential sources of water, how much money is needed, and how wide the area is to be irrigated;
2. Also directed that studies be made for the possible transfer of functions, personnel and equipment of the Irrigation Service Unit of the Department of Public Works and Communications to the NIA to prevent waste of funds and overlapping of functions;
3. Approved the request of the Presidential Arm on Community Development for the release of P1.6 million for communal irrigation projects;
4. Asked Secretary of Public Works and Communications David M. Consunji and Director of Public Works Alejandro Deleña to submit a report on the reclamation projects in the Liguasan marsh in Cotabato, Candaba swamps in Pampanga, and Tagum river in Davao, which will save thousands of hectares of land for cultivation;
5. Ordered that another 3,000 prefabricated Marcos-typo school buildings be included in the 16th year Reparations schedule and that a school building program be prepared. The President issued the directive when he was presented by Director Deleña a certification of the Department of Education that there is a need for an additional 88,000 more school rooms.
6. Also concurred with Sen. Teves's proposal that a bill be prepared imposing a two per cent tax on all real estate transfers in order to provide for a school building fund.

Present at the conference aside from Secretary Consunji, Director Deleña and Administrator Juinio, were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, PACD Officer-In-Charge Rosendo Marquez, Director Alberto Virtucio and Commissioner of Public Highways Baltazar Aquino.

In the afternoon, the President did some desk work, during which he signed an executive order establishing the policy guidelines on Philip pine trade with socialist and communist countries.

The order followed the formal establishment of diplomatic relations between the Philippines and Rumania and Yugoslavia, which was unanimously recommended by the Foreign Policy Council last month.

Later in the day, the President announced he has authorized the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, to make a six-day visit to the USSR as his personal representative.

The President said that he had given her the go signal to make the trip to Moscow to look into how the area of cultural cooperation between Manila and Moscow, which do not have diplomatic relations, might be expanded to mutually benefit the two countries, and their peoples.

At the same time, the President said that he has asked her to clarify with the Soviet officials standing feelers for economic cooperation, including reported proposals for soft-loans on vital industries and economic projects of the government.

March 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS designated the Cabinet members as regional development coordinators and instructed them, whenever necessary, to personally supervise all development program in their respective regions.

The President made the designation when he conferred with them in the morning in order to pursue more vigorously the objectives of the development program and insure equal distribution of economic benefit among the rural areas.

Aside from their supervisory assignment, the President also required the members of his official family to:

- 1) Submit periodic reports on the progress of development;
- 2) Appraise him and the cabinet of the situation that may bear watching from a national viewpoint, and on developments deemed crucial to the management of the overall development program; and
- 3) Be present and to participate in decision-making whenever local leaders from his region confer with the President on matters of regional development.

The secretaries of foreign affairs, finance and justice were directed to give their general support to the program.

Among other things the President designated two individuals as members of the board of the Agricultural Cooperatives Administration, thus completing the board's membership.

Designated by the President were Fidel Infantado and Candido Guiam, representing farmer-beneficiaries of the Agrarian Reform Program and the minority party, respectively. The two are the only regular members of the board as provided for in the law.

The other members of the Board, who are ex-officio are the under secretary of agrarian reform who will act as chairman, the ACA administrator as vice chairman, and the vice president of the Philippine National Bank in charge of agricultural loans.

Also during the day, the President declared that his administration is channeling new energy into the physical education because he is convinced more than ever that "the future of Philippine athletics is best assured by a program that prizes physical education in addition to academics."

The President made the declaration in a speech read for him by Secretary of Education Juan L. Manuel, at the opening of the 18th National Private Schools Athletic Association's meet in Bacolod City in the morning. The rest of the President's day was devoted to desk work.

March 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS reminded all government offices and public schools of the observance of "Ramon Magsaysay Memorial Day" on March 17, which has been proclaimed as such in Proclamation No. 15 dated March 7, 1966.

The reminder was embodied in a memorandum circular the President issued through Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.

In the memorandum circular, the President said that all government offices and public schools are enjoined to commemorate and keep proper observance of March 17 this year.

March 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started his day with a breakfast with visiting U.S. publisher William Randolph Hearst, Jr., owner of tin- Hearst chain of newspapers in the United States, who called to pay his respects to the President.

With Hearst were three journalists, Robert Bernard Considine, Joseph Kingsbury Smith, and Robert E. Thompson.

Then, the President presided over a conference with Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes on the finalization of the programming of the $65 million Japanese Commodity and Project loans.

Later in the day, the President received Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe who accompanied the two Japanese doctors conducting research on malaria and other tropical diseases in Palawan. The doctors came to apologize for the unauthorized acquisition of a deadly specie of mosquito which they brought to Palawan that had been reported to have broken loose and caused a widespread alarm.

During his meeting with the Japanese doctors—Drs. Daisuhe Katamine, director of the Institute of Tropical Medicine of Nagasaki University and Toshio Nakabayashi, team leader, the President asked the Japanese government to extend all necessary cooperation to the Philippine government in the control of malaria and schistosomiasis japonensis.

The President told the Japanese medics that he was particularly interested in seeking cooperation on two projects, namely, the research on malaria control being conducted in Manila and all over the country, and the control of schistosomiasis japonensis projects in Manila and Palo, Leyte.

Upon the request of the President, Ambassador Urabe directed the Japanese doctors to confer and cooperate with Acting Secretary of Health Clemente S. Gatmaitan. He also informed the President that he will inform his government on the outcome of their meeting.

Also present at the meeting were Secretary Manuel Collantes and Philippine Ambassador to Japan Roberto Benedicto.

Following the meeting, the President motored to the Makati Medical Center, where he looked in on the condition of Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo who is recuperating from injuries inflicted on him when his car was bumped by a freight truck.

The President was accompanied by U.S. publisher William Randolph Hearst and the three other visiting journalists.

From the Makati Medical Center, the President motored back to the Palace where he immediately buckled down to desk work.

In the course of desk work, the President certified to Congress the urgency of enacting House Bill No. 4200, which seeks to authorize the undertaking of long-range educational development projects.

In certifying the Will which was introduced by Rep. Frisco San Juan, the President emphasized that the recently concluded Presidential Survey of Philippine Education had asked for “new patterns, new directions.”

He added that the ten-year education development program is, therefore, “a piece of social legislation in answer to the needs of our times and people.”

Also during the day, the President ordered an all-out drive against price manipulators and hoarders of consumer goods, particularly prime commodities, which he said had caused the unnecessary spiralling of prices.

He, at the same time instructed the Secretary of Commerce and Industry to speed up the formation of consumers and marketing cooperatives, as a long-range campaign against the profiteering activities of unscrupulous businessmen.

In the order which he sent to the Secretary of Commerce and Industry, the Chairman of the Price Control Council and the Chief of the Constabulary, the President directed the three officials to report on artificial hiking of prices, and to trace its causes.

The President ordered the three agencies to pursue criminal action against both local and foreign businessmen responsible for the artificial and undue increase in prices.

He also instructed them that all agents of the three agencies concerned be fielded to conduct a continuous check on prices, in addition to the regular surveys and told them to coordinate efforts with the local price control groups, under the local governments.

March 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS met with representatives of the Mindanao-Sulu-Palawan bloc in the morning during which he called for more efficiency among government engineers to give a strong thrust to the infrastructure development in the country.

The President issued the call as he deplored the “national phenomenon that many government engineers have become lazy, patronizing, and undependable,” which, he said is “reflected by the state of the roads all over the country.”

He also noted that regular highways allocations are not being used to maintain the roads, but go instead to the salaries of officers and employees.

The President also turned to the request of the representatives to suspend the transfer of government engineers in certain places, saying “we will have to seriously consider this proposal.”

He stressed however, that he will not hesitate to transfer government engineers to the areas should they be found to have committed any irregularities in the course of their discharge of their duties and responsibilities.

Those who attended the meeting were: Reps. Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao del Norte Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, James Chiongbian of South Cotabato, William Chiongbian of Misamis Occidental Cesar Fortich of Bukidnon, Jose Neri of Camiguin, Indanan Anni of Sulu, Pedro Roa of Misamis Oriental, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan del Norte, Jose Puyat of Surigao del Sur, Constancio Maglana of Davao Oriental, Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, and Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur.

In the afternoon, the President, while going over reports submitted to him by various departments and agencies of the government, directed the Philippine National Bank, the Development Bank of the Philippines and the Central Bank to speed up all agricultural production loans and to institute a feed-back system so that he could be constantly posted on the availment of such loans, particularly by small farmers.

The President issued the order upon reading the report of Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo Tanco, Jr. on the movement of prices in foodmarket

In his report, Tanco noted that under-production of rice and corn and beef was beginning to have its initial effect on food prices.

The agriculture official said that with the extension of increased production loans to farmers, the national production of rice is expected to receive a great boost, with farmers being able to buy farm inputs such as seeds, farm implements, fertilizers, pesticides.

In issuing the order to the three financing agencies, the President pointed out the need for them to act in concert, in bringing about within the shortest possible time the important objective of increasing production in all agricultural areas.

Also during the day, the President assured Palawan officials that there is no malaria epidemic. He told them he had received assurances from the Japanese government that no malaria-carrying mosquitoes had been let loose in Palawan, but “we have to take all necessary steps to prevent any outbreak of the disease which may be caused by this mosquitoes.”

The President made the assurance during his meeting with Palawan delegation officials led by Gov. Salvador Socrates, who complained that “most officials coming to Palawan sometimes do not synchronize their efforts with municipal and provincial officials.”

The President stressed that this practice should be rectified immediately, and to this end issued directive urging “national officials going to municipalities and provinces to notify and synchronize with the local executives so that the efforts at national level may be augmented by the initiative and resources of the local governments.

During the meeting, the President also told Palawan officials who presented individual requests for appropriations that “we are not living priorities to municipal buildings, capitols, and non-productive investments.” He pointed out that the priorities are on irrigation, flood control, roads, bridges, and health facilities. However, he assured them that “we will try to help you as much as we can.”

President's Week in Review: March 24-30, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

March 24—

WITH two scheduled appointments for the day, the President buckled down to his desk and go over state papers, and thereby declared Saturday, April 1, a special public holiday.

He proclaimed the day as a special public holiday because it falls between two public holidays—March 31 (Good Friday) and April 2 (Sunday).

In a separate proclamation, the Chief Executive also declared the same day as a National Day of Prayer and Fasting.

He said that its observance may serve to promote the attainment of the national goals of peace, happiness and contentment of the people, which are among the highest objectives of government.

Earlier in the morning, the President was assured by the Construction and Development Corporation of the Philippines that it would push back its deadline for the completion of the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market, from June 1973 to December 1972 to help in the nationwide food production drive.

The pushback would mean a cut of six months from the original schedule of completion of the GMTFM.

Upon completion of the Terminal Food Market, this would service the entire Greater Manila area, coordinating the flow of consumer goods from all producers' cooperatives which would otherwise be individually selling to the Greater Manila area.

Later in the morning, the Chief Executive received Franz Zeda, minister of communications of Indonesia, who called to pay his respects following his arrival to sign the RP-Indonesia air agreement.

In receiving the Indonesian dignitary, the President expressed the hope that the signing of the air agreement will mark the beginning of even closer cooperation in facilitating air travel between the two countries.

Minister Zeda was accompanied to Malacañang by Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes, Ambassador Modesto Farolan, Ambassador Kusno Utomo of Indonesia and other Indon officials.

Early in the afternoon, the President met with some members of his Cabinet and launched the nationwide formation of producers and consumers cooperatives as an answer to the problems of underproduction and unstable prices and at the same time ordered the immediate release of ₱5 million from the rural improvement fund for the organization of consumers cooperatives.

He directed Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio Quiazon, Jr. to proceed with the organization of consumers cooperatives in cooperation with the Presidential Arm on Community Development Agricultural Productivity Commission, Agricultural Credit Administration and Cooperatives Administration Office.

The President also requested through the president of the CANR, Alfredo Montelibano, to see to the reduction of the price of fertilizers.

In connection with the increase in the price of fertilizers, Montelibano said it was done in order to generate funds for the payment of amortizations on the producers' foreign loans guaranteed by the government.

The Chief Executive enjoined the private sector to continue with its dialogue with the government and invited Montelibano and other representatives of the private sector to work with heads of government agencies responsible for the organization of cooperatives.

Present at the meeting were:

Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretaries Roberto V. Reyes and Ronaldo Zamora, Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio Quiazon, Jr., Central Bank Governor Gregorio Licaros, PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa and NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat; and Alfredo Montelibano, Johnny Planas, Adi Sison, Sixto Orosa, Jr. and Col. Jacinto Gavino from the private sector.

March 25—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started early today going over state papers and in the process approved the promotion of a total of 451 officers in the different branches of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

The President likewise requested Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata to deliver a speech for him before the general assembly of the Philippine National Cooperatives Bank.

At about mid-morning, the President broke off from his desk to confer with representatives of the public and private sectors on the plan to bring down prices through cooperatives.

During the conference, he said that the nationwide formation of producers and consumers cooperatives as an answer to the problems of under production and unstable prices has been given a big boost.

Also during the conference, the President said:

- (1) The government will train 251 trainors for cooperatives in Los Baños, Laguna on April 6.
- (2) The private sector will be invited to participate by sending on its account, an equal number of trainors.
- (3) The Philippine Public School Teachers' Association, which has 260,000 members, "has now agreed to organize into a cooperative all over the country" and for this purpose "has applied with the Cooperatives Administration Office for registration."

The President said that the trainors, after undergoing a two-week train-in, and in turn, train fieldmen of the government agencies engaged in organization. These agencies, he pointed out, are the Cooperatives Administration Office, Agricultural Productivity Commission, Agricultural Credit Administration, and the Presidential Arm on Community Development.

He also said that the putting up all over the country of storage plants for perishable consumer items is one of the keys to the lowering of prices.

"To this end," he said, "we have agreed with the private sector that we will now adopt the new process of chilling instead of the old system of ice production."

The Chief Executive explained that the new technology of chilling is a system by which one can put up any insulated warehouse to be converted into a storage by a package unit type of chilling.

He said that the storage plant will not only prevent spoilage and wastage, but "we will be able to control, through it, proper distribution and the accumulation of produce."

Among those present at the conference were: Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio Quiazon, Jr., Assistant Executive Secretaries Roberto V. Reyes and Ronaldo Zamora, Director-General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Assistant Administrator Amado Lansang of the Agricultural Credit Administration, Secretary Rosendo Marquez of the Presidential Arm on Community Development, Director Orlando Pagulayan of the Cooperatives Administration Office, Deputy Commissioner Francisco Rentutar of the Agricultural Productivity Commission, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Administrator Eliseo Villamor of the RCA, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad; and Alfredo Montelibano, Colonel Jacinto Gavino, Johnny Planas and Hector Moreno from the private sector.

March 26—

Among others, the Chief Executive submitted to the Commission on appointments the nominations of one city judge, four clerks of court, and four branch clerks of court for confirmation.

The President worked on his desk till early evening and only broke off to receive Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr. of Cebu City who led a delegation of Cebu City officials and representatives of civic organizations, to Malacañang.

During the call, the President decided to hold decision on a recommendation of the Police Commission to place Cebu City under Philippine Constabulary control.

He said he would like to give the mayor an opportunity to clean the city police department and the city itself of gambling and other vices reported to be rampant in the city, in line with his basic policy of holding the executives primarily responsible for the peace and order in their respective jurisdiction.

Headed by Mayor Osmeña, the delegation included Vice Mayor Eulogio Borres and Councilors Jose Cuenco, Bienvenido Tudtud, Ronald Duterte, Florencio Urot, Arturo Abellana, Pablo Abella, George Balad Jay, Jesus Gabuya and Raymundo Crystal; Cristobal Espina, president of the Rotary Club of West Cebu and acting chairman of the council of civic clubs; and Mariano Ilano, Jr., president, community chest of Cebu.

March 27—

UNABLE to finish urgent papers on his desk the night previous, the President started this day early.

The Chief Executive, submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 28 individuals to the posts of chairmen, and as members, of the different boards of examiners.

The President worked in his private study continuously till evening.

March. 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS took the day off from his usual schedule of callers to attend to urgent state papers filed on his desk.

In the process, the President issued a proclamation declaring the third week of April this year as “Pest Control Week.”

Among other things, he also submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 16 officials to various posts in the Department of Education and the Department of Justice.

Acting Secretary of Education Juan L. Manuel heads the nominees in the Department of Education.

The President worked on his desk the whole day and only broke off to attend to some unscheduled callers who consulted him on the problems of their respective departments.

March 29—

President's Week in Review: April 1-6, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS attended to urgent state papers in his private study at the Mansion House after conveying his greetings to the nation at the close of the Lenten season. In his message the President said:

“Easter comes to us today at the time when all mankind is seeking ways to narrow down and bridge differences that have stood between peoples and nations, and when our country itself is engaged in greater and wider efforts to enter into more fruitful relations with the rest of the world.

“As in the past, when the resurrection of Christ sought to bring men to a stronger fellowship in the pursuit of their common goals, it is to be hoped that this same spirit will now bring the great endeavors to their just and timely fruition. For the message of Easter is not alone addressed to or shared by Christians. It is for all men everywhere, whatever their color, station or creed.

“And now, more than ever, that message tells us that it is in every man's capacity to find an end to his many problems and anxieties, that it is in every nation's ability to find progress and freedom, and that it is in mankind's reach to remake the world anew and made it a better place to live in.”

In the course of the day, the President:

1) Ordered the National Bureau of Investigation and the Philippine Constabulary to conduct a full dress investigation, in coordination with local police authorities, of the slaying of the woman Ex-Mayor of Bantay, Ilocos Sur. He issued the directive following his meeting with former Ilocos Sur Governor Carmeling Crisologo.

2) Designated retired Brig. Gen. Felizardo Tanabe as acting Postmaster General and Assistant Director Pedro Villasenor of the Bureau of Telecommunications as the acting director of that bureau.

Gen. Tanabe's designation to the Bureau of Post followed his stint as a presidential assistant and Chairman of a 12-man Postal Reform Task Force created by the President last February 21 to study and recommend corrective measures to improve the country's postal service.

Director Villasenor succeeded the late Director Antonio Gamboa of the Bureau of Telecommunications, who perished at a plane crash in September, 1970.

April 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started his paper work early and then broke off from his desk toward noon to meet with Manila newsmen covering him.

In the evening, the President called leaders of two feuding factions of Ilocos Sur to a conference at the Mansion House following the killing of former Bantay Mayor Maria Asuncion Porte in Vigan.

During the conference, the Chief Executive told the incumbent and former officials of Ilocos Sur that the government had reached the end of its patience in the continuous politically motivated killings in that province.

He directed Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile to assign a marine unit to the province which will hunt clown all wanted criminals.

Among those present at the conference were Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, Ilocos Sur Governor Luis “Chavit” Singson, Ex-Governor Antonio Villanueva, Mayor Evaristo Singson of Vigan, Col. Honorio Balanon, Ilocos Sur provincial commander; and Vincent Crisologo, representative of former Governor Carmeling Crisologo.

April 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent his morning hours to desk work, breaking off occasionally to meet with local leaders of the North who consulted him on problems of their constituencies.

In the afternoon, the President had an interview with newsmen on the escalation of the Vietnam war, among others.

The President however declined to give an assessment of the escalated conflict pending reports from the country’s diplomatic representatives abroad, particularly those assigned to Saigon, Thailand, Cambodia and Laos.

He resumed his paper work after the brief interview.

April 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received some members of Congress and other government officials who called at Malacañang following his return from Baguio City where he spent the Holy Week.

Among the callers were Reps. Constantino C. Navarro of Surigao del Norte and Eduardo M. Cojuangco of Tarlac, who briefed the President on the salient provisos of the bills on national security, sale of military reservations, and retirement system.

General Manager Roman A. Cruz,, Jr. of the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS), Administrator Gilberto Teodoro of the Social Security System (SSS), and Reps. Roberto Sabido of Albay and Roque Ablan, Jr. of Ilocos Norte also briefed the President on the salient provisions of the bill on housing, which could, eventually be “the charter of the government’s housing program.”

Senator Magnolia W. Antonino, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, Representatives Jose de Venecia of Pangasinan and Fernando Veloso of Western Samar presented to the President for his signature the bill on foreign currency deposit system.

Those who conferred with the President privately were former Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople, Commissioner Misael P. Vera of the BIR, Chairman Leonides S. Virata of the DBP, and Commissioner Baltazar Aquino of the Bureau of Public Highways.

April 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored to the Philamlife building where he was guest of honor and speaker at the testimonial luncheon in honor of the women elected to public office in the 1971 elections.

In his speech the President called on the Filipino womanhood to share the burden of meeting the problems facing the country, such as those on peace and order, violence, graft, pornography, the rebellious young, and weakening of family ties.

“Collectively and individually, you should constitute the active social conscience of our government. There is every reason to expect that your participation will definitely raise the standards of our public service—by contributing your human touch to public affairs, by imbuing public service with a compassionate purpose.”

He mentioned the legendary Princess Urduja, who wielded unusual power in the country's historic past as a reminder that "our Malay forbears proudly accepted leadership from women who distinguished themselves by their nobility and courage."

Underscoring the role that women play in family life, the President said:

"Family life is principally due to the guidance of the women. If, therefore, there should be any degeneracy in our society today, perhaps this is due to many factors. And one of these factors is that women may not have consciously realized the present need for them to perform more than ever in our history their functions as the guiding hands of the family."

Concluding his address, the President expressed the hope that under the leadership the League of Women Voters of the Philippines, Filipino womanhood may participate more actively in the fight against "drug addiction, against pornography, against cowardice in the face of the need for witnesses in the prosecution of crimes, and against everything that threatens to destroy the foundations of our society."

The President was back in Malacañang in time to confer the Philippine Legion of Honor (degree of Commander) on Rear Admiral George R. Muse, commander of the U.S. Naval Forces in the Philippines, for "exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service to the Philippines.

Rear Admiral Muse paid tribute to the President for his contribution to the war effort in order to preserve freedom, saying:

"I certainly want at this time to acknowledge the great leadership you provided the country in the intervening years of your high position in the Republic, and I don't believe there is anybody here now who had sacrificed more for this love of freedom and high ideals that the valor reflected by your own participation in the dark days before and following Bataan."

Present at the award ceremony was the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda E. Marcos, and Philippine and U.S. officials headed by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal and Ambassador and Mrs. Henry Byroade, and including Capt. and Mrs. Hal Stewart, Capt. and Mrs. Roberto Gideon, Capt. and Mrs. John Robertson, Cdr. and Mrs. William Evrard, Capt. and Mrs. Waldo Atkins, Col. and Mrs. Alfred Patterson, and Lt. Julian E. Baum, III, of the admiral's staff; Education Secretary Juan Manuel, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., General Romeo Espino, chief of staff, AFP; Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, Chief, PAF; Commodore Romulo M. Espaldon, deputy chief of staff; Commodore Hilario Ruiz, flag-officer-in-command, PN; and Commodore Ernesto Ogbinar, commander, naval operating forces and vice commander, PN.

April 6—

WITH only one scheduled appointment for the day, President Marcos was closeted most of the time in his study going over state papers.

He has to lay aside his desk work occasionally to attend to unscheduled callers who consulted him on local problems.

In the afternoon, the President signed a proclamation reserving 19,247 hectares in Mt. Busa, Surallah and Kiamba, South Cotabato, on which members of the Manobo Blit and Tasaday tribes may set up settlements.

The President also announced the reappointment of Manuel Elizalde, Jr. as presidential assistant for cultural minorities (PANAMIN) and his personal representative in the implementation of the twin policy of integration and conservation.

Present at the signing of the proclamation were the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Senator Ernesto M. Maceda, Reps. Joaquin Roces of Manila, Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac, and Pedro Medalla of Mindoro Occidental; Governors Teresa Dupaya of Cagayan and Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato, and PHHC Director Jose Guerrero.

President's Week in Review: April 7-13, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS motored to the San Miguel auditorium at about midmorning to speak before the joint celebration of World Heart Month and the 20th anniversary of the Philippine Heart Association, which was co-sponsored by the Philippine College of Cardiology.

In his speech, the President warned against heart ailments becoming a major deterrent to progress and called on the private sector, particularly the medical profession, to help in combatting this dreaded disease.

The President pointed out that although heart ailments rank as the number four killer in the country, it is the most destructive because its victims are the executive and leader class, the idea men in the "think tanks," the implementing groups who keep the nation on the move.

He said that unless utmost efforts are exerted to fight this disease, it will become "one of the principal deterrents to progress."

The President deplored the uneven distribution of the benefits of medical research, pointing out that a Manila resident who has funds can get treatment in a first class hospital while a barrio councilman in Palanan, Isabela, for instance, where there is no doctor could never benefit from medicine.

The President recalled with gratitude the visit of 400 doctors, nurses and technicians from Makati to Tacloban where they rendered free medical assistance to the poor fishermen and farmers for two weeks.

The President said the country had entered the stage when "we have got to fall back on the dedication, benevolence, generosity and patriotism of the privileged who have much to share their countrymen."

At mid-morning, the President started receiving callers, among whom were:

1) Spanish Ambassador Nicolas Martin Alonso who accompanied Captain Ricardo Vallespin Raurell, skipper of the Spanish training ship Juan Sebastian de Elcano which docked at South Harbor's Pier 15. The President expressed the hope that Raurell and his crew will find their eight-day goodwill visit "as pleasant as the visit of the First Lady to Spain."

2) Brigadier Generals Russel Volckmann and Donald Blackburn and their wives who paid a surprise courtesy call on the President and the First Lady. Volckmann was the commanding officer of the famed Northern Luzon guerillas, the so-called USAFIP-NL, with which President Marcos served. Blackburn also served with the USAFIP-NL as commanding officer of the 11th infantry.

3) Secretary Adrian Cristobal of the Department of Labor and members of the Labor Management Advisory Council who invited the President to speak on "labor-management relations in the 70's" at the-Ramon Magsaysay building on April 21.

4) Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and the officers of the Philippine Military Academy Alumni Association who were inducted by the President. Melchor, who heads the PMAAA, told the President that one of the objectives of the association is "the return of dignity to the soldiers." The President said that "we should have a listing of what the soldiers want in the army and then listen to what they want."

5) Governor Alfredo Montelibano, Jr., Rep. Agustin Gatuslao, and Mayor Pedro Yulo of Negros Occidental who invited the President to the fourth centennial anniversary of Binalbagan City on May 15.

6) Rep. Carmelo Barbero and members of the Abra provincial board who discussed with the President local problems. Those who conferred privately with the President were Senator Ernesto Maceda and Jovito Rivera.

April 8—

WITH only one scheduled appointment, the President concentrated on paper work.

Toward noon the President, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, motored to Fort Bonifacio to address the international convention of veterans.

The President defined the Philippine position on communism which, he said, is a determined fight against local communism and a “live and let live” policy with respect to international communism.

The Chief Executive invited the leaders and members of the Communist Party of the Philippines to surrender and help build a strong nation.

He revealed for the first time that intelligence reports link the local communists to the Partai Komunis of Indonesia (PKI).

The President also said that according to confidential documents the PKI and the local communists had prepared plans not only for international communism but regional communism.

“Therefore it is quite clear that their motivation was foreign and not local or domestic; that their plans were prepared abroad and even the charter of the Kabataang Makabayan and the New Communist Party of the Philippines was cleared with communist leaders in Indonesia and Red China.”

With respect to international communism, the President said “our policy is live and let live, but if anybody seeks to coerce the Philippines into embracing communism, that is entirely a different matter.”

Turning to American veterans of Bataan who participated in the commemoration of the 30th anniversary of the fall of Bataan, the President said “there is a deep and wide reservoir of goodwill for the United States in the Philippines and that reservoir still exists.”

After his address, the President inducted into office the members of the Board of Trustees of the Philippine Veterans of World War II, namely: Rep. Simeon Valdez, chairman; Delfin R. Bacho, vice chairman; and Enrique Filart, Tomas Nufable, S. Navarro, M. Kierulf, Simeon Medalla, Marcelo Angangco, Carlos R. Lardizabal, Eliodoro Congco and Luis Samson, members.

The President resumed his desk work in the afternoon.

April 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS led a national pilgrimage to Mt. Samat in commemoration of the Fall of Bataan.

The President, assisted by U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and Rizalino P. Lacuna, national commander of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor, raised the Philippine flag over the site during the ceremonies.

In his speech, the President declared that “never again should our country depend on others for its security.”

The President said that the Philippines has faith and trust in its allies and friends, and it can depend on them. "But we can best trust ourselves and depend on our own capabilities," he said. (See pp. 3131-3135 for full text of the President's speech.)

The President had a brief rest upon arrival in Malacañang in the afternoon, and then went over urgent official papers.

April 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, motored at 10:30 a.m. to the Nayong Pilipino to attend the award rites and luncheon given in their honor in connection with the commemoration of Bataan Day.

During the award ceremonies, the President conferred the Golden Heart Presidential Award on Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Casey (U.S. ret.) for his "pioneering efforts and active participation in the development of hydroelectric power in the Philippines."

He also conferred Presidential Plaques on U.S. Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Manpower James H. Johnson in appreciation of his participation in the anniversary commemorative rites; and Maj. Gen. Hugh Casey, Brig. Gen. Russel Volckmann, Brig. Gen. Donald Blackburn and Col. Edwin Ramsey in "profound appreciation of their contribution to the defense of Bataan and heroic and voluntary service in the underground movement that helped bring about the liberation of the Philippines."

Present were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. Secretary Eduardo Rodriguez of the Office of Economic Coordination, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Chairman Manuel Barretto of the National Power Corporation, Filemon Rodriguez and a few other guests and their ladies.

Also awarded plaques of appreciation for their participation in the Bataan Day ceremonies held at Mt. Samat, Pilar, Bataan, were Commander Robert Warren and Major William Dabney of the U.S. marines, both members of Secretary Johnson's staff.

Back in Malacañang early in the afternoon, the President closeted himself in his private study and worked on state papers till late evening.

April 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent the day on desk work and in the process submitted to the Commission on Appointments the nominations of 39 officials in the Office of the Solicitor General. All the proposed appointments were promotional, and were approved on recommendation of the Secretary of Justice.

In the evening, the President administered the oath of office to Solicitor General Felix Antonio as associate justice of the Supreme Court in a ceremony held at Malacañang. Justice Antonio fills the position vacated by Associate Justice Arsenio P. Dizon, who has retired.

Present at the induction were the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos; justices of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals headed by Chief Justice Roberto Conception and Presiding Justice Salvador V. Esguerra, respectively; Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Mrs. Natividad J. Antonio and children and other relatives and friends of the inductee.

April 12—

WITH no scheduled callers to attend to, the President devoted the whole morning to paper work.

He, however, received some officials of the executive department who called at Malacañang in the afternoon for consultations.

April 13—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had another day devoted to official papers and other matters of state, in the course of which he submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the names of 12 individuals, eight of whom were nominated as municipal judges and four as clerks of court.

President's Week in Review: April 14-20, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered Gov. Luis Singson of Ilocos Sur to disband and disarm all members of his personal security forces as a means of easing the tension in the province.

In his memorandum, the President also ordered the demobilization of the former's personal bodyguards, whether they are with or without any appointment from the governor as his confidential agents, security agents, or informers, or otherwise performing similar functions.

The Chief Executive also informed Gov. Singson that he had directed the PC and the commander of the Marine elements in Ilocos Sur to apprehend any person who may be found carrying firearms and performing functions as confidential, security or special agent, informer or bodyguard after 48 hours upon receipt of the order.

In a separate action, the President designated Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes as acting executive secretary, upon the departure and for the duration of the absence of Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor Jr. who enplaned for Vienna to attend the meeting of the Asian Development Bank from April 19 to 23.

The President also designated:

- 1) Dr. Alfredo Juinio, National Irrigation Administrator, as concurrent officer-in-charge of the Irrigation Service Unit (ISU).
- 2) ISU Chief Lazaro Ocampo, as Presidential Assistant on Irrigation.

After the induction ceremonies, he repaired to his private study to attend to desk work.

April 15—

THE PRESIDENT submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 15 appointees proposed to various posts in different departments of the executive branch of the government.

Of the 15 nominees, nine were to positions in the Office of the President, two in the Department of Finance, and one each in the Departments of Commerce and industry and Public Works and Communications, Office of Economic Coordination, and local governments.

Among other actions, the Chief Executive asked the Development Bank of the Philippines to open an agency in Marawi City, and convert its existing agency in Iligan City into a branch as soon as possible.

At the same time, the President directed the DBP management to liberalize the terms for loan applicants in the resettlement site in Lanao, to enable them to borrow money from the DBP on the basis of appropriate certificates or guarantees issued by the commander of Task Force LANCAF (Lanao Civic Action Force.)

The President worked on state papers in his study till early evening.

April 16—

THE PRESIDENT had a quiet relatively busy weekend disposing of urgent state papers.

He however took time out late in the afternoon to play a round of golf at the Malacañang Park.

April 17—

THE PRESIDENT received the credentials of His Excellency Sukru Elektag, as non-resident ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of Turkey to the Philippines.

The President said that the Filipinos as a people believe that their future basically lies in their hands, and to this end “will join forces with: all those who sincerely wish to create’ a better society by cooperating in efforts to uplift the dignity and stature of man.”

He stressed that “the seemingly elusive but universally cherished goal of world peace can be attained if only all nations and all peoples exert their utmost toward this end,” and added that “we in the Philippines attach great significance and value to our relationship with Turkey.” He expressed the fervent hope that “the existing goodwill and understanding between our two countries will increase in the coming years.”

The President assured Ambassador Elektag that the government will extend to him its fullest cooperation as it was so extended in the case of his predecessor, Ambassador Turgut Aytug.

Present at the presentation ceremony were Secretaries Manuel Collantes of the Department of Foreign Affairs Juan Ponce Enrile of the Department of National Defense, Vicente Abad Santos of the Department of Justice, and Constancio Casteñeda of the Department of General Services.

Following the presentation ceremonies, the President administered the oath to the newly-elected officers of the League of City Mayors’ of the Philippines.

Inducted were City Mayors Luis Lardizabal of Baguio, league chairman; Luis T. Santos of Davao, executive vice chairman; Gregorio S. Imperial of Legaspi, secretary-general; Cipriano M. Arteche, Jr. of Tacloban, regional director for Eastern Visayas; Germanico Carrion of Dapitan, regional director for Western Mindanao; and Pedro R. Espino of Surigao, regional director for Eastern Mindanao.

The President later conferred with the Mayors on problems of the cities.

The President did not receive callers in the afternoon. He devoted his time instead to urgent official papers.

April 18—

THE PRESIDENT received only a few callers, mostly officials of the executive department, even as he concentrated once more on urgent state papers.

While engaged on desk work, the President signed, and submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation, the nominations of one city fiscal and 22 assistant city and provincial fiscals.

April 19—

THE PRESIDENT started working in his private study after breakfast.

At about 11 a.m., he received General and Mrs. Erik Weekberg, who paid their respects to the First Couple before leaving for Sydney, Australia, after attending the 35th Congress of the Philippine command of the Salvation Army.

The President thanked the SA leader for the humanitarian work of his Organization in the country and assured him of all possible government support to enable it to continue operating.

Mrs. Weekberg likewise congratulated the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, for her “impressive” integrated social welfare and cultural development programs, as well as for the “Green Revolution.”

The Weekbergs were accompanied to Malacañang by Lt. Col. Nancy Hulett, commanding officer of the SA Philippine Command.

April 20—

THE PRESIDENT started the day with a breakfast conference with leaders of both chambers of Congress, to chart the special session vis-a-vis urgent bills.

The President also took up with the Congress leaders amendments to the Tariff Code and the Internal Revenue Code, including possible withdrawal of tax exemptions and subsidies from some industries; the educational development programs, and the integrated national government reorganization plan.

Present at the conference which lasted for over an hour were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senate Majority Floor Leader Arturo Tolentino, Senators Rene Espina, Lorenzo Teves, Leonardo Perez, Ambrosio Padilla, Alejandro Almendras, Helena Z. Benitez, and Mamintal Tamano; House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, and Reps. Jose Alberto of Catanduanes and Natalio P. Castillo of Bohol.

After the meeting, the President received officials of the Chemical Bank of New York and their wives, accompanied by Tony Florendo, who paid a courtesy call. The officials were Chairman and Mrs. William Rendard, First Vice President and Mrs. Donald C. Platten, Executive Vice President Charles W. Carson, Jr., Senior Vice President and Mrs. Paul Bubenday, Representative for the Philippines and Southeast Asia Paul Meyers and his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Sherwood.

At mid-morning, a plaque of appreciation and gratitude was presented to the President by members of the Government Prosecutors League headed by Florentino Flor, president, “for his consuming concern for the improvement of the economic welfare of the government prosecutors and professionalization of the service under R. A. 6407.

Among other callers were: 1) Special Presidential Envoy on Tourism Antonio Delgado, who reported on the results of his recent trip abroad; 2) Gov. Murphy Sangkula and Rep. Indanan Anni of Sulu, who sought fund releases for various public works projects; 3) Ambassador Manuel T. Yan, who tailed for final instructions prior to his departure for his post as Philippine Ambassador to Thailand; 4) Rep. Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, who headed a delegation of town mayors seeking release of funds and prefabricated school houses; and 5) Vladimir Kulinitch accompanied by former Civil Aeronautics Administrator Federico Ablan, who called on the President to signify the intention of Aeroflot (Russian National airlines) to open Moscow-Manila flights via Tokyo and Singapore.

The President told Kulinitch to submit a formal request so that it can be referred to the proper authorities.

Other callers of the President were Vicente Abalahon, Pedro Opiana, Jose Flaminiano, Marconi Pairo, Pukoman Pandangan, Inocencia Gonzales, Jose Arcangel, Vicente Ocampo, Anastacio Lobaton, Senso Orbanilla, Lucas Carpio, Lilia Lopez, Ramon Mabutas, Fred Nepomuceno, Justiniano Cortez, Nicolas Galang, Florentino Jacinto, Emilio Adrion, Rufo Bernardo, Julian Salcedo, Horacio Adaza, Modesto Roscas and Alejandro Leopando of the Government Prosecutors League.

President's Week in Review: April 21-27, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had two speaking engagements, one in Laguna and another in Quezon City.

At about mid-morning, the President flew to Los Baños, to address the 10th anniversary of the start of research work at the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI).

In his speech, the President said that the discovery of the “miracle rice” by the International Rice Research Institute has given new hope to the hungry and malnourished multitudes in Asia and elsewhere.

The President, however, stressed that “the fight against higher prices and periodic shortages has by no means ended in spite of the dramatic gains that have been made in the 10 years since IRRI “began its work.” He cited the experience of the country in the production of high-yielding varieties of rice.

The Chief Executive stressed that the Philippine experience—affirming that the “rice revolution” is a continuing struggle both of production and marketing—could be instructive for all Asian countries facing the same problems and challenges.

The President emphasized that these very difficult issues could be settled if approached in the proper spirit. He said that the example of the IRRI, “an international undertaking where people from many countries have gathered to meet a common problem,” sets the tone. He said that it is the spirit of cooperation that will in the end, bring comfort as well as solutions to the grave problems of the world.

He also expressed the hope that the next decade of the IRRI “will be as exciting, as fulfilling, as rewarding, and as successful” as IRRI’s first 10 years.

From Los Baños, the President helicoptered at 11:00 a.m. to the SSS building in Quezon City, where he was guest speaker of the Fifth Labor-Management Congress.

Addressing some 500 delegates representing labor and management as well as the government sector, the President urged the delegates to work out a realistic proposal and guidelines for enhancing industrial peace.

He also pointed to the great challenges facing the nation, which entail a response from labor and management as well as the government.

The President emphasized that the “thrust of our social effort is not merely towards bread but towards bread with justice and freedom.”

The Chief Executive enjoined the congress to “come to terms with the social and economic realities of our times so that, together, labor and management may voice their aspirations and demands about the kind of society that is most responsive to their welfare.”

“You are called here not in the role of economic combatants but as statesmen of labor and management impelled by common goodwill to find solutions to problems and achieve a broad era of agreement on some nagging and stubborn issues of our times.”

The President gave the congress some pointers in discussing the ways to insure free trade unionism and collective bargaining, as follows:

- 1) Management, in many medium and small sized industries, continues to resist unions and find every available means of blocking them.
- 2) Inter-union rivalry is not conducive to industrial peace as may be seen from the fact that 47 percent of all strikes in 1970 were caused by inter-union rivalry.
- 3) The conciliation and mediation arm of the Department of Labor lacks funds and facilities and, therefore, Congress should appropriate more funds to maintain this agency.

“But a more lasting victory has yet to be won since the first two factors create a climate inimical to industrial peace while the third represents the inability of government to expand facilities enough to meet the demands of industrial conflict,” the President warned.

The President was back in Malacañang early in the afternoon.

The rest of his working hours were spent on paper work.

April 22—

THE PEESIDENT closeted himself in his private study and went over piles of state papers in the morning and afternoon.

Early in the evening he stood as sponsor at the wedding of Rora Navarro, daughter of Rep. Constantino Navarro, held at the Santuario de San. Antonio, Forbes Park in Makati, Rizal.

After the wedding, the President proceeded to the Club Filipino at Greenhills, San Juan, Rizal where he was guest of honor at the U.P. Law Alumni Association dinner.

The President presented the plaque and award to “the most distinguished alumnus of 1972.”

The Chief Executive was back in Malacañang late in the evening.

April 23—

THE PRESIDENT devoted almost another day to urgent paper work.

Early in the afternoon, the President had a brief rest and then played a round of golf with friends at the Malacañang Park.

Toward evening, the President received some officials of the executive department who discussed with him matters concerning their offices.

April 24—

THE PRESIDENT was guest of honor in the afternoon at the inauguration and blessing of the modern printing plant of the Daily Express, a national newsmagazine.

In an interview with staffers of Channel 5 later, the President said the government will encourage the establishment of any additional medium of communications “for the dissemination of our democratic way of life.”

The President spent the earlier part of the day on official papers.

April 25—

THE PRESIDENT ordered Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile to proceed to Ilocos Sur to look into the grenade-bombing early in the morning in Cabugao that cost the lives of, and inflicted injuries on, a big number of fiesta celebrants.

Among other actions taken by the President in the wake of the incident, he:

- 1) Sent two planes of the Philippine Air Force on a mercy mission to the area, complete with medical teams from the V. Luna General Hospital and the Department of Health, with orders to attend to, and evacuate, the injured for treatment at VLGH.
- 2) Dispatched a light plane with CIS investigators and a crime laboratory to the town, to assist in the investigation.

At mid-morning, the President received a large number of callers, mostly provincial executives, who took up with him local matters such as the release of public works and calamity funds and the peace and order situation.

The only other caller on the Chief Executive was Ambassador Julio Menimo Salcedas of Portugal, who came to say goodbye before leaving for home where his new assignment, after a three and a half years' tour of duty in the Philippines, would be given him.

The outgoing Portuguese envoy thanked the President and, through him, the Filipino people, for giving him the opportunity to complete his mission successfully and assured the President that whenever possible he would always strive to help promote the interests of the Filipino people.

The President expressed the hope that the incoming envoy to replace him would be as successful as he was and assured him that the Filipino people would always welcome him if he would make the Philippines his second home.

Next to call on the President was a delegation composed of Governors Palma Gil of Davao Oriental and Verulo Boiser of Davao del Norte; Vice Governors Bienvenida Salceda of Davao del Sur, Cecilia de la Paz of Davao del Norte and Francisco Rabat of Davao Oriental, accompanied by Reps. Constancio B. Maglana and Lorenzo Sarmiento.

The President also received Cavite Vice Governor Dominador Camerino who left his sickbed at the Makati Medical Center to take up the peace and order situation in his province and to renew his request for the release of funds for the repair of roads damaged by a series of typhoons.

Other callers were Governor J. Antonio Leviste of Batangas, Virgilio Lacaya of Zamboanga del Norte, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Ignacio Santiago of Bulacan, Vicente Magsaysay of Zambales and Jaime Gomez of Mt. Province.

The President requested the provincial executives to submit to him their respective lists of priority projects so that the release of public works funds could be made systematically and equitably, on the basis of the urgency of a project.

Later in the day, the President inducted Andres L. Dinglasan, Jr., prominent labor leader, as Social Security Commissioner (representing labor), vice Israel Bocobo who has been appointed undersecretary of labor.

Present at the induction were Constitutional Convention Delegate Roberto S. Oca and Labor Secretary Adrian E. Cristobal.

April 26—

WITH a heavy schedule of callers on deck, the President started working at his desk early. He signed and submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of nine individuals to various posts in the government.

Most of the nominations were to positions in the judiciary.

Among others, he conveyed a congratulatory message to Ben Villaflor following the latter's successful bid for the world's Junior Lightweight title.

The President then received callers, mostly congressmen, starting with a three-man delegation of the German Federation of Trade Unions who paid their respects to the President.

Accompanied by German Ambassador J. W. Buddenbrock and former Labor Secretary Blas F. Ople, the delegation was composed of Alfons Lappas, member of the federation and the board of trustees of the Friedrich-Ebert-Stiftung; Erwin Kristofferson and Klaus Pretzer, F-E-S representatives to Asia and the Philippines, respectively.

The President also received the members of the executive committee of the National Labor Union Center (NLUC) headed by Antonio Policarpio, who invited him to speak at a labor rally on Labor Day (May 1).

The delegation included Ben B. Navarro, Cesar Legayada, Tim Dejon and Filemon Arce.

Other callers included some 32 Nacionalista congressmen who sought public works fund releases, allocations of prefabricated school buildings and assistance in procuring hospital ambulance.

The congressmen who called on the President were House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, Reps. Rafael Legaspi of Aklan, Pablo Malasarte of Bohol, Artemio Mate of Leyte, Pedro C. Medalla of Mindoro Occidental, Constantino Navarro of Surigao del Norte, Jose P. Neri of Camiguin, Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte, Benjamin Perez of Nueva Vizcaya; Jose J. Puyat of Surigao del Sur, Francisco G. Reyes of Manila, Pablo R. Roman of Bataan, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan del Norte, Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao del Norte; Celestino Sybico, Eduardo Gullas, Emerito Calderon, Gaudencio Beduya and Manuel Zosa of Cebu; Fermin Caram, Jr. and Gloria Tabiana of Iloilo, Simeon Valdez of Ilocos Norte, Fernando Veloso of Western Samar, Felipe J. Abrigo of Eastern Samar, Rodolfo Albano of Isabela; Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur, Amando D. Cope of Albay, Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte, Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, Tito Dupaya of Cagayan and Felix Fuentebella of Camarines Sur.

Early in the evening, the President had an interview with Malacañang newsmen during which he announced that he had rejected proposals to proclaim martial law in Ilocos Sur and to increase the number of troops in that strife-torn province.

He told newsmen it was a matter of organizing five teams to follow up five theories that had been submitted for investigation.

April 27—

THE PRESIDENT conferred in the morning with a combined delegation from Isabela and Quirino provinces, headed by Senator Leonardo Perez and Rep. Benjamin Perez, to discuss the economic development program for the two provinces.

The delegation presented proposals on, among others, land problems, increased agricultural production, infrastructures, and share in income tax collections.

During the meeting, the President:

- 1) Appealed to the local executives to pinpoint the alleged bad elements in the army in their localities so that they could be court-martialed.
- 2) Directed Secretaries Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. of agriculture and natural resources and Conrado Estrella of agrarian reform to coordinate and to take up the proposals with the delegation.
- 3) Directed Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council to look into the proposals with the view to giving priority to the two provinces.
- 4) Defined the basic policy of reserving portions of public lands for reforestation and portions for disposal to the public.
- 5) Asked for the adoption of a policy to connect lumber concessions by road to national highways for the benefit not only of the concessionaries but of the farmers and peasants.
- 6) Announced the graduation of some 502 trainees who, in turn, would fan out to the provinces to train local residents in consumer or producer cooperatives organization.

Among those in the delegation were Governor Faustino Dy of Isabela and Gualberto Lumaig of Quirino (Ifugao); and the mayors of San Mateo, Jones, Benito Soliven, Reyno Mercedes, Ramos, Echague, Dibilican and Tumauni in Isabela, and Sagada, Cabarroguis, Diffun and Madela in Quirino.

After the conference, the President sailed for Cavite City where he officiated at the launching of the new 65—foot ferro-cement fast patrol craft, and the inauguration of the navy barracks, station hospital and officers' clubhouse.

In his brief remarks, the President announced that the Philippine Navy would continue constructing vessels for its own use in line with the new policy of adopting a self-reliant defense posture.

He said that the launching of the new craft “epitomizes the will of the Filipino people to do what they can with their own limited resources to attain self-reliance in defense of their own security and welfare.”

The Chief Executive arrived at the navy base aboard the RPS 777 at 10:30 a.m., and was met by local officials, foreign dignitaries, military top brass and other high government officials who attended the occasion.

From the pier, he motored to the parade ground where he was accorded full military honors by two companies of navy trainees, after which he motored back to the dock for the launching ceremony.

The President, assisted by Mrs. Juan Ponce Enrile, pulled the lever which signalled the launching of the vessel.

After inspecting the vessel, the President motored to the barracks, the station hospital and then to the officers' clubhouse for the ribbon cutting rites.

After lunch at the clubhouse, he reboarded the RPS 777 for the return trip to Manila.

Among those present at the ceremony were Defense Undersecretary Efren I. Plana, Governor Lino Bocalan of Cavite, Mayor Eduardo de Guzman of Cavite City, foreign dignitaries led by Ambassadors Henry Byroade of the United States and Deva Rao of India, and chiefs of the major commands of the armed forces.

President's Week in Review: April 28 - May 4, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

April 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS attended the necrological services for the late Fernando Amorsolo, dean of Filipino painters, held in the morning at the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

In his speech, the President disclosed that he has signed a proclamation establishing a new category of awards and decorations for state honorees.

In paying homage to Amorsolo, the President said that “in him we honor every Filipino Artist—living, dead, or unborn.”

The President then motored to Manila Hotel where he was guest speaker at the 18th National Rice and Corn Convention.

The President enjoined the rice producers and millers to maintain reasonable rice prices, assuring them that the government would desist as much as possible from importing rice but would continue instead to subsidize local producers.

At the same time, he appealed to the leaders of the rice industry to help the government conduct an extensive and intensive campaign of information and education to acquaint the people with the services provided by the government, such that propaganda and untruths spread by elements seeking to undermine democracy and freedom could be negated.

The President warned the delegates not to lose the fight by default,, which may happen if responsible citizens do nothing in the face of the propaganda of falsehoods.

After his address, the President was presented a plaque of appreciation “in grateful recognition of his sincere efforts, bold program, extensive farm-to-market road building, irrigation dams, pumps, and support for the growth of the rice and corn industry and his concern for the welfare of both the producer and consumer.”

The President was back at Malacañang before noon to address the 174 trainees, from the Agricultural Credit Administration, Presidential Arm on Community Development, Agricultural Productivity Commission, National Manpower and Youth Council, and Cooperatives Administration Office.

The President reiterated that the cooperative system is the appropriate instrument for radical but peaceful change in a society beset by inequality in its system and unequal distribution of wealth and income.

He urged the trainees “to see to it that the cooperatives you will help organize become viable societies, capable of contributing not only to the well-being of their members but also to the development of the country.”

In concluding his address, the President underscored the importance of the cooperative institution by saying that “nothing must block it” and assuring the trainees that “your efforts will be supported by the powers of the Presidency of the Philippines.”

The President worked on official papers the rest of the day.

April 29—

THE PRESIDENT continued giving considerable attention to paper work. Among other actions, he:

- 1) Appointed Amado B. Almazan as hearing officer in the board of special inquiry of the Bureau of Immigration;
- 2) Designated Romeo V. Manikan acting city treasurer of Iloilo City;
- 3) Submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of a district judge, 17 municipal judges, a CAR clerk of court, two CFI clerks of court, and three provincial fiscals.

April 30—

THE PRESIDENT designated Undersecretary of Justice Estelito P. Mendoza as acting solicitor general and Undersecretary of National Defense Efren I. Plana as acting undersecretary of justice, vice Mendoza, even as he spent some time acting on urgent state matters shortly after breakfast.

May 1—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, observed their wedding anniversary quietly with a few close relatives and friends at Malacañang.

The First Couple renewed marriage vows at a wedding anniversary Mass said shortly before noon at the ceremonial hall of the Palace. They were joined at the Mass by close relatives, including the President's mother, Doña Josefa Edralin Marcos; and a few friends, including some members of the Cabinet and their wives.

After a late lunch, the President motored to the SSS auditorium in Quezon City, where he addressed the National Labor Unity Congress which spearheaded the celebration of Labor Day.

In his speech, the President called on labor to cast aside the petty jealousies and parochial interests of its leaders and unite in order "to undertake political action of a magnitude that can decisively influence the direction of policy."

He stressed that considering the fact that the wage-earners and the peasants represent the most numerous class, it is ironic that the power of labor in this country "is very much less" than what it should be.

The President underscored the failure of workers and farmers to develop into a significant political force which "retards further the development of our democracy and threatens the very existence of that democracy."

May 2—

THE PRESIDENT was guest speaker at the 37th anniversary celebration of the Philippine Air Force, held at Nichols Air Base.

In his address, the President called on the Air Force to lead the way in making the country's defense system capable of standing against any enemy.

The President also called attention to the external and internal threats to the country and said "it is our overriding responsibility to meet at this time without reservation every challenge flung at our government by such forces as would undermine the rule of law, frustrate peaceful reforms and plunge the nation into the chaos of civil war."

In both these tasks, the President said: "We shall not be daunted either by armed threat or calumny and terrorism."

The Chief Executive lauded the PAF for its peacetime efforts at nation-building.

Before delivering his speech, the President presented awards to outstanding officers and men of the Air Force, and including civilians, who had made signal contributions to the PAF during the past year.

The President presented: 1) The Gold Cross Medal to Lt. Col. Modesto Subnet, T/Sgt. Juanito Sicam and T/Sgt. Florecel Cirpo; 2) The Bronze Cross Medal to Capt. Rene V. Certeza; 3) The Military Merit Medal to Cols. Ataulfo P. Alvarez, Conrado Chuidian, Mariano Castañeda, Jr., and Maj. Benito C. Fader; and 4) Plaque of Merit to Cadet Lt. Col. Angel Honrado, Lorenzo Cabrera, NMPC Director Gregorio S. Cendaña, Rey Pascua, Antonio Tecson, Mariano N. Querol, Ernesto Madrid, Eddie Pangilinan, Rod Villa, Jose de Vera, Antonio Sicat, Jaime Panesa, Filemon Tutay, Francisco de Jesus, Antonio Seva, and Alex Allan.

The President arrived at Nichols Air Base at about 9:20 a.m., and was given full military honors by a composite battalion of Air Force cadets, air police and the newly organized airborne "Screaming Eagles" unit.

After witnessing (the air show, the President accepted on behalf of the Philippine Government from the United States Air Force the Air Defense Control Center, and inaugurated the New NAB Operations.

In the afternoon, the President reappointed Blas F. Ople as secretary of Labor.

The President also inducted Justice Undersecretary Estelito Mendoza as acting solicitor general, and Defense Undersecretary Efren I. Plana as acting undersecretary of justice.

Among those who attended the oath-taking ceremony were Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Public Works and Communications Secretary David M. Consunji, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Assistant Press Secretary Lorenzo J. Cruz, Assistants Executive Secretaries Roberto V. Reyes and Ronaldo Zamora, Undersecretaries of Labor Amado Inciong and Israel Bocobo, Presidential Assistant Guillermo de Vega, Social Security Commissioners Andres Dinglasan and Democrito Mendoza, Chairman Severo Pucan of the Bureau of Workmen's Compensation, and Director Bernardo Ople of the National Manpower Skills Center.

Earlier in the morning, the President issued a proclamation declaring May 7 (Sunday) as a National Day of Prayer for Peace.

He called for national reaffirmation of the spirit of ecumenism, by requesting all churches in the country, of whatever faith or creed, to take part in the proper commemoration of the special day.

The President asked all church Leaders to encourage their faithful to "participate in this day of prayer," emphasizing the need for peace "not only in our world but in each and every community of our country itself."

Among other actions, the President issued an executive order setting forth the policy of appointing a representative of the minority party as member of committees on pre-qualifications and awards in each national agency undertaking infrastructure projects.

The representative of the minority party, who should be recommended by the president of said party, should possess the necessary technical qualifications.

May 3—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred the Ancient Order of Sikatuna (rank of Datu) on Ambassador Julio Menimo Salcedas of Portugal, who was scheduled to leave for his home office after serving in the Philippines for over three years, "for endeavoring constantly to strengthen the friendly ties between his people and the Filipinos, and for becoming instrumental in promoting greater understanding to their mutual benefit."

In separate ceremonies, the President also conferred the Golden Heart Presidential Award on Philip Parker of the United States Agency for International Development for his "outstanding contributions to the government's efforts to provide electrification to the masses by means of the cooperative idea,” particularly through the establishment of two pilot projects and the procurement of 36 power plants; and the Presidential citation on Anthony C. Meager, outgoing UNICEF representative in the Philippines.

After the award rites the President received:

1) Vice Mayor Eduard L. Cates of Jackson City in Mississippi, who presented the President with certificates making him and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, honorary citizens of Jackson, Vice Mayor Cates likewise presented the President with a certificate making the latter honorary fire chief of Jackson.

2) Morris O. Cottle, Daniel H. Weaver, and John E. Kyle, director, associate director, and director of public affairs, respectively, of the Summer Institute of Linguistics, who presented the President with a book entitled “Farewell to Eden,” and a report on their activities last year in the Philippines.

3) Reps. Pablo A. Malasarte of Bohol, Jose G. Puyat of Surigao del Sur, Fermin Z. Caram, Jr. of Iloilo, Tito M. Dupaya of Cagayan, Constancio B. Maglana of Davao Oriental, Eduardo M. Cojuangco, Jr. of Tarlac, Andres A. Cosalan of Benguet, Rafael B. Legaspi of Aklan, Eduardo R. Gullas of Cebu, Rafael C. Aquino of Sorsogon, Antonio M. Diaz of Zambales, Simeon M. Valdez of Ilocos Norte, Joaquin Ortega of La Union, Emerito S. Calderon of Cebu, and Amando D. Cope of Albay, all of whom discussed with the President local problems.

4) Fiscal Florentino de la Peña of Cagayan, who took his oath of office before the President.

Those who conferred privately with the President were Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Senator Alejandro Almendras, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, and Commissioners Rolando Geotina and Baltazar Aquino of the Bureau of Customs and the Bureau of Public Highways, respectively.

While engaged in desk work, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of Blas F. Ople as secretary of labor and of Vicente P. Rodriguez as treasurer of the Philippines.

Also submitted by the President were the nominations of nine individuals to posts in the judiciary and in local governments.

May 4—

THE PRESIDENT was guest of honor and speaker at the 19th annual convention of the rural bankers, held at the Manila Royal Hotel on Echague.

In his address, the President said that all available resources of the government would be unequivocally committed to the continued support of the rural banking movement.

He stressed that rural bankers, by the very nature of their operations and locations, had proved to be valuable instruments in the implementation of national policies.

The President expressed the hope that rural banks would continue to participate actively in the administration’s program aimed at intensifying rice production.

The President worked on state papers in the afternoon, and then met with Malacañang newsmen toward evening.

President's Week in Review: May 5-11, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 5—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest speaker at the formal turnover of the first 300 of the 20,000 housing units of the Moonwalk Housing Project in Las Piñas, Rizal.

In his speech, the President expressed the hope that the joint venture between the government and the private sector would continue until “we shall have been able to build one house for every Filipino family.”

“As one of the biggest low-cost housing projects under this administration, I hope you will continue building because our housing shortage is very serious,” he said.

The President conducted an ocular inspection of the site, noting with satisfaction the concrete and asphalted streets, the underground drainage, and the sound construction of the housing units.

Among those present at the turnover rites were Rep. Jose Alberto and Gov. Vicente Alberto of Catanduanes, officials of MDHC headed by Mariano Velarde, president; the GSIS headed by General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr.; the SSS headed by acting Administrator Reynaldo Gregorio; and the National Housing Corporation headed by General Manager Gaudencio Tobias.

The President was back in Malacañang in time to receive Ben Villaflor, newly-crowned Filipino junior lightweight champion of the World Boxing Association.

The President congratulated Villaflor for winning back the title held for many years by another Filipino, Gabriel “Flash” Elorde.

After going over official papers in his study in the afternoon, the President had an interview with newsmen covering Malacañang.

May 6—

THE President, accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, led a pilgrimage to Corregidor in connection with the commemoration of the 30th anniversary of the Fall of Corregidor.

The President, in his speech, said: “Let us all in our individual ways, work together for peace, so that we shall never again know war.”

“There are present here today at this commemoration, not only men who fought together during that time of conflict, but also those who fought on the other side,” the President said. “No better tribute can be given to the memory of Corregidor than that today, 30 years after, nations that were then locked in battle now stand together and look on each other as friends.”

Special guests at the rites were U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe who was, for the first time, invited to participate in the yearly commemoration.

Also at the rites were other members of the diplomatic corps, ranking officials of the government headed by members of the Cabinet, representatives of veterans organizations, and members of their families.

The Chief Executive arrived in Corregidor at 10:30 a.m. aboard the RPS Ang Pangulo. He was accorded full military honors by a composite contingent representing all the four major commands of the armed forces.

After the arrival honors, the President, the U.S. ambassador and the Japanese ambassador laid wreaths on a marker-tablet erected bottom-side of "The Rock" on which was inscribed the history of that island bastion which dates back to the Spanish regime.

"Let us show the world that if Americans, Japanese and Filipinos could forge from the rubble of war, a life of cooperation and mutual progress, surely its also possible for the rest of the world to pursue the same life.

"There is no people or nation in the world today that has not in its history experienced the senseless violence of war, and it may be that a people and nation must first know the pains of war to appreciate fully the beneficence of peace," the President said.

Following the rites, the President and members of his party boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo for the trip back to Manila.

While enroute to the city, the President administered the oaths to four new one-star generals of the armed forces.

Swore in were Gregorio Fider, deputy chief of the Philippine Constabulary; Efigenio C. Navarro, Commander of the 2nd PC zone; and Guillermo A. Picache, acting deputy AFP chief of staff; and Capt. Gil S. Fernandez, as commodore of the Philippine Navy.

The President went over urgent official papers in the afternoon. He submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of Gen. Jesus Singson (ret) as director of Civil Aviation and of Joaquin Lizardo as foreign officer, class III and vice consul.

May 7—

THE PRESIDENT led the faithful at the concelebrated Mass for universal peace at the Church of Our Lady of Peace and Good Voyage in Antipolo, Rizal.

In a message he issued on this special day, the President said:

"I am privileged to lead our people in observing this special day, a National Day of Prayer for Peace, with the deepest sense of the importance of this occasion and of the ideal that we hope to make a living reality in our time, the all too elusive ideal of peace, for which paradoxically men fought wars to attain. And yet today after all the wars for peace have been fought, mankind still searches for this dream.

"In a world which professes an abiding desire for peace, the goal has been lost in the confusion of conflicting interests, bitter prejudice, unreasoning fear, and other flaws of human nature. But more than ever, men of goodwill seek to bring a lasting and just peace to our world. In our own country, we have been witness to bitterness, dissension and meaningless violence, all of which place just beyond our reach the tranquility that all of us desire.

"It is my hope that on this day of prayer, we shall reaffirm our commitment to the human dream of universal peace by participating wholeheartedly, from the strongest compulsion, in the prayer which asks of Providence the healing of all men's wounds and the coming together of the human family in peace and brotherhood."

Mrs. Fernando Lopez, leaders of both chambers of Congress headed by Senate President Gil J. Puyat and Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, members of the Cabinet, former President and President of the Constitutional Convention and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, and people from all walks of life attended the Mass, with Julio Cardinal Rosales and Bishops Mariano Gaviola and Vicente Ataviado, officiating.

Others who were at the concelebrated Mass were Secretaries Vicente Abad Santos of justice, Conrado F. Estrella of agrarian reform, Troadio Quiazon of commerce and industry and Clemente S. Gatmaitan of health; Senators Lorenzo Sumulong, Rene Espina and Ambrosio Padilla; Assistant Executive Secretaries Flores Bayot and Ronaldo Zamora; Undersecretary Manuel Collantes of foreign affairs; Commissioners Faustino Sy-Changco of budget and Misael P. Vera of internal revenue; and Mayor Jose Oliveros and Vice Mayor Daniel Garcia of Antipolo.

The President returned to Manila at 2:00 p.m. after a brief conference with provincial and municipal officials of Rizal who presented him with some of their pressing local problems.

May 8—

THE PRESIDENT motored to Camp Aguinaldo at midmorning to preside over a meeting of the National Security Council which was briefed on the latest development in the Vietnam war and their possible effects on the domestic scene.

The briefings, which lasted from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., were conducted by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and General Romeo G. Espino, AFP chief of staff.

Among the assessments offered at the briefing was that a North Vietnamese victory would mean the increase in insurgency as it would strengthen the motivation and dedication of the subversives in the Philippines.

Following the council meeting, the President conferred with Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, General Romeo G. Espino, AFP chief of staff; heads of the major AFP commands and zone commanders, on the peace and order situation.

During the conference, the generals reported that the situation has been under control. They informed the President that although there had been some killings, most of the incidents were either politically or personally motivated.

Present at the meeting were former President Diosdado Macapagal, Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, Senate Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso, Senate Minority Floor Leader Gerardo Roxas, Senator Benigno S. Aquino, Jr. and other Senate and House leaders.

All the senators were present except Leonardo Perez, Jovito R. Salonga and Genaro Magsaysay. The senators were all invited to the council meeting.

Also at the meeting were members of the Cabinet and ranking officials of the armed forces.

The President left Camp Aguinaldo 2:30 p.m.

The President worked on state papers the rest of the afternoon and early evening.

May 9—

The President met at midmorning with his fiscal, economic and trade advisers.

During the meeting, the President discussed with the group several matters including a program to offset the trade imbalance which the Philippines has with other countries; the problems of tourism; and the finalization of recommendations on the progressive car manufacturing program.

The President deplored the lack of system in the efforts to offset the imbalance of trade with several countries including Australia, Canada, Hongkong, Singapore and others.

Jovito Rivera, general manager of the National Export Trading Center, informed the conference that in accordance with the plan to promote exports, the NETRACOR had sold 2,000 tons of coconut oil to Japan and ginger from the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market to Pakistan. He also said Netracor has been engaged in scouting for buyers of red beans in Japan.

The President likewise expressed disappointment over the promotion of tourism in the Philippines. He opined that international airlines operating in the country could help boost tourism while increasing their own profits.

On the progressive car manufacturing program, the President directed the Board of Investments, the Central Bank and the National Economic Council to finalize their recommendations in order to get the program moving.

He explained that the original recommendation on the progressive car manufacturing program did not indicate which car manufacturers would engage in exporting cars and which manufacturers would not, and that it also did not clarify whether any manufacturer which failed to comply with the conditions of the contract in the first year would have its license cancelled and whether the other applicants would be given an opportunity to enter the program.

In connection with those applicants who failed to meet requirements and therefore were excluded, but allowed instead a period of transition during which they could participate in manufacturing car components and still bring in completely knocked down (CKD) cars, the inclusive transition period should be determined, the President said.

President at the conference were Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco Jr., Commerce and Industry Secretary Troadio Quiazon, Jr., Acting Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata, Rep. Roque Ablan, Jr.;

Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros, Chairman Eliseo Villamor of the Rice and Corn Administration, Social Security Administrator Gilberto Teodoro, Commissioner Gregorio Araneta, III of the BTTI, NETRACOR General Manager Jovito Rivera, Directors Jose Viado of Forestry and Pacifico Agcaoili of the Civil Aeronautics Board; and

The President had a brief rest after lunch and then attended to deskwork till early evening.

May 10—

The President received a number of callers in the morning, notable among whom were Ambassadors Leon Ma. Guerrero (to India) and Luis Moreno Salcedo (to France, Yugoslavia and Romania).

Ambassador Guerrero reported on developments in India and Pakistan.

In his talk with Ambassador Salcedo, the President asked the veteran diplomat to explore all possibilities toward an early establishment of trade ties with East European countries beginning with Yugoslavia and Romania.

Other important callers were:

1) Lionel Pelham Kent, chairman of the Canadian Committee of the Pacific Basin Economic Council, who paid a courtesy call and discussed economic prospects here for Canadian investors.

2) Senators Helena Z. Benitez and Lorenzo Teves, who discussed local problems.

3) A number of congressmen who consulted the President on various legislative matters relative to administration projects.

Among those who called on the President were Reps. Rafael Legaspi of Aklan; Leonides C. de Leon of Laguna, Romulo Lumaig of Ifugao, Pablo Malasarte of Bohol, Teodulo Natividad of Bulacan, Joaquin Ortega of La Union, Benjamin Perez of Nueva Viscaya, Pablo Roman of Bataan, Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan del Norte, Fernando Veloso of Western Samar, Antonio Villar of Pangasinan, Manuel Zosa of Cebu, Indanan Anni of Sulu, James Chiongbian of South Cotabato, Amando Cope of Albay and Andres Cosalan of Benguet.

The President spent the whole afternoon working on state papers, in the course of which he issued an administrative order creating a new committee to act as a liaison agency between the government and the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines.

Designated chairman of the liaison body was Assistant Executive Secretary Ronaldo B. Zamora, with Justice Undersecretary Catalino Macaraig, Education Undersecretary Narciso Albarracin, and PES Deputy Director-General Antonio Locsin as members.

Among the official papers he issued from his desk was an executive Appointments for confirmation the nominations of six persons, mostly to positions in the judiciary.

May 11—

THE PRESIDENT received a few unscheduled callers while at the same time attending to his paper work.

Among the official papers he issued from his desk was an executive order creating a national committee to take charge of the celebration of Philippine Independence Day on June 12.

Named chairman of the committee was Education Secretary Juan L. Manuel, with Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco as vice-chairman.

President's Week in Review: May 12-18, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 12—

PRESIDENT MARCOS spent the whole day on urgent desk work.

Among other actions, he signed and forwarded to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 15 persons to positions in the judiciary.

May 13—

THE PRESIDENT submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of seven more persons to posts in the government, even as he continued devoting his time to state papers, including reports from government agencies.

Nominated were:

- 1) Dr. Agaton Ursua, as member of the board of directors of the Philippine National Railways, representing the minority party;
- 2) Candido Gium, as member of the board of governors of the Agricultural Credit Administration, representing the minority party;
- 3) Dr. Patrocino S. Santos, as member of the Board of Pharmacy;
- 4) Juanito Hernandez, as third assistant provincial fiscal of Davao Oriental;
- 5) Elano Cabrera, as fourth assistant provincial fiscal of Davao Oriental;
- 6) Benjamin U. Pacetes, as fifth assistant provincial fiscal of Davao Oriental; and
- 7) Rodolfo M. Serrano, as assistant provincial fiscal of Davao Oriental.

Official reports received by the President included that of Secretary David M. Consunji of Public Works and Communications, informing him, among others, that he has ordered the automatic disqualification in highway construction of prospective bidders with low performance capabilities.

Secretary Consunji, on instructions from the President, has conducted a three-day inspection trip of the Manila South Road.

May 14—

THE PRESIDENT had a two-hour briefing late in the afternoon from U.S. civil and military officials in Malacafiang.

Headed by U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade, the U.S. officials who were at the Palace were Maj. Gen. James Frankosky, acting U.S. 13th Air Force commander; Rear Admiral John H. Dick, commander of U.S. naval forces in the Philippines and representative of the commander-in-chief of the U.S. forces in the Pacific; and Minister William Hamilton and Col. Alfred Patterson of the U.S. embassy.

Also at the briefing were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; and commanders of the major AFP commands.

In an interview with newsmen later, the President said the question of whether any combat missions had been flown from Clark Air Force Base and Subic Naval Base was clarified. The answer, he said, "is in the negative."

The President went over some urgent state papers earlier in the day.

May 15—

THE PRESIDENT presided over a meeting in the morning with national leaders and local executives to give them the latest developments in the Vietnam conflict and the possible effects on the Philippines.

He disclosed at the meeting that he has received regular briefings from U.S. civil and military authorities, as well as from other sources, since the Vietnam hostilities escalated.

The President said that it was his desire to have all levels of leadership in the country adequately posted on the international situation so that they could contribute to the formulation of national policies.

Others who participated in the free-wheeling discussions were Reps. Jose de Venecia of Pangasinan and Democrito O. Plaza of Agusan del Sur; Governors Brigido Valencia of Pampanga, Vicente Magsaysay of Zambales, Faustino Dy of Isabela and Gualberto Lumauig of Ifugao; and City Mayors Ramon D. Bagatsing of Manila and Gregorio Imperial of Legaspi.

In the afternoon, the President was guest of honor and speaker at the inauguration of Snyder Station No. 2 of the Manila Electric Company in Pasig, Rizal.

In his speech, he called upon the people to unite for the sake of the welfare of the nation.

He pointed out that the spectre of World War III, the turbulence within the country, and the economic difficulties should be the main concern of everyone and added that in this task all must extend a helping hand and do their share in the work of unifying a nation to the end that peace, happiness, and progress shall reign over the country.

Before leaving Malacañang for the Meralco inaugural rites, the President directed the 51st Engineer Brigade headed by Brig. Gen. Fidel Ventura to help in undertaking immediate repairs of the Manila South Road up to the Bicol region.

He also instructed that this be done in coordination with the Bureau of Public Highways.

May 16—

THE PRESIDENT had a three-hour meeting with provincial governors and city mayors during which he called on the local executives to assume their share of the responsibility in nation-building.

The President emphasized that it was important that they be informed about national programming so they could assume joint responsibility for it since he alone, despite his many assistants; would not be able to handle, the task.

He announced that he would set up a Local Governments Office in Malacañang so that requirements of this branch of the government could be better served.

He warned against the inroads of corruption reaching out to the local level because corruption might wreck “our democratic way of life.”

Present at the meeting which was first presided over by Leyte Governor Benjamin Romualdez, chairman of the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors, were Governors Consuelo V. Calo of Agusan del Norte, Felix Alfeloro of Camarines Sur, Anacleto Alcala of Quezon, Alfonso Umali of Mindoro Oriental, Lino Bocalan of Cavite, Henry Regalado of Misamis Occidental, J. Antonio C. Leviste of Batangas, Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan, Lino Chatto of Bohol, Gualberto Lumauig of Ifugao, Cornelio Villareal, Jr. of Capiz, Faustino Dy of Isabela, Arsenio Villarosa of Mindoro Occidental, Salvation U. Yñiguez of Southern Leyte, and Evelio Javier of Antique;

Rep. Andres Cosalan representing Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal, City Mayors Antonio Acharon of General Santos, Omar Dianalan of Marawi, Pedro Tolentino of Batangas, Cipriano Manaois of Dagupan, Cesar Dizon of San Pablo, and Elpidio Cucio of Palayan.

The President spent the whole afternoon and early evening working on state papers, in the course of which he submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 34 officials in various agencies of the government. Of the nominees, five were also designated to perform the duties of the respective offices to which they were nominated.

May 17—

THE PRESIDENT had another day devoted mostly to urgent official papers and other matters of state.

Among the actions taken by the President was the submission to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of nine persons to positions in the judiciary and the prosecution arm of the government.

Early in the evening, the President had a brief interview with Malacañang newsmen.

May 18—

THE PRESIDENT was guest of honor and speaker on the third day of the Field Men’s Conference on the Rice Program, held at the Maharlika Hall in Malacañang.

In his speech, the President urged some 1,000 field men of the National Food and Agriculture Council to set the example in providing moral leadership in the fight against hunger.

Admitting that in order to improve service to the farmers the government has to first improve the lot of the technicians who have very low salaries, the President directed NFAC Executive Director Roberto Fronda to increase the field men’s “incentive allowances.”

He described the field men as “the first line of defense,” saying that in the struggle against subversion “you face danger more directly and meet the threat more squarely face-to-face.” It is precisely because of this, he added, that they are “the most effective weapon against those who profess communism, although most of them do not understand what communism is.”

The President warned against the danger of intensified subversion should South Vietnam fall to the communists.

Present at the conference were Agriculture and Natural Resources Secretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., Acting Agriculture Undersecretary Eliseo C. Carandang, Commissioner Francisco Saguiguit of the Agricultural Productivity Commission, and NFAC Executive Director Roberto E. Fronda.

In the afternoon, the President administered the oath of office to National Treasurer Vicente P. Rodriguez.

The appointment of Treasurer Rodriguez has been confirmed by the Commission on Appointments.

He also received Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, who reiterated to the President, as titular head of the Nacionalista Party, his previous offer to resign as acting NP president.

President's Week in Review: May 19-25, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 19—

PRESIDENT MARCOS started working at his desk after breakfast.

At midmorning, he inducted five new generals of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, whose nominations were confirmed by the Commission on Appointments.

The new generals sworn in by the President in the presence of their comrades in the military, high government officials, friends and relatives were Luis Amor, zone commander, III PC zone; Ataulfo Alvarez, vice commander, Philippine Air Force, and presidential pilot; Juan Raso, deputy commander, Philippine Army, and commander of Task Force Pagkakaisa; and Ignacio Paz, chief of the Intelligence Service, AFP.

After the induction ceremonies, the President received the Philippine delegation to the First World Congress on Air Transport and Tourism.

He told the delegation that he would consider the suggestion to include chartered flights in the agenda of the negotiations on air transportation scheduled in Washington, D.C., on May 30 since these boost the tourist trade.

The delegation informed the President that the lack of chartered flights was one of the main drawbacks to tourism in the country.

The delegation was accompanied to Malacañang by Salvador Peña, executive director of the Philippine Travel and Tourist Association.

In the afternoon, the President ordered a study on the possibility of coordinating the functions of the National Social Action Council (NASAC) with the government cooperative, anti-crime and anti-narcotics programs.

He ordered the study not only because NASAC's functions are closely related to said government programs but also in order that it would not be hampered in its work by lack of funds since it depends solely on public and private donations.

The President also ordered that studies be made on the possibility of including the NASAC by legislation among civic and charitable institutions entitled to donations from the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office.

May 20—

THE President flew to Fort Magsaysay in Nueva Ecija in the morning to address the 257 military trainees who completed their six-month basic training.

In his address, the President expressed the belief that there would be external threats to the Philippines within the next 10 years.

"There is none now but it is possible that if we are weak, and if we are not capable of defending ourselves, and we keep on depending on other nations. . .we will end up like the other countries who depended on other countries so much so that they lost the will to fight," he said.

The President emphasized that "now is the time to prepare" for any eventuality. He added that it is necessary that "we establish a self-reliant defense posture, whatever may be the policies of other powerful nations."

This, he said, is the policy of most small countries, and for which reason the present decade is called the “decade of flexibility.”

The President expressed confidence that the officers and men of the Armed Forces would continue in their mission not only to prepare for any eventuality and to protect the security of the country, but also to participate in economic development.

The President arrived at 9:10 a.m. at Fort Magsaysay aboard the presidential plane and was met by Fort personnel headed by Brig. Gen. Rafael Zagala, commanding general of the First Infantry (Tabak) Division; Palayan City Mayor Elpidio Cucio, Reps. Roque Ablan, Jr. of Ilocos Norte, Lucas Cauton of Ilocos Sur, Eduardo Cojuangco of Tarlac and Leopoldo Diaz and Angel Conception of Nueva Ecija.

En route back to Manila aboard the presidential plane, the President directed PC Chief Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos to provide adequate security for Constitutional Convention Delegate Quintero who said that he had been receiving money from unnamed lobbyists over the passed few months.

The President said security for Quintero would be provided for as long as necessary. Later in the afternoon, the President ordered that four more towns in Bulacan and Rizal be included within the area of operations of the Metropolitan Area Command.

At the same time, the President directed Brig. Gen. Fabian Ver, chief of the presidential security force, to study the feasibility of appointing a qualified member of the Metropolitan Police Association as a member of the Police Commission.

The expansion of the Metropolitan Area Command has brought within its scope of responsibility the towns of Pateros, Taguig, and Muntinglupa, all in Rizal; and Valenzuela in Bulacan.

May 21—

THE President concentrated on official papers and other state matters.

Among other actions, he granted a 30-day reprieve to three convicts who were scheduled to be electrocuted Wednesday, May 24, at the National Penitentiary in Muntinglupa, Rizal.

In granting the reprieve, the President said he wanted more time to study the recommendations of the Board of Pardons and Parole for the commutation of their sentence to life imprisonment.

May 22—

THE President summoned to Malacañang officials of the department of national defense and the Manila Metropolitan Police who reported on the demonstration against the Vietnam war, held in the vicinity of the U.S. embassy, in which scores were wounded, including many of the Metrocom men.

During the meeting, the President cautioned law enforcing agencies to be “patient but firm” in dealing with demonstrations and to employ the minimum force required in quelling similar civil disturbances. At the same time, he appealed to demonstrators to refrain from resorting to provocation and acts of violence, in order to avoid unnecessary risk to life and property.

Present at the conference were Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Mariano G. Ordenez, Metrocom chief; and Cols. Gerardo Tamayo and James Barbers, MMP chief and deputy chief, respectively.

THE President went over state papers in his private study, in the course of which he signed the designations of 112 officials and individuals to various posts in the executive departments of the government.

Heading the list of designees were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., as part-time member of the board of governors of the Development Bank of the Philippines and as chairman of the Power Development Council; Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., as secretary of commerce and industry; Estelito Mendoza, as solicitor general; Cesar E. A. Virta and Apolinario Orosa, as members of the Joint Legislative-Executive Tax Commission; Efren I. Plana, as undersecretary of justice; Ponciano G. A. Mathay, as chairman of the Oil Industry Commission; Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, as chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission; Armand Fabella, as chairman of the Commission on Reorganization; Gerardo Sicat, as member of the board of regents of the University of the Philippines; and Gen. Felizardo Tanabe (ret.), as postmaster general.

May 24—

THE President devoted almost another day to desk work.

He received one group of callers only, composed of town and barrio officials of Nueva Vizcaya who accompanied Mayor Osias Cadiente of Solano in filing charges of oppression and misconduct in office against Nueva Vizcaya Gov. Patricio G. Dumlao.

The President referred the charges of the Solano mayor to Justice

Secretary Vicente Abad Santos with orders to see if there is a prima facie case to warrant the preventive suspension of the governor pending investigation of the charges as petitioned by Mayor Cadiente.

May 25—

THE President was closeted most of the time in his study even as he continued disposing of urgent official papers.

Among other actions, the President signed and submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of three persons to posts in the government.

The President has to lay aside his desk work occasionally to attend to a few unscheduled callers.

President's Week in Review: May 26 - June 1, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

May 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was guest of honor at the formal opening of the Provincial Agro-Industrial Fair in Malolos, Bulacan.

The President arrived at the provincial capitol in Malolos at 9:30 a.m. aboard an army helicopter, and was met by various delegations headed by Gov. Ignacio Santiago, Rep. Teodulo Natividad and Malolos Mayor Purificacion C. Reyes.

In his remarks, the President described Bulacan as one of the most progressive provinces. It should therefore assume a more energetic and more aggressive role in national development, he said.

The President bared plans to make the province a model for cooperatives to be organized, as well as the hub of a modern land-air-sea transportation network serving the whole country.

At the same time, the President directed Commerce Secretary and concurrently Chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr. to suspend the effectivity of the increase in domestic air fares pending a public hearing.

The President also reiterated his determination to pursue more vigorously the land reform program provided Congress appropriated the necessary funds therefor.

He likewise pointed out that the formation of cooperatives and not land distribution is the answer to the poor farmers' problems.

After addressing the crowd, the President formally opened the temporary pavilion housing the exhibits containing the products of every town of the province.

After a brief interview by newsmen, the President flew back to Manila.

In the afternoon, he worked at his desk. He issued, among others, a proclamation declaring June 1 (Thursday) as a special public holiday in Makati, Rizal.

May 27—

THE PRESIDENT devoted the whole day to paper work and other matters of state.

Among other actions, he designated the Philippine delegation to attend the United Nations conference on human environment which will be held in Stockholm from June 5 to 16.

Senator Helena Z. Benitez was named chairman of the delegation, and Ambassador Narciso G. Reyes, permanent representative to the UN, as vice-chairman.

May 28—

The PRESIDENT commended the officers and men of the Presidential Guard Battalion for their statesmanship and exemplary professional conduct in the performance of their duty.

The occasion was the 34th Foundation Day Anniversary of the battalion. Brig. Gen. Fabian Ver, PGB commander, conveyed the message of the President who, for the first time, was unable to attend the annual commemorative ceremonies because of the pressure of work.

May 29—

THE PRESIDENT was closeted in his private study the whole morning attending to urgent state matters.

In the afternoon, the President attended the Memorial Day services held at the Manila American Cemetery in Fort Bonifacio.

In his speech, the President reasserted his policy of self-reliance, saying it would not only assure the nation's preparedness but would also make the country more valuable to its allies "in the service of human freedom."

The President spoke of a rising feeling of maturity among the Filipinos which is taking the form of a reexamination of their relations with the whole world.

"Nowhere in Asia, and perhaps in other parts of the world, did a nation rise up so spontaneously and so bravely—sustained not only by love of country but also by its faith in a friend and ally, the United States of America."

The President was accorded full military honors upon his arrival in Fort Bonifacio at 4 p.m. He was welcomed at the memorial by U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade and other ranking American civilian officials in the Philippines.

May 30—

THE PRESIDENT received the letters of credence of Ambassador U Nyo Tun as the first resident envoy of the Union of Burma to the Philippines.

In receiving the credentials of Burmese envoy, the President expressed the view that the "seemingly elusive but universally cherished goal of world peace can be attained if all nations and peoples exert their utmost toward this end."

The President welcomed the decision of Burma to send a resident ambassador as "a positive indication of the strengthening of ties of goodwill and friendship that bind our two countries and peoples."

The new Burmese envoy pledged to "spare no effort" in promoting friendly relations between his country and the Philippines, and was assured by the President of the full and continued support of the Filipino people in this endeavor.

Following the presentation ceremony, the President received out-going Ambassador Yaacob Avnon of Israel who came to say goodbye before leaving for his home office for reassignment, after completing his tour of duty here.

Among those present at the ceremony were Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Cesar E. A. Virata of Finance, Constancio Castañeda of General Services, Blas F. Ople of Labor, Conrado Estrella of Agrarian Reform and Clemente Gatmaitan of Health; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Manuel Collantes.

May 31—

THE PRESIDENT certified to Congress three vital measures for consideration during the current special session;

Certified by the President to both the Senate and the House were:

- 1) H. Bill No. 4317 seeking to revise the charter of the Foreign Trade Zone Authority.
- 2) H. Bill No. 4753 (S. 844) seeking to provide additional funding for the accelerated implementation of the Agrarian Reform Program.
- 3) H. Bill No. 2691 requiring the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office to grant blind sweepstakes ticket agents an additional five percent discount on ticket purchases, on top of the regular 22% discount.

In the course of his work on urgent state business, the President also signed into law H. Bill No. 4716 (S. 862) which is expected to boost the Philippine metals industry.

In signing the measure into law, the President said that the metals industry is “very vital to our economic development because it is a foundational industry and without it is impossible to plan for industrialization.”

The President expressed the hope that with the upgrading of technology, which will be developed by the proposed metals industry center, “we shall meet all challenges in economic development and overcome all our obstacles.”

Present at the signing of the new law are Senator Mamintal Tamano, Rep. Lucas Cauton of Ilocos Sur, and members of the MIDC staff and the private sector who are members of the advisory committee.

June 1—

THE PRESIDENT submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 12 persons, 10 of which were to positions in the judiciary.

In the afternoon, the President motored to Fort Bonifacio, Rizal to address the graduates of the Fourth Regular Course of the AFP Command and General Staff College.

In his speech, the President called for a new breed of leaders to enable the country to cope with the emerging strange and alien world of tomorrow. He expressed the hope that they will form the hard core of national leadership in order to be able to attain the urgent goal of self-reliance.

On the economic front, the President said: “Nations are already exploring new ways to carry on international trade on a novel basis, no longer on the basis of the dollar but by means of a more flexible system, which would obviate the wrenching fluctuations of foreign exchange rates when speculation in gold gets out of hand.”

On the social scene, the President pointed to such problems as ecology and environment, “things we had never even given a thought to only ten years ago.”

“We can no longer depend on the old certainty of powerful allies coming to our aid in time of peril, nor trust our destiny to the magnanimity of allies, nor to concerted action of the family of nations,” the President emphasized.

The President said the world is changing so fast our allies may not be able to come to our aid, there may never be a gathering of allies, nor a spontaneous response to a country in distress by its friends.

Present at the graduation rites were military top brass from both the AFP and the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group, headed by Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, General Romeo Espino, chief of staff; Col. Antonio S. Sepulan, and Col. Ernesto S. Gidaya, commandant.

The President arrived at Fort Bonifacio at 4:15 or 15 minutes behind schedule, because he was at the bedside of the First Lady, who was suffering severe pains and needed hospitalization.

After staying for 15 minutes at the reception, the President motored back to Pier 15 to be with Mrs. Marcos.

President's Week in Review: June 2-8, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS worked at his desk aboard RPS Ang Pangulo even as he kept the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, company. Mrs. Marcos had been having spotting (mild bleeding) the past two days.

The President had to forego with one scheduled engagement, at the send-off ceremony of the RPS Mactan prior to its departure for Australia. He instead sent Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. as his representative.

The 7500-ton ship has for its primary mission the picking up of 4000 of the 7500 tons of wheat flour donated by the Australian government as aid to refugees in Mindanao. Because the vessel would "sail down" with no significant load, it was decided that it be commissioned to carry a cargo of Philippine products for a Philippine Trading House in Sydney, which would serve as display center for Philippine goods. Hence the send-off rites.

In the course of the day, the President directed that a feasibility study be undertaken on large-scale salt-making, utilizing geothermal energy.

June 3—

THE PRESIDENT had one of those setbacks in life, when the First Lady suffered an abortion at about 1 a.m. aboard RPS Ang Pangulo, where the First Lady has been staying since early May.

At 7 a.m., the President and Dr. Gloria Aragon, Mrs. Marcos attending obstetrician, took the First Lady to the Makati Medical Center where under general anaesthesia she underwent completion of abortion by curettage.

He worked on urgent matters of state, even as he kept the First Lady company at the hospital.

June 4—

THE PRESIDENT issued an executive order classifying the entry of foreign correspondents into the Philippines under the category of temporary visitors.

The President classified, for the guidance of all government agencies concerned, the entry of foreign correspondents, and their families, into the Philippines as falling exclusively under the category of temporary visitors as provided for in Section 9(a) of the Philippine Immigration Act of 1940, as amended.

The President stayed the whole day at the Makati Medical Center where the First Lady underwent completion of abortion by curettage.

In the course of the day, the President, among others, addressed a letter to Constitutional Convention President Diosdado Macapagal who had asked in a letter released to the media, that the President and the First Lady declare publicly that they would retire from active political life at the end of 1973.

In his letter, which was also released directly to the media as a means of getting it to the president of the Constitutional Convention, the President said:

"You are well aware of the fact that under our present Constitution, I am disallowed from running for the Presidency after 1973, and I have repeatedly stated in the past, and I state it once again now, that I have no intention whatsoever of running for the Presidency in 1973."

Speaking for the First Lady, the President said that “she has no intention of running for the Presidency in 1973,” adding that “the First Lady and I have stated this repeatedly in writing, in interviews with media and in public statements. Unfortunately you and others have seen it fit to disregard these statements and believe only what you have chosen to believe.”

Continuing, the President said:

“I do not know what your real motives are, inasmuch as I cannot see the connection between the matter of our candidacy or non-candidacy and the function of the convention. But I have one appeal to make. I now appeal to you to perform your duties at the convention, irrespective of any views that have been or will be expressed from any source, including myself.”

June 5—

THE PRESIDENT took Mrs. Marcos home at 11 a.m. after the First Lady was allowed to leave the Makati Medical Center upon her request.

After making sure that Mrs. Marcos was resting well following the short trip from the hospital to the Palace, the President resumed his desk work.

June 6—

THE PRESIDENT presided at a meeting in the morning of the executive committee of the National Security Council, which was called to finalized preparations for the meeting of the National Security Council.

Present at the meeting were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata, Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, and Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., members; and Isabelo Castro, secretary of the committee; Senator Jose J. Roy, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Defense Undersecretary Jose M. Crisol, General Romeo Espino, chief of staff, AFP; Director Jolly Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation; Brig. Gen. Jonas Victoria, chief of the National Civil Defense Administration; Brig. Gen. Ismael Lapuz, chief of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency; and Brig. Gen. Ignacio Paz, chief of the Intelligence Service of the AFP.

The President devoted the whole afternoon and early evening to paper work.

June 7—

THE PRESIDENT had a full schedule of callers, which kept him at his study the whole morning and early afternoon.

Notable among those received by the President were Ambassador Werner Sauter, non-resident envoy of Austria to the Philippines, who paid him a farewell call, and National Commander John H. Geiger of the American Legion, who called to pay his respects.

During their brief conversation, Ambassador Sauter informed the President that Philippine exports to Austria had tripled the past few years.

The Austrian envoy also expressed the view that trade relations between Austria and the Philippines would continue to expand, especially after the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Philippines and Eastern European socialist countries.

The bulk of the President's callers was composed of members of Congress and local executives who consulted him on matters concerning their respective constituencies.

The President attended to his callers till 3 p.m. He then had a late lunch and a brief rest before working on urgent official papers in his private study.

June 8—

THE PRESIDENT had a two-hour conference with public works and communications official led by Secretary David Consunji to find out how the drive against graft and corruption in their offices was progressing.

The President prodded the officials to intensify the drive by weeding out the grafters, especially in the Bureau of Posts and the Land Transportation Commission.

During the conference, the President also ordered the public works officials to coordinate closely to hasten the completion of vital government projects, such as the Pan Philippine Highway.

Be likewise directed:

- 1) Secretary Consunji to assume tighter supervision over the bureau heads, and the bureau chiefs to coordinate more closely with the department secretary and the other bureau chiefs.
- 2) The release of ₱2 million for the dredging of esteros as a measure of flood control during the rainy season.
- 3) CAA Acting Director Epifanio Raymundo to act faster on emergency matters, particularly complaints coming from the international pilots and international organizations like the PATA and the IATA.
- 4) Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor to earmark 200 of the 500 jeeps coming from Okinawa for the National Electrification Administration for the Bureau of Posts which has only 200 delivery vehicles, and the Bureau of Posts to set up an efficient workshop to service its vehicles.

Present at the conference, aside from Secretaries Consunji and Melchor, were Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, Land Transportation Commissioner Romeo Edu, Reparations Commission Chairman Anacleto Mangaser, PACD Officer-in-Charge Rosendo Marquez, Postmaster General Felizardo Tanabe, Telecommunications Director Pedro Villaseñor and Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña.

Following the conference, the President received the top forestry officials of Indonesia who paid their respects to him shortly before flying to Tokyo and Seoul on a survey trip.

Headed by Forestry Director General Soedjarwo, the Indonesian forestry officials visited Davao, Bislig, and the U.P. College of Forestry in Los Baños.

The other Indonesian visitors were Ir. Moh. Sunarjo Hardjodarsono, director of forestry exploitation and industry; Ir. Moh. Sadikin Djajapertjunda, director of marketing; and Ir. Moh. Harris Suranggajuva, director of forest product research institute.

They were accompanied to Malacañang by Forestry Director Jose Viado and Indonesian Ambassador Kusno Utomo.

The President worked on official papers in the afternoon, in the course of which he granted executive clemency to the first batch of 218 deserving prisoners in connection with the celebration of the 74th anniversary of Philippine Independence.

President's Week in Review: June 9-15, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presided over a meeting of the National Security Council, held from 8:45 to 11:15 a.m. at Camp Aguinaldo, during which the council voted to negotiate not only the Military Bases Agreement but all existing security and economic agreements with the United States.

These include the mutual defense and the military assistance pacts and the Laurel-Langley Agreement.

Representatives of the Liberal Party made reservations about their stand as to whether negotiations on the security agreement should be held simultaneously with the economic agreements. They wanted time to form a party stand on the matter.

During the meeting, it was also:

1) Decided to increase the membership of the Executive Committee of the NSC from five to 11, including two additional members of the Cabinet and one representative each of the majority and minority parties, from the Senate and the Lower House.

2) Suggested that missions to be sent to communist countries like Russia and Red China be Executive-Legislative missions. The executive committee was asked to draw formal recommendations on this, particularly in respect to timing and its full composition.

The President did not receive callers in the afternoon. He worked on state papers and went over reports from government agencies, including one from Engr. Porfirio de la Fuente, chief of the Flood Control and Drainage Division of the Bureau of Public Works, on the dredging of esteros and drainage mains in Manila.

June 10—

THE PRESIDENT received a few callers in the morning even as he attended to some urgent official papers in between.

Among those who called on the President were:

1) The cadet officers corps of the Philippine Military Academy who renewed their pledge of loyalty to their commander-in-chief.

The PMA cadets, who were accompanied by Commodore Gregorio Lim, PMA superintendent, arrived in Manila to participate in the Independence Day celebration.

In brief remarks, the President enjoined the PMA cadets to pledge anew their loyalty to the Constitution and to the democratic institution to which they belong.

They were accompanied to the President by NICA Chief Ismael Lapuz, their host while in Manila; and Chinese Ambassador Liu Chai.

June 11—

THE PRESIDENT was not able to attend two speaking engagements because of a mild case of intestinal influenza.

He requested Senate President Gil J. Puyat to represent him at the presentation of the Presidential Medals of Merit, sponsored by the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines in connection with the celebration of Independence Day, held at the Maharlika Hall in the morning.

Defense Undersecretary Jose Crisol represented him at the 27th Annual Convention of the Philippine Veterans Legion, held at the YMCA Youth Center.

Presented the Presidential Medals of Merit were the International Rice Research Institute in Los Baños, Laguna, which was cited for its scientific and technological breakthrough in rice production; the family of Justice and Mrs. Jose P. Bengzon, distinguished family life; Servando de los Angeles (posthumous) cultural advancement; Belen Arguelles, cultural advancement; Jose Esperanza Cruz, humanities; Manuel Elizalde, Jr., economic development; Julita Sotejo, nursing education; Association of American College Women, education; Heirs of Carlos Palanca, Sr., literature; and YMCA of Greater Manila, community service.

The President acted on some official papers in the afternoon, including those on the grant of executive clemency to another batch of 179 prisoners in connection with the celebration of the 74th anniversary of Independence Day.

June 12—

THE PRESIDENT, who was still indisposed, failed to attend the Independence Day programs.

He was represented instead by Vice President Fernando Lopez at the Luneta rites in the morning, and by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal at the presentation of the 1972 Republic Cultural Heritage Awards to citizens who have distinguished themselves in their chosen fields, at ceremonies held at the Cultural Center of the Philippines in the afternoon.

In the speech read for him by Vice President Lopez, the President said independence would be meaningless unless the people have successfully declared themselves fully liberated from foreign influence and control. (See pp. 4948-4952 for full text of the President's speech)

In the speech read for him-by Speaker Villareal, the President said that there are "architects of alienation" in some quarters of the Philippine body politic, wilfully distorting and confusing the issues of the day by putting the blame for all ills—real or imagined—only upon those mandated by the masses to lead the nation.

The Republic Cultural Heritage awardees were Carlos Quirino, historical writing; Wilfrido Ma. Guerrero, literature; Dr. Gregorio T. Velasquez, Florencio A. Medina, and Tomas L. Parpana, science, scientific research, invention and technology; Dean Alfredo Santos Buenaventura, music; Roberto R. Chabet, painting and sculpture; Pablo S. Antonio, architecture; Manuel E. Arguilla, literature (posthumous), and Dr. Antonio Molina, music.

In his Independence Day message released earlier, the President said:

We celebrate our Independence Day today at a time when mankind is dedicated to a new effort towards greater peace and progress.

Old divisions and confrontations are giving way to new friendships and cooperation, and new agreements are being forged to unify the efforts of man to bringing an end to the problems that have plagued mankind through the ages.

The Filipino nation cannot stand indifferent to these efforts. By tradition and by character, the Filipino nation cannot but feel involved in this monumental task.

But while we, as a nation and as a people, may find it easy to identify ourselves with the efforts of other men and nations to bridge gaps of misunderstanding and discord, it would now be necessary for us to look into ourselves and see how once and for all we can bridge those gaps that exist among ourselves.

At a crucial time like this, we need our country and our people to re-examine our internal self and find out how each of us can work to strengthen this national self. There are those who would like us to believe that we need to propagate the seed of hate that has been sown those who have lost hope and faith; the very meaning of independence and nationhood, however, negates and rejects this.

Independence means faith in our people's capacity to bear their burdens and carry on with their tasks; a battlecry against pessimism and defeat; a flag raised for national brotherhood, common effort and progress.

On this occasion, therefore, I invite our people to reflect on those values, from which derive our greatest strength.

June 13—

THE PRESIDENT, feeling a little bit better, conferred with Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing on the full-scale implementation of the flood control program in Manila and environs.

The President and the Mayor agreed on the immediate implementation of the following projects:

- 1) The Marikina-Mangahan channel to provide a passageway for the Marikina River water to Laguna de Bay, which otherwise would flood Manila and environs.
- 2) The Laguna de Bay-Pasig River Hydraulic lock, and
- 3) Pasig River embankment construction, dredging of esteros, and sewerage.

Among other actions, the President directed the Department of Commerce and Industry, the Department of Foreign Affairs and the Bureau of Travel and Tourist Industry to accelerate all their combined efforts in pushing the government's exports promotion drive.

The President singled out the establishment of a Philippine House in areas where the Philippines suffers an imbalance in trade. This include Australia, West Germany, Canada, Singapore, Japan and Hongkong.

The President likewise directed:

- 1) The Secretary of Commerce, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, the Commissioner; of Customs, the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the general manager of the Manila International Airport to expedite the establishment of an enlarged tax-free store at the MIA to serve tourists;
- 2) The Secretary of Commerce to exert every effort to make full utilization of commercial attaches abroad.

The President observed that economic reporting from these attaches has been below standard.

June 14—

THE PRESIDENT motored to the Libingan Ng Mga Bayani in Fort Bonifacio where he heard a Mass said at the tomb of the late President Carlos P. Garcia, and later laid a wreath at the foot of the tomb of the Unknown Soldier to usher in the celebration of Bessang Pass Day.

Among those who attended the Mass were Vice President Fernando Lopez, former President and President of the Constitutional Convention and Mrs. Diosdado Macapagal, and other ranking government and military officials.

Following the Mass, the President addressed his comrades in the USAFIP-NL whom he rallied to lead in reviving national unity and comradeship which existed during the war and which has been completely forgotten by a “sick society.”

The President recalled that during the war, no matter how lowly a soldier was, nobody asked him questions before helping him, rather people carried him when he was wounded, and fought for him when he was incapacitated.

“Today,” he said, “we have forgotten the urgency and the need for brotherhood when the need for brotherhood is still there.”

The President said that the celebration of the day was not so much to remember the achievements of the past as to lay the foundation for present and future achievements.

He reiterated his intention to set aside 100,000 hectares of forest land to be developed by a private corporation and which will form the economic arm for veterans and army retirees.

After delivering his address, the President motored to Camp Aguinaldo where he unveiled the marker of the AFP museum, formally opening it to the public. He stayed for about 30 minutes to view the various exhibits which included a mock-up of Bessang Pass showing troop dispositions, and then proceeded to the Base Shop where he saw several pieces of heavy equipment undergoing repair and overhauling.

The President was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Antonio Tamayo, commanding general of the AFP Supply Center, and Tancred Guray, director of the National Development Company and a fellow member of the USAFIP-NL.

Also present at the ceremonies were Reps. Joaquin Ortega of La Union and Lucas Cauton of Ilocos Sur, and ranking officials of the USAFIP-NL.

Back in Malacañang shortly before noon, the President met with key government officials during which they reviewed the schedule of priority projects for presentation before the Consultative Group meeting in Japan, and discussed possible sources of peso counterpart funds needed by the Philippine government in order to avail of additional assistance from the Consultative Group members.

Present at the meeting were Finance Secretary Cesar Virata who headed the Philippine delegation to the 1971 Consultative Group meeting in Paris and who was also slated to lead the country’s delegation to the meeting of the group in Tokyo; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Public Works Secretary David Consunji, Agriculture Secretary Arturo Tanco, Jr., NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, BOI Chairman Vicente Paterno, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, PES Deputy Director-General Antonio Locsin, Director Gabriel Itchon of the External Debt Management Office of the Central Bank, NIA Administrator Alfredo Junio, Director Carlos Leano of the Infrastructure Operations Center, and Minister Wilfredo Vega of the Department of Foreign Affairs.

THE PRESIDENT met at luncheon with provincial governors, city mayors, Cabinet members, and heads of government agencies, during which he called for closer coordination and mutual help between local and national officials in the interest of the general welfare.

The President stressed that a regular meeting among local and national officials could “lay the basis for rectification and correction of any governmental malfunction arising from non-cooperation and lack of coordination.”

He emphasized that programs and plans must be systematically organized by each province and city so that funds could be released on a national scale.

The President explained that “planning is the basic staff for any kind of activity and unless we plan and prepare such objectives, we will always be lopsided in our efforts to accelerate economic, social, and political development.”

Among those who attended were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries David Consunji of Public Works and Communications, Troadio Quiazon, Jr. of Commerce and Industry, Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Clemente Gatmaitan of Health, Arturo Tanco, Jr. of Agriculture and Natural Resources, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Estefania Aldaba-Lim of Social Welfare, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, NEC Chairman Gerardo Sicat, and DBP Governor Leonides Virata.

Earlier in the morning, the President received the members of the Barangay Dance Troupe who paid him a courtesy call following their arrival from Australia where they fulfilled a 100-day engagement. The troupe performed in South Australia, Tasmania and Queensland. Mrs. Paz Cielo Belmonte, directress, told the President that “we feel we had done much for our country through music, songs and dances.” The President congratulated the members of the troupe and expressed the hope that they will keep up the good work.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 16—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred in the morning with the mayors of Lanao del Sur and Lanao del Norte on the peace and order situation in the two provinces.

The President warned the Lanao mayors of the presence of communists in their localities, who had reportedly already infiltrated the ranks of both the Ilagas and Muslim organizations.

The local executives, accompanied by Reps. Macacuna Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte and Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Sur, called at Malacañang to renew their pledge of loyalty to the President and the government.

The President deplored the effort of international media "to interpret the fighting in Mindanao between the Muslims and the Ilagas as an attempt to crush political opposition and eradicate the Muslims who, in turn, are utilizing the fighting to attain their selfish ends."

He assured the Muslim leaders that "we are trying to settle the differences between the leadership and the local groups so that the Muslim leadership will be united."

Among those who called on the President were the mayors of Bacolod, Saguiran, Binidayang, Tugaya Tuburan, Madamba, Tarakan, Bayang, Ragain, Piagapoc, Lumbatan; Masiu, Bubong, Pualas, Balindong, Lumba, Tamparan, Monay, Baloy, and Marawi City; former Governor Linang Mandangan, and Brig. Gen. Mamarinta Lao.

Among other callers were the officers of the Confederation of Land Reform Farmers of the Philippines headed by Mac Fabian, whom he inducted into office; and the members of the Southeast Asia Agrarian Reform Study Tour headed by Secretary Conrado F. Estrella of Agrarian Reforms, who paid him a courtesy call.

The group was composed of Vice Minister of Land Reform and Agriculture and Fishery Nguyen Thanh Qui of Vietnam, Director-General R. Soebiantoro of Transmigration of Indonesia, Land Reform Commissioner P. S. Appu of India, Land Commissioner K. N. Weerachody of Ceylon, Director C. Narayanasamy of Agrarian Research and Training of Ceylon, Director Khamaruzzanan Bin Abdul Halim of Management Services of Malaysia; Associate Director Sein Lin of John C. Lincoln Institute; and A. N. Seth, regional rural institutions officer of the FAO Regional Office in Bangkok.

In the afternoon, the President worked on official papers and went over reports from government agencies, including that of Acting Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan, who assured him that all precautionary measures were being taken to prevent the outbreak of diseases in evacuation areas in Zamboanga del Sur.

June 17—

THE PRESIDENT devoted the whole morning disposing of urgent, official papers preparatory to leaving for the South to assess the peace and order situation in the region.

Because of the pressure of desk work, the President was not able to fulfill two speaking engagements. He sent Defense Undersecretary Manuel Salientes to deliver his message for the 27th Annual Convention of the Philippine Veterans Legion, held at the GSIS Social Hall; and Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor to the graduation exercises of the Narcotics Course, conducted by the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs at Fort Bonifacio.

Among the papers that issued from his desk was a proclamation declaring June 19 a special public holiday in Laguna and San Pablo City. The day marks the 112th birth anniversary of Dr. Jose Rizal.

At 2 p.m., the President, together with the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, motored to Pier 15 at the South Harbor where he boarded the RPS Ang Pangulo for the trip to the Visayas and Mindanao.

Before sailing, however, the President wrote a letter to Senate President Gil J. Puyat on the funding of the Constitutional Convention beyond June 30.

In his letter the President pointed to the necessity of approving a special appropriation act, which has been passed by the House of Representatives, and pending in the Senate, to enable the Convention to function beyond June 30.

June 18—

THE PRESIDENT, while en route to Leyte, worked on state papers in his cabin the whole morning and early afternoon.

Among other actions, the President signed and submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 11 individuals to the judiciary.

He likewise designated eight government officials and private individuals to various posts in the government.

The President and the First Lady landed at 5 p.m. at the Tacloban pier. A big crowd of welcomers led by Gov. Benjamin Romualdez met them on their arrival.

From the pier, the First Couple motored to the Romualdez resthouse in Barrio Olot, Tolosa, where they usually stay while in Leyte.

June 19—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady had a reunion with their families in Tolosa where the latter attended the symbolic interment early in the evening of the unborn child of the First Couple.

Assisted by the First Lady, the President deposited the foetal remains in a nich on the earth at the Romualdez family plot in Tolosa.

Inscribed on the marble slab marking the grave were the words: "To our unborn child, with whom so many of our dreams died Ferdinand and Imelda"

In the box was a bottle containing the "product of conception," which the First Couple had lost through the First Lady's miscarriage.

Prior to the interment, a "Mass for the Angels" was said by Msgr. Manuel Salvador, bishop of Palo, Leyte with the little white box placed at the altar.

Present at the rites were the President's mother, Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, his brother Dr. Pacifico Marcos and sisters Gov. Elizabeth Marcos-Keon and Mrs Fortunata Marcos-Barba and her husband. On the Romualdez side were the brothers and sisters of the First Lady, namely, Gov. Benjamin Romualdez, Mrs. Alita Romualdez Martel, Mrs. Conchita Romualdez Yap and Navy Lt. Alfredo Romualdez.

Earlier in the day, the President and the First Lady attended the formal turnover and the cornerstone laying, ceremonies of the plant of the Leyte Cooperative, Inc. at Barrio San Roque, also in Tolosa.

The plant site, a one hectare piece of land, was donated by the Romualdez Family,

The President laid the cornerstone of the electric plant, while the First Lady signed as witness to the turnover by the National Electrification Administration of electric generators to the Leyte Electric Cooperative, Inc.

Consisting of 10 General Motors generators with a capacity of 400,000 kva, the electric plant could serve some 100,000 people in 10 towns.

The generators were procured by the NEA from the United States stockpile in Okinawa, and were turned over to Gov. Romualdez by NEA Chairman Ramon Ravanzo.

June 20—

THE PRESIDENT had a series of conferences at the Romualdez resthouse in Tolosa with national and local officials, mostly on urgent public works projects and health programs of the government.

Among those who met with the President were Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, Acting Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan, Medicare Chairman Pacifico Marcos, Public Works Director Alejandro Belena, Rep. Nicanor Yñiguez and local executive of Leyte, and Ilocos Norte Gov. Elizabeth Marcos-Keon.

Commissioner Aquino and Director Delena reported to the President on the status of on-going projects, including the putting up of school-buildings while Secretary Gatmaitan and Chairman Marcos discussed with the Chief Executive the health needs of the country.

In the course of his meeting with the public works officials, the President:

- 1) Ordered the organized distribution of 10,000 schoolbuildings all over the country until the end of Fiscal Year 1973;
- 2) Directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-changco to release ₱10 million for the construction and repair of access roads which link outlying areas to centers of population;
- 3) Instructed Fisheries Commissioner Andres Mane to intensify the seeding of lakes and rivers throughout the country as a means of meeting the increasing requirements for fish products;
- 4) Called for the establishment of ice cold storage in places where power has been made available through the rural electric cooperatives;
- 5) Ordered Animal Industry Director Pedro Refuerzo to review and improve the methods of the cattle dispersal program by considering the setting up of dairy farms to offset the country's importation of milk products.

In his meeting with Secretary Gatmaitan and Chairman Marcos, the President directed the two officials to coordinate in administering to the health needs of the people.

In the afternoon, the President sailed for Cagayan de Oro City for the first of several conferences on the peace and order situation in Mindanao.

June 21—

THE PRESIDENT, together with the First Lady, arrived at Cagayan de Oro City on board the RPS Ang Pangulo. A big crowd accorded the First Couple an enthusiastic welcome on their arrival at the pier.

Following the military honors at the wharf, the President motored to Camp Evangelista where he was given a briefing by the military.

The President was informed by the military officials that the peace and order situation in northern Mindanao has somewhat stabilized, but he nevertheless directed them to exert more aggressive intelligence efforts against infiltration of hostile elements.

The one-and-a-half-hour briefing was conducted by Brig. Gen. Antonio Venades, Task Force Pagkakaisa commander, and Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion, Fourth PC Zone commander.

Also present were Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Senator Emmanuel Pelaez, Reps. Ali Dimaporo of Lanao del Norte and Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur, Governors Tarhata Alonto Lucman of Lanao del Norte, Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato, and Concordio Diel of Misamis Oriental, Mayor Reuben Canoy of Cagayan de Oro City, Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, PAF chief; Commodore Hilario M. Ruiz, PN flag-officer-in-command; and Brig. Gen. Bienvenido Castro, Task Force Pagari commander.

The President had an interview with newsmen after the briefing and then proceeded to the capitol building for a conference with national, provincial, city and municipal officials.

He emphasized to them that the key to the solution of the nation's problems is production. He also said he was happy to find that the military, with the cooperation of the civilian authorities, had been able to normalize the situation in the Cotabato and Lanao provinces.

Following his meeting with the civilian officials, the President set sail for Zamboanga City for the continuation of his on-the-spot assessment of the situation in the South.

June 22—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady arrived in Zamboanga City at 10 a.m. on board RPS Ang Pangulo following an overnight voyage from Cagayan de Oro City.

After the usual honors at the pier where enthusiastic welcomers met them, the President motored to the Southwest Command (SOWES COM) headquarters for the briefing.

In the course of the open briefing by military and local officials, the President issued an order banning completely the carrying of firearms in Zamboanga del Sur and in the cities of Zamboanga, Basilan and Pagadian even by those holding permits to carry firearms outside residence.

Under the ban, only peace officers and members of the Armed Forces who can carry firearms under the rules and regulations may do so outside residence. Even those in uniform but without mission orders may not carry firearms outside the camp, bivouac area or headquarters in said province and cities.

As complementary measures, the President directed Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, PC chief; to study the establishment of BSDU-type units in all areas where there are threats to peace, and the local officials to submit to the PC chief requests for loan and purchase of firearms for their respective police forces for study.

Among those present at the briefing conducted by SOWESCOM chief Capt. Alejandro Castillo and Brig. Gen. Wilfredo Encarnacion, Fourth PC Zone commander, at the Pastor Bonus Seminary in Barrio Calarian, were Senators Emmanuel Pelaez and Mamintal Tamano, Reps. Indanan Anni of Sulu, Felipe Ascuna of Zamboanga del Norte and Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur; CNI Commissioner Mama Sinsuat, Mayor Joaquin Enrique, Jr., Governor Jose L. Tecson, and all mayors of Zamboanga del Sur.

Following the briefing which lasted up to 2 p.m., the President inducted the new set of officials of the MINSUPALA, namely: Senator Tamano, president; Senator Pelaez, chairman of the advisory council; Delegate Teodoro Donato, executive vice president; Commissioner Rolando Geotina, treasurer; Reps. Indanan Anni of Sulu, Lorenzo Sarmiento of Davao del Norte and Guillermo Sanchez of Agusan del Norte; and Commissioner Mama Sinsuat, board members.

Later in the afternoon, the President and the First Lady sailed for Cebu.

President's Week in Review: June 23-29, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

June 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, while en route to Cebu City on the third leg of his inspection tour of the Visayas and Mindanao, gave a resume of his conferences with military and civilian officials of Cagayan de Oro and Zamboanga on the peace and order situation in the area.

The President told newsmen covering him that, among others, there was a widespread Ilaga movement in the region which had cause both related and unrelated violence in arson, pillage, murder and assassination.

He likewise explained that while it was possible there was no Ilaga syndicate, Ilaga organizers from Cotabato had spread the movement to Lanao in 1971 and to Zamboanga del Sur and Zamboanga del Norte.

The President, accompanied by the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, arrived in Cebu City at 1 p.m. aboard RPS Ang Pangulo and were given a tumultuous welcome by some 20,000 people, complete with giant streamers, placards and brass bands. Heading the welcomers was Mayor Sergio Osmeña, Jr.

From the wharf the President motored to the III PC Zone headquarters for a four-hour military briefing, during which he directed the military intelligence to employ more aggressive efforts, particularly against subversion, communism and insurgency.

After the military briefing, the President proceeded to the social hall to confer with local executives and national, provincial, city and municipal officials on local problems.

He forged an agreement between Mayor Osmeña and his chief of police, Abundio Gultiano, by proposing that the police force of the city be cleaned of misfits and undesirables.

The President also warned the League of Municipal Mayors of Cebu against the inroads of communism and enjoined them to forget politics and work in unity for the welfare of the public.

Following his meeting with the local officials, the President boarded the presidential yacht for his return trip to Manila via Pasacao, Camarines Sur, where he was scheduled to be given a briefing also by the military on the peace and order situation in the Bicol region.

June 24—

THE PRESIDENT conferred with civilian and military officials of the Bicol region aboard the RPS Ang Pangulo, which anchored off Pasacao, Camarines Norte at 10 a.m. after an overnight voyage from Cebu.

At the conference were provincial, municipal and barrio officials of Sorsogon, Albay, Camarines Sur, and Camarines Norte; Major Gen. Rafael Ileta, acting AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Guillermo A. Pecache, deputy chief of staff for home defense; Brig. Gen. Fidel Ventura, chief of the AFP engineer corps; and the chiefs of the major services and provincial commanders of the region.

In the course of the conference, the President directed the strengthening of Task Force "Bulusan" which has launched an intensified military operation against dissidents in the area. He likewise ordered the reinforcement of the civic action arm of the task force and the stepping-up of civic action work in the region.

“It has always been the policy of this administration that military operations against subversion should go hand in hand with civic action,” the President said. “There can be no security without development and no development without security.”

The President impressed upon the conferees, who were brought by motor launches to the RPS Ang Pangulo anchored some 700 meters from Pasacao in Ragay Gulf, of the gravity of the nation’s security problems, the solution of which, he said, requires the participation of everyone, irrespective of party persuasions.

Col. Cipriano Ramiro, Jr., commander of TF “Bulusan,” who conducted the briefing, reported that dissidents in the Bicol peninsula were estimated at about 100 armed regulars, 300 combat support units and another 300 support service units.

The affected areas where they had mounted intensified operations, Col. Ramiro said, were Tigaon, Ocampo, Sañgay, Buhi and Goa in Camarines Sur; Polangue, Libon, Tiwi and Tabaco in Albay; and Irosin in Sorsogon. Also affected, he said, were the cities of Naga and Iriga.

After the briefings, the President heard some of the pressing problems presented to him by local officials, among whom were Reps. Fernando Pajarillo of Camarines Norte, Felix Fuentesbella of Camarines Sur, Amando Cope and Roberto Sabido of Albay, Jose Alberto of Catanduanes and Rafael Aquino of Sorsogon; and Gov. Felix Alfelor of Camarines Sur.

Following the conference, the RPS Ang Pangulo discharged its guests and hurriedly left the area at 1 p.m. to head off typhoon “Konsing” which was then reported approaching from the western coast of Samar.

June 25—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady arrived in Manila early in the morning from Pasacao, Camarines Norte, the President’s last stop in his week-long tour of critical areas in the country.

Among his first acts upon arrival at Malacañang was to mobilize national government agencies to help in the evacuation of, and relief operations for, the victims of typhoon “Konsing.”

He directed:

- 1) The National Disaster Coordinating Center at Camp Aguinaldo to send survey teams to typhoon areas;
- 2) The armed forces to send out engineer reconnaissance units to look for roadblocks caused by fallen posts and trees and destroyed bridges, and to remove such roadblocks.
- 3) The Department of Social Welfare to send food, clothing and medicine to some 300 families who had been evacuated by the AFP from Isla Puting Bato in Tondo to safer places at the height of the typhoon.
- 4) The Department of Health to be on the lookout for possible outbreaks of epidemic.
- 5) The Department of Public Works to submit a report on damages to public works and infrastructures so that they could be repaired immediately.

The President attended to urgent paper work in the afternoon.

June 26—

THE PRESIDENT summoned Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., concurrent chairman of the Price Control Council, for a meeting at Malacañang on the question of sugar supply and prices.

During the conference, the President directed Secretary Quiazon to ensure the steady supply of sugar at regulated prices.

Also at the conference were Alfredo Montelibano, president of the Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources; and Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr..

The President did not receive other callers the whole day, even as he concentrated on urgent desk work.

While going over reports on the damage wrought by typhoon "Konsing," the President issued an order to the Government Service Insurance System to accelerate the payment of mid-year dividends amounting to P25 million, particularly to GSIS members in the affected areas.

He told GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr. to speed up the preparation of the checks in payment of the dividends, saying that member-employees who had suffered reverses brought about by the typhoon needed every assistance in rehabilitating their homes.

June 27—

THE PRESIDENT received callers in the morning, among whom were Ambassador and Mrs. Pablo Padilla Ramirez of Mexico who paid a farewell call prior to their departure for home.

The Mexican envoy, who arrived in the Philippines in October 1971 as his country's ambassador, has been designated by his government as director-general of the 100 percent Mexican-owned Asufera Pan Americana, a firm dealing on sulphur for fertilizers.

During the call, the President expressed the hope that the envoy and his wife had a wonderful stay in the country despite their less than a year tour of duty.

In the course of his work on official papers in the afternoon, the President issued Executive Order No. 397 extending the term of the Presidential Commission on Reorganization from July 1 to September 30, 1972.

The President deemed the extension of the Commission's operations necessary in view of the need for the Commission to undertake such informational activities to ensure wider understanding and support of the reorganization proposals.

He emphasized it was desirable to maintain the active involvement of the members of the reorganization body "in the consideration of the Integrated Reorganization Plan by Congress and in its eventual approval."

The President directed Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to issue the necessary directives to the other government agencies with personnel detailed to the Commission for the extension of their detail with the Commission.

June 28—

THE PRESIDENT had a 30-minute conversation with Dr. D. S. Savkar, director of the Asian Department of the International Monetary Fund, who called at Malacañang to pay his respects before leaving for his home office.

During the call, the President informed Dr. Savkar that the Philippines was expecting an increase in exports because of the incentives being given for the promotion of exports.

“We have listed down all the countries with whom we have a trade imbalance and all potential markets for our products,” the President said, “and we are moving aggressively and systematizing our local sources.”

The President was informed by Dr. Savkar that the adoption of the floating rate has helped create confidence and bring in foreign investments, that the Philippines can achieve from seven to eight percent increase in the rate of growth of the Gross National Product (GNP), and that the direction taken by the country in promoting its export trade was correct.

The IMF official was accompanied to the President by Central Bank Deputy Governor Amado Briñas.

Other callers received by the President included some members of Congress and local executives who discussed with him matters concerning their constituencies.

In the afternoon, the President motored to the Rizal Memorial Stadium where he was guest of honor and speaker at the closing ceremonies of the week-long “Palarong Pilipino.”

In his speech, the President exhorted Filipino athletes to concentrate on certain sports events where they, because of their physique, would not be at a disadvantage in international tournaments.

He expressed the belief that Filipino athletes can compare in skill and excellence with the best and the most renowned in the world.

The joint-sponsorship of the “Palarong Filipino” by the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation and the Sports Development Foundation of the Philippines, the President said, was a perfect example of how much an idea can be carried out.

June 29—

THE PRESIDENT had a crowded morning schedule, topped by a conference with representatives of the sugar industry, headed by Alfredo Montelibano, president of the Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Discussed during the conference was the question of increasing the minimum wages for the sugar industry workers to enable them to cope with the rise in prices of prime commodities.

Following the conference, the President ordered the Wage Commission to make an upward revision of the minimum wages for sugar industry workers by increasing the minimum wages from P4.75 to P6.50 daily for farm workers and from P8.00 to P10.00 for industrial workers.

The President likewise instructed the Price Control Council to submit complete data and statistics on the supply of domestic sugar and the effect of the proposed increases in wages on domestic sugar prices, in order to arrive at a realistic ceiling price for the commodity.

Present at the conference were Secretary of Commerce and Industry Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., concurrently chairman of the Price Control Council; Sugar Quota Administrator Jose Unson, Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr., PCC Director Maximo Belmonte, Nicanor Fuentes of the National Economic Council; and Alfredo Montelibano, Carlos Ledesma, Antonio Roxas-Chua and Eduardo de Luzurriaga, representing the sugar industry.

Toward noon, the President administered the oath of office to Justice Salvador Esguerra as associate justice of the Supreme Court.

Present at the oath-taking ceremony were members of the judiciary headed by Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos and Chief Justice Roberto Concepcion of the Supreme Court, and close friends and relatives of the inductee led by his wife, Mrs. Cosmedin Filler-Esguerra.

In the afternoon, the President closeted himself in his private study and worked on urgent official papers.

Among those who witnessed the signing were Reps. Jose Alberto, Rafael Aquino, and Constantino Navarro and Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief.

In the afternoon, the President directed Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release ₱350,000 to the Constitutional Convention in accordance with the policy to release as much fund as are available and which could be utilized by the Convention up to June 30, 1972.

The President also told Commissioner Sy-Changco that only ₱262,500 of the ₱5 million requested to be released to cover the proposed contract for the printing and binding of the Journal of the Convention shall be released because only this amount has been authorized for the printing of the Journal under Republic Act. No. 6427.

July 1—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady spent almost the whole day in Bulacan distributing truckloads of relief goods in 16 towns which were badly hit by typhoon Konsing.

The President accompanied the First Lady to be able to get a first hand knowledge of the extent of the typhoon damage.

The relief goods were presented as a birthday gift to the First Lady by members of the Cabinet, Undersecretaries, bureau directors and friends of Mrs. Marcos for distribution to victims of the typhoon.

The relief goods consist of GI sheets, construction materials, food, clothing and medicines. They were loaded in 31 trucks, some of which spread out to Sapang Palay, Carmona, and Camarines Sur, which were among the areas badly hit by the typhoon.

The President and the First Lady were back in Malacañang late in the afternoon.

The President spent the early evening disposing of urgent state papers.

July 2—

THE PRESIDENT helped the First Lady in receiving well-wishers who started arriving at Malacañang as early as 9 a.m. to greet her on her birthday.

Among the first to greet the First Lady were Mrs. Jose Edralin Marcos, mother of the President; Chief Justice Roberto Concepcion, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Mrs. Leonila D. Garcia, widow of the late President Garcia; Mrs. Gil. J. Puyat, wife of the Senate President; senators, representatives, justices of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals, members of the Cabinet and their ladies.

A Mass was said at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall for the occasion.

The First Couple then had lunch with the guests, and before the simple party broke up at 2 p.m. there was a mass singing of "Happy Birthday" led by the President.

The President attended to desk work later in the afternoon and early evening.

July 3—

THE PRESIDENT did not receive callers and concentrated instead on desk work.

The President buckled down to paper work shortly after breakfast, breaking off at past noon for lunch and a brief rest.

He resumed his work on official papers later in the afternoon.

July 4—

THE PRESIDENT continued focusing on state papers.

Except for a few officials of the executive departments, he did not receive any other callers.

In a message issued earlier on the observance of Filipino-American Friendship Day, the President said:

We observe Filipino-American Friendship Day today at a time when our two nations are in the midst of a re-examination of certain vital aspects of our historic ties.

Between Filipinos and Americans, there has existed for many decades now, the deepest of bonds that can possibly exist between two peoples. This has been made all the more meaningful by numerous bilateral agreements that have sought to put in a unified context the aspirations and individual efforts of our two nations.

Now, in this new and difficult time, there is need to put this historic friendship into a new context that takes into consideration our nation's steady march towards complete political and economic self-reliance. There is need to inject into it a new substance that cures it of all infirmities that may have been the cause of any perceived imbalance in our relationship.

This is not to say that Filipino-American friendship has won: by the years, or that it has been weakened by the complexities of modern relationship between evolving states. This is merely to say that after long years of working together in peace, Filipino-American friendship has acquired the sobriety, maturity and stability to allow us, Filipinos and Americans, to examine it in the cold light of our respective national interests and thereby find out how we make it respond more energetically to such interests with complete mutuality in every field.

July 5—

THE PRESIDENT issued an administrative order authorizing Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release funds to defray governmental operations expenses for July and August this year, equivalent to those authorized for the corresponding months in Fiscal Year 1972.

Although the President was optimistic that the proposed budget for FY 1973 would be passed during the special session of Congress he had to take this measure to insure the continuity of essential government services because under the law the government has no budget beginning July 1.

In his administrative order, the President authorized all heads of departments and chiefs of bureaus and offices of the national government, pending approval of the budget, to incur obligations for the two months against appropriations authorized in Republic Act No. 6400 (Appropriations Act of 1972) in an amount not exceeding two-thirds of total expenditures under EA 6400 for each such agency during the first quarter of FY 1972 (July, August, September), as well as to withdraw cash from the National Treasury, in no case exceeding the level of cash withdrawal authorized respectively for July and August 1971.

Present at the signing of the administrative order held at the President's study late in the afternoon, were Commissioner Sy-Changco and Deputy Commissioner Juan Agcaoili; Commissioner Epi Rey Pangramuyen, Executive Director Nicomedes Peña and Chief of Administrative Offices Aurora A. de Leon of the Civil Service Commission.

First among the President's crowded schedule of activities, was the Fifth Founding Anniversary ceremony of the Metropolitan Police Command of the Philippine Constabulary in Camp Crame, Quezon City, where he was guest of honor and speaker.

In his speech, the President ordered the immediate initiation of an air mobility training course for METROCOM personnel, and the release of ₱1.5 million for the modernization of the equipment of the METROCOM.

The President congratulated the METROCOM and its officers and men for having gained public acceptance although at the very outset it was met with opposition from all quarters.

Before delivering his address, the President presented awards and plaques of commendation to five METROCOM officers headed by retired Brig. Gen. Mariano G. Ordoñez, former commanding general of the organization, who was awarded the Distinguished Service Star with the first anahaw leaf.

After the program the President proceeded to the Officers Clubhouse where he looked over the exhibits consisting of the various types of pillboxes and molotov cocktails used by the activists, as well as the anti-riot paraphernalia used by the METROCOM.

The President returned to Malacañang at about noon. He took a brief rest before taking lunch and then received callers till early evening.

The callers included Secretary of Education Juan Manuel, who reported on the problem of enrolling all children of school age for the new school year. He assured the President that no school crisis was expected.

Others received by the President were:

- 1) Eulogio de Guzman, Jr., whom he inducted into office as a director of the Philippine National Railways; and
- 2) The new set of officers of the Malacañang Press Corps, whom he also swore into office. They were Primitivo Mijares of the Daily Express, president; Manuel Salak of the Manila Times, chairman of the board; Domingo Quimlat of the Taliba, vice-president; Teddy Owen of the Manila Daily Bulletin, secretary-treasurer; and Francisco de Leon of the Manila Chronicle, Dave Bidan of the Philippines Herald, and Greg Datum of the Daily Mirror, members of the board.

July 6—

THE PRESIDENT met in the evening with Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, AFP Chief of Staff General Romeo Espino, and PC Chief Brig. General Fidel Ramos on the peace and order situation, particularly in Mindanao.

During the conference, the President, was informed of a report from Lt. Eduardo Aglipay, detachment commander in Palanan, Isabela, who said that an undetermined number of persons was landed from a ship which was captured by PC troops at Digoyo Point. According to Lt. Aglipay, two teams composed of two officers and 12 men boarded and took possession of the ship.

Earlier in the day, the President received the letter of credence of His Excellency Joze Smole as the first non-resident ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of Yugoslavia to the Philippines.

In receiving the envoy's credentials, the President noted that "the Philippines and Yugoslavia have been cooperating long before in many fields," although diplomatic relations between the two countries have just been established.

He cited the support of Yugoslavia in the election of General Carlos P. Romulo as fourth President of the General Assembly of the United Nations in 1949.

Ambassador Smole, for his part, said that "Yugoslavia highly appreciates the endeavors of the Philippines towards securing and safeguarding world peace and promoting overall international cooperation on the basis of the principles of equal rights and mutual respect for all nations, big and small."

“Only on the basis of full equality of all nations and mutual respect and understanding is it possible to develop new democratic international relations which are in the interest of all humanity,” he added.

A resident ambassador of Yugoslavia to Japan since 1970, Ambassador Smole was a former newspaperman and editor of two important Yugoslav newspapers. He was secretary to President Josip Broz Tito from 1968 to 1969.

The President also signed the Special Vehicle Loan Fund Agreement to remedy the lack of transportation facilities considered one of the drawbacks to agricultural food production; as well as conferred the Golden Heart Award on Col. Alfred Patterson, U.S. defense attache, for “his significant contributions to the efforts of the Filipino nation towards socio-economic progress.”

The agreement provides that the National Food and Agriculture Council (NFAC) would deposit ₱1 million with the Philippine National Bank as initial guarantee for loans to be granted to employee-applicants proceeded and recommended by the NFAC, and for the PNB to grant such applicant recommended a loan not exceeding ₱2,000 at six percent interest for the purchase of a motorcycle, with the understanding that the difference, if any, between the purchase price and the loan will be supplied by the applicant.

Col. Patterson was cited for his activities which, non-military in nature, have been invaluable and praiseworthy services to the Philippines.

President's Week in Review: July 7-13, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS presided over a meeting of the National Security Council at Camp Aguinaldo. Discussed were the situation in Zamboanga and Isabela, as well as the Philippine position on the future of SEATO.

In an interview with newsmen later, the President, among others, clarified reports to the effect that Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo had sought the dismantling of the SEATO. Romulo, the President said, was instructed to seek a new orientation or a redirection for SEATO.

After the NSC meeting, the President proceeded to the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency, also in Quezon City, where he was guest of honor and speaker on the occasion of the agency's 23rd anniversary celebration.

In his speech, the President said that security is still the basic requirement for a progressive Philippines. "We cannot talk about development, we cannot talk about advancing the economic frontiers unless we can secure our country," he said.

The President also announced that he was certifying to Congress the National Security Act which will make NICA an agency created by virtue of law, instead of by executive order.

The President was back in Malacañang at about 2 p.m. The rest of his working hours were spent on official papers.

July 8—

THE PRESIDENT received the members of the four-man Libyan-Egyptian fact-finding team who made a courtesy call prior to their departure after a week-long visit to the Muslim south.

The delegation informed the President that the conflict in Mindanao was not between Christian and Muslim as reported because even the Christians were afraid of the so-called Ilagas.

The President expressed the belief that some elements, communist and others, were trying to inflame and foment disorder and had infiltrated the Ilagas.

"I can speculate and say that the Ilagas are too widespread to belong to small parochial or village groups. They are being guided by a group that wants to agitate and inflame the Muslims against the government and the Christians in general," the President said.

When informed by the delegation that one of the main reasons for their visit here was to strengthen relations between their countries and the Philippines, the President suggested that more cultural exchanges be held.

The delegation, which was accompanied to Malacañang by Ambassador Vicente Singian and Ambassador Abdel Abdelhamid Fadel of the United Arab Republic, included Egyptian Foreign Undersecretary Hassan Arrousy, Chief Ali Treki of the Political Administration of the Libyan Foreign Ministry, Moustafa Abdul Hamid of the Egyptian Foreign Ministry, and Aly Mahmoud Salem of the Libyan Ministry of Unity and Foreign Affairs.

In the evening, the President received General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, PAF commanding general; and Brig. Gen. Tomas Diaz, 1st PC Zone commander; who reported on the situation in Digoyo, Palanan, Isabela following the discovery and capture by elements of the Philippine Constabulary of a vessel named Karagatan off Digoyo Point, from which firearms and ammunition reportedly were unloaded.

The President ordered the military authorities to counter-attack and recapture Digoyo at all cost upon being informed by the military top brass that outnumbered government troopers battling New People's Army regulars in the area had been forced to withdraw.

July 9—

THE PRESIDENT was guest of honor and speaker at the blessing of 17 new electric motorcars acquired by the Philippine National Railways through reparations.

In his speech, the President pledged to continue supporting the PNR with all available funds, even as he described the railway firm as a lifeline for national survival.

The President said that simultaneous with the formation of consumer cooperatives in Manila and producers cooperatives in the North and Bicol as well as the completion of the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market as a clearing house for their produce, the improvement of the railways would help bring down prices.

He directed Col. Nicanor Jimenez, PNR general manager, to include in the reparations schedule five "food trains" (refrigerated food cars) and 24 economy cars which would enable more people to take the railroad.

Back in Malacañang about 12 noon, the President and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, honored at luncheon the members of the Libyan-Egyptian delegation preparatory to their departure for home following their visit to Mindanao for an assessment of the Christian-Muslim conflict in the region.

They told the President that while there was no such thing as a national policy of genocide, the Muslims feel that they have been prejudiced by some policies of local leaders, and that the animosity between the Muslims and the Christians was brought about by factors such as land conflicts. The delegation also expressed confidence that the national government would protect the interests of the Muslim minority.

Present at the luncheon were Egyptian Foreign Undersecretary Hassan Arrousy, Chief Ali Treki of the Political Administration of the Libyan Foreign Ministry, Moustafa Abdul Hamid of the Egyptian Foreign Ministry and Aly Mahmoud Salem of the Libyan Ministry of Unity and Foreign Affairs.

In the evening the First Couple motored to the MIA to meet their youngest daughter, who arrived from England to spend her summer vacation here.

July 10—

THE PRESIDENT buckled down to paper work shortly before 9 a.m., breaking off from his desk at 12:30 for lunch and rest.

In the afternoon, the President, together with the First Lady and their daughter Irene, visited the M/V Logos docked at Pier 15, believed to be the world's only "floating library" which arrived in Manila from India and Singapore in the course of a worldwide exhibit tour.

In brief remarks before the crew of the "floating library," the President paid tribute to the crew members and volunteers manning it, saying that "so long as there are men and women idealistic and dedicated like you, then all is not dark for the family of men."

In welcoming the crew members and volunteers, the President said that "this extraordinary mission which brought you to the Philippines is something which is close to our heart. The idea of a floating library on the high seas traveling from one port to another is certainly a very inspired idea."

The First Couple and daughter Irene bought several books from the floating library. The President in turn gave the library books on Dr. Jose Rizal and Apolinario Mabini, History of the Philippines, and lectures on other great Filipinos. He likewise presented them a copy of his book, entitled "Today's Revolution-Democracy."

The President was back to desk work early evening.

July 11—

THE PRESIDENT ordered the Rice and Corn Administration to make available 100 double-sack rice each to the flooded provinces of Bulacan, Pampanga and Tarlac for distribution to victims of typhoon Edeng.

Utilization of light Navy craft for relief distribution was likewise ordered by the President in response to appeals made by municipal mayors in the affected towns.

The President also instructed Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes to get, if possible, the assistance of fishermen's associations, such, as those in Navotas and Malabon, Rizal, who might make available their amphibian vehicles for the transportation and distribution of relief goods in the flooded areas.

Earlier in the day, the President:

1) Directed Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoili to study the possibility of setting up a trust fund for the Philippine Historical Association, from which it could draw to finance the publication of history books on the Philippines.

The President issued the directive following the request for funds of the officers of the association, who took their oaths of office before him. Inducted by the President were:

Dean Gloria Santos, president; Dr. Celedonio Resurreccion, vice president; Dr. Ricardo Arcilia and Ma. Corona S. Resurreccion, treasurer and assistant treasurer, respectively; Jorge L. Revilla, secretary; Tomas Barnes, auditor; and Col. Crisanto V. Alba, Jose M. Aruego, Mauro Garcia and Sixto Y. Orosa, Sr., governors.

2) Submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 26 individuals to various posts in the government. The nominations were for criminal circuit court, court of first instance, municipal judges, state prosecutor, city and provincial fiscals, chief of mission and college president, among others.

THE PRESIDENT met with the National Disaster Relief and Rehabilitation Committee at the Pangarap Guest House.

Following the conference, the President proclaimed the entire island of Luzon as under a state of calamity. (See pp. 5718-A 5718-C for full text of the President's proclamation.)

The President also called the leaders of both Houses of Congress to a conference at Malacañang, as well as urged Congress to pass a special calamity bill appropriating P250 million for relief and rehabilitation during the special session.

Present at the conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Public Works Secretary David M. Consunji, Social Welfare Secretary Estefania Aldaba-Lim, Health Secretary. Clemente Gatmaitan, Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoili, Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, Finance Undersecretary Pedro Almaizor, Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña, Director Carlos Leaño of the Infrastructure Operations Center, Col. Tapia of the NDCC, and others.

The President spent the rest of the day keeping close tabs on developments in the flooded areas and working on state papers in his private study.

July 13—

THE PRESIDENT met with congressional leaders and Cabinet members at a luncheon in Malacañang to pave the way for the early approval of a calamity bill, which seeks the appropriation of P250 million.

The President strongly urged that action be taken immediately on the measure “in view of the calamities which have been so pervasive as to have affected the entire country.”

He further added that the approval of the calamity bill should include not only the repair of destroyed infrastructure, “but also the establishment of the means by which to diminish such destruction and damage.”

Among those present at the conference were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Majority Floor Leader Arturo Tolentino, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senator Lorenzo Teves, Rep. Marcelino Veloso, Finance Secretary Cesar K. A. Virata, Public Works Secretary David Consunji, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoili.

In the course of his work on state papers later in the day, the President issued an executive order changing the constitution of the Presidential Investigation and Recovery Commission so as to facilitate the work of this body charged with effecting the collection and recovery of monies and properties of government firms.

The commission, as reconstituted, would have the secretary of justice as chairman, the RCA chairman-general manager as vice chairman, and the solicitor general and a representative each of the auditor general and the Philippine National Bank, as members.

President's Week in Review: July 14-20, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 14—

PRESIDENT MARCOS received Chen Pao, secretary-general of the Kuomintang Party of Nationalist China.

During their brief meeting, the President said that the landing of arms and ammunition in Palanan, Isabela, established the fact that the local communists are no longer an isolated indigenous group but part of an international conspiracy.

The President also requested the Kuomintang secretary-general to convey to President and Madame Chiang Kai-shek and their son his warm personal regards.

Chen Pao was accompanied by Ambassador Liu-Chi Y. C. Chen, director of the department of overseas affairs; and Chang Yu-sheng, deputy director of youth affairs of the Supreme Committee of the Kuomintang.

The President also received Governor Carlos G. Camacho of Guam who likewise paid his respects to the President following his arrival.

He was accompanied to Malacañang by Jose Q. Taitan and Kenneth Blasczyk, special assistants; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., and Ambassador Jose Estrada.

Other callers included Sen. Helena Z. Benitez, who submitted a report on her mission abroad. Senator Benitez arrived from Stockholm, Sweden where she attended the United Nations conference on human environments as well as from the People's Republic of China.

Pressure of deal work prevented the President from attending the inauguration and blessing of the Asian Reinsurance building in Makati and the closing ceremonies of the National Science and Technology Week.

The President asked Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. to deliver his speeches for both occasions.

In the evening, the President received Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, PC chief, who informed him that government troops captured the first NPA camp in Palanan, Isabela after a four-hour uphill trek by the troopers from the beach at Digoyo.

July 15—

THE PRESIDENT conferred in the afternoon with Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and military top brass on the updating of military contingency plans.

Present at the conference held at the President's private study, were General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Fidel Ramos, PC chief; and Brig. Gen. Rafael Zagala, PA commander.

The President spent the whole morning on state papers and other matters of state, notably the development plans for harbor and airport facilities in Luzon.

July 16—

THE PRESIDENT accompanied by Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. and Plant Industry Director Eliseo Carandang, boarded the presidential Fokker plane at 7 a.m. at Nichols Air Base and conducted an aerial survey of Bulacan, Rizal, Pampanga, Nueva Ecija, Tarlac, Pangasinan and part of Zambales.

Following the survey, the President decided to push through passage of the ₱250 million special calamity fund and the regional typhoon moderation project in Asia.

At the same time, the President directed Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo to lodge a strong protest against the holding of nuclear weapons tests in the Pacific. Some Filipino scientists believe such tests affect the weather conditions of the regions.

The President also ordered a restudy of the plans for the proposed Labangan Channel as an exit for flood waters in the Pampanga—Bulacan area, as well as the rushing of the Chico and Upper Pampanga (Pantabangan) river control projects.

In the evening, the President and the First Lady, together with their two daughters, motored to the Manila International Airport (MIA) to meet their son Ferdinand Jr. (Bongbong), who planed in from London to spend his summer vacation here.

July 17—

THE PRESIDENT focused on matters concerning relief and rehabilitation work in Central Luzon before receiving his morning callers.

At 11 a.m. the President repaired to the Ceremonial Hall and conferred the Philippine Legion of Honor (degree of officer) on Col. Philipp F Sears, outgoing commander of the U.S. Office of Special Investigation in this country.

Col. Sears was cited “for meritorious and outstanding services to the Republic of the Philippines, as head of specialized training units of the United States Air Force in 1966 and 1969 and as Commander of the Office of Special Investigation in the Philippines.”

After the conferment rites held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall, the President administered the oath of office to Associate Justice Eloy Bello of the Court of Appeals, following confirmation of the hitter’s nomination by the Commission on Appointments.

In the afternoon the President and the First Lady received the crew of the MV Logos, headed by Capt. Mjorn Kristianson and members of their families whom they invited for merienda at Malacañang when they visited the “floating library.”

July 18—

THE PRESIDENT conferred the ancient Order of Sikatuna, rank of Datu, on Ambassador Hashim bin Sultan of Malaysia, in recognition of his services in the field of international relations.

The President cited the Malaysian ambassador as a worthy spokesman of his government who had endeavored continuously to strengthen the ties of friendship between his country and the Philippines.

In accepting the award, Ambassador Hashim bin Sultan said that in his two-year’s stay in the country, he had the deep sense of satisfaction in enjoying the hospitality, the cooperation and valuable assistance given to him by the Filipino people.

Present at the award ceremony, which was held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall, were Secretary Carlos P. Romulo and Undersecretary Manuel Collantes of Foreign Affairs, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes who read the citation, and chiefs of the diplomatic corps, including Mons. Carmine Rocco, papal Nuncio; Ambassadors Henry Byroade of the United States, Toshio Urabe of Japan, James Charles Ingram of Australia, John Curie of Great Britain, Kusno Utomo of Indonesia, Se Ryu Kim of Korea, and Richard Taylor of New Zealand.

Toward noon, the President received the delegates of foreign countries to the 11th session of the ECAFE Asian Statisticians confab held in Manila who paid him a courtesy call.

The President told the delegates of the efforts of the Philippines towards modernization of security and development reforms, the restructuring of society and the forward movement of culture, as well as of widening the areas of freedom, liberty and initiative for every man.

The President also said that statistics may be dry and uninteresting but to the decision makers, chiefs of state, and heads of government they are of the greatest importance for it is on them that decisions are based.

In the afternoon, the President concentrated on desk work. Because of reports; on the extensive damage caused by heavy rains and floods in Central Luzon, the President went on the air late in the evening to assure the people that the government would use all available, resources to alleviate the sufferings of typhoon and flood victims.

July 19—

THE PRESIDENT ordered non-stop rescue and relief operations, including the use of all available craft and equipment from the Armed Forces.

In addition, the President released ₱3 million more for emergency operations as he kept himself posted on the extent of damage from reports of the National Disaster Coordinating Council and aerial surveys conducted by Cabinet members and Presidential aides.

The President appealed to all citizens to stay in their homes unless pressing business require their presence outside.

The President sent helicopters to rescue missions in Pangasinan, Tarlac, and Pampanga, three of the hardest hit provinces because of the bursting of the dikes in these area.

The President placed the four departments—Department of National Defense, Department of Social Welfare, Department of Health and Department of Public Works and Communications—on a 24-hour duty.

He also directed the NDCC to acknowledge and make arrangements for the dispatch of vehicles such as helicopters and amphibian trucks being offered by various sources, so that these could be utilized fully for the relief and rehabilitation effort.

Early in the afternoon, the President and the First Lady honored at luncheon Madame Tatyana Nikolaeva, deputy of the Supreme Soviet of the USSR, who arrived in Manila for a 10-day visit as representative of the Union of Soviet Society of Friendship and Cultural Relations with other countries.

The President worked on official papers and followed up relief and rescue operations in the evening.

July 20—

THE PRESIDENT issued Proclamation No. 1049, authorizing Secretary of National Defense and, in his behalf the respective provincial commanders in Bulacan, Pampanga, Tarlac, Nueva Ecija Pangasinan and Bataan to requisition and thereupon immediately distribute such necessary private supplies of foodstuffs as are needed for the survival of flood victims in these provinces; and Proclamation No. 1050 authorizing the AFP Chief of Staff, and, in his behalf the commanders of the major services of the AFP, to utilize and avail of private watercraft, vehicles and other equipment for rescue and relief operations in the provinces of Bulacan, Pampanga, Tarlac, Nueva Ecija, Pangasinan and Bataan.

Among other actions relative to the calamity, the President ordered a thorough review of logging operations in Central Luzon with an eye to the possible cancellation of timber licenses in the area to save the remaining forests and prevent the recurrence of worse floods in the future.

At the same time, the President directed Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to prepare an effective distribution plan so that rice seedlings may be distributed to all the areas where rice crops had been destroyed.

In the evening, the President met with newsmen covering Malacañang who inquired on the flood situation and relief operations in flood-stricken areas.

President's Week in Review: July 21-27, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS boarded a helicopter in the morning for an aerial survey of the flooded areas.

The President flew low over the flooded towns of Bulacan and Pampanga and took a close look at the breached dikes and impassable highways.

The first stop of the President was at Basa Air Base where he visited some 300 barrio residents who sought refuge inside the camp from the floods.

After inquiring into their conditions and instructing the base officials to attend to their needs, the President flew to nearby Clark Air Force Base to see how the relief and rescue operations were going on.

The President was briefed by Clark Air Force officials headed by General Marvin McNickle, commanding general of the 13th Air Force.

Among those who met the President at CAFB were Cols. Henry C. Gordon, base commander; Stanley Bailey, in charge of CAFB rescue work; Major Henry King, commander of DART rescue, relief and rehabilitation teams; Col. A. G. Villanueva of the Philippine Air Force, Major Laudemer B. Kahulugan and Lt. Col. R. D. Fernando.

In the course of his trip, the President ordered the establishment of relief distribution centers in Pampanga and Pangasinan. Ordered put up were one distribution center at Basa Air Base, one at Clark Air Force Base, and another at Lingayen, Pangasinan.

The President also directed the armed forces teams engaged in relief and rescue operations, in cooperation with the local authorities, to force open the bodegas of the Rice and Corn Administration in order to be able to distribute the rice to the flood victims.

The President said that 10 helicopters on flying missions all over Central Luzon had been picking up children and women from rooftops and treetops.

From Clark Field, the President flew back to Manila arriving in Malacañang at 5 p.m.

After a short rest, the President met with newsmen covering Malacañang.

July 22—

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the First Lady, Imelda R. Marcos, for the second straight day, surveyed flooded areas of Central Luzon, reaching as far as Pangasinan.

The President and the First Lady took off early for Basa Air Base, one of the take-off points for the airlifting and airdropping of relief goods to the stricken areas in Pangasinan and Tarlac.

The Chief Executive, with a group of Cabinet members, then flew to Pangasinan to meet with provincial officials and the PC provincial commander in view of the lack of direct communications with the capital town of Lingayen and therefore the inability of the government to get detailed reports of the actual flood situation in the province.

With the President in going to Pangasinan were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Public Works and Communications Secretary David Consunji, Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino.

The President stressed that immediate efforts should be directed to the rescue of people still marooned in the flooded areas which he surveyed aboard a helicopter on his way to Pangasinan from Clark Air Force Base.

In his talks with the officials of Pangasinan, the President said that he and the First Lady were doing everything possible to meet the requirements of the relief operations.

July 23—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady, for the third consecutive day took personal charge of operations to speed up the relief and rehabilitation of flood victims in Central Luzon.

The President, accompanied by Secretary of Health Clemente Gatmaitan, Reps. Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega, and Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave flew to Poro Point, San Fernando; La Union aboard the Presidential Fokker plane at 9 o'clock a.m.

The President conferred with local officials, including Governors Juvenal K. Guerrero of La Union and Ben Palispis of Benguet, and Mayor Luis Lardizabal of Baguio City.

After the conference, the President boarded a helicopter and flew low over inundated sections of southern La Union and eastern Pangasinan, landing at Carmen, Pangasinan where he was met by Rep. Roberto Estrella who accompanied him during the resumption of the aerial survey.

The President was gratified to note during the survey that a number of farmers, already were replanting the rice fields, some of which were still under water.

Upon being informed that no relief goods have reached the barrio, the President sent back his helicopter to Carmen to pick up two truck-loads of relief supplies waiting to be transported to San Manuel.

From there, the President flew to Santa Ana, Tayug, where again he distributed relief goods. The President had lunch at Carmen.

Upon the request of Rep. Estrella, the President directed Secretary Gatmaitan to send two medical teams to eastern Pangasinan. Other teams were also dispatched to other places.

Following the survey, the President announced that he was establishing a regional Malacañang office in the province, preferably in Dagupan City or Lingayen in view of the widespread destruction of houses and buildings in the area. The President said he would hold office there for the duration of the emergency.

The President ordered the Constabulary to pitch tent in the PC compound for his office and living quarters.

July 24—

THE PRESIDENT decided to stay at the Malacañang field office in Lingayen, Pangasinan for the duration of the emergency to better supervise the relief and rescue operation.

The President made this decision because of the tendency of relief and rescue operations to slow down after floods have receded.

The Chief Executive started personally going on helicopter missions to isolated areas of Eastern Pangasinan as early as 6:30 a.m. After returning to the Magiliw guesthouse in Carmen for lunch, he directed:

- 1) Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan to set up medical centers in San Nicolas, Tayug, Urdaneta and Asingan;
- 2) The PC provincial commanders, in coordination with local executives, to start making inventories of rice stocks and other goods in the affected provinces and to procure them under his proclamation, properly receipted by the provincial governor or city mayor, the PC provincial commander and the provincial or city auditor, to be paid later on by government at prices fixed by the Price Control Council.

The President visited and distributed relief goods in barrios Fubol, Kalanapian, and San Rafael in San Nicolas, where he also had a reunion with his wartime comrades who had operated in the area with him during the war years.

July 25—

THE PRESIDENT, having established himself in his Malacañang in the Field office at the Philippine Constabulary compound in Lingayen, asked all government officials and personnel involved to temporarily leave their offices in Manila and go out to the disaster areas in order to break down “red tape” in distributing relief to the victims.

He also invited private sectors willing to help, as well as those actually giving private donations, to go to the field and minister to the needs of the victims.

The President said that since setting up his field office in Pangasinan, he has been able to get a comprehensive and immediate view of the actual needs of the victims.

As well as relief and rehabilitation of victims, the President indicated two priorities in the efforts of government, namely, roads and transport; and rehabilitation of crops.

The President said he was watching the danger signs of a possible rice scarcity because the people who fought for the relief packages indicated that there was hunger.

“We can imagine what might happen if agents provocateur should start propagating dangerous ideas in the event that unrelieved hunger sets in,” the President said. He:

- 1) Directed the government agencies involved in rehabilitation to continue fielding teams in the flood areas.
- 2) Requested the Department of Health to procure several million pesos worth of medicine for the intensified mass inoculation drive to avert possible epidemics.
- 3) Appealed for volunteers from the Philippine Medical Association.

He likewise directed the Agricultural Productivity Commission, the Agriculture Credit Administration, the Bureau of Plant Industry, the Presidential Assistant on Community Development and the National Food and Agriculture Council to go to the field instead of staying in Manila where “you are so removed and detached from what is actually happening.”

The President instructed Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan to return to Manila immediately to procure more medicine for the inoculation drive.

The President appealed to the private sector, particularly to the members of the Philippine Medical Association, to organize volunteer teams and come out to the barrios to help the people.

He deplored the “bureaucratic red tape which had completely disorganized some of our efforts at rescue and relief.”

From his temporary field office in Lingayen, the President appealed to the Senate to pass the ₱500 million contingent fund approved by the House in view of the updated and considerably increased estimates of damages wrought by the flood in central and northern Luzon.

The President also appealed to the Senate to approve the Public Works Bill in order to provide counterpart funds for foreign loans that may be negotiated for the massive rehabilitation to be undertaken in this area.

Among other actions, the President issued a series of directives in connection with the rehabilitation of Central and Northern Luzon provinces.

He ordered Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata to immediately make the necessary representations with the World Bank for the early reconvening of the Consultative Group for the Philippines, with a program for the rehabilitation of the devastated areas in Central Luzon as the main item on the agenda.

He directed Public Works Secretary David Consunji to immediately:

- 1) Procure bailey bridges as temporary replacements of all damaged bridges in the devastated areas;
- 2) Determine the amount needed for rehabilitation and repair of infrastructure; and
- 3) Convene all landowners of the areas to be occupied by the Labangan Channel so that the government can immediately acquire the right of way for this channel passing through Bulacan and Pampanga.

The President also directed Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. to immediately:

- 1) Procure 100,000 cavans of rice seedlings, preferably the IR-21 variety;
- 2) Send survey teams to the flood affected provinces, including Nueva Ecija, to find out whether said rice seedlings could be procured in said provinces; and
- 3) Conduct an inventory of vegetable seedlings.

The President ordered Secretary Tanco to report on the action taken within 72 hours.

While personally supervising relief and rescue operations, the President was informed that Ferdinand Jr. (Bongbong) had undergone a successful tonsillectomy. He promptly congratulated his son.

July 26—

THE PRESIDENT flew back to Manila in the morning to visit his son Bongbong who underwent tonsillectomy, and to meet with his Cabinet on the relief and rehabilitation efforts of the government.

The President landed at Nichols Air Base shortly after 8am He motored direct to the Makati Medical Center to visit his son and to preside over the Cabinet meeting, held at the hospital conference room.

During the meeting, the President, among others, called for a new policy on the exportation of logs as part of a reinvigorated approach to forest conservation and flood prevention.

He asked the National Economic Council, Presidential Economic Staff, Department of Finance to evolve a policy which will not hurt us too much on our dollar earnings, but which will prevent loggers from denuding our forests.”

Among those who attended were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries Carlos P. Romulo of foreign affairs Cesar PA Virata of finance, David M. Consunji of public works and communications, Juan Ponce Enrile of Defense, Arturo R. Tanco, Jr of Agriculture, Estefama Aldaba Lim of social welfare, Clemente Gatmaitan, of health, Narciso Albarracin of education, Rosendo Tarquez of the presidential arm on community development;

Chairmen Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council Vicente Faterno of the Board of Investments, Eliseo Villamor of the See and Corn Administration; Commissioners Faustino Sy-Chaneco of the budget, Francisco Saguiguit of the Agricultural Productivity Commission, Baltazar Aquino of the Bureau of Public Highways; Deputy Commissioner Conrado Diaz of the Bureau of Internal Revenue;

Also present were Sen. Lorenzo Teyes and Rep. Jose Alberto, chairmen of the Senate and House appropriations committees, respectively Governor Gregorio Licaros of the Central Bank, President Eusebio Villatuva of the Philippine National Bank, Manager Jose de Ocampo of Greater Manila Terminal Food Market, Director General Anolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Directors Carlos Leaño of the Infrastructure Operations Center and Eliseo Carandang of the Bureau of Plant Industry;

Assistant Administrator Amado Lansang of the Agricultural Credit Administration, General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; Mayors Ramon Bagatsing of Manila, Pablo Cuneta of Pasay and Nemesio Yabut of Makati.

In the course of the day, the President created a Presidential Task Force on Rehabilitation Operations in view of the urgent need to determine the extent of damages wrought by the recent natural calamities, as well as the financial and physical requirements for speedy and effective rehabilitation.

Named to compose the task force were the Executive Secretary or his representative, as chairman; the Secretary of Public Works and Communications or his representative, vice-chairman; the Secretary of Finance, the Secretary of National Defense, the Secretary of Social Welfare, the Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources and the Secretary of Health, or their representatives, members.

In creating the Task Force, the President stressed that the circumstances demand monitoring, coordinated implementation timely and reliable reporting of rehabilitation and restoration efforts of both the private and public sector agencies and institutions at the highest level of responsibility and authority.

He likewise underscored the immediate need to formulate a medium and long-range program strategy for the rehabilitation and restoration effort.

July 27—

THE PRESIDENT issued Proclamation No. 1051 calling the Congress of the Philippines to an 8th special session, commencing immediately upon adjournment of the 7th special session, in order that urgent legislative measures could be acted upon.

Legislative proposals certified by the President included those providing funds for an integrated flood control and drainage program for the Greater Manila area and public works projects in other cities and municipalities, as well as for the moderation of typhoons by reducing or minimizing their destructive intensity.

Earlier in the day, the President, among others, directed the Bureau of Public Highways and the AFP Engineering Battalion to immediately repair national roads in Manila.

The President issued the order even as he kept tabs of the flood situation and the relief and rescue operations in the flooded areas of Central Luzon and the Greater Manila area.

Towards evening, the President received Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; and Brig. Gen. Ignacio Paz, chief of AFP intelligence, who reported on the capture by government troops of five rocket launchers, seven rocket rounds and several firearms in an encounter with National People's Army regulars in Palanan, Isabela.

The President then motored to the studio of Channel 13 where he was interviewed on the relief and rehabilitation program of the government, including its financing.

President's Week in Review: July 28 - August 3, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

July 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS took over the operational control of the Department of Public Works and Communications and the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources in view of the importance of the two departments in the rehabilitation efforts of the government.

The President directed the Department of Public Works and Communications to conduct a survey of the damages caused by the series of typhoons and floods, and the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to procure at least 100,000 cavans of rice seeds from the south for distribution to the flood victims.

The President also pressed for the immediate start of work on the Labangan Channel to provide an outlet for the floodwaters from Pampanga and Bulacan.

Earlier in the day, the President conducted an ocular survey of the flood areas of Bulacan and, conferred with provincial and municipal officials at the provincial capitol.

The President left Malacañang at 9 o'clock by jeep, taking Aurora Boulevard, then Highway 54, through the North Diversion, to Malolos, where he turned over truckloads of relief goods to Mrs. Purificacion Reyes, mayor of Malolos for distribution at the town plaza.

From there, the President and his party, which included Rep. Teodulo Natividad and Gov. Ignacio Santiago, motored towards Hagonoy, passing by Paombong which was still in several feet of water. Also with the President were Highways District Engineer Felicisimo Ver and Public Works Engineer Jose Regalado.

Upon reaching the Paombong municipal building, the Chief Executive again turned over to Mayor Jose de la Cruz and the barrio captains truckloads of relief goods intended for the town's flood victims, and then motored to Hagonoy.

After distributing some relief goods in Hagonoy, the President turned over the relief goods to Mayor Ermin Perez and then motored back to Malolos, proceeding directly to the provincial capitol for the conference.

Following the conference, the President, who conducted the survey in a driving rain, took a helicopter back to Manila to be in time for his meeting with public works and agriculture officials in Malacañang.

During the conference, the President said that there was need to cut bureaucratic red tape. He was informed that the total expenditures for the rehabilitation, reclamation and reconstruction of infrastructures as proposed by the conference committee of the National Disaster Control Council would be ₱420.4 million.

To this end, he discussed with the departments concerned the projects to be given top priority in accordance with available funds.

Among those present at the meeting were Secretaries Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Arturo R. Tanco, Jr. of agriculture and natural resources, David M. Consunji of public works and communications, Juan Ponce Enrile of national defense, Rosendo Marquez of the presidential arm on community development;

Commissioners Faustino Sy-Changco of the budget, Francisco Saguiguit of the Agricultural Productivity Commission, Andres Mane of the Philippine Fisheries Commission, Baltazar Aquino of the Bureau of Public Highways; Directors Carlos Leaño of the Infrastructure Operations Center, Eliseo Carandang of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Alejandro Deleña of the Bureau of Public Works; and Administrator Alfredo Juinio of the National Irrigation Administration.

July 29—

THE PRESIDENT met with members of the Cabinet and the National Disaster Control Council.

During the conference, the President announced the shift in flood operations from rescue and relief to reconstruction and rehabilitation which, he said, would cost about ₱428 million.

The President designated the NDCC as the implementing agency for the operation, and asked the Department of Public Works and Communications and the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to place themselves at the disposal of the committee.

After hearing the report of the various officials on the cause and effects of the last flood, considered the worst to hit the country in years, the President gave the go-signal for the immediate implementation of flood control projects, such as the construction of the over ₱30 million Labangan Channel in Bulacan and Pampanga.

On the Manila flood control program, the President directed that special attention be given to the dredging of, Manila's esteros and the problem posed by squatters.

The President also directed that studies be made to declare squatters "nuisance per se" so that they would not constitute an obstacle to the Hood control program.

On the agricultural rehabilitation of the flood victims, the President directed that the Philippine National Bank undertake an intensive program to grant easy-term credit facilities for the flood victims.

The President ordered the PNB to borrow ₱40 million from the funds of the Rice and Corn Administration deposited with the Central Bank, to be used as guarantee capital to generate some ₱700 million in credit facilities. The conference lasted till early afternoon.

The President attended to desk work following a brief rest.

July 30—

THE PRESIDENT went on another survey of Central Luzon and the towns bordering Laguna de Bay in view of the continuous rains and the new danger they pose to the already flood-ravaged provinces of the region.

The President boarded a helicopter early in the morning and flew low over Bulacan and Pampanga. He was back in Malacañang shortly before noon for lunch.

At 1:45 p.m. the President again boarded the PAF helicopter and flew over the flooded Laguna towns along the shoreline of Laguna de Bay.

The President had a short rest later in the afternoon, and then worked on official papers in his private study.

At 5:20 p.m., the President received newsmen who interviewed him on his new assessment of the flood situation and on further steps taken by the government to help the flood victims, as well as on programs of reconstruction.

July 31—

THE PRESIDENT directed the stepping up of rescue and relief operations following receipt of a report from the National Disaster Control Center that floodwaters in Central Luzon continued to rise because of unremitting rains.

He ordered the Philippine Navy to send more rescue teams to Bulacan, Pampanga and Tarlac, as well as enlisted the help of the Metrocom for relief and rescue work in the towns of Taguig and Pateros, Rizal.

The President did not receive callers, but devoted the whole day to problems brought about by the Luzon flood.

August 1—

THE PRESIDENT met in the afternoon with his cabinet at the National Disaster Control Center at Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City, to review the flood situation and prepare the program of rehabilitation and rebuilding.

During the three-hour conference, the President:

- 1) Proclaimed the city of Baguio and the provinces of Benguet, Laguna and Bataan as covered by his proclamation empowering the chief of staff of the Armed Forces and the secretary of national defense, through their representatives, to commandeer, in coordination with local authorities, vehicles and foodstuff to save the lives of flood victims.
- 2) Asked the Philippine National Red Cross to participate in the preparation and implementation of the program for the extension of further rescue and relief operations in the flood areas.
- 3) Recommended amendment of the calamity bill authorizing the expenditure of ₱300 million.
- 4) Directed all heads of departments to prepare plans for the participation of their respective personnel in the emergency operations.
- 5) Directed the cabinet secretaries to submit their respective programs for expenditures of funds allotted to their respective departments out of the ₱300 million calamity fund for immediate implementation.
- 6) Extended his personal gratitude to the United States government for its assistance to the flood victims and for the continued stay of various U.S. military and navy units in the Philippines to continue assisting in the relief operations.
- 7) Thanked all persons, both military and civilians, who have extended assistance to the flood victims, and urged them to continue doing so.

Upon the recommendation of Labor Secretary Blas F. Ople, the President also directed the department heads to draw up plans for the participation of their respective personnel in the relief and rescue, rehabilitation and rebuilding operations.

Present at the meeting, besides the members of the Cabinet, were Rep. Teodulo Natividad of Bulacan, Chairman Eliseo Villamor of the Rice and Corn Administration, Mrs. Loreto Paras-Sulit of the Philippine

August 2—

THE PRESIDENT and the First Lady led a kilometer-long procession from Malacañang to the Tondo Church, where the recovered image of the Sto. Niño was transferred and reenshrined.

Earlier in the afternoon, the President and the First Lady led thousands of devotees in hearing a Mass said at the porch of the Executive Building, shortly before the image was transferred with a procession, participated in by some 15,000 devotees, to the Tondo Church.

With the First Couple in joining the procession were Mayor and Mrs. Ramon Bagatsing, and some members of the Cabinet.

The President was closeted in his private study the whole morning going over state papers, including the latest reports on relief and rehabilitation work.

August 3—

THE PRESIDENT declared a moratorium on the sending of Philippine delegations to international conferences abroad as one more means of cutting down the spending of valuable foreign exchange, for the duration of the national rehabilitation program.

At the same time, the President instructed the Department of Foreign Affairs to seek a deferment, if not a cancellation, of international conferences scheduled to be held in the country for the duration of the rehabilitation program.

Not included in the presidential edict were the United Nations General Assembly session in September, scheduled to be attended by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, and vital economic conferences including those connected with government efforts to raise assistance for its rehabilitation program.

Among other actions, the President ordered the prompt restoration of normal vehicular traffic leading to the Ilocos provinces, which was cut off when the approaches of the Rosario bridge across Bued River along the highway in La Union were washed out by the flood.

President's Week in Review: August 4-10, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 4—

PRESIDENT MARCOS, ordered the fielding of more men from the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources in Bulacan, Pampanga and Nueva Ecija to see if the farmers could start replanting.

The President, expressed concern over the delay in replanting because it takes ordinarily one month for the seeds to mature as seedlings and three months for the seedlings to grow and produce grains.

The President earlier directed the DANR to procure at least 100,000 sacks of palay seeds so that they could be loaned to farmers at the rate of one cavan per hectare, payable from their harvest.

The President likewise, directed the DANR to:

(1) Look into the feasibility of utilizing the three government rain-making planes in the southern provinces, particularly in Cotabato and Davao, where a drought has been reported.

(2) Organize an anti-rat infestation campaign as well as a drive on the increased use of fertilizers to at least partially minimize the expected rice shortage as a result of the typhoons and floods.

Among other actions, the President consented to the sending of a delegation by the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation to the Munich Olympics "provided it is a 'token delegation'", no government money would be spent for it, and the per diems of the members of the delegation would be reduced from $15 to $5.

Later in the day, the President received Jarold Keiffer, assistant USAID administrator, and Russel McClure, USAID disaster coordinator, who arrived; from; Washington to find out first hand the extent of damages caused by the flood and to determine how their government could be &f further assistance to the Philippines.

The USAID officials were accompanied to Malacañang by U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade.

In the evening, the President held preliminary discussions with Felipe F. Cruz, representative of the Philippine Contractors' Association, as well as with government officials involved in rehabilitation work, on the financing aspects of various rehabilitation projects, including a crash program to cement 100 kilometers of roads in the Greater Manila area, and 1,000 kilometers of national highways.

Also present at the conference were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, RCA Chairman-General Manager Eliseo Villamor, Public Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, and Brig. Gen. Amado Santiago, commander of the 51st Engineering Battalion.

In the afternoon, the President conducted an ocular survey of the roads damaged by the floods in the city of Manila and checked on repair work being done by men of the Bureau of Public Highways and AFP engineering battalion.

Back in Malacañang about 6:30 p.m., the President met with members of the Malacañang Press Corps.

August 5—

THE PRESIDENT made a nationwide radio-television report to the nation, even as he called on the entire Filipino citizenry to take an active individual share in the reconstruction of the country.

Pointing out that government would not be able to do the job of reconstruction and rehabilitation alone, he appealed to the citizenry “to now take it upon yourselves to participate in this rebuilding program. Let it be a program of love, let it be a program of work, manual work, if necessary. Let every man pick up a shovel or fork or any instrument of work and participate-in the effort to rebuild our country once again,”

Earlier in the evening, the President had a three-hour meeting with the Cabinet, leaders of Congress, and representatives of all sectors, including religious and civic leaders, media, loggers, producers and contractors.

During the meeting, the President gave the go-signal for the implementation of the national reconstruction and rehabilitation program after being assured that there were available funds for the purpose.

The President also ordered:

- (1) Implementation of the plan to set up a “green belt” around Manila.
- (2) Priority be given in the distribution of relief goods to the towns bordering Candaba swamp, which were the hardest hit.
- (3) The assignment of army pilots to fly the three government rain-making planes to Davao and Cotabato.
- (4) The Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources to remind the Fertilizer Institute of its” pledge to lower the cost of fertilizers after its loans had been restructured by the Philippine National Bank.
- (5) Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco to release immediately P8 million to the Department of Health, P1 million to the Presidential Arm on Community Development, and P50,000 to the Department of Education.
- (6) The Development Bank of the Philippines and Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino to study the linkage system in connection with the need for cement in the reconstruction program.
- (7) The increase of forest guards from 900 to 4,000.
- (8) The continued suspension of classes for another week in the Greater Manila area, Pampanga, Tarlac, Pangasinan and Nueva Ecija, and the towns of Hagonoy, Paombong and Calumpit, Bulacan, on recommendation of acting Education Secretary Narciso Albarracin.

Among those present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Gornelio T. Villareal, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy,

Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, Senate Majority Floor Leader Arturo M. Tolentino, House Majority Floor Leader Marcelino Veloso;

Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata, Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan, Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Labor Secretary Bias F. Tatad, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Acting Education Secretary Narciso Albarracin; General Services Secretary Constancio Castaneda;

Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council; Chairman Eliseo Villamor of the Rice and Corn Administration; Director-General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff; Chairman Florencio Medina of the National Science Development Board; Governor Gregorio Licaros of the Central Bank; SSS Administrator Gilberto Teodoro, GSIS General Manager Roman Cruz, Jr., OEC Administrator Eduardo Rodriguez; P’NB President Eusebio Villatuya; Senators Ambrosio Padilla and Helena Z. Benitez, Rep. Rogelio Tiglao of Pampanga, Mons. Mariano Gaviola, Jr., Florentino Cayco, representing the fishing industry; Eduardo Escobar and Felipe Cruz, representing private contractors; and Ady Sison, representing Alfredo Montelibano.

August 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the inclusion of oil and its derivatives in the list of prime commodities previously authorized for requisitioning and immediate distribution to flood victims in disaster areas even as he kept tabs of the rehabilitation works in the flooded areas of Central Luzon and the Greater Manila area.

Included under the new order were gasoline, kerosene, crude oil, bunker fuel and lubricants.

The President issued the order upon receiving reports of fuel shortages in the flood-stricken provinces which threatened to paralyze transportation, industries, communications and other essential facilities requiring oil products.

In the afternoon, the President visited the hydraulic laboratory and research projects of the bureau of public works where continuous studies on flood control and drainage problems, particularly in Central Luzon, were being made.

Accompanied by Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña, the President boarded a launch on the Pasig river beside Malacafiang shortly after 5 p.m., and sailed upstream to Punta, Sta. Ana where the research project was installed.

The Chief Executive said that high priority would be given to the clearing of esteros so as to minimize the flooding in Manila and suburbs.

The President returned to Malacafiang at 6:30 p.m.

August 7—

THE PRESIDENT, together with the First Lady, left for Baguio, on the first leg of their visit to Northern Luzon areas damaged by flood.

The First Couple left Manila by plane at 8:30 a.m. and landed at the San Fernando airport in La Union due to poor visibility at the Loakan airport in Baguio.

From San Fernando, they boarded cars and motored up to Baguio, proceeding directly to the city hall for a conference with local officials actively engaged in relief and rehabilitation work.

In the course of the conference, the President declared a moratorium on all loans contracted by disaster victims with government financing institution.

The President also informed the local officials of his order for the release of P20,000 for Baguio and P30,000 for Benguet for the local purchase of relief supplies for immediate distribution to destitute families.

The First Lady for her part asked the farmers to prepare listings of their seed requirements as well as fertilizers and pesticides.

She pointed out that foreign governments have always indicated their readiness to help out the Philippines and would only be too willing to extend assistance.

The First Lady, on arrival in Baguio, immediately launched an inoculation program.

Among those present at the conference were Gov. Juvenal K. Guerrero, Reps. Jose D. Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega of La Union, Gov. Benjamin Palispis and Rep. Andres Cosalan of Benguet, Mayor Luis Lardizabal, Public Works Secretary David M. Consunji.

August 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS formally launched the nation's massive rehabilitation program designed to head off serious dislocation of the economy following one of the most-destructive floods to hit the country in years. The President returned to his Malacañang-in-the-Field headquarters in Lingayen, Pangasinan where he personally distributed palay seeds as well as seeds of assorted short-time crops to farmers whose fields had been wiped out by the floodwaters.

Work on the repair and reconstruction of damaged roads, bridges and other public installations also went into full swing all over the disaster areas with the view to restoring transportation arteries and expedite the return to normalcy of these localities.

"Unless the normal flow of traffic is restored there are bound to be shortages in essential commodities and people in the affected areas would continue to suffer," the President said.

Taking a helicopter, the Chief Executive went around La Union and Pangasinan towns urging public works engineers and government agricultural technicians in the field to hurry up the reconstruction of damaged installations and the extension of assistance for the rehabilitation of agricultural farms.

The President also directed the fieldmen of the Bureau of Plant Industry to cut down the red tape in the distribution of palay seeds to farmers; whom he found were made to sign a number of forms before being given their share of seeds for replanting.

In Lingayen, the President also held a series of conference with various officials from the ravaged provinces.

The President returned about 1 p.m. to San Fernando, La Union where he had lunch at the Philippine Navy base in Poro Point.

He then resumed his conference with local officials over the progress of relief and rehabilitation work in their respective jurisdictions.

August 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS decided to fly to Ilocos Norte before returning to "Manila following their visit to Baguio, the mountain provinces, Pangasinan and La Union.

Arriving in Laoag about 10 a.m. from San Fernando, La Union where they spent the night, the First Couple was met at the Gabu airport by large delegations from Ilocos Norte and nearby provinces.

At the airport, the President found two helicopters of the Chinese Air Force, which were part of a fleet of 30 planes, consisting of 25 cargo planes, two P-123 troop carriers, two helicopters and one C-47.

The President and the First Lady met the crewmen during which they were informed that their fleet ferried 100 tons of relief goods, including: canned goods, preserved meat and C-rations.

From the airport, the First Couple together with their children Imee, Bongbong and Irene, headed a long motorcade to the city cathedral for Te Deum.

Then they proceeded to the local Divine Word-College where they-attended a memorial program for the late Gov. Roque Ablan, Sr. on the occasion of the 66th birth anniversary of-the late governor.

The President spent the rest of the day conferring-with-local-executive of Ilocos Norte and other provinces.

August 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS congratulated government highway engineers for the speedy repair of the Bued river bridge in Rosario, La Union which was reopened to general traffic. It is the only road artery to the Ilocos region.

In a message flashed from the Presidential plane en route back to Manila from Laoag, Ilocos Norte, the President at 10 a.m. told the engineers:

Upon arrival in Malacañang, the President ordered the mapping, by aerial photography of rivers in Manila and Central Luzon, even as he directed the Department of Public Works and Communications to get old maps of these rivers with the view to determining the illegal constructions thereat.

The President likewise ordered the removal of said illegal constructions should the owners themselves fail to remove them.

He directed the Secretary of Public Works and Communications to coordinate with the Philippine Air Force and the Bureau of Lands on the taking of aerial photographs, starting with the Pasig River, and to pinpoint to him who are squatting “whether they are big or small.”

In issuing the order, the President also appealed to corporations and persons concerned to cooperate with the national government in its efforts to prevent floods in Manila by clearing the channel of the Pasig River and the esteros.

The President also directed the Department of Public Works and Communications to start the dredging of Bulacan River and the clearing up of a channel to provide an outlet for the floodwaters.

The President continued devoting most of his time to the urgent task of relief and rehabilitation. Among the reports he received was that of the Infrastructure Operations Center on road repairs being undertaken in the Greater Manila area by the Bureau of Public Highways and army engineers.

President's Week in Review: August 11-17, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a two-hour conference in the afternoon with financial and technical advisers to explore possible sources of funds for rehabilitation and revise the infrastructure program of the government so as to give emphasis on rehabilitation projects.

Among those present at the conference were Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., PES Director-General Apolinario Orosa, CB Governor Gregorio Licaros, Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Public Works Secretary David M. Consunji, and Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata.

Also present at the conference were Agriculture Secretary Arturo R. Tanco, Ambassador Roberto Benedicto, Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña and Irrigation Administrator Alfredo Juinio.

The President continued focusing on the progress of relief and rehabilitation work as he spent the whole morning going over reports from-government agencies involved in the program.

Following his afternoon conference, the President directed the use of Philippine Navy boats in the distribution of relief aid in the bayshore towns of Laguna de Bay.

Then the President had an interview with Malacañang newsmen early in the evening.

August 12—

THE PRESIDENT declared a state of public calamity in nine Visayan and Mindanao provinces which had experienced long periods of severe droughts.

Covered by the proclamation (Proclamation No. 1060) were the provinces of Leyte, Bohol, Capiz, Cotabato, South Cotabato, Davao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, Iloilo and Surigao del Norte.

The President also ordered the seizure and confiscation of all sugar stocks stored in warehouses, refineries, sugar mill premises and other establishments in the entire island of Luzon, including the Greater Manila area, and their distribution through legitimate outlets to the general public and industrial users at prices fixed by the Price Control Council.

The directive was issued to the Secretary of National Defense, the Secretary of Commerce and Industry, the chief of the Philippine Constabulary and the Sugar Quota Administrator.

The President issued the order after domestic sugar continued to be scarce in the market, amidst the raising clamor from the nation's housewives for the commodity which is essential to the health of every man, woman and child.

In the course of the day, the President, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, received;

(1) Officers of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce who presented a donation for the flood victims. With them in calling at Malacañang was Chinese Ambassador Liu Chien.

(2) Theodore H. Mecke, Jr., vice president for public affairs of Ford Motors Company, who likewise presented a check for $37,125 (₱250,000) from Ford Motors Company for the relief of the disaster victims. Antonio Floirendo, who was with Mecke, also presented a check for ₱35,000 from Ely Black of the Mindanao Fruit Corporation.

The President expressed thanks and appreciation to the donors. He requested Ambassador Chien to convey the gratitude of the Filipino people to the government and people of the Republic of China for their generous manifestation of friendship and sympathy for the victims of the recent floods and typhoons.

“On behalf of the people of the Philippines, our government, and my own, may I extend to you and through you to the government and people of China, our gratitude for this manifestation of friendship and sympathy,” the President said.

In the afternoon, the President met with representatives of the Fertilizer Institute to whom he appealed for a reduction of the price of fertilizers so that the farmers could increase production to minimize the adverse effects of the typhoons, floods and droughts on rice production.

The President warned that unless everybody cooperated and forgot about profits, the country would face a bad rice shortage. “We should not equate the profit motive with the welfare and interests of our people,” he added.

Those who conferred with the President were Messrs. Cayetano Pineda, Leonie Gonzalez, Manny Dizon, George Marcelo and Ady Sison.

Early in the evening, the President received the crewmen of three Chinese Air Force planes and helicopters who flew relief and rescue missions over Central Luzon. The Chinese pilot called at Malacañang before leaving for Taipei.

In bidding goodbye to the CAF officers, the President requested them to convey personally to President Chiang Kai-Shek and Premier Chang Ching Kuo the gratitude and appreciation of the Filipino people for their manifestation of sympathy and friendship.

Led by Col, Wong Teh-fu and Lt. Cols. Ho Kai-wan and Chou Chi Whao, the group included Majors Yay “ian Lean, Chang Sheng Chuan, Lieu Sayh Jung, Chang Lin Sheng, Chao Asui Feng and Kuo Seng Tin.

They were accompanied to the President by Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, PAF chief; Lt. Col. David David, and Col. Chang Wei Lieh, air attache at the local Chinese embassy.

Following the call of the Chinese pilots, the President swore in Col. Pedro Mendoza as acting deputy commissioner of customs, vice Pedro Pacis who had retired.

August 13—

THE PRESIDENT spent almost the whole day working on official papers in his private study and keeping in touch with government agencies engaged in relief and rehabilitation work.

The only caller received by the President was General Tjokro Pranolo, personal representative of President Suharto of Indonesia who presented to him a donation of 10 tons of powdered baby milk from the government of Indonesia for the flood victims.

In receiving the donation, the President requested General Pranolo to convey the appreciation and gratitude of the Filipino people for the demonstration of “oneness and unity in time of crisis.”

He also expressed the hope that he would be able to convey his personal thanks and gratitude to the Indonesian President and through him the Indonesian government and people.

General Pranolo was accompanied to Malacañang by the crew members of the Indonesian Air Force cargo plane which brought the donation to Manila and Indonesian Ambassador Kusno Utomo.

August 14—

SPEAKING for the second time in as many weeks over radio and television, President Marcos called on the business and industrial sectors to abandon the profit motive during the period of national crisis so as not to jeopardize the public welfare.

The President likewise exhorted the public to actively participate in the maintenance of a system of prices of commodities and in cleaning up the premises of waste and garbage.

He called on the citizenry to inform the proper authorities like the Price Control Council, the Secretary of National Defense, the Secretary of Commerce and Industry, as well as his office, if necessary, of any withholding of foodstuff such as sugar by traders or outlets.

In like manner, he asked the public to report to the authorities any misconduct on the part of any public official or employee in relation to the distribution and sale of food supplies.

The President also appealed to the citizens not to wait for the initiatives of government but to take it upon themselves to clean up their premises.

Earlier in the day, the President conferred the Presidential Unit Citation Badge on the different U.S. civilian and military task forces which participated in the massive relief and rescue operations in flood-stricken provinces.

In ceremonies held at Malacañang shortly before noon, the President also awarded the Philippine Legion of Honor, rank of commander, on Lieut. Gen. Marvin L. McNickle, outgoing commander of the U.S. 13th Air Force at Clark Field and member of the RP-US Mutual Defense Board, for having “consistently demonstrated a genuine concern for the development of the posture of Philippine defense against external aggression.”

“The selfless efforts of the officers and men of these units helped immeasurably in the rescue, evacuation, inoculation and medical treatment of disaster victims as well as in the timely delivery of medical and food supplies to inundated communities.

The President pinned the Presidential Unit Citation Badge on 20 officers and men with ranks ranging from Lieutenant General down to Sergeant who received the award on behalf of their organizations.

The civilian U.S. Disaster Task Force was represented by Ambassador Henry Byroade, while the military representation was headed by Rear Admiral John H. Dick, representative in the Philippines of the commander-in-chief of the U.S. Naval Forces in the Pacific.

At the ceremonies were Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Maj. Gen. Rafael Ileto, AFP vice chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Jose Rancudo, PAF chief; Commodore Hilario M. Ruiz, PN chief; and other ranking AFP officers.

August 15—

THE PRESIDENT formally opened the Second International Convention of the Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor with a prayer for peace with freedom and individual dignity.

Addressing the delegates, the President said that aside from renewing ties of comradeship, “we must also use this occasion to join men and women everywhere who daily plead for peace and the right to live.”

“Therefore let the lesson we learned in Bataan ring out that while man seeks peace, there can be no peace without justice, without dignity and without freedom,” the President said.

The American delegates were headed by Thomas Hackett, past commander of the American Defenders of Bataan and Corregidor, Inc.; Burton Ellis, representing- American Ex-Prisoners of War; Col. George Moore of the 45th Philippine Scouts, and Mrs. Edith Knowles, president of the Gold Star Wives Association of America.

Filipino delegates, included Col. Rizalino P. Lacuna, national commander; Brig. Gen. Constante Cruz, vice commander; Defense Undersecretary Manuel Q. Salientes, national director; Col. Antonio Vinluan, national finance officer; Florentino de Guzman, Col. Sixto Dante, Col. Raymundo Paredes, and other chapter commanders.

In the afternoon, the President and the First Lady received Ambassador and Mrs. John Curie of Great Britain who called to say goodbye before leaving for London.

In making a farewell call, the Curies conveyed their gratitude and appreciation to the Filipino people for giving them a fruitful and very pleasant stay during the ambassador’s tour of duty in the Philippines.

The President and the First Lady, in turn, thanked them for their efforts to forge closer ties of friendship between the Philippines and their country, and expressed the hope that they would always remain true friends of the Filipinos and help advance the cause of the Philippines whenever occasion arises.

August 16—

THE PRESIDENT conferred with Congress leaders on vital administration measures which he had earlier certified to the third special session of Congress.

The President called the meeting to determine as well the monetary policy the country should adopt in view of the discussions of the National Economic Recovery Bill in Congress.

The President said that the bill pending in Congress has something to do with matters so fundamental that they would require changes in other policies of government because almost all policies spring from the monetary exchange policy.

Present during the conference were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Speaker Protempore Jose Aldeguer, Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata and Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. Licaros.

In the course of the day, the President thanked the United Nations for the assistance extended to the flood victims and at the same time urged the UN to work out an organization which would moderate typhoon and weather conditions in general.

The President conveyed the gratitude of the entire people of the Philippines to the UN through Faruk N. Berkul, UN coordinator for disaster relief, who had been sent to the Philippines to survey the extent of the catastrophe.

“We are glad that the world in general, and now the United Nations, had taken note of the pervasive nature of this disaster and we are also heartened by the fact that relief has come from all sectors, large and small nations,” the President said.

“But more than this,” the President said, “I hope the United Nations will look into the Question of a more systematic and scientific approach to typhoon and weather moderation as a long-range plan.”

The UN official assured the President that this was one point he had taken account of “and will keep under active consideration.”

The UN official also said that he would coordinate the relief activities of the UN agencies and donor countries for the Philippines.

Mr. Berkul was accompanied to Malacañang by William Harding, UNDP resident representative; and Ambassador Hortencio Brillantes, Philippine envoy to Geneva.

Also present during Berkul's call were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senator Ambrosio Padilla, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., and Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes.

Among other actions, the President ordered the establishment of a national office to handle garbage and waste disposal. He:

- (1) Asked the local executives in the Greater Manila area to meet and agree on a general program on waste disposal.
- (2) Designated Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña as coordinator of the task of setting up an integrated waste and garbage disposal program.
- (3) Directed Chairman Reynaldo Lesaca of the Anti-Pollution Commission to look into the pollution aspects of garbage and waste disposal and to make the necessary recommendations.
- (4) Ordered a study on the possibility of draining the Laguna de Bay of floodwaters by widening the Napindan River, which is the only outlet.

August 17—

THE PRESIDENT conferred with sugar planters and traders in Malacañang in view of complaints of a sugar shortage and profiteering after he had issued the order and started the sale of seized sugar stocks at government prices.

During the conference, the traders pledged their cooperation and in that spirit, placed all their personnel, organizational machinery and trucks at the disposal of the government to insure the smooth distribution of the commodity.

Commerce Secretary and concurrently Price Control Council Chairman Troadio Quiazon, Jr., said there was no shortage but that the scarcity was due to lack of distribution facilities.

Present at the conference, besides Secretary Quiazon and Sugar Quota Administrator Jose Unson, were Chito Santos of CAREBI, representing sugar refineries; Armando Narciso of Insular Refining Company; Mrs. Fe Castillo of YUDECO; Jose V. Mapa, Jr., secretary of the Philippine Sugar Refinery Association; Elias Coscoluela of Founders Sugarlandia; Ady Sison for the planters; Francisco Varua, Angel Dizon, Jose Mari Chan, Alex Limjoco, Danny Nakpil, Alfredo Villafana and Irineo S. Juan, representing traders; and Senator Alejandro Almendras, representing Davao sugar planters.

Earlier in the day, the President received the city councilors of Davao City who sought approval of H. Bill No. 4456, increasing the basic salaries of Davao City officials.

During their talks, the President reiterated the basic policy of not giving salary increases and promotions to government employees, as part of the retrenchment policy and to generate funds for the rehabilitation program.

The President told the delegations that there was a plan for general increases in salaries of city and provincial officials but that in view of the calamity "all salary increases had been temporarily suspended."

Also received by the President were the officials of the Olympic delegation led by Senator Ambrosio Padilla, president of the Philippine Amateur Athletic Federation.

The President told the officials of the Olympic delegation to keep expenses within the ₱300,000 earmarked for the delegation by the PAAF and any other amounts donated by different organizations.

We are going to absolutely inhibit the expenditure of government funds for this so that our people will realize we are not going to spend money which otherwise could be spent for relief and rehabilitation,” he said.

The President directed the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office to divert the ₱200,000 earmarked for the Philippine Olympic delegation to the national rehabilitation program.

President's Week in Review: August 18-24, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

August 18—

PRESIDENT MARCOS focused on desk work and other urgent matters of state.

He was particularly concerned about ways and means of speeding up relief and rehabilitation work in the flood-stricken provinces of Northern and Central Luzon and in some bayshore towns affected by the swelling of the Laguna de Bay.

August 19—

THE PRESIDENT conferred with national officials and local executives of the Greater Manila' area in order to effect closer coordination and cooperation between the national and local governments on the various aspects of rehabilitation.

Thoroughly discussed in the meeting were the flood control and sewerage program, the road and street cementing, and the cleaning of garbage and waste.

The President pointed out that he was compelled to take a direct hand in what is fundamentally the responsibility of local governments because the problem has grown to such an extent as to constitute a national problem.

He created a task force to attend to the flood control program, garbage and waste disposal, with Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña as coordinator.

The President emphasized to the local officials that these essential services are fundamentally their primary responsibility and that the national government would only coordinate all their efforts and facilities.

Present at the meeting were Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Health Secretary Clemente Gatmaitan, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Agriculture Secretary Arturo Tanco, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Undersecretary Manuel Q. Salientes of National Defense, Directors Alejandro Deleña of Public Works and Vicente Valdellon of Lands, Chairman Reynaldo Lesaca of the Anti-Pollution Commission, Chairman Pacifico Lopez de Leon of the Infrastructure Operations Center, Commissioner Andres Mane of Fisheries;

Mayors Pablo Cuneta of Pasay City and Osmundo de Guzman of Marikina, Rizal; Asst. Fiscals Melecio S. Peña of Quezon City, Octavio F. Basa of Manila, Roman Gargantiel and Jose Flameniano of Pasay City, Jesse S. Lee representing Mayor Joseph Estrada of San Juan, Rizal; Florencio R. Perez, representing Mayor Renato Lopez of Mandaluyong; Augusto F. Perez and Fernando S. Ungson, representing Mayor Marcial Samson of Caloocan City, Isaias Alo and others representing Makati, Rizal.

Earlier in the morning, the President conferred the Distinguished Order of Kalantiao (first class) on Associate Justice J.B.L. Reyes of the Supreme Court at ceremonies held in Malacañang.

In a toast following the ceremony, the President told a large group of Cabinet officials, members of the judiciary, friends and relatives of the awardee: "I ask you to rise and join me in a toast to a man whose services we will miss in government and in our society, a man, who has helped put life into the dry letter of the law, gave spirit to the strictures of the Constitution and helped established a social conscience in our country and society."

In thanking the President for the award, Justice Reyes said it showed how deeply the President appreciates the role of the Supreme Court in the administration of justice.

“I realize, however, that you could not confer this Order on the court itself because there will be a lot of evil-minded men who would try and consider it as an attempt to influence the court,” Justice Reyes said.

Among those present at the ceremony were members of the Cabinet led by Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, and of the judiciary, from the Supreme Court down to the lowest level, headed by Chief Justice Roberto Conception.

Early in the afternoon, the President received Eugene Torre, Filipino chess champion of the Asian zone, who paid a courtesy call.

He was accompanied to Malacañang by members of the Philippine Chess Federation led by Manuel Lara, secretary of the federation.

August 20—

THE PRESIDENT worked at his desk, even as he kept in touch from time to time with his assistants in the Malacañang-in-the-Field office to check on the progress of the rehabilitation work in the flood-stricken areas of Northern and Central Luzon.

August 21—

THE PRESIDENT continued concentrating on urgent official papers and other state business.

Except for some department heads who consulted him on matters concerning their respective offices, the President did not receive other callers.

August 22—

THE PRESIDENT conducted an hour-long aerial survey of the communal fishing grounds and rivers in Bulacan and Pampanga.

In Hagonoy, the President saw public works men dismantling illegally constructed fishpond dikes within the communal fishing grounds.

In the course Of the survey, the President reiterated his order to the Department of Public Works and Communications to tear down all illegally constructed fishpond dikes in Bulacan, as well as to stop the construction of dikes in the province which appeared to have been started on the onset of the floods that devastated Central Luzon.

The President also directed the public works department to clear the Labangan Channel as soon as possible. The President had ordered the release of P10 million for the purpose.

With the President in conducting the survey were Public Works and Communications Secretary David M. Consunji, Public Works Director Alejandro Deleña, Bulacan Governor Ignacio Santiago, Provincial District Engineer Jose Regalado and other provincial officials.

While attending to desk work in the afternoon, the President, among others directed Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos and Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza to analyze the Supreme Court decision on parity rights and to submit their recommendations.

The President said that measures be promptly adopted to avert the possible commission of abuse in the enforcement of the Supreme Court ruling by public officials.

August 23—

THE PRESIDENT received a string of callers, composed mostly of members of Congress and local executives, who apprised him of problems in their respective jurisdictions.

Among the actions taken by the President was to issue a directive to Chairman Eliseo Villamor of the Rice and Corn Administration to adopt more expeditious ways of rice distribution, particularly in the flooded areas.

“We must adopt extremely expeditious manners of distributing rice to prevent the people from going hungry,” the President said.

Irrked by the report of Rep. Joaquin Chipeco, Jr. of Laguna and Mayor Lorenzo Meneses of Los Baños, the President directed the RCA official to allow the sale of rice without repacking.

Other callers included Senators Leonardo Perez and Rene Espina, Reps. Manuel Zosa, Ramon Durano, Gaudencio Beduya, and Emerito Calderon of Cebu, Vicente Cerilles of Zamboanga del Sur, Leopoldo Diaz and Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija, Pedro Medalia of Mindoro Occidental, Amando Cope of Albay, Fermin Caram, Jr. of Iloilo, Simeon Valdez of Ilocos Norte, Francisco Reyes and Joaquin Roces of Manila, Constancio Maglana of Davao Oriental, Antonio Villar of Pangasinan, Jose Neri of Camiguin, and Felipe Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, and Gov. Carlos Cajelo of Cotabato.

Earlier in the day, the President conferred the ancient Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, on Foreign Minister Yong Shik Kim of Korea who paid his respect on the President at Malacañang, following his arrival for a three-day visit.

The President extended the sympathies of the Filipino people to the people of Korea who have also suffered from floods, and at the same time conveyed through Minister Yong the gratitude and appreciation of the Filipino people to the Koreans for their generous donations to the Central Luzon flood victims.

In presenting the Sikatuna award, the President cited the visiting Korean dignitary for “his noteworthy espousal in the United Nations of measures to insure the maintenance of international peace and security.”

The Korean dignitary was accompanied to Malacañang by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Undersecretary Manuel Collantes, Ambassador Se Ryun Kim of Korea, and the members of the minister's entourage.

August 24—

THE PRESIDENT met with the Cabinet to analyze the Supreme Court decision on parity rights and to discuss measures toward preventing confusion, or possible dislocation of the economy, which might result from a possible misinterpretation of the decision.

During the two-hour meeting, the President took up, among others:

- 1) The position the government would adopt in the event a motion for reconsideration of the Supreme Court decision is filed.
- 2) The steps to be taken by the various departments, offices and agencies of the government in the event the decision is retained by the Supreme Court.
- 3) The reports submitted by the Justice Committee headed by Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos and the Economic Committee headed by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr.

The President directed the two committees to continue their studies and to submit further recommendations pending submission of the motion, for reconsideration by the adverse party.

The President' also ordered a complete and in-depth study by the various, departments, offices and agencies concerned, on the effects of the decision on the national economy as a whole.

The-President pointed out that while the Supreme Court decision is not yet final it is necessary that preparations be taken in the event it becomes final.

During the meeting, the President also directed:

- 1) Rice and Corn Administration Chairman and General Manager Eliseo Villamor to improve the rice distribution system.
- 2) All department heads to prepare programs of expenditures of their allotments under the P300-million Calamity Fund.

Present at the meeting were Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries Clemente Gatmaitan of Health, David Consunji of Public Works and Communications Cesar Virata of Finance, Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs, Juan L. Manuel of Education, Blas F. Ople of Labor, Conrado Estrella of Agrarian Reforms, Constancio Castaneda of General Services, Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Troadio Quiazon, Jr. of Commerce and Industry Estefania Aldaba-Lim of Social Welfare, Arturo Tanco of Agriculture and Natural Resources.

Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Chairman Vicente Paterno of the Board of Investments, Chairman Mama Sinsuat of the Commission on National Integration, RCA Chairman and General Manager Eliseo Villamor, Commissioner Gregorio Bilog, Jr. of Land Registration, Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza, Justice Undersecretary Efren Plana, Director, General Apolinario Orosa of the Presidential Economic Staff, Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoile, Central Bank Governor Gregorio S. President's Week in Review: August 25-31, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with leaders of Congress to press for the passage of the important revenue measures still pending in Congress, in view of the proximity of the adjournment of the third special session.

Discussed at the two-hour meeting were the Tariff and Customs Code omnibus amendments, amendment to the tax on cigarettes, removal of all exemptions from taxes or subsidies, public works bill, especially the items for reconstruction and rehabilitation arising out of the flood and other calamities, and amendments to R.A. No. 917 otherwise known as the Special Highways Fund Law.

The President also called attention to the Grain Authority bill, Philippine National Bank bill, Oil Exploration [Bank bill, bills providing sources of fund for the calamity law, bills authorizing borrowings from foreign sources for the calamity; and the Cooperatives bill.

On the implications of the Supreme Court decision on parity fights, the President and the Congress leaders decided to call an Executive-Legislative meeting after the special session.

Present at the meeting were Senate President Gil J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senators Arturo M. Tolentino and Lorenzo Teves, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Secretaries David M. Consunji of Public Works and Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoili, Assistant Executive Secretary Ronaldo Zamora and others.

At mid-morning, the President went on a three-hour “rib-cracking” drive through Manila, streets, and inspected the rehabilitation work being done by engineers of the Bureau of Public Highways and city engineers, as well.

The President was accompanied by Reps. Joaquin R. Roces and Francisco G. Reyes, and Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino.

The President told newsmen later that he would submit to Congress a bill creating a Greater Manila Transport Authority, which he considered a new approach to the transportation problem.

The President devoted the rest of the afternoon and early evening to official papers.

August 26—

THE PRESIDENT flew over the Napindan River in the morning to check with experts on what could be done to relieve the still inundated barrios around Laguna de Bay.

In the course of the aerial survey, the President directed the Department of Public Works and Communications to study stop-gap and long-range measures that would hasten the withdrawal of floodwaters from the lakeshore areas.

The President concentrated on desk work in the afternoon.

THE PRESIDENT led in the national commemoration of National Heroes Day at the Libingan ng mga Bayani at Fort Bonifacio, Rizal. Addressing the nation at solemn rites held at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at high noon, the President pledged anew the determination of the Filipino people to preserve their freedom at all cost. : “We, the Filipino people, are ready to pay the price of freedom anywhere, at any time and at any place. Like the Unknown Soldier, we shall demand no/reward nor expect any exceptional recognition, but merely hope our efforts shall indeed buy the freedom that our people desire and dream for.” The President reiterated his warning that an alien ideology, using the very freedom that the Unknown Soldier had fought for and won, was trying to subvert and destroy the government.

“Therefore,” the President said, “it is necessary that we place on record before the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier that we recognize our duties and obligations and that we shall never fail them” After the brief remarks, the President walked to the foot of the Tomb and laid a wreath, offered a few moments of silent prayer and saluted. Those who also laid wreaths at the Tomb were Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senator Lorenzo Teves and Mrs. Yolanda Veloso. representing Senator Helena Z. Benitez, and Dean Gloria Santos of the Philippine Historical Association. Also present at the ceremonies were Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, General Romeo C. Espino, AFP chief of staff; Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief; Brig. Gen. Rafael G. Zagala, PA commander; and members of the Philippine Historical Association led by Chairman Esteban de Ocampo. The President worked on urgent state papers in the afternoon.

August 28—

THE PRESIDENT received U.S. Senator Daniel K. Inouye, chairman of the foreign affairs subcommittee of the U.S. senate committee on appropriations, following his arrival for a five-day survey of flood-stricken areas in Luzon.

The President gave the senator an intensive briefing on the extent of the damage wrought by the destructive flood which hit the country. He told the U.S. lawmaker that the Philippine government would impose additional tax burden on its people to finance a massive relief and rehabilitation program.

Asked about the ideological threat to the country, the President-Assured the visiting senator that “subversion here is under control” and that “the principal problem is still the economic” recovery of the nation.”

Inouye told the President that he was here to survey the devastated areas in order to help the U.S. Congress determine what assistance it could extend this country.

The President also received Dr. Helmut Kohl, prime minister of the state of Rheinland-Pfalz (Central Rhineland-palatinate), West Germany, who conveyed the sympathy of the people of the Federal Republic of Germany to the Filipino people following the destructive floods that hit this country.

The President thanked the German official and the German people, saying that such feeling of sympathy was indeed demonstrated by their donation in the form of medicine.

“I am glad that our peoples are helping each other not only in this particular calamity,” the President told Dr. Kohl. “We have also received some loans from Germany to help us in the development of our country.”

The President also took occasion to congratulate the German people for the outstanding economic development in their country, as well as for hosting the Olympic games which, he said, is a “wonderful occasion” for men engaged in athletics to attain objectives which statesmen failed to attain.

With Dr. Kohl in seeing the President were Dr. Alois Mertes, his executive secretary; and Dr. Horst Weisel, charge d’affaires of the local German embassy.

Later, the President had a series of conferences on various matters, particularly on relief and rehabilitation work, with some officials of the Executive Department.

August 29—

THE PRESIDENT told Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing to proceed with the removal of illegally constructed houses and other structures' in accordance with the President's original directive ordering the clearing of esteros in the Greater Manila area.

The President said that under the principle laid down by the department of justice, to the effect that constructions within river lines may be removed by national and local authorities, the four cities and towns may remove obstructions that impede the smooth flow of water on the esteros after proper notification is given to those affected.

The President also referred to the Department of Public Works and Communications Mayor Bagatsing's request for heavy equipment to be used in the demolition of such obstacles along the esteros.

He likewise referred to the Department of Justice for study the request of Mayor Bagatsing that he initiate action to cancel titles issued by the Bureau of Lands to owners of the buildings in question,

Among the papers that he issued from his desk in the afternoon were proclamations declaring Wednesday, August 30, as a special holiday in San Juan, Rizal and Bulacan province, and Friday, September 1, as a special public holiday in Baguio City.

August 30—

THE PRESIDENT directed Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo to formulate a proposal for the United Nations on the moderation of typhoons, rain and floods and other related natural disasters.

The President also ordered the foreign secretary to seek the world body's participation in affording protection and/or assistance to countries afflicted by said natural disaster.

Earlier in the morning, the President received, among others, the 23-man Hongkong delegation competing in the RP-Hongkong Y.M.C.A. swimfest hosted by the Philippines.

Headed by Chris Polley, a New Zealander, and accompanied by Angel M. Golmenares, assistant executive secretary of the Philippine Y.M.C.A., the members of the delegation called on the President to pay their respect before leaving.

In receiving the delegation, the President expressed the hope that they would be able to promote greater understanding and friendly relations between their country and the Philippines "although you come at a time when/the country is in the midst of a calamity." The President explained that with floods in the North and drought in the South, "we are in a real mess."

August 31—

THE PRESIDENT did not receive callers, and worked instead on official papers in his private study.

In the evening, the President convened Congress to another special session for the enactment of revenue measures on the reconstruction and rehabilitation of Central Luzon and other flood-stricken areas in Laguna, Rizal and Greater Manila area.

President's Week in Review: September 1-7, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 1—

PRESIDENT and MRS. MARCOS received U.S. Senator Daniel K. Inouye who came to say goodbye before leaving, after making an extensive survey of the flood damage.

"I hope I can be an articulate spokesman on the appalling problems we have here," Senator Inouye said, "when I make a personal assessment before the Senate and Congress."

The President and the First Lady thanked the U.S. Senator for his concern for the Filipinos as demonstrated by his trip to the flood areas. They expressed this gratitude on behalf of the people and government of the Philippines, and on their own.

In parting, the President embraced the U.S. senator who, like him had served in World War II, losing his right arm in action. The First Couple bade him bon voyage.

In the course of the day, the President presented the Ancient Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, to General Maraden Panggabean, Indonesian minister for defense and security and deputy commander-in-chief of the Indon armed forces, in recognition of his contribution to closer understanding and friendship between his country and the Philippines.

In presenting the award, the President expressed the hope that the close understanding now existing between the Philippines and Indonesia shall continue to be further strengthened by frequent exchange, of visits, and that the Philippines and Indonesia, which are joined by geographical propinquity, common ideology, common origin and common destiny, have demonstrated that it is possible for the two countries to move along the lines of the ideals of their forbears long forgotten.

"Today," the President said, "the successors of those forbears who were once united seek unity beyond mere origin, beyond mere governments, beyond mere countries, but in friendship, affection and amity."

In accepting the award, General Panggabean expressed the hope that in line with the independent and active foreign policies of the Philippines and Indonesia, they will go hand in hand together towards the promotion of peace and security in Asia and the Pacific.

The Indonesian official was accompanied by Madame Panggabean, Maj. Gen. Hasnan Habib, assistant for general planning; Col. John Paat, Dr. Hidajat Makmin, Lt. Col. Taianus Hutapea and Maj. Effendi Singgih.

Also present at the ceremony besides the visitor's official entourage were Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Ambassador Kusno Utomo, Undersecretary Manuel Q. Salientes, General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff; and others.

September 2—

PRESIDENT MARCOS approved the recommendation of the Board of Investments (BOI) that only five car assemblers be allowed- to participate, in. the country's progressive car manufacturing program.

The President explained that the appeals and petitions for reconsideration of the decision of the Board of Investments on the car manufacturing program, as well as the evidence and arguments submitted, do not constitute sufficient justification for altering the BOI's recommendation. The President, however, warned that each of the proponents that qualified must comply with its proposals in every given year. Failure to do so would mean disqualification at that particular stage of their participation.

In the afternoon, he held a press conference at the Malacañang State Dining Room, during which he also took occasion to call on owners of properties who may be prejudiced by the restoration of esteros and waterways in Manila and other areas to voluntarily dismantle those illegal construction.

“I would like to appeal to those who may be prejudiced to note that there are times when we must disregard personal interest for the national welfare. It is necessary that we open these esteros and it would be best if we are not disagreeable,” the President said. The clearing of the esteros and waterways would redound to the public good, the President stressed, “and there is no compromise on that.”

September 3—

THE PRESIDENT did not receive any callers and instead worked on official papers and other matters of state in his private study.

September 4—

THE PRESIDENT conferred with rural development, animal industry, plant industry and fisheries officials on rehabilitation measures in flood-ravaged areas.

During the conference, the President directed the release of P2 million for the rehabilitation of damaged crops and livestock. He ordered that P200,000 of the P1 million earmarked for the Fisheries Commission be released immediately so that bangus fries for the replanting of fishponds destroyed “by the flood could be purchased soonest. The President asked the officials to submit their updated programs of rehabilitation and the required funding.

Earlier in the morning, the President and the First Lady received a donation of three and a half tons of assorted vegetable seeds from the Republic of China,

The President thanked the Chinese government and people for the donation, which will be used in the rehabilitation of destroyed agricultural crops.

He likewise thanked the crew members of the People’s Republic of China relief ship “Anting” which brought in relief goods for the flood victims in Central Luzon.

Officials of the relief ship—Capt. Chien Yung Chang, Political Commissar Wang Wai Chieu, and Purser Shy Kua Yung—were to have been received by the President, upon representations of the Philippine National Red Cross with the Appointments Secretary, but they left before the appointed time apparently because they did not want to meet with a Nationalist Chinese group led by Ambassador Liu Chieh.

In accepting the Nationalist Chinese seed donation, the President said that the aid is appreciated by the Filipino people, whether prejudiced by the flood or not.

Accompanying Ambassador Liu Chieh when he turned over the seed donation were Capt. Yu Chengsiang and Chief Engineer Ju-Shen Chang of the Chinese ship Hai Tai, and ranking members of the Chinese embassy.

At 12:30 p.m., the President had a luncheon conference with members of the economic mission of the World Bank, during which he presented a single package program on the financing by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development of the repair and reconstruction of 600 kilometers of roads destroyed by the recent floods.

The World Bank officials were Parvez Hassan, Maurice Dickerson and Hendrick Van Helden.

Others who met with the President in the course of the day included Commerce and Industry Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon, who informed him that the basic retail prices of sugar remain the same.

September 5—

THE PRESIDENT received the personnel of the Malacañang Emergency Hospital, whom he congratulated for their good work in healing the sick, mostly flood victims, who had sought treatment at the hospital which was established as part of the relief and rehabilitation efforts. Headed by Cdr. Artemio Pertiza, deputy commander and officer-in-charge of the hospital, and Maj. Jose Magsanoc, the hospital personnel paid their respects to the President and the First Lady.

Toward noon, the President was interviewed by Gerald Green and Jack Reynolds, producer and Asia operations manager, respectively, of the National Broadcasting Corporation, on Philippine policy on cultural minorities.

The NBC man also gave the President a picture of a Tasaday woman and her child, the first infant to be born since the discovery of the.

The group was accompanied to Malacañang by John E. Nance of the Associated Press.

The rest of his working hours was spent on paper work.

September 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conveyed the gratitude and Appreciation of the Filipino people and government to the mayor of Las Vegas and the governor of Nevada for their concern for the over 3,000 Filipinos living in that city. The President asked Mel Salazar, a wartime buddy in Bataan and Corregidor, and now president of the Filipino community in Las Vegas, to convey the messages to Mayor Oran Gregson and Governor Mike Callaghan.

In paying his respects to the President, Salazar also showed the President plans for the proposed Philippine trade house in Las Vegas, and at the same time turned over his personal donation of P1,000 in cash for the flood victims.

Salazar was accompanied by his wife, Trinidad.

After Salazar's call, the President received members of Congress who took up with him legislative matters, particularly the prospects of passage of administration measures, and local problems as well.

In the course of his meeting with the solons, the President referred to the Board of Pardons and Parole the recommendation of the House committee on justice for an absolute pardon for Cesar Guy.

The President informed Rep. Joaquin Chipeco, Jr. of Laguna, committee chairman, who brought the recommendation signed by all the members of the committee, except one who was out of town, that he could not extend executive clemency except upon recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Upon representations made by Rep. Chipeco, the President likewise ordered the Philippine. National Railways to construct a spur that would connect the squatter resettlement area in San Pedro, Laguna to the main railroad line.

Rep. Chipeco said that the squatters had refused to settle, down there because of the lack of means of transportation to their places of work.

Among those who called on the President were Rep. Jose Puyat, Jr. of Surigao del Sur who brought with him the municipal officials of Manhatag, including- the mayor, vice mayor and nine councilors who formally affiliated with the Nacionalista Party before the President Reps. Jose Aspiras and Joaquin Ortega of La Union who accompanied a 20-man delegation headed by Gov. Juvenal Guerrero; Reps. Roberto Estrella and Antonio Villar of Pangasinan; Jose Leido, Jr. of Mindoro Oriental; Pedro Medalla of Mindoro Occidental; Romulo Lumauig of Ifugao; Lamberto Macias of Oriental Negros; Andres Cosalan of Benguet; Antonio Diaz of Zambales; Leopoldo Diaz of Nueva Ecija; Lucas Cauton of Ilocos Sur; Manuel Zosa and Emerito Calderon of Cebu; and Carlos Imperial of Albay.

In the course of the day, the President submitted to the Commission on Appointments for confirmation the nominations of 34 individuals to various posts in the government.

Heading the list of nominees were Hon. Carlos Faustiwo, as ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary; and Rodolfo A. Nocon, as chief state prosecutor of the Department of Justice.

Among other actions, the President issued the following statement in connection with the death of Israeli athletes in Munich:

“As members of the human family, we are outraged by these violent and senseless deaths in Munich. This violence sets back the quest for unity and brotherhood to which all sporting nations participating in the Olympiad have dedicated the ideals of their youths.

We vigorously condemn this violence, and as an expression of our outrage, I am asking the Philippine delegation to the Olympic games to stop all participation in the games and to immediately return home.”

The President likewise sent a message of sympathy to Prime Minister Golda Meir of Israel.

September 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with Mayor Ramon D. Bagatsing of Manila on problems affecting the city, particularly the rehabilitation of roads and dredging of esteros, and the threat to peace and order.

During the meeting, the President appealed to Mayor Bagatsing to cooperate actively with the national government in the repair of city roads and streets, and the dredging of esteros by taking the initiative in clearing the esteros of squatters.

The President also asked Mayor Bagatsing to get rid of garbage collectors who collect cum shaw from city residents.

On the peace and order situation, the President counseled the people not to panic because the national and local governments are cooperating and adopting contingency plans to meet any eventuality and to protect the lives and property of the people.

Noting the increasing intensity of provocations against the citizenry, the President said “we cannot tolerate such a situation, but it is not necessary for us or the citizenry to panic.”

Explaining the contingency plan, the President said this is the plan the local government will adopt in the event that they felt they could no longer meet the threat on their own and had to call on the METRO-COM, the national government and the national defense secretary for aid.

Present at the conference were Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile, Director Jolly Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation, Col. Alfredo Montoya, chief of the Metropolitan Police Command; Brig. Gen. Gerardo Tamayo and Col. James Barbers, chief and deputy chief, respectively, of the Manila Metropolitan Police, Public Works Director Alejandro Delena, Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino and Deputy Budget Commissioner Juan Agcaoili.

Earlier in the day, the President was serenaded by his wartime buddies in the United States Armed Forces in the Pacific—Northern Luzon (USAFIP-NL), who presented him with five books as gift on his 55th birthday on September 11.

Headed by Rep. Joaquin Ortega and Governor Juvenal K. Guerrero of La Union, the President's fellow guerrillas, who were the first to serenade him on his birthday, presented him with books entitled Marcuse Negations, Marcuse Five Lectures, Marcuse, an Essay on Liberation; The Nation Is Burdened, and The Kennedy Legacy.

The President thanked his friends for their thoughtfulness:

Among those who called on the President were Brig. Gen. Segundo Velasco, Justice Undersecretary Ramon Fernandez, Commodore Santiago Nuval, Election Commissioner Lino Patajo, President Esteban Cabanos of the Philippine Veterans Bank, former Governor Godofredo Reyes of Ilocos Sur and Atty. Ramon Encarnacion.

In the evening, the President had an interview with newsmen covering Malacañang.

AUOFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 5 —

PRESIDENT MARCOS highlighted his activities with a meeting with his Cabinet to discuss, among other things, the release of funds for state colleges and universities, as well as measures that will ensure peak efficiency of the whole government machinery during the electoral campaign period.

One result of the meeting, which lasted from 12:15 p.m. to about 3 p.m., was the Presidential directive to Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz to meet on the priorities for release of funds to state colleges and universities. Deserving projects, he said, must get primary attention.

In the morning, the President, together with the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, motored to the University of Santo Tomas where he addressed the seminar on rural medicine, attended by provincial health officers and chiefs of provincial and city hospitals, PACD workers, and representatives of the Civic Action Corps of the Department of National Defense.

In his speech, the President said that the rural health program will continue to enjoy the highest possible priority.

Father Rector Jesus Diaz, who welcomed the delegates, extended advanced "Happy Birthday" greetings to the President, who marks his birth anniversary on September 11.

Back in Malacañang at 11 a.m., the President and the First Lady received world famous opera star Beverly Sills who made a courtesy call. Miss Sills won many admirers here after singing at the MeraJco theatre.

With Miss Sills were the diva's mother, Mrs. Shirlev Silverman, daughter Muffy, and husband Peter Greenough.

The President then repaired to the State Dining Hall for the Cabinet meeting.

Among those present were Vice President Fernando Lopez, who is also Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources; Secretary of Justice Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of National Defense Ernesto Mata, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, CNI Commissioner Mamintal Tamano, PES Director-General Placido Mapa, Jr., Secretary of Commerce and Industry Leonides S. Virata, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco, Secretary of Health Amadeo Cruz;

Secretary of Public Works and Communications Rene Espina, Secretary of Finance Eduardo Romualdez, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs Jose D. Ingles, Executive Secretary Ernesto Maceda, Secretary of Labor Bias F. Ople, NEC Chairman Marcelo Balatbat, BOI Chairman Cesar

E. A. Virata, PANAMIN Secretary Manuel Elizalde, Jr., Undersecretary of General Services Dominador Chipeco, Secretary of Social Welfare Gregorio Feliciano, OEC Administrator Constancio Castaneda, and Land Authority Gov. Conrado Estrella.

Following the Cabinet meeting, the President rested briefly. Refreshed, he began receiving provincial delegations. Among the first groups to see him was the Bicolano contingent led by Senator Dominador Aytona, Rep. Jose Alberto and Gov. Vicente Alberto of Catanduanes. He then met in succession Gov. Amado Almazan of Kalinga-Apayao, Sen. Ambrosio Padilla, and Rep. Angel Concepcion of Nueva Ecija.

The local officials reported to the President on various projects in their localities, and apprised him of other urgent needs.

The President later formally inducted into the Nacionalista Party 19 Liberal Party leaders from Eastern Samar, led by Gov. Victor Amasa.

The mass affiliation was sponsored by Rep. Felipe Abrigo, who accompanied the group to Malacañang.

Others sworn in were Mayors Cornelio M. Sison of Guiuan, Luis A. Capito of Borongan, Hospicio R. Rivera of Dolores, Gregorio B. Anguren of Quinapondan, Felix K. Morillos of San Policarpio, Rufilo L. Tan of Llorente, Felix P. Doligon of San Julian, Guillermo M. Altar of Gen. MacArthur, Pedro E. Candido of Hernani, Pio Pinangay of Arteche, Jesus B. Rediang of Mercedes, Gerundio C. Lira of Balangkayan. Francisco Cabugawan of Salcedo, Isidro M. Campomanes of Maslog, and Lucas M. Lomuntad of Jipapad: Vice Mayor Gil A. Corado of Maydolong, Dr. Roberto L. Tan. Jr. of Llorente, and Jaime Opinion of Oras.

In the evening the President was guest of honor at the opening of the convention of the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources Employees Association (DANREA), held at the Manila Hotel.

The President emphasized in his speech the two major tasks of government in agriculture, namely, to achieve self-sufficiency in food—which has been realized—and to produce surpluses for export.

In an executive order amending Executive Order No. 182-A which created the National Social Action Council, the President specified the full membership of the body.

As stated in the amendatory order, the Council shall be composed of the chairman of the Manpower Development Council, the secretary of education, the secretary of the PACD, the commissioner on national integration, the secretary-general of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines;

The chairman of the Social Action Committee of the Federation of Christian Family Movement, the executive secretary of the National Council of Churches of the Philippines, the president of the Philippine Rural Reconstruction Movement, and the presidents of the Philippine Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Philippine Medical Association and the Philippine Bar Association.

The council will elect a chairman and a vice-chairman from among themselves.

September 6—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had another dialogue with student leaders this time from the University of the Philippines, who have been agitating for the release of P10 million, an unprogrammed outlay earmarked for projects of state colleges and Universities.

The President told them that he will release Monday part of the un-programmed outlay to fund specified projects, but emphasized that he was doing this not because of pressure from any source, least of all the threat of student protest, but because it was feasible and there are deserving projects which need immediate funding.

Also present at the meeting were Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz and Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco.

Following his meeting with the student leaders, the President conferred with Director of Public Works Alejandro Delena on the progress of the construction of prefabricated schoolbuildings.

Deleña also submitted a report on the allocation of prefab schoolbuildings to provinces, cities and towns, throughout the country.

In the afternoon, the President received Gov. Samuel F. Reyes of Isabela and Rep. Andres Cosalan of Mt. Province, who took up local problems with him.

He later received some 400 foresters from all over the country who called to pay their respects following the opening of their five-day convention at the SSS social hall.

In brief remarks before the foresters, the President announced that he had vetoed certain provisions of the consolidated tax bill, including the transfer from the Bureau of Forestry to the Bureau of Internal Revenue the invoicing and collection of forest charges, and the abolition of inspection fees.

The President said he vetoed the provision on the fees upon previous representations of the forestry bureau, which said that it would lose annually some ₱47 million.

The foresters were accompanied to Malacañang by Reforestation Administrator and acting Director of Forestry Jose Viado.

The President spent the rest of the afternoon in his study going over government reports and working on other official papers.

In the evening, the President was guest of honor at the induction of officers of the Philippine Alliance of Government Employees held at the Manila Hotel.

September 7—

PRESIDENT MARCOS was occupied the whole day with the preparation of his speech for the proclamation later in the evening of the entire Nacionalista Party ticket at Plaza Miranda.

The President meticulously went over all documents before finalizing his speech which was highlighted by a listing of some of his proposed programs for the seventies.

He was also in close touch with all the senatorial candidates who were going over their own speeches.

Despite the heavy downpour, the Chief Executive directed his aids to go ahead with the preparations for the Plaza Miranda proclamation.

In the evening, the President motored to the rally site where Vice President Lopez and the entire NP senatorial ticket headed by Senate President Gil J. Puyat were already drawing the crowds.

The other senatorial candidates proclaimed were Senators Arturo Tolentino, Jose W. Diokno, and Ambrosio Padiila; former Senator Lorenzo Sumulong, Commissioner Mamintal Tamano of National Integration, Governors Rene Espina of Cebu and Rafael Palmares of Iloilo.

September 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS figured centrally in a meeting with two groups both of which related to areas of great concern to him, for both are meaningful in the building of a nation.

He was guest speaker at the initial Balagtas Memorial Awards ceremonies, and he formally received the newly elected officers of the National Federation of the Association of Barrio Councils, who paid a courtesy call at Malacañang.

For the greater part of the day, the President worked on state papers, and focused on other official matters.

At about noontime, he met with Secretary of Education Onofre D. Corpuz, Budget Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco and Assistant Executive Secretary Gilberto Duavit to discuss student problems and the requirements of state schools.

At 4 p.m., the President, accompanied by the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, went to the Malacañang Heroes Hall for the first Balagtas Memorial Awards in Pilipino literature and journalism.

The President declared he wanted to see the nation's leaders and more of the people, including the youth, using the national language on a wider scale.

He also expressed the hope that succeeding national leaders and the generations to come will continue to support the development of Philippine arts and literature.

Amado V. Hernandez, well known poet-journalist, won the first prize of P5,000 and was presented with an accompanying plaque for his epic poem, Ang Bayang Malaya.

After the awards ceremonies, the President met the new officers of the barrio councils federation.

During the call the President discussed the problems of barrio development and the important of barrio leaders in bettering the lot of the masses

The officers are: Jaenito Madamba of Capiz, president; Vic Delloro of Camarines Sur, executive vice president; Monico Cervera of Antique and Juliana Lozada of Cebu, executive secretary, and assistant executive secretary, respectively; Glicerio A Lim of Lanao del Norte, treasurer; Arcio Casing of Misamis Occidental, auditor; Charlie Neque of Davao del Sur, PRO;

The regional vice presidents for the seven regions are Mauricio Alcantara from La Union, Cesar V. Jorge from Bataan, Nonilon Gases from Sorsogon, Elias R. Inocando, Jr. from Negros Oriental, Eduardo Maravilla from Iloilo, Columbus Jaucian from Agusan del Sur, and Paul Khingslay Koh from Sulu;

Regional secretaries; Evangelista Raceia of Zambales, Teodoro Agtay of Oriental Mindoro, Marcelo Aguilar of Catanduanes, Juliana Lozada of Cebu, Ernesto Benares of Occidental Negros, Macario Tin of Oriental Misamis, and Arsenio Madayag of Davao del Norte.

While attending to official papers, the President signed a proclamation declaring September 9 a special public holiday in Cebu province and in the cities of Cebu, Danao, Lapu-Lapu, Mandaue and Toledo; and Wednesday, September 10, also a public holiday in Bais City to give the people full opportunity to celebrate the events with appropriate ceremonies.

September 9 marks the birthday of the late Don Sergio Osmeña, Sr., second President of the Commonwealth, patriot, statesman and staunch advocate of nationalism and Philippine independence.

September 10 marks the first anniversary of the founding of the city of Bais.

In other proclamations, the President declared September 19 as “Law Day,” and the period from September 15 to 21 as “Savings and Home Loan Week.”

He likewise authorized the Knights of Rizal to conduct a national educational and fund campaign during the period September 1, 1969 to April 30, 1970.

In proclaiming “Law Day,” the President stressed that the administration of justice is indispensable to a sound and vigorous democracy, and that it is fitting that the important role played by lawyers in the administration of justice and in enhancing the rule of law in a democratic society be duly brought to the attention of the people.

The President also underscored the vital role of savings and loan associations in channelling savings and in financing the construction of homes, particularly to benefit low-income families.

The President authorized the Knights of Rizal to conduct a nationwide educational and fund campaign from September 1, 1969 to April 30, 1970 in order to give “meaning, substance, and reality to the patriotic aims and purposes” of the group.

The Order of the Knights of Rizal is involved in the training and molding of Filipino youth to promote character, dynamic citizenship, civic consciousness, dedicated and democratic leadership and enlightened nationalism.

It likewise seeks to preserve and propagate the ideals and teachings of Rizal.

September 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS had a full schedule of conferences and desk work, padded further by two speaking engagements.

On trips outside Malacañang, the President attended:

1. The ceremony awarding former Senator Quintin Paredes the Order of Kalantiao, in token of the nation’s appreciation of more than 60 years of exemplary public service.

The Order of Kalantiao is a presidential decoration instituted last year by President Marcos, and primarily intended for distinguished jurists.

2. The investiture and formal installation of former Ambassador Salvador P. Lopez as president of the University of the Philippines, at the U.P. campus in Diliman, Quezon City.

In Malacañang in the morning, the President met both individual and group callers, among the latter a delegation from the Philippine Railways Association of Cebu led by Francisco Pintor; a big delegation from Cavite headed by Commerce Undersecretary Fernando Campos; and a group of mayors from Camiguin province accompanied by Senator Emmanuel Pelaez.

In the evening, President and Mrs. Marcos had Governor and Mrs. Ronald Reagan of California, and their two children, as guests at dinner in Malacañang.

September 10—

PRESIDENT MARCOS again followed a full schedule of activities, which included three trips outside of Malacañang, in-between attending to his usual desk work and the usual conferences with aides and officials, as well as the usual meetings with visitors.

Early in the morning, the President visited unannounced the Philippine College of Commerce campus, where he viewed for himself conditions in the school. He was informed that the campus is inundated by every little flurry of rain. During the visit, he was warmly received by the students who wished him happy birthday in song, and vied with each other to shake his hand.

During the meeting with PCC officials and student leaders, the President disclosed several directives he issued to help meet the problems of the PCC, as well as of other state schools.

Later in the morning, the President went to Camp Aguinaldo where he received the salute of the armed forces and their pledge of loyalty. It is a traditional affair, usually held on the eve of the President's birthday. (See pp. 9594-E to 9594-J for full text of the President's speech.)

At luncheon, the President was guest of honor of the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines. The affair was held at The Plaza in Makati, in connection with the induction of the incoming officers of the organization.

The President announced at the occasion the early establishment of the Industrial Development Commission, which he deemed an important element in the nation's pursuit of a balanced agro-industrial economy.

Just before going to The Plaza, the President passed by the offices of the; Bureau of Public Highways, to congratulate the BPH personnel on their record of achievements. He also reenacted his signing of the bill increasing the salaries of bureau personnel, which he said they fully deserved.

Among the visitors the President received through the day were the Citizens National Electoral Assembly, headed by Msgr. Mariano Gaviola, assembly chairman, who paid a courtesy call.

With Bishop Gaviola were Mrs. Leticia P. de Guzman, vice chairman; Charito L. Planas, executive secretary; Tomas "Ching" Santos, coordinator of Operation Quick Count (OQC); Baldomero T. Clivera of the Public Relations Society of the Philippines, Bishop Jose Yap of the United Council of Christian Churches, Dr. Beatriz Ronquillo of the League of Women Voters of the Philippines, Sylvia Alejandro of Wiloci, Dr. Ceferina Manalo of the Jayceerettes, Serafin Benaldo of the National Social Action Council, Ben Salvidia of the Pasay Jaycees, Susan Kabanao of the Students Chapter of Manila, and Greg Fabros and Ramon Barrientos of MRA.

Later in the evening, President and Mrs. Marcos gave a dinner in honor of the guests at the inaugural of the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

The President, on the eve of his 52nd birthday, issued the following message:

On this occasion, I should like to thank all for all their support and encouragement to ensure an effective exercise of the Presidency.

These have been years of deep personal happiness for me, for I have seen the success not merely of my personal endeavors, but above all the emergence of a nation more determined in purpose and secure in its resolve.

At no other time in our recent history, has the Presidency received the nation's generous support.

Our work is unfinished, our goals are larger than what we have accomplished. We face a new decade of rising demands and expectations. The essence of our cause requires a reassertion of our national unity and courage as we travel into modernity.

There are forces that will continue to seek to divide us and voices that will sow discord rather than unity. The duty of us all is to preserve our unity.

September 11—

PRESIDENT MARCOS' 52nd birthday, marked simply was highlighted by an estimated 100,000 well-wishers, who trooped to Malacañang from morning till well into evening.

One of his first visitors was California Governor Ronald Reagan and his family, who paid a farewell call prior to their return to the United States. The American official was here as the personal representative of US President Richard Nixon at the formal inauguration yesterday of the Cultural Center of the Philippines.

Shortly after this call, the President began receiving birthday well-wishers, with the local diplomatic corps, following tradition, formally greeting him as a group.

At 8 a.m., the First Family heard Mass celebrated at the Executive Building by Fr. Jose A. Cruz of the Ateneo University.

Among the notables present at the Mass were Vice President and Mrs. Fernando Lopez, former President and Mrs. Carlos P. Garcia, and Senate President Gil J. Puyat. Close relatives and friends of the First Family also attended.

The President and his family joined the guests at breakfast after Mass, served at the Heroes Hall.

Shortly after 3 a.m., the President started receiving the public, including government officials and other VIPs. The Malacañang ceremonial hall was initially the scene of the reception. Then it was moved to the balcony when the rush of well-wishers thickened.

The President paused at noontime, to formally commission the first ferrocement Patrol Craft Fast (POF 317) of the Philippine Navy, which the Navy itself built in line with its research and development program.

The development of fast, light vessels by the Navy was conceived by President Marcos, to add muscle to the unilateral defense plan of the country. He specified in his order to the Navy on the research and development of watercraft to build ships adapted to Philippine navigational conditions.

The President had a late lunch, and after a brief rest resumed receiving well-wishers at the Executive Building.

He stood at his post until early evening.

Following tradition, the President granted executive clemency to 124 deserving prisoners on the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

Of the 124 prisoners extended clemency, 19 were granted absolute pardon, three special absolute pardon, three conditional pardon, one conditional pardon with deportation, 53 conditional pardon with parole conditions, and 45 commutation of sentence.

President's Week in Review: September 8-14, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 8—

PRESIDENT MARCOS conferred with the leaders of the sugar industry on the problems of the industry.

Subjects discussed included the effects of the Supreme Court decision on parity rights on the Philippine sugar market in the United States; the scarcity of sugar in local markets; the sugar quedans anomaly; and the ability of the Philippines to fill the 1,401,000 tons of sugar quota in the United States this year.

The President noted the provisions of the U.S. Sugar Act of 1971 providing for the suspension of the sugar quota of any country which expropriates property belonging to American citizens.

Former Agriculture Secretary Alfredo Montelibano, speaking for the industry as a whole, supported the stand of the President that there should be just compensation for the divestment of American properties.

Montelibano said he would meet the representatives of the traders, millers and producers so that they could draw up a position paper for submission to the President.

Upon the suggestion of Montelibano, the President directed Commerce Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr. to confer with the Sugar Quota Administrator and the leaders of the industry in order to arrive at a realistic price.

The President ordered the sale of raw sugar in order to fill immediate consumers needs.

The President informed the leaders of the sugar industry that his attention to the quedan anomaly had been called by an international banker who had nothing whatsoever to do with sugar.

The President said the anomaly, unless it was remedied, would cause a black eye to the Philippines' credit standing in international circles.

The President was assured by the sugar industry leaders that they would assume full responsibility for making restitution to the American bankers who had advanced money for sugar quedans which were not physically supported by sugar in the warehouses.

The President was likewise assured by the sugar producers that barring unforeseen circumstances, the Philippines would be able to fill its entire sugar quota in the United States.

Present at the conference were Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Commerce Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon, Jr., Sugar Quota Administrator Jose Unson, Reps. Roberto Diokno and Expedito Leviste of Batangas, and Roberto Montelibano of Negros Occidental; and representatives of the Sugar Industry Foundation, Philippine Sugar Association, Philippine Sugar Institute, Domestic Traders Association, Philippine Producers

Cooperative Marketing Association, National Federation of Sugarcane Planters and the Sugar Club of the Philippines.

Earlier in the morning, the President conveyed the appreciation of the Filipino people for the manifestation of sympathy made by the President and people of the Dominican Republic over the devastation inflicted by the calamity on the Filipino people.

The President conveyed this message to the Dominican President through Ambassador Adolfo Camarena, who presented his credentials to the President as the new nonresident envoy of the Dominican Republic.

The President also noted with satisfaction the strengthening of the bonds of Friendship between the two peoples.

The President also assured the new Dominican envoy of the full support and cooperation of the government in his task of helping further strengthen the bonds of friendship between the two peoples.

Among those present at the presentation ceremony were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and Undersecretaries Jose D. Ingles and Manuel Collantes; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr., Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata, Chairman Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic Council, Secretary of Health Clemente Gatmaitan and Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad.

After the presentation ceremony, the President spoke at the award ceremony for the winners of the national and regional contest for model village, sponsored jointly by the Presidential Arm on Community Development and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

In his remarks, the President pointed out that only a very thin line divides the requirements of the military from the requirements of economic development and that no matter how strong the military is it is a weak weapon without the support of the citizenry.

In the Philippines, the President said, the development of the barrio has been made a prerequisite of development because it constitutes the smallest political unit and represents a microcosm of Philippine life and society.

Present at the ceremonies were Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Ambassadors Charles Ingram of Australia, Henry Byroade of the U.S., Pierre Revol of France, Azia Farooq of Pakistan, Ly Chinly of the Khmer Republic and Swate Komalabhuti of Thailand;

SEATO officials headed by Lt. Gen. Chamras Mandukananda, special assistant; Maj. Ian G. Porteous, training adviser; and Michael D. Brown, radio-TV officer, SEATO officials and employees of the Presidential Arm on Community Development led by Secretary Rosendo Marquez, and representatives of the awardees headed by Gov. Aguedo Agbayani of Pangasinan.

THE PRESIDENT constituted a Philippine panel to negotiate a ₱4million loan with New Zealand for the development of the geothermal energy in Leyte.

With Chairman and General Manager Ramon Ravanzo of the National power Corporation, as chairman, the others named to the panel were Leyte Governor Benjamin Romualdez, Commissioner Arturo Alcaraz of Volcanology, B. G. Villavicencio of the National Economic Council, and Roque Sorio so, chairman of the committee created to study the development and utilization of geothermal.

Among other actions, the President extended executive clemency to 381 prisoners on the occasion of his 55th birth anniversary, upon the recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole.

The rest of the President's working hours were spent on paper work.

September 10—

THE PRESIDENT, on the eve of his 55th birthday, renewed his pledge of loyalty to the Constitution and "to do battle to the death for freedom."

The President made the pledge during the loyalty parade and testimonial review given him by the Armed Forces of the Philippines, as President of the Republic and their commander-in-chief.

In his extemporaneous speech, the President sounded anew his warning against the communists who “seek by violence to coerce the great majority of our people to forget our traditions and culture.”

The President said that while these people cry in the name of freedom, it is not the kind of freedom that the Filipino people love and fight for, but that “it is a strange and alien ideology that is unacceptable to the Filipino way of life.”

After delivering his extemporaneous remarks, the President, together with the other guests including members of the Cabinet, the diplomatic corps, the judiciary, and Congress, went to the AFP general headquarters to view the exhibits and take a snack.

The President then proceeded to the Officers Clubhouse for a briefing for local executives.

During the briefing, the President decided to form provincial defense forces to meet the rising communist insurgency in critical areas.

The President made the decision to create provincial defense forces in view of the many requests made by the provincial and other local executives who find themselves virtually defenseless in dealing with subversion, insurgency and criminality.

The President also proposed the organization of a municipal mayors’ league similar to the League of Provincial Governors and City Mayors, to promote closer cooperation and collaboration, particularly in meeting peace and order problems.

However, the President said, the formation of such defense forces would be on a case-to-case basis and if a strike force should be organized at all it would be composed principally of the armed forces and the local police. The briefing was attended by some 300 governors, city and municipal mayors, delegates to the Constitutional Convention and some members of Congress.

Back in Malacañang in the afternoon, the President, on recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Parole, extended executive clemency to 232 more prisoners in connection with his 55th birth anniversary.

September 11—

THE PRESIDENT observed his 55th birth anniversary in conferences with provincial, city, municipal and barrio officials who converged at Malacañang from all over the country to greet him.

The President held separate conferences with the delegations on how local governments could participate more effectively in the rehabilitation of the nation’s economy following the recent droughts and destructive floods.

In allocating funds for such province, city or municipality, the President gave priority to ravaged areas and on the rehabilitation of roads, bridges, schoolbuildings, irrigation, flood control and projects designed to increase the nation’s agricultural productivity.

Earlier in the morning, the President and the First Lady heard Mass said by Msgr. Amado Paulino, auxiliary bishop of Manila and parish priest of Tondo. Also at the Mass wore their son Bongbong, ranking officials of the executive, legislative and judiciary branches of the government, close relatives, and friends.

Among the first to greet the President following the Mass were Vice President and Mrs. Fernando Lopez, followed by members of Congress headed by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, the judiciary led by Chief Justice Roberto Concepcion, the Cabinet headed by Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo and the diplomatic corps led by Msgr. Carmine Rocco, papal nuncio.

In the traditional exchange of toasts with members of the diplomatic corps, Msgr. Rocco, dear, of the group, said that in rallying to the assistance of the Philippines during the floods, the nations of the world had shown increasing brotherhood and understanding among themselves.

In his response, the President offered a prayer for peace, "not only in this country or in our part of the world but universal peace."

He added: "May there always be amity, friendship among peoples that it can be said: Mar has organized a single human family."

The President also inaugurated a library containing a collection of speeches, pronouncements, photo albums, newspaper clippings, magazines, films and tapes on the Marcos year. The Library, which was put up in one of the ground floor rooms of the old executive building, was the First Lady's birthday gift to the President.

After the inauguration, the President went up to the second floor of the building where the provincial, city, municipal and barrio officials were briefed, on the extent of damage wrought by the recent droughts and floods, and the progress made on rehabilitation work.

The President's conferences with provincial governors, city mayors and barrio officials lasted from 11 a.m. to late in the evening.

September 12—

THE PRESIDENT presided over a meeting of the National Security Council at Camp Aguinaldo, in the course of which he ordered the military to make continuing assessment of communist activities in order to be prepared for any action that is necessary to uphold the law and protect the lives and property of the citizenry.

During the three-hour meeting, the military asked for the coordination and cooperation of all elements of society.

The President told the press in an interview, following the NSC meeting, that "it is baseless and ridiculous to blame the government for the series of bombing incidents in the Greater Manila area because when he suspended the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus last year, he was sustained by the Supreme Court, and there was no need for him to prepare the minds of the people for the proclamation of martial law by instigating such bombings."

Present at the meeting were Vice President Fernando Lopez, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, Senate President Protempore Jose J. Roy, Senate Majority Floorleader Arturo Tolentino, Minority Floorleader Gerardo Roxas, House Majority Floorleader Marcelino Veloso, Reps. Nicanor Y. Yñiguez and Constantino Navarro;

Secretaries Vicente Abad Santos of Justice, Carlos P. Romulo of Foreign Affairs; Juan Ponce Enrile of National Defense, Arturo Tanco of Agriculture and Natural Resources; Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Defense Undersecretary Jose Crisol, Finance Undersecretary Pedro Almanzor; Director Jolly Bugarin of the National Bureau of Investigation; Ismael Lapuz, chief of the National Intelligence Coordinating Agency; the chiefs of commands headed by General Romeo Espino and Maj. Gen. Rafael Iletto, AFP chief of staff and vice-chief of staff, respectively;

Mayors Ramon Bagatsing of Manila and Pablo Cuneta of Pasay City; Quezon City chief of police Tomas Karingal; Pedro Reyes representing Rizal Governor Isidro Rodriguez; Mayors Emiliano Caruncho of Pasig, Renato Lopez of Mandaluyong, Osmundo de Guzan of Marikina, Felipe del Rosario of Navotas, and Monico Tanyag of Taguig; Vice Mayor Johnny Wilson of Makati, and Chiefs of Police Gerry Tamayo of Manila, Ruperto Akle of Makati and Filoteo Quintana of Pateros, Rizal.

The President had a short rest in the afternoon, and then worked on official papers till early evening.

September 13—

THE PRESIDENT received former Ambassador Saburo Ohba, chairman of the Pacific Area Travel Association and president of the Japanese National Trade Organization, who called on him to pay his respects following his arrival in Manila.

During their brief meeting, the President expressed the hope that the Philippines and Japan would continue to cooperate in the development of the tourist trade.

Mr. Ohba and his party, including H. Suzuki and K. Kobata, directors of the Japanese National Trade Organization in Tokyo and Hongkong, respectively, were accompanied to Malacañang by Jose Cobarrubias, president-general manager of Hotel Filipinas and PTTA vice-president; and Salvador Peña, PTTA executive director.

The President also received Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Brooks of the Brethren Missionaries, and their children. The Brooks called on the President to extend birthday wishes.

The President congratulated them and expressed the wish that they would complete another 50 years stay among the Filipino people.

Early in the evening, the President was interviewed by newsmen covering Malacañang.

September 14—

THE PRESIDENT conferred the Ancient Order of Sikatuna, rank of datu, on Quintin Jermy Gwyn, grand chancellor of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta, for his extraordinary services in the field of international relations.

In accepting the award, Gwyn said he was accepting the decoration because it symbolized the friendly relations which had existed for many years between the Philippines and the Military Order of Malta.

“I need not assure, Mr. President,” he said, “that what we had begun, we will continue with and develop always, the fundamental purpose of which is contained in the simple instructions which our founder gave us in the 11th century for the sick and the poor.”

Present at the ceremony were Minister Jose Soriano of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta, Gabriel Daza, Sebastian Ugarte, Jose Zaragoza, Danny Vasquez and Ernesto Lagdameo, former ambassador to the United States.

After the award ceremony, the President received the credentials of Datu Ahmad Zainal Abidin bin Mohamed Yusof as the new ambassador of Malaysia to the Philippines.

The new ambassador, in presenting his credentials, noted that the fruitful cooperation and understanding between Malaysia and the Philippines contributed to the strengthening of the hope and aspiration for peace, stability, and progress in the region.

In response, the President said that his administration has always been dedicated to the pursuit of peace and the policy of closer cooperation among nations, as manifested by its wholehearted support of the concept of ASEAN regional cooperation and the efforts toward securing a zone of peace, freedom and neutrality for the region.

The President took occasion to express the gratitude of the Filipino people for the material and financial aid which Malaysia extended to the flood victims.

Among those present were Acting Secretary of Foreign Affairs Jose. D. Ingles, Secretary of General Services Constancio Castañeda, Press Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and Secretary of Agrarian Reform Conrado Estrella.

After the presentation ceremony, the President received four visiting members of the House of Representatives of Japan, who paid their respects following their arrival enroute home from the capitals of Southeast Asian countries.

Headed by Kichiro Tazawa, the group included Saburo Eda, Michio Furukawa and Akira Ueda.

In receiving the Japanese solons, the President expressed gratitude to the Japanese government and people for the generous donations extended to typhoon and flood victims, and the loans extended by the Japanese government for economic development projects, such as the project and commodity loans, and the rice purchases on deferred payment terms at low rates of interest.

The President requested the Japanese lawmakers to extend the appreciation and gratitude of the Filipino people to the Japanese Prime Minister, and the government and people of Japan.

Tazawa expressed the hope that friendly relations between his country and the Philippines would continue to grow and pledged that he and his colleagues would exert their utmost towards this end, especially, he said, since "I am convinced that our friendship will enhance the peace and prosperity of Asia."

In reply, the President expressed the hope that more Japanese parliamentarians and government officials, as well as tourist, would come to the Philippines where, contrary to the prevailing impression in Japan, they are always welcome.

President's Week in Review: September 15-21, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

September 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS addressed the opening of the ninth biennial convention of the Federation of the Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce, held at the Maharlika Hall.

In his speech, the President enjoined the local business community to join the fight against communistic subversion and insurgency instead of "buying insurance from the communists in case of a possible communist take-over."

Toward noon, the President conferred the Order of Sikatuna, rank of Maginoo, on Henry Lynn Miller, Jr., counselor for public affairs of the U.S. embassy.

A veteran American newspaperman, Miller spent most of his life after graduating from college in the Philippines.

Miller was cited, among others, for helping forge closer relations between local and foreign media men as co-founder of the Manila Overseas Press Club.

Present at the conferment ceremony, held at the Malacañang Ceremonial Hall, were U.S. embassy officials headed by Ambassador and Mrs. Henry Byroade and Lewis Squires, Chinese Ambassador Liu Chieh and Commissioner Mao Sung-nien of China for Overseas Chinese Affairs. The latter called on the President following his arrival to pay his respects.

In a statement issued in the course of the day in connection with the celebration of "Medical Technology Week" from September 17 to 24, the President lauded the role of the country's medical technologists in upgrading the health of the people and in diffusing on a broader scale the health resources of the nation.

THE PRESIDENT spent most of his working hours on urgent official papers.

In the afternoon, the President issued a statement on reports that the Liberal Party leaders have been meeting with the chairman of the Communist Party, Maoist faction, in the Philippines, on a common plan for the consolidation of forces between the CP and the LP, on propaganda, logistics, as well as armed support.

Late in the afternoon, the President and the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, motored to the Manila International Airport to see off their son, Ferdinand, Jr. (Bongbong), who flew to London to resume his studies after spending his summer vacation with his parents and sisters here.

THE PRESIDENT continued devoting most of his time to desk work.

In the course of the day, he ordered the impounding by the PC of 7,400 cases of dynamite earlier apprehended by the Constabulary Offshore Smuggling and Anti Crime Unit (COSAC) while being loaded from a barge onto cargo trucks off Del Pan bridge.

The shipment had no accompanying papers and no claimants.

Ordnance reports on the spate of bombings in the Greater Manila area showed that in many of the bombings, dynamite of the same kind as those apprehended has been used.

September 18—

THE PRESIDENT ordered Commerce Secretary and concurrently Civil Aeronautics Board Chairman Troadio T. Quiazon and Civil Aeronautics Administrator Jesus C. Singson to require domestic airlines to make physical searches of all plane passengers and luggage before any flight.

The President issued the order following an explosion aboard an Air Manila Fokker plane, forcing the aircraft to make an emergency landing in Roxas City.

Among other actions, the President:

1. Directed Public Works Secretary David Consunji and Highways Commissioner Baltazar Aquino to organize an investigating committee to look into the collapse of the bridge in Naga City, which resulted in death and injury to hundreds of people.

2. Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos to coordinate with Secretary Consunji and Commissioner Aquino in the filing of criminal charges against those responsible for the faulty construction of the bridge.

Earlier in the day, the President received provincial delegations which apprised him of flood damages sustained by their respective localities and sought assistance to expedite their rehabilitation.

The President also administered the oath to Victorino Savellano as city judge of Manila. Present at induction rite were the inductee's wife Virginia, other relatives and friends.

September 19—

THE PRESIDENT approved the revised rules of the Civil Service Commission implementing R.A. No. 6400, otherwise known as the Tolentino Act.

Prepared by the Civil Service Commission and endorsed by the Inter-Agency Committee to Malacañang, the new set of rules, among others:

- 1) Transfers from the CSC to the respective heads of departments, provincial governors, city and municipal mayors, the power to discipline their respective personnel.

- 2) Provides guidelines to the department heads, provincial governors, city and municipal mayors, for the holding of special examinations for specialized positions in their respective agencies.

- 3) Seeks to minimize abuses in the employment of casual workers.

- 4) Provides for the review of all provisional appointments with the view to converting meritorious cases to permanent appointments.

- 5) Grants vacation and sick leave privileges to part-time government workers.

Present at the signing of the new CSC rules and regulations were CSC Commissioner Fausto Varela, Presidents Tomas Cabrias of the Philippine Government Employees Association, Fernando Santico of the Confederation of Government Employees Organizations, Filemon Fernandez of the Government Lawyers Association, and Jesus Martinez of the City Judges Association, among others.

Following the signing of the CSC rules, the President received a 20-man delegation of the Philippine Midwifery Association headed by Miss Juana C. Reyes, president, who protested the nomination of Norma Balicante-Bautista to the Board of Examiners for Midwifery. The President assured the delegation he would refer the matter to the Malacañang legal staff for study and resolution.

The President worked on state papers in the afternoon and early evening.

September 20—

THE PRESIDENT conferred in the afternoon with Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile and military officials headed by General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff.

Also at the meeting were Justice Secretary Vicente Abad Santos, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. and Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza.

Following the conference, the President had an interview with newsmen covering Malacañang, during which the President declassified a report of Secretary Enrile on the latter's meeting with Senator Benigno Aquino, Jr. in the house of a friend in Makati.

September 21—

THE PRESIDENT did not receive any scheduled callers. He devoted most of the day to desk work.

Later in the evening, he signed a proclamation, Proclamation No. 1081, which was made public later. (See pp. 7624-7637 for full text of the Proclamation.)

President's Week in Review: October 20-26, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

October 20—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a decree which authorized the undertaking of educational development projects. Presidential Decree No. 6-A which became part of the law of the land, thus became known as the "Educational Development Decree of 1972." It provided for the mechanics of implementation and the financing of said undertakings. According to the decree, it is the declared policy of the government to ensure, within the context of a free and democratic system, maximum contribution of the schools to the attainment of the following national development goals:

1. To achieve and maintain an accelerating rate of economic development and social progress;
2. To assure the maximum participation of all the people in the attainment and enjoyment of the benefits of such growth; and
3. To strengthen national consciousness and promote desirable cultural values in a changing world.

The President was hailed for his early promulgation of a decree providing for increased benefits for members of the Social Security System. Heretofore, such increases in benefits were possible only by legislation approved by the Congress of the Philippines. With the present increase in retirement and sickness benefits by Presidential Decree which amended the Social Security Act (R. A. No. 1161 as amended), the two benefits are now on par, if not above the international social security standards.

Officials and members of the Confederation of Filipino Rice and Corn Association Inc. also hailed President Marcos' imposition of Martial Law and were grateful that they can now engage in their daily pursuits of farming, business and other endeavors with complete peace of mind. The peace and order situation in their respective regions has greatly improved, according to a unanimous declaration they adopted during a recent conference of the confederation.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Decree No. 27 ordering the transfer of land ownership from the landowners to the tenants, thus liberating the tenants from age-old bondage to their landlords. The President signed the important document which he himself had carefully written in longhand, before thousands of tenant beneficiaries who had jam-packed the Maharlika Hall and spilled into the Malacañang grounds to witness the important event. After affixing his signature to the document, the President declared that "henceforth the farmers all over the country will be emancipated from the bondage of their landlords." The order which embodies the dream and aspirations of generations of Filipino farmers, comes on the heels of centuries-long social upheavals and discontent and is, therefore, the main thrust in the administration's effort to form a new society based on reforms. The decree affects some 715,000 tenants in about 1.5 million hectares of private rice and corn lands throughout the country.

The establishment of a new society is going apace with only the welfare of the people and of the Republic as the standard of conduct, the President assured in an address to the nation over radio-television from the jam-packed Maharlika Hall of Malacañang. He said that the country is making steady progress because of the almost unanimous approval and wholehearted support of the people for the government policies under Martial Law. Recapitulating the important steps taken since his proclamation exactly a month ago, the President said:

1. The land reform program has gained momentum and the issuance of Presidential Decree No. 27 emancipates the tenants from their landlords;

2. Under the New Society, the poor and the small man gets the same treatment as the rich and the powerful;
3. The peace and order situation had improved 90 per cent with the surrender of firearms going apace;
4. Crooked judges and officials and employees facing charges or considered notoriously undesirable have been hooted out of the service; and
5. The country has gained more trust and confidence as the climate for investment has become favorably conducive.

Meanwhile, the Department of Finance reported that there has been an abrupt decline in smuggling activities since the declaration of Martial Law. The decrease in smuggling was brought about by the resolute exercise by law enforcement units, of searches and seizures of contrabands in dwellings, watercraft, aircraft and land vehicles without the need of legal warrants. A press dispatch from the United Press International reported how Filipinos, in hundreds of letters sent daily to President Marcos, endorsed the steps taken by the administration to restore peace and order and reform Philippine social and economic life.

BATAC, ILOCOS NORTE, the hometown of President Marcos, is a model community in which the principles of cooperative endeavors have been applied. According to the Agricultural Credit Administration (ACA), the pivotal agent which brought about the growth of the cooperative movement in this prosperous town is the Batac Producers' Cooperative Marketing Association. It was organized by then Rep. Ferdinand E. Marcos of Ilocos Norte's second congressional district. The cooperative started with 200 members with a paid-up capital of P2,000. Since then, its volume of business has steadily grown up as it branched out into tobacco procuring, warehousing, piggery, marketing, gasoline station operation, lumber and hardware retailing. The ACA's branch office in Ilocos Norte reported that the total assets of the Batac Procoma amounts to P1 million as of fiscal year 1971-72.

The catastrophic July-August floods whipped up to a dramatic pitch the crying need for forest conservation. The pitch drew enthusiastic response. The government sector and, surprisingly, the once unperturbed private sector, the youths in particular, plunged into tree-planting on a scale and with an enthusiasm never witnessed before. About 800 youth volunteers composed mostly of students from Manila, Pampanga, the Bulacan National Agriculture College and the Pampanga Boy Scouts stuck some 78,000 tree seedlings over an estimated 24 hectare on the foothills of Mt. Arayat.

ADDRESSING some 800 executive judges, provincial and city fiscals and legal officers of the Armed Forces of the Philippines, President Marcos called on the judiciary to assume a big role in the Reformation. The President told the government judges and prosecutors that if there was any immediate cause for revolution or rebellion, it is injustice. Pie said that both the quality and quantity of justice in the Philippines had been the subject of criticism and political oratory. The backlog of 103,000 pending cases in the courts of justice clearly indicated justice delayed, the President stated.

"While it is necessary to uphold the constitutional ruling on Parity Rights, this matter shall be pursued in the spirit of justice and fairness to all. The President gave this reassurance in a speech read for him by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. before the conference of Asia Pacific Council of American Chambers, sponsored by the American Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines. "If expropriation is to be undertaken, just compensation will be forthcoming," the President told the conference which was held at the Intercontinental Hotel in Makati, Rizal.

President Marcos convoked the Cabinet in a two-hour meeting to get a progress report on the administration's on-going projects. Discussed at the meeting: (1) public works projects, particularly in Central Luzon and the Manila area which suffered heavily during the last floods; (2) completion of the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market; (3) organization of cooperatives to spur the land reform program; and (4) progress of scientific research in the Philippines.

Letter of Implementation issued by the President abolished the Office of Agrarian Counsel and created in its place the Bureau of Agrarian Legal Assistance under the Department of Agrarian Reform. This Letter which was issued in pursuance to Presidential Decree No. 1 of September 24, reorganizing the executive branch of the national government, also creates the Citizens Legal Assistance Office under the Department of Justice.

In the meanwhile, the President received the credentials of Ambassador Frederico Jose de Souza Teixeira de Sampaio, the new envoy of Portugal to the Philippines. Ambassador Sampaio succeeded Ambassador Julio Menimo Salcedas who had been called to the home office for reassignment. In receiving the letters of credence of the new envoy, the President expressed the hope that the close understanding between the Philippines and Portugal should give rise to other means of assistance for their mutual benefit.

CHAIRMAN and members of the two Adjudication Boards and the first six Boards of Investigators have formally organized in accordance with Presidential Decree No. 12 issued by President Marcos. The decree provided that adjudication boards be created by the Police Commission to review and dispose of all administrative cases in city and municipal police forces. The decree also provides the creation of a board of investigators in each province and city to hear police cases in their respective jurisdictions. The initial boards were for Manila, Quezon City, Caloocan, Pasay and Rizal province.

Three district officers of the Thailand Ministry of the Interior hailed what they called the Philippines' current reinvigorated program for national development. Mr. Yongyoot Kontrong, Mr. Bunton Suksapit and Mr. Chairong Siribon who recently toured the country for two weeks, observed that the Philippines appeared advanced in more ways than one than most developing countries in Asia. Philippine commercial attaches stationed in different parts of the world have, meanwhile, taken steps to inform prospective tourists and visitors to the Philippines about improved conditions here since the imposition of Martial Law.

The D. Kr. 30 million (Danish Kroner) loan, about P28 million, from the Danish government to finance capital goods for the economic development of the Philippines finally materialized recently. The loan agreement which was entered into by the Philippines and Denmark on March 19, 1972 will be used to finance the purchase of some 5,000 diesel engines for irrigation pumps. The Danish diesel engines will start arriving in the country by January of next year and will continue to arrive at the rate of from 75 units to 240 units monthly until January 1975. The significance of this agreement is that within the next two years, the country shall be able to put under irrigation some 60,000 hectares of riceland on a year-round basis. Assuming that the average yield per hectare is 100 cavans (two crops), an additional harvest of six million cavans can easily be realized.

October 25—

THE LEAGUE of City Councilors of the Philippines expressed full support and complete adherence to the imposition of Martial Law by President Marcos. The league, in a press statement, announced that the organization stands four-square behind the President and would actively participate in the task of "national rebuilding." Spokesman of the league asserted that there have been marked changes in both governmental and private sectors, among which are:

"1. Trust and confidence is being strengthened in the government, more particularly in law enforcement and in the administration of justice;

"2. The new society is steadily doing away with grafters, opportunists and corruptors in both governmental and private sectors;

“3. Peace and order has greatly improved and this has been observed with gratification by the citizenry, by people from all walks of life; and

“4. The economic stability of the people, particularly in the low-income levels, has improved and is now fast becoming a reality due to the President’s control in the distribution and pricing of basic elements of livelihood such as prime commodities, house rentals and, more specifically, the declaration of the entire country as a land reform area.”

President Marcos issued Presidential Decree No. 16-A amending Presidential Decree No. 16 dated Oct. 5, 1972 entitled. “Amending Section 34 (b) of the National Internal Revenue Code, as amended, exempting capital gains, except shares of stocks of corporations under Section 4 of Republic Act No. 6141 under certain conditions.” Paragraph 5 of Presidential Decree No. 16 was amended to read as follows:

“Sec. 34 (b)—In the case of a taxpayer, other than a corporation, no gain or loss will be recognized on the portion of the gains realized that corresponds to the portion of the proceeds of the sale, disposition or transfer of capital assets, except shares of stocks of corporations covered in Section 4 of Republic Act No. 6141, invested in capital stocks of preferred productive enterprises or in the purchase of new issues of government bonds, securities, debentures and notes other than treasury bills, within six (6) months from the date the gains were realized: Provided, That the shares of stocks or government instruments representing the investments are not disposed of, transferred, assigned or conveyed for a period of three (3) years from the date the investment was made, otherwise all the taxes due on the gains realized from the original transfer, sale or disposition of the capital assets shall immediately become due and payable.”

The President also issued General Order No. 12-A amending G. O. No. 12 dated Sept. 30, 1972 by further defining the jurisdiction of military tribunals and prescribing that decisions of these tribunals shall be subject to appeal and or review by the President. (See full text under Presidential Decrees.) The President, likewise, issued Letter of Instructions No. 32 addressed to the chairman-general manager of the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office, ordering the dismissal of one employee and acceptance of the resignation of 19 others in the PCSO. The dismissal and acceptance of resignations was recommended by the PCSO head in implementation of the program of reforms in the public service.

PRICES of prime commodities have decreased by as much as 66 per cent this week compared with prices prevailing before the proclamation of Martial Law. In a report to President Marcos, the Secretary of Trade and Tourism said that, based on the price survey made by the Bureau of Commerce, prices of 17 essential food items have registered decreases from one to 60 per cent.

The President, meanwhile, met with his fiscal and economic advisers in an effort to further reduce the prices of prime commodities. During the meeting, the President approved the proposal of the chairman of the Development Bank of the Philippines to adopt the concept of socialized prices. Under this concept, items usually used by the high and middle-income groups will remain at their present levels, while the cheaper items ordinarily used by the low-income groups will be reduced.

President Marcos informed a visiting U.S. Agency for International Aid (USAID) that emphasis has been given to land reform, rehabilitation and rural electrification in the distribution of U.S. aid to the Philippines. The President discussed the utilization of the initial $30 million aid pledged by U.S. President Nixon to assist the Central Luzon flood victims, together with the $50 million earmarked for their rehabilitation.

Franking privilege to all official communications and papers connected with the conduct of judicial proceedings, was extended by President Marcos. Contained in Presidential Decree No. 26, the privilege allows judges of the Courts of First Instance, Circuit Criminal Courts, Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, Courts of Agrarian Relations, Court of Industrial Relations, Military Tribunals, and City and Municipal Courts to transmit in the mail, free of charge, all official communications and papers directly connected with the conduct of judicial proceedings.

Newspaper and magazine publishers were urged to use local newsprint in putting out their publications by Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad. The Secretary endorsed the report of the Board of Investments which stated that local paper manufacturers can now satisfy the need of publishers, and their products can compete in both quality and price with the imported kinds.

“Rumor-mongers and those who thrive on dishing out false information inimical to public welfare or that would tend to make the people unduly worry or jittery will be arrested and detained.” This was emphasized by the chief of the Philippine Constabulary in the face of some rumors circulating in the Greater Manila Area and in the province that the Constabulary will conduct a “zone-wide” search or “zone” of whole blocks in attempts to ferret out criminal elements or illegal possessors of firearms. The PC chief stressed that these unfounded stories are false and have no basis in fact.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS appealed to the private sector to join hands with the government and buckle down to work in establishing the New Society based on fairness and equity. In a 90-minute address before members of the Philippine Chamber of Industries, the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines and the Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources, the President urged his hearers to discard their "wait and see" attitude and find their place in the scheme and pattern of things under the New Society. The President allayed fears of a government take-over of private enterprises which, he said, is based on mere speculations. He said the government has never contemplated nor is contemplating the take-over of private enterprise, nor deprive private industrialists of hard-earned assets.

PRESIDENTIAL DECREE condoning all delinquent tax accounts amounting to P100 or less and granting tax amnesty on contested assessments subject to certain conditions, was issued by the President. The decree is in line with the President's policy of affording taxpayers with delinquent accounts and pending contested tax cases a final opportunity to settle their tax obligations.

COMMISSIONER OF Internal Revenue Misael P. Vera said that President Marcos decided to issue several tax decrees in order to "build a strong and viable economy." Commissioner Vera said that the President's intent is to "infuse discipline among the taxpayers by calling upon them to make truthful voluntary disclosures and giving them a chance to admit and correct their past mistakes."

HIGHLIGHTS of the new National Internal Revenue Code which he signed into a decree before a gathering of members of the Philippine Chamber of Industries, Chamber of Commerce and Chamber of Agriculture and Natural Resources, was announced by the President. Some of the features: 1) the code alters the entire administrative machinery of the Bureau of Internal Revenue; 2) the principal increase in taxes is in the estate and inheritance provisions; and 3) non-resident citizens shall pay only once based on the gross percentage which is very much less than what they are paying now.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Decree No. 63 which amends the Insurance Act. The President said he promulgated this decree in order "to promote and develop a strong national insurance industry and to provide the necessary operating conditions for its integration in the economic and social development of the country."

BRIG. GEN. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, warned unscrupulous military personnel from soliciting or accepting donations from private parties for PC or Armed Forces-connected activities. In a directive sent to all zone, task force and provincial commanders, Gen. Ramos stressed that the practice is not only contrary to the spirit of the Presidential Proclamation 1081 but will also create suspicion in the populace of the armed forces' intentions. The PC chief likewise directed local commanders to withdraw all appointments of police forces as deputies of the Land Transportation Commission. Gen. Ramos warned all police forces that further possession and use of the cancelled deputizations shall constitute violation of Proclamation 1081 and may be considered as crimes involving usurpation of authority, rank, title, and improper use of name, uniform and insignia.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY Alejandro Melchor issued a memorandum requiring the coursing of all matters involving local governments through the Department of Local Governments and Community Development. "All concerned, particularly local government officials, shall be guided accordingly," said the memorandum which was in line with Letter of Implementation No. 7 dated November 1, 1972.

November 25—

SECRETARY OF Labor Bias F. Ople said the government under Martial Law has regained its credibility because for the first time "the words are matching the deeds and the results, in some cases, have surpassed the expectations."

Speaking before the South Rizal Chamber of Industries fourth membership meeting in Makati, Rizal, Mr. Ople said: "During the past two months we have achieved the highest correlation between words and actions and, therefore, the highest credibility of any administration in our history."

AN APPEAL to all civic-minded persons to assist the law in the apprehension of fugitives, and persons who have not yet been taken into custody despite warrants of arrest issued against them, was issued by the Operations Center of the Department of Justice. The center's director, Jose B. Manansala of the National Bureau of Investigation, said that those with valuable information that may lead to the arrest of fugitives are welcome at the Center, if they are hesitant to report to other law-enforcement agencies. The Center's offices are located at the Prosecution Annex bldg., Department of Justice, Padre Faura, Ermita, Manila.

INFORMATION SECRETARY Francisco S. Tatad said in a press briefing that the government has enough evidence indicating a "rightist conspiracy" that could have led to a coup d'etat before the proclamation of Martial Law. Mr. Tatad said that the plot was political in nature, making use of criminal elements and, to a certain extent, Communist elements. In this connection, Mr. Tatad said that the government has in its custody a certain Edward Lehman, an American, who has implicated a number of persons, both Filipinos and foreigners, in the plot.

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed that the promulgation of the rules implementing transfer of lands from landowners to tenants be postponed pending studies made in the pilot projects. The directive which was embodied in a memorandum addressed to Secretary of Agrarian Reform Cochrado F. Estrella and Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata, listed some of the guidelines that will be adopted, including, 1) that no tenant will be ejected or removed pending the promulgation of the Rules and Regulations; and, 2) that landowners will be encouraged to sell or swap their lands under certain arrangements.

NATIONAL LABOR Relations Commission established by President Marcos under Presidential Decree No. 21, settled 135 cases during its first month of operation ending November 21, resulting in the payment of P201,887.50 as back wages and separation pay to 121 workers and in the reinstatement of 58 workers. In the first monthly report submitted by Undersecretary Amado G. Inciong, commission chairman, the NLRC received a total of 685 cases, of which 135 were settled; and 318 applications for clearance to shut down, to dismiss employees, of which 285 were granted and 33 referred for mediation-factfinding.

MOST PRIVATE hospitals and physicians are now abiding by the policy of the Medicare Program to charge medicare patients only the medicare rates provided under R.A. 6111. Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission, said this is a development resulting from the growing confidence in the program by beneficiaries, on the one hand, and hospitals and physicians, on the other. He deplored, however, that some private hospitals and physicians still tend to charge more than the medicare rates.

PRESIDENT MARCOS and the other top leaders of the country agreed to submit the new Constitution proposed by the Constitutional Convention to a plebiscite on January 15, next year. The decision to submit the proposed Constitution to the people for approval as soon as possible was reached at a Malacañang meeting which was attended by Senate President Gil. J. Puyat, Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal, President Diosdado Macapagal of the Constitutional Convention, Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor Jr., Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad, Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile; Chairman Jaime Ferrer and Commissioner Lino Patajo of the Commission on Elections; Leyte Governor Benjamin Romualdez and Baguio City Mayor Luis Lardizabal, chairmen of the Governors and City Mayors Leagues, respectively; and Delegate Gilbert Duavit of the Convention.

THREE STATE bodies will work together to give the people the information they need to vote intelligently in the Constitutional plebiscite scheduled for January 15, 1973. The bodies are the Commission on Elections, the Department of Public Information and the Constitutional Convention. Public Information Secretary Francisco S.

Tatad said that the information drive will make use of eight major languages, including Arabic which is aimed at Muslim Filipinos in the South. Mr. Tatad said: "We will allow free and orderly discussion of issues, not personalities. The only limitation that overrides all other limitations in the matter of free discussion is this—anything that might cause disorder or endanger the security of the state will be prohibited."

PRESIDENT MARCOS impressed upon the 33 members of his "Do Tank" the importance of their mission, saying that their performance may spell the difference between the success or failure of the administration. The President said that since his assumption of the presidency in 1965, he had always found the middle level of management wanting and deficient, and often constituting the obstacle to the implementation of worthwhile projects.

SECRETARY OF Justice Vicente Abad Santos has invited the attention of all judges to the President's general order providing that cases involving crimes committed by officers and enlisted men of the armed forces shall be under the exclusive jurisdiction of military tribunals. Mr. Abad Santos directed the Courts of First Instance, Circuit Criminal Courts, Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, city and municipal courts to transfer such cases to the judge advocate general of the AFP through the local PC provincial commander.

November 28—

NEW ADDITIONAL reductions in meat retail prices which were voluntarily offered last week by meat dealers in Greater Manila, was officially promulgated by the- Price Control Council. The new reductions which promise further savings of P0.50 to P1.50 per kilo for consumers, cover beef and carabeef (carabao beef). The price cuts are over and above the retail price ceilings on meat which took effect October 15. The cuts are made possible with the successful implementation of Presidential Decree No. 7 which abolishes a number of fees and charges imposed by provincial, city and municipal governments ,on the production, slaughter, transport and marketing of livestock and animal products.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Decree No. 70 which insures the successful operation of malaria eradication campaigns. The decree said that in order to overcome serious setbacks malaria eradication drives on account of the refusal of homeowners to cooperate in this campaign, adopted as part of the law of the land House Bill No. 15077 entitled "An Act Insuring the Successful Operation of Manila Eradication Campaigns in the Philippines."

SOME 2,000 families of the cultural minorities recently received some 21,200 planting materials from the Bureau of Plant Industry in line with the government's food production program, Director Eliseo C. Carandang of the Bureau of Plant Industry announced. The recipient families belong to the minority tribes in Tanay, Rizal; Zamboanga; Mindoro; Lanao del Sur and Cotabato. Under the cultural minority food project the BPI had distributed 570 cavans of agricultural seeds and 176,250 pieces of planting materials to 2,300 minority families last year.

PUBLIC INFORMATION Secretary Francisco S. Tatad emphasized a "new allegiance to truth" in the marketing society. In a speech, before the Philippine Marketing Association, Mr. Tatad said that "there must above all be a will to serve, to meet needs that exist rather than create needs that do not and need not exist, or enlarge those that exist only in margin." He added: "Ours will continue to be a producing, marketing society. It will continue to be a consumer society. But there is a quality of life we must attain which must now assume precedence over the" considerations that used to govern our thoughts and actions in the consumer market. We are called upon to give what we can to make that quality of life possible—and the most that you can give is a total dedication to truth, integrity, fairness and the decency that make the good society attainable."

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the arrest and prosecution of all persons who peddle or solicit human blood and all persons, including physicians, who conduct blood transfusions, even during emergencies, without first following the standards of blood banking practices. In Letter of Instructions No. 42, the President also directed the secretaries of health and justice "to close, stop or suspend the operations of hospitals, clinics and blood banks violating the provisions of R.A. 1517 which prohibits exportation of and trafficking in human blood, its products and derivatives for commercial purposes." The letter of instructions was issued in view of the rampant trafficking in human blood in hospitals, clinics and blood banks despite a Presidential directive on March 23, 1972 regarding the strict implementation of R.A. 1517.

DURING FISCAL Year 1971-72, the country exported a total of 8,117,093 kilos of fresh mangoes, ginger, coffee, dried beans and fresh melons worth $1,887,107 to Hongkong, United States, Japan and Singapore. The exportations were made by some 30 firms and individuals, including the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market. The shipments were recorded by the Bureau of Plant Industry quarantine office in Port Area, Manila where all incoming and outgoing crops, seeds and other plant materials pass through for quarantine services. Exports during the fiscal year showed an increase of about $52,208 as compared to the preceding fiscal year's total shipment which was 8,170,729 kilos worth $1,834,899.

PRESIDENT MARCOS directed national and local officials concerned to effect a “continuing flow of transportation” on streets and highways by undertaking the following measures.; 1) To effect the removal of all impediments on streets, sidewalks and highways such as things, constructions, stalled and/or parked vehicles and other movable property that obstruct free passage; 2) To study, adopt and implement a system of expeditious repair of roads and highways and devise a method of traffic administration, management and control that ensure continuous flow of transportation on streets and highways; 3) To formulate and enforce reasonable measures designed to secure discipline and promote, in general, public safety and convenience on the streets and highways; and 4) To closely coordinate and render assistance for the prompt and efficacious implementation of these instructions.

BRIG. GEN. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, ordered all PC operating units to clear first with his office before conducting any arrest of military personnel or civilians. In his directive to all zone, task force and provincial commanders, the PC chief said that all operating units must obtain clearance first from his office before effecting any arrest. He said that there were reports reaching his office that there were still recent arrests made by some units without his clearance despite an earlier directive to do otherwise.

ALL NATIONAL, provincial, city, municipal and barrio officials were asked to help mold unity among the people in the same manner that they are showing unity, discarding their political colors, during the emergency. The President sounded the appeal before congress leaders governors and city and municipal mayors who called at Malacafiang to voice their unanimous approval and support of Martial Law, as well as the holding of the plebiscite on the proposed new Constitution on January 15 next year. The President however cautioned the officials against prematurely predicting the success of the Martial Law and subsequent orders, decrees and proclamations, saying that he was not happy over the surrender of firearms because they were made by friends and not by the enemies of the state. He congratulated his callers for their pledge of support, saying that much of the credit for the success of the emergency measures was due to their unselfish and wholehearted support in which they laid aside party considerations.

AT THE SAME time, Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad urged local leaders, “the legitimate custodians of popular faith,” to set the example by totally committing and involving themselves to the building of a New Society, “not for some alone, nor for the many alone, but for all.” Mr. Tatad who was guest speaker at the convention of the Provincial Governors and City Mayors League said, “Our people need your total commitment. In a country such as ours, the path of reform is uncertain only insofar as you are uncertain, only insofar as the existing political subdivisions are indifferent to that reform.” He added: “For men to improve, there must be a strong and enlightened leadership that will not follow but lead; that will not wait but act; that will teach men the values that make strong bonds between political and social individuals, and within human communities.”

November 30—

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the doctors, nurses and other members of the medical profession to “share more of their time and energies in serving the masses, those who live in the slums in the cities, as well as in far-flung villages.” In a speech read for him at the second annual meeting of the Philippine Advisory Board for Medical Specialties, the President said that “we may need to rationalize the movement of our medical practitioners and other professionals to foreign lands, determine how much exodus may be tempered without violating the principle of choice and free movement.

ACCOMPANIED BY the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, the President inspected the commuter train service which he had ordered established to provide cheaper and faster means of transportation for the settlers in Carmona, Cavite and San Pedro Tunasan, Laguna. The President motored to the Pio del Pilar PNR station at Kilometer 13.249 where he boarded one of the self-propelled commuter coaches for the Greater Manila Terminal Food Market. During the five-minute ride, Col. Nicanor Jimenez, PNR general manager, informed the President that the 5.5-kilometer extension line from San Pedro Tunasan, Laguna to Carmona, Cavite will be completed on the first week of April next year. Col. Jimenez reported however that beginning December 1, two commuter cars running in pairs will make eight trips between San Pedro Tunasan and Tutuban with initial stops at San Lazaro, Sampaloc, Sta. Mesa, Pandacan, Paco, Pio del Pilar, Highway 54, GMTFM, Philippine American Embroidery and Sukat.

IMPLEMENTING REGULATIONS affecting the personal and household effects of residents of the Philippines returning from abroad, was approved by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata. Personal and household effects of returning Philippine residents, including jewelry, precious stones and other articles of luxury, which were formally declared and listed before departure and identified under oath before the collector of customs when exported from the Philippines by such returning residents upon their departure or during their stay abroad, may be allowed entry free Of duty, under certain conditions.

ADDED SIGNIFICANCE to the commemoration of Bonifacio Day was given by President Marcos by launching the “Mabuhay ang Pilipino Movement” from historic Maharlika hall of Malacañang. In a speech before thousands affiliated with 28 civic organizations participating in the movement, the President said: “Today, as we pay homage to a man who made us all proud to be Filipinos, it is only fitting that we should choose this day to launch a movement which summons all the energies of our people, and join them together in the building of our new society.” The President recalled that in Bonifacio’s time “the cries of pain and protest brought into fruitful union all the aspirations of the Filipinos for nationhood and liberation, brought brother and brother together, and for the first time gave recognition to the Filipinos as one people. “That fateful union, led by the man we honor today.” the President said, “severed the ties of a subject people to their colonial masters and, at the sacrifice of blood, fortune and honor, planted the flag of a new nation before the eyes of the world.”

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a decree calling a plebiscite on January 15, 1973 for the ratification or rejection of the proposed new Constitution and appropriating P15 million to carry out the purposes of the decree. The proposed Constitution shall be published in full in English and in Pilipino, to be translated by the Institute of National Language, once in the Official Gazette and in three issues of at least two newspapers of national circulation not later than two weeks before the plebiscite. The decree further directed that printed copies of the Constitution shall be posted in a conspicuous place in local government buildings and in all polling places to be made available to voters during plebiscite day.

TO' ASSURE the people of full information and enlightenment on the provisions of the proposed Constitution, the President decreed that the "people may discuss the provisions freely and publicly in order that they can vote intelligently: Provided, however, that the discussion shall be limited to the Constitution and shall not in any manner tend to cause disorder or endanger the security of the state." The provisions of the Election Code of 1971 regarding rights and obligations of political parties and candidates, shall not apply to the plebiscite.

THE PRESIDENT directed the Secretary of National Defense and the Chief of Staff of the armed forces to "see to it that the people are accorded the fullest opportunity to freely and publicly discuss and debate the various provisions of the new Constitution. He directed that, 1) All members of media now under detention be immediately processed for ultimate release if they are not connected with actual subversion and, 2) The members of the Constitutional Convention now under detention be forthwith released unless facing criminal charges.

RETIRED BRIGADIER General Francisco A. Joves observed in a speech before the Dagupan City Rotary Club that Martial Law under President Marcos is "humane, mild, benevolent, legal, constitutional, yet non-violent and non-oppressive." Gen. Joves cited several cases of Martial Law he learned as a student officer at the Command and General Staff College in Leavenworth, Kansas, wherein the chief of state or head "is the legislator, judge and even executioner—all in one hand." The general cited four cases of Martial Law in the Philippines in the past: 1) Governor General Luke E. Wright proclaimed Martial Law in Cavite and Batangas on January 13, 1905 at a time when the government was fighting the "ladrones" in those two provinces; 2) Spanish Gov. Gen. Polavieja in 1896 against the "insurrectos"; 3) Gen. Arthur MacArthur against the "pulahanas" in Samar in 1903; and Gen. John Pershing against the Muslim "outlaws" in Mindanao and Sulu.

NATIONAL DEFENSE Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile said Martial Law is implemented to balance the relationship between freedom and responsibility and to extirpate the excesses in the exercise of the rights and freedoms in a free society. Secretary Enrile stated in a speech before the Philippine Historical Association that the "postwar period which finally saw us in complete possession of our sovereignty and independence also witnessed the disintegration of our society, so much so that in the end, specifically on the 21st day of last September, the President had to take this last constitutional recourse vested in him by the fundamental law of the land—the declaration of Martial Law." He gave credit to the wisdom of the framers of the Constitution who had the foresight to anticipate a social ferment in our history that would require a constitutional means effective and strong enough to ward off the dangers to the Republic.

TRADE AND TOURISM Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. reported substantial decreases in the prices of sugar, rice, fresh fish, meat, shrimps, dried fish, eggs, vegetables, canned goods and salt. Mr. Quiazon reported that the prevailing prices of other prime commodities are well within the levels allowed by the Price Control Law.

SETTLEMENT PROJECTS are being activated by the Department of Agrarian Reform in preparation for the relocation of farmers who may be dispossessed as a result of the re-arrangement of the boundaries of farmlands in accordance with the government's land reform program. Conceived by DAR Secretary Conrado F. Estrella, the settlement projects were designed to cushion the impact of the land reform program which is expected to cause the temporary dislocation of some 59,000 tenant-farmers. The government, adopting a policy of establishing economic family-size farms as basis of the country's economy, has granted farmers the right to acquire three hectares of agricultural land, if the land is irrigated, and five hectares, if the land is unirrigated.

MEDICARE MEMBERS are urged to report hospitals which refuse to cooperate with the Medicare Program so that appropriate legal action can be taken against them. Medicom Chairman Pacifico E. Marcos cited an opinion of the legal counsel of the Bureau of Medical Services which stated that "all hospitals duly licensed by the BMS which have been selected by medicare patients in the exercise of their freedom of choice of hospitals guaranteed by the provisions of Republic Act 6111 are under legal mandate not to deny them the use of said medical facilities."

PRESIDENT MARCOS appealed to the electorate to get out and cast their votes, whether they are for or against the proposed Constitution, in the plebiscite to be held next January 15. The President reminded the electorate that it is the sacred duty of every citizen to cast his vote, regardless of whether he is for or against the proposed Constitution, because he has a stake in it.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23, is the last day for registration of new voters for the plebiscite. It is also the last day for any voter to transfer his registration record from one precinct to another within the same city, municipality or municipal district. Chairman Jaime N. Ferrer of the Commission on Elections said the term "new voters" who should register to be able to vote in the plebiscite are, 1) those who will be 21 years of age on or before January 15, 1973 and who possess the qualification of a voter and, 2) Those who were registered voters but whose names had been cancelled from the precinct book of voters due to their failure to vote in two consecutive regular elections.

"BAGONG ANYO '72" will be featured in the annual celebration of "Christmas Around the World" in Seattle, Washington on December 17. The celebration is one of the biggest cultural events in Seattle. Held at the Museum of History and Industry there, the affair is under the auspices of the Seattle Historical Association. It offers a potpourri of various Christmas holiday traditions and a display of international customs and music. This year's 21st annual celebration will see 23 countries participating. The "Post Intelligencer," a Seattle daily newspaper, featured a half-page, four-column color photo of Filipino dancers last November 19.

CUSTOMS REVENUE take at the Port of Manila for November 1972 soared to P128,189,737.29—considered the highest in its collection history for a single month. This is P16,611,450.45 or 14.89 per cent higher than the collection made for the same period last year. According to Customs Commissioner Rolando G. Geotina, last year's collection was only P111,578,286.82. He attributed the increase to the fast processing of papers and the cooperation being extended by importers, brokers and banks to the new procedure introduced early this month by customs authorities.

PUBLIC INFORMATION Secretary Francisco S. Tatad allayed the fears of leaders of the electronics and telecommunications industry on the need for controls and supervision by the government, but rather emphasized the state's policy of promoting the industry's growth and development. "Government has always been alive to the good that the industry has brought in terms of modernizing our society, and to the unlimited prospects of growth that the industry uniquely affords us at this time," Mr. Tatad said at the opening ceremonies of the Fifth National Electronics and Telecommunications Week at the Magsaysay Center.

PATENTS IN THE United States and the Philippines on a unique "universal clock" that not only shows the time anywhere in the world but also announces it, was won by a Filipino inventor. In the clock invented by Gregorio T. Guintos, 68, of Hinobaan, Negros Occidental, time is shown at any point on the earth. This includes the hour, minute and date, as well as whether it is daytime or nighttime. Guintos who is neither a scientist nor a horologist, was granted U.S. patent No. 3611704 on December 5, 1969 for inventing his universal clock. On July 29, 1971, the Philippine government also awarded him patent No: 6994, and this year it gave him financial assistance from the Special Science Fund to build a working model.

SOME 4,128 enlisted men's promotional vacancies in the table of organization in the Philippine Army will be filled up this December. Affected by the directive are 1,870 private first class personnel, 1,124 corporals, 672 duty sergeants, 366 staff sergeants, and 128 technical sergeants who will be promoted to the next higher grade. Enlisted personnel who have spent 10 or more years time in a grade, and those holding temporary ranks on eligible status are given priority in the selection for promotion.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that "the New Society will be built by a people who have responded to the call of hard work, sacrifice and excellence, and the individuals who constitute it and the quality of purpose and resolve in their lives will make it vital and alive." In a speech delivered for him by Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad at the 40th anniversary awards banquet of the Philippine Amateur Radio Association, the President said: "The New Society will be founded on the character and will of our people. This means the regeneration of men along with the institutions in our society. In the past society, we installed individual ambition instead of brotherhood instead of developing self-reliance and self-possession, we depended on privilege and mendicancy in order to prevail and, at times, survive; instead of working in cooperation and fraternity, we descended into fratricidal violence in our speech and deed; and in place of initiative and ability, we employed fraud and corruption in the pursuit of success.

POINTING OUT that the Philippines is facing a very serious challenge in the traditional exports, with copra prices going down and coconut oil facing numerous competitors, the President ordered the Board of Investments to work out a plan with textile millers for the improvement of the quality of local textiles. The President said "something must be done" to save the export trade which the administration is trying very hard to promote, and one of the most promising fields is in textile products. The President stated he has been receiving numerous orders, one of them for $1.3 billion, but that before entertaining such orders, "we must see to it that our products are acceptable internationally and can compete on prices internationally."

ONE OF THE most important programs of government is the program of development for the young. The President, addressing the opening session of the first national conference on children and the youth, which was attended by some 400 delegates, pointed out that the Philippines is a very young nation. "Perhaps more than any other developing nation, the Philippines must place great importance on the youth because 62 per cent of our people are aged below 25," the President said.

TRADE AND TOURISM Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. announced that the Philippines has exceeded its sugar quota to the United States this year, making an overshipment of 34,456 STRV (short ton raw value). Against the 1972 sugar supply quota of 1,401,761 STRV (short ton raw value), the Philippines has shipped 1,424,547 STRV of raw sugar and 11,670 STRV of refined sugar; making a total of 1,436,217 short tons. The overshipment of 34,456 short tons, which is the equivalent of 29,970 LTCW (long ton cubic weight) will ensure the filling of the Philippine quota for 1972 even if two of the vessels carrying Philippine sugar fail to arrive at the discharge port in the United States before January 1, 1973, according to the report submitted by the Sugar Quota Administration to Mr. Quiazon.

GRADUATES OF THE National Agricultural Skills Training Program can avail themselves of the credit facilities of the local rural banks without need of collaterals. The agricultural skills training program, launched in March this year, is part of the government effort to accelerate socio-economic growth in the rural areas. The program is being undertaken jointly by the National Manpower and Youth Council Department of Education and Culture, Bureau of Agricultural Extension, Department of Local Government and Community Development, Central Bank and the Rural Bankers Association of the Philippines.

SERVICEABILITY of a writer to the cause of progress lies in his capacity and willingness to articulate, to edify and thereby give definitive directions to what otherwise might be random and diffuse exertions. This observation was voiced by Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad in a speech before the Association of Ilocano Writers. He said that if "we accept this, then it becomes apparent that the writer's first function in the service of progress would be to give a thoughtful basis or a rational impetus for vigorous and concerted action." He added: "But vigorous action demands sacrifices and men do not make an offering of their toil unless they see themselves as moving towards a desirable and attainable horizon. That horizon, lined by social, economic and political goals, must be made vivid and valid in the minds of our people, and this can be achieved through competence and skill.”

SSS ADMINISTRATOR Gilberto S. Teodoro announced that starting this January, the compensation of a covered employe which is subject to SSS monthly contribution shall include all actual remuneration, “except that part of the remuneration received during the month which exceeds P1,000.” Mr. Teodoro said, “This means that the range of compensation upon which the monthly contributions of an employe will be based, has been increased from the previous maximum salary of P500 to P1,000.” He added that this change is in line with Presidential Decree No. 24, amending the Social Security Law.

AN ALL-TIME high collections of P5,688,271 in November was recorded at the Manila International Airport customhouse, according to a report submitted by Collector Cesar Dario. The November collection represented an increase of P1,993,948, or about 54 per cent, over that of the same period last year. An increase in the volume of incoming cargo was also reported by the airport warehouse manager, Francisco Astilla, who said that 316,066 kilos were registered for last month as against 313,500 kilos in November last year. The disappearance of fixers, smuggling, harassment and major apprehensions with the implementation of Proclamation 1081, was pointed to as the cause of the collection and incoming cargo increases.

AGRARIAN REFORM Secretary Conrado F. Estrella said that sugar and coconut lands are not covered by Presidential Decree No. 27 (Emancipation of Tenants decree) and that only owners of tenanted rice and corn farmlands are directed to sell their landholdings to bonafide tenant-tillers. Mr. Estrella made this clarification due to persistent queries on the actual coverage of the Decree. “The language of the decree is clear and that all lands other than those planted to rice and corn are exempt from the purview of the decree which ordains the emancipation of tenants,” he, said.

AN INCREASE of 70 per cent in the area planted to high-yielding varieties of sugarcane, was announced by the Philippine Sugar Institute. The institute is engaged in an intensified educational and informational campaign to induce sugarcane planters to adopt modern techniques including the use of high-yielding varieties. There are at present 411,505 hectares of land planted to sugarcane. Of the area, 85 per cent is planted to HYV’s. Before the implementation of the program, only 15 per cent of the area was planted to HYV’s.

THE HOUSE OF Representatives laid, down the organizational framework for its participation in the national campaign for the ratification of the proposed Constitution. Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal convoked a bipartisan caucus of all congressmen and divided them into regional coordination committees. Following the regional division under the government reorganization plan, Mr. Villareal assigned the regional chairmen from among senior members of the Lower House. These solons, assisted by other representatives, will coordinate the campaign in the provinces and congressional districts within their regions. The Speaker said he was inviting senators and Constitutional Convention delegates to be members of the regional coordinating committees. However, in the provincial level of the campaign organization, the governor shall be the chairman. The purpose of the regional coordinating committees, Mr. Villareal said, is to remedy possible conflicts and overlappings in the movements and operating areas of campaigners as well as in the distribution of information materials.

ALL DIVISION and city superintendents and officers-in-charge of public schools were named deputies of the Commission on Elections in their respective areas for the purpose of the coming plebiscite. As Comelec deputies, the local school officials will take charge of the more than 180,000 public school teachers who will serve as election inspectors in the January 15 plebiscite. During the plebiscite, three teachers will be poll inspectors in each of the 60,000 precincts in the country. The teachers who served as poll inspectors in the 1971 local election will also serve as such for the plebiscite, without need of any new appointment. The automatic reappointment aims to expedite preparation’s for the national referendum on the new Constitution.

ALL COMPLAINTS and information relative to the enforcement of Presidential Proclamation No. 1081 will be entertained by the Complaints and Action Branch of the Department of National Defense on a 24-hour basis daily, including Sundays and holidays, DND Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile said that in the interest of public service, he has directed, the CAB to answer queries and entertain complaints from the public made either personally or through communications. The legal counsel of the DND will make reasonable referrals of complaints or information to the appropriate government agencies; make periodic follow-up of such referrals and undertake the preparation and completion of the staff action necessary with respect to matters requiring the secretary's action.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a decree requiring all persons—natural or juridical—owning or administering real property, including the improvements thereon, to file sworn statements of the true value of such property. The President noted that values of real property and improvements in said real property and improvements therein are usually underdeclared obviously for the purpose of evading payment of higher and correct taxes due the government. He said that “although real property and the improvements therein are undervalued for purposes of taxation, these real property are sold to the government when needed for public purposes, such as the construction of roads and other infrastructures, at their market value which is usually 10 to 20 times more than the value declared by the owners for purposes of taxation.

NATIONWIDE BAN on the manufacture, sale and possession of firecrackers and other pyrotechnic wares for the forthcoming Yuletide and New Year's holidays, was imposed -by the Philippine Constabulary. In a directive to all zone, task force and provincial commanders, Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, said that the ban is pursuant to Presidential Proclamation 1081 and Executive Order No. 52 dated November 28, 1966. Gen. Ramos stated that stiff penalties will be imposed on all violators of the ban.

PRESIDENTIAL DECREE No. 77 amending Section 1 of R.A. 5180 prescribing a uniform system of preliminary investigation by provincial and city fiscals and their assistants, and by state attorneys or their assistants. The President said that R.A. 5180 which grants the complainant and the respondent in a preliminary investigation the right to confront and cross-examine each other and their witnesses, “is time-consuming and not conducive to the expeditious administration of justice.”

TWO DETAINEES were sentenced by a military court to life imprisonment and imposed a fine of P20,000 each after both were found guilty of violating the Dangerous Drugs. Act of 1972. Sentenced were Chua Cha and Charito Trinidad in whose possession were found drug paraphernalia and chemicals, during a raid conducted by a combined force of the National Bureau of Investigation and Metrocom agents at their residence at 840 Cabatuan St., Caloocan City. The paraphernalia were later found to have traces of heroine and morphine in a chemical analysis conducted by the NBI.

ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT on the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, was made at the Nayong Pilipino in Pasay City during the award ceremonies of the National Beautification and Cleanliness Contest. In an official statement issued following the attempt, Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad said: “There was an attempt on the life of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, this afternoon. Mrs. Marcos, who sustained wounds in the arms inflicted by the assassin, is now confined at the Makati Medical Center.

“The attempt on the life of Mrs. Marcos took place at the Nayong Pilipino where she was the guest of honor at the award ceremonies for the winners of the National Beautification Campaign. The incident happened in full view of television cameras.

“The First Lady was receiving the awardees one by one when suddenly a man in dark suit came up the stage and pulled out a bladed instrument as he came near her. Mrs. Marcos instinctively backed away, but the assailant managed to reach her with his weapon. Mrs. Marcos parried the thrust with both arms and she threw herself on the floor.

“The assailant hacked away at the people who immediately surrounded Mrs. Marcos, wounding some of them. Finally, he was killed by the security men.

“Mrs. Marcos was flown to the hospital by helicopter, where the President immediately joined her. The President was shocked beyond words at the news.

“An investigation is in progress. The identity and motive of the assailant will be made known after the proper investigation has been made.”

PHILIPPINE CONSTABULARY is in dire need of the services of 40 lawyers. Col. Hamilton Dimaya, PC judge advocate, said any lawyer who is not more than 45 years old may apply for commission with his office. The 40 lawyers to be commissioned will be assigned with the military law division, martial law affairs division and PC-wide legal service division of the office of the PC judge advocate.

SMUGGLING OF blue seal cigarettes abruptly declined last month as compared with previous months, according to Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata after receiving a report on smuggling operations for the month of November from the Anti-Smuggling Action Center. The Secretary said that in November, only P20,000 worth of blue seal cigarettes were apprehended by anti-smuggling agencies as against P133,634 in October and P526,270 in September 1972. Other significant decreases were registered in illegal logging, post exchange and other commissary goods. Retired Gen. Pelagio A. Cruz, ASAC chairman, however reported that there is still a persistent active market in narcotics as evidenced by the fact that in November, about P140,000 worth of narcotics was seized by anti-smuggling government agencies as against P92,380 in October and P101,750 in September.

PRESIDENT MARCOS warned officials in charge of the construction of the country's roads and bridges against sliding back into the practices of the Old Society which had caused the country the loss of millions of pesos. Addressing the regional directors and assistant regional directors of the Bureau of Public Highways, and newly-appointed city engineers during their oath-taking in Malacañang, the President pledged to support them when they perform their tasks correctly but “by the same token will enforce new standards of conduct with all the coercive powers of the government.”

AN INVIGORATED domiciliary service program, in response to President Marcos' challenge to the doctors of the country to extend a helping hand to the underprivileged and the poor, was launched by the Philippine Tuberculosis Society. The program will bring the services of the PTS to the homes of indigent and bed-ridden TB patients. The PTS will provide these patients with physicians and nurses, including free medicines, injections, tuberculin tests and BCG and sputum examinations. The campaign will initially center on the slum areas where poverty breeds tuberculosis and tuberculosis breeds poverty in an endless cycle.

FURTHER STRENGTHENING of relationship between the Philippines and Indonesia was effected by making effective their border agreement on trade. The effectivity was implemented by an exchange of notes between the Department of Foreign Affairs and the local Indonesian embassy. Under the agreement, resident traders may engage in trading activities between Philippine ports, namely, Mabila in Balut Island and Bongao in the Tawi-Tawi Islands, and four Indonesian ports, namely, Tahuna, Marore, Miangas in Sangir-Talaud and Nunukan port in the Nunukan district.

President's Week in Review: December 8-14, 1972

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS called upon the people to read the new Constitution “with thoroughness and care for they will be facing a decision that will have a profound impact on their lives as well as on the destiny of the country.” On the basis of careful reading and reflection, the people should be able to vote intelligently on the charter, the President said in a speech read for him by Secretary David Consunji of Public Works, Transportation and Communications during ceremonies in Pantabangan, Nueva Ecija. “But for those who have read the portents and promises of the new Constitution, I ask that they articulate on the merits of the draft charter and campaign for its approval.” He added: “We welcome public discussions on the charter, even if they express dissent. For such discussions could lead to more intelligent judgment on the Constitution,”

IN MANY WAYS, land reform will decide the destiny of the country not only because the fortunes of the majority of the people may be decided by its failures or successes, but also because land reform effectively counters many of the social ills which have raised grievances to a tragic level. In another speech read for him by Governor Gregorio S. Licaros at the 9th Agricultural Credit Conference in Baguio City, the President said he looked forward to the time “when our farmers will be truly liberated as persons and as productive members of our society.” The President continued: “In that time, land reform will have been past history, a milestone passed. And our land will bloom with crops, our agriculture will have passed on to a thriving industry, closely linked to a modern complex of necessary industries.”

FROM JULY 1 to November 30 this year, the Agricultural Credit Administration has extended P14.32 million in different loans to farmers and farmers cooperatives. Of this amount, P11 million was extended in production loans to small farmers, while P3.32 million was extended to farmers cooperatives in commodity, marketing, facility and operating capital. The ACA is the credit arm of the Department of Agrarian Reform which has been extending loans and cash aids to small farmers and farmers cooperatives in the rural areas in line with the President's agrarian reform program.

GOVERNMENT EFFORTS to “unite our people in a common life of peace, dignity and prosperity” was reiterated by Secretary Francisco S. Tatad of Public Information in a speech before the Conference on Business' Prospects in Makati, Rizal. “Whatever be the difficulties, we shall pursue these goals,” Mr Tatad said. “We are determined to see that this nation takes its place in concourse of nations, not as a people sentenced to live together, or die together, but as a people, proud and happy to have the opportunity to live and interact with one another, and build a union where division or strife attends the lives of others.”

FINANCE SECRETARY Cesar E. A. Virata entrusted the responsibility of implementing Presidential Decree No. 76 to provincial and city assessors, provincial and city treasurers, and provincial, city, municipal or municipal district boards or councils. The decree requires all persons, natural or juridical, owning or administering real property, including the improvements thereon, to file sworn statements of the true value of such property.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said he is more determined than ever to remove all causes of criminality and disorder in society. Speaking to newsmen after emerging from the chapel of the Makati Medical Center where he and the First Lady's well-wishers heard a Thanks-giving Mass, the President said: “I am all the more resolved to proceed with the program to eradicate and eliminate all threats against the stability of our “society and to push through the reform program. When we undertook this experiment, we knew we would pay a price, but I cannot forgive myself that it had to be her to pay such a price; I wish I had been there when this happened.” The President was referring to “the assassination attempt made on the First Lady the day before. They had been at the Medical Center where Mrs. Marcos was having her arm wounds treated as a result of the incident.

December 9—

AS THE NATION'S history is being written, there is a future that awaits every Filipino, "a future that has room for all of us." Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad before the Philippine College of Surgeons, said "This should be a future where there is genuine equality of opportunity and the exercise of one's skills and gifts; where men who have given up corruption and privilege would have the opportunity to realize their basic humanity by the exercise of their creative talents." Mr. Tatad said that it is "a future none of us should fear, beginning with those who today have much deference and privilege to give up." For it is a society, he said, that will crown the individual for what he is, and not for what he has, where wealth or poverty will no longer be an issue, there having been a democratization of wealth, a levelling of status."

DEFENSE SECRETARY Juan Ponce Enrile, on the other hand, told private business and industrial sectors to assume both discipline and sacrifice demanded by the present exigencies as "we enter this stage of institutional reforms and reorientation in national development." Mr. Enrile said that while it is true that the profit motive is probably the most effective incentive of the private entrepreneurs for his assurance of growth in the market of competition, this motive will have to be subordinated to the social interests necessitated by prevailing circumstances. "At no time should the profit motive be utilized to justify unreasonable excess returns on investment," the secretary added.

SOME POLICIES embodied in the proposed Constitution will redound to improvement in the management of government finances and will have beneficial effects for private business enterprises. Finance Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata before a conference on "Business Prospects for 1973" explained that, under the proposed charter, the practice of enacting appropriation bills without the corresponding revenue measures to support such expenditures will no longer be possible. The finance secretary urged local bankers and financiers to invest in warehousing which is needed in the development program of the country. He specifically cited the area of grain storage. He noted that, under the General Banking Act, bankers are allowed to invest in allied undertakings and, therefore, individually or in groups, can invest in warehousing to serve the agricultural and industrial sectors.

COMMISSION ON Elections set the guidelines to be followed by local government treasurers as Comelec deputies in connection with the coming plebiscite on the new Constitution. The Comelec directed each treasurer of every province, city, municipality and municipal district not to be absent from office one week before and after January 15 next year, plebiscite day. Every treasurer was also directed to assign at all times a responsible person in his office to receive telegrams and instructions from the Comelec on the plebiscite for immediate implementation. Meanwhile, the National Ratification Coordinating Council announced the formation of provincial and city coordinating committees as the nationwide information drive for the plebiscite gained momentum. Fifty-seven provincial governors and 55 city mayors have been appointed by the President to head their provincial and city coordinating committees.

AN INCREASE in number of farms planted to new high-yielding rice varieties all over the country was reported by the Bureau of Agricultural Extension. The total area planted to new varieties is 557,528 hectares as of November 30, 1972. This is 69 per cent of the goal set for the crop year 1972-73.

December 10—

POLICY DECISIONS and measures taken by President Marcos since the declaration of Martial Law were made to bring about dramatic changes in economics and investments, and peace and order. Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, before the American Chamber of Commerce, said the task of bringing reforms in all facets of society is a tremendous one and the skepticism of many that it is next to impossible to attain was gradually dispelled. He said the government is gearing itself to a quickened pace of development by attending first to the prerequisites in attaining the necessary climate. The role being played by the defense establishment is to check the floodgates of anarchy, worsening criminality, insurgency and communist degradation, all of which threaten to engulf the country, the defense secretary said.

IMPORTATION OF philosophical, historical, economic, scientific, technical and vocational books may be allowed free of customs duties, subject to certain conditions, namely: 1) that their importations are approved by the Department of Education, 2) that they are specially imported for the bona fide use and by order of any society or institution incorporated solely for philosophical, educational, historical, economic, scientific or educational purposes, or for the encouragement of sciences and fine arts, 3) that their quantities do not exceed 10 copies of any work when imported by an institution and two copies of any one work when imported by an individual, and 4) that they are not for barter, sale or hire.

IN A FRONTAL assault on a problem of rehabilitation of young offenders and transforming them into productive members of society, the National Manpower and Youth Council and the Bureau of Prisons have signed an agreement to train youthful prisoners in useful skills that will enable them to go back and resume normal life as law abiding citizens. "This event is significant in that an honest-to-goodness effort is being made toward the welfare of young prisoners, and for the first time here, agencies of the government are cooperating with each other in pursuing a common goal," Brig. Gen. Vicente Raval, acting prisons director said, at ceremonies launching the training program.

THERE IS NO prohibition to the active participation of government officials and employees in the campaign for the ratification of the new Constitution. This was the legal opinion of Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos. Because of this opinion, Public Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad has asked all civil service employees and officials to actively participate in the campaign to bring about intelligent discussion on the merits of the proposed Constitution."

PRESIDENT MARCOS emphasized the importance of sports because "we believe that physical fitness and discipline that they develop are necessary for national development." The President's remarks were read by Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor, Jr. at the opening ceremonies of the Second Asian Basketball Confederation's Youth Championships at the Rizal Memorial Coliseum. "Sports in the Philippines, especially at this time, have a special significance. We cultivate them not only for their own sake but also for the sake of the discipline they inculcate," the President said. The President welcomed into the country, the different delegations of the participating nations, namely, China, South Korea, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand and India. The Philippines is the defending champion in this regional sportsfest.

THOUSANDS OF people from all walks of life all over the country attended weekend Thanksgiving Masses for the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, following her discharge from the hospital where she had been treated of arm wounds inflicted by a bolo-wielding assassin several days before. The nationwide masses were organized by the Radio Mindanao Network and Inter-island Broadcasting Corp. over its network of radio-TV stations throughout the country. The masses were relayed to Northern Luzon through Channel 6 in Baguio City. The underlying theme of the thanksgiving masses was a prayer for the safety and complete recovery of the First Lady and for guidance and strength for the President in his efforts to pursue his program of reforms under the New Society.

PRESIDENT MARCOS in Letter of Instruction No. 48, ordered the secretary of education, the directors of public schools and private schools, to "encourage, if not require, discussion of the proposed Constitution in all universities, colleges and other schools at all levels during class periods for current events or other subjects where such discussion would be relevant, especially between now and January 15, 1973." The purpose of such discussion should be to enlighten the people on the proposed Charter in order to enable them to vote intelligently on plebiscite day. "Discussion of the proposed Constitution in classrooms by teachers and students/pupils will greatly enhance our present endeavors to inform and enlighten our people about the basic law, which is very vital to their welfare and our country," the President said.

NATIONAL NEED to ratify the new Constitution to make permanent the goals and programs of the New Society, was stressed by Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal. In less than three months, the Speaker said, peace and order have returned to the country, the entire country has been declared a land reform area, government has become honest and more efficient, and prices of commodities have become stabilized. "We must embody the reforms now sweeping our country with the legal framework that shall become the law of the land," he said. "The new Constitution will perpetuate and concretize the spirit of the New Society; it will bestow the New Society with flesh and blood."

IMMEDIATE ESTABLISHMENT of pilot projects in all regions where tenancy has been generating social unrest was ordered by the President to hasten implementation of the Land Reform Program. The President directed Secretary of Agrarian Reform Conrado F. Estrella to prepare the program for these pilot projects, especially the funding requirements for the administrative units, and the credit needs of the farmers and other support services such as roads and other infrastructures. In the implementation of the program, the President said that the needs of the farmers for home lots should not be overlooked and that appropriate measures should be taken along this line.

ALL FILIPINO citizens were urged by President Marcos to participate in the implementation of family planning and responsible parenthood "to assure greater opportunity for each Filipino to reach his full potential and to attain his individual dignity." The President brought across this message in General Order No. 18 which also enjoins all universities, colleges and schools, government offices, mass media, civic and voluntary organizations of all creeds, and business and industrial enterprises to promote the concept of family welfare, responsible parenthood and family planning. The President directed the Department of Education and Culture to inform all schools of medicine, nursing, midwifery, allied medical professions, and social work "to prepare, plan and implement the integration of family planning in their curricula and to require from their graduates sufficient instruction in family planning as a prerequisite to qualifying for the appropriate licensing examination.

PERFORMANCE OF judges of Courts of First Instance, generally, has not been satisfactory, according to Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos who issued an earnest appeal to every CFI judge in the country for renewed dedication to your duties and for total commitment to the goal of the New Society of affording a swift and impartial administration of justice to the needy." Mr. Abad Santos- sounded the appeal after receiving the results of a study undertaken by the judiciary division on the performance of CFI judges for a six-month period covering February to July 1972. For the six-month period, CFI judges disposed of an average of 80 cases only or any average of 13 cases for every month".

TOTAL TOURIST traffic to the Philippines this year increased by 10 percent from 144, 321 in 1971 to an estimated 159,000 in 1972. A survey conducted by the Board of Travel and Tourist Industry in November showed that nearly 99 per cent of foreign visitors have favorable impressions about the Philippines because of the improved peace and order situation. BTTI Commissioner Gregorio Araneta II said this year's increase in traffic is significant considering that conditions have improved less than three months ago. Statistical projections by the BTTI indicate that the country will net a total income of $35 4 million from tourism this year. This represents actual tourist expenses for accommodations, dining", entertainment, shopping and other expenditures.

December 12—

RECENT APPEAL of President Marcos to the electorate to vote on Plebiscite Day has drawn strong support among the rural population. This finding was based on surveys made by branch credit managers of the Agricultural Credit Administration. These branch credit managers are stationed with their men in strategic sections of the country where the cooperative movement in agriculture has taken firm root. To date, there are some 325 farmers cooperatives having an aggregate membership of 150,000. All these organizations could be depended upon to assist the government in the current information drive to familiarize the people with the proposed Charter, the ACA said.

AUTHORITY TO sponsor public debates, discussions or meetings to present both sides in connection with the coming plebiscite on the new Constitution, was granted to the Voters Organization for Information and Civic Education (VOICE). Composed of nationwide citizens Groups VOICE had been created by the Comelec to help it conduct a, continuing education of the public "on election laws, procedures, decisions, and other matters relative -to the work and duties of the commission and the necessity for clean, free, orderly and honest elections.

CURFEW HOURS will be observed strictly during Christmas and New Year. In answer to many inquiries received by his office, Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, said that carolers in the Greater Manila Area and the provinces should secure their permits from the Department of Social Welfare and the Office for Civil Relations in the local PC command or at Camp Aguinaldo, Quezon City. Gen. Ramos explained that although carolers have secured permits and clearances, they are not exempt from curfew hours. The PC chief said that carolers should be home before midnight.

PRESIDENT MARCOS signed Decree No. 80 extending from December 15 to January 31 the grant of tax amnesty to owners and possessors of untaxed or improperly taxed goods under certain conditions. To assure voluntary compliance, a tax amnesty of across-the-board rate of 25 per cent of the total duties and taxes, due will be imposed. Exempt from this decree are motor vehicles which are already covered by Presidential Decree No. 52; articles subject to specific tax, and those under seizure proceedings and/or pending criminal, civil or administrative cases.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY Alejandro Melchor Jr. in Memorandum Order No. 321 created a Political Affairs Office in the Executive Office. This office is under the immediate control and supervision of the Assistant Secretary Flores Bayot for Local Governments. The functions of this office are: 1) assist the President and the Executive Secretary in formulating political policies and decisions; 2) gather, evaluate and analyze political information and/or data that may be necessary in formulating policies and decisions and monitor them to the President and the Executive Secretary; and 3) provide the President with immediate staff assistance to enable him to effectively exercise his power of control over local governments.

FOR ILLEGAL POSSESSION of firearm, a Pasay City resident was sentenced to 20 years imprisonment at hard labor by a military tribunal. Sentenced was Jaime Co y Fernandez who had been arrested, -by the Manila police in Ermita last October 23 in possession of one unlicensed .22 caliber Beretta pistol.

ONE HUNDRED and eighty-nine insurgents and sympathizers affirmed loyalty to the government and vowed to help build the New Society envisioned in the new Charter. The group included four municipal mayors and scores of municipal and barrio officials who have had extensive “involvement in the insurgency movement in Tarlac. Most of the surrenderors came from the towns of Concepcion and Capas. Four were former Mamao commanders under Dante and Sison, Major Miguel Fontanilla, Tarlac PC commander, arranged the surrender with provincial government authorities. It brought to 5,347 the total number of surrendered insurgents and their sympathizers in the first PC zone since Martial Law was proclaimed.

ALL PROVINCIAL election supervisors were directed to help inform the people that despite Martial Law, they are free to hold public discussions and debates or to campaign for or against the approval of the proposed new Constitution. The directive was issued to some 68 provincial election supervisors in the country who were returning to their respective areas of assignment after participating in the three-day seminar in Manila on the mechanics of the plebiscite. The Commission on Elections stressed the importance of: overcoming the “psychological barrier” that still appears to prevent many Filipino-citizens and groups from fully participating in the dissemination of information involving the January 15 plebiscite.

DISTRIBUTION OF the year-end dividend checks of the Government Service Insurance System amounting to P25 million to its policy-holders started. The dividends being distributed by the GSIS are the second dividend declaration of the system this year. This is also the first time the GSIS will give out dividend payments twice a year. This year’s payments are the highest dividend payments of the system since its establishment 35 years ago, and is P12 million more than the P38 million distributed in 1971. This year’s increase is also the highest for any single year on record.

BIR COMMISSIONER Misael P. Vera called upon all taxpayers to observe discipline in the declaration and payment of their taxes. At the same time, Mr. Vera reiterated utmost secrecy of returns filed with the BIR in connection with Presidential Decree No. 23 granting tax amnesty on previously untaxed income or wealth. The commissioner stated that all the Presidential decrees on tax reforms issued by the President under the New Society are geared towards improving tax collection and ensuring a steadier and better flow of funds for essential public projects and services. “The infusion of discipline in every aspect of our life as a people is imperative for national progress and prosperity,” Mr. Vera said. Through the policy of tax amnesty and self-confession, the BIR chief pointed out, the government will be able to collect both undiscovered and uncollected revenues and at the same time save considerable expenses in assessment and collection. “No further questions will be asked. No divulgement of source will be demanded. All declarations will be kept from the prying eye of BIR examiners,” he said.

CAMP CRAME authorities announced that there is no need for clearance from the Constabulary Highway Patrol Group for renewal of registration of motor vehicles under the same ownership. Col. Paulino Briones Jr., CHPG commander made this clarification and specified the following which need clearances: 1) brand new motor vehicles; 2) vehicles which have been rebuilt; 3) any transfer of ownership of motor vehicles; and 4) vehicles whose possessors doubt the legality or source of their vehicles. The CHPG commander said that his office will not charge any fee in the issuance of these clearances. He requested the public to report to him any person asking for any payment or fee regarding such clearances. Vehicle owners in the provinces and seeking clearances should go to the nearest local PC command or highway patrol team.

INSURANCE COMMISSIONER Gregoria Arnaldo ordered a 25 per cent reduction on fire premium rates for private dwellings, schools and other residential buildings, and a 10 per cent across-the-board reduction on all premium rates of the Workmen's Compensation and Employers Liability insurance. The reduction shall take effect on January 1, 1973 and shall be applicable to all new renewal policies of fire and workmen's compensation insurance. Commissioner Arnaldo said that the insurance industry is a service industry and insurance benefits and protection should spread and be made available to a greater segment of the country at reasonable costs.

TWO MORE TOWNS in Central Luzon have been added to the top priority list of projects of the Department of Agrarian Reform, bringing a total of 11 towns the number of pilot areas undertaking "Operation Land Transfer." The move to include Conception in Tarlac and Arayat in Pampanga in the priority list stemmed from the President's Letter of Instructions to DAR Secretary Conrado F. Estrella to set up land reform projects "where tenancy" has been generating social unrest." Arayat and Concepcion are two of the most densely tenanted towns in Central Luzon. The coverage of these towns by "Operation Land Transfer" will benefit some 3,844 farmers in 12,633 hectares of rice and corn lands.

TWELVE SPECIAL teams of Constitutional Convention delegates will form the Concon Speakers' Bureau that will go all over the country in a nationwide campaign for the ratification of the new Constitution. The speaking sorties are designed to support the campaign conducted by the other delegates, senators and representatives, local and other government officials under the National Ratification Coordinating Council. At the same time, a nationwide youth campaign was likewise launched by the National Youth Coordinating Committee. About 400 student and youth leaders all over the country is enlisting the support not only of student groups but also of educators and scholars "who have at heart the future of the country."

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

December 15—

PRESIDENT MARCOS emphasized the role of medical leaders in distributing equally the limited medical resources and skills of the country "so that we do not wind up taking good care of only the affluent while forgetting and condemning to an early death the rest of the population."

In a speech before the Philippine Hospital Association read for him by Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, Medicare chairman, the President said that the degree by which health services in a developing country can be raised depends on the degree in which a nation is able to muster its resources for economic development.

DR. MARCOS, for his part, advised hospital administrators to prepare for more participation in the Medicare Program because of its expanded services planned for 1973. The Medicare chief thanked hospital officials for their full cooperation in the initial nine months of medicare implementation which was "very successful". He, however, expressed regret that some hospitals were at first reluctant to cooperate. He said nonetheless that these hospitals are blameless because "they wanted to prove first our statement that payment under medicare is guaranteed." Dr. Marcos said the Medicare Program has been moving very fast but it will maintain a faster pace in 1973.

ONE THOUSAND three-room typhoon-resistant school buildings designed to withstand wind velocities up to 140 miles per hour will be constructed by the Bureau of Public Works and the Armed Forces of the Philippines in 24 provinces of Luzon. The construction will be facilitated by the project agreement between the National Economic Council and the U.S. Agency for International Development. The agreement provides that the US AID will reimburse the Philippines in the amount of $3 million for the construction of said school buildings and will provide $200,000 worth of jeeps, pick-ups and dump trucks for said construction.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS Secretary Carlos P. Romulo reported that the 27th General Assembly of the United Nations has been one of the most fruitful for the Philippines from the standpoint of substantial benefits gained for the Filipino people. Mr. Romulo who is chairman of the Philippine delegation to the assembly, said that the Philippine delegation "benefited from the foresight of President Marcos who, as early as two years ago, had given instructions that the work of the Philippine mission to the UN should be development-oriented.

JUSTICE SECRETARY Vicente Abad Santos requested all district judges in the country to act favorably and expeditiously on the motions that may be filed by Comelec provincial supervisors and election registrars for the withdrawal of precinct books of voters which might be presently in the custody of the courts. Secretary Santos noted that these books are needed by the corresponding boards of inspectors, otherwise they cannot prepare the current list of voters. He said that since precinct books of voters will be used in the 1973 plebiscite, the judges should allow the books to be withdrawn even if they are presently in the custody of the courts in connection with pending election cases or criminal cases for violations of the election law.

ENGLISH AND Filipino texts of the proposed Constitution of the Philippines were printed, in full in the December 11 issue of the Official Gazette. The publication was in compliance with Sec. 2 of Presidential Decree No. 73 dated December 1, 1972 which also required the printing of the proposed charter in three issues of at least two newspapers of national circulation not later than two weeks before the plebiscite.

December 16—

INFORMATION SECRETARY Francisco S. Tatad said that the proposed Constitution is a "Filipino Constitution, conceived and constructed in a time of crisis, at a moment of supreme test for the Filipino character." Speaking at a mass rally organized by the Quezon City government in front of the Q.C. city hall, Mr. Tatad said that the new charter "comes from the hearthfire of Filipino radicalism, endowed with all the liberal ideals and passions that have been preserved through the generations, and responsive to the revolutionary challenge of the future.” He added: “It is a Constitution, that knows fully and seeks to serve intimately only the Filipino interest that seeks to minister to the wholeness of our being by serving our individual and national progress. It is a Constitution that knows the Filipino as its only master, and that puts no other master besides him. It is a Constitution that speaks for our people, because it speaks directly to them and, through it, our people speak of their individual and common interests to one another. It is a Constitution for our age, but it is a Constitution that can belong to all ages.”

DEFENSE SECRETARY Juan Ponce Enrile stressed that the military will adopt a total stance of impartiality in the coming plebiscite on January 15. The armed forces have been “primarily assigned the task of maintaining peace and order in the free discussions of the issues involved in the new Constitution as we’ll as in the voting by the people for or against the new Constitution.” Secretary Enrile said in a speech before the Harvard Club of the Philippines, recalled that under General Order No. 17, the President, ordered that “no person shall be questioned or investigated before or after the plebiscite for any speech, remarks or statements in any discussions or debates intended to explain the proposed Constitution or to enlighten the people about it or for any views for or against it or its ratification made in public rallies, or debates, in printed or other forms of communication, radio or television and such remarks, statements or views shall not be admissible as evidence in any investigations or suits against the person or persons making them.”

PRESIDENTIAL Proclamation 1081 imposing Martial Law in the Philippines brought new and broader dimensions to local business and industry, and the military’s primary task is to bring about order and favorable conditions for Filipinos to work peacefully, safely and gainfully. This was the assessment of PC Chief Fidel V. Ramos in his speech during the third annual conference on “Business Prospects of 1973” sponsored by the Ateneo Graduate School of Business and the Vision Publishing Corp. in Makati, Rizal. Gen. Ramos said that in one fell swoop, the government reversed the pre-martial law tide of lawlessness and disorder that sickened the old society. “In just about two months of martial law, the percentage of criminality and lawlessness has dramatically dipped,” he said. He allayed fears that new government policies might tighten into a stranglehold against business and industrial interests.

PRESIDENT MARCOS led a nationwide “Come Out and Vote Yes” movement as he rallied the citizenry to articulate the ideals of the proposed Philippine Constitution with overwhelming affirmative votes.

At the same time, the President called on all ratification committees and affiliate organizations to explain to the people in full details the important highlights of the new Constitution. The President reiterated his appeal for the ratification of the new charter, saying the reforms achieved under the new society will rise or fall on the result of the plebiscite. He said the strong basis for national development is ingrained in the new Constitution and that alone, he explained, gives substance to all that are being done today.

SPEAKER CORNELIO T. Villareal expressed confidence that the new Constitution would have an easy sailing at the Jan. 15 plebiscite. He made the observation as he ended week-long series of conferences which he had conducted with the coordinating committees of all 11 regions in the country. The committees are composed of congressmen, Constitutional Convention delegates and provincial governors.

SOME 766,500 seedlings of high-yielding varieties of tobacco are being made available by the Bureau of Plant Industry to all farmers and interested parties. The seedlings are in the bureau’s, nurseries in Pangasinan, Abra, La Union, Ilocos Sur and Ilocos Norte, sites of the government’s intensified tobacco production program. The BPI has been distributing seeds and planting materials to the public in line with the “Green Revolution” movement of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos. Some 231,985 coco seedlings are at present available at the BPI experiment stations and nurseries in Laguna, Quezon, Albay, Camarines, Sorsogon, Iloilo, Bohol, Cebu, Negros Oriental, Leyte, Samar, Zamboanga, Surigao, Davao and South Cotabato.

December 18—

PRESIDENT AND MRS. Marcos played Santa Glaus to some 7,000 indigent children during the Bagong Lipunan Children's Festival at the Malacananiig grounds. This was the first public appearance of the First Lady since the assassination attempt against her on December 7. Assisting the First Couple were children Imee, Irene and Bongbong, movie and television stars.

SOME 2,621,817 packets of high-yielding vegetable seeds and 340,000 pieces of planting materials were distributed to farmers and interested parties by the Bureau of Plant Industry during the first five months of the current fiscal year. From July to November this year, the bureau's seed center on San Andres, Malate alone distributed some 1,516,277 packets of vegetable seeds and 300,000 seedlings, free of charge, while sales amounted to 410,000 packets of seeds and 40,000 planting materials valued at P475.73. Among those distributed were seeds of ampalaya, batao, beans, chaote, patola, sitao, squash, upo, seguidillas, patani, cucumber, cauliflower, pechay, lettuce, radish, onion and pepper.

SEVENTY-THREE officials and employees of the Commission on Immigration and Deportation have been separated from the service. Among them were the administrative officer of the commission, four lawyer-special investigators, a supervising clerk, 10 special agents, three intelligence officers, four alien control officers of provincial stations and 12 immigration officers from both the Manila office and subposts, Commissioner Edmundo Reyes announced.

FISCALS ARE obliged to extend legal assistance to cooperatives. This was the ruling of Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos who cited Section 67 of the Philippine Non-Agricultural Cooperatives Act which reads: "Cooperatives registered under this act shall, notwithstanding the provisions of any law . . . enjoy the privilege of being represented in courts by the provincial or city fiscal or the Solicitor General or his representatives, as the case may be, free of charge, in any case in which they are either plaintiffs or defendants, except when the Philippine Government is the plaintiff itself; and all suits brought by or on behalf of a cooperative shall be instituted in court by them at most within three months from the date of receipt of such suit."

December 19—

INFORMATION SECRETARY Francisco S. Tatad called upon the youth to involve themselves in the nationwide effort to ratify the proposed Constitution. "We appeal to the young among our countrymen, because the Constitution that we are called upon to ratify is a Constitution that will be not only for the present but also for the future—and the youth is the seed of the future," Secretary Tatad said.

COMELEC CHAIRMAN Jaime N. Ferrer, likewise, appealed to civic-spirited citizens to act as poll watchers in their respective areas. He said: "Sec. 9 of Presidential Decree No. 73 requiring the Comelec to appoint representatives of civic groups to serve as poll watchers, is a fitting recognition of the vital role of volunteer citizens' groups in our basic democratic processes. Those who belong to local civic organizations should take advantage of this opportunity, more so since this historic plebiscite will constitute the crossroads of our national life."

DANGEROUS DRUGS Board announced that prescription forms for dangerous drugs are now available at that office on the second floor, Bureau of Quarantine annex, Port Area, Manila. Distribution in the provinces will be made through the regional health offices.

December 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a Letter of Instructions to the secretaries of national defense, public information and justice that "for the purposes of the free and open debate on the new Constitution . . . you will see to it that the effects of my Proclamation No. 1081 are temporarily suspended." The letter said that "you will ensure that all media will give an opportunity to those opposing and those favoring the ratification of the new Constitution to meet face to face in a formal debate in this subject. You will direct all printing presses to print all forms of propaganda whether in favor or against the new Constitution and see to it that all military personnel allow their open and free distribution. You will submit weekly reports to me on the implementation of this order."

ONE GREAT significance of the Medicare Program is that it has relieved employees of the problem of taking care of their own expenses when they are hospitalized. Dr. Pacifico E. Marcos, Medicare chairman, said that in the past, government employees, except for those in government corporations, personally spent for their hospitalization. This is the reason why many government employees went to the charity wards of government hospitals when they became sick and were hospitalized, he said.

PAYING TRIBUTE to the Filipino soldier “whose sense of responsibility, devotion to duty, forbearance, and humane touch characterized the enforcement of my instructions and made martial law in our country unique,” President Marcos said that the initial objectives of Proclamation 1081 were attained because of the good qualities of said Filipino soldier.

The President said, “the character of the Filipino soldier is sound not only because of his deep grounding in the democratic precepts but also because of his basic enlightenment and training made possible by institutions such as this we are formally inaugurating here today.”

The President made these observations in a speech read for him by Secretary Enrile at the inauguration of the PC Training Center at Camp General Mariano N. Castañeda in Silang, Cavite.

FOR ILLEGAL possession of firearms, a resident of San Francisco del Monte, Quezon City was sentenced to 20 years at hard labor by Military Commission No. 5. Convicted was Rogelio Aquino y Santos who was arrested last October 14 at the basement of the General Bank and Trust Co at Rosario Street in Binondo, Manila while in possession of a Colt cal .9 mm pistol by members of the Manila Metropolitan Police. The gun was licensed but was being carried outside of the licensee’s residence which is a violation of the firearm ban.

December 21—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that the rapid increase in investment programs shows growing confidence in the stability of the country and in the bright prospects for investment. During the signing of the investment contract” between Ford Philippines and the Export Processing Zone, the President said that all other participants in the Progressive

Car Manufacturing Program have also decided to increase their commitments and have also shown interest in the example set by Ford Philippines in establishing a $35 million car body stamping plant in Bataan.

THE PRESIDENT asked the armed forces to continue its vigilance “with the same lofty motivation, the same prodigious energy the same firm discipline and with ever increasing hopes for a better day for our country and people.” The President made this appeal in a speech at the 37th anniversary commemoration of the AFP in Camp Aguinaldo.

“Even as we put our trust in Divine Providence, let us continue to be vigilant, to be enterprising, to be self-reliant the President said. “For ultimately God rewards those who do and dare.”

SECRETARY TATAD explained the nation’s efforts and determination to recast the framework of Philippine society. “Out of the weaknesses of the past, we wanted to create a society which every Filipino can take just pride in because of its intrinsic excellence, and because it would be a society that would combine all these things, the goodness, and excellence of all,” Mr. Tatad said. “A society which is the handiwork of all Filipinos and which shows in all its aspects the work of everyone who has put in his share.”

PRICES OF PALAY and rice have been more stable in 1972 compared with last year, and the imposition of Martial Law arrested the tendency of rice retail prices to peak in September. In a study by the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources, the following notable trends of palay and rice prices were observed: 1) prices have tended to be more stable during calendar year 1972 than calendar year 1971; 2) the tendency of prices in 1971 was to move upward while in 1972 it is the reverse 3) Retail prices in 1972 tended to reach a peak in September but after the imposition of Martial Law these either remained steady in October or fell but the price level was still well below the price control level. Nevertheless, prices were generally lower during the whole month of November and up to the present; and 4) in general, for two major trading centers—Cabanatuan City and Greater Manila— retail prices during 1972 were somewhat higher on the average than prices in 1971, but showed greater stability.

EMPLOYEES OF THE national government are not required to present their Employer's Medicare Contribution Certification when they seek admission as Medicare patients in government hospitals under the Department of Health. In a circular issued by Acting Health Secretary Clemente S. Gatmaitan, all hospitals under the Department of Health were enjoined to dispense with the requirement of said certification (PMCC Form 1) in connection with the admission of medicare patients who are employees of the national government. In case of doubt, however, as to the employment status of the patient, he may be required to execute a promissory note obligating himself to pay the hospital services and professional fees involved during his confinement in the hospital.

SENTENCED TO 25 YEARS imprisonment at hard labor by a military tribunal was Marcellano L. Bacani of Tondo, Manila for illegal possession of firearm and ammunition following a trial which started at 9:40 a.m. and ended at 4:30 p.m. The accused, 34 years old, was arrested and detained by the Manila Metropolitan Police last October 9, when they found in his possession an unlicensed revolver caliber .22 with six rounds of ammunition.

PRESIDENT MARCOS is looking into the merits of a proposal to postpone the holding of the plebiscite on the new Constitution on January 15 because of lack of material time. The proposal to postpone the plebiscite came from officials of the Comelec and local governments.

The Comelec observed that there is a need for a few more days to enable new voters to register. The provincial governors and city mayors, on their part, appealed for more time to disseminate information about the proposed Constitution to far-flung places, especially those hit by calamities.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY Alejandro Melchor Jr. announced the formal start of operations of the Public Information Unit in the Executive Office, created under Memorandum Order No. 317 and organized under the supervision of Assistant Executive Secretary Ronaldo B. Zamora.

The PIU was created to facilitate matters for the general public who transact business with Malacañang, by avoiding the unnecessary daily follow-ups of papers by interested parties, and providing for a systematic flow of papers needing Malacañang action, thereby saving time and effort on the part of all concerned.

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his pledge to pursue the land reform program at all costs regardless of the obstacles placed in its path. The President renewed his pledge in a speech before tiller-tenants at the Maharlika hall of Malacañang before distributing individual certificates of land transfer to 431 former tenants representing the first batch to be emancipated, from their bondage to the soil they tilled, barely two months after the President issued his Decree No. 27 last October 21. Of the 431 new tiller-land owners, 14 came from Plaridel, Bulacan; 270 from Guimba and 63 from Zaragoza, Nueva Ecija; 65 from Tigaon, Camarines Sur; and 14 from Dingle and five from Pototan, Iloilo. Some of the tenants from, Zaragoza were former tenants of the President's mother, Mrs. Josefa Edralin Marcos, whom he knew by their first names.

PRIVATE INSURANCE companies continued to be one of the major sources of funds for economic development as they invested the total amount of P4, 154,986.30 in development projects in November this year. The total investments of private insurance firms from January to November 1972 amounted to P111,504,507.56 in government and private economic development projects. Reliance Surety and Insurance Company, Inc. topped the investments for the month with a total of P630,000 in Central Bank certificates of indebtedness notes, while the rest were placed in DBP progress bonds and in commercial papers of manufacturing and public utilities firms.

MEMORANDUM OF AGREEMENT pledging their equipment, skills, logistics and manpower in rehabilitating and protecting denuded forest areas all over the country was forged by the Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources and the Department of National Defense. Signed by Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo R. Tanco Jr. and Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, the agreement provides for the restoration and protection of forest cover at the Mt. Arayat National Park and other areas that may be designated by the Bureau of Forest Development.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY Alejandro Melchor Jr. led Malacañang officials and employees in bringing Christmas cheer to residents of barrio San Antonio in Bay, Laguna. Mr. Melchor was accompanied by Assistant Executive Secretary Roberto V. Reyes, Ronaldo B. Zamora, Flores Bayot and Ramon Cardenas, and about 600 division chiefs and employees from the Executive Office. Since Mr. Melchor became Executive Secretary, he has led Palace personnel in bringing Christmas gifts to poor families in depressed areas of the country, under the Maligayang Pasko Project. In 1970, the objects of the employees' goodwill were the typhoon victims in Casiguran and Infanta, Quezon, and some towns in Bicol; and the refugees in Marawi City and Iligan last year.

SOME 500 GOVERNMENT Farm Management technicians will undergo a four-month intensive training on new rice technology at the International Rice Research Institute, Laguna early next year. To be held January 8 to April 13, 1973, the training is in preparation for a massive package program for increasing rice production in the country. The trainees will come mostly from the Bureau of Agricultural Extension and Bureau of Plant Industry who are working under coordinated supervision of the National Food and Agriculture Council. These agricultural agencies will launch the "Masagana 99" in 18 provinces covering a total rice area of 58,901 hectares of irrigated and 25,241 hectares of non-irrigated farms during crop year 1973-74. Provinces covered by the rice production program are Ilocos Norte, Ilocos Sur, La Union, Pangasinan, Cagayan, Isabela, Tarlac, Nueva Ecija, Pampanga, Bulacan, Laguna, Mindoro Oriental, Mindoro Occidental, Iloilo, Capiz, Negros Occidental, Leyte and Bohol.

December 23—

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that ethical transformation is as important to the New Society as social and economic transformation, "for it touches the soul of our nation." In a message to the Knights of Columbus of Tagbilaran, Bohol on the occasion of its silver anniversary, the President observed: "But in building the New Society, we do not intend—as the communists have done and still do—to destroy everything, to raze the building, as it were, to the ground and build an entirely new structure. This is not only wasteful, it is unnecessarily traumatic." He added:

“Development in itself is difficult enough. We do not intend to destroy or discard for the sake of destroying or discarding. We will save, conserve and nurture those institutions and beliefs that are still viable and that contribute to the strengthening of our nation.”

PUBLIC INFORMATION Secretary Francisco S. Tatad, in defining the role of his department in the New Society, said it aims “to impart to the nation a distilled philosophy of our way of life, the way of life we intend to achieve for our people.” The basic raw material of the department is information, which Mr. Tatad described as a “commodity that moves people to do certain things in favor of other choices that endows them with habits, attitudes and values, so that they will ultimately be have in a particular way rather than in another way.” The secretary brought this message to the concluding session of a seminar on the New Society sponsored by the National Media Production Center, and attended by chief training officers and chief information officers in the government. “We give to information the duty of improving the quality of human life,” the secretary in his speech said. “Its role, therefore, is to carry the message of the policy-making authorities of our government and the civic leadership. Its integral role is to convey to the policy-making organs of the society the views, attitudes, habits and values relevant to the making of a public policy and such views, attitudes, habits and values from which a public philosophy may be distilled.”

IN ORDER TO GIVE the people ample time for an open and free debate on the proposed Constitution, President Marcos decided to post pone the holding of the plebiscite which was originally scheduled for January 15. Accordingly, the President directed: 1) the secretaries of justice, defense and public information to meet with Comelec officials in order to determine which of the two proposed dates—February 19 or March 5—should be chosen for the plebiscite; 2) the extension of the registration period for new voters which was to end December 23; and 3) the printing and distribution of copies of the proposed Constitution in eight major dialects. The decision to postpone the plebiscite was arrived at following a series of meetings between the President and leaders of various sectors of society.

JUSTICE SECRETARY Vicente Abad Santos issued Circular No 97 to all district and circuit criminal court judges, provincial and “city fiscals to give effect to the Presidential directive allowing free and open debate on the new Constitution proposed for ratification. ”The President has directed me,” the secretary said in the circular, “to inform you that any person who might be arrested and detained in connection there with is entitled to prompt judicial remedies, including the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus in case his arrest and detention are in connection with the plebiscite on the proposed Constitution. Accordingly, you are hereby directed to act on such cases with deliberate haste, reporting to me the action you have taken.” The President in a previous letter addressed to the secretaries of national defense, public information and justice, suspended the effects of martial law for purposes of the free and open debate on the proposed Constitution.

PHASE TWO OF THE Operation Land Transfer launched a month ago by the Department of Agrarian Reform in the nine pilot municipalities almost crossed the finish line with 95 per cent of the tenant-tillers interviewed and 75 per cent of the barrios surveyed. A report submitted to the President stated that 11,467 out of 12,000 tenant-farmers were identified while 259 out of 344 barrios have been surveyed. Five of the nine pilot projects have passed through the parcellary mapping phase totalling 4,179 sketches made. Topping the list for the complete identification of tenants were San Mateo, Isabela; Plaridel, Bulacan; Biñan and Calamba, Laguna; while capping the list for the complete survey of barrios were Zaragosa, Nueva Ecija; San Mateo, Isabela; Plaridel, Bulacan; Biñan and Calamba, Laguna.

WITH PRESIDENTIAL DECREE No. 27, President Marcos placed in proper focus and perspective the vital role that land reform plays in the building of a new social order. The decree releases the tenant-farmers from the straight-jacket of feudal relations, transfers to them the ownership of the land they till and provides the instruments and mechanism with which they could carry out their complete emancipation. Needless to state, emancipation is not conferred. It is not a matter of fiats or pronouncements. It involves a process of struggle by which the tenants, given the necessary “instruments and mechanism,” translate their aspirations into reality. Thus, the decree emphasizes the importance of agricultural cooperatives, making these the basis for tenant- farmers to become eventually the owners of the lands they till.

TEN MORE OUTLAWS who participated in the aborted uprising in Marawi City last October 21 and 22 surrendered with their firearms to PC Chief Brig. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos at the Mindanao State University compound in Marawi. A total of 8,505 assorted firearms, including high power automatic weapons, collected in the two Lanao provinces, were also presented to Brig. Gen. Ramos.

CAMARINES NORTE will produce some 120,000 cavans more of rice this season despite sporadic attacks of pests and diseases on crops. Barring typhoons or floods, the province will easily realize this increase over its previous rice production. The average yield of rice in the province is now 70 cavans per hectare.

PRESIDENT MARCOS on Christmas Day issued Decree No. 85 creating the Agrarian Reform Fund to support the financing requirements of agrarian reform provided for in Presidential Decree No. 27 and for other purposes.

THREE HUNDRED TWENTY-SEVEN prisoners were granted executive clemency by President Marcos on Christmas Day. Assistant Executive Secretary Ronaldo B. Zamora submitted the list in three batches: First batch—absolute pardon, 14; conditional pardon with parole conditions, 124; commutation of sentence, 68; or a total of 206. Second batch—absolute pardon, 6; special absolute pardon, 2; conditional pardon with parole conditions, 63; commutation of sentence, 14; or a total of 85. Third batch—absolute pardon, 2 special absolute pardon, 4; conditional pardon with parole conditions, 27 commutation of sentence, 3; or a total of 36.

ALL PERSONS AND GROUPS were warned against exerting any undue influence or employing threats or other forms of coercion so that voters would vote for or against the proposed Constitution. The warning was sounded by the Comelec which ruled that these acts prohibited by Secs. 53 and 59 of the 1971 Election Code are also banned in the coming plebiscite. In support of their ruling, the Comelec commissioners said the aim of these provisions is “to secure to the voters maximum freedom in voting, uninfluenced by any threat, coercion or fraud or by any consideration other than the voters’ own judgment” so that any election or plebiscite would reflect their intelligent and unbiased decision.

PRESIDENT MARCOS sent a message for “Day of Peace” to His Holiness, Pope Paul VI, through the Philippine ambassador to the Vatican in Rome. The message reads:

“My countrymen and I join in the laudable personal crusade of Your Holiness on behalf of world peace. Peace is possible—but not until the terrible race for military supremacy is permanently halted, and not until justice is conferred on the third of humanity which continues to be deprived of their just share in the bounty of the world.

“Our task today is two-fold: first, to help create the institutions through which all men of goodwill could collaborate in solving the ills which afflict mankind; and second, to undergo the necessary purification of spirit in order to combat the pessimism which beclouds our efforts to complete man’s programs for peace.

“To this two-fold task, of which Your Holiness is the acknowledged prime mover, the Filipino people extends its warm-hearted support. May the Lord in this Holy Season bless the efforts of your Holiness to establish a universal peace based on justice and may these efforts find a willing response in the hearts of men everywhere.”

AS OF DECEMBER 19, 1972 a total of 67,432 members of the GSIS and the SSS have availed themselves of the medicare benefits, Chairman Pacifico E. Marcos of the Medical Care Commission announced. Dr. Marcos said that the GSIS and the SSS medicare departments paid a total of P15, 170,511 for services rendered to medicare patients—P5, 320,783 by the GSIS and P9, 849,728 by the SSS. The average claim per patient was P227.48. Payments were made to hospitals, doctors and drugstores. Collection of contributions for the health insurance funds or medicare funds for Program I beneficiaries (GSIS and SSS members and their dependents) was started in January, this year. Total collection as of December 19 amounted to P88,159,811. Dr. Marcos said “this is a good indication that perhaps within 1973. Phase One or Program I can be expanded to include all legal dependents of SSS and GSIS members.”

STUDIES ON THE feasibility of transferring the domestic shipping port from North Harbor in Manila to an alternative site in Southern Luzon was directed by President Marcos. An alternative port for domestic shipping is being considered in view of the increasingly felt need to decongest the port facilities in the Greater Manila area.

FINANCE SECRETARY Cesar E. A. Virata announced that there are now a total of 9,294 defective scales and other instruments of weights and measures either confiscated or sealed in public markets by provincial, city and municipal treasurers and BIR men. The latest report on the number of defective instruments of weights and measures confiscated or sealed was reported to Secretary Virata by 18 provincial treasurers and 23 city treasurers who confirmed the rampant use of such defective weighing instruments and measures in public markets and other places of trade and commerce in their respective localities. Section 289 of the National Internal Revenue Code penalizes any person who uses such defective instruments of weights and measures by a fine of not less than P200 nor more than P4,000 or by imprisonment for not less than three months nor more than two years, or both, at the discretion of the court.

BRIG GEN. Jose L. Rancudo, Philippine Air Force commander, ordered the immediate airlifting of all information materials on the proposed Constitution for distribution to places which cannot be reached by land transportation. The PAF chief said that information pamphlets, and brochures on the forthcoming plebiscite were given priority so that the people would be informed before they make their final decision on Plebiscite Day.

LIBERAL PARTY congressmen, mayors and other local leaders were commended for joining the national campaign for ratification of the proposed Constitution, “thereby subordinating their political interests to the larger demands of duty to their people.” The commendation came from Dr Guillermo C. De Vega, chairman of the National Ratification Coordinating Council Secretariat, who added: “Only by the explicit identification of our political action with the national interest can we lay aside bitter partisan strifes and bring our country out of the divisive tendencies of the past.” The other day, nine LP congressmen and almost all LP governors, mayors and councilmen endorsed the approval of the proposed charter, declaring it to be “good for the general welfare.”

GOVERNMENT AGRICULTURAL extension officers are now campaigning for the planting of vegetables which can be canned or preserved. This move is aimed at averting the possible oversupply of certain kinds of vegetables causing the lowering of prices to an unprofitable level. Prod by the Green Revolution project of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, thousands of housewives, youths, employes and other people have turned backyards into lush vegetable gardens. These amateur gardeners have planted almost the same kind of vegetable—the fast growing leafy type like pechay, cabbage, lettuce and others, which do not last long. To keep the enthusiasm of the new vegetable raisers alive, government fieldmen are helping gardeners to switch from leafy to fruit vegetables which can be preserved for future use. Among such vegetables are ampalaya, eggplant, cucumber and others which can be made into pickles, as well as mungo and some beans which can be kept without preservatives until they are needed.

CONGRESS SHOULD CONVENE in regular session on January 22 as provided for by the present Constitution, according to Speaker Cornelio T. Villareal. Section 9, Article VI of the present Constitution provides that the “Congress shall convene in regular session once every year on the fourth Monday of January, unless a different date is fixed by law. . . .” Speaker Villareal suggested that with the postponement of the plebiscite, Congress should convene. However, the House leader said that since the country is in a state of emergency and under Martial Law, “there should be sincere cooperation and coordination between Congress and the Executive Department. “I would suggest, Mr. Villareal said, “that Congress act in consonance with present circumstances and may pass measures certified by the President, which would strengthen the ability of our government to cope with the present emergency and to develop a New Society.”

SOME 17 POLLING places located in the barrios of Isabela were ordered transferred to the poblaciones by the Comelec upon recommendation of local election registrars who reported that most of the inhabitants in these barrios had moved out to the poblaciones as a result of military operations launched by the government against rebel groups. Chairman Jaime N. Ferrer said the Comelec may make similar moves with respect to polling places in several barrios in Cotabato, Sulu, Lanao del Sur and Lanao del Norte where resurgence of unrest were also recently reported.

SOME 118 insurgents and sympathizers reaffirmed their loyalty to the government before military and municipal officials in a ceremony held near the Death March monument in Capas, Tarlac. The surrenderors who came from seven barrios in the formerly insurgent dominated towns of Concepcion and Capas, Tarlac, took their oath of loyalty before Brig. Gen. Tomas Diaz, 1st PC zone commander. Their surrender was arranged by Capas Mayor Gerardo David and Bamban Mayor Pedro Mendiola. Their surrender brought to 415 the total number of surrenderors in four weeks in Tarlac alone.

IMPORTANCE OF FARMERS, dairy men and rural broadcasters in bringing about the success of the New Society, was cited by Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad. "We need to produce more and we can do this by disseminating scientific methods of farming and production to make our economy more viable and more stable," Secretary Tatad said in an extemporaneous speech before the Rural Broadcasters Council which conducts daily programs for farmers from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. on scientific farming and production methods. Mr. Tatad was inducting official of the new set of officers of the council.

PRESIDENT MARCOS sent a message of condolence to the widow of former U.S. President Harry S. Truman who died after a long illness. The message: "The Filipino people join me in extending to you our deepest sympathy in your hour of grief. President Truman served not only the American people during his years in the presidency; he also stood for the rest of the world as a worker for peace among- peoples and among nations. Even in time of war, he never allowed the aggression of others to diminish his concern for peace and justice. His passing has deprived all of us of a great leader and a good man. We will always remember him as a sincere and devoted friend."

December 28—

PRESIDENT MARCOS underscored the role of religion in the drive for reformation under the New Society. Speaking before thousands at the Ilocos Norte mini-expo which was held simultaneously with the celebration of the Fourth Centennial of the Christianization of Ilocandia, the President said that the symbol of Christianity which has guided the lives of generations of Filipinos have a vital role in the drive for reformation because the principal aim of the program for change is change in the heart, change in the mind, and change in the spirit of man. Among the countries represented in the fair held in Laoag City were Australia, India, Egypt, Spain, Japan, United Kingdom, Indonesia United States, Malaysia, Singapore, China, Canada, Ghana, France, Germany, Korea, Sri Lanka and South Vietnam.

THROUGH THE EXPANDED fish production program under the New Society, the Bureau of Fisheries initially stocked 29,500 bangus finger-lings in Lake Lanao last December 8 to 10. The initial stocking was the first release of the 1.5 million bangus fingerlings targeted for dispersal in the lake. It is expected to replenish the stock of Lake Lanao and to boost the sustenance fishing of all fishing towns bordering the lake and to rehabilitate the means of livelihood of the Muslims in Lanao del Sur.

SOME 200 UNITS of irrigation pumps worth P1.2 million acquired by the Presidential Arm on Community Development from reparations will be turned over to the National Irrigation Administration to centralize the irrigation development program of the country. For the past four years, 2,600 units of irrigation pumps valued at P30 million were made available by the PACD to as many farmers and farmers' associations. Since 1968 the PACD has been distributing low-cost irrigation pumps to farmers in various parts of the country to increase their production.

UNDERSECRETARY Rosendo R. Marquez of the Department of Local Government and Community Development also revealed that some 54,590 assorted community projects have been completed the past several years with the use of some P116 million from the Rural Improvement and Community Development Fund (RICDF). "More RICDF-funded projects numbering 12,016 are still under implementation," Mr. Marquez said. "The completion of some 24,001 projects has yet to be reported."

EXTENSION OF MEDICARE benefits to some 30,000 government employees who originally were not considered eligible to membership under Medicare Program I or the medicare plan for members of the Government Service Insurance System and the Social Security System and their dependents—was announced by the Philippine Medicare Commission. These employees, most of whom have temporary appointments, constitute the optional members of the GSIS who were deemed as not embraced in the definition of an employe under the Medicare Law. Their insurance policy numbers are prefixed either with the letter “M” or “G”.

ONE OF THE PRIORITY projects of the government is a 130-kilometer highway which would relieve congestion in the Metropolitan Manila area by opening up vast lands in the eastern region. Named the “Marcos East-West Road,” the project will start in Marikina, Rizal and end in Infanta, Quezon. It will traverse the Sierra Madre mountains. This road is considered important as it will disperse eastward population and industry now congesting the Manila area and thus help solve the twin problems of traffic and pollution. It also traverses developing commercial and residential areas and vast agricultural lands, aside from the Sierra Madre mountain range which is rich in mineral deposits.

STARTING JANUARY 1, 1973, all persons applying for residence tax certificate “A” will be required to attach their identification photographs on the original copy of their residence tax certificates. Certificate “A” will be issued in a new form and in duplicate, the original of which will be issued to the taxpayer. It will be issued by the city and municipal treasurers instead of by the Bureau of Internal Revenue as it was done in the past. Other requirements are correct name, taxpayer account number, address, place of birth, date of birth, sex, weight, civil status, occupation and/or profession, GSIS or SSS policy number. It shall be the duty of every individual who takes the oath of office, receives any license, certificate or permit from any public authority, pays any tax or fee, receives any money from any public fund, or transacts other official business, or receives any salary or wage from any person or corporation, to exhibit his residence tax certificate.

NEW MORALITY NOW pervades among the officer and employees in all the bureaus and agencies of the Department of Finance. This is the year-end report of Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata who observed that Proclamation 1081 brought about an abrupt decrease in the number of reports on alleged harassment, extortion and other highly irregular activities in all bureaus and agencies of the department. “The employees are now courteous where there used to be arrogance. There is office discipline and sincere efforts to serve the public where there used to be “indifference.” Secretary Virata also said that since the proclamation of Martial Law, 1,005 officials and employees of the department and its bureaus and agencies were either dismissed or separated from the service.

EFFECTIVE LAST DECEMBER 12, foreign technicians were no longer allowed to come into the Philippines to work in a wholly or partly nationalized trade, business or industry without previous approval by the Office of the President or the Commission on Immigration and Deportation. The economic fields covered by the restriction are retail trade, mining, oil exploration, transportation, agriculture, exploitation of natural resources and the specific trades, businesses and industries reserved by law for Filipino citizens.

WOMEN’S ORGANIZATIONS joined ranks with the Department of Social Welfare to launch a massive Get Out and Vote Campaign for the coming plebiscite. Organized under the Civic Assembly of Women of the Philippines, the women’s organizations; numbering about 60, pledged their support of the campaign which is co-chairmanned by Leticia P. de Guzman, CAWP president, and Social Welfare Secretary Estefania Aldaba Lim who represents the government women’s division. According to Mrs. De Guzman, “women’s civic organizations being what they are and what they stand for cannot ignore this historic event in our country.” Thus, she added, the CAWP recognizes and accepts the challenge to women to take an active part in the plebiscite. The CAWP will emphasize the need for all qualified voters to cast their ballots on plebiscite day regardless of whether they are for or against the proposed Constitution.

President's Week in Review: December 29, 1972 - January 4, 1973

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a decree extending the tax amnesty for untaxed motor vehicles to January 31, 1973. The new decree, which he issued upon arrival in Laoag City shall, subject to certain conditions, clear the taxpayer of all criminal responsibility by reason of the non-payment of the correct duty and tax on such motor vehicles after the duty and tax shall have been paid pursuant to this decree. The decree provides that a 50 per cent and a 75 per cent across the board deduction will be allowed on the duties and taxes collectible by the government on vehicles transferred from tax exempt persons/entities to non tax exempt persons/entities, or such vehicles where the correct taxes and duties have not been collected, depending upon the year models of such vehicles.

FINANCE SECRETARY Cesar E.A. Virata said that the good international credit standing of the Philippines has been maintained because of the judicious management of public debt and the payments thereof on time. In a year-end report, Mr. Virata said that the government has managed its public debt judiciously and met the payments thereof when due or upon demand and in some cases restructured certain obligations on reasonable basis. The secretary said the the International Monetary Fund (IMF) commended the Philippines for the efficient management of its public debt.

SOCIAL SECURITY Administrator Gilberto Teodoro announced that 35,000 SSS housing loan borrowers will enjoy substantial savings because of the reduction of insurance premiums, both life and non-life, effective January 1973. Mr. Teodoro said that negotiations with the pool of insurance companies duly accredited to do business with the SSS have resulted in a reduction by 50 per cent on the fire insurance premiums of mortgagors and an across-the-board reduction by 25 per cent on mortgage redemption life insurance premiums. The reduction in insurance premiums is in addition to the removal of the Home Financing Commission guaranty of one per cent. Qualified housing loan borrowers can now apply up to 90 per cent of the value of their collaterals at six per cent interest instead of the seven per cent previously charged on HFC-guaranteed loans.

RICE RETAILERS were warned not to violate official price ceilings. The warning was given by the National Grains Authority which learned that some retailers, particularly in the Greater Manila Area, were selling fancy rice varieties beyond ceiling price which is P3 per ganta. Retailers were reported also to have mixed government rice with commercial stocks and "wet" rice to increase its volume or weight before it is sold. The NGA warned that violations of price ceilings and engaging in unfair business practices in the sale of staple cereals are subject to stiff penalties and disclosed that inspection teams have been fielded at these unscrupulous rice merchants. The public is asked to report to the NGA violations or irregularities committed by retailers.

INTERNAL REVENUE Commissioner Misael P. Vera announced that under the new tax code, payment of fixed and professional taxes should be made only once for the whole amount due on or before January 31 This means that all persons must first pay the corresponding fixed or professional taxes before engaging in any business or before practicing their professions.

MILITARY UNIT commanders were warned against the indiscriminate issuance of curfew passes following reports of an increasing number of persons moving about outside of their residences during curfew hours. In a directive sent to all zone commanders, task force and provincial commanders, Gen. Ramos also ordered intensified operations against curfew violators. He said that the increasing number of persons moving about curfew hours will also increase the security risk to the objectives of Proclamation 1081.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued the following message on the occasion of the 76th death anniversary of Dr. Jose P. Rizal:

“The light of recent events in our country brings new significance and import to the life and example of Dr. Jose Rizal.

“In a certain sense, we are engaged today in the realization of national aspirations to which Rizal first gave life and hope. He dreamed of a good society in which a people knew solidarity and identity, and in which everyone shared in peace, justice, dignity and prosperity.

“He did not live to see that society come into being, but it is the unique opportunity of those who have come after him to see this dream take root in our time in our country.

“On this 76th commemoration of his martyrdom, no more fitting homage can be made to his memory than that we affirm anew this new faith: in ourselves and the new purposes we have in common of making over our common life.”

RIZAL WANTED the Filipino people to have a new sense of identity as a nation and to instill in them a consciousness of their capacity for excellence, believing that education and enlightenment will emancipate them toward progress. These sentiments were voiced by Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad who was the keynote speaker in a community forum on “Rizal and the New Society,” sponsored by the Rizal Day Civic Participation Committee. Dwelling on the difficulty of simplifying; the national hero’s diverse gifts, talents and scope of writing, the secretary said that Rizal’s “principal field in his political writing is practical politics—how to change an oppressive order into one that would bring about the healthy development of the Filipino race.”

INTERESTED PARTIES may now file their applications for entrance to promotional-level examinations granting police eligibilities to be conducted on August 26. Polcom Chairman Crispino M. de Castro announced that the examinations will be given for the ranks of Patrolman First Class/Detective, Police Corporal, Police Sergeant, Police Lieutenant, Police Captain, Police Major, Police Lt. Colonel, Deputy Chief of Police and Chief of Police, for both chartered cities and municipalities. Deadline for the filing of applications by current members of local police forces is April 2. They must file direct to the Polcom central office at Delta Bldg., West Ave., Quezon City, or to the nearest Polcom regional training center. For non-members who have to undergo preliminary screenings on March 17-18, application papers must be filed with any of the police departments serving as Polcom screening centers, handcarried or postdated not later than March 16.

PHILIPPINE MEDICAL CARE COMMISSION (PMCC) in a year-end meeting decided to extend medicare coverage to all legal dependents of members of the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS) and the Social Security System (SSS). In effect, Medicare Program I will already cover 20 million Filipinos or one-half of the country’s population. Their coverage, however, cannot take effect yet on January 1 but definitely the additional beneficiaries will be enjoying the benefits in early 1973.

SALARY WARRANTS (Type A) of government personnel can now be cashed with the Bureau of the Treasury on Saturdays during regular banking hours from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., according to National Treasurer Vicente P. Rodriguez, who said that the bureau will maintain a substantial personnel force on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays.

RESULTS OF satellite observations made by engineer-scientist of the U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office and the Board of Technical Surveys and Maps (BTSM) disclosed that the location of 14 islands in the Cagayan de Sulu, San Miguel and Muligue island groups as chartered in Charts Nos. 4348, 4707 and 4200 of the Bureau of Coast and Geodetic Survey, are out of position. BTSM Director Marcelino S. Tabin had previously reported that Cagayan de Sulu Island is out of position. His latest report said that three groups of islands, together with numerous rocks and shoals are all possibly charted 1.63 N. miles east of their correct positions.

PRESIDENT MARCOS created citizens assemblies in all barrios, towns and cities in the Philippines to widen the base of citizen involvement in the democratic process. Creation of the assemblies was embodied in Presidential Decree No. 86 issued on New Year's Eve. The citizen assemblies brings into the active political process all citizens of the Philippines at least 15 years of age. It is an improvement over the constitutional proposal that seeks the enfranchisement of 18-year olds, and the provision of the Revised Barrio Charter, Republic Act No. 3590, that provides for the barrio assembly consisting of all persons who are residents of the barrio for at least six months and who are 18 years of age or over.

“STRICT NEUTRALITY” in the coming plebiscite on the proposed Constitution, was enjoined by the Commission on Elections on all its officials despite the general rule allowing government personnel to campaign for either “yes” or “no” vote. In explaining the order, Chairman Jaime N Ferrer and Commissioners Lino M. Patajo and Jose Mendoza said active participation in the campaign for either side by those connected with the Comelec “might adversely affect their image as impartial officials charged with the enforcement of election laws and thereby lessen their effectiveness, as such.”

January 1—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued the following New Year's Day message to the Filipino people:

“It is my ardent wish and prayer that this New Year will find all our countrymen in high spirits and good cheer.

“The past year was a critical one for each of us and for our country. We were plagued by some of the worst threats to the very life of our democratic community. By the grace of God, with a firm will to action, and with a new solidarity among us, we survived the crisis. We embarked on a new path for our country. We face the future with high hopes.

“The advent of a new year signifies the birth of a new hope and purpose in our lives. It is at this time of year when the better impulses of our nature summon us to thoughts of turning failure into achievement, of making a good life better, of addressing our lives to higher goals and purposes.

“The year 1973 signifies a renewal that transcends all that every new year has come to mean to us in the past, as a people. For at the turn of 1972, we commenced a historic labor of transformation that touches all aspects of our individual lives and our national solidarity. We have brought change into our lives, regardless of obstacles placed in our path and without diffidence and irresolution.

“Today, we say there is new purpose and new meaning in our life as a people. Today, all of us know with sure and certain knowledge that tomorrow will be a better day.

“With full knowledge of what we can do and common resolve to give ourselves to the work at hand, I am certain that this new year will be happy and prosperous for everyone.”

MARKED ACCELERATION in construction work on the Philippine-Japan Friendship Highway Project has been effected after the proclamation of Martial Law, according to a year-end review by the Department of Public Works, Transportation and Communications. Bugged by a series of strong typhoons and the Central Luzon floods, work was slow immediately before Proclamation No. 1081. After Sept. 23, however, said the year-end review, the construction of the 2,076-kilometer long trans-Philippine highway was accelerated. What helped were the following: stabilized peace and order, favorable construction weather, weeding out of non-complying contractors, restructuring of management personnel engaged in the project, actual dismissals, and allocation of more sections to district and city engineering offices.

SOME P96.8 MILLION worth of contraband items was apprehended by government anti-smuggling agencies from January to December 1972. In a year-end assessment on the accomplishments of the bureaus and offices under the Department of Finance, Secretary Cesar E. A. Virata disclosed the exact value of seized smuggled goods from January to December 1972 as reported by the Anti-Smuggling Action Center was P96,882,264.14. The amount of P96.8 million in apprehended contraband items was mostly blue-seal cigarets, illegally exported logs, PX and other commodities and prohibited drugs.

PHILIPPINE MEDICAL CARE Commission considers the deep confidence on the Medicare Program which the PMCC has successfully established as its most significant achievement during the year. Mr. Pacifico E. Marcos, medicare chairman, said that 1972 has been a turbulent year for the Medicare Program due to the fact that it was initially implemented in this year (the benefits became available in April) when powerful forces went all out to try to blunt it into ineffectivity. Dr. Marcos said that some segments of the population openly came out to oppose the program: some members of the medical profession who feared that medicare would adversely affect medical practice. Fortunately, he said, this thinking in the medical profession was an insignificant minority. He said that the program has not only generally increased the income of Filipino physicians front medical practice but it has in fact multiplied it.

FOUR QUESTIONS will be asked by the citizens assembly in the 34,000 barrios and municipal districts all over the country in connection with the nationwide referendum to be conducted by these bodies created by Presidential Decree No. 86. The questions are: 1) What are their observations on the New Society? 2) Are they in favor of the reform measures initiated under Martial Law? 3) Do they want Congress to meet again in regular session? 4) How soon would they want the plebiscite on the proposed Constitution? Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad said the opinion of the people through these consultations in the citizens assemblies will reflect the sentiment and will of the people. He said the President will abide by the collective decision of the people in these assembly meetings.

SECRETARY TATAD also announced in a press briefing that the government is confining some 5,000 criminal elements apprehended by the authorities in the campaign against lawlessness at the Sablayan Penal Colony in Occidental Mindoro. Other points brought out at the briefing by the public information secretary were: The administration is embarking on a stricter enforcement of the curfew hours, the traffic rules, cleanliness drive and the lowering of prices of commodities.

FROM THE TIME Martial Law was proclaimed by President Marcos last Sept. 21 up to Dec. 31, 1972 the military has collected 482,248 firearms and 1,334,044 rounds of ammunitions, has killed 89 dissidents in 87 encounters and has recovered 392 stolen vehicles. The Philippine Constabulary said that the collection of these firearms, not to mention other favorable factors made possible by Martial Law, has resulted in the reduction of crimes of all types by more than 50 per cent throughout the country. With respect to the index of serious crimes such as murders, homicides," robbery-rape and others, the reduction effected has averaged 75 per cent to 80 per cent nationwide. The number of crimes in which firearms are used has dropped from 80 per cent to 30 per cent, according to PC records.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE Commission has reported that 2,664 corporations with subscribed and paid up capital of P650, 467,325 and P282 943 780 respectively, and 1,467 partnerships with a total capital of P68, 250,054 were registered in 1972. SEC Commissioner Arcadio E. Yabyabin said that there was an increase of P62.639.574 or 28.4 per cent in paid capital of corporations registered .in 1972, compared to 9.0 304,206 total paid up capital of 2,283 corporations registered in 1971. He also emphasized that the number of corporations registered in 1972 was 381 more than that of 1971.

TAXPAYERS WHO have been issued tax account numbers (TAN) should use the same number in getting their residence certificates from municipal and city treasurers. The BIR warned that taxpayers who secure another TAN, in spite of the fact that they have earlier been issued such number, will be penalized by a fine of not more than P300 or imprisonment of not more than six months. The BIR advised tax payers to keep their TAN because these are permanent, and they will use these numbers in all transactions with the government and with private corporations.

AN INCREASE BY as much as P500 million in revenue collections in Fiscal Year 1972-1973 was predicted by Finance Secretary Virata after reviewing the improvements in the tax collection machinery and the administrative setup of the Bureau of Internal Revenue and the Bureau of Customs. Expressing optimism over a greatly improved collection this year, Secretary Virata said that the BIR is expected to collect P300 million more in taxes while the Bureau of Customs is expected to collect P200 million more.

PROVINCIAL AND CITY medical care councils were authorized to do spot-checking of medicare patients in hospitals. In a resolution, the Philippine Medical Care Commission directed the scrutiny of clinical records of medicare patients, including those who have already checked out. Under certain circumstances, the spot-checking may include interviews with patients. This authority given to the local arms of the PMCC is a kind of preventive measure against possible abuse of the Medicare Program and a protection to beneficiaries who should really get the benefits. The spot-checking will also find out whether the admission of a medicare patient is justified or the laboratory examinations given him and the medicines prescribed for him are those which are necessary only in relation to his illness or for his recovery.

PRESIDENT MARCOS enlisted the help of the largest aggroupment of Muslim leaders in Mindanao to bring back to the fold of the law the insurgents who had taken to the hills, with the promise of selective amnesty. The Muslim leaders belonging to various warring political and factional groups who called at Malacañang pledged to bury then-past differences. They unanimously adopted a resolution reposing their trust and confidence to the President.

CLEARED BY a military tribunal after he was tried for illegal possession of firearms and ammunition, was Carlito Ilagan, resident of Mandaluyong, Rizal. Ilagan was cleared of criminal liability after the military court found no sufficient evidence against him. Tribunals, lately, have been sentencing violators of the arms ban to imprisonments ranging from 20 to 25 years, at hard labor.

THIRTY-NINE MORE policemen were suspended in three cities and nine municipalities as the Police Commission discovered strong evidence of guilt in grave administrative cases pending against them. This brings to 579 the number of policemen suspended by the Polcom since it began acting on the President's directives—a relentless cleaning-up campaign in the police service. Among those already suspended are two city police chiefs and 24 municipal police chiefs.

SOME 1,500 members of four subversive organizations in Nueva Ecija reaffirmed their allegiance to the government at a massive rally in Cabanatuan City. Many of those who joined the rally were deeply involved in the violent activist demonstrations in Manila in 1969 and 1970. They were former members of the Samahan ng mga Demokratikong Kabataan, Malayang Pagkakaisa ng Kabataang Filipino and Kabataan Makabayan. In Nueva Vizcaya, 936 members of the Barrio Organization Committee, service support of insurgent groups likewise swore allegiance to the government in simple ceremonies held in Bayombong.

COMMENDED FOR turning over P300 in cash and some documents he found while working at the Central Post Office Building on Liwasang Bonifacio, was Jose Orcilla, 20, an employee of Platon Company, a janitorial firm servicing the Bureau of Posts. The janitor was honored by Postmaster General Felizardo Tanabe by giving him a permanent job in the Bureau, in line with his policy of recruiting employees of good moral character.

“OPERATION PALAGAD ’73 Bagong Lipunan,” an intensified rice production program for the dry season, was launched by government and private agricultural, marketing and financing officials. The program is aimed at producing a surplus of some three million cavans of palay over the regular harvest from 100,000 hectares of irrigated rice farms in Central Luzon, Rizal and Laguna, or an estimated increase in average yield of 20 to 40 cavans per hectare.

MILITARY COMMISSION No. 6 started the trial of 20 persons accused in the malversation of 4,401 bags of RCA rice intended to assist flood victims during the last flood. Of the 20 accused, six are officers and employes of the defunct Rice and Corn Administration and the rest are private persons who had something to do with the custody and control of the RCA rice on the basis of brokerage, trucking, loading and storage.

President's Week in Review: January 5-11, 1973

President's Week in Review: January 12-18, 1973

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 12—

MAJORITY OF THE 53 per cent of the citizens assemblies which have completed the referendum on vital issues submitted to them have voiced overwhelming support for the way President Marcos is running the government, for the continuation of Martial Law, and for the approval of the proposed new charter except that portion of it on the interim National Assembly. Assistant Executive Secretary Flores A. Bayot who toured some provinces in the Visayas and Mindanao, reported a heavy turnout of local residents at the assemblies. He estimated that some 95 per cent of those who participated in the assemblies endorsed the issues submitted to them. Mr. Bayot likewise reported that the people favor continuation of Martial Law because under it they can have more hope of a better life.

SECRETARY OF PUBLIC Information Francisco S. Tatad appealed to the local Chinese community and other foreign groups to support and extend their full cooperation In the realization of objectives of the New Society because no alien guests whose only purpose is to amass profits will be tolerated. The secretary stressed it is important for the aliens who have decided to build their homes and future in the country to involve themselves in the causes and motivations that, impelled President Marcos to institute the reforms in the New Society. Mr. Tatad, addressing the bi-monthly meeting of the Federation of Filipino-Chinese Chambers of Commerce, likewise favored the assimilation of local Chinese culture into the Filipino way of life because "there is no way out you . . . are here and should help us."

DR. PACIFICO E. MARCOS, chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission, reiterated to medicare members compulsorily covered by the Medicare Law, that when they require hospitalization, all they need is to go to a hospital of their choice and be attended to immediately. Dr. Marcos said that in seeking hospitalization or treatment from hospitals or doctors of their choice, the medicare members should bring with them only proofs of active participation in the medicare program, such as: 1) Employer's Medicare Contribution Certification, 2) SSS Identification Card (for SSS members) and GSIS Policy (for GSIS members), 3) Current year employment Identification Card, and 4) Any other proof indicating active membership with the SSS or the GSIS which may include the new Residence Certificate. After presenting any of the proofs, all hospitals and all doctors are duty bound to render the necessary services for the treatment of a medicare patient without exacting any advance payments whether partially or in full from him for services within the benefits allowed by the Medicare Law, Dr. Marcos said.

SELECTIVE BIR OFFICES especially in the national office at the Finance Building Agrifina Circle, are open on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays to accommodate taxpayers. Taxpayers may pay taxes at the Sound floor of the Finance building, seek information at the Tax Information Division, second floor; obtain tax clearance certificates at the third floor Tax Accounts Division, and seek information on presidential tax decrees. A pool of competent BIR officials has been organized on these days so that taxpayers could be helped with authority. BIR regional offices are also open on these days.

BIR COMMISSIONER Misael P. Vera stressed anew the secrecy and inviolate nature of returns filed with the Bureau of Internal Revenue by persons who voluntarily report previously untaxed income or wealth pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 23, as amended by Presidential Decree No. 67. "These returns will be kept in a secret file and will not be subjected to any examination," Commissioner Vera said. He stated that Revenue Regulations No. 15-72 penalizes any person who discloses information relating to the declaration with an imprisonment of not more than two years.

ALL CITIZENS ARE called upon by the Dangerous Drugs Board to equip themselves with the basic factual knowledge of drug abuse so they can effectively help combat the growing menace. Secretary of Health Clemente S. Gatmaitan, DDB chairman, made the call in an address at the opening of the training course on narcotics and 'dangerous drug control and investigation at the Police Commission Academy in Fort Bonifacio. Mr. Gatmaitan stressed that like the trainees taking the course, the citizenry must equally take concern and familiarize themselves with the symptoms and effect to drugs, adding that they must be prepared to recognize who are the villains and who are the victims. Drug addiction is a grave threat in the school environment, in the home and in various sectors of society, drawing thousands of people to drug dependency and draining themselves of millions of pesos to the illicit drug trade, according to Mr. Gatmaitan.

SOCIAL WELFARE Secretary Estefania Aldaba Lim announced that the DSW is stepping up its comprehensive five-year program so that a larger percentage of the program's target population will be served this year. Secretary Lim said the encouraging results reaped by the DSW during the last six months inspired her to push through the five-year program (1972-76) of the department. The DSW program is designed to provide wider socio-economic opportunities and open avenues for more social benefits for families in the submarginal group or those whose average monthly income is P90 and below. This group comprises 30 per cent (10.9 million) of the Philippine population.

TAXPAYERS ACCOUNT NUMBER (TAN) is required of all applicants for residence certificates. This was stressed by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata as queries on the matter continued to pour in from all parts of the country. Those who do not have TAN's may acquire the same in the BIR national office or in the revenue district offices covering their respective areas. Sec. Virata pointed out that Executive Order No. 213 dated March 5, 1970 requires the extensive use of the TAN in all government transactions. The executive order requires "all departments bureaus, offices, agencies and instrumentalities, including government-owned or controlled corporations, to require every individual, corporation, partnership, and association to state or place on all documents and records of any business transaction between persons and entities whose documents need to be registered, to state or place on said records and documents their tax account number."

ALL PROVINCIAL AND city treasurers and assessors were exhorted to exert utmost effort to collect all delinquent real estate taxes. Finance Secretary Virata made the exhortation after learning that P108 4 million in realty taxes was not collected in Calendar Year 1971. Secretary Virata said that out of a total amount of P241.230.788 collectibles in real property taxes in 1971 from 66 provinces and 61 cities, only P132,892,578 was collected, representing 55.06 per cent of the collectibles, leaving a balance of P108,401,210 still to be collected.

PRESIDENT MARCOS called on the leaders of Congress and the Constitutional convention to submit their recommendations on the advisability of referring more questions of national importance to the citizens assemblies, even as reports on the referendum from different parts of the country continued to be highly favorable to the administration. The president had ordered the holding of citizen assemblies in lieu of open debate on the Constitution over the radio and television which had been abused by elitist groups, because citizens assemblies afforded more free debate and gave the barrio people from 15 years old and above a chance to air their personal views. Meanwhile, some 53 per cent of the citizen assemblies which had completed the referendum on vital issues: 1) Voiced overwhelming support of the way President Marcos is running the government; 2) Approved the continuation of Martial Law; 3) Approved the proposed new Constitution with the exception of the provision on an interim National Assembly; and 4) Rejected the holding of elections in November.

TOTAL OF 42,237 community development projects costing P52 million were completed by the rural folk with the help of the Presidential Arm on Community Development (PACD) last year. The projects, ranging from big irrigation dams to multi-purpose health centers and feeder roads, provided immediate solution to some long-felt problems of the rural masses. Of the projects completed last year, 1,487 were financed through the grants-in-aid program at the cost of P15.3 million. PACD contributed P2.5 million. The rest were shouldered by the barrio people themselves, socio-civic organizations and civic spirited citizens. The greater bulk of the finished projects was purely self-help undertakings worth P36.7 million. Financed solely by the rural folk with the help of their respective local governments, these projects were generated by the grants-in-aid program that now benefit some 2,771,000 people in the rural areas.

NATIONAL GRAINS AUTHORITY reported to President Marcos that necessary steps have been taken to improve the image of what used to be a graft-ridden entity then known as the Rice and Corn Administration. In his year-end report to the President, the NGA administrator said the following moves have been adopted: 1) Institution of safeguards to avoid the pitfalls that beset the rice program of the government in the past; 2) A thorough house cleaning at the defunct RCA to eliminate opportunities for graft; and 3) A rigid screening of new personnel of the NGA to ensure competent and responsive service.

CUSTOMS COMMISSIONER Rolando Geotina said that government importations subject to taxes and duties under the new Tariff and Customs Code may be released by the Bureau of Customs on condition that the importing government agency concerned submit a "commitment paper." The commitment paper, the customs chief explained, could come in the form of a certification from the head of the importing government agency he will include and work for a budgetary outlay to pay for the taxes and duties due to the importations in the next budget of the office concerned. All collector of customs were circularized to enforce strictly the tenor of the regulation to prevent possible clogging of piers and harbors by the continued stay in port of such importations and likewise in order that it will not imperil the early completion of government projects for which such importation have been made.

LIM SENG, alias Gan Sou So, died before an eight-man firing squad early this morning after a military tribunal convicted him for manufacturing and peddling heroin to the country's youth. The Chinese paid for his crime of trafficking in illegal drugs like morphine, heroin and marijuana at 6 a.m. at the firing range in Fort Bonifacio. Seven caliber .30 MI slugs plowed through his body, and in a little over a minute, it was: all over for him. By tradition, one rifle was loaded only with a blank cartridge. The more than 5,000 witnesses who elbowed their way to get a glimpse of the military execution and the 10,000 others who plodded their way to Fort Bonifacio at sunrise in an effort to be on hand at the proceedings, appeared to have expressed no sympathy for the alien who had victimized thousands of young innocent lives in the 10 years that he was in illegal operation as heroin manufacturer.

SOME 14 MILLION members of the citizens assemblies in 65 reporting provinces and 58 reporting chartered cities and the barangays in Manila and other localities have overwhelmingly come, out against the holding of Congress session this month, while 14,602,000 endorsed the continuation of Martial Law. Only three provinces and three cities have not yet submitted the results on the citizens referendum. Those against the holding of Congress sessions represent 94 per cent, while only six per cent or 894,000 favor the opening of Congress. Reaction to other vital issues: 1) Do you approve of the citizens assemblies as the base of popular government to decide issues affecting our people? Yes, 98.8 per cent (14,721,200); No, 1.2 per cent (178,800). 2) Do you approve of the new Constitution? Yes, 97 per cent (14,453,000); No, three per cent. (442,000). 3) Do you still want a plebiscite to be called to ratify the new Constitution?. Yes, seven per cent (1,043,000) ; No, 93 per cent (13,857,000). 4) Do you want to hold elections in November 1973 as provided for in the 1935 Constitution? Yes, 11 per cent (1,639,000); No, 89 per cent (13,261,000). 5) Do you want Martial Law to continue? Yes, 98 per cent (14,602,000); No, two per cent (298,000).

PRESIDENT MARCOS pledged to overcome all threats to his life and to safeguard the life of the Republic "not only with our lives but with everything that we have, including honor itself." The President made the pledge in an extemporaneous speech at the parade and review held in his honor at Malacañang Park, marking the second anniversary of the Presidential Security Command. Mr. Marcos recalled that from 1965 to 1969 there were many attempts against his life and that from 1969 to 1970 there were many plots and conspiracies not only against the life of the President but also against the life of the Republic. "We shall continue to meet these threats, these plots, these conspiracies, firm in the resolve that while we serve our people, while we adhere to the basic principles and tenets of our Constitution and democracy, while we fight for an ultimate kind of freedom which we must guard not only with our lives but with everything that we have, including honor itself which we value more than life, then there is hope for this country and there is hope, for this Republic," the President stressed.

PRESIDENTIAL DECREE No. 98 regulating the issuance of license plates of all motor vehicles to promote traffic safety at night and to further aid the campaign against night crimes and lawlessness was issued by President Marcos. The decree provides that: 1) The Bureau of Land Transportation shall cause reflective number plates to be prepared and issued to owners of motor vehicles and trailers registered under R.A. 4136, charging for each pair, including the numerals indicating the year of registry, a fee of not more than 15 per cent higher than the acquisition cost; 2) All motor vehicles exempted from payment of legislation fees, motor vehicles for hire and privately-owned motor vehicles shall bear plates so designed and reflectorized with different colors as to distinguish one class from another; and 3) No two license plate numbers bearing the same numerals shall be issued to any motor vehicles regardless of the place of issue or the type, kind or ownership of the motor vehicle.

PRESIDENT MARCOS likewise issued Presidential Decree No. 99 emancipating household help throughout the country from a lifetime of exploitation by increasing their monthly wages and providing penalties for its violation. The decree, dated Jan. 15, provides for a monthly rate of not lower than P60 for house helpers in Manila and the suburban areas located in the province of Rizal; not lower than P45 for those m other chartered cities and first class municipalities. The decree takes effect 30 days after the Secretary of Labor has promulgated the implementing rules and regulations. Covered by the P60-rate are Manila, Quezon City, Pasay City and Caloocan City, and the municipalities of Makati, San Juan, Mandaluyong, Muntinglupa, Navotas, Malabon, Parañaque, Las Piñas and Marikina, in the province of Rizal.

SOME 120 provincial governors and city mayors informed the President that the people had voted “almost unanimously” during the Jan. 10-15 referendum to have the new Constitution considered ratified. The local executives who reported the results of the referendum made through meetings of some 35,000 citizens assemblies and barangays, also informed the President that the people have spoken overwhelmingly for the continuation of the present policies of the administration.

BRIG. GEN. Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, appealed to all lawless elements in eight provinces and nine cities in the South to take advantage of Presidential Decree No. 95 granting selective amnesty. Gen. Ramos told those affected by the selective amnesty decree that they have until Feb. 28 to return to the folds of the law. After Feb. 28, Gen. Ramos said, the full force of the military will be sent out to track them down. Affected by the decree are lawless elements in the provinces of Cotabato, South Cotabato, Lanao del Norte, Lanao del Sur, Zamboanga del Norte, Zamboanga del Sur, Sulu and Palawan, and the cities of Cotabato, Gen. Santos, Iligan, Marawi, Zamboanga, Pagadian, Basilan, Dipolog and Dapitan.

PRESIDENT MARCOS, complying with the will of the people as expressed in the January 10-15 referendum through the barangays and citizens assemblies, proclaimed the new Constitution ratified and in force as of 12 noon. In accordance with the unanimous demand of the people, the President also signed along with Proclamation No. 1102 announcing the ratification of the Constitution: 1) Proclamation No 1103 declaring that the interim National Assembly provided for an Art. XVII of the Constitution be not convened; and 2) Proclamation No 1104 for the continuation of Martial Law in accordance with the needs of the time and the desire of the people. The three questions were referred to the people in a referendum designed to broaden the base of citizen participation in the democratic processes and afford ample opportunity for the citizenry to express their voice on important national issues.

ISSUANCE BY PRESIDENT Marcos of Proclamation No. 1102 declaring the new Constitution ratified as of 12 noon has among others, the following important effects: 1) The exercise by the President of the r powers of the President and Prime Minister; 2) Abolition of Congress; 3) The change of the presidential to the parliamentary form of government; and 4) Giving the President the discretion When to call the interim National Assembly. These were the highlights of a briefing given by Justice Undersecretary Efren Plana at the Department of Public Information where he met with local and foreign newsmen.

FREEZING OF ALL information received during the tax amnesty period from informers relative to undeclared income or wealth until after March 31, 1973, was ordered by Secretary of Finance Cesar E. A. Virata. He said that no information from informers should be processed while Presidential Decree No. 23, as amended by Presidential Decree No. 67, is in effect. At the same time, Secretary Virata directed officials of the Department of Finance, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Bureau of Customs, and the Anti-Smuggling Action Center to adopt all measures to extend full protection to all persons who take advantage of the tax amnesty. Such protection should be from all types of harassment by either government law enforcers or informers. All information from informers will be kept on file so as not to subject persons who are taking advantage of the amnesty to undue harassment. However, the full force of the internal revenue laws and regulations will be applied against all persons who do not declare all their undeclared income or wealth including their assets abroad after March 31, 1973.

PREVIOUSLY UNTAXED INCOME disclosed under the provisions of Presidential Decree No. 23 as amended, if consisting wholly or partly of hoarded cash in the Philippines, need not be invested in any area of preferred undertakings. Revenue Commissioner Misael P. Vera clarified today. He said the requirement of investment or deposit of hoarded cash under the tax amnesty decree refers only to previously untaxed income or wealth consisting of "cash hoarded abroad." The immunities granted now by the tax amnesty include relief from civil, criminal and administrative liabilities arising from or incident to the disclosure under the National Internal Revenue Code, the Revised Penal Code, the Anti-Graft and Corrupt Practices Act, the Revised Administrative Code, the Civil Service Laws and regulations, Jaws and regulations on immigration and deportation or any other applicable law or proclamation.

OVER 239 FIRMS have expressed their desire to avail of the condonation of penalties on delinquent contributions, according to a report submitted by Administrator Gilberto Teodoro of the Social Security System. The condonation of penalties, as incorporated in Presidential Decree No. 24 amending the Social Security Law, allows the delinquent employers a grace period until April 19, 1973 to remit late contributions, Without the three; per cent monthly penalty. This also includes those employers with pending cases filed with the Social Security Commission, courts, or the fiscal's office related to delinquent payments.

COMPLETION OF a multi-channel microwave VHF communications system, in the Cagayan Valley, was announced by Director of Telecommunications Pedro P. Villaseñor. With the completion of this system, major towns in the Cagayan Valley will be connected for the first time by modern telephone and telegraph facilities with the rest of the country. The newly completed system provides telecommunications services to the major population centers of Tabuk in Kalinga-Apayao, Tuguegarao in Cagayan province, Ilagan and Santiago in Isabela, and Bayombong in Nueva Vizcaya.

"The ratification of our new Constitution marks the end of an old era and its old ways; it marks as well the beginning of a future, tinged perhaps with unknown perils for those who are prisoners of their own tears, but nevertheless a future of novel and unsurpassed opportunities for the fulfillment of our people's long dormant hopes and dreams.

"Our future is here, whether or not we recognize this fact, and there is now no turning back the tide. It is easier perhaps and more comfortable to look back to the solace of a familiar and mediocre past, but the times are too grave and the stakes too high for us to permit the customary concessions to traditional democratic processes to hold back our people's clear and unequivocal resolve and mandate to meet and overcome the extraordinary challenges presented by these extraordinary times.

"Our people have spoken with wisdom and courage. We must now translate their wishes into concrete positive acts. They want a new Constitution, thus we have a new Constitution. They reject the politics of the old, thus we have ratified the citizens assemblies or the barangays as the organ through which government must now consult with the people, and the people with their government. They do not want our people to bear the cost of an ad interim assembly, so we shall not convene them. In ratifying the new Constitution, we ratified the wisdom of the people; it is now for us to live by that new charter.

"Let not our people be swayed from their chosen path by those who are capable of dispensing only high rhetoric and unredeemable pledges, by those who curse the darkness where there really is light.

“Going the new way will require gifts of character our people innately possess. I invite our people now to close ranks and blaze the way to what I am certain is a secure and happy future, guided by God’s awesome grace and the light of our new Constitution.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS, at the same time, called upon everyone to comply with the provisions of the new Constitution as well as with all the laws, decrees, orders, rules and regulations now in force. The President, likewise, called upon all provincial governors, city and municipal mayors, barrio captains and all other local officials to continue discharging their duties in accordance with existing laws and with the orderly administration of government. The President pointed out that under the new Constitution, all local officials are to carry on with their functions until otherwise provided by law or by decree. The Chief Executive sounded the call in a message sent out to all citizens assemblies and barangays which he congratulated and to which he conveyed his gratitude for the prompt support and cooperation they extended their government in connection with the recent referendum.

JUSTICE UNDERSECRETARY Efrén Plana said that contrary to popular belief, the President did not ratify the new charter but only proclaimed its ratification by the people through the recently concluded referendum initiated by means of the citizens assemblies and barangays all over the country. He said that the nation is now governed by the new charter and because of the “transition nature” of the government’s machinery at present, there is a need for a “concentration of powers” border to have “decisiveness” in recouping lost ground. The undersecretary said that President Marcos may exercise the powers of the Prime Minister and of the President as embodied in the ’72 charter, in addition to his old powers as President under the old Constitution, as provided for in the Charter.

POLICE COMMISSION Chairman Crispino M. De Castro ordered the suspension of nine chiefs of police and 85 policemen from all over the country who have been charged in various administrative cases. The order brings to a total of 738 police personnel ordered suspended by the Polcom since the imposition of Martial Law. Of this number, 34 are chiefs of police. Chairman de Castro said 706 of those now under suspension have been barred from the police service until after the final disposition of their cases.

GREATER DEDICATION to duty by customs appraisers and examiners at the Port of Manila has netted for the government an additional income of P18,441,199, representing collection of tax discrepancies due to misclassification of 2,795 import entries during the second quarter of the current fiscal year from October to December 1972. Customs Commissioner Rolando G. Geotina said that the figure is P9,774,956 more than what was collected during the first quarter, from July to September 1972, which was only P8,666,243.

ALL LAW ENFORCEMENT agencies were reminded by President Marcos that apprehensions and detentions should be made only on the basis of sworn statements of complaining parties and not on charges made merely through anonymous letters or by irresponsible individuals. In the course of his conferences with a number of local executives, the President emphasized that anonymous letters should, at most, be made the bases for investigation or surveillance.

President's Week in Review: January 19-25, 1973

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS met the Cabinet and leaders of the defunct Senate and House of Representatives to iron out difficulties which might arise during the transition from the old Constitution to the new Constitution which went into effect at noon of last Jan. 17. Following the meeting which was the first held since the ratification and adoption of the new Constitution, the President ordered that: 1) All officials and personnel of the government shall continue performing their duties in their respective offices until otherwise ordered by decrees or by operation of the provisions of the Constitution; and 2) All orders, decrees, proclamations and letters of instructions issued under Martial Law shall continue and remain in force until otherwise revoked or superseded by provisions of the new Charter. The President called the meeting to dispel any feeling of uncertainty which might arise in view of the non-convening of the interim National Assembly which was unanimously rejected by the people in the referendum of January 10-15.

SENATORS AND REPRESENTATIVES generally have accepted grace fully President Marcos' recent proclamation which in effect abolished Congress and ushered in major changes in the government and social structure. This is the observation of a former opposition member of Congress, Rep. Carmelo Barbero (L, Abra), who expounded his views on the new Constitution during the "Citizens Line" program over Radio Mindanao Network-Interisland Broadcasting System. Mr. Barbero said that members of Congress are merely spokesmen of the people and when the citizenry, through the barangays and citizens assemblies, endorsed the ratification of the new Constitution and the present policies of the President, they had no choice but bow to the will of the people. The former solon classified his status and those of other members of Congress as "assemblymen on forced leave." Mr. Barbero emphasized that under the new Constitution, the interim National Assembly exists but that its organization has merely been put off by the President.

SECRETARY OF FINANCE Cesar E. A. Virata assured businessmen that the government has been setting the basic directions towards a more balanced and stable economy and at the same time called upon private business to contribute continuously to the reforms in government as well as in business. In a speech before the Manila Rotary, Secretary Virata pointed out that the elimination of political sponsors and the political and media levers, which were used towards the pursuit of private gain with very little regard to the consequence of the economy as a whole should now encourage confidence in the business community. "On the basis of the most recent developments in our country, major foreign investments have come to the Philippines since many of these foreign businessmen clearly to see the pattern of reform that the government has undertaken since Sept. 21, 1972," Sec. Virata said. He cited the incentives and reforms in the business field undertaken by President Marcos to make private business an effective partner of the government in economic development.

COMMISSIONER OF INTERNAL Revenue Misael P. Vera reported that the BIR has registered a two-month collection of P66,261,723 on specific taxes on cigarets for the months of November and December last year. Taxes paid on cigarets for December alone amounted to P36,965,113 representing an increase of P12,313,469 or 49.94 per cent over that of the same period in 1971. Collections for November totalled P29, 296,610, showing an increase of P6, 778,508 or 28.39 per cent over collections in November of 1971. Commissioner Vera attributed the increased collections on specific taxes to the new morality and dedication of BIR personnel and the vigorous and successful anti-smuggling campaign being waged by the government.

TOURIST ARRIVALS last December increased by 17.7 per cent as compared to the same month the previous year. Tourism Commissioner Gregorio Araneta II said this is so far the biggest increase in monthly tourist arrivals since the proclamation of "Martial Law last September, a direct result of improved local conditions. Total national income from these arrivals were estimated by the BTTI at U.S. $36.7 million.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued General Order 22 limiting the number of licensed firearms in the hands of civilians and members of the Armed Forces to one long arm and one short arm only for each person. They have to surrender to>the PC all excess firearms-in their possession. The new firearms collection drive is a continuation of the government effort to remove excess or unauthorized firearms. The President ordered, among others, that: 1) Henceforth, each individual is to hold under license a maximum only of one low-power rifle cal. .22 or shotgun not heavier than 12-gauge, and one pistol or revolver not higher than cal. .38 except cal. .357 mm magnum, cal. .22 center fire magnum, and those which are or may later be classified by the chief of Constabulary as high-power regardless of type, make, or caliber; and 2) Officers and enlisted personnel in the active service of the AFP may hold under license a maximum only of one low-power rifle cal. .22 or shotgun not heavier than 12-gauge and one sidearm of any type or caliber.

TOTAL OF 68 ENLISTED men have been discharged with cause from the service since Martial Law was imposed by the President. General Romeo Espino, AFP chief of staff, announced that of this number, 29 were in the Philippine Army, 26 Constabulary, nine Navy, two Philippine Military Academy and one each from the General Headquarters and Logistics Center. Not a single soldier or airman was booted out from the Philippine Air Force during the period starting Sept. 22. The dismissed servicemen were all found to have committed acts contrary to existing laws of the Republic and regulations of the military. According to General Espino, more erring military personnel are facing dismissal from the service on account of their unlawful acts. Their cases are being investigated by the AFP board and investigation offices.

CRIMES AGAINST PERSONAL liberty as defined and penalized under the Revised Penal Code will now be tried by the military courts. This is the substance of General Order No. 21 issued by President Marcos.

LAND TRANSPORTATION COMMISSION plainclothes agents will be assigned on buses and jeepneys to make spot checks on violations of traffic rules by drivers. LTC Commissioner Romeo F. Edu said the plainclothesmen, who will be drawn from the traffic bureaus of the different police departments and the LTC, will be made to ride passenger vehicles as ordinary paying passengers to check such traffic violations as trip-cutting, operating outside of authorized lines or routes, loading and unloading of passengers in unauthorized zones, and discourtesy to passengers by drivers and conductors. While aboard these passenger vehicles, these plainclothes agents will also watch and arrest private motorists who violate traffic rules. The agents are under instructions to give particular attention to reckless drivers.

PRESIDENT MARCOS reiterated his commitment to the ideals of democracy and rejection of a dictatorial form of government. In his first formal press conference since the proclamation of Martial Law last Sept. 21 the President allayed fears of a dictatorship or the establishment of a revolutionary government as suggested by the people. There are some misgivings about our plunging into dictatorship and into a revolutionary government,” the President said. “On the contrary, one of the principal reasons why I decided immediately to proclaim the new Constitution was that the only other alternative was, as the people themselves suggested, to establish a revolutionary government.” The President said a revolutionary government would set back the return to normalcy and delay the restoration of the normal processes of democracy.

SECRETARY OF FOREIGN Affairs Carlos P. Romulo declared that the real thrust of the New Society is reform, not the patch-work reform intended as mere palliative, but reform along a broad spectrum—social, economic and political—intended to cure the malady rather than merely mask its symptoms. “Accordingly, the main directions of reforms will be, first, land reform and, second, the development of new political institutions, broader and more representative in character,” Sec. Romulo said before cadets of the Philippine Military Academy in Baguio. He stated that the formation of the barangays is a clue to the direction of the impending political reorganization, and although still in raw form, it is intended to give the widest representation to all segments of society.

PROVING TO BE A BIG boost to the administration’s program of free education in the grassroots level, are the three-room, Marcos-type schoolhouses. Introduced in 1966 in order to catch up with the fast-increasing barrio school population, it can accommodate 150 pupils. There are now 107,543 of these built since 1966, where more than 10 million barrio pupils get their formal schooling. Chairman Baltazar Aquino of the Presidential School Building Committee (PSBC), in a recent status report to the President, disclosed that a total of P274 million was spent from 1966 to 1972 in support of the administration's program of free education for the masses. There are more new classrooms erected under the current program than all previous ones combined since the schoolbuilding program was launched in the 1950's.

BRIG GEN Fidel V. Ramos, PC chief, set Feb. 28 as the deadline for the surrender of all excess firearms in the possession of private individuals and members of the armed forces, and laid down the procedure for their turnover in accordance with General Order No. 22 issued by the President last Jan. 17.

STEPS TO HELP alleviate the serious rice shortage in many parts of the world is being taken by the United States government. The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced this is to be done by increasing America's rice acreage for the 1973 crop year (August-July) by 10 per cent—or about 250, 000 acres. Such an increase in acreage is expected to result in the production of an additional 300, 000 metric tons of rice.

PROCLAMATION BY PRESIDENT Marcos of the ratification of the new Constitution has been welcomed by local governments to continue their role as effective partner of the national government in working for the people's welfare. This view was expressed by Gov. Isidro S. Rodriguez of Rizal as guest on Channel 13. The Rizal governor said that the local governments can effectively work in partnership with the administration because the local governments are the ones in "direct communication with the people and are, thereby, in a position to relay to national officials the immediate needs for "accelerating economic growth.

PRESIDENT MARCOS exhorted the officials and employees of the Department of Agrarian Reform to strive with all their enthusiasm, fervor and capability to accelerate the land reform program. The President gave the exhortation during the oath-taking of the directors of the bureaus under the department who, along with some 17 foreign affairs officers, were the first government officials to take their oaths of office before the President under the new Constitution. The President, at the same time, enjoined some 90 volunteer doctors and nurses who were leaving for the rural areas, to spread the gospel of the New Society, that "each and everyone of us is his brother's keeper." The President received the members of the medical teams which will attend to the health needs of people in remote localities without pay for one month. He asked the volunteers not only to give medical care but also to involve the people, particularly the youth, in the formation of cooperatives, wholesome recreation, family planning, nutrition and community development.

CUSTOMS DEPUTY COMMISSIONER Pedro Mendoza reported that the amount of P6,371,324 has been collected from previously untaxed motor vehicles as of Jan. 22, 1973. In the port of Manila alone, about 1,500 motor vehicles were already registered in compliance with Presidential Decree No. 52 as amended by Presidential Decree No. 52-A reducing by 50 per cent taxes on motor vehicles on 1970 to 1972 models, and by 70 per cent 1969 and below models. On previously untaxed income or hidden wealth, the BIR has collected as of Jan. 22 a total of P1,133,534 representing 10 per cent of more than P11 million already reported to the BIR as previously undeclared income or hidden wealth. The deadline for the tax amnesty on previously untaxed income or wealth is March 31, 1973.

THREE SURVEY MISSIONS—the Japanese survey mission, World Bank Economic Mission and the Labor Mission—are at present in the country to look into the country's development program with particular emphasis on local projects that could be funded with foreign aid and to examine the trends and problems on employment opportunities in the Philippines. The Japanese mission headed by Akio Suzuki of the Overseas Economic Cooperation Fund of Japan, arrived last Jan. 15 to discuss with Philippine government officials the country's four-year development program and possible projects for submission to the Japanese government for aid financing. This mission was sent here in connection with the Japanese foreign aid commitment of $75 million made during the World Bank consultative talks held in Tokyo last year. The World Bank group headed by Russel Cheetham will examine the trends relating to production, employment, public finance and balance of payments and will assess the Philippine external aid requirements. The labor mission led by Dr. Gustav Ranis came here to study labor and general development policies with the view to expanding employment opportunities.

PUBLIC OFFICIALS, including constitutional officers, who were exempt from taxation under the 1935 Constitution are now subject to tax under the new Constitution. According to Bin Commissioner Vera, this means that constitutional officers such as the justices of the Supreme Court, Court of Appeals and other appellate courts, judges of the courts of first instance, the Court of Tax Appeals and similar quasi judicial bodies, judges of city and municipal courts, and also the Auditor General and others, must not only pay income tax but also the annual occupation tax more popularly known as the professional tax. Commissioner Vera directed all revenue officials, especially collection agents, to remind all those affected, to comply with the new provisions of the 1972 Constitution by paying their professional tax on or before Jan. 31, 1973.

TOTAL OF 27 AMNESTY teams have been organized in seven provinces in Mindanao to conduct the initial processing of surrenderors who wish to avail themselves of the amnesty under Presidential Decree No. 95. PC Chief Ramos said the amnesty teams were organized in each of the PC company headquarters in the provinces and cities covered by amnesty proclamations. The incumbent commanding officer of the PC company in each particular area was designated amnesty team leader while the PC headquarters was made amnesty reception center where the surrenderors will be processed and given conditional amnesty.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has issued Presidential Decree No. 101 expediting the methods in prescribing, redefining, or modifying the lines and modes of operation of public utility vehicles in the Philippines through the Board of Transportation. The decree notes that in the Greater Manila area, and in the bigger towns and cities and the main roads connecting them, there exists serious traffic congestion and disorder that have been causing accidents and delays in travel, which are highly detrimental to public safety and convenience and to the functions, of commerce, industry and government. The decree likewise notes that in many parts of the country, due partly to inadequacy of transportation facilities, there have abounded unauthorized operators of public utility motor vehicles(colorum and kabit) which have clandestinely operated in violation of the penal provisions of existing law, rendered unregulated, unsafe or substandard service, put up unfair competition to legitimate operators, and deprived the government of a considerable amount of taxes and fees.

PRESIDENT MARCOS declared that the Supreme Court decision on the validity of Proclamation No. 1102 issued last Jan. 17, opened the way for the full implementation of the new Constitution. "Henceforth, there should be no hesitation on the part of anyone in the implementation of the new Constitution. Insofar as I am concerned the ratification is an accomplished fact. The new Constitution is in full force and effect by the sanction of the people," the President said. He pointed out that one of the issues in the high tribunal's decision promulgated last Jan 22 is the validity of Proclamation No 1102 which proclaims the ratification of the new Constitution by the Filipino people. The Supreme Court however, dismissed these petitions and refused to issue a res training order to prohibit the promulgation of both the proclamation and the new Constitution itself.

BOARD OF INVESTMENTS Chairman Vicente Paterno said that the ratification of the new Constitution has considerably improved the business climate in the country and this could result in the entry of more foreign investments. The BOI chairman pointed out that following the imposition of Martial Law, from September to November, businessmen entrepreneurs adopted a "wait-and-see" attitude. "However, this uncertainty vanished when the President proclaimed the ratification of the new Constitution, which states in clear and precise terms the national philosophy in dealing with foreign investors" Mr. Paterno said. The BOI chairman said that under the new charter, the government policy is to move forcefully forward and guide the business sector in the planning and implementation of business policies and ventures. He likewise assured greater participation by the private sector in the development of the national economy. Mr. Paterno pointed out that the new Constitution assured foreign investors of equal treatment, particularly with citizens and firms of the United States.

PRESIDENT MARCOS renewed his appeal to the people to band together in order that they may attain the objectives of the New Society and move forward in progress. The President told members of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines that more than anything else, the country needed unity for “if we are not united, no matter how well meaning the reforms are it will not be possible to attain our objectives.” The President deplored the fact that the people have been disunited for so long that it is now necessary that they be united. He said it was for this purpose that he has granted amnesty not only to the secessionist but to all the insurgents and subversives who want to return to the folds of the law.

PRESIDENT MARCOS led the Filipino people in conveying to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson and the American people “our deepest sympathies” on the passing of former President Johnson. His statement follows in full:

“The Filipino people join me in conveying to you and the American people our deepest sympathies on the passing of former President Johnson.

“He served the American presidency at a time of severe test and serious decisions for the United States Government. Through all that time, his interest in Asia did not wane, and he remained to the very end, a friend of the Philippines.”

In a separate statement, Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo said:

“The death of President Lyndon B. Johnson robs the world of one of its most distinguished post war leaders. A superb parliamentarian, he brought to the presidential office the skill of bargaining and compromise on behalf of domestic social legislation and of world peace.

“Raised on the precepts of the New Deal, he provided America the vision of a Great Society, in which poverty shall be eradicated and where complete equality shall reign.

“In Vietnam, President Johnson ran into the most difficult problem that his country had had to face after the second World War. In his arduous search for peace, he journeyed to Manila to meet with the heads of state of six Asian countries. In this historic meeting, the seven nations laid down the principles that shall govern a just peace in Vietnam. He began the process which today enables his countrymen at last to see the light at the end of the tunnel.

“This greatly gifted man served his tenure in a cloud controversy. But of his compassionate heart there was never any question. America mourns his passing, and I join in that country’s bereavement.”

STRONG LEADERSHIP was exercised by President Marcos when he imposed Martial Law because it was his duty to save the old society from its festering diseases and lead the nation on the road to health and progress for future generations of Filipinos. “The President did not grab power or assume the position of dictator but like a surgeon, performed his duty without being disturbed or distracted by internal or external forces to save the patient (old society),” Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad declared in an extemporaneous speech during the 17th annual convention of the Philippine Association of Military Surgeons. Secretary Tatad traced the charge of dictatorship to some sections of the foreign press and to certain local groups whose personal ambitions and self-interests were negated by the bold reforms of the President under the New Society. The secretary pointed out that above the selfish individual interests of the few dissenters is the national welfare which motivated the President to impose Martial Law because like the military surgeons it was his duty to save the patient.

SECRETARY OF LABOR Blas F. Ople officially informed the unions of government controlled or operated corporations that they were being placed under the civil service in accordance with Section 1, Subtitle B of Article XIII (The Constitutional Commissions) of the new Constitution, which went into force at noontime of Jan. 17. Secretary Ople met with the heads of the government corporate unions to seek; their cooperation in putting into effect smoothly the Constitutional provision. He told the unions that some legal points, including the question of the duration of collective bargaining agreements, have been referred to the secretary of justice. However, the Constitutional provisions placing government owned and controlled corporations under the Civil Service Law was “clear and unequivocal,” according to Sec. Ople.

SECRETARY OPLE likewise stated in a speech before the Davao Jaycees that the Philippines can be “the new Asian prodigy” to watch in the next few years as Filipinos focus all their energies and talents on development goals. The Labor secretary said that while “our neighbors such as Japan, Taiwan, Korea and Singapore spurred ahead economically and socially, the Filipinos allowed themselves to be distracted by incessant party politics which sapped their energies and vitality as well as their resources.” But under Martial Law, Mr. Ople said the government and the people are now insulated for the first time from the crippling interference of partisan politics. Therefore, many people feel that a long tenacious bondage has been snapped and the nation is now free to concentrate on its development goals, he added.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued General Order No. 24 authorizing the arrest and detention of any person who commits crimes against personal liberty as defined and penalized under the Revised Penal Code. The crimes covered by the order are kidnapping and serious illegal detention, slight illegal detention, unlawful arrest, kidnaping and failure to return a minor inducing a minor to abandon his home slavery, exploitation of child labor and compulsion of anybody to render services in payment of debts. Crimes against personal liberty are now under the jurisdiction of the military courts.

IN BEHALF OF THE FILIPINO people, President Marcos expressed hope that the announcement of a ceasefire in Vietnam will bring about a true kind of peace in Indochina and remove the threats to peace in Southeast Asia and in the world. The President’s statement followed the simultaneous announcements in Vietnam. The President’s statement in full:

“The Philippine Government welcomes the announcement that a ceasefire has been reached, and is shortly to take effect in Vietnam. We, in the Philippines, hope that this will bring about a true kind of peace in Indochina, and that it will remove the threats to peace in Southeast Asia and the world. We congratulate the parties for their labors and their courage in drawing up a document that fulfills the hopes and prayers of so many, and adds new prospects to the future of human understanding cooperation and brotherhood.

“Enforcing and consolidating the peace is always a difficult undertaking, but given the goodwill and the determination that moved the negotiating parties to reach this agreement, we are confident that this will mark a new period in the life of Southeast Asia. With the settlement of the war, the developing nations of the region, beginning with Vietnam, can now fully develop, not only to rebuild the ruins of war, but rather to move ahead to the full limits of progress.

“To us, this day is a victory for peoples all over the world who pray and work for peace.

“In our own modest way, we have sought to contribute to this quest for peace. We have sought to humanize the cruelty and sufferings of war. We sent the Philcag and the Philcon to Vietnam not to kill but to heal, not to take life but to preserve it, not to destroy but to build. For we could not help but be involved in the agony of the human spirit in Vietnam.

“Today, as peace begins to find its way in Vietnam, we see our own share of conflict in our land. Ambition and ideology have combined to mobilize certain forces against our government and our people.

“I ask those fighting the government to now put down their arms. I call upon my brother Filipinos—whatever their ideology or persuasion, Moslem or Christian, communist or democrat, Nacionalista or Liberal, to lay down the weapons of war and take up the tools of peace.

“Let us build a nation in strength and unity, and let us build it now.”

In a separate statement, Foreign Affairs Secretary Carlos P. Romulo said:

“President Nixon’s announcement that a ceasefire in Vietnam has been agreed upon ends a cruel war that has weighed heavily on the conscience of the world. We must all hope that the cessation of hostilities will lead, in the not too distant future, to the final political settlement of the status of the entire Vietnamese people.

“The Vietnam ceasefire is a historic point in the lives of Vietnamese the Asians and the world at large. To a generation of Vietnamese that has not known peace, the end of the war means their first real opportunity to build a future. To Asians, it means the end of perpetual tension and grave threats to regional security. To the world at large, it removes a source of friction that has been a constant threat to international security.

“We must now turn to the considerable problems brought about by the termination of the Vietnam War. Among these, the foremost will be the national and regional security in Southeast Asia. We must plan for the reconstruction and development of the devastated areas. We must also begin to think seriously of the shape of Asia that will emerge from the holocaust of the Vietnam war.”

PRESIDENT MARCOS sent the following congratulatory message to President Nixon for the ceasefire agreement in Vietnam: “The Filipino people join me in congratulating you and the American people for negotiating an honorable peace in Vietnam. Freedom-loving peoples everywhere welcome the ceasefire agreement as a testimony to the courage, patience and will of the United States government which did not shirk responsibility but sought it to the end that peace may be achieved. We are confident that all nations who have a stake, in the well-being of humanity will do their part to make the peace work. Accept, Mr. President, the assurance of our highest esteem.”

INFORMATION SECRETARY Francisco S. Tatad said that the Philippines can expect to enjoy an economic boom when peace finally comes; to Vietnam, and if peace can be maintained particularly in the southern borders of the Philippines, this country can be among the major beneficiaries of a reconstruction bonanza. Sec. Tatad said the Philippines expects to participate in the construction boom in Japan, Hongkong, Australia and Indonesia. All these countries need construction materials from the Philippines. He said that the settlement of the Vietnam war is expected to open Southeast Asia to increased tourism in view of which the Philippines is preparing for the expanded flow of tourists to this country.

MEMBERS OF THE CABINET were directed to submit as soon as possible their respective studies and recommendations on the various provisions of the new Constitution affecting their department. President Marcos reminded the members of his official family that during the meeting of the Cabinet last Jan. 17, he had asked them to study the Constitutional provisions pertaining to their respective departments and to submit recommendations thereon. The President issued the reminder after administering the oath of office to the Cabinet secretaries whom he had reappointed under the new Constitution.

Inducted by the President were:

Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo, Secretary of Finance Cesar E.A. Virata, Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos, Secretary of Agriculture and Natural Resources Arturo Tanco Jr., Secretary of Public Works, Transportation and Communications David M. Consunji, Secretary of Education and Culture Juan Manuel, Secretary of Labor Blas F. Ople;

Secretary of National Defense Juan Ponce Enrile, Secretary of Trade and Tourism Troadio T. Quiazon Jr., Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor Jr., Secretary of General Services Constancio Castañeda, Secretary of Social Welfare Estefania Aldaba-Lim, Secretary of Agrarian Reform Conrado F. Estrella;

Director General Gerardo P. Sicat of National Economic and Development Authority; Secretary of Public Information Francisco S. Tatad, Secretary of Local Government and Community Development Jose Roño, Chairman Florencio Medina of the National Science Development Board, Commissioner Mama Sinsuat of the National Integration and Commissioner Faustino Sy-Changco of the Budget.

Also inducted by the President were Governor Gregorio S. Licarios of the Central Bank and Solicitor General Estelito Mendoza.

CREATION OF THE NATIONAL Economic and Development Authority provided the principal coordinating agency which will unify the cross purposes of previous economic bodies concerned with planning and implementation of the country's economic policies. As created under Presidential decree issued by the President, the NEDA which absorbed the functions of the National Economic Council and the Presidential Economic Staff, will be the principal economic planning body and policy maker of the government. When its decisions are approved by the President, who is chairman, these decisions become effective immediately. NEDA Director General Gerardo Sicat said that, as in the past, the private sector will be consulted together with the government agencies, in the formulation of economic policies. He predicted that the government's development plans will assume greater meaning for everybody and will yield more results under the reforms brought about by Martial Law.

TWO VITAL ROAD extensions which will link Gov. Forbes (north of the Pasig river) through Mabini (Nagtahan) bridge will soon be advertised for public bidding. These major thoroughfares, which are set to be started this year, will serve as a direct link between the North and South Expressways and will provide the missing link in the circumferential Highway 2 which rings the inner sections of Manila.

TEACHING OF TAXATION in the elementary grade level has effectively raised the tax consciousness of elementary school pupils. This was the finding of the National Tax Research Center following a survey covering 20 cities, 20 provinces and 60 municipalities in the 10 regions of the country. Respondents of the survey were elementary school teachers who taught taxation in their classes, using "The Guide for Teaching Taxation in the Elementary Schools" as basis for instruction. The "Guide" was formulated through the joint efforts of the NTRC (then the Joint Legislative-Executive Tax Commission) and the Department of Education, and adopted for nationwide use in the academic term 1970-71. The Bureau of Internal Revenue extends assistance by requiring its regional offices to provide discussants to the schools.

FILIPINO WOMEN who married Chinese husbands and lost their Philippine citizenship before the effectivity of the new Constitution at noon of Jan. 17, 1973, remain Chinese citizens and are not affected by Sec. 2 Art. III of the new charter which allows Filipino women who marry aliens to retain their Filipino citizenship, Immigration and Deportation Commissioner Edmundo M. Reyes announced.

President's Week in Review: January 26 - February 1, 1973

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

January 26—

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Letter of Instructions No. 53 calling on all heads of departments and agencies of the government, including chiefs of government owned and controlled corporations, to draw up plans, programs, studies and recommendations for the immediate implementation of policies contained in the new Constitution. In drawing up these plans, the department heads were cautioned to observe utmost economy without prejudicing the country's development goals. They were also told to attend immediately to matters which do not call for top-policy decision and may be implemented on a department or agency level and to report to the President actions taken on this score. The department heads were required to submit their proposals and recommendations, together with drafts of implementing decrees, orders or circulars, within two weeks.

PRESIDENTIAL DECREE No. 107 creating the National Economic and Development Authority, was issued by the President. The Authority shall recommend to the National Assembly, after consultation with the private sector, local government units and other appropriate public agencies, continuing, coordinated and fully integrated social and economic plans and programs. Under the decree, the NEDA is composed of the President as chairman, the executive secretary, NEDA director general; and the finance secretary, secretary of agriculture and natural resources, secretary of trade and tourism, secretary of public works, transportation and communications, secretary of labor, secretary of education and culture, governor of the Central Bank, commissioner of the budget, and chairman of the Board of Investments, as member's.

ONE PRESIDENTIAL executive assistant and two presidential assistants to coordinate the activities of the President's own staff for a more effective implementation of his policies, decisions and directives under the new Constitution, were reappointed by the President. They were 1) Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave, former press secretary, a lawyer and former foreign affairs and Senate reporter of the Manila Daily Bulletin; 2) Presidential Assistant Guillermo de Vega, professorial lecturer at the University of the Philippines, a doctorate degree holder in political history and concurrently chairman of the Board of Censors for Motion Pictures; and 3) Presidential Assistant Juan C. Tuvera, former assistant press secretary, member of the Board of Liquidators and former newspaperman. The three have been serving the President since his inauguration in 1966.

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE Juan Ponce Enrile ordered that no arrest, search or seizure shall be made on the person or property of legitimate businessmen and merchants as well as the corresponding release of such person or property without prior clearance from the Office of the Secretary of the Department of National Defense. This directive was contained in DND Department Order No. 738 dated Jan. 25, 1973, which states that the control of such arrest, search and seizure is in consonance with the government's effort to stabilize the peace and order situation by removing the negative factor which may tend to cause alarm or agitation that would unduly disturb the legitimate operation of businessmen and merchants in the country.

BUREAU OF REHABILITATION of the Department of Social Welfare was deputized by the Dangerous Drugs Board to look after drug dependents on probation under the custody of the board. The DDB provided the bureau the following guidelines in handling the drug dependents: 1) The person under probation must be required to be at his home between 7 p.m. and 5 a.m.; 2) He shall not change his residence without first notifying in writing the board's agent and/or representative; 3) there shall be a limitation on the dependent's social activities especially where he is likely to be in contact with persons of disreputable character or brought into association with persons of bad moral habits or inclinations; and 4) He shall be required to report to the board's representatives once every two weeks or as often as may be necessary for educational lectures on the evil effects of dangerous drugs on his physical and mental conditions, as well as on society.

RULES AND REGULATIONS implementing Presidential Decree No. 96 prohibiting, unless authorized, the attachment on any motor vehicle of such signaling or flashing devices as sirens, whistles, domelights, police and emergency red flashing lights and blinkers, bells and very loud and startling horns—were promulgated by the Land

Transportation Commission. Only the following vehicles are authorized to be equipped with those devices: law enforcement vehicles—red domelights and sirens; fire trucks—amber domelights, sirens and bells; hospital ambulances—blue domelights and sirens; tow or service cars and wreckers—blue domelights only. The rules allow the attachment to all motor vehicles of the following: ordinary horn to warn other motorists and pedestrians; signal lights for making left and right turns; amber or white flashers installed in front and red flashers in the rear of vehicles to warn other motorists and pedestrians in case of emergency; and white headlights and rear lights that are red, yellow or orange. Tail lights, stop lights, license-plate lights and parking lights shall be installed in all motor vehicles. Also required are colored riding lights on each of the four corners not more than 10 centimeters from the top of trucks, buses, trailers and other similar vehicles for use during nighttime while on the public highways.

DEFENSE SECRETARY Enrile issued Department Order No. 739 allowing bail to detainees in provincial, city and municipal, jails, provided formal request or petition for bail is filed in a civil court which has lawful jurisdiction over the offense and over the person focused. Whenever a petition or formal request for bail is filed with a civil court) the designated representative of the secretary shall officially or formally oppose or interpose no objection on the petition, taking into account the following considerations: 1) Gravity of the offense and evidence of guilt in the possession of the prosecution; 2) The extent of the offense's effect on public order on the internal or external security of the Republic; 3) Whether the accused, by reason of prior criminal conviction, notorious reputation in the community, or overall record, has become a public charge and, therefore, his release on bail will impair public peace; 4) Likelihood of escape pending trial or the result thereof; and 5) Reliability of proposed surety or bond.

POLICE COMMISSION dismissed nine Rizal policemen and ordered the suspension of 29 others, including two municipal police chiefs. Twenty-nine newly suspended policemen, meanwhile, are still awaiting final disposition of their pending grave administrative cases by the new Polcom Adjudication Boards. They were ordered temporarily barred from the police service because of strong evidence of guilt against them. Since October 1972, the Polcom has dismissed 16 and suspended 734 policemen all over the country.

TRICYCLE OWNERS and operators must have to follow strictly the requirement to secure permits from the Land Transportation Commission before they operate. They must also secure PC clearances before they register with the LTC. These requirements were evolved during a conference among PC authorities and officials of the LTC, the Board of Transportation, Bureau of Customs and the Motorcycle Assemblers and Sidecars Manufacturers Association of the Philippines (MASMAP). The officials agreed to adopt the new procedures so as to clamp down on smuggled and stolen tricycles and to supervise more closely the tricycle business which is getting very popular especially in low-income and rural areas. Prior to their registration with the LTC, the tricycles will have to be cleared by the PC. Owners of MASMAP tricycles, however, can go ahead and register with the LTC while awaiting PC clearance. They will have to pay a registration fee to the LTC which will be considered a deposit.

FILIPINOS SEEKING entry to Canada as non-immigrants for employment purposes must first obtain working visas. Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo announced that visitors to Canada for periods of more than three months are also required to register with immigration authorities even if they do not intend to work. The new Canadian immigration regulations known as the Non-Immigrant Entry Records and Employment Visa Regulations took effect Jan. 1, 1973. Workers with pre-arranged temporary employments in Canada can secure their employment visas from Canadian immigration representatives in their home countries. Not affected by the new regulations are Canadians, landed immigrants, diplomats, armed forces personnel on official duty, foreign news representatives, visiting businessmen, members of the clergy, persons engaged in professional sports, crews of foreign transport and tourists and visitors who do not remain for extended periods or take employment in Canada. Violations of the regulations is punishable by fines up to P500 and/or imprisonment up to six months or deportation from Canada.

January 28—

THE PHILIPPINES is well on the way to attaining a record 6.5 per cent economic growth projected for this year based, among others, on the continuing growth rate in the export of semi-processed products and manufactures. Secretary of Trade and Tourism Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. said before an executive conference of the Chamber of Commerce of the Philippines, that while the country continued to depend on a few primary exports whose world demand remains inelastic, the export growth of semi-processed products and manufactures has been very impressive. Among these products are processed foods, fruits and vegetables, footwear, garments and textiles, furniture, vegetable oils, plywood, glassware and articles made of wood. All of these products are labor-intensive and utilize in abundance domestic raw materials.

ROYAL NEPALESE Government has accepted the nomination of Ambassador Romeo S. Busuego as non-resident Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the Philippines. Ambassador Busuego who is the Philippine Ambassador to India will hold his new position in a con-Current capacity. This was announced by the Department of Foreign Affairs.

JULIAN FELIPE, composer of the "Philippine National Anthem was remembered by the nation on the occasion of his 112th birth anniversary. Felipe, music teacher and composer, had joined the fight for freedom during the Revolution and was arrested by Spanish troops. During one of his visits to Cavite after his release, Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo requested him to compose a musical score entitled, "Marcha Magdalo," which later became the "Himno Nacional Filipino." During the Proclamation of Philippine Independence in Kawit, Cavite on June 12 of the same year, Felipe's hymn was played in public for the first time. On Sept. 5, 1938, the National Assembly during the American regime passed a law officially adopting the "Himno" as the country's national anthem.

January 29—

PRESIDENT MARCOS pledged his total commitment to the fight against poverty to bring about the complete fruition of the New Society. The pledge came in the form of a message to the squatter families resettled in the PHHC resettlement area in Carmona, Cavite. Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor relayed the presidential pledge to the resettled families who attended the ceremonies for the awarding of passbooks to 100 heads of families in the resettlement area. Secretary Melchor announced that the government will continue its efforts to push through projects designed to make the Carmona resettlement area a viable community. He announced that jobs will be created for many of the resettled people who are still unemployed. He said that a textile company will soon put up a factory in the area; This, he said, is only one of the several projects being drawn up for the Carmona resettlement community.

THE PRESIDENT was informed by a large group of Japanese business-men that the investment climate in the Philippines is very favorable and that they intend to come back in November. Representing such industries as steel, tourism, food, real estate development, and others, the businessmen arrived in Manila last Tuesday at the invitation of a local businessman, "to come and see for themselves the changed atmosphere under Martial Law." Since their arrival in Manila, the businessmen had visited Cagayan de Oro, Del Monte in Bukidnon, Cebu and Baguio, and informed the President that they were surprised by the new atmosphere. "We found many things conducive to investments here, and we hope to come back with more of our friends," they said.

IMPLEMENTATION OF Presidential Decree No. 27 at this stage covers only tenanted rice and corn lands that are 100 hectares and above. Secretary Conrado F. Estrella of the Department of Agrarian Reform said that the promulgation of the rules implementing the decree has been suspended indefinitely to enable the government to arrive at a solution on the adverse effects the decree may have on small owners of tenanted rice and corn lands. The secretary stated that since it is the aim of President Marcos to strengthen the middle class and small landowners form a part of such middle class, all avenues are being explored to soften the impact of the decree on those who own small parcels of tenanted rice and corn lands.

NEW SOCIETY is being formed by President Marcos mainly for the "anakpawis" and the "maliliit" and all who strive and work can certainly expect a better future for themselves and their children in its folds. This was what Secretary of Information Francisco S. Tatad told thousands of residents of Bagong Barrio, Caloocan City, who converged at the barrio plaza to witness the induction of officers of their cooperative. Secretary Tatad declared that citizens assemblies created by President Marcos signify the new hope of the "have-nots" because these are a means of direct communication between the people and the government. He said the CA's did away with political intercession, patronage and pressure as was the practice in the old order, and through them the barrio folk can solve their local problems by themselves, within the confines of their respective localities.

CLOSER AND STRONGER government supervision of universities where student activism and subversive activities have been reported, was ordered by President Marcos. The President directed Secretary of Education and Culture Juan L. Manuel to submit within 24 hours a report and recommendation on the matter due to persistent reports that these activities are again on the rise in some universities, particularly in Siliman University. The President received a list of the names of students and faculty members, and their respective subversive activities, which he turned over to military authorities for appropriate action. He said he would not hesitate to take drastic steps toward protecting public interest in the management and supervision of schools or universities infiltrated anew by subversion. President Marcos stressed that these institutions should be protected, at all costs, against the inroads of radicalism so that students would not be distracted from their pursuit of learning.

TWO FILIPINO NATIONALS are among those expected to be released from captivity shortly by the Viet Cong following the signing of the Vietnam ceasefire agreement. Secretary of Foreign Affairs Carlos P. Romulo made this announcement after receiving a formal note from the U. S. embassy in Manila informing him that the list of American and foreign civilians captured in South Vietnam furnished Jan. 27, 1973 by the U. S. Department of State included the names of Filipino nationals, Candido Badua and Arturo M. Balagat. Both were reportedly captured at Hue, South Vietnam on Feb. 1, 1968.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has endorsed the 1973 membership and fund drive of the Philippine National Red Cross and called on every resident of this country to give his share to the PNRC drive, in a message, the President expressed confidence the public will extend their "massive gesture" of support to the PNRC. "The PNRC record over a quarter of a century has been outstanding," the President said. "We can credit this in no small measure to the support that it has enjoyed from the people."

IN THE NEW CONSTITUTION, there is now a provision in the Bill of Rights recognizing the people's right to information on matters of public concern. Secretary of Justice Vicente Abad Santos pointed out that Section 6 of the Bill of Rights further provides that access to official records and to documents and papers pertaining to official acts, transactions, or decisions, shall be afforded to citizens, subject to such limitations as may be provided by law.

AMNESTY FORMS being distributed by the authorities are free and should not cost anybody anything. Secretary Tatad issued this announcement in view of reports that certain parties got hold of the forms and are selling them in the South. The Information Secretary, meanwhile, called upon the country's nurses to be social workers, teachers and dependable friends, in the exercise of their profession Secretary Tatad said nurses must not be content within merely assisting the physicians in serving the medical needs of the people, but they must also be the "bearer of the light of modernization," wherever they may be. Calling for the involvement of the medical practitioners in the effort toward the formation of a New Society, Secretary Tatad said that their commitment to the preservation of life must go hand in hand with the enhancement of opportunity for "a higher state of existence" in the new order. "You must not only heal, but you must also give hope," he said.

PHILIPPINE CONSTABULARY Chief Fidel V. Ramos circularized all PC field commanders on the procedures for arrests, searches and seizures as prescribed by DND Department Order No. 740 dated Jan. 26, 1973 for their information and guidance. Gen. Ramos said "citizen's arrests" may be made by a peace officer, Armed Forces personnel or a private person pursuant to Sec. 6 of the Rules of Court. The section specifies that a person can be arrested when he "has committed, is committing or is about to commit an offense" or when a crime has been committed and "there is reasonable ground to believe that the person to be arrested has committed it, or when the person has escaped from a penal confinement. The procedures to follow in this case, according to the PC chief, are: 1) The arrested person shall be brought without delay to the nearest AFP unit by the person who effected the arrest; 2) The AFP unit commander shall then determine whether the offense falls under General Order No. 2 and if so, the arrested person shall be booked, detained and investigated by the inquest officer; 3) Afterwards, the case shall be referred to the provincial investigating coordinating committee, through the provincial commander, for disposition.

In the Greater Manila area, the case shall be referred to any of the investigation units, in accordance with orders issued by the commander of the Command for the Administration of Detainees; and 4) If the offense does not fall under General Order No. 2, the arrested person shall be turned over to civil authorities.

STATE OF HEALTH in the country has considerably improved while the death rate has been drastically decreased. Secretary of Health Clemente Gatmaitan disclosed that the maternal and infant death rates in 1970 were 59.5 and 1.9 per cent, respectively, per 1,000 live births compared to 73.1 and 2.4 per cent, respectively, 10 years ago. Several factors were primarily responsible for this marked improvement in the health of the nation, including the expansion of the health services, efforts toward the control and prevention of communicable diseases and the improvement in the environmental conditions of the people. Sec. Gatmaitan predicted a further decrease in the mortality rate with the cooperation of the people through improved sanitation or cleanliness of parks, playgrounds and private premises, strict observance of hygiene rules, and a stepped-up implementation of health regulations.

PRESIDENT MARCOS said that “with the passing of Don Quintin Paredes, the nation has lost not only one of its truly great men, but perhaps the last of a generation that included the likes of Recto, Laurel and Quezon.” The President extolled Don Quintin as one of those very few whose life parallels the life of his nation in its many states. The full text of the President’s statement follows:

With the passing of Don Quintin Paredes, the nation has lost not only one of its truly great men, but perhaps the last of generation that included the likes of Recto, Laurel and Quezon.

He was one of those very few whose life parallels the life of his nation in its many stages. He was born to a time of beginnings for-the-Filipino-nation, when the Filipino people were only just beginning to experience solidarity. In an era dominated by the presence of the foreigner, he demonstrated early the capacities of the Filipino for self-government and statesmanship.

Through his efforts, and those of his great contemporaries, the country took its rightful place among the nations. Thereafter we were never without the leadership and counsel of this man. In every office that he served—the Judiciary, the House, the Senate, the Cabinet—he brought with him energy, aspiration and giftedness. Even in retirement, during his very late years, now and then he would give his share to the shape of events in our country.

Only three years ago, we were privileged to fete him in the palace, and this remarkable and kindly man seemed as if he could go on for another quarter-century.

But now he is gone, and he leaves behind him only the example of a life to a generation that must now do its share to meet the challenges of a new time.

January 31—

PRESIDENT MARCOS today tapped the services of four key members of the defunct Senate and House of Representatives for specific assignments as Presidential trouble shooters. The four are: former Senators Leonardo Q. Perez and Rene Espina and former Congressmen Jose D. Aspiras and Carmelo Barbero. Earlier the President had appointed former Governors Tito Primicias of Pangasinan and Julian Pacificador of Antique for similar assignments. The President directed the four “to determine and identify the specific areas in the national efforts which require constant supervision” by Presidential trouble shooters. Upon their designation, the President instructed Mr. Espina to proceed to Iligan and look into the conditions obtaining in the Iligan Steel Mills particularly with respect to its labor and milling operations. Former Sen. Perez and former Rep. Aspiras were asked to start “a grassroots information campaign” on the programs that the administration is pursuing for the masses so that citizens’ participation can best be achieved. The President said he would name more Presidential trouble shooters and further bridge the communication gap between the government and the people, stating that in no time is there need for greater citizen involvement in public affairs than now.

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL officials visiting the country said that the improved situation under Martial Law is attracting world attention and that at least one head of government is following the Philippine experiment.

The UPI officials paid their respects to President Marcos following their arrival in Manila to meet American prisoners of war who may be flown to Clark Air Force Base from Vietnam. After welcoming the officials and expressing the hope that more American media men could view the situation at close range, the President briefed them, saying that: 1) He is calling upon senators and congressmen, former delegates to the Constitutional Convention, and other leaders of various segments of society not only to advise him but to help out in various projects such as cooperatives, infrastructures, land reform, labor, manpower training and the like; 2) The Philippines is now tapping sources of geothermal energy for production, particularly the one in Tiwi, Albay; 3) The prospects for striking oil in the Philippines have attracted foreign oil companies, including Russians and Rumanians, who have expressed their desire to apply for oil concessions; and 4) He hopes to achieve national unity by granting selective amnesty and opening the barter trade for the Muslim Filipinos in the South.

SECRETARY OF INFORMATION Francisco S. Tatad advocated brotherhood and peace and above all love among men as the proper foundation in the building of a New Society. In an extemporaneous speech before the Kiwanis Club of Manila, the secretary stressed that love is the basic element that binds the people toward national unity and discipline and from this branch out to other noble values that make a healthy and vigorous society. Mr. Tatad recalled the tendency of the people under the old society into believing unverified or false information which "are not deserving of the society we are trying to build, a society founded on the truth." He pointed out that in the campaign for the magistracy of the truth in places where there is a death of the mass media, it is the duty of the civic-spirited citizens, civic groups like the Kiwanis Club, and others to inform the people of the truth and to reject the rumors and gossips. He urged civic leaders to make sure that the truth has a better chance of reaching the people than false reports and rumors, that they help develop among the people self-reliance and confidence.

DEADLINE FOR RENEWAL of "licenses to operate" by private security agencies was extended to Feb. 28, 1973. Said deadline had been originally set for Jan. 30. Col. Honorio F. Balanon, chief of the PC Supervisory Unit for Security and Investigation Agencies, said the extension was granted by PC Chief Ramos because a great number of private security agencies have not yet fully complied with the requirements for their continued operation. He said many of these security agencies have not yet fully complied with the requirements for their continued operation. He said many of these security agencies have not yet secured clearance from the Department of Labor, the Social Security System and the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered a thorough study of the effects of the return of peace to Vietnam on local affairs as well as on the treaty arrangement of the Philippines with the United States and other foreign countries. The President designated a special committee to analyze effects of the Vietnam peace on the country's security problems, negotiations on the US military bases here, which are expected to be resumed, and negotiations on other arrangements with the United States, particularly the Mutual Defense Pact, Military Assistance Pact and Laurel-Langley Agreement.

MALACANANG RELEASED the text of the Presidential decree providing for the repeal of Republic Act No. 427 which prohibits and penalizes the possession and exportation of silver or nickel coins under certain circumstances. R.A. No. 427 was enacted in 1950 to forestall a threatened coin shortage due to rampant unauthorized outflow of silver and nickel coins abroad. The pertinent provisions of the decree follows: "Whereas, Republic Act No. 427, 'An Act Prohibiting the Possession and Exportation of Silver and/or Nickel Coins under Certain Circumstances Providing the Procedure for Prosecution Thereof,' was enacted in 1950 to forestall a threatened coin shortage; "Whereas, the present fiduciary coinage system of the country allows the replenishment of the coin supply quite easily and economically thus assuring a constant and adequate supply of small change; "NOW THEREFORE, I, FERDINAND E. MARCOS, President of the Philippines, and pursuant to proclamation 1081, dated September 22, 1972, as amended, and in order to effect the desired changes and reforms in the social, economic, and political structure of our society, do hereby order and decree the repeal of Republic Act No. 427. This Decree shall take effect immediately."

MALACANANG RELEASED the text of the Presidential decree facilitating the mergers and consolidation of banks to enable them to play socio-economic development. President Marcos said that bank mergers should be encouraged to promote the financial stability of different banking units. Towards this end, the President had previously issued Presidential Decree No. 71, dated Nov. 29, 1972, exempting merged banks from the application of Sec 28 of the Corporation Law, some provisions of which tend to restrict or impede bank mergers or consolidations. The decree on bank mergers provides that: "Section 1. For the sole purpose of facilitating bank mergers or consolidations duly approved by the Monetary Board of the Central Bank of the Philippines, any bank may merge or consolidate with another bank and the capital stock of a bank may be increased to the extent necessary to effect such merger or consolidation by the affirmative vote of the stockholders representing at least a majority of the subscribed capital stock in a stockholders' meeting called for that purpose, notwithstanding the provisions of Section 28 and 17 of the Corporation Law (Act No. 1459, as amended.) Sec. 2. This shall take effect immediately and shall remain in the force for a period of three-years from the date thereof."

SECRETARY David Consunji of Public Works, Transportation and Communications said that his department has taken big strides in the repair and construction of roads primarily because of the renewed dedication of his men since the imposition of Martial Law. In an interview, the secretary noted that his department is now performing "30 or 40 per cent better than during the pre-Martial period." The secretary said that the proclamation of Martial Law has made department personnel aware of the need to do better in their jobs.

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE Juan Ponce Enrile underscored justice as the overriding goal of the New Society, saying that "it is only when we achieve justice for all that we can truly say that we have succeeded in the reformation and transformation of our society." He also called on the members of the Armed Forces of the Philippines to continue to live up to the expectations of the people, especially in assuring them of speedy, fair and equal justice. Speaking at the cornerstone-laying ceremonies of the Luis Torres Hall of Justice in Camp Aguinaldo, he pointed out that "any abuse of authority on the part of the members of the armed forces or any injustice they may render will ultimately prove detrimental to the whole enterprise."

BRIG. GEN. FIDEL V. RAMOS, PC chief, reminded all firearm holders to surrender their unauthorized and excess firearms not later than Feb. 28, or be charged under Presidential Decree No. 9. The penalty for the offense, upon conviction, is imprisonment for a period ranging from 20 years to life imprisonment. The following are classified as unauthorized firearms: cal. .22 centerfire Magnum, cal. 357 mm Magnum, cal. 41, or pistols higher than cal. 38. Gen. Ramos said that the possession of any of the above-described firearms by any individual, other than members of the Armed Forces of the Philippines on active duty, police officers, agents of the National Bureau of Investigation, and guards of the Bureau of Prisons, provincial and city jails, is prohibited by General Order No. 22, dated January 17, 1973.

SECRETARY OF JUSTICE Vicente Abad Santos invited the public to air their views on proposed presidential decrees aimed at carrying out the provisions of the new Constitution. Mr. Abaci Santos, who presided at the meeting of the Cabinet Coordinating Conference, said that the Cabinet members decided to organize themselves into committees to study the proposed decrees for submission to the President. The Secretary said that priority will be given to comments regarding the decrees implementing the land reform program, and decrees on economic development. He said interested parties may contact the chairman of a committee to get copies of the proposed decrees and to submit their views on them.

SECRETARY OF INFORMATION Francisco S. Tatad urged the banking industry, as the leaders of finance, to help accelerate the momentum that will ensure the renewal and growth of "our social, political, and economic integrity." Mr. Tatad stressed that as part of the reforms instituted under the New Society, Presidential Decrees Nos. 71 and 72 were promulgated after careful study, analysis, and objective deliberation. "You now have—in these decrees—a charter that fully activates the banking sector as a potent catalyst in realizing the economic goals of the New Order—a healthier, more sure, more productive and more responsive Filipino," the secretary said. He pointed out that what the administration is trying to achieve is a just social order in which the banker will not be held suspect for his just profits, just as the daily worker will not be held in contempt by those who pay him his wages. The DPI Secretary assured the BAP that the government will do all it can to strengthen not only the banking-system, but also the primary Filipino interests in the industry. According to him, the government has decreed that the voting stocks be increased from 60 per cent to 70 per cent Filipino, except in certain cases. "We have sought to purify not only the administrative machinery of the government which deal with the industry, but also of the banks themselves, by prohibiting the occupancy of sensitive positions in these institutions by politicians and others, not expressly prepared or qualified for such positions. The government will continue to encourage the growth of this policy,” the secretary said.

GENERAL MANAGER Roman Cruz; Jr. of the Government Service Insurance System reported that some 330 GSIS employes have been separated from the service for various offenses since the imposition of Martial Law, and also mentioned the different reforms to improve the systems’ service to its members. He added that another innovation to be implemented shortly is the delivery of retirement checks to the claimants in their respective homes in the Greater Manila area to save them time and avoid inconvenience, especially on the part of the old retirees. The GSIS general manager disclosed that since two years ago the System has initiated 31 group housing projects, throughout the country and the latest of these were finished and awarded last month to qualified members. He said the goal of the GSIS is the construction of 37,000 housing units in the entire country and 6,700 of these have been awarded since the project started two years ago.

MALACAÑANG OFFICIALLY placed the operations of pawnshops under strict supervision to protect small borrowers left unserved by the banking and, other financial institutions of the country. A presidential decree signed by President Marcos has declared it a policy of the state “to regulate the establishment of pawnshops and to place their operations on a sound and stable basis to derive optimum advantages from them as additional source of credit.” Under the decree, no new pawnshops shall be allowed to operate if their paid-up capital is below P100,000. Existing pawnshops with deficiencies in paid-up capital have to comply with this minimum capital requirement within such time as may be prescribed by the Monetary Board. The decree also provides that only Filipino citizens may establish and own a pawnshop organized as a single proprietorship. In the case of partnership, at least 70 per cent of the capital stock shall be owned by Filipino citizens while in the case of a corporation, at least 70 per cent of the voting capital stock shall be owned by Filipinos. In non-stock corporations, Filipino citizens should comprise at least 70 per cent of the voting members. The decree authorizes the Central Bank to issue rules to carry out the provisions of the decree, and to require from pawnshops reports of condition to determine compliance with the provisions of the decree and the implementing rules, as well as to exercise visitorial powers whenever necessary. The decree provides a fine of not less than P100 and not more than P1,000, and an imprisonment of not less than 30 days and not more than one year for its violation.

RURAL BANKS were asked by the Central Bank of the Philippines to extend production loans to graduates of the agricultural skills training program sponsored by the National Manpower and Youth Council in collaboration with other government agencies. Together with the financial assistance asked of them is the technical assistance in the proper utilization of loans and in the marketing of produce. This agricultural training program is aimed at helping the government attain socio-economic progress in the rural areas, through modern farm methods and formation of cooperatives.

President's Week in Review: February 2-8, 1973

OFFICIAL WEEK IN REVIEW

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Presidential Decree No. 124 granting amnesty to members of subversive organizations with certain exceptions and under certain conditions. The presidential amnesty covers members, followers and sympathizers of activist groups, subversive organizations and Communist front organizations, who are not die-hard members or ideological believers in communism but have been drawn into these organizations because of their associations with or as a result of subtle indoctrination by hard-core activists and false propagandists. The decree also grants amnesty in favor of all affiliates or members of the Communist Party of the Philippines or other subversive organizations "who may have committed any other offense penalized under any law in furtherance of their political beliefs." The decree covers only those who shall apply for amnesty not later than March 15, 1973. The presidential edict, however, does not apply to the following: 1) Affiliate or member who has committed murder or crimes against chastity or who have taken up arms against the government; 2) Those leaders of rebellion and sedition; 3) Officer or ranking leader of the Communist Party of the Philippines or any subversive association as defined under Section 2 of the "Anti-Subversion Act"; 4) One who conspires with any other person to overthrow the government of the Republic of the Philippines or any of its political subdivisions by force, violence, deceit, subversion or any other illegal means for the purpose of placing such government or political subdivision under the control and domination of any alien power.

SECRETARY OF FINANCE Cesar E.A. Virata reported a heavy turnout of taxpayers who availed themselves of the tax amnesty concessions issued through Presidential Decrees. Initial reports on the tax collection from the tax amnesty proclamations submitted to the finance secretary indicated that a total of P22 million was paid in the Greater Manila area alone as of January 31, 1973. This significant response of the taxpayers was attributed to: 1) The "open-arms" approach of the government to give tax evaders a chance to reform and become part of the New Society with a clean slate; 2) The immunities and security given the taxpayers who availed of the amnesty grants; and 3) The very liberal concessions given in the form of reduction of the taxes due the government. A report from Custom Deputy Commissioner Pedro Mendoza said that taxes from 3,036 motor vehicles which were previously untaxed or improperly taxed, amounted to P11,077,444. On the other hand, Internal Revenue Commissioner Misael P. Vera reported that 2,745 tax payers have taken advantage of the tax amnesty grants and paid the amount of P10,868,145.30.

REGISTRATION OF non-bank financial institutions or intermediaries, as required in a recent circular of the Central Bank, in implementation of Presidential Decree No. 71, has been extended from January 31 to Feb. 28, 1973. This will give more time to the persons and entities concerned who have not yet registered because they are located in remote areas to comply with the circular. The following are required to register with the Central Bank: finance companies, investment or development companies, trust funds, credit unions, pawnbrokers, security dealers, commercial papers issuers, underwriters or dealers, lending investors, and such other persons or entities.

SECRETARY OF INFORMATION Francisco S. Tatad assured a group of Japanese journalists that President Marcos will not stay in power a minute longer than necessary and that the President will only exercise his powers and authority within the constitutional framework. In answer to their queries, he explained the reasons for the closure of some print and broadcast media following imposition of Martial Law. "Since then however, the government after conducting a study, found out that there is no need of allowing other print media to operate since the total circulation of the print media is more today than it was before Martial Law. The studies further show it is not necessary to allow the operation of more television and broadcast media to ensure the quality of programs and to purify the airwaves," the secretary said. Together with this he also laid stress on the invisible but laudable effects of Martial Law on the country's economy like the increased confidence among the foreign investors on the improved business climate.

PRESIDENT MARCOS has issued an administrative order creating three commissions charged with the function of carrying out the provisions of the amnesty granted to certain members of the subversive organizations as provided for under Presidential Decree No. 124. The administrative order provides for the composition of three Amnesty Commissions and their respective territorial jurisdiction, as follows: 1) First Commission for Luzon and Palawan, all provinces, cities and islands traditionally belonging to Luzon and Palawan: the judge advocate general, Armed Forces of the Philippines, chairman; and two judges of courts of first instance to be designated by the secretary of justice, members. 2) Second. Commission for Visayas, all islands traditionally comprising the said group, and all provinces and cities within the said group of islands: the commander, Third PC Zone, chairman; and two judges of the courts of first instance to be designated by the secretary of justice, members. 3) Third Commission for the islands of Mindanao, Sulu Archipelago, all islands traditionally belonging to the said group, all provinces and cities situated therein: the commander, Fourth PC Zone, chairman; and two judges of the courts of first instance to be designated by the secretary of justice, members.

NATIONAL GRAINS Authority Administrator Jesus Tanchangco said there are enough rice stocks from certain areas that have recovered from the recent calamities and the government has authorized importation to avert any shortage of the cereal. The NGA administrator likewise reported that the price of rice and palay have been stabilized due to several factors; among them: the imposition of Martial Law that prevented hoarders and profiteers from practicing their illegal activities; the elimination of the "tong" system in bringing the cereal to the consumers; the much-improved peace and order conditions that enable farmers to work peacefully, and the good harvests in certain areas which have recovered from the ravages of the recent calamities. According to Mr. Tanchangco, the powers of the NGA have been enlarged after it took over the functions of the former Rice and Corn Administration, Rice and Corn Board, Bureau of Commerce.

MANILA INTERNATIONAL Airport customhouse reported that it collected P5,833,736.37 for the month of January this year, representing a 64 per cent jump over its collections for the same month last year, which totaled P3,555,928.20. The increase in collections was attributed to the support and cooperation of all customs personnel at the airport and to help given by military authorities in maintaining discipline and order. Customs procedure have also been streamlined with strict pass control regulations.

MILITARY AUTHORITIES pledged to put more teeth in the government's peace and order drive following reports of a slight resurgence of criminality in the country. The pledge was made after a two-day Command Conference among the military and police authorities at Camp Crame. It was the consensus of the meeting that people might fall back to their old ways if not checked and that the military, especially the Metrocom, is fully capable of keeping down criminality "within a tolerable, if not negligible, level."

GUIDELINES for the Administration of Detainees (CAD) were issued for all CAD detention camps, reception centers, and confinement facilities in admitting persons desiring to visit detainees. Henceforth, visiting hours will be from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. everyday with each visit not to exceed one hour. The detainees are allowed only three visits a week with not more than five visitors at any time. Persons authorized to visit detainees include the immediate members of their families (husband/wife/children) if the detainee is married; and/or parents, brothers and sisters if detainee is single; and relatives within the first degree of consanguinity. Friends and other visitors will be allowed on a case to case basis after they have been screened by the detention camp commander. Visitors must comply with all the security measures adopted in the detention camps, such as the inspection of belongings and accomplishment of information sheets. A legal counsel may visit his client during visiting hours, while private physicians may consult with their clients at the local station hospital and in the presence of a military physician. Conjugal quarters and visits are strictly prohibited. Visiting privileges may be canceled or suspended during red alert when local security or emergency conditions dictate it, or when the guidelines are violated.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued a number of directives to the members of his cabinet to hasten the implementation of the provisions of the new Constitution, particularly those dealing with economic development. The President directed: 1) Secretary Conrado Estrella of Agrarian Reform to expedite the listing of big landed estates tagged as priority areas for possible initial execution of the President's land reform decrees; 2) Secretary Juan L. Manuel of Education and Culture to submit the plans for the integration of alien schools within the framework provided for in the new Constitution, particularly Article XV, Section 8, Subsection 7; 3) Secretary Jose Roño of the Department of Local Governments and Community Development to authorize the holding of referendum, through the barangays and citizens assemblies, in any local area on matters affecting their welfare upon the petition of at least 20 per cent of the members; 4) Director Gregorio S. Cendaña of the National Media Production Center to submit a new organization plan for his agency which can carry out effectively a “grassroots information campaign” down to barrio level to attract further citizen participation in the effort to build a New Society; 5) Administrator Alfredo Juinio of the National Irrigation Administration to report on the construction stage of the administration’s Pantabangan project intended to irrigate a great portion of Central Luzon and to protect the region from the occurrence of seasonal floods; and 6) General Manager Sergio Isada of the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System to explain the reasons for the continuing public complaint on low water pressure and to complete the repair of the busted water pipes which, are mainly responsible for low water supply in many areas in Greater Manila.

TWO MEMBERS of the President Marcos’ cabinet are scheduled to address the One-Asia Assembly, to be held in New Delhi, India, from February 5 to February 8. They are Executive Secretary Alejandro Melchor Jr. and Secretary of Information Francisco S. Tatad. The executive secretary will talk on human resources, while the secretary of Information will discuss the role of the press under the New Society.

“CIVIC RESPONSIBILITY is a national virtue in our people which in recent years had been more in the mouths of the politicians than in the hearts of the average Filipino, more thought about rather than acted on. But the citizens assemblies have changed this. Filipinos now become more and more conscious of their responsibilities because they now realize that they have a part in the government, that they have a voice in it too. Because of these citizens assemblies, we now have a more responsible citizenry aware of its role in the achievement of national aspiration. It is this virtue which holds the key to our achievement of the national destiny.”

SOME 700,000 needy persons throughout the country found the last six months of 1972 to be exceptionally good. It was a period when they engaged in better jobs which meant additional income for them and their families. This was made possible through the socio-economic advancement program initiated by the Department of Social Welfare which, from July to December 1972, generated some P31 million in terms of much needed income for 713,013 needy persons who are either unemployed youths, disabled persons or heads of families with low income. These needy persons started out on income-producing projects such as livestock raising and vegetable gardening with capital assistance given by citizens collaborating with the department. Under the terms of the socio-economic advancement program, the capital in the form of non-interest loan, is supposed to be paid back by the receivers once their projects prove successful.

DETERIORATION OF RURAL life and the movement of the population from the agricultural areas to the urban centers, are drawing top priority attention in the programs of the government.

Rony V. Diaz, director general of the National Manpower and Youth Council said that the rural sector holds the promise of providing the large masses of our people a more meaningful and abundant life, considering that 70 per cent of our population resides in this area and 57.7 per cent of total employment is in agriculture. The NMYC has developed, hand in hand with its industrial skills program, several agricultural skills training schemes which envision the development of a strong agricultural mass base to supply the raw material needs of the industrial sectors.

HEAVY TECHNICAL and material assistance to farmers and other rural people was provided by the Bureau of Agricultural Extension last year. The technical assistance consisted mainly of teaching farmers new farming methods, introducing high-yielding varieties of crops, and helping farmers utilize their agricultural loans properly. When floods hit Central Luzon in July, the BAE shifted its assistance program to the nine worst-hit provinces of Pangasinan, Laguna, Pampanga, Bataan, Nueva Ecija, Tarlac, Zambales, La Union, Ilocos Sur, and Ilocos Norte where it distributed 47 farm tractors, 254 irrigation pumps and 1,244 sprayers for pests control and crop diseases. These material aids benefited 76,996 farmers. The BAE also organized 2,900 farmers’ associations with 18,300 members, and 4,654 4-H clubs with 102,256 members. These organizations served as training groups for farm and rural leaders.

NEW BREED OF RICE, actually an improvement of the IR-20 rice variety, has been readied for nationwide planting during the 1973 wet season which starts in May. The go-signal for the planting of the new rice variety was given today by an inter-agency group composed of Drs. Reeshon Feuer and Gurdey A. Khush of the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI), Mauro Ordillo of the Bureau of Agricultural Extension (BAE) and Apolinario Gutierrez of the Bureau of Plant Industry. According to Dr. Feuer, the "reselected" line is more resistant to green leafhoppers and tungro. The new IR-20 has been also conditioned to grow on very poor soils and long dry days. Yet, its medium size grains taste like the local "Wag-Wag" rice. The seeds that will be harvested in May and June will be classified as blue tagged "certified" class seeds, the highest quality rank for rice seeds in the country.

February 5—

ENTERPRISES REGISTERED with the Board of Investments may now be allowed an additional deduction from their taxable income for their labor and training expenses. In addition, special export incentives in the form of tax credit and reduced income tax have been provided for under the Investment Incentives Act. These new incentives are embodied in Presidential Decree No. 92 which amends various sections of the Investment Incentives Act (R.A. 5186), the Export Incentives Act (R.A. 6135), and the Foreign Business Regulation Act (R.A. 5455). This amendment, which is intended to encourage companies to undertake the training of unskilled labor, provides that a BOI-registered firm will be allowed to deduct from its taxable income 50 per cent of its labor training expenses. However, the amount should in no case exceed 10 per cent of the company's direct labor wage. With regard to the incentive in the form of tax credit, the law as amended provides that an enterprise registered under R.A. 5186 which is exporting its registered product will be entitled to a special tax credit on taxes and duties on the supplies, raw materials and semi-manufactured products used in the manufacture of its export products.

COLLECTIONS UNDER the tax amnesty for "hot cars" have exceeded the P12 million mark, according to records of the Bureau of Customs. The collections are expected to increase since some car owners advanced only 50 per cent payment of taxes due from them. In addition, payments will be made by car owners who have been given five days grace period after the deadline last January 31. More than 1,000 hot-car owners made partial payments, and pending completion and tabulation of all tax reports, it is estimated that the government can expect to collect P2 million more. Those who paid partially were given until March 15 to complete their payments. A breakdown of the P12,285,091 collected on 3,353 untaxed or improperly taxed cars and their places of collections are: Manila, P9,946,222; Port of Sual, P1,784,611; Iloilo, P278,815; Subic, Zambales, P151,186; Clark Air Force Base, P115,199; Zamboanga, P6,383, and San Fernando, La Union, P4,672.

SECRETARY OF INFORMATION Francisco S. Tatad, speaking at the Fourth Meeting of the ASEAN committee on Mass Media, held in Manila, declared that the principal task of media in Southeast Asia is to find a language for the Asian masses and to provide them a picture of themselves and of their common life at every instance of change in their society. The Secretary stressed that this language the Asians are looking for "will help them understand what is happening to their lives, a mirror that will show them the unity of their emerging image." Mr. Tatad told the delegates from Indonesia, Malaysia, Philippines, Singapore and Thailand that only four months have passed since the Philippines embarked on a massive program of reform and development and the nation's experience has been one of an over-accelerating process of re-examination, recasting and innovation of its social, economic, and political life. However, he pointed out that in laying stress on the development role of the media in Southeast Asia, "we do not seek or prescribe a system that will stifle the development of media as an industry. On the contrary, it seems to us that in seeking a media industry that reaches out not only the elite in the society, but the masses above all, we are providing for the kind of scope and influence that allow the media precisely to develop. This means that from here on, the development of the media must be solely measured in terms of the advancement of the society."

MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS were told recently to participate more actively in the campaign to control population explosion in order to avert the possibility of doubling Philippine population within 21 years. Secretary Cesar E.A. Virata warned that an ever increasing population will mean more problems in the supply and production of foods, employment, housing, education, health services, and other economic and social problems. In the urban areas, overpopulation will pose bigger problems because of the necessity of providing public services. At present, public services needs in Greater Manila Area alone are so great because of the over-concentration of population. Examples are the water works programs in Greater Manila which requires some $45-million for completion and the sewerage system project which needs P450 million, it was pointed out. The secretary said that “we have to pay the price of development and we should be prepared to suffer some inconveniences if we are to move forward.”

February 6—

GOVERNMENT EXPERTS are conducting tests of the oil samples discovered in Sulu, Mindanao proper, Cebu and Northern Luzon. The outcome of the tests and analyses of the samples will provide data that will guide any future program of exploration and development. In the meantime, an amount of $110 million is being offered to the Philippines by two Middle East countries at 6.75 per cent interest payable in 20 years without amortization. The offer is being made to a prominent industrialist by the representatives of these two countries who are presently here in Manila. However, there are still several offers being made to the Philippines. Among them are: a) First National City Bank's offer of $50 million for the development of the Free Trade Zone in Bataan; b) The offer of the oil-rich Kuwait in the Middle East of financing the oil refineries in the Philippines and any project which has something to do with oil; and c). The offer being made to the Philippines through the first Lady Mrs. Imelda Marcos by Soviet Russia and Saudi Arabia.

PRESIDENT MARCOS issued Presidential Decree No. 116 amending certain sections of R.A. No. 2655, otherwise known as the “Usury Law”. The amendment was made to allow more flexible interest rate ceilings that would be more responsive to the requirements of changing economic conditions.

JAPANESE VISITORS are highly impressed by the new atmosphere of peace and the encouraging business climate in the Philippines. “We found many things conducive to investments, and we hope to come back with more of our friends,” a group of Japanese said after a round of visits extending from Baguio in the north down to Del Monte, Bukidnon in the south. The Japanese had come to Manila on the invitation of a local businessman, “to see for ourselves the changed atmosphere under Martial Law.” The highlight of their Philippine sojourn was an interview with President Marcos who told them, “We Filipinos welcome you and also your investments, especially on joint ventures and on loan basis.”

SEVERAL FIRMS FROM different countries have expressed their desire to import Philippine products such as cigars, bulk cement, fruit juice, veneer and plywood, and others. This was announced by the Department of Trade and Tourism after it had approved the export of cigars to Yugoslavia in line with the government's move to promote trade with socialist countries. The order was made by Miss Nevenka Dzudzalia on behalf of the Yugoslavian embassy in Ethiopia. Other trade opportunities reported are importations to be made by USA, Singapore, and Canada.

BUREAU OF MINES Director Fernando Busuego disclosed that on several occasions, authorities have drilled and tapped oil in many areas in Cebu. The Mines director described the oil found in Cebu as “light gravity oil similar to kerosene.” Although he said “the output per well was still on the low side to be considered a commercial discovery, indications are that steps being taken by the government” will eventually lead to significant discoveries. Mr. Busuego disclosed that oil had been previously discovered in Cotabato, Bondoc and the Cagayan Valley. He predicted that “these discoveries and President Marcos policies to open the country's door to foreign oil exploration firms will eventually lead to significant strikes.”

IF THE MASSIVE turnout of the public to pay their taxes all over the country is any indication of the people's confidence in the government, then the present administration can really take a bow for the reforms it has initiated. In the first few weeks of the New Year, people have trooped to tax collection centers all over the country to pay their obligations, some of them long overdue, in business, real estate, inheritance and other taxes. The unusual tax consciousness of the people may have taken government offices by surprise. In many municipalities, official receipts have run out. During the first two weeks of January alone, many towns have run out of residence tax certificate forms.

PRESIDENT MARCOS expressed the hope that with the ceasefire in Vietnam, all the countries of Asia should now decide to start a period of development which can only be founded on complete peace and order. The President, in an informal interview, confirmed the fear that with the ceasefire in Vietnam, the North Vietnamese forces might be utilized elsewhere to start another conflict, but said that up to now there is no report of any further fighting anywhere. The President also directed the Department of National Defense and the Department of Foreign Affairs to organize the government effort to extend all facilities to help the American and Filipino prisoners of war who will be flown to Clark Air Force Base from Vietnam.

PRESIDENTIAL EXECUTIVE Assistant Jacobo C. Clave said that the agrarian reform program of the New Society “seeks to redress the tenants’ valid and legitimate grievances” without however depriving landowners of their basic ownership rights. Secretary Clave spoke at a conference of agrarian reform regional directors at the DAR office. “Agrarian reform must reconcile the interests of tenants and landowners,” said Secretary Clave. He urged land reform workers to intensify their information drive on the field level to preclude situations where tenants and landowners affected by Presidential Decree No. 27 unnecessary antagonize each other. Mr. Clave said that the promulgation of the rules and regulations implementing Decree No. 27 has been deferred precisely because the government is making sure it will arrive at a fair and acceptable arrangement for both tenants and landowners.

SECRETARY OF FINANCE Cesar E. A. Virata outlined to Bureau of Customs personnel the role of the customs in the overall program of the government to improve the country’s foreign trade posture and to boost its dollar reserves to propel economic progress and stability. The secretary underscored the need to maximize revenue collection for the administration’s development projects. He also urged the facilitation of export processing to spur export trade and increase the country’s dollar earnings and foreign reserves. The function of customs has become more complex now because the new Tariff and Customs Code was so designed not only for tax collection purposes, but to protect growing industries to develop their export potential. The customs can also perform its role to help in the development of the country by preventing the entry of “undesirable” goods which harm developing industries, destroy moral values, and contribute to the disturbance of peace and order, like guns and narcotics.

MEDICARE PROGRAMS now has a reserve fund of around P82 million obtained from gross collections amounting to P101 million as of Jan. 31, 1973, minus the expenses for Medicare recipients which totaled P19 million. Dr. Pacifico Marcos, chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission, in a speech before members of the Manila Public School Supervisors Association, attributed the growth of Medicare funds to the cooperation extended by government and private employers in remitting Medicare premiums to the Government Service Insurance System and the Social Security System. The Medicare commission is planning to use the reserve fund to expand the Medicare benefits and services to the legal dependents of GSIS and SSS members, and to increase the allowance for medicine and professional fees.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC Works, Transportation and Communications said that work on cementing and asphaltting of streets in the city was “30 to 40 per cent better than during the pre-Martial Law period,” as it reviewed the progress of work on streets in the Greater Manila Area which were destroyed during the July floods last year. Shortly after the floods, public works official estimated that it would take at least two years to complete repairs on city streets. But today, almost all city streets have been repaired or cemented. The department also started dredging esteros and repairing the drainage system in the Greater Manila area in preparation for the forthcoming rainy season. So far, 77,000 cubic meters of esteros in Manila have been dredged.

February 8—

BUREAU OF INTERNAL REVENUE reported that based on partial tabulations, some P9.53 million in delinquent taxes have been collected in the Greater Manila area alone pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 68. The collection is broken down as follows: Bulacan, P89,722.02; Quezon City, P4,120,702.30; South Manila, P2,989,972.54; and North Manila, P2,610,703.30. These payments corresponded to some 4,568 tax cases, many of which dated back to many years ago. BIR authorities said that collections may reach the P12 million mark in the Greater Manila area once complete reports are tallied. Presidential Decree No. 68 allowed a tax payer a 40 percent discount of his delinquent taxes if he settled his obligations not later than Jan. 31 this year.

RECENTLY CONCLUDED LISTING of industrial and non-industrial establishments which was conducted by the Bureau of the Census and Statistics reveals that there were 561,791 establishments in operation throughout the country in November–December 1972. Although preliminary, this number far exceeds the number of establishments reported in the 1967 Economic Census, which was only 360,444. The tremendous increase of 201,347 establishments, or 55.9 per cent, over the 1967 count can be attributed to several factors, namely; increased economic activities as a result of the growth of population; more complete coverage in the 1972 listing as all barrios were visited/investigated by census field personnel; better supervision and control of the listing operation because of the presence of census field offices in every province; and more efficient field procedures.

ANOTHER INDICATION of the growing confidence of other countries in the vitality of the Philippine economy is the grant by the Federal Republic of Germany of a ten-million Deutschmark loan (equivalent to P20,300,000) to the Philippines. The German government has extended the loan for use as capital for Philippine imports of commodities from Germany. Terms for the loan are liberal: repayable in 30 years at two per cent interest per annum, with a grace period of 10 years. A significant aspect of the German aid is that it was offered three months after the imposition of Martial Law (Dec. 29, 1972), doubtless a tangible manifestation of the Bonn government's awareness of the reforms, economic and social, instituted and being instituted under the New Society.

JAPAN NATIONAL TOURIST Organization (JNTO) pledged the cooperation of its office in the effort to promote the Philippine tourist industry, with particular emphasis in Southeast Asia and European countries. Director Kenji Kohata of the JNTO was briefed by Secretary Troadio Quiazon Jr. of Trade and Tourism on existing tourist facilities in the country and on government plans with respect to the development and promotion of tourism. The visiting Japanese was told that tourist facilities in the Greater Manila area are adequate to cope with the increase of tourists this year although there is immediate need of additional facilities in other parts of the country, particularly in Zamboanga City.

83RD BIRTH ANNIVERSARY of the late Claro M. Recto, statesman, parliamentarian, and president of the 1934 Constitutional Convention, was commemorated with a mass, a wreath laying ceremony at his tomb at the North Cemetery, and a simple program at the Recto High School in Manila. Recto, who was born February 8, 1890, in Tiaong, Quezon province, to Claro Recto and Micaela Mayo, was noted for his nationalistic ideas, especially in relation to the country's foreign policy. Of his greatest political achievements was his able stewardship of the 1934 Constitutional Convention where he displayed tact and diplomacy for the smooth functioning of the body. Recto died on Dec. 2, 1960, in Rome, while having a press conference.

ADOPTION of the "assembly line" method of processing import papers has cut down the period of clearing goods from the South Harbor from an average of three weeks to three days. The expeditious releases of goods from the piers and the cutting down on red tape and corruption have resulted in less overhead for businessmen and consequently, a marked reduction in the prices of imported commodities. The new procedure was adopted by Commissioner of Customs Rolando Geotina September last year. Certain unnecessary and tedious procedures, such as the checks on bonds and insurance, have been modified to expedite releases of goods.

IDLE PEOPLE, backyard junk, dirty vacant lots, street corners and islands once littered with garbage now belong to the past. Seldom will one find school children now playing around after classes, or housewives engaged in petty gossip. Menfolk don't squander time in barbershops or kantos any more, where they used to play dama and chess or engage in drinking sprees or nonsense discussions. Today, everybody is busy. The atmosphere is one of genuine enthusiasm. Green Revolution has become household lingo for both young and old, for the affluent and the poor.

Official Week in Review: February 9 — February 15, 1973

February 9—

PRESIDENT MARCOS assured the American people through Vice President Spiro T. Agnew that the Filipino people are deeply committed to freedom and that they have pledged not only their fortunes and their lives but also what is the most precious to them—their honor. The President gave this assurance during the luncheon tendered by him in honor of the visiting United States vice president and his party, who planed in shortly before noon from Kuala Lumpur in the course of an eight-nation tour of Southeast Asia. The President also took the opportunity to express the gratitude of the Filipino people to the American people for their generosity in extending assistance to the Philippines. The President recalled that President Nixon sent Dr. Robert Chase, a famous American surgeon, to treat the First Lady for wounds she suffered at the hands of a would-be assassin last December. The President also recalled the grant of a $50-million aid for the flood victims. The President, likewise, expressed gratitude for the grant recently of $20 million commodity loan at very generous and concessional terms.

COMMISSION ON ELECTIONS announced the start of the registration for 18-year-olds in accordance with the provisions of the new Constitution. Because of the Bureau of Census projection for 1974 that there will be an estimated 4,164,154 in the 15-to-19-years-old age bracket, the commission expects more than two million youths within the 15-to-19-year-old category. The Comelec has also directed its Registration Department to speed up its work of preparing guidelines for the registration of illiterates who have also been enfranchised, by the new Constitution. The registration of illiterates would require procedures not spelled out in the Commission's existing rules and thus, there is need for formulation of new guidelines.

GOVERNMENT POLICY to spur the accelerated development of the Philippine export trade had received another boost with the issuance of a new customs regulation designed to facilitate the processing of export documents and to expedite the loading of export products destined for markets abroad. The regulation, embodied under Customs Memorandum Order No. 9-73, directs and authorizes all collectors of customs throughout the country to accept and process documents involving all exports, except sugar and copra, and to allow immediate loading of the same in the ports concerned. This new procedure eliminates the old requirement that air export documents should be directly forwarded to and processed by the Export Coordination Department of the Bureau of Customs in Manila. The new regulation actually gives exporters the option to file their export documents either in Manila or in the ports where their products are being loaded, whichever is convenient for them.

LAND TRANSPORTATION Commission ordered the impounding of all motor vehicles displaying fake or illegal number plates. Falling within this category of plates are board tacked to the front and rear of vehicles bearing such inscriptions as "REGISTERED—NO PLATES AVAILABLE" "FOR REGISTRATION" and also commemorative car plates, the permit for which have already expired. There is a sufficient number of, LTC plates, the LTC said. The LTC issued letters to car dealers warning them against this illegal practice. Any car owner who desires to operate cars pending registration may do so by applying for a conduction permit at any LTC agency at a charge of P4 per trip.

BOARD OF INVESTMENTS Chairman Vicente Paterno stressed the government's role in the technological development during the seminar of the private sector, and metal industry research and development center workshop. He pointed out that the policies which would greatly spur the transition of the nation's local engineering industries from maintenance part manufacturers to original parts manufacturers are the following: 1) The encouragement and institution of a domestic content program; 2) Adoption of horizontal integration for engineering industries; and 3) Local manufacture of capital equipment. The BOI official deplored the heavy importation of industrial equipment, which can be manufactured locally at lesser cost in view of the nation's vast natural resources and intelligent, highly trainable manpower.

FINANCE SECRETARY Cesar E.A. Virata urged family corporations to open their enterprises to public participation to spur business and economic activity so that a greater number of our people can be benefited. Speaking before the first session of the annual conference of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry of the Philippines, the finance secretary said the New Society will move forward with the support of the silent majority which had no political forums in the past because forums were dominated by vested interests. To achieve the goals of the New Society, the secretary cited the following measures being undertaken by the government: 1) Education and training of the youth to prepare them for future productive employment. 2) Accelerated development of the rural sector which include efficient irrigation drainage and flood control systems, construction of roads and similar projects. 3) Increased production on the countryside to generate employment and discourage the migration of the skilled and unskilled job seekers to the urban areas.

ALL PROVINCIAL governors and city mayors are expected to attend a national conference to be field in Davao City February 24-25 to discuss the new role of local governments under the 1973 Constitution. According to the Department of Local Governments and Community Development (DLGCD), one of the principal topics in the conference agenda is the proposed Local Government Code provided in the newly ratified charter. Also to be taken up is the all-important matter of local financing. Under the new basic law, local government units are empowered to create their own sources of revenue and to levy taxes, “subject to such limitations as may be provided by law.”

PROMULGATION OF Presidential Decree No. 87 and the immediate entry of the world’s largest exploration firms—Chevron and Texaco have considerably accelerated a flood of inquiries from both independent and major exploration companies from all over the world. The decree amends Presidential Decree No. 8 and is intended to hasten the discovery and production of indigenous petroleum through the utilization of government or private resources, local and foreign, under arrangements calculated to yield the maximum benefits to the Filipino people and to assure just returns to participating private enterprises, particularly those that will provide the necessary services, financing and technology. Many local concessionaires have also signed contracts of exploration with foreign oil companies and there are more than 40 local oil firms holding exploration concessions under the Petroleum Act of 1949. The government held areas that still remain open for exploration cover between four and nine million hectares.

FOUR WAGE ORDERS have been issued by the Wage Commission after bringing representatives of labor and management together to determine a minimum wage that is both adequate to labor, and economically feasible to management. The revised wage orders are of sugar, industrial and agricultural workers, jeepney drivers in Greater Manila, the desiccated coconut industry workers, and the workers in the coconut oil industry. In determining the minimum wage for the industrial workers, the commission took into account the cost of living, wages established by collective arrangements or wage orders for similar jobs, wages paid by employers who voluntarily maintain reasonable standards for similar jobs and fair return of invested capital. For agriculture, the size, location, and fertility of the land being farmed were taken into consideration. For the industrial workers in the sugar industry, their wages rose from P8 to P11. Sugar’s agricultural workers received P4.75 before. Their daily wages were raised to P8 for Silay City, Talisay, and Enrique Magalona. Workers in other areas of Negros Oriental, and Canlubang, Laguna, will receive P7. All workers in other regions of the Philippines will receive P6. Jeepney drivers in Greater Manila will receive P12 for eight hours daily work; desiccated coconut workers will receive P9.20 a day; and coconut oil workers will receive P9.25 a day.

UNDERSECRETARY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS Jose D. Ingles underlined the need for a sustained campaign to disseminate the goals of the New Society during the conclusion of a five-day seminar on the New Society at the Department of Foreign Affairs. He noted that although so much has already been said about the New Society in the media, there is still the need to repeat these things in seminars and other public forums “so that the objectives of the New Society may seep into our consciousness.” The speaker emphasized that the government’s program of reforms has to deal squarely with deeply ingrained weaknesses in the Filipino character brought about by long years of foreign domination. During the Spanish and American regimes, the privileged class imitated the colonial master while the oppressed and the poor lost their initiative for work. During the Japanese occupation, the privation of the war years merely heightened the people’s craving for the return of American consumer goods: the national discipline that was nurtured by the hardships of the occupation was discarded as part of a discredited regime. When independence was proclaimed, the Filipinos clung to the form and ritual of American democracy while ignoring its substance. The poor became poorer and the rich became richer and soon, the country reached the point of near anarchy. It was because of this President Marcos had to impose Martial Law.

ASSOCIATION OF INTERNATIONAL Shipping Lines commended the remarkable improvement in the port of Manila since the imposition of Martial Law and the advent of the New Society. The association commented favorably on the noticeable improvement in port security. It noted the welcomed absence of the large number of unauthorized persons called "combacheros" who used to enter and loiter in the piers and even board vessels to engage in deals, pilfer or engage in other shady activities. It observed that the strict enforcement of law in the New Society succeeded in removing these nuisances when continuous complaints in the old society proved fruitless. As a direct result of improvements in the ports, shipping agents who were reluctant before to visit their ships at night, can now walk about at all times of night or day at the piers without fear. Pilferage and loss of cargo used to be a major problem but now reduced to negligible proportions. With the strict security provided by the customs personnel, shipping agents are questioning the necessity of employing their own security guards on board vessels.

ADJUDICATION BOARDS of the Police Commission recently decided a number of administrative cases, with orders for 47 exoneration, 20 dismissals, 20 suspensions and seven lesser penalties in the police service. Cases are being decided rather speedily now with the creation of four Adjudication Boards and seven new local Boards of Investigation, which have wider powers pursuant to Presidential Decrees 12-A and 12-B. The Police Commission has been handing down more exoneration than dismissals, and some of the 473 policemen previously suspended due to the gravity of their cases have been cleared of charges.

INFLUENZA which has afflicted some European countries since last year, and lately the United States, Japan and Hongkong, may also reach the Philippines. The Department of Health said that the flu virus responsible for the epidemic outbreak here last year may be the same as the one isolated in England. This is the virus traced as the cause of the present outbreaks in Europe, the U.S., Japan, and Hongkong. But the health department said that when a virus leaps from one country to another, it may have undergone antigenic changes. If so, the population is still susceptible although immunity from the original virus strain may have been acquired from a previous outbreak.

PUBLISHERS AND EDITORS were enjoined to comply with the Mass Media Council memorandum dated Dec. 15 1972 on the rates for judicial and legal notices. The DPI pointed out that according to the memorandum, newspapers and other publications shall charge not less than P2.50 and not more than P3.00 per column inch for such judicial or legal notices as provided for in Republic Act No. 4569, until such time as the act is amended. The DPI issued the injunction in view of the numerous inquiries received at the council and the Department regarding such rates. The DPI also requests the public to report violations of this order to the MMC or the DPI.

PRESIDENT MARCOS concentrated his efforts on government projects and asked the different heads of government agencies assigned to undertake various works to submit reports on the progress of the jobs given to them. The President directed Presidential Executive Assistant Jacobo C. Clave and other executive assistants to prod agency heads to expedite completion of the projects assigned to them. He told these assistants to call for progress reports and inquire into the status of the projects periodically. At the same time, the President directed National Irrigation Administrator Alfredo Juinio to submit a new list of irrigation projects, giving priorities to those in the Muslim areas. He is scheduled to release additional funds for irrigation, but told Mr. Clave to check first with the NIA on the status on the rehabilitation of major irrigation systems in rice producing areas, as well as to secure a listing of new communal irrigation projects. He also directed Secretary Jose Roño of the Department of Local Government and Community Development and Undersecretary Rosendo Marquez to check on the various immunity projects, particularly those in the barrios which he wants finished as soon as possible.

PRESIDENT MARCOS ordered the establishment and expansion of shipping points for specialized export products, like copra, sugar, ore, logs, and the organization of an authority to supervise and control the export of these products. The President's order was conveyed to Secretary David Consunji of the Department of Public Works, Transportation and Communications and Secretary Troadio T. Quiazon Jr. of the Department of Trade and Tourism. They were required to submit their studies on how best to develop these specialized shipping points. Another directive issued to Director General Gerardo Sicat of the National Economic and Development Authority, the President ordered the organization of an authority to supervise and control the export of the country's principal products, which to the present do not have any agency to guide and direct their exportation or expansion.

“KILUSAN NG WASTONG PAGKAIN SA BAGONG LIPUNAN”, a rice conservation through nutrition improvement movement, revealed that the Filipino people can be self-sufficient in rice again by saving ten per cent of the national rice production through wise consumption of the staple food. The Philippines had been self-sufficient in rice and even exported it in modest amounts from 1968 to 1970. However, typhoons, floods, and other calamities in 1971 and 1972 caused a drastic drop in rice production. Traditional methods of harvesting also reduce palay yield. Modern machines may be used but this involves additional investments and a number of people who rely on the harvest for jobs will be unemployed. The Philippines can regain self-sufficiency if production and marketing is improved and rice wastage minimized. Also, the rain stimulation program of the government coupled with the policy of utilizing only high-yielding rice varieties will boost the nation’s rice self-sufficiency program.

DR. PACIFICO MARCOS, Chairman of the Philippine Medical Care Commission, told student nurses recently that Medicare program has provided Filipino nurses with greater opportunities and higher income in their country. Speaking on “The Role of the Nurses in the Medical Program,” at the University of Sto. Tomas, he noted that with the increased volume of paying patients occasioned by the Medicare program, private hospitals can now afford higher salaries for nurses. In government hospitals, staff nurses, can be given allowance out of the hospital’s income from Medicare. The government hospitals are supposed to put their Medicare income on a revolving fund for expansion, improvement of facilities, and other legitimate purposes. The student nurses were also advised to work in rural areas after their graduation because hospitals are mushrooming in the provinces to serve Medicare patients. The Medicare Commission alone has programmed the construction of 81 hospitals in medically depressed rural communities.

DEPARTMENT OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT and Community Development issued a in a memorandum circular to the heads of local governments throughout the Philippines, reminding them about the implementation of Presidential Decree No. 76, issued, last Dec. 6, which provides for a general revision or revaluation of real property to be undertaken by provincial or city assessors this year. Section 8 of the Decree states: “To effectively implement the objective of this decree, provincial, city, municipal and district boards or councils shall provide the necessary appropriations to underwrite or defray expenses incident thereto, using for the purpose any unappropriated balances in the general, road and bridge and/or permanent public improvement funds; any underestimated revenues accruing thereto or reversions of unauthorized appropriations in their respective budgets which are not otherwise urgently needed, existing laws to the contrary, notwithstanding.” The local government heads have been requested to set aside funds to finance the general revision of the assessment of lands as called for by the decree. The circular also orders that local funds allotted should be supplemented budgets for the current fiscal year, “copies of which should be submitted to the Department of Finance for review within ten days from approval.”

ALL ALIENS in the Philippines are urged to make their annual report to the Commission on Immigration and Deportation on or before March 1 in order to avoid the rush and the administrative fine if they do not meet the deadline. Aliens who are in the country illegally, or whose stay has not yet been legalized in accordance with the laws, are also urged to come forward and comply with all pertinent laws and regulations pertaining to the reporting of aliens or they face arrest and detention without bail under Martial Law rules. The Alien Registration Division of the Commission has reported that only 28,000 aliens have made their annual report to the main offices at Magallanes Drive, Intramuros, as of last week, indicating a very slow turnout among the more than 45,000 alien population in Greater Manila. The Commission offices are open seven days a week, including Saturdays, Sundays and holidays to accommodate those who cannot come on week days.

THE PHILIPPINES exported 96,988 kilos of fresh ginger, mangoes, potatoes, and melons worth $10,265 to Hongkong and Singapore, and more individuals have indicated their desire to venture into the food crops export business, it was reported by the Plant Quarantine Office of the Bureau of Plant Industry. The plant quarantine office at Port Area, Manila which inspects and fumigates all coming and outgoing crops before they are allowed to be sent to their respective destinations, reported that seven individuals and private companies in Manila exported the food crops. It was pointed out that the “Green Revolution” of the First Lady, Mrs. Imelda R. Marcos, has resulted in the increase of fruit and vegetable production in the country.

NATIONAL GRAINS AUTHORITY has relaxed the percentage for rice recovery and milling grade requirements for millers appointed as NGA procurement agents, to accelerate the implementation of the government's cereal procurement program and to encourage more millers to participate in the program to benefit the farmers. The required recovery used to be 63 cavans of rice for every 100 cavans of palay, each cavan weighing 50 kilograms. The 63 cavans has been lowered to 61, which means that another two cavans of rice will accrue to the millers as added income. Other incentives that miller-agents enjoy are the following: all by-products; storage fee of P0.10 per cavan per month if the rice agency fails to order milling within six months; preference in hiring of agent's trucks for transporting milled rice to NGA-designated warehouse or stores; premiums paid by millers for fire insurance of procured stocks will be reimbursed by NGA, and sacks of palay and rice will be provided by the NGA.
